

Bloodline 1011

Chapter 1011: The Sacrifice

'I'm out of energy... I have to use it,' Fola thought.

'Even though it won't be enough to eradicate them all, it would give them enough breathing space,' He began charging towards the ranks of infected at this point.

"Everyone head back to the wall!" He yelled out as he charged at them.

-"What are you doing?"

-"Where are you going?"

The officers here yelled out as they spotted him running towards the infected.

"Just do it! Take refuge on the wall!" He yelled out once again as he body began to glow up.

The officers stared with looks of confusion and disbelief but no one could stop him now.

He had already leapt into the ranks of infected and had himself surrounded by them.

With every passing second his entire body glowed even more brighter.

"Take refuge everyone!" One of the officers shouted out as he realised what Officer Fola might be up to.

Fola leapt into the air once more drawing the attention of the infected further backwards as he distanced himself from the wall.

"Follow me you fuckers!" He yelled out as his entire body glowed with so much purple light his skin began to melt.

After he felt he had left enough distance between him and the wall he finally let go of the energy he had been building up.

"Die!" A wry smile appeared on his face at this moment.

BOOOOOOOOOOMMMMMMM!

A loud explosion rang out as purplish waves of energy blasted across the vicinity. It was so intense that the infected within a radius of more than twenty thousand feet were instantly incinerated.

Everyone from the walls had looks of astonishment as they saw tens of thousands of infected disintegrate from the blast that also destroyed the user.

"Oh... he used his last energy to turn himself into a super explosive?" Gustav muttered while holding his chin.

"Yes... his sacrifice was a great help," Gradier Xanatus responded.

"How?" Gustav asked this because he felt this was not nearly enough to take care of the situation when there were still millions of infected.

"Some minutes after his sacrifice, some of the MBO scientists reached us on the wall," Gradier Xanatus explained.

"Oh?" Gustav exclaimed.

"They had successfully created a cure for the ashy infection from the sample you passed to them," Gradier Xanatus added.

Gustav had an astonished look as he heard that, "I really thought it would take them longer than that to create a cure," He voiced out.

"If Officer Fola hadn't made the sacrifice, the infected from the east wall area would have managed to infiltrate before the cure arrived," Gradier Xanatus stated. R̄AṀōbĚŠ

Gustav now understood why the sacrifice was the saving grace. The city would be gone now if Fola didn't do perform that action.

'To put one's life on the line for people you don't know is already a great sacrifice... talk more of actually giving your life to protect them,' Gustav didn't know how to feel about it but he knew it was a virtuous act.

'I don't think I can do that,' He knew this within himself.

("No you can't. You're selfish and that isn't necessarily a bad thing since staying alive sometimes requires selfishness. You're not good to anyone dead,") The system voiced in his head.

'But is this what Boss Danzo wants me to be? A savior of mankind... someone that is willing to give his life to protect others is definitely the kind of person boss Danzo would be proud to call his son...' Gustav thought.

("No... that's far from what he wants. Boss Danzo has a sentimentality for lives in general but you're misinterpreting him. He wants you to do your own thing, stay alive and chase your dreams but not neglect the plea of others if you have the power to help their situation. You've been doing great so far,") The system said with a tone of reassurance.

'Hmm okay...' Gustav heaved a sigh of relief as he said.

'Hey... you know, this is actually the first time you've acted so nice to me,' Gustav said internally with a suspicious tone.

("Shut up dimwit! I'm just placing your virgin ass in the right state of mind so you don't ruin things for us,") The system stated.

'And there she goes, ruining the moment...' Gustav said internally.

'Hey I'm no longer a virgin,' Gustav added.

("You've only done with like once or twice pffft still a virgin,")

'Shut up!' Gustav stated before phasing back to reality.

"So Luchan City is okay now?" Gustav asked.

"Yes, besides a few renovation and cleansing, the city was saved thanks to the cure," Gradier Xanatus responded.

He explained that the cure was transformed into an airborne state by one of the MBO officers which caused it to spread far and wide.

The infected began dropping like flies since they were initially corpse. Those officers who had already been turned, died completely after getting disinfected.

That was how millions of infected were returned to corpses and the city was saved. Besides the casualties from the MBO side, there was not a single casualty from the city residents.

"Hmm this is the best possible outcome... I thought it would end way worse than this," Gustav could not help but voice his satisfaction.

"How did you manage to create a cure sample?" Gradier Xanatus questioned.

"That's a story for another time... what happened to the culprits that were apprehended?" Gustav curved Gradier Xanatus's question and asked his.

"They have been interrogated and we got some information from them," Gradier Xanatus tone sounded quite bothered as he got to this point.

Gustav already knew there was something deeper with this whole situation so he waited for Gradier Xanatus to spill.

"Watch this," Gradier Xanatus voiced out as he requested for the AI to play a footage.

Trrroooooinnn!

A holographic screen appeared in Gustav's front and what appeared was the recording of a person.

This person was obviously female due to the tone as well as the long ash colored silky hair that was spotted behind the helmet like mask she had on.

"We are Genxodus..." She began speaking.

Chapter 1012: Becoming A Parallel Being

"We are Genxodus..." She began speaking.

Her voice had been autotuned so it was one couldn't identify her real voice.

"Our aim is to eradicate the mixedbloods and generally any supernatural being that exists on this planet.

In the past the world was less chaotic with just the humans and Slarkovs living on the earth but ever since the menace called mixedbloods came into existence things change.

We shall once again bring the world back to the ages of no supernatural abilities and nurture a world where only technology shall reign supreme." She paused for a bit before continuing.

"We failed in dominating Luchan City which was amongst our plans to push forth our objective but I assure you this is just the beginning. We won't stop until we've rid the world of mixedbloods.

We are not terrorists, we are a liberation army... we are Genxodus,"

Thrrriihhhzz~

The footage ended at this point.

"This played all across the world the day after the battle with the infected ended," Gradier Xanatus voiced out.

"We were unable to trace its origin and pinpoint the location or uncover the identity of this person who is suspected to be the group leader," Gradier Xanatus added.

"So they were the ones responsible for the incident?" Gustav voiced out.

