It grows quiet except for the sound of our harsh breathing. We stood there silently for what felt like hours but it was probably a minute or two. The air around is foggy with tension that curled and twisted in the room nastily

She's still staring at me coldly. but thankfully her attention has been pulled from the snow globe that meant so much to me. "It was a mistake okay." I whispered the lie and hoped she'd calm down enough but I was a fool to think that Melissa would easily fall for it. Because her sneer returns and I go numb the second I hear the shattering of glass hitting the wall just above the door, just above my head.

The air leaves my lips as they part into a silent gasp of pain, and I blinked, my chest closing in just as painful as my throat. I am afraid to look behind me. Afraid to see the future Xade had promised in that tiny globe. shattered.

"You think." Melissa spat every word, swallowing as the tears flowed down her cheeks, making her look as ugly as her soul. "I will believe you when your eyes say otherwise?"

Her dry cruel laugh made my eyes fall to the floor as I try to come to terms with the loss of my precious gift. Had she really thrown it? I only realized I am crying when I saw my tears drop to the floor just beside. my foot.

But that's not all that is beside my foot, a shattered glass and the tiny little house that was once secured in the snow globe laid helplessly on the cold flooring. I crouched, my throat tightening as I reach for the little house and ignore the loud footfalls of Melissa's boots on the floor as she draw near.

As her shadow casts over me, my fingers wrap around the house and my lower lip trembles as I cry silently. Her boot suddenly lift and step on top of the shattered glass and the crunch sound that came after she pushed her weight on the glass felt like a warning of what she wanted to do to me.

I looked up, my eyes meeting her cold ones as she stares down at me with a scowl so deep it drew a hideous line between her brows. Her lips curl back." You've always been after him, you never tried to hide it either. I should have known it was only a matter of time until you spread your legs for him like the cheap little slut that you are. I'm not surprised."

Her words are harsh but I am too numb to even care to let them hit home. Nothing she says now can hurt me more than her shattering that globe that meant so much to me. I gripped the little house in my hand and stood up slowly, chest to chest with her, breath to breath with her.

"You're right," I said emotionlessly. "I lied." I searched her eyes, enjoying how the cold cast began to reveal the shock she felt by my words. My lips tipped up, curving into a smirk. "It wasn't a mistake. What Xade and I did wasn't, we're not."

She stumbled back, her eyes now filled with anger and surprise. I let out a short dry laugh as I stared into her stunned expression. The earlier guilt I felt is now shattered with the glass behind me. There's no guilt or remorse I felt at the moment.

I can no longer lie, what would be the point when she has already destroyed that one thing I wished to save?

tongue" I taunted, clenching the little house in my hand harder until the material it was made of bit into my skin.

Melissa lets go of her shock and steps forward once more, this time her hand gripping mine, her fingertips digging into my skin. I don't wince. I am too numb to. "I'll make your life here miserable. You will have to sleep with one eye open you cheap slut."

I snorted. "Threatening me? Too bad." I wrenched my arm out of her hold and she's surprised I was able to." My boyfriend wants me to live with him, I might just take him up on that offer. That way I may get a good restless night if you know what I mean." I winked and sidestep her.

She reaches out once more, her nails now digging into my upper arm. Are you seriously going to ruin our friendship for him? forgive you if you let him go Avery. We can move past this. just let him go.

I rip my arm out of her hold once more and turn to her with a glare. Do you seriously think I'll choose you over him? Xade has always been my life, my best friend and now he is so much more. The mistake was waiting too d*mn long to act upon the feelings I had for him. The mistake was feeling guilty for hurting you and Kyan and not choosing my happiness first."

Her eyes dart death glares sharply at me and she opens her mouth to once again respond but the door opens and we both turn to stare at Bianca who looks jittery. Her eyes move between Melissa and me in panic. "The dorm monitor is heading this way, someone alerted her of the noise," her eyes move around the mess in the room and she winces.

