

Be Yours 831

Chapter 831 Please Let Him Go

As the two walked, they failed to notice the car trailing behind them a distance away.

Though Alec didn't seem to care, he was rolling in waves of jealousy. That was why he never left the restaurant after dropping Jenny off.

He ended up reaching the concert hall with the both of them, only stopping when they entered and disappeared from sight.

"The fuck is wrong with you, man? Jenny would never tolerate you stalking her like this," he groaned, rubbing his face tiredly.

After thinking things through, he drove off, leaving the two alone. There were far more important things to do right now.

Graham never expected Rowena to show up in front of him ever again. He'd thought she'd be wise enough to stay hidden for the rest of her life with the money he gave her.

did think he wouldn't doing here?" Graham grunted coldly. No point faking the pleasantries with his attitude. She was there to ask for help, after all. It was better to have the right said, "Have you had

don't need to try and act like that now," Graham stopped back down to sit beside at how little a gap she left between them. So he stood up. "Get to the point of why you're here."

you to have mercy on my family." She couldn't just do snorted. "For the a step back now, shall we? What do you think of Randy's actions the other night? Do you really think he should go unpunished with how reckless and murderous

Chapter 832 Send Him Right to Heaven's Gates

Graham knew reasoning with her was pointless and waved her off. "The court will decide what happens. I have no power over them nor will I use my power."

"Will you really not give him a chance?" Rowena pleaded. She had prepared herself for Graham's cruelty, but her heart was still pained at actually experiencing it. She had loved this man once, after all.

"See her out." Graham no longer wanted to speak to nor see her again. "From this day onward, I will no longer see to Ms. Glass nor do I want her in my house!"

Some of the servants in the household were used to Rowena's presence over the years and would still treat her as the matriarch whenever she came around. Surely they'd no longer make the same mistake now.

Rowena glared at him, eyes red with unshed tears. "I'll remember this, Graham Walter!"

the past after their divorce and instead spend her days doing what she loved with the money she had. In fact, she'd been from Walter Castle, coincidentally meeting Jenny, who'd just returned from the music has this been now?" Jenny scoffed.

about to curse again when she forcefully calmed down and asked, to Heaven's gates. Of course, he might find himself in front of Hell. People like him don't seem to have a big chance of being in God's her father, unfortunately. No way was Randy going to be let go for his crimes now that even Rowena had come begging for mercy. Jenny would make sure Randy didn't

"Heh. Like

No fucking mercy!

Jenny snorted in disdain before turning to Evan. "Thank you for tonight, Evan. It

Chapter 833 Was It Fun?

When Jenny entered the living room, Graham was still fuming from his conversation with Rowena. He hadn't anticipated how bold she was, even begging for Randy's life.

Jenny noticed how angry her father was and asked kindly, "What's up, Dad?"

Only then did Graham come to his senses. "Nothing much, just Rowena. She asked if I could let Randy go. I don't understand where she got her confidence from."

"No point ruminating on it. We'll never understand people's minds." The Glasses were important to Rowena. That woman was even willing to destroy the family she married into, so Jenny wouldn't put this past her.

Graham sighed, dropping the topic. "It's late. Did you do overtime?"

Evan invited me for dinner, then we went to a concert." Jenny poured a glass of water pleased by that. "How was it? Was it fun?"

was alright." Not too of the circulating rumors, haven't you?" Graham then asked, observing Jenny's minute reactions to see seeing through him. "I have. You wouldn't be responsible weren't for Graham allowing such gossip, it would've if it was me? Would you take Evan as your if he wanted to? He's a good man with his fair share of women to choose from, I'm sure."

into the family?" Graham asked, knowing deep down that Evan see him as anything more than a friend. Please don't worry about

He had settled the idea that Jenny was interested in Evan the moment he was told this. So why were things not turning

Chapter 834 Go Ahead Then

Graham knew his daughter wasn't being sarcastic. "I just worry about you, you know."

"I know, but you don't need to. I've survived on my own all these years, haven't I?" She was already an adult, for God's sake.

But the man felt guiltier hearing that. "It's because you had to survive on your own without my help that I feel guilty, Jenny. All I hope is that you can finally find a nice young man to be with so he can. protect you when I can't."