"Yes but they had help... this group known as Genxodus were funded by Yung Jo in the past which is also one of the reasons why the ones we caught had sophisticated weaponry and technological suits," Gradier Xanatus explained.

"And I'm guessing that's also how they got this variant of ashy infection," Gustav pieced things together at this point.

"Correct. They also had access to all his secret research bases where they stole a lot of items and became independent before we located those regions," Gradier Xanatus pointed out. RANoBES

"Even after death... you're still a pain in the ass," Gustav shook his head as he voiced out.

Yung Jo schemes were really deep rooted to the point that the MBO might still take years before they managed to uncover it all.

For someone with such a shrewd mind it was unknown if one of this plans that would cause another big catastrophe in the future was currently in its hatching phase.

The Genxodus was another issue no one saw coming and now it would be difficult to get rid of them with their high ability to stay hidden.

Yung Jo had left another issue and Gustav was starting to wonder if he was truly dead.

'Hey, he's truly dead right?' Gustav asked internally.

("You took his bloodline and killed him... what more proof do you want?") The system questioned.

'Fair point... It's surprising the troubles one man without physical prowess can cause. If Genxodus has half of his shrewdness and intelligence then the world really has a lot to be worried about,' Gustav said internally.

("On the bright side this whole incident has helped you increase your strength,") The system pointed out.

'True... every Yung Jo related encounter seems to have that effect. Maybe I should be happy his influence still remains,' Gustav could feel his Yarki was now way powerful than before and he was sure he had gotten a big boost even though he had not checked.

"The MBO is really taking this serious... they have organised a special task force which sole objective is to hunt down members of the Genxodus," Gradier Xanatus revealed.

"As they should... According to you a small team of seven almost caused the fall of an entire city and thousands of MBO officers were slaughtered in the process... Yeah it should be taken very seriously," Gustav stated.

"It makes sense that they're all Slarkovs... turns out they're not happy with the current world system and are looking to mould things according to their desires by any means possible..." Gradier Xanatus had a contemplative expression as he voiced out.

"What happened with the culprits? Why were they not able to reveal information on the location of the others?" Gustav inquired.

"...Their heads exploded after we took them into custody," Gradier Xanatus responded.

"Oh looks like they already planned a way out. This is quite troubling... for the MBO... I have other things to worry about so I won't be bothering myself with this issue," Gustav recalled he had to investigate more on sir Zil's research now that he had the full information on all of them.

"You still haven't told me what happened on the battlefield... You didn't pass out because you ran out of energy, did you?" Gradier Xanatus had a look of curiosity as he voiced out.

"No, I did not..." Gustav said with a reminiscent look.

Hours later Gustav sat in his room within the MBO tower checking out some things. He had changed out of the hospital wears and was clad in a black tank top with shorts.

He had retrieved his possessions and the MBO were currently not on his case due to Gradier Xanatus.

They had placed him into Gradier Xanatus's hand to be watched and kept under control.

Gustav checked his current host attributed data on the system.

"So I am now a Parallel Being," Gustav said with a tone of expectation.

The system had specifically mentioned times without number how difficult it was to not only achieve Cosmic Superiority but also advance to the next stage after Sub Parallel.

Gustav had managed to get to the next stage in less than three years whereas it took lots of beings centuries to advance. Although Gustav knew well that the main factor for this increase was due to absorbing Gisodinym's Cosmic Superiority.

("A Parallel Cosmic Superior being is many times more powerful than a Sub Parallel... your situation with Gisodinym was different because of two factors...") The system analysed.

Chapter 1013 The War

("One, Gisodinym getting reawakened and controlled by the ashy infection prevented it from being able to use Cosmic Superiority in the manner Gisodinym would originally use it. It became mindless after all.

(Two, your Cosmic Superiority is far from being normal and has Attributes that let it contend with higher Cosmic Superior beings,") The system listed out.

'It makes sense since Parallel beings can tweak reality to a certain extent but Gisodinym never did that,' Gustav said internally.

("You do understand that this has never been done since the beginning of time so be on the alert for complications,") The system advised.

'Complications? Internal complications like what was happening when I was unconscious?' Gustav asked.

("No not that... I never warned that it was unstable to absorb it because it isn't. You have that absolutely under control after the three days spent unconscious,") The system corrected.

'Then what type of complications?' Gustav inquired.

("The type that comes with you attracting certain situations to yourself due to your fast growth... Like I mentioned at the time, that was the greatest defiance of the cosmos and its understandable in your case but do expect complications in the future,") The system added.

'Wow, you said a lot without saying anything,' Gustav felt the urge to grab the system and give her a good spanking if it had a physical body.

("Get used to it,") The system responded with an unapologetic tone.

The system would always mention things like this cryptically without giving an outright reveal.

Gustav decided to keep this at the back of his mind for now since he had other things to worry about.

Gustav reached into himself with his senses as he closed his eyes. Deep within himself he could now spot two oddly shaped things.

The first one was the Yarki which still looked like a scarlet colored flame while the second was a diamond shaped ethereal looking item.

The left part of it that made slight contact with the Yarki had some scarlet color while the other part was gold in color. It looked like the diamond shaped ethereal looking item was still in color transformation state.

'That must be from Gisodinym... why does it look like something else is shaping into existence beside it...' Gustav could notice but one red dot beside the diamond but it looked like it was nothing.

He was intrigued but he knew he would have to wait.

Gustav really wanted to test out how powerful his Yarki was currently and check out more of the abilities he had unlocked with Cosmic Superiority but he couldn't do that here.

He couldn't risk activating Yarki in the presence of the MBO since he didn't know how the extent of the new effects. They might see it as him getting out of control again and he needed to keep things under the wraps.

He decided he would test it out later but very far from this location.

"It's about time I studied the rest of Scientist Zil's research," Gustav muttered.

"System display the rest of the research," Gustav voiced out.

("How about I just send it to your mind instead,") The system suggested.

'Sure,' Gustav answered.

In the next few moments information began to flow into his head in large amounts.

Gustav was processing the ton of information very quickly that the system didn't have any issue displaying all of it in his mind.

