

BloodLine 109

Chapter 109 - Request

Without spending any time, Everyone withdrew from the area. They started returning the same way they came. They were hesitant to leave him alone at first.

They were, however, inconsequential prior to level 4. Its atmosphere was too much for them to take.

Mr. Paul's hatred towards Mr. James gets eased along the way. When he found out that he would be protecting this location, he was impressed. "He is the Team Captain. As a result, He does not want to leave this area without a fight. Despite such a disparity in power levels. He opted to be a defender." He pondered in his head.

Ms. Emma bit her lower lip, frustrated. "I'm going to work harder this year to obtain a breakthrough." She pondered in her head. Everyone is hoping for a breakthrough. After experiencing a powerless situation. The twins, on the other hand, were eager to improve even more.

When everyone had left the aura's level 4 range. Mr. James was at ease. He does not want to lose any members of his team. Besides, they won't be of much assistance. As a result, He chose to return them. Mr. James then moved his attention to level 4's location.

"So, now it's just you and me," he said.

To observe the Monster, He found a safe spot. It's not in close proximity to the Monster. Mr. James is welcome to accompany them if he so desires. Because the inquiry is finished and the report has been validated. As a result, he is unable to continue. But, for moral reasons, He chooses to remain at home.

He is aware that there are no Elites stationed in the Black Forests. At the moment, there are just a handful of Peak Special Trainees available. He preferred to remain silent and watch the Monster.

As a result, He was able to offer them the information they need. When they show up. He also has another reason for it. He also wants to know why it happened. An unexpected boost in soil fertility.

Mr. James begins silently observing the Monster. Level 4 remained rooted to the location. It is currently concentrating on energy stability. Mr. James breathed a sigh of relief as he realized this. "They'll be on their way to the other side in no time." Mr. James made a mental remark.

Monster's Movements, he's concerned about that. If it chose to assault and destroy everything in its path. Nobody is going to be able to stop it. Until the arrival of the Elite force. I couldn't fathom it. If that occurs.

In addition, He had a mental image of Zack. His expression darkens. "He was looking forward to fighting a level 2 Monster. Now He must wait a few months before returning a year." He pondered in his head.

He then continues to keep an eye on the issue. The team arrives at the cliff after several hours. The team did not stop for a rest on the way. They sped up their retreat. On top of that, there isn't a monster in sight.

They appeared to have vanished entirely from the scene. This was extremely beneficial to the team.

They were able to locate the vehicle. The group didn't waste any more time. They need to get into the area of communication. As a result, they hurriedly boarded the vehicle and began driving. Ms. Emma checks her sci-fi watch as she drives. There is currently no signal. She was irritated.

Mr. Paul couldn't help but smile when he saw her look "As you can see, I've already informed you. In this region, management should construct infrastructure. In particular, the communication network." "Every second we waste here is going to keep Mr. James under that Monster's Mercy," he continued.

She accelerated the vehicle after hearing that.

The team entered the communication zone a few hours later. A notification rang in their sci-fi. They didn't spare any time in sending reports up the chain of command. It has an emergency situation labeled on it. The report reached the highest levels of government.

When the report arrived on schedule at the office. A red alert was sent to the administrative office. Every warrior has been informed. Because the Black Forests are close to Tier-8 cities in the area. However, it is a long way from a Tier-7 city. Elite fighters could be found there.

After then, they read Mr. James's team's report. Mr. James' word was taken seriously by the higher-ups. They stated unequivocally that. A Mid-level Elite Monster is currently residing in the region.

The report was read by the Director of the Black Forests Administration. Mr. Alvin Robertson, He is an old man who appears to be in his sixties. He has reached the pinnacle of Trainee Warrior.

He instantly sought assistance from their Tier-7 cities' offices.

He also sent out a mission request to all Tier-8 cities in the area. Elite Warriors are being summoned. However, it only applies to individuals who are members of the Army Federation. This matter is private, as are the affairs of the Army Federation.

He also deciphered the report's underlying significance. It mentioned the unusual occurrence of a rise in soil richness in particular. Then came the Monster's instantaneous breakthrough.

Mr. Alvin had a brilliant idea. Then he goes on to ask the Research Department for help. After level 4 Monster has been defeated. They can then conduct soil studies.

He was befuddled by the information. He then uses the server's database. To look for information from the previous fifty decades. The outcomes were displayed. When he saw that the soil richness data was modest and usual, he knit his brows.

Soon, far away from this location. Close to the Black Forest region, a tier-7 city. It's also one of the Army Federation's branch offices. The report from the Black Forests' Head is now being received by the Head of this office.

She was taken aback when she saw the name. It's the name of his colleague; normally, this elderly man would never ask a question.. She smiled and went on to look over the report.