

Bloodline 1091

Chapter 1095 Various Plots

“Well... that’s encouraging,” Gustav muttered.

(“Now that you’ve completed the device, our plans after IYSOP can be moved forward,”) The system voiced internally.

“Moved forward? I have a terrorist organisation to deal with in the coming week, a competition to win for earth apparently and a situation to take care of for one of my friends before those after IYSOP plans can be put into motion,” Gustav listed out.

(“The device is to direct you towards areas of lingering warp demolator energies, right?”) The system inquired.

“Yes?” Gustav answered.

(“Does it work instantly? Can we say for sure that upon activation in space like you planned, it would immediately lead you in the direction of these energies?”) The system questioned.

“I can’t say for sure till its activated... and you know there are only specific points in space where it can be activated so I hope you’re not suggesting I try it out immediately,” Gustav muttered while his eyes turned into slits.

("Exactly dumbass I am...") The system responded with a ridiculing tone.

"No... Where do you suppose I get the time to visit space, use the device and who knows wait for it to give me the coordinates..." Gustav shook his head while responding.

("Even with all those intelligence point you're not so bright eh?")

Gustav; "... 'Can't you make a damn clarification without spewing insults?'

("You just need to get the device to one of the specific points you mentioned, activate it and leave it in place with a layer of protection till you're ready to start searching the locations. By the time IYSOP is done and over with, you'll be able to start looking for traces of the warp demolator energy instantly instead of getting unnecessarily delayed,") The system analysed.

"Oh... so what you meant by moving plans forward is more like prep," Gustav responded with an understanding tone.

"Still... there's the issue of travelling to one of the specific points in space and leaving the device there to function on its own," Gustav pointed out.

("You are ranked high enough to make use of a spacecraft, right?") The system questioned.

“More like I’m smart enough to come up with something so I can operate one of the MBO spacecraft for my personal use and yes I see where you’re going but that’s not the point... I don’t have the time to be journeying through space at the moment. I’m heading to the IYSOP training location tomorrow and I can’t delay that because I only have a week to brief and prepare the others for the upcoming operation,” Gustav explained.

(“I reckon it would take around forty-eight hours of journeying through space with a spacecraft to get to one of the specific points...”) The system calculated.

“Precisely... there’s no time,” Gustav stated.

(“The reward you got from those extraterrestrial creatures...”) The system pointed out.

“SJ? What about it?” Gustav questioned with a look of confusion.

(“Did you forget about one of its abilities to teleport items?”) The system questioned.

“No but that only works on certain conditions...” Gustav was answering when the feminine voice of the system interrupted him again.

“The conditions must have been softened by now or maybe completely inexistent... It has grown more powerful since that time since you keep feeding it energy crystals. You haven’t tested out that particular ability of its in a long time,”) The system explained.

“And what if it doesn’t work... I know it only works with inanimate objects but the farthest it has teleported something away was around a hundred feet...” Gustav held his chin slightly as he stated with a contemplative expression.

(“Just test it out first dumbass... we can think of an alternative if it fails,”)

“Okay...”

Zing~

The sacred jewel suddenly appeared amidst a flash of fluorescent light like it knew it was being summoned.

‘Find this place in space...’ Gustav proceeded to sent it a mental message.

The circular sacred jewel now had a fist sized gleaming light within its translucent and smooth surface. From the start, the gleaming light was only dot sized and now it become quite large within the circular covering.

The gleaming light within blinked twice before the surface was covered by a sky blue color which covered the light within.

In the next few moments, the outer covering displayed an imagery which was without a doubt a location in space.

“There... that’s one of the charge locations.” Gustav muttered.

Despite the area being void of stars, a glowing trail of orange like dust could be seen scattered across the vicinity.

(“You should tell it to try sending the warp demolator energy detector there,”) The system urged.

“Hmm I guess so...” Gustav was still a bit bothered due to the fact that even if this worked, it was unknown if this was a stable part of space.

If the gravitational force in this part of space was too unstable, the device could collapse on itself before it could perform any readings. If he was there in person, it would be easier to figure out.

Gustav proceeded to open his personal space and fetched one of the warp demolator energy detector.

[Partial Kilapisole Transformation Has Been Activated]

Gustav skin color turned green as he held onto the table sized detector...

ScrrddjkkklIlcchhhh~

Icicle like crystals phased out of his hands and surrounded the entire warp demolator energy detector. In an instant it was completely covered, looking like a spiky rock.

“It should still be able to function regardless of the outer covering now,” Gustav muttered.

“SJ... send it to that place...” Gustav commanded.

The Sacred Jewel suddenly began to emit a blueish glow...

Fwwooooossmmm~

Wind began to circulate in the room due to the energy it emitted causing Gustav's hair to be blown backwards.

The table size warp demolator detector was pulled from Gustav's grip and arrived before the blueish light the sacred jewel was emitting.

Zhrrhhhhh!

Despite being more than six times larger than the sacred jewel, the detector was sucked into the blinding blueish light.

The surging energy reduced afterwards and the vicinity began to return to tranquility. As the Sacred Jewel returned to normal, its circular surface once more displayed the location in space Gustav had asked it to send the detector to.

"It worked..." Gustav muttered as he stared at the footage.

("Told you not to underestimate its power... The limitations reduces as this tool becomes more powerful. You should have noticed how large the light within has grown,") The system voiced.

Gustav nodded in understanding, 'Doesn't this mean it can warp reality even more better than before?' He questioned himself internally.

It had been a while since he tested the limit of the Sacred Jewel abilities since he had mostly been focused on his yet he kept feeding it with unique energy crystals created from the mixture of both his energy and naturally unique types.