After a few minutes Gustav opened his eyes with a look of understanding.

"Interesting... he really went far in this research," Gustav muttered as thoughts began to appear in his mind.

"Time to continue the research in his stead," Gustav voiced as he stood to his feet.

Violet colored glows coated his fingertips as he opened a spatial construct and moved in.

-Glahlion Galaxy

Thousands of spacecraft could be seen floating above a planet with a mixture of gray and red.

These spacecraft were shooting at each other a side having an unknown symbol on them and the other side bearing the MBO emblem.

Thiihhhh! Thiihhhh! Thiihhhh! Thiihhhh!

Powerful shots were fired from every corner and spacecraft were getting blown up by the minute due to the battle between the two sides.

As this battle went on, it became heated by the second.

Zhrrrrriiihhhhhhh!

A loud sound suddenly reverberated across the vicinity like space was being ripped through.

Thiihhh!

A man with handsome young looks and black hair appeared in the middle of this battlefield. He was clad in a long dark suit and didn't seem like he needed to breath in space. řãNŎßĖ$

His sudden appearance caused a big tension across the battlefield in space as an enormous stream of energy began gathering around him.

The space all across this part of space began to tremble and even the stars far away were being pushed away.

"Concept of time..." He muttered underneath his breath as his eyes glowed a white color.

Zing! Zing! Zing! Zing! Zing!

Silver colored chains wrapped around a ball of blue light began appeared around all of the spacecraft with a different symbol from the MBO's on their spacecraft.

Every MBO opposing spacecraft was covered by this circular blue light wrapped by silver colored chains and in the next instant.

Muffled screams were heard as every affected spacecraft withered and turned into ash within a split second.

Just like that, thousands of spacecraft had been reduced to nothing.

- "How dare you leave us to take care of other matters in the middle of battle!"

- "What insult! Jack of earth!"

- "You destroyed more of our troops?"

Three massive figures in form of dark gases appeared with deep white eyes. Their energy seemed menacing and the spacecraft with MBO emblems in the vicinity began to speed out of this part of space so as not to get caught up in a brawl between these powerful forces.

"I'll deal with you three later... and its Mack right now, not Jack," His eyes squinted as he threw a glare at them.

Zhiinnn!

He sped off again in another direction of space where a battle was ongoing.

"Get back here!"

The three yelled as they sped after him while also using their abilities to try to attack but it was all to no avail.

Chapter 1014: Discoveries So Far

The three yelled as they sped after him while also using their abilities to try to attack but it was all to no avail.

The same situation played out again as he arrived on another part, outside this planet atmosphere in space.

Zing! Zing! Zing! Zing!

Thousands of spacecraft withered and turned into ash once more. Mack kept wreaking havoc all around this planet as he destroyed up to fifty thousand spacecraft in less than a minute.

He stood above the planet and stared at it as the three dark cloudly figures chasing after him approached from another angle.

"It's time to end this. Has the machine not been found yet? I want to move in," He voiced out.

- "Negative, that's what they want. We just had a team infiltrate. Wait till they get hold of the device before you swoop in,"

A voice resounded from the communication channel Mack was currently on.

"Sure, they better be quick with it. I'm running out of patience," Mack said with a strong tone before ending the dialogue.

"Bastard, you destroyed all of the spacecraft," One of these three cloudy figures voiced out from behind.

Mack let out a tired sigh as he turned around to face them.

"Okay now I have your time... although this won't tale very long," He added with a disinterested tone.

"Yes because we will be ending your reign now!" Another one voiced out as a star began to form above Mack.

"That's what they said," He muttered as he slowly stretched out his hand.

-One Month Later

Gustav sat in a room with a look of contemplation as three holographic screens were displayed in front of him.

"So it turns out the displacement has a pattern. So far it looks like things have slowly been disappearing in space within neighbouring galaxies without anyone noticing," Gustav muttered as he stared at a footage showing on the left screen. RANÕBÊS

In one moment a spacerock was visible and in the next it had disappeared. The time of disappearance and visibility were different but the main point was that it did disappear.

While it is normal for spacerocks like asteroids to get melted and disintegrated completely from the heat of the sun, this particular one had not reached the end of its lifespan yet.

It was initially very massive and such spacerock would not just disappear in a week.

The footage couldn't display how it disappeared because there was no time stamp for that so it was unknown what caused it.

It could also be a supernatural since powerful beings like Jack were strong enough to even get rid of stars but Gustav had properly made his research.

This wasn't only happening in one place, it had happened in so many other places in space and who knows about the others one that weren't even documented.

Gustav had clocked in one several patterns as well as the theories he had gotten from Scientist Zil's research but he knew well enough that all this was still not enough.

"With everything now, there's a high chance Planet Humbad might have gotten swallowed up by Warp Demolator which may or may not be a spatial disrupting existence...

The Warp Demolator is capable of transferring any object no matter the size to another place in space or another dimension entirely. It is impossible to predict and so far no people dont know it exists or how it came into existence.

The government sure have heard of it since they confiscated Scientist Zil research but I doubt they believe it exists," Gustav analysed with a low tone.

("Remember you have to discover these aspect yourself... I can't in anyway render assistance,") The system voiced.

"Yeah I know... Its just almost like even with everything i have uncovered in the last month i really still don't know anything," Gustav let out a slightly frustrated sigh as he spoke.

"Space is endless so finding out when or where it's going appear next was near impossible but I can narrow it down to two galaxies on neighbouring ends... but having to check out an entire galaxy pffft definitely a waste of time," Gustav added.

("On the bright side you did gather a lot of information though. Now you don't doubt that Planet Humbad is still in existence anymore,") The system stated.

"Yeah but a lot of things are still confusing... If it was never destroyed, why did the Slarkovs come to earth in the first place? And why did they lie that it was destroyed?" Gustav voiced out.

These questions were mind boggling and if the truth ever got out it would upset a balance that had been in place for thousands of years.

Everyone was used to the tale of the Slarkovs planet getting destroyed with them having to leave so they could escape its destruction.

It would raise an alarm when people found out that tale had been wrong all their lives and it had been a deceit that was passed down from generation to generation.