Then her eyes bounce back to me and she takes a reluctant step forward. It's only when she outstretches her hand I realize my phone is in her grasp." Sorry, Xade gave me this to hand to you a couple of minutes ago but I didn't want to walk in on whatever was going on in here. He said you forgot it in his car and then he stormed off looking

I take my phone from Bianca's hand, my stomach flipping uncasily at the thought of Xade storming ofl. Had he heard everything? Did he pick up on the first few li I told Melissa? Worry sank deep into the pit of my stomach and I stiffen when Melissa let out an amused giggle.

In my thoughts. I hadn't realized the dorm monitor was already in the room. " Avery!" She gritted, causing me to jerk in surprise. I looked up from the phone to see her frowning. I don't know what's going on between you two girls but we don't tolerate these things around here Clean up this mess as soon as possible and sort out the issues you have with each other as adults."

Melissa snorted. " Adults? Sort out our issues? I'll never forgive her for sleeping with my boyfriend behind my back!"

I whip around. glaring. "He was never your boyfriend Melissa!" I snapped. She flinches, looking frustrated and angry but the dorm monitor once again cuts in before things escalate. "If you two cannot see eye to eye, one of you has to leave and find somewhere else to stay I can talk to the head-"

"No need." I cut in as I turn to face her with a smile that did not reach my eyes "After today I won't be living here anymore."

After the dorm monitor left and warned that she would come back to check if the room was spotlessly clean. I started packing up my stuff. Which was not much seeing as I had to throw out a lot from Melissa's cruel anger

She's sitting on her bed quietly while I clean up the mess she had made with my belongings. I didn't mind, at least it served as a distraction from my racing thoughts of Xade and why he was upset with me. Though I already had a feeling why, I hope he will listen to me.

Now that I see how good it is to be with him and finally put me first, I don't want to lose what we just started. I could only hope he wouldn't turn me away.

Why him?"

I stopped, my fingers brushing one of the blouses she had torn and looked up at her. She had been silently crying judging by her red eyes and snotty nose. "Do you feel no remorse for what you did? For sleeping with him knowing you had a boyfriend and he was mine?"

I try to not remind her that Xade and her never put a label on what they had, but now that time has gone by and the anger I had toward her for shattering the globe passed, I can't help but feel pity for her.

She love him, I knew she did. But I love him too, and I can no longer deny it.

I nod, and continue to pick up the ruined clothes and throw them in the trash bag. "I did, at first. I beat myself up for it." I admitted. "I felt disgusted," I whispered and looked up to catch her eyes once more. But it's not in the way you think. I was disgusted that I loved every single second of it. I was disgusted that I wanted more. But if I could go back, I would change a few things."

I looked at the shattered globe on the floor "I would have broken up with Kvan and would have told you how I felt about Xnde. I would have confessed to him too. I should have actually," I let out a short laugh "I should have confessed a long time ago."

"You know you could lie, that would hurt a lot less. You were my friend Avery. I trusted you " Melissa's voice cracked.

I return my gaze to her and nod." You have every right to hate me. But I can't lie Melissa. I'm done lying." I smiled softly. "I'm done not being happy. I love him and he makes me happy. He always has. Hate me, hurt me, but I can't take my heart back from his hand, he has it for eternity. He always had. "

Funny how it came so easy to me to tell her exactly how I feel about Xade. Perhaps I had just needed this to finally cut the those words back.

She draws in a shaky breath, nods and gets off the bed.” Then I guess we’re done here. Don’t come crawling back to me when he hurts you the way he did me.” With those last words, she walks out of the room, leaving me to clean up the rest of the mess.

An hour later the room was spotless and Melissa had not returned. With my bag packed with the little I had saved from the mess she made with my stuff, I walked out of the dorm with my head held high. Of course, I got stares, many that judged me.

But for once, I felt free. I love Xade and I chose him and me.

When I got to his penthouse Xaden was the one who opened the door. He looked at the bag in my hand and offered to hold it.” Where’s Xade?” I nervously looked around for him, hoping to see that he had calmed down from whatever had ticked him off.

But he’s nowhere to be seen and by the wince on Xaden’s face I knew he wasn’t here. “Told me he’ll head to the gym after his run.”

My brows furrowed. “His run?”