This was why he was currently unaware of how powerful the sacred jewel was. Although he had revealed it during his battle with the infected, Gustav only made the Sacred Jewel appear as a robot who was tasked with destroying the infected.

He had still managed to hide that it can perform other tasks as he wouldn't want greedy eyes to covet it. He was still figuring the Sacred Jewel out so he would never let anyone take it from him as it had the potential to cause havoc just like how much havoc would be wrought if the world found out he could steal bloodlines.

'I will need to create time to test out its limits again...'

~~~~~

-Unknown Location

"The Grand Capital City..." A dark skinned man with red scales surrounding his neck voiced out within a group of five.

"We have to be careful, they must not catch on to this," A lady putting on dark goggles and clad in white suit stated.

"They won't we'll get rid of the celebrity as well as the hundreds of thousands that will be attending," Another male in their group clad in white added.

"Good... what about the normal humans and Slarkovs that might attend?" The lady in dark goggles questioned.

“Collateral damage... they should know not to attend an event hosted by such a specie especially when it is centered on their selfish existence. Normal Humans and Slarkov who choose to support such deserve to perish alongside them,” The dark skinned man with reddish scales stated with a tone of absolutism.

“I agree...”

~~~~~

Within a dark area with gloomy clouds and an infinite looking pit beneath a group of nineteen could be seen traversing a barely visible line far above the pit. They took steps forward one after the other trying not to bump into each other with every movement.

“E.E be ready... its coming again,” Elevora shouted out from up front.

“Fhuushhh~” E.E let out a loud breathe as he heard that and began to gather his energy.

‘I could barely use any energy in this vicinity at the start but looks like I’m starting to get the hang of it...’ E.E thought as his eyes let out a violet glow.

Chapter 1096 Passing The Fourth Course

"Now!" Elevora suddenly yelled once more causing everyone to come to a standstill.

E.E who had initially squeezed his fist released it at once, causing a massive violet colored vortex to open up right underneath them.

Shhrrriiiuuuhhhhshhh~

At the same instant, a dazzling blue colored pillar of flames rose up from underneath them. It parted through the darkness of the pit underneath causing light to appear as the temperature rose to an astronomical level due to the intensity and size of the massive pillar of flames.

The flames were so thick, they had covered a radius of more than seven hundred feet in an instant as it rose and sought to swallow this group up.

Fortunately, the vortex E.E had conjured underneath was just as massive.

Truuiishhhhhh~

Another vortex opened up above them just as the flames from underneath swarmed into the first vortex that was opened. The one that opened right above them shot the flames swallowed up beneath into the dark and gloomy skies above.

It parted straight through the thick darkness of clouds, encapsulating everything in the vicinity and turning into a miniature sun.

Despite E.E's vortexes protecting them from the flames, they could still feel the searing heat.

After a few seconds the pillar of flames began to thin out and reduce in intensity. It finally died down and the vicinity returned to its dark and gloomy state after a few seconds.

At this point E.E was breathing profusely due to the feat he had just performed. However, the issue wasn't just the size of the vortex he conjured but also the vicinity that happened to be draining his energy twice than normal.

This was absolutely normal in this vicinity as everyone seemed to be facing the same issue. Initially they couldn't even channel their bloodline energy as they got drained of it very quickly but they had quickly gotten accustomed to the vicinity and learned how to make it work with the limitations.

"We're only less than fifty feet away from crossing over completely, we can do this guys," Aildris stated.

"Oh yes of course we can do this everyone!" Yonda quickly voiced out as well.

Some of them had weird expressions after seeing Yonda repeat the encouragement but now wasn't the time to dwell on it.

They kept moving with morale upon realizing they were close to completely crossing over this dark area. It was still difficult achieving stability on such a thin line but they were already used to it so they continued walking on this thin line.

It hadn't been thirty seconds since they started moving before Elevora eyes widened again.

"Another one! Quick! Its very fast!" She yelled out with a tone of urgency causing everyone faces to light up with expressions of disbelief.

E.E who had barely caught his breathe from the last encounter instantly channeled his energy once more and created a vortex underneath them.

Fwwhhhhhhhoooooommmm!~

The pillar of flames that had risen this time was almost golden in color, extremely robust and intense as it gleamed dangerously, spewing balls of fire within as well.

Fortunately, E.E had managed to conjure the vortex wide enough and send these wild flames in another direction. However, things were about to take as unfortunate turn as Elevora sensed something once more.

"Two more are coming..." She voiced out.

"It shouldn't be a problem if they're right underneath this one. The vortex will take care of them," Yonda stated.

"No, they will be side by side with the current one." The instant Elevora revealed this everyone understood the reason for her worry.

"Here they come!" She announced.

"Shit! Make the vortex larger!" Yonda shouted as he turned to face the back.

"I can't!" E.E responded with trembling breath.

Flames rose from far ahead and behind them at the same time. Since the vortex was unable to cover those area, the flames were not cut out as they rose to unprecedented height blocking their paths ahead and behind.

The instant both pillar of flames reached their height it began to spread from all sides towards them. Despite being hundreds of feet towards the left and right it quickly expanded, reaching their location.

Now it seemed like three pillar of flames had merged and the vortex beneath was unable to protect them from the hellfire encroaching from the sides.

Endric who was far behind raised a wall of telekinesis to block them from the flames approaching in that direction and proceeded to turn it into a barrier that encapsulated the group.

"Time to battle against hell hehe," Sheila voiced out playfully as she also activated her bloodline energy.

Cracks appeared in mid-air as it looked like reality had turned into fragments of glass and surrounded the group of nineteen. The flames were prevented from their initial encroach with the joint efforts of Endric and Shiela.