Gustav confirmed that truly planet Humbad wasn't destroyed with sir Zil's research. A place within the fourth part had shown proof.

Sir Zil initially funded his Planetary Dimensional Displacement Theory himself back when he started. Since he was quite rich he was able to send some scientists to space to do an energy reading of places where the Warp Demolator had appeared.

Expectedly, the energy reading of these places were the same energy readings with the spot in space where Planet Humbad used to be located.

It had been thousands of years and the energy of the Warp Demolator there had decreased significantly but it was a match nonetheless.

The location of Planet Humbad had truly been shifted by the Warp Demolator to an unknown place and Gustav had to make sure he found it or he would never be able to complete one of his five year quests.

"Why couldn't the Slarkovs just mention the true crisis was the Warp demolator instead of saying their planet was destroyed?"

Chapter 1015: Five Years Quest Progress

"Why was there a meteor shower of unknown parts from a planet which brought new energies to earth and why did the Slarkovs claim that the meteors were broken parts of their destroyed planet?" Gustav could not help but think that there was a hidden motive or agenda somewhere.

"A three thousand years agenda..? What do they hope to gain and where would it lead to?" No matter how much Gustav thought about this, he just couldn't come up with an answer that he was 100% satisfied with.

"Either way I have to attend IYSOP and make more research," Gustav added.

("They're starting a worldwide training next month,") The system announced.

"I'm not attending," Gustav voiced as the holographic screens disappeared.

"I won't have the time," He added.

("From what I'm seeing, it's mandatory,") The system stated.

"Meh, I still have to make more research in the meantime," Gustav had made up his mind about not attending the training but he still wanted to be a part of IYSOP.

"Maybe I'll show up on the last week of training," Gustav added.

("You do know the training holds for six months which is also ending a few days before IYSOP begins,")
The system pointed out.

"IYSOP is in six months?" Gustav said with a slightly startled expression.

("Yeah..?")

"I was informed IYSOP nearly six months ago... Didn't realise how much time had passed," Gustav said with a slightly worried look.

("Don't worry, you still have around three years before time's up to complete the five years quest...")
The system voiced out.

("Actually worry... you should be very worried...") The system added.

"Shut it," Gustav voiced as he checked the status of one of his five years quests.

"Just 34% even after absorbing Gisodonym's Cosmic Superiority," Gustav made a low smacking sound with his lips as he voiced out.

("On the contrary, you should be commended for reaching this far, this fast,") The system stated.

"If I were to calculate how powerful I will be by the end of this quest based on my current progress, I see myself failing this mission," Gustav voiced in response. RáNΘßĖ$

("Which is why you still have to work harder and use every means at your disposal to make sure you complete the quest,") The system said with an edging tone.

"Yeah... I might have to do something a little extreme one of these days," Gustav muttered as thoughts began appearing in his mind.

However, he decided he would only take such measures when he was getting closer to the end of the quest and his progression speed still isn't up to standard.

"Anyways I'm going to be spending my time on earth making more research about the Warp Demolator before IYSOP arrives," Gustav said as he moved to a side to pick up his jacket.

"But of course, I can't neglect my training so I have to make sure everything is balanced," He added as he walked out of his room.

-The MBO Camp

On a highly exalted platform, thousands of feet above the ground, a battle was playing out.

Boom! Bang! Bam!

Sounds of heavy collisions and explosions rang out as the cadets here battled intensely with one another.

One of them who was floating in mid-air with a big eye exposed on her forehead shot out a destructive purplish beam.

Booom!

The beam slammed into a part of this massive platform, hitting one of the cadets here and sending him flying off the platform.

"Falco your out!" Someone yelled from the side.

This person happened to be an instructor who dived down and caught Falco in his arms.

"Shut up dimwit! I refuse to be defeated by lower life forms," Dark Falco voiced out without regard for the instructor.

"Don't make me drop you from this height," The instructor voiced as he flew down.

He dropped Falco along with others that had been blasted off the platform.

"I demand a rematch wench!" Dark Falco yelled out with an unyielding expression but the instructor had already flown back up.

On the platform, only four more cadets were left. Elevora, Angy, E.E and Aildris.

"You go right,"

Aildris and E.E voiced out simultaneously as they switched positions.

Now E.E was standing opposite Angy while Aildris was staring at Elevora who was floating in the air up ahead.

"Now, don't take this personally Angy," E.E voiced out as vortexes began to appear all over the place.

"I won't," Angy responded with a smirk as she dashed forward.

Fwwhiiii!

She had instantly arrived in front of E.E who was still conjuring vortexes, but she suddenly felt a pull from every direction.

Angy felt like she was sinking into mud as her figure almost paused while she moved at a snail's pace.

"You're fast but that doesn't mean I can't trap you," E.E said as he slapped his palms together.

The vortexes suddenly turned into reddish colour in the next instant as powerful energy spread forth from his figure.

On the other side, Aildris kept dashing from side to side across the place as Elevora sent powerful and destructive purplish blasts from the eye on her forehead.

The large surface floating in the sky had to do a continuous self repair because just one of these four was powerful enough to destroy it entirely with their strength.

Aildris's eyes opened as he closed in on Elevora, causing the color of the vicinity to dissolve into black and white.

Elevora suddenly found herself getting more sluggish as this affected her as well.

Aildris leapt up at this point and threw a punch forward.

"You've gotten stronger but..."

Grab!

Elevora suddenly grabbed hold of Aildris's fist mid-way, stopping it with ease.

"You're still not strong enough," She voiced out before turning him around and slamming him into the ground.

Boom!

Destructive waves spread forth as the vicinity regained color once more.

Chapter 1016 Leaving Camp

Boom!

Destructive waves spread forth as the vicinity regained color once more.

Aidris found himself trapped in place with Elevora's hand around his neck. He made a low groan and shut his eyes from the pain which was what let to the environment returning to normal.

"That's not nearly enough to get rid of me," Aildris voiced as he grabbed hold of her hand and opened his eyes.

However the moment he opened his eyes, Elevora covered his entire face with her other hand, restricting his eyes abilities.

