

Bloodline 1131

Chapter 1131 High Death Toll

"Send word to the reinforcements surrounding the upper district... tell them to bring back the captured member and leaders and also escort Officer Crimson back to this base," Commander Colt yelled.

The operators in the control room nodded as they got to work.

-

Within the upper district, Gustav stood in place as his body bloated and turned greenish.

Baam!

He stomped his feet on the ground and the cage surrounding the upper district began to open up.

Ghrrrrhiiiiihhhh~

The ground quaked lightly as the iro silk walls rescinded.

in a couple of seconds, the entirety of the walls descended completely and the upper district was open once again.

MBO officers that had surrounded the upper district were visible now. They had formed a circular wall of their own due to their numbers being in the thousand.

Gustav's body slowly returned to normal as he looked around without a morsel of surprise in his expression. He already knew they were there.

The MBO officers were shocked to see the upper district in such a devastating look. It was expected that the whole Aribia City would take a hit from this operation since the Genxodus members would not just back down without a fight.

However, they hadn't expected this much destruction.

A massive crater that covered a quarter of the upper district, another large hole in a corner of the upper district, multiple structures with cracks and even some pile of dust in spots that used to contain houses.

Aribia City now looked like a place that had been devastated by war.

'This is the power of mixedbloods and the earth is truly in danger having bore such monstrosities,' The main leader who hid in the other dimensional frequency, thought to himself.

He was even more affirmed that Mixedbloods should be wiped off the face of the earth now or it would lead to destruction.

On the surface, the MBO officers face darkened even more as they spotted pile of corpses scattered across the upper district.

The ashy and dried out looking corpses were clad in MBO uniforms so it was obvious these were the MBO officers who were ensnared in the roots before they could escape the upper district.

There were thousands of corpses like these. The other corpses they could find had incomplete body parts and dried blood could be spotted.

From the briefing they had received, they were sure these were the Genxodus members Gustav had killed. Their faces turned from dark to shocked as they realised more than ten thousand of them were truly slaughtered.

The whole upper district just reeked with blood and lifelessness.

On the bright side, there were human survivors.

The MBO quickly got to work and took the human survivors out of the buildings. Medical MBO agents were already on standby so the moment they rounded them up, the medical agents began their work.

Some of them were grievously injured while others were just shaken up by the whole occurrence.

Around a hundred thousand humans were getting attended to after they had rounded them up.

Despite the high number that were saved, a higher number of civilians had died in this encounter. The death toll was almost a million and more than 90% of those were mixedbloods.

Even highly trained MBO officers had met their demise to the roots so there was no way mixedblood civilians would be able to escape them. 20% of civilians consumed the bloodline dampening seeds after all.

The MBO won this battle due to Gustav yet the losses casted a gloom over the entire region.

MBO officers moved across the place for up to an hour as they scanned for more survivors that may have been buried under the rubble.

They still wondered why there was no longer a trace of the roots whereas the ruckus they had caused was very visible.

They had no idea Gustav had already taken care of that before he brought down the cage covering the upper district. If he had let them be, the roots would spread further and the reinforcements would be ensnared as well.

Some MBO officers who recognised their peers or found someone they knew amongst the dead officers, were in a state of mourning.

"Well, the MBO officers didn't care about slaughtering the innocents who may have consumed the bloodline dampening seeds so I guess they met a fitting end themselves," Gustav said out loud as he watched them work from a rooftop.

"You would have killed them as well if not for the fact that you remained unaffected," Falco scrunched his nose as he voiced out from the side.

"True, which is why I wouldn't be mad if I had met my demise here," Gustav responded.

"Tch, you couldn't even try to lie," Falco clicked his tongue at Gustav's bluntness.

"I would have still tried to save E.E's people though but that is just because of E.E so it doesn't really count," Gustav shrugged.

"Would it..." Falco was about responding when they heard a loud call from below.

"Officer Crimson!"

They both looked down and could spot a bunch of MBO officers walking towards the building they were standing on.

"Officer Crimson we were asked to escort you back to the control room," One of the officers voiced out.

"Those are the people you should escort back," Gustav stated while pointing at the four who were Genxodus leaders and a member below.

"The commanders asked for you to be brought back along with them," The officer replied.

"And if I refuse?" Gustav questioned while squinting his eyes with a menacing look.

"...We'd have no choice but to use force," The officer replied as they surrounded the building.

"Huh? Why are these guys trying to take you back by force?" Falco inquired with a look of confoundment.

"Probably cos I killed more than ten thousand Genxodus members instead of capturing them," Gustav replied with a casual tone.

"Oh alright..." Falco nodded as he folded his arms.

His eyebrows suddenly twitched as he came to a realisation, "You killed over ten thousand of them?" He voiced with with a tone of terror.

"Why are you acting so surprised?" Gustav said while raising an eyebrow.

"Cos you killed over ten thousand you psycho," Falco responded with a bizarre look.

"I've killed hundreds of thousands before, this is nothing in comparison," Gustav shrugged.

"You bloody murderer!"

"It wasn't on purpose though,"

"This one was,"

"Yeah cos they deserved to die,"

The MBO officers sights kept traveling from Gustav to Falco and then from Falco to Gustav as the two argued.