Within the barrier created, the heat had tripled which would roast a normal human to death but they knew this was better than coming into contact with the flames.

The sides were currently secure as well as underneath and above them so the team didn't have to bother in the meantime.

Until...

"I can't hold it for long..." Sweat trickled down E.E's dark face as he struggled to voice out.

"Uh? Its not ending yet! You have to hold on or we'll fail again!" Fildhor yelled.

"F...F...Fucker... why don't you try doing it yourself...?" E.E stated with a slightly pissed tone.

"I can't," Fildhor responded with a look of confusion.

"Then... kindly... shut the fuck up..." E.E voiced out causing Fildhor to turn away in embarrassment.

Everyone brainstormed for an alternative to the merged pillars of flames while E.E tried keeping the vortex open for a little longer.

"I am letting go... I can't keep them open for any longer," E.E could feel his energy running dry due to the environment.

"Shit!" Yonda voiced out with a tone of disappointment.

"Someone's coming..." Elevora revealed as she turned around.

Sigh~

Everyone let out sighs as they assumed one of the masters was coming to save them which meant they were deemed failed already.

"And we were so close this time..." Another one from the group lamented.

Everyone was just as disappointed as they stared in the direction of the approaching person.

All of a sudden a flash of milky colored light broke through the sea of flames,

Zhrrrrriiihrrrr~

The milky light spread across all the areas the flames covered. The moment it made contact with the flames, they would disappear. The flames was unable to affect the milky light, instead the light prevailed and swallowed up the flames at a rapid pace.

"Uh? Does any of the masters have this type of bloodline ability?" Rosalin questioned with a confused expression.

"I don't recognize it as well," Fildhor stated.

The others were just as confused while Endric's face displayed an expression of suspicion as the flames disappeared upon contact with the milky energy.

He was the only one with the look of suspiciousness instead of confusion. E.E who was breathing like a half dead rabid dog let out a low chuckle as he released the vortexes.

After what seemed like many seconds, what was left of the flames finally began to die down. Relieved expressions appeared on the faces of Aildris and the rest while the other teammates still had looks of confusion.

Upon clearing completely, the group spotted a figure walking towards them on the thin line with good balance.

"Who is..." Yonda was about speaking when the figure visibility turned clearer.

Their eyes widened as they noticed the figure was sporting a dirty blonde shoulder length hair and clad in a red jacket and blue pants.

"Gustav... Crimson?" Phinx voiced with a tone of immense disbelief.

"I heard you guys were struggling to get past this stage so I decided to join," Gustav voiced out as a little smile appeared on his face upon sighting E.E and the others.

"Oh damn its truly him?" Another one of them voiced out his disbelief.

'The monster is smiling? I thought he never smiled,' Some of them had this thought as they watched his approach.

'The legendary Gustav is here,' They couldn't believe their eyes despite already being aware.

Witnessing his prowess shook them to their very bones which very much proved it could be no other than the well renowned Gustav Crimson.

"Good looking MF what took you so long?" E.E yelled out as a broad smile appeared on his face.

"Gustav!" Angy yelled with a sweet smile unable to contain her excitement. She would have jumped into his embrace if not for the current situation.

"Gus,"

"Yo Gus!"

"Rival! Sniff sniff~"

"Welcome back,"

"Master,"

Aildris, Temee, Ria, Falco, Vera and the others voiced out one after the other.

'They weren't joking... they are truly familiar with him,' Yonda and the others who doubted initially stared at the proof playing out in front of them.

Chapter 1097 Force Of Intimidation

Gustav nodded at everyone with a smile as he arrived right in front of Endric who was positioned behind everyone.

"Big brother..." Endric stuttered as he voiced out.

"Good job so far fake," Gustav muttered in a low tone that only Endric could hear.

'He knows,' Endric thought as he tried to contain his surprise.

"Let's finish this," Gustav stated with a tone that renewed everyone's confidence.

"We're not supposed to receive outside help," Yonda voiced out.

"He is one of us, did you forget?" Asbestos who ranked the highest during the analysis pointed out.

"Yeah but he hasn't been here so it won't count," Yonda responded.

"He is a part of us so it does count. Stop delaying us and move," Vin was starting to sound incensed.

Seeing the way everyone was staring at him with a look of disapproval, Yonda finally decided to keep quiet.

"If we were considered to have failed, one of the masters would have already appeared before us," Aildris added as they group began moving once more.

This was a training course afterall so they couldn't afford to lose the IYSOP candidates due to training. One of the four masters in charge of training the team would show up before anyone got grilled but that would also spell their failure.

At this point, they were less than twenty feet away from reaching the end of the line where a portal that would get them out of this vicinity was situated.

Surprisingly, they advanced till they arrived at the end of the line without any more intensive situations. The group got into the sky blue colored portal one after the other till only Gustav was left.

Gustav paused for a bit and turned around to scrutinize this dark region once more.

'This is definitely a good training spot... I'll have to come back here,' He said Internally before turning back around and moving into the portal.

Zhiiiiinnn~

He arrived on solid ground where the others could also be seen standing up ahead.

They were currently behind a massive mansion with a tip that stabbed into the sky. It was right in between the multiple weird looking regions in the distance.

"You all have successfully passed the fourth course." A lady in red outfit and a weird looking helmet stated with a strong tone.

"Yes!"

"Finally!"

"We did it!"

Sounds of cheers were heard all around as the group of twenty dawned smiley looks.

They had failed this particular course so many times due to the fact that every single one of them had to advance to the end of the line without losing a single person.

They always lost one or two teammates which was the major reason for their flop. Someone as strong as Sheila would have passed this course long ago if she was the only one required to transverse across the thin line.