Aildris grabbed onto her other hand and tried to rip it off his face but it was obvious Elevora's physical strength outmatched his.

After Aildris failed to remove her hand, Elevora kept choking him in a bid to make him pass out.

Aildris proceeded to let go of her hands and slammed his hand onto the surface of this platform.

Bang!

A loud sound of collision rang out as both of them were shot into air, causing Elevora to slightly loosen her grip.

Aildris raised his knee upwards with speed, slamming into Elevora's gut which finally caused both of them to separate.

The eyeball on Elevora's head glowed immensely as she shot out a destructive beam at Aildris the instant he managed to separate from her.

Zhrrrinnnn!

As the vicinity turned into black and white once more, Aildris surrounding twisted and he disappeared.

Boom!

The beam slammed into the platform and Aildris appeared right behind Elevora while sending a fist towards her back.

Bang!

She got blasted towards the surface of the platform upon collision and slid for several feet due to the immense force.

Elevora quickly picked herself up and dashed to the side.

Swoosshhh!

Aildris had appeared right beside her with an outstretched leg which she managed to dodge after moving to the side.

However, Aildris suddenly spread his legs, sending forth another kick from his other leg the instant after she dodged.

Bang!

This kick slammed heavily into Elevora's side as she was sent flying towards the side once more.

Elevora was usually faster but with the black and white surroundings slowing her down, Aildris could match her speed and even go faster under certain conditions.

Booom!

She shot out another beam from her forehead which was threatening to return the vicinity to its original color as it phased forward.

Aidris stretched forth his hand at this point, causing the beam to be stripped off its color as his figure turned even brighter.

Swwoossh!

He swerved to the side and dodged the beam before dashing forward.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

They exchanged clashes a few times and Elevora could tell that with every exchange Aildris was getting stronger.

All of a sudden...

Bam!

A figure slammed into Aildris from the side causing him to get blasted backwards.

"Ugh!"

"Ugh!"

E.E and Aildris groaned in pain as they slammed onto the surface of this platform and slid across the floors.

"Ghadamn Angy you almost broke my back," He yelled out as he stood to his feet.

However just as he did this, Angy arrived before him and sent out a very fast punch.

E.E mouth was still wide open as he had just finished his sentence but he was unable to follow her speed.

Bang!

The punch slammed into E.E's gut sending him flying across the platform edge.

Angy had broken out of the hold from the vortexes initially from activating a small kinetic discharge that blasted E.E across the platform.

This was what caused him to collide with Aildris earlier.

"E.E ou..." Just as the instructor was about to announce E.E's loss...

Zhiinnnn!

A vortex opened up behind Angy and he appeared from it.

Angy quickly spun around the moment she sensed his presence and was about to attack again when, E.E got pulled back into the vortex.

Another vortex opened up behind her...

Zhiinn!

Angy moved quickly in a bid to attack once more but E.E didn't appear from it instead he appeared from another vortex on her right.

E.E would disappear into a vortex before Angy could arrive there and a dummy vortex would open all across the place to fool her.

Zhiinnn!

"I'm here,"

Zhiinnn!

"No here,"

Zhiinnnn!

"Over here Angy,"

Zhiiinnn!

On the other side, Elevora had once more regained the upper hand and was slamming Aildris across the place to get him to pass out.

Angy knew her battle with E.E would not end if she didn't manage to get him to lose consciousness as well. E.E could keep using his Vortexes to return to the platform even if she threw him off it multiple times.

It was the similar for Elevora, Aildris got stronger the more he drew power from things with color in his vicinity.

He had also absorbed the color from her eye attack earlier which led him to getting stronger.

About thirty minutes later, only Elevora was left standing on the platform.

"Elevora wins," The instructor yelled out.

All other participants had been blasted off this platform and she was the last one standing.

What had just ended was a private training session between the ten. Elevora, Aildris, E.E, Angy, Falco, Ria, Glade, Vera, Matilda and Teemee.

They had been having personal training the past month in preparation for leaving the camp. During this time they had trained vigorously and had lots of team battles and individual battles like this one that had just ended.

Everyone had improved and even Elevora who was seen as the strongest still had a difficult time winning.

Anyways the training had come to an end now that they would be leaving camp the next day.

They had all been waiting for this moment and it was finally here. Their last day in camp which was why they had this individual battles.

"I almost had you E.E," Angy voiced out as they walked away from the premises where they had just had the battle.

"Haha better luck next time," E.E chuckled as he patted her shoulder.

"Are you excited that you're finally going to be seeing him again tomorrow?"

Chapter 1017: The Irregularity At The Edge Of The Milky Way

Earlier, E.E had managed get Angy off the platform by activating one of his vortexes new skills while Elevora managed to rid the platform of Aildris.

Unfortunately E.E was not a match for Elevora who was not even affected by the suction force of his powerful vortexes. Besides that he had expended a lot of energy while Elevora still had lots revered.

Elevora was still the undisputed most powerful cadet in their set after Gustav. As everyone grew in strength she wasn't stagnated either.

She was most likely the only person who was close to Gustav's strength amongst their age group while Aildris was right behind her.

One of the boons of this whole thing was the fact that they had improved strength as a group so if they ever fought together on a battle field, they would be exceptionally coordinated.

Gustav had wished they would be done with camp earlier because of this. He knew a lot of situations would have been easier to take care of if the gang were together with his.

"Are you excited that you're finally going to be seeing him again tomorrow?" E.E questioned as the group walked together.

"Hnmm," Angy nodded her head with an excited look.

"But what if we get sent to a different base entirely?" Falco questioned.

"I'm sure Gustav is aware that we'll be out tomorrow," Teemee stated.

"It doesn't necessarily mean we'll see him. Who knows he might be busy with something and not have the chance to meet us before we get deployed for missions," Aildris said with a logical tone.

Angy looked a little downcast as she heard this. She knew there was every possibility that happening.

"Don't forget our main goal will always be the MBO and saving others. Seeing Gustav can always wait," Elevora said with a strong tone.

"My boy must have gotten way stronger though... I can't wait to see him," E.E said with a light chuckle.