"Then you've got it wrong, Dad. There's no upside to relying on others these days." She had never considered finding someone to protect her. Even if she did, she wanted to actually like that person.

Graham shook his head, sighing again. "Where you got your steadfastness from, I have no idea."

Jenny smiled but said nothing in return.

Alec Faust, don't you?" her father

question. "Why do you

Sometimes it can even grow stronger and deeper." Just like the love Graham had for Jenny's mother. It had been decades since he'd seen her. He still didn't know if she was alive, lips, staying silent it was confirmed now. "I don't oppose the relationship, in truth. I just worry you'll be hurt again. But I know what my Jenny is like. She'll protect herself from harm."

as he was, he knew he had her nose. "Focus on enjoying your retirement now, please. You don't need to fret about me that you are in charge of the family business, I can pursue other passions."

"Are you really going to look but just delayed it on and on. I hope your mother still remembers me."

you know her no." Graham huffed. He would've gone after

Chapter 835 Don't Overestimate Yourself

The following days passed by peacefully. Jenny got used to going to work at the hospital every day while being updated with progress at her companies. She had her personal space most of the time, so life now was much more enjoyable than she had given it credit for.

When she heard about Randy's death, Alec was just knocking on her door. Jenny was less reluctant to push him out now, likely because he had saved her from certain death those nights.

She hung up her call, then chewed on her lip in thought. After a while, she asked Alec, "Did you do this?" "What?" Alec blinked, not understanding her question.

"Randy Glass is dead." He was found dead in his cell before the date of his trial, which, to Jenny, only indicated that something was wrong.

The only person she could imagine having sent the kill order would be Alec.

instantly understood what she was asking. He shook his head. "Wasn't Jenny frowned. "Really?"

It couldn't be had already left Bardoff. Plus, if he'd wanted to do something to Randy, he wouldn't

"Am I that untrustworthy to you?"

mean it like that. I just can't imagine who else was always the way for Jenny. If the court held that Randy was to be sentenced to capital punishment, then he would be. If otherwise, Jenny wouldn't complain either.

guessing who it could be but didn't reveal it to Jenny when a possible candidate surfaced.

afraid of," he reassured her with a smile. "By the way, work to do? I heard Xavier and Yakov are teaming up. Aren't you worried?" Jenny had been paying attention to the Fausts news from the bar Alfred opened. After vigorous training, Melissa had now become its owner as well as her

Chapter 836 Do You Wanna Take His Place?

Evan walked out of Walter Inc building and got into his car, the pleasant smile on his face disappearing instantly.

"It's done, Boss,' someone reported to him.

Evan nodded. "No traces?"

"None. You can trust our skill, Boss."

Evan nodded again, satisfied.

But the man continued, "But Boss, how did that Glass kid piss you off for you to have sent us after him?"

That was the first time the Boss had sent them on a job after returning to the country, so they were quite interested to hear the reason behind it.

killed someone I care deeply

Evan wouldn't have done it. He couldn't tolerate Randy being alive any longer after this person Evan cared about was, but they didn't pry. So long as their Boss tasked them with a job, they'd get it done, on very routine life. We didn't cocked his head curiously. Alec would lose his neck at any moment now an

"Yes, Boss."

about his other identities, nor did he want these gangs of men working for him revealed. All he wanted sometimes was to continue working like a normal person at Walter Inc. Of called her number, thinking of asking her the response came over the phone. Evan seemed to sound cheery when he replied with, "That's alright," but his expression immediately darkened

meanwhile, tucked her phone away under Alec's inquisitive

taking a bite of her marrying into your family?" Alec asked

Chapter 837 You'd Gain A Lot From Marrying Me

"What about the Fausts?" Jenny asked curiously.

Alec grinned. "They'll be my dowry. That way, the Walters will be number one in the Ten Elites of Bardoff. What do you think?"

"Sounds like a dream." Heck, she had a feeling Alec might not even be bluffing.

But...

Did she actually want that?

There was no decipherable answer she could find from her heart.