However, as it had to be a team movement without anyone getting left behind individual strength was not the major attribute needed.

"I see you've all met your captain," Mistress Beatrice statement suddenly caused the place to quieten.

"Captain?"

"Is it... him?"

Everyone turned to stare in Gustav's direction at this point.

"Your captain is indeed Gustav Crimson..." She confirmed, causing everyone to display looks of awe.

They all suspected it and Gustav's gang was definitely sure of it but some were still thinking it might be a teammate with the highest bloodline rank.

"Seeing as he helped to make sure you guys passed the fourth course, I'm sure no one has objections?" She questioned while looking around.

"I do..."

"Oh yes Yonda, as expected," Mistress Beatrice responded with a sure note of distaste.

"He hasn't..." Yonda was about to start listing reasons when Mistress Beatrice interrupted.

"Hasn't been available? Hasn't trained with you lots? Isn't a team player if he hasn't played with the team?" Mistress Beatrice listed while clicking her tongue.

Yonda found himself speechless for a bit after this subtle trolling from mistress Beatrice.

"He has proven today that he can carry the team in harsh times but of course if you're doubting and wish to take on the role of the captain... a duel between both of you can surely be arranged,"

Everyone's eyes widened slightly as they heard Mistress Beatrice suggest this method.

Yonda was pretty strong since he managed to come second place in the analysis result but everyone had very high doubts his ability could match that of Gustav's especially after what they witnessed today.

Yonda was silent for many seconds causing everyone to stare in his direction.

Gustav who had been silent and unbothered at this time finally began to move towards Yonda position.

'Is he coming to me?' Yonda questioned internally as he glanced briefly in Gustav's direction.

Gustav arrived in front of him and looked down at him, "You want the position of the captain?" Gustav questioned.

"You don't deserve the position," Yonda responded with an unyielding tone.

"Sure. Are you willing to change that? I'll give you the opportunity to try," Gustav stated with a benevolent tone that almost sounded like mockery in the ears of everyone.

"Don't think I can't defeat you Gustav Crimson," Yonda gritted his teeth as he voiced out.

Gustav leaned down further and suddenly released a bit of his energy while peering into Yonda's eyes.

'Eeeekkk!'

Everyone felt a chill crawl down their spine as unfathomable the energy spread forth from Gustav's frame causing even mistress Beatrice to take a step back in wariness.

The little spill of energy felt like an unmovable divine presence.

'What in the world is he?' This question ran through the minds of everyone who hadn't met Gustav prior to this.

"I didn't say you couldn't..." Gustav finally responded after staring for a bit. He raised his head and withdrew his energy as a smirk appeared on his face.

"You best issue the duel quickly before I leave with my team," Gustav added before turning around and walking away.

"Huh?" Everyone besides mistress Beatrice was confused by what he had just said but he was out of sight before long.

"Aildris, E.E, Angy, Matilda, Vera, Ria, Elevora, Glade and Falco... Are you okay, Falco?" Mistress Beatrice questioned as she noticed something after listing out a number of names.

"Yeah I'm fine," Falco who was intially holding onto his head and rubbing it quickly answered.

"Just a slight headache," He smiled.

'Mixedbloods never develop headaches... that's a human thing,' This thought crossed everyone's mind causing them to stare at Falco suspiciously.

"I'll be okay after sleeping for a bit," Falco added.

"You should probably get checked to be sure you're completely alright," Mistress Beatrice instructed.

"Alright I will," Falco gave in to avoid more questions.

"Why did you call our names, Mistress Beatrice?" Angy questioned.

"You will be leaving the training center with captain Crimson on a mission," She announced.

"Oh?" Everyone now understood the reason for Gustav's last statement.

"The higher ups are labeling it a field assignment for the participants so he is allowed to take you with him. The others here will be given another field assignment..." Mistress Beatrice explained.

It turned out Gustav had finally showed up here to take his team with him for the upcoming mission regarding the Genxodus.

They had given him permission to do so, which meant it wouldn't be a problem for him to take them out.

The gang had looks of excitement as they realised they would be finally leaving this place for the first time in over four months.

"What of Endric? Why isn't he added?" Aildris questioned.

"Yeah why didn't you mention this little buddy's name?" E.E voiced out as well.

"Captain Crimson picked the team and it didn't include Endric," After saying this, Mistress Beatrice stepped into a blueish glowing portal and disappeared.

"Why would Gustav not pick Endric?"

"Does he still have bad blood with him?"

"They seemed okay, what happened?"

"Sigh~"

The gang were confused as to why this happened but they knew they wouldn't get an answer unless they inquired for Gustav personally.

"Where did he go?" Ria questioned.

"He went in the direction of the dark hold," Aildris answered from what he recalled.

"What? He went back there?" Matilda voiced out with an awry expression.

"What is he thinking...? that place is too dangerous without the supervision of any of the masters," Angy expression turned really troubled as she voiced out.

"Let's head there too," Elevora suggested.

"E.E, "

"On it,"

A vortex opened up in front and they all jumped in without wasting time.

(The dark hold)

This happened to be the same location the group of twenty had successfully transversed through after encountering multiple dangerous situations.

Gustav's figure could be seen deep within the heart of this dark and gloomy region. However, unlike the previous time, he wasn't positioned on any thin line.

[Daily Task (2/3) Successfully Completed: Use flight ability in the vicinity of the stronghold â^š]

[+700,000 EXP]

Chapter 1098 Completing Tasks In The Dark Hold

[Daily Task (2/3) Successfully completed: Use flight ability in the vicinity of the stronghold v]

[+700,000 EXP]

Gustav floated in mid air within his dark vicinity bearing endless gloomy clouds as he stared at the notification panel.