The night went by very quickly and the next morning arrived when some of the cadets were finally leaving.

The ten weren't the only ones who had ended their training and were leaving camp today. There were no less than hundred cadets who were now full fledged officers, also leaving camp.

Some were already final years so it was long overdue while the ones from Gustav's set leaving today were around twenty in number.

All of them were special class candidates and now full fledged officers.

E.E was so excited he kept taking pictures as they left camp.

"Yo mum, your son is now a true MBO officer haha," He laughed with a joyous look as he his device flew along with them while recording.

"That's Angy,"

Angy waved as the camara appeared in front of her.

"This is Aildris... Elevora... Teemee... Ria..." He kept moving from side to side so everyone could be recorded.

They all waved with smiles and greeted E.E's mother whenever the camera floated to their front.

"Falco..."

"Nice to meet you ma'am," Falco greeted with an innocent and respectful expression.

"Tch another lowerlife!" Dark Falco suddenly voiced out causing Falco to quickly cover his mouth up.

"Sorry," Falco apologised as he moved to the side.

"Hehe no worries Falco, f*ck you Dark Falco," E.E voiced out before turning to face the camera again.

"Sorry mamma," He adopted an innocent look as he voiced out.

At this point they were on the massive floating platform where they would be taking a flight on one of the MBO spacecraft to an MBO base.

A group of MBO officers suddenly approached E.E and the others.

With the way they were dressed, it was obvious that they weren't pilots especially when one of them had a orange colored uniform like the MBO camp commander. ¶âNøbEŠ

"Anything we can help you with officers?" E.E questioned as they blocked the path.

The highest ranking officer among this group of officers walked forward at this point and stood directly in front of E.E.

"You... You... you... You... and You..." He voiced out while pointing at five of them.

"You're coming with me," He added.

"Huh?" E.E exclaimed with a look of confusion.

"Yeah I know they're arriving today. I'll have to head down to the second base if I want to see them," Gustav voiced out in his seating position within what looked like a boardroom and an office at the same time.

"I could send someone to get them," Gradier Xanatus suggested.

"Nah there's no need for that. Besides they also have to get one or two missions done before I can add them to my platoon," Gustav voiced.

"Is this going to be an issue?" Gustav proceeded to ask.

"Getting them to join your platoon?" Gradier Xanatus voiced out.

"Not that... this," Gustav voiced while pointing at the holographic screen displayed up ahead.

"Well for now it's just an assessment and it is still being observed so it is too early to tell if its going to be a threat or not," Gradier Xanatus said while also staring at the screen.

On the screen a part in space was displayed. What could be seen here were whitish lines that made it look like there were small cracks in this part of space.

Apparently it was very little but it had only recently been forming at the edge of the milky way.

"I only showed you this now because I am aware of how strange things are with you and the Manifestation of your abilities. So if you know something or sense something, don't hesitate to inform me," Gradier Xanatus explained.

"For now it truly doesn't seem like a big deal but no worries, I'll be sure to let you know if I find out something," Gustav voiced out with a suspicious tone.

"BTW has scientists been sent there to investigate?" Gustav asked.

"Yes but they haven't discovered anything. It's not a rift because it doesn't have the same characteristics with a rift but it does emit a weird and unknown energy," Gradier Xanatus replied.

Chapter 1018 Where Are The Others?

'Do you know what that is?' Gustav asked internally.

("It could be a number of things. It's too far away for me to come up with anything accurate. Trying to study it from here will just be me coming up with assumptions,") The system responded.

'Hmm... I don't know if this is something we should be worried about. Anything related to space is now a sensitive topic because of the Warp Demolator but we can't tell if this is relayed or not,' Gustav had a contemplative look as he said internally.

"Gradier Xanatus, do keep me posted on this. I may or may not have an answer later," Gustav stated.

"Alright," Gradier Xanatus stated.

Gustav left after a few more seconds of chatting with Gradier Xanatus. He was now heading towards the second base.

This would have taken time if he used one of the aircraft or MBO private jets but with the dimensional bracelet it only took a couple of seconds.

Zing!

Gustav disappeared from the MBO tower after choosing his location and reappeared back within the second base.

The instant he arrived in the luxurious house within second base, he moved out towards one of the revetment.

Gustav could already spot aircraft landing from in the southwest area.

[Hover Has Been Activated]

Swwoosshhhh!

The base was always filled with MBO officers so he decided to fly. Gustav arrived there in a few seconds and upon landing, he could already spot cadets.

Gustav was only wearing a tank top and shorts so no officer around here would even be able to tell what his rank was unless they recognised him.

- "Where is that powerful presence coming from?"

- "Isn't that Gustav Crimson?"

- "Hey its really Gustav Crimson!"

- "I could barely recognised him, he looks... different... better..."

- "Stronger... I wish we could have seen a fight between him and Rufus,"

The cadets who were now full fledged officers conversed about Gustav the moment the spotted him.

- "What is he doing here?"

The other officers who had been in the second base since questioned amongst themselves. Everyone knew Gustav was in the MBO tower in Plankton City so they couldn't understand how he suddenly appeared here.

"Gustav!"

A familiar voice was heard from up ahead causing a smile to appear on his face.

A group of five could be seen approaching Gustav from up ahead.

The hundreds of other cadets walking away from where aircraft were parked up ahead parted ways for this group because everyone knew well the only people Gustav moved with in camp.

"Falco," Gustav voiced out as he closed in on them.

"Crazy bastard you got stronger again?" Dark Falco voiced out the instant he arrived in front of Gustav.

"Shut up," Falco voiced before reaching out to give Gustav a fist bump.

Bump!

Gustav returned the fist bump and proceeded to do the same with Teemee as well.

"Rivaaaalllll!" Ria yelled out as he jumped into Gustav's embrace instead of giving a fist bump.

"Yo Ria," Gustav chuckled.

Matilda who was about to hug Gustav earlier reached out and dragged Ria by the hair.

"Tssshhh! Tah tah tah!" Ria screamed out in pain as he got pulled away from Gustav.

"Don't be girly," She voiced out.

