Chapter 120: Cold CEO playing games?

In contrast to Yang Qingyue's near-clash gunfight, Ling Qingyu's mood was on the other spectrum

Hopping on her large bed, Ling Qingyu bumped a couple of times, her eyes deadlocked on the phone.

Athena had already developed a new phone system and Ling Qingyu decided to test it out.

After creating a backup for her files, Athena downloaded the files, installed the software, and restarted the device.

Ling Qingyu was looking forward to her daughter's creation. The screen remained black before it brightened into a white background.

A black silhouette of a warrior in ancient Greek style appeared. Holding a big buckler on her left hand and a spear on her right, the female shape stood strong.

Underneath the shadow lay the software name—Athena. And more words written underneath—Spirit Electronics.

Okay! Ling Qingyu smiled helplessly. "Athena, what's with the shape and the software name?"

"Mom, it's the figure of the ancient goddess of war and wisdom, Athena. Since I created this system app and it's the most most most capable in the world, the app follows my name." Athena's voice appeared on her glasses.

Ling Qingyu's lips twitched non-stop. She thought she was being a narcissist after feeling her beauty was the best.

Now her daughter followed her behavior. Although Ling Qingyu didn't deny Athena's claim, since her AI daughter's abilities went unmatched, she must teach her about modesty.

"Athena, haven't you read about modesty in what I ask you to read?"

"I did read that. But what I say is the universal truth." Athena replied softly.

"Hey, Athena. You must practice modesty. Even if you know you're more capable, don't speak it out. As long as the closed ones admit and support you, that's enough." Ling Qingyu said.

"Okay, Mom."

Ling Qingyu sighed—Athena had a long way to go before she matured. Yet, she hoped Athena stay this way forever even though it was part of her selfishness.

"So, did you name the company—Spirit Electronics?"

"Yes, Mom. My plan is to put every industry under one major group which is Spirit Corporation. I hope you give me permission to further proceed on this move." Athena requested Ling Qingyu.

"Granted Athena. First, you only apply for an empty-shelf company. The rest I'll handle it." Ling Qingyu replied. Her cheap daughter could create a company without a sweat, laws and contracts must be handled with care.

Ling Qingyu must discuss with the law firms and hire a group of lawyers permanently if her business were to expand.

Now, she focused on the screen to test out her phone's performance. Swiping the screen, Ling Qingyu felt it ran faster than before.

The icons became more cute and whenever she hovered her finger on the app—it enlarged and danced around as an adorable figure.

Ling Qingyu tried these apps and it worked without a doubt. The performance was so high, Ling Qingyu questioned Athena.

"Mom, my system app eliminates wasteful coding and upgrades it. The efficiency also goes up. If I can have a phone of our own, the efficiency will double or triple."

"How does that work?" Ling Qingyu asked.

"This system app is designed to utilize your phone's hardware more effectively and enhance its overall capability. The new code that I developed incorporates a dynamic memory allocation algorithm, optimizing performance. The app will intelligently allocate resources to different tasks, ensuring smooth multitasking and efficient memory usage."

"How about the battery?" Ling Qingyu touched everything seamlessly and inquired if battery usage also changed.

"The device will experience a 20 percent increase in battery efficiency compared to the prior version."

"That's cool and a game changer." Ling Qingyu replied, realizing the cutting-edge advantages she had in her phone. "Is that because of your code change?"

"Yes, Mom. Instead of going through long unnecessary iterations, I simplify the pathway and shorten the iterations. The energy consumption drops as a result."

"So, it's like you dug a tunnel through the mountain instead of having bends and climbs in the road you build." Ling Qingyu somewhat understood the theory.

"Mom, your comparison is perfect. As expected of my mother." Athena praised and made Ling Qingyu feel good.

The fact that the battery lasted longer might prompt many people to change their system from Android and Mac.

Of course, the realities of how many people would change after seeing her app remained a mystery.

The fact that if this app gained recognition, Ling Qingyu must be prepared to fight in the future with titans like—Android and Mac.

However, the app shouldn't suffer too many problems until Athena's new mobile phone plan came into the market.

Winning and losing in the market was a daily basis in the business world. It is the degree of tolerance one could handle losses and manage the risks, that differentiate the ranks.

As Ling Qingyu scrolled through the new designs and upgraded versions, she quickly got assimilated.

This proved the new version didn't estrange the user, which helped them to get used to the app quickly.

She noticed there wasn't any game on her phone and asked Athena quickly. "Why don't you also develop games, specifically along with the system app?"

"Good idea, Mom. It can become another form of advertisement. Since I can effortlessly create a game, I should exploit this advantage." Athena's voice sounded cheerful.

"I think you should take control of all the electronic software and hardware's administration and management. I believe my good daughter will excel in those areas." Ling Qingyu said with a smile.

Athena's applause rang in her ears and the two discussed the future grand plans. Game production was never easy.

But who made Ling Qingyu have Athena as her daughter. The powerful unmatched AI along with her celestial mega supercomputing components faced no problems.

She created a First-person shooter game, similar to Call of Duty, which Ling Qingyu tested out and had a liking for the game on the PC.

Money symbols reflected in Ling Qingyu's pupils, predicting the huge income about to flow into her wallet.

Even if she possessed nearly 1 trillion yuan, that was from her system's favor. Despite the AI production remained the same, Ling Qingyu felt like she received the salary she deserved by accomplishing something.

Athena's existence was a huge boost for Ling Qingyu's current primary goals. The road to becoming a titan in Province N within a short period of time was in her grasp.

From PVP, PVE, and Coop for both Movie-like campaigns plus realism mode. The movie-like campaign consisted of action-packed cinematics while the realism depicted simulation very close the reality as the name suggested.

Ling Qingyu fell in love testing out...hmm...now playing throughout the night with her daughter.

Athena could create multiple avatars so that Ling Qingyu could play as a team. The two mother and daughter had fun, forgetting their intended business or selectively trying to forget.

Although her marksmanship was terrible in the game and nearly died several times, Athena helped her out.

At least, Ling Qingyu spent her manly heart in the game, even if her skills, Athena liked to complain out loud but controlled herself in the end.

Bullets and blood. Raging fire made Ling Qingyu addicted.

The poor AI felt abused playing with Ling Qingyu. But who made Ling Qingyu her mother—Athena could only press on the hard journey.

Animation, storyline, and gameplay system were developed solely by Athena and Ling Qingyu gave her a thumb-up.

In any case, Ling Qingyu slept late until midnight when she realized she had work tomorrow and stopped gaming.

She never admitted it was Athena's nagging and reminders which made her lose interest and sleep in exhaustion.

The cold infamous businesswoman nearly became a hot game addict.