"I would have failed this daily task if I arrived here later than today..." Gustav's face darkened as he voiced out.

"To think you were telling me to travel to space with the limited time and you still had such a task in store for me tsk," Gustav sounded like he bore a grudge.

("Your actions were calculated hehe can't blame me,") The system cackled while responding.

"This place truly sucks energy... I guess that's why they were weaker than normal," Gustav could feel his energy draining at a rapid pace while he flew.

Such drainage would make him incapable of activating Hover more than a couple of times if he hadn't leveled up recently.

'How was such a place designed?' Gustav questioned internally as he looked down.

[God Eyes Has Been Activated]

His irises emitted a mixture of golden, green and crimson glows as he stared down into what looked like a bottomless abyss.

"Streams of energy are connected like thread and leading down there..." Gustav muttered.

Zzhrrrrriiihhh~

Gustav's sight phased through multiple layers of darkness beneath traveling across thousands of feet in an instant.

The darkness only increased the lower his sight traveled yet he could still see as clear as day due to the ability of God Eyes as well as the glowing strings of energy that were visible to the naked eyes.

Fwwhooooommm~ vwwwoohooooommm~

His sight would pass through multiple brewing colors of flames causing his face to show expressions of understanding.

'So that's how they're formed...!' Despite the flames still getting created thousands of feet beneath his eyes could feel a subtle burn.

This made him uncomfortable but Gustav carried on with his gaze into the bottomless abyss.

"Hmm, it's really deep but not bottomless..." Gustav was able to tell after his sight reached a particular distance.

He wasn't able to get to the bottom due to God Eyes reaching its limit but he was sure there was a bottom and he was curious as to what was down there.

"Something that drains the energy of everyone in its territory and coverts it to... I have to get down there," Gustav finally gave in to his curiosity.

[Hover Has Been Deactivated]

The instant he deactivated Hover a violet colored vortex appeared about two hundred feet towards his north.

Zhooommm~

E.E, Angy, Aildris and the others appeared from within the vortex and landed on a floating telekinesis platform Endric had created.

"Someone's falling over there!" Elevora suddenly called their attention to the direction she pointed at.

"It has to be Gustav! Take us there E.E!" Angy yelled out with a look of worry.

"I can't see, how far away is it?" E.E questioned while channeling his energy once more.

"No time I'm going after him!"

Fwwhooosshh~

Angy's figure had disappeared the instant she said this so the gang only heard echoes of her words lingering in the air.

"Don't..." None of them were able to stop her as she had already disappeared before they even heard the complete statement.

She had sped towards the ledge of the telekinetic platform and leapt in Gustav's direction.

"Everyone hold on," Aildris quickly voiced out before anyone else could make rash decisions.

"Gustav is not stupid, if he got into such a situation by himself, he definitely knows how to get out of it," Aildris stated.

Everyone's faces lit up with looks of clarification and understanding as they heard this.

They were worried due to the fact that they knew just how dangerous this region was so they had rushed here without a second thought just in case Gustav was in danger.

Elevora announcement of a falling figure upon their arrival made things even worse but now that Aildris had said this they all came to a realisation, 'Its Gustav,'

"What about Angy? She might be in trouble since she went after him," Matilda stated.

"Let's get closer to the falling point," Aildris suggested.

E.E nodded and opened another vortex to transport them to the exact place Gustav fell from.

-

Fwwwhhhuuuuummm~

Gustav's clothes flapped due to wind as he free fell into the depths of the dark hole.

He felt multiple presences after deactivating Hover and beginning his fall but he decided not to pay it any heed.

He made some motions with his arms to further increase the speed at which he fell into this abyss.

Gustav had deactivated God Eyes but he could still see and sense his vicinity properly.

The lower he fell, the more he could sense the darkness getting thicker almost like it was turning solid.

However, he would occasionally pass through areas where flames were forming due to concentration of absorbed energy within this abyss.

[Atomic Disintegration Has Been Activated]

Gustav's entire frame became coated with milky colored energy as he spotted gigantic greenish flames forming up ahead.

There was no way to go around it so he decided to go through it.

Fwwwiiii~

His body phased right through and continued on within the flames for another seventy feet before he escaped the flames and arrived in total darkness once more.

Although the flames that had been concentrating above was pretty massive, they were unable to cause any damage to Gustav as the atomic disintegration made him phase through easily.

The illumination only managed to cover a short distance so darkness was upon him once more as he descended.

Thicker darkness...

"Hmm?" Gustav mumbled as he sensed something.

"Someone's falling?" He turned his head to stare upwards while still descending.

[God Eyes Have Been Activated]

Gustav's sight traveled past the flames he had just phased through and went further upwards.

His eyes widened as he spotted the silver haired figure falling.

"The flames... she's headed straight for the flames..." Wings sprouted out of Gustav's back at this point as his body paused it's decent.

[Double Speed Has Been Activated]

A ferocious glint could be seen at the corner of Gustav's eyes as he suddenly blasted upwards with immense speed.

Fwwwhiooommmm~

He tore a hole right through the condensing flames up ahead and arrived right before Angy who was currently coated in a silver glow.

Her arms were moving rapidly generating winds that made her descend at a faster pace.

However, the moment Gustav arrived before her, he grabbed hold of her waist and flew upwards.

Thhiiiiooooouhhhhhh~

Cracking sounds rang out as Gustav and Angy's figure ascending with immense speed. It seemed like they were breaking through solid darkness as they ascended.

While he was flying at extreme speed, to Angy it looked like time had frozen.