"What I and my rival share is beyond gender limitations woman!" Ria yelled out as he tried to get her to let go of his hair.

Vera who was at the side smiled and moved to stand in front of Gustav.

"Vera," Gustav said with a smile before she leapt into his embrace.

Gustav rubbed her hair a little and patted her like a pet.

"I missed you," She said with a cute tone as she disengaged from him.

"How have you been doing? Did you practice a lot like I told you to?" Gustav questioned.

She nodded cutely with a smile, "I'm now at the third step Falcon rank and i can control my ability better now," She disclosed.

Gustav had a gratified look as he heard that but then a bothered expression appeared on his face.

"Where are the others?" He inquired.

So far he could only see, Teemee, Ria, Falco, Matilda and Vera.

Falco stared at Matilda first before he turned to stare at Gustav.

"This is what happened..."

Minutes later Gustav had a contemplative expression after hearing what Falco had revealed.

"So they were scouted at the last minute for this unknown mission?" Gustav inquired.

"Yes," Falco confirmed.

"The officers said they only wanted the five of them and the rest of us should follow the cadets to the base," Matilda explained.

"So you guys have no idea, what mission they're embarking on?" Gustav questioned.

"No idea at all. They were taken away in a different aircraft," Teemee said while shaking his head.

Gustav had a slightly worried expression but he knew well that the MBO wouldn't just send them on a mission recklessly knowing they had a lot of potential.

They would only send them on a mission they were sure, the five could handle.

'Angy... speed... Matilda... destructiveness... E.E... infiltration and escape... Aildris... power... Angy... strength and combat ability...' Gustav made analysis in his head.

"They are definitely sending them on a covert mission... Either they're meant to destroy, protect or acquire something secretly," Gustav voiced out.

"How do you know?" Falco questioned.

"Their line up makes it obvious..." Gustav responded.

Falco and the others had looks of confusion on their faces as they heard that.

"Nevermind, let's head to the house first," Gustav proposed.

They proceeded to leave here and head towards the place Gustav usually stayed with miss Aimee whenever he was here.

The instant they arrived at the house, everyone piped down and settled in even. They weren't too worried about the situation with E.E and the rest because they knew well that getting picked for special missions was normal especially when certain officers suited some types of missions.

"Rival you have to tell us all about your escapades in these past months," Ria voiced out.

"The entire camp was always talking about you... you have a lot to tell us," Matilda stated as well.

Chapter 1019: Mission In Planet Mendologas

"I will in due time. I don't want to have to repeat anything I say later when the others get back," Gustav said while helping them settle in.

"Right now you guys should focus on getting a mission before IYSOP training begins next month," Gustav added with a contemplative tone.

"Oh come on, just a snippet," Falco was also interested in hearing all about it.

"I'll be back guys," Gustav stated as he began tapping on his left wrist.

"Huh?" Falco exclaimed.

"Need to head back to the MBO tower in Plankton City. I won't be long," Gustav explained.

<"Dimensional travel in...">

Zing!

A flash of bright blue light engulfed Gustav and he disappeared in the next instant.

Gustav reappeared within the same boardroom he chatted with Gradier Xanatus earlier.

The instant Gradier Xanatus saw him, he knew something was up.

Gustav explained what had happened with the other five to him and Gradier Xanatus decided to help him check the mission they got drafted for.

"It's an outside planet mission," After some minutes of asking around, Gradier Xanatus finally had some information for him.

"They're off planet right now?" Gustav was a bit surprised by this.

"Yes. It was impromptu but they are currently off planet, headed towards another planet," Gradier Xanatus stated.

"Where?" Gustav inquired.

"Planet Mendologas," Gradier Xanatus revealed.

"Planet Mendologas? Why?"

In an unknown part of the galaxy a massive spacecraft with the MBO emblem travelled at very high speed.

Zhiiiiiiwwhhhhh~

It passed through several wormholes as it sped its way across the milky way.

Within a group of seven could be seen seated across one another in space suits.

Besides this group of seven, two high ranking MBO officers who were also clad in space suit strapped themselves in different spots.

It was already obvious that they weren't a part of the mission like the seven.

"I certainly did not expect this," Aildris voiced out from the side.

"That we would be on a mission to a planet several galaxies away?" E.E questioned with a light chuckle.

"Yeah," Aildris replied.

"The mission... it's certainly one we can successfully complete," Angy voiced out as well.

"The generals say we just have to get rid of the device or steal it," Elevora said with a tone of decisiveness.

Glade was also in their midst and they all began planning according to the information that had been revealed to them.

They were all clad in dark space suits which covered the entirety of their bodies so it was hard to tell them apart but their voices made things easier.

"Just follow our instructions newbies," One of the other two were given the role captain and Co captain of the squad voiced out.

"Sure sure, so long as you know what you guys know what you're doing," Elevora was not one that took to getting controlled unless the situation demanded it so she voiced out with a strong tone that depicted, she would disobey commands that didn't make sense to her.

"Are you assuming we're stupid and can't lead a squad?" The one who spoke earlier, voiced out once more.

"Don't put words in my mouth. Just lead right if you wanna be followed," Elevora voiced out once more.

The officer was about to speak again when the other one interrupted him.

"Davidson, its fine. We'll see what they've got when we land. I hope to God that you five are capable enough or we'll leave you behind," The captain of the squad voiced out.

"Don't be so quick to assume, captain Spark... who knows who will be left in the dust when we land," E.E said with a smile while turning to stare at Angy.

If one thing the five had learnt from Gustav despite being different from him was not backing down in the face of intimidation.

They knew if they just left things without exchanging a few words with the captain and Co captain, it gave these two the chance to push them around anyhow they willed.

"Are we all getting along?" One of the generals voiced out from upfront.

"Yes sir," They all yelled out in unison.

"Good, you seven will have to work fast in unity and complete this mission. Once you're done, meet back at the drop zone and an emergency spacecraft will get you out of there.

Remember you have to leave within the duration set or you will die there," The general voiced out with a strong tone.

"Is that understood?" He questioned.

"Yes Sir!" They yelled out in unison once more.

After the general went silent, the five went back to making plans.