Xaden coughed, prying the bag from my hold. “Yeah, uh you know Xade likes to keep up with his workouts before practice. I’ll set that in the room while you go have angry sex with him, that might calm the s*cker down.”

My mouth parts and heat so scorching burns my cheeks.” Xaden!”

He turns around and winks. “Go on ahead little V, make him forgive you.” He turns around to continue his path to the room but stops, and whips back around slowly with a finger in the air. “Might want to eat that niple in the fridge before you go though, I just ght it.”

I try to slow down my footsteps as I hurry to the room V shared with Melissa. I didn't want anyone to notice how weirdly quick I was on my feet, so I tried my best to make it seem more natural, more human.

I gripped her phone in my hold, smirking happily. She forgot it in the car but I am beaming with contentment knowing I get to catch a glimpse of her face once more...and maybe get a sweet kiss from her lips again too.

I ignore the stares from the other girls I pass by. They m

"So you're saying it had been an accident? That you somehow had your best friend slip inside you instead of your boyfriend?" Melissa's voice is cold and sharp, making me stop in my tracks. Who's she speaking to? Avery?

Anger boiled in me and my fists clenched. If she thinks I'll have her speak to my girl like that she'll have another thing coming. I am about to storm over to them and tell Melissa to f*ck off when I heard V's small voice respond.

"I-yes."

Melissa snorted." So it's a mistake? Nothing but a mistake?"

I stumble back. Is this how it feels to get your heart ripped right out o your chest and have someone stomp on it mercilessly?

I wait for a second or two, just to see if she’ll take it back. But she doesn’t and I can no longer hold back the pain I felt. I needed to leave. Now My wolf kicked at the cages I had placed him in, wanting out as pain ripped through the both of us.

I turn on my heel, rushing back. Her phone was still in my hand and with the way I clenched it, I am scared I’d crush it with my brutal grip. “Here, give this to Avery,” I instructed her, not waiting for a reply as I stormed away. My breathing was hasty because of my fight to hold back my wolf, but also because of the pain those words had inflicted. me with.

As soon as I burst through the doors and the air hit me, I rush to my car got in and skid away. I needed to find somewhere safe to shift.

I gritted my teeth, feeling my canines push out of my gums. I needed to get out before I shift in the car.

'No. I'm going for a run,' I snapped, looking around for an escape. F*cking hell, I still need to drive more. The animal within me roared and clawed for a release and I pushed my foot on the gas pedal, the car roaring as I sped down the road that led out of the city and into the forest

You sound like you're in pain. What the f*ck happened?' Xaden rushed out.

Xade's pov

I somehow found myself in the gym, hitting the bag of sand mercilessly. Boxing was an escape for me, a sport where I could get my wolf's frustrations out without losing control of my beast and risk exposing my kind to the human world.

But as my fist hit the sand bag, my claws threatened to show as the tip pierce through my flesh. I gritted my teeth. If boxing won't be able to calm me down right now then what the f*k will?

“Why have you come here?” I said without emotion as my fist collide with the bag once more. This time I had gone a bit too extreme and caused the bag to split, the sand quickly running down.

I stepped back and turn to her, watching her wide eyes on the sand. falling beside my foot. “You didn’t answer the question, why are you here?”

She looks up and I try to keep my mind off of how incredibly cute and alluring she looks right now. She looked nervous, chewing on her lower lip. “I-

She flinched, looking away. “You heard.”

I nod, my heart feeling like it was tearing apart once more. "I'm an accident right? A mistake?" I chuckle dryly. "Funny, out of everyone I'd never take you to be the one to hurt me the most. I think you ruined my heart and mind V."

She snapped her gaze to me and I see a fire that went straight to my c*ck. F*ck. I love it when she gets mad.

My heart fluttered and all the anger I felt earlier evaporated Even my wolf purred inwardly. I looked up into her furious gaze licking my lips. "I'm sorry. For everything," I referred to her previous words about me ruining her.

She scoffed, folding her arms once more. "You're so infuriating! Jumping to conclusions when I told you I'm a hundred percent in with