She had been taken by surprise initially but currently she tilted her face and her horns came into contact with Gustav's forehead as they flew upwards.

Gustav was about to say something when she placed her lips on his mid flight.

-

"Yeah we should probably try to go down there," Falco stated as the gang stood on another telekinetic platform.

"Not a good idea... our bloodline energy is..." While Teemee was responding Elevora spoke.

"Something's coming,"

The instant she voiced out, a sound like booming thunder ripping through the air reverberated across the vicinity.

Thrrrahhhh~

In the next moment two figures blasted forth from the next layer of darkness beneath them.

"Gustav!"

"Angy!"

The gang yelled out as they spotted both of them.

"Looks like they're fine," Elevora stated.

"They look more than fine..." Matilda coughed lightly as she stated.

"My boy is at it again," E.E chuckled.

"I guess he has more energy in other aspects as well," He added.

"Get a room you two," Teemee yelled out.

They seperated at this point and Gustav proceeded to descend upon the telekinetic platform.

Angy's face had turned beet red at this point as she realised they had witnessed both of them exchanging saliva.

"Why are you guys here?" Gustav questioned.

"We came because of you,"

"We thought you'd be in trouble,"

"This region is dangerous,"

They answered.

"I know... I was checking something," Gustav stated.

[Daily Task (3/3) Completed successfully: Travel across fifty thousand feet within the dark hold without activating Lightning Blitzv]

[Rewards]

<+30 Attribute Points>

<+1,200,000 EXP>

<Hover Level Up>

'Daily tasks successful...' Gustav noted internally as he spotted the notifications.

'Now I can make use of it,'

"We can see you're okay now, I guess there was no need for us to worry," Aildris nodded.

"Are you gonna brief us on the mission?" Teemee inquired.

"Sure, when I get back," Gustav's leaped forward immediately after saying this.

[Lightning Blitz Has Been Activated]

Before anyone could even respond to that, he turned into a streak and streaked downwards into the bottomless looking abyss.

"Why does he always embrace danger," Falco shook his head.

-

Gustav found himself within deep darkness in the next instant after arriving close to two hundred miles beneath.

It felt like his body was in a puddle as he struggled to move.

Chapter 1099 Endric's Current State

He waved his hand and realised he was at least five times slower than normal.

[God Eyes Have Been Activated]

He peered downwards once more.

'Still a bit distant from the bottom but I can see it now... I will almost be completely hindered by the time I arrive down there,' Gustav realised this.

If he tried to get to the bottom through conventional means there was a probability he wouldn't be able to move anymore after reaching a particular point because he could run out of energy during the struggle.

[Lightning Blitz Has Been Activated]

Gustav activated Lightning Blitz once more and instantly arrived at the bottom of this abyss.

As expected, upon landing atop solid ground, Gustav found it extremely tasking to take a step.

Despite the difficulty, he managed to look downwards and reactivate God Eyes.

'Hmm... the entire ground floor is the cause...' Gustav said internally as he took note of the intricate patterns within the solid bottom.

The entire ground floor had weird glowing marks that spread across the place and Gustav could feel a cyclonic mixture of energy and anti energy coming from it.

It turned out the bottom of the abyss was the cause for the turn out of this entire realm. The intricate mixture of energy and anti energy caused energy to be siphoned from living creatures especially mixedbloods and even blocked their connection to the energy within them.

It transmuted the siphoned energy into what this realm was turned to and was also the cause for the intense pillar of flames that would occasionally rise into the sky.

"Hmm... This could be really useful..." As Gustav studied the unfamiliar ground floor he proceeded to squat.

It was almost like he was unbothered that this was the most dangerous part of this dark hole.

"There's something else here..." Gustav's hair stood on end as he suddenly sense something.

#####

Within an unknown region, hail like stones could be seen falling from the sky as a ragged and cloaked figure was spotted traversing an icy land.

He dragged some chains along with him as he took one step after the other. These chains were massive. A link was twice the size of human head and this figure seemed to be pulling it along with him as he took steps forward.

Following the links of the chain, a gigantic beast like creature was connected to the chains.

It seemed like it was lifeless, as the human like figure dragged it along without any defiance from the creature.

The icicles that had formed on the icy ground were being smashed into splinters by the body of this massive creature as it got dragged across the ground.

The hail like stones that fell from the sky were sometimes as large as a building however, when any of them fell in the direction of the human figures and massive beast, they would smash into an unknown and invisible force before they could make contact.

The human figure continued forward undisturbed by the unfavourable condition of the environment.

After some time a medieval looking city could be spotted up ahead with a massive looking kingdom like gate and walls hundreds of feet tall.

The gates were shut but multiple guards could be spotted standing on different corners of the walls.

"He's here," One of the guards stated as he spotted the figure in the distance.

The other guards also became on the alert the instant they spotted the figure arriving with the massive creature.

In a few, the human figure arrived at the massive kingdom like gate with the creature behind him.

He slowly let go of the massive chains and raised his head.

"I brought it back alive like the Tarmac instructed," The human figure voiced out with a light masculine tone.

"Sir Luchas, what do we do?" One of the guards on the walls standing beside a decorated guard with dark cape questioned.

Sir Luchas had a look of disbelief along with the other guards positioned on the wall.

"Send word to the Tarmac now about the ongoing situation," He commanded.

One of the guards nodded and proceeded to climb down the wall and disappeared into the medieval like city.

"We might have no choice but to let him in now. The Tarmac never thought he would be able to complete this task," Sir Luchan muttered with his face still retaining the expression of disbelief.

"He was gone for many months we thought he might be dead already," Another guard stated.