-The Second MBO Base

"They're mission is off planet?" Falco voiced with a shocked tone.

"Yes," Gustav confirmed.

"How lucky... no off planet mission is below five stars," Matilda voiced out with an envious tone.

"Officers with off planet mission success are more revered and even have chances of being amongst the group of officers that get sent on galactic missions," Teemee voiced with a tone of interest.

"Not even Gustav has embarked on a off planet mission before," Vera said with a low tone.

"There was never an opportunity to... to many situations happening on earth that I couldn't ignore," Gustav pointed out.

While Gustav was speaking with Gradier Xanatus about the mission earlier, Gradier Xanatus revealed something to him.

"They already sent a team earlier but said team was wiped out before they achieved the objective. Only two of them are still alive so its also a rescue mission because the MBO never abandons one of their own," Gradier Xanatus voiced out.

"Oh, that makes things more difficult, doesn't it?" Gustav questioned.

"They're your friends... do you believe they are good enough to complete the mission?" Gradier Xanatus threw out this question as well.

"I do," Gustav replied.

"Then its fine..." Gradier Xanatus stated.

"Oh and by the way, they initially planned to send you on that mission. You ignored them," Gradier Xanatus revealed.

"What?" Gustav had a look of surprise as he exclaimed.

He then recalled General Sourkrat looking everywhere for him at the time he was creating a cure for the ashy infection.

Chapter 1020 I Will Be Participating In IYSOP

He then recalled General Sourkrat looking everywhere for him at the time he was creating a cure for the ashy infection.

"Oh," Gustav nearly facepalmed as he reminisced.

Gustav mind reeled back to reality at this point.

"It doesn't really matter anyways, we'll be leaving for IYSOP in six months time anyways," Gustav stated.

"We?" Falco voiced with a curious tone.

"You've decided to participate?" Matilda asked with a slightly surprised look.

"Yes. I will be participating in IYSOP," Gustav disclosed.

They all had excited looks as they heard that.

"But I won't be joining you guys in the training though..." Gustav added.

"The training is mandatory," Falco stated.

"Not for me... I'll be busy with other things," Gustav said with an unbothered expression.

"By the way I got a mission for you five," Gustav added.

Everyone gathered around him as they heard this.

"I will be able to add you guys to my platoon if you're able to successfully complete this mission so don't mess it up," Gustav pointed out with a serious tone.

"Sure, just tell us what the mission is," Teemee voiced in response.

"My body is itching to finally be on the battlefield hahaha," Ria said with an excited look.

The day went by very quickly and Gustav had spent this time making enquiries, passing information and preparing the other five for their mission in two days time.

For E.E and the others, they were still cruising across the galaxy due to the distance of Mendologas planet.

The galaxy in which Mendologas was located was quite distant and with the speed of the spacecraft it would take no less than four days of traveling to get there.

This was a huge step up compared to back in the past when it would take many months for them to complete such a journey.

This speed was made possible with the dimensional checkpoints placed in different parts of space that generated teleportation wormholes.

They could beat time and travel way faster with these wormholes letting them appear millions of light years ahead of their position.

This shortened the travel which made it possible for them to get there in four days.

Even with these dimensional checkpoint constructed in different parts of space that made space travel faster, there were still journeys that would take weeks or months if they were way farther than Mendologas Planet.

The group was lucky this travel would only be taking four days. This would mostly be a crazy experience for them.

While on this journey they noticed that they would occasionally stop at different locations. These locations in space had massive spacecraft that looked like mansions floating in space.

They would be scanned by the officers from these massive spacecraft before they were given permission to resume flight.

According to the Generals in the spacecraft, this was usual protocol and was always needed to separate criminals from legal spacecraft.

Space pirates were common in this age and since space was endless, catching these criminals was always difficult.

However these space pirates knew not to every try to cross paths with the MBO or any other power intergalactic force in space so 99% of the times it was safe for MBO spacecraft.

They rarely ever got attacked by any criminals in space.

As the days went by Gustav still stuck to his schedule of making more research about the Warp Demolator while training also.

"Alright guys, your mission will most likely take about two weeks to complete and I don't think the others will take too long to complete theirs either so we'll still be meeting back here after y'all are done," Gustav voiced out.

Falco, Matilda, Teemee, Vera and Ria all nodded as they heard that.

"Phew~ Our first five star mission," Matilda voiced with a nervous tone.

"Don't worry you'll do good," Gustav said while tapping her shoulder.

'I'll be one step closer to being powerful enough to go after Dahria if I complete this,' She assured herself internally.

Gustav saw them off to an aircraft that was waiting to cart them away to their mission location.

After a few minutes they were gone.

'Just met up after months and they're gone again...' Gustav shook his head.

Being a part of the MBO was truly no easy task. Gustav now understood why more than 80% of the MBO was without spouses.

Even those who had spouses probably didn't have the chance to spend a lot of time with them. Missions were unending and there would always be one issue or the other. Jack and Mack were still unmarried even after living for over a century.

Gustav was not even sure if they had ever dated anyone or had any romance with the opposite sex. He was sure he would have been the same way if Angy was not in the picture.

MBO officers were truly lonely people in the aspect of romance but at the very least Gustav was trying to bring all the people he cared about together.

If he managed to get each and everyone of them to be a part of his platoon, it would make things less lonely since they would always be with him on any mission.

Gustav proceeded to head back to the MBO tower after the five had left. He won't be seeing anyone of them again till two weeks time and he was still a little disappointed he didn't even get to see Angy or E.E but he shrugged it off.

'Its just two weeks... nothing compared to months,' Gustav said internally.

("You really miss them, don't you?") The system questioned with a teasing tone.

'No I don't,' Gustav responded as he walked down the corridors of the MBO tower.

("Poor Gustav, he misses his lover... misses the kisses... misses the bedroom actions... hehehe," The system kept teasing.

'Shut up! I don't mi...'

"Gustav,"

In the process of this bantering, a familiar voice called out to Gustav.

"Gradier Xanatus," Gustav voiced out as he spotted the figure that had just called out to him.

"Come see this," Gradier Xanatus said while leading him to an office within the tower.