Her silence encouraged Alec to continue, "Well? What do you think? You'd gain lots from marrying me."

marrying

Jenny rolled her eyes again and dropped the topic. Besides the fact that Alec marrying into the Walters was incredibly far-fetched, there was still the fact that

Evan in the picture. They didn't need Alec getting marry into his family would be more ideal. Still, he didn't mind the opposite, as long as Jenny allowed as she wouldn't be occupied for no good reason. Sure enough, here she was, having lunch with Alec. He got out of the car and walked steadily

"What a

was surprised to lunch. I didn't expect to see you here!" Evan gasped in refused to believe Evan didn't purposely look for them. What was important was whether Jenny felt the so she wouldn't rip off Evan's mask, either. "Yeah, Mr. Faust asked me out for business deal?" Evan asked, sitting down face darkened. "For words: stay the fuck out of Chapter 838 How Many Times?!

Jenny was getting really fed up with the two men. "If an argument is what you want, then I'm leaving."

She couldn't stop them, nor could she bear another second of their testosterone-filled contest. Leaving was the best option.

Hearing that, both men immediately shut up

Only then did Jenny sigh, glad to see they hadn't lost their mind.

The food Evan ordered arrived, making Jenny wait an hour or so before she could finally be driven back to the hospital.

could go back to work, the two men got into another argument about who should send her back. It took a good ten minutes before either

was gone, having long imagining how impatient Jenny must've man now. "Can't you see how Jenny has no interest in you? I'd stop bothering her if see it." Alec shrugged. He actually on Evan sending her back just Faust!" Evan yelled, angry now. "How many goddamned about her since before you returned to the country, so what right do you have one interrupting his lunch with Jenny.

he was worried to see her spending so much time with Alec. He knew Jenny didn't have those feelings for him. Otherwise, they wouldn't still be so polite

left with his own car

Chapter 839 What Do You Think?

"It seems you're not too inclined to continue this lunch date, Mr. Windsor.' Her family was incomparable to the Windsors, sure, but that didn't mean she was undeserving of basic respect.

James eyed her curiously, thinking the woman might act like the others before her appealing to his good graces as if nothing had happened. He set his glass down.

"You're right. I don't think we're a good match."

"Very well." The woman nodded. "Thank you for being direct and for not wasting my time, Mr. Windsor.
But if you don't mind me asking, I'm sure you've been on countless blind dates. Has no woman ever caught your fancy?"

James frowned, not wishing to answer.

But the woman went on, "I heard you liked the Walters' eldest daughter. Sadly, she didn't feel the same way. Then you got into a mess with the younger daughter. I heard she's still living with you. So tell me, are you rejecting me now because of the elder one or the younger one?"

She had personally been face had long turned stormy. "I'm rejecting you

by his words, the woman scoffed, away, storming out of the cafe. There was not much else she could do. He was James Windsor, his anger, the seat across roared without looking at angry," Jenny teased. It had been a while since she properly engagement dissolution between James and Jolene, but since James never shock. "Jenny? What are you didn't expect to see

James eyed their surroundings briefly. He'd heard that Evan was getting closer to Jenny,

Chapter 840 Lucky Him

Jenny was spotted by Evan the moment she walked into the restaurant. He waved her over. "Here, sit.
Food's almost ready." "Sorry for making you wait." Jenny went to sit opposite Evan across the table.

Evan waved her off but didn't ask her how she got there. He'd seen Alec drop her off from the restaurant windows.

Evan respected Alec for being generous enough to drive Jenny over for their dinner, knowing it was with his love rival. He wouldn't have been kind enough to do that himself.

The food was soon served, most of it Jenny's favorite. "Eat up while it's hot. I "Don't mind if I do." Jenny had been starving since the afternoon, so she quickly helped herself to dinner.

"This is really good, Evan. Where'd you find this place?"

a couple of times and saw they had a lot of customers, so I figured they must be doing something a place with such good cooking just say?" Evan asked. "Glass is going to guests killed by the bomb are still alive, just heavily injured. My guess is he'll just get dark flared in Evan's eyes when he heard "life sentence," vanished. "Lucky him."

are trying to argue that he never intended to kill anyone, given how weak the bombs he

to have bought such low-quality weapons," Jenny thought it up to the

There's nothing else I can

Afterward, when Jenny thought she could finally

Wanna join me?