"I cannot believe he managed to accomplish the task," Others couldn't hide their confusion as well.

"What's taking so long?" The human figure standing in front of the massive gate questioned.

"Pardon our impudence but the Tarmac must confirm that the task has been accomplished himself so I implore your patience, Lord Eric," Sir Luchas voiced apologetically.

"It's Endric not Eric," The human figure pulled the cloak off his head while replying.

"My apologies Lord Eric," Sir Luchas stated once more.

Veins appeared on Endric's forehead for an instant before he heaved a sigh and responded, "Just forget it,"

"The Tarmac has arrived," A loud voiced announced after a few seconds.

Endric looked up once more and spotted a seven foot muscular frame in golden and silver armor standing right beside Sir Luchas.

Sir Luchas bowed in respect upon this muscular female appearance.

"I brought what you asked," Endric voiced while gesturing at the massive building sized creature right behind him.

The Tarmac who was a beautiful and muscular looking lady with a scar ripping from her left cheek to chin, stood in place with a scowl on her face.

"Deactivate the barrier," The Tarmac instructed.

"DEACTIVATE THE BARRIER!" Sir Luchas yelled out the command.

In the next instant a vibrating sound rang out like something powering down...

Zhiiiiinnnnnn~

A dome that surrounded this part of the city turned visible for an instant before disappearing.

Thooom~ Bang!

The Tarmac leapt and landed right in front of Endric.

Endric who was less than six feet tall was at least three heads shorter than the Tarmac.

"I shall inspect it now," She voiced out before moving past him.

"Be quick before it reawakens," Endric advised.

The massive creature which was dark brownish in color with a mixture of furs and scales on different areas of its body, was wrapped by these massive chains.

The Tarmac touched a part of its body and nodded her head.freewebnovel.com

"Open the gates," She said before turning around.

"Follow me," She instructed Endric while proceeding to walk forward.

Endric picked up the end of the chain and began dragging the creature forward once more.

"Finally," He heaved a sigh of relief as he followed the Tarmac into the city.

#####

"We're leaving now, see you guys later," Aildris said to the other teammates as they all stood in front of the house they had been staying in all this time.

"Alright then you guys go ahead. I guess the rest of us will be given seperate missions," Asbestos bid them farewell as well as some other teammates.

Gustav and the gang were all clad in their MBO uniforms at this point, ready to leave.

"We might be back in two weeks. Good thing only one more training course is left," Falco voiced out.

A portal opened up for them in the next instant and the ten proceeded to walk in.

Gustav didn't bother bidding any of them farewell as he wasn't accustomed to them like the other despite having spent a day here already.

Zzhiiiiinnnnnnn~

They arrived above what looked like an unending Iceland region.

"Finally back in the real world," Angy said with a smile.

"I thought I'd lose my mind," Glade voiced out.

"I think I lost mine," Falco said with a low tone.

"What was that, Falco? Didn't hear you," Aildris questioned.

"Nothing," A smile appeared on Falco's face.

"I'm glad we finally have a mission to take care of he added," He added.

Gustav who was standing just a few feet away glanced at Falco suspiciously before looking forward.

"Our ride is here," Gustav voiced out as an aircraft approached their direction from up ahead.

-

"So what is this mission about?" Aildris questioned as they flew back to the MBO tower in Plankton City.

"Genxodus..." This was the first word Gustav uttered.

Everyone's faces turned serious the instant they heard this.

"The upcoming mission is an extermination raid with the purpose of dealing immense damage to the terrorist group... if successful, this might potentially put an end to them," Gustav revealed.

"Oh? Looks like it's going to be a major mission," E.E stated with a look of interest.

"It is... the Genxodus have been silent for a while. They haven't made a move in months," Gustav voiced out.

("Besides sending assassins to murder you of course,") The system chipped in within Gustav's head.

"Isn't that a good thing?" Angy questioned with a slightly confused look after Gustav's statement..

"No it isn't... a group as hyperactive as theirs going silent for months is giant red flag," Gustav replied.

Chapter 1100 That's My Home

"This would mean whatever catastrophe they have in mind is potentially hazardous enough to cause immense destruction... they're planning something big," Gustav explained.

Their faces went from expressions of surprise to understanding then contemplative.

"So we just have to make sure we strike first before they can implement whatever plans they already have in motion?" Falco questioned.

"That's our plan... Since we might not be able to unravel their plots before its too late we hope this operation is damaging enough to ruin everything and who knows we might get more information in the process," Gustav responded.

"What exactly is the plan and which location are we implementing it?" Aildris proceeded to ask.

"The operation is beginning next week in Aribia city," Gustav revealed this first.

"Aribia City?" E.E expression noticeable turned disturbed as he voiced out.

"Yes Aribia city according to intelligence is the location where they've managed to create a large underground network," Gustav stated.

"Shit... that's my home," E.E voiced with a low tone.

"What?" Everyone exclaimed with a looks of surprise upon hearing that.

"Yeah...." E.E could understand their disbelieving expressions.

"We all know Capital City is notorious for having mixedbloods gang Lords and slums where people with lower privileges reside so it makes sense that one of their hideouts is located here despite the being an organisation based on hate for mixexbloods..." Gustav voiced out with a logical tone.

Aribia city was amongst three poorest cities in the world with slum dwellers. This city was void of resources like the others so it had not prospered as much as other cities on earth.

"Since its where I grew up... I'll be sure to give proper guide," E.E said with a nod.

Everyone could sense a faint feeling of melancholy from E.E after he voiced out.

"E.E you should definitely introduce us to your family when we get there," Angy worded with a warm expression.

"Oh... sure. I'll introduce you guys to my little sister and mom," E.E nodded with a smile.