"Officer Crimson," One of the officers called out again.

"What?" Falco and Gustav voiced at the same time.

"You are coming with us," The officer responded.

"Not interested," Gustav replied before taking a seat on the rooftop.

"It is insubordination to disobey the command of a superior especially when they are the commanders of the operation," The officer stated.

"I read the MBO guidelines in camp so you don't need to inform me.... however I cannot come with you lots because my work here is not complete," Gustav responded with a cryptic tone.

"We are sorry but we will have to use force now since you have refused to come with us willingly," The officer apologized while gesturing at the others.

"You are welcome to try," Gustav eyes showed a disinterested expression as he remained in place.

Fhooowwmm~ Fhooowwmm~ Fhooowwmm~

The officers activated their bloodline abilities in preparation to attack.

"Hold on," Falco voiced out, causing them to stop.

"Why don't you wanna go with them?" Falco inquired while squatting beside Gustav.

"The main leader... he's still in hiding," Gustav revealed.

Falco eyes widened slightly as he heard that, "Do you mean the main Genxodus leader?"

"Yes, he might show himself once the entire place has returned to tranquility... can't risk missing him. If he escaped, everything would have been for nothing because the Genxodus will definitely recover," Gustav explained.

Falco face lit up with a look of contemplation as he heard this.

"How about this... go with them first, I will keep an eye out and inform you if I notice anything out of place," Falco suggested.

"Keep an eye out on the entire upper district and not just the massive hole over there," Gustav instructed while jumping off the building.

"Sure," Falco replied with a nod.

"Let's go," Gustav said to the fellow officers upon landing on the ground.

Two of them moved towards his sides and were about to hold on to his arms when he spoke.

"Did they ask you to treat me like a criminal too?" He questioned.

"This is..." One of them wanted to respond when Gustav interrupted.

"It will be in your best interests to stay away if you don't wanna lose your hands," Gustav threatened.

They arrived before a couple of hover cars lined up and Gustav got in along with them. Some of the officers joined the one he sat in while others followed the ones the Genxodus members were kept.

Chapter 1132 The Appearance Of An Unfathomable Existence

Gustav could have made use of his speed to get back to the temporary base but he decided to just go back with them.

He wouldn't mind a free ride after expending a lot of his energy today.

It was quite crazy how yesterday he was thousand of miles away trying to save the lives of millions and today he was here where almkst a million lives had been lost.

The MBO and the government didn't really care about the death toll so long as the Genxodus members had been eradicated.

The devastation of the city was something they already saw coming but not with the multiple twists that left them with dead officers as well.

It had been a crazy couple of days.

If there was one thing Gustav was glad about, it was the fact this would truly spell a end to the Genxodus.

One of his major plans was to deal with them before he left for IYSOP.

Gustav soon arrived at the temporary base with the other officers and instantly went to meet the commanders.

Angy was really worried upon getting briefed about what had happened so far but Aildris calmed her.

"It's Gustav... he'll be fine,"

"I hope so," Angy replied.

"He's the reason the operation is a success so I don't think they can truly do anything to him," Matilda voiced from the side as well.

"He also has a teacher who is now a literal goddess," Teemee who had long regained consciousness added.

"Mehn I wish I had a badass teacher too," E.E smacked his lips as he voiced out.

"Perv," Matilda stated.

"Wanna be my teacher, Mat?" E.E raised an eyebrow as he rubbed his palms together.

"Don't be creepy man," Teemee smacked E.E from behind.

"Come man lighten up, you're still sore from getting your ass knocked out," E.E voiced out.

"Hahaha," Matilda began laughing along with everyone else.

"Tch," Teemee threw Ria a glare.

"By the way, why has Falco not returned?" Angy inquired.

"Gustav asked him to stay there," Aildris responded.

"Oh, what about our wager with the other squad?" Angy questioned as she recalled they had a kind of competition with another squad.

They were gonna compare who captured the highest number of Genxodus members.

"They are all dead," Elevora answered from the side.

"Their squad was assigned to the upper district... they all got caught in the bloodline dampening roots," She explained but didn't explain how she knew.

"Ooof too bad," Teemee muttered.

"That means we won though... it's not like the dead can compete," E.E added.

"...I guess you're right," Teemee and the others didn't even know how to feel about this.

Should they be celebrating or feeling bad for the deaths of their fellow officers.

"At least all the slum people survived," A smile hung on E.E's face as he spoke.

The MBO had helped with bringing the slum dwellers back to their original location in the slums.

Currently, they were also helping them feed as well. Gustav had already promised he would help so E.E wasn't too worried about how the slum dwellers would turn out.

-

"They ticked me off... besides, you should be thanking me not pointing accusing fingers again," Gustav voiced with a calm tone while speaking in the control room.

"You should be thanking us that we are not deranking you," Commander Colt stated.

"Don't act like you have the power to," Gustav responded with an unbothered tone.

"You... you..." Commander Colt finger trembled in anger as he pointed it at Gustav.

"I will make sure you get deranked!" He yelled out.

