

Beautiful 29

Chapter 29: Back inside hospital

The moment the two left the nightclub, there was still a quarter of hour before Tang Ziyi's hacking was solved. They must be quick enough so that their car didn't even show up on the CCTV.

At the time when the two heroines were speeding away, the whole floors of the central police station, especially those tasked with monitoring the tire city, were in a different atmosphere.

A strange and speechless aura surrounded every officer on duty. Their inner minds only echoed the same thing—spicy eyes.

Somehow their eyes' itched from what they saw on the screen. Be it monitor, computer, or devices—any screen related to police.

Their security servers were hacked. The most burnt eyes were from the monitoring department where a large screen stood in front of a police station control center.

What was played on the screen was definitely not suitable for children. Even the sounds were included. The moans and slaps reverberated across the hall.

The fierce battle caused many policewomen to blush while the men gulped, wishing to replace the actor on the screen. Continuous videos of carnal activities were explicitly displayed.

The police Cyber Security Department struggled to regain control of their network and their work became harder watching the blatant erotica cinema.

Nearly three hours had gone by and no solution was available.

However, this wasn't the only factor which silenced many police officers. The actor in every video was the same person and someone they recognized.

The face everybody in the station must remember. He was the police chief of the central city of Province N.

The short answer was their top boss.

Luckily, it was only the officers who knew about the event and the high-level could easily mitigate the aftermath. As long as they controlled everyone's mouth, the police's reputation shouldn't be damaged.

In addition to the pornography, there was evidence of corruption beside the playing videos. Although these proofs weren't substantial, it was something worth diving into.

Everyone had the same question mark—what does the hacker want by showing them?

Pornography, bribery, and corruption revolved around the police chief, who was visiting elsewhere on official visits and was unknown about the situation in his station.

In contrast, Captain Yang had a smile on her face as her eyes beamed, joying the next possible moment of the police chief, suffering his career.

If it weren't for the station, she would've applauded and laughed out loud. These disgusting pests should never ever stay in this line of work, discrediting what others had given their lives to uphold justice.

She was taking pleasure in what was about to happen to the police chief as she was one of many who had several clashes, especially as a female. She never liked his eyes lusting over her.

If not for her back, she would be like some policewoman who fell under his grasp. Either through coercion or selling cakes via manipulation.

Back in the hospital.

Ling Qingyu had already woken up from her memory fusion process. A bit of dull pain stayed inside her head and her system said it would last for a day.

Good gracious. What in the world had she committed in her previous life, her system found numerous methods to punish her.

Leaving that aside, she gazed outward at the window. Busy traffic along with nonrhythmic flows of humans piled outside. High-rise buildings near the hospital and she even saw some still in the construction process.

However, this wasn't a point. The worry heightened when she realized the sky began to dark and the night was about to usher.

She knew her request would take a long time and probably take weeks to finish. But her anxiety rose when she thought her most capable generals weren't with her.

As her thoughts flew across galaxies, a knock on the door interrupted her. Su Ruomei and Jiang Yu stood up as someone came into the room. Ling Qingyu almost mouthed, 'Come in.'

Five women figures hustled in, alarming Su Ruomei and Jiang Yu. Ling Qingyu identified the first two who wore similar black attires. Tang Ziyi and Xiao Yue.

Identical clothes, black masks, black caps, black jackets, and black everything. Only the height showed the difference.

The three remaining women, Ling Qingyu had no idea.

"So, what's all this about?" Ling Qingyu asked in puzzlement, not expecting Tang Ziyi and Xiao Yue to return back fast. "Is there any problem?"

Tang Ziyi looked toward Su Ruomei and Jiang Yu as if to say they weren't alone yet to answer everything. Her two bodyguards also understood this glance and went out by themselves, guarding the doorway.

"How about the three girls then?" Ling Qingyu inquired.

"They're also part of the discussion." Xiao Yue answered.

Afterward, Ling Qingyu listened to the report of what Tang Ziyi and Xiao Yue had done in one evening, and was in utter disbelief that they had accomplished everything.

All the gang members that took part in her assassination were likely to be included in the list. Even the real head planner was taken out. When she heard the planner was the son of a gang leader, her mouth turned into a satisfied curve.

Perfect implementation of their plan. Ling Qingyu still was confused. "How do you escape police responding and tracking you?"

"Our action was like a rivalry gang fighting for territories. The only downside was that the perpetrators were worried if witnesses were interrogated. And I hacked into the police and made them busy themselves." Tang Ziyi shrugged her shoulders and also reported why she brought back these girls.

Ling Qingyu sighed in distress, as she watched these girls sitting a far distance, looking at her side, lacking luster and confidence in their eyes. After what happened to them, they weren't likely to remain the same.

She ought to help them out, not to mention her status and connection. It was only a matter of raising her hand; but to these girls, all their energy would be spent for justice and the results weren't sure yet.

Such was the cruelty of the world between the rich class and the ordinary class. Xiao Yue also added these rapists and their helpers were likely from the same company, causing Ling Qingyu's eyebrows to raise.

When she knew in detail about the event, her previous viewpoint of the world slowly changed. Although Ling Qingyu understood, laws weren't effective sometimes, she thought this should occur in the faraway distant rather than in the urban area.

These people were purposefully disregarding the laws to achieve their corrupt filthy desires, especially the part where Xiao Yue said with worries— rich and official second-generations.

Ling Qingyu didn't mind Tang Ziyi and Xiao Yue added another problem for her. She was confident she could solve these.

"I think the police chief is not a threat; he had his problem to deal with." Tang Ziyi said out of nowhere. Her smile after taking out the mask brought Ling Qingyu a premonition.

"What did you do? Burn his backyard." Ling Qingyu chuckled.