"And we should most likely get them out of there as well since it would literally turn into a war with the Genxodus," Aildris suggested.

"That will be taken care of when we get there. Don't forget we'll be sniffing out the Genxodus in the city as a team and we'd have to play our part by covering specific areas.

Since we want to also gather information about other major hideouts that may exist, killing members of the Genxodus should be avoided except that is the only option available..." Gustav continued briefing them.

The group spent about three hours flying before they arrived at the border a slightly run down city.

From high heights in the sky one could see broken down buildings and small rough structures ones in disastrous looking areas. The bad areas seemed to be populated by a large number of people who were poorly dressed.

However, there were still areas that looked very good and such areas were less populated. This view reminded Gustav of Leoluch city where he completed his first ever mission.

The different was, there wasn't a civil war here so this city always looked this way.

'This is where E.E grew up?' Most of them were still surprised.

Memories were playing out in E.E's head as he stared down at the city. 'See you soon mom, Sarah...' E.E said internally.

The aircraft made a swift turn and headed towards a particular forest area on the far left of the border. They were currently in camouflage mode so the aircraft couldn't be tracked or spotted by any device.

Few Minutes Later, they touched down at an unknown part of the forest.

"There's nothing here," Matilda looked around the forestry area with a confused expression.

"There is," Gustav answered while turning toward the left.

Everyone followed his movement but could only see tall trees up ahead along with leaves of the ground.

Gustav kept moving forward and suddenly disappeared.

"A discognitive barrier," Falco instantly understood what had just happened.

"Let's go guys," He added.

Everyone moved forward as well and upon reaching the same position where Gustav disappeared, they could feel a field opening up for them.

On the outside it looked like they disappeared but on the inside, they were still in the same location which originally looked different from what was portrayed outside.

They found themselves in a secluded spot within the forest void of trees and filled with bungalow like structures.

MBO officers could be seen moving back and forth within this area.

Some spotted Gustav and the others and continued on with whatever they were initially doing.

"You have finally arrived officer Crimson," One of the officers in brownish uniform voiced out upon spotting them.

"Officer Sin," Gustav nodded at him.

"I'll show your team to their temporary quarters, officer Darmark asked for you to show up at the temporary base upon your arrival," Officer Sin informed.

The officer proceeded to take Aildris, E.E and the others in a particular direction. Gustav kept walking forward on his own at this point.

He stepped into the largest tent like building within the vicinity and spotted a trio positioned around a square shared floating holographic projection.

Just like a regular base there were other officers around dealing with computerised works but it was obvious these three were the main leaders in charge of the operation.

"Officers Darmark, Shuri and Colt," Gustav greeted upon his arrival within.

These three faces were familiar ones as the men and woman already had a sort of banter with Gustav weeks back when he was trying to become a part of this operation... especially Officer Colt who was against the idea of having Gustav.

"You have finally decided to join us," Officer Colt crunched his nose as he stated with a distasteful tone.

"Yes officer Colt, my team is here with me," Gustav answered with an unbothered expression.

"Officer Crimson, we expect total compliance when the operation begins as every team would be assigned specific locations," Officer Shuri voiced with a tone of caution.

"I and my team shall do our best on this mission in handling the Genxodus," Gustav responded.

"No stepping out of line will be tolerated," Officer Colt warned.

"If handling or capturing the Genxodus members is considered stepping out of lines then officer Colt can be sure I and my teammates will be not just stepping but running out of line," Gustav announced before smirking.

"You..." Officer Colt gritted his teeth and was about to speak when Officer Darmark interrupted.

"I'm sure Officer Crimson means he will do the job assigned to him and his squad. There is no need for unnecessary bickering," Officer Darmark stated.

The place turned silent for a bit as Gustav remained unfazed despite the glare from officer Colt.

"The operation will begin in the next two days... in the meantime we've been sending spies into Aribia City to gather info and make sure there are no changes to any info we've gathered so far. We have a list of places we'll be specifically swarming on that day," Officer Shuri revealed.

"Interesting... An officer from my squad is native of this city. Since he most likely knows this city better than anyone he could also infiltrate and spy to gather info," Gustav suggested.

"That is not necessary officer Crimson. We have it covered," Officer Colt instantly turned down the proposal.

"Hmm I am practically giving you the perfect man for such a job but you're turning it down. I thought you wanted the operation to be flawless?" Gustav expression remained unbothered as he responded despite the rejection.

"The operation will be flawless without the insertion of your man," Officer Colt stated.

"Fine," Gustav shrugged.

"Anyways I need to get his family out of there so I will have to visit the city earlier than intended," He added.

"We cannot allow that Officer Crimson," Officer Shuri stated.

"When the operation begins, there is a high chance of civilians getting harmed. I must make sure my teammate family is far from such danger," Gustav responded with a strong tone.

"I'm sorry but we truly cannot allow that Officer Crimson," Officer Darmark shook his head.

"Why?"

-"It jeopardises the mission for you to take care of such a task,"

"Then I shall send someone else to do so,"

- "We can't let any officer do such. Anything that jeopardises the mission cannot be allowed. If it was revealed that people were suddenly leaving the city it could raise flags for the Genxodus,"

"It's just one family, no big deal,"

- "From one family to friends who they may also care for and others find out as well and get compelled to leave which might trigger a chain of effects. We cannot risk it,"

"So if it was your own family there, you'd leave them to be endangered?"

"..."

There were a few seconds of silence after Gustav asked this question.

"Hypocrites..."

"Since that's all I shall take my leave now," Gustav proceeded to add before turning around.

"Officer Crimson," Officer Darkmark suddenly called out to him.