"You are welcome to try," Gustav wasn't in the least bothered. He wasn't in the MBO to climb to the highest ranks after all. He just wanted resources and power.

"Calm down commander Colt, let us all be civil here," Commander Darmark voiced out.

"If that is all, I will be taking my leave," Gustav stated.

"Officer Crimson, we will still be needing your report," Commander Shuri voiced out.

"Sure, once I catch the main leader you lots will have it," Gustav replied before walking out of the control room.

"He is way too cocky," Commander Shuri voiced out.

"If you were that talented and managed to take down a terrorist organisation almost single handedly, I bet you would be way cockier," Commander Darmark voiced in response.

"I suggest you two try to make him an accomplice instead of antagonising him..." He added.

-(Three Weeks Later)

In the far reaches of the intergalactic space, a planet thrice the size of earth orbited around a massive sun.

A lady in all white flowing robes floated in mid space right in between the massive sun and the planet.

The sun was more than two hundred million kilometers away from the planet but the heat it radiated was still intense, considering it was bigger than Earth's sun.

A bright and ethereal glow oozed forth from the lady floating in space, causing the heat radiating from the sun to reduce before it reached the planet.

The sun began to shift further from the planet for what seemed to be the longest period of time before it stopped.

The beautiful lady with a ash colored hair slowly opened her eyes after a while.

"Now that it is outside the milky way, there won't be anymore issues," She muttered as she stared at her planet with a caring gaze.

"I can finally create a place where supernatural abilities doesn't exist... no mixedbloods, no powers, nothing..." She felt elated while saying this.

She turned to stare at a particular direction in space where stars glittering in the distance could be seen.

Some of these stars were actually planets but too distant so they looked like stars.

"I should pay him a visit, it has been almost six months now," She worded before decided to head back into her planet's orbit first.

All of a sudden she felt a strange and unknown force awaken in this part of space.

"Hmm?"

Zzzzhiiiiizzzhhhhherhrhhh!

An enormously bizarre and pitch black eye suddenly opened up on the far east side of her planet in space.

It sent forth an outworldly energy upon its appearance that sent a strange vibe all across the milky way galaxy.

THIIRRRHHHZZZZHHH~

Miss Aimee's face turned serious as she stared in the direction of this eye. She had never felt anything like this in her entire lifetime.

It sent timbers down her spine which was something that had never happened to her before irrespective of how powerful an enemy was compared to her.

This eye that had just opened up was four times more massive than her the sun she created and she was literally a spec of dust compared to it.

Her planet was like a ant before despite being three times larger than Earth. Miss Aimee didn't know what this was but it certainly didn't give her a good feeling so she knew it was definitely the the opposite of good.

"What are you?" She muttered while the glow she emitted increased intensely.

Miss Aimee was definitely not someone that would back down in the face of adversity. Her outburst of energy caused ripples to travel across space as stars were shifted from their initial position.

She drew the attention of the massive eye which proceeded to shift its eyeball in her direction.

Zzzhiiiiiii~

Staring directly at her, Miss Aimee could feel the sheer intensity of just its gaze.

However in the next instant...

Flicker~

The eye closed up and phased back out of existence like it never appeared in the first place.

Miss Aimee figure blurred as she charged forward and arrived at the exact location in space where the eye had appeared.

Unfortunately, there was not a single trace of it. The strange energy it sent across the galaxy had also faded away.

"What was that?" Miss Aimee questioned softly.

Anything that could make even her feel chills at her current level of strength was definitely something no mixedblood would be able to handle.

This made her worried as she turned to stare in the direction of earth once more.

-

On earth...

GHBBLLBBBBBGGGH!

A loud tremor traveled across earth, as it quaked for over a minute.

The entire planet was affected by an unknown wave of energy that had suddenly hit the earth barrier while traveling across space.

"Is that... An eye?" The entire planet was suddenly plunged into a state of chaos as some earthlings spotted a large eye deep in the sky.

Of course not every part of earth was able to spot this but every part of earth was affected by the quake.

The eye disappeared just as quickly as it appeared but some of the people that saw it took a picture and circulated it across the Internet.

This caused the earth to go into a higher state of panic as the citizens quickly called on the world government to look into the situation.

-

Gustav who was just returning to Plankton City at the time, after training with his teammates for the past three weeks paused in place after spotting the eye in the sky.

[Warning!]

Chapter 1133 Activating Self Destruct

[Warning!]

[Warning!]

[Warning!]

[Warning!]

Seconds earlier, the system began to go bunkers after the appearance of the massive eye.

"What is it?" Gustav questioned repeatedly but didn't get an answer.

[Warning!]

[Warning!]

[Warning!]

[Activating self destruct!]

"What?" Gustav eyes widened as this notification appeared in his line of sight.

"What are you doing? Stop!" Gustav yelled out while seated on a sky scrapper.

[Self destruct in 10...]

[9...]

"Hey! Stop it! System!"

[8...]

[7...]

[6...]

"System! Have you gone crazy!?"

[5...]

[4...]

"Shit!" Gustav cursed as his brain frantically worked on a way of handling the situation.

'Endangering myself isn't gonna work since the system is practically Activating self destruct...'

'Nothing like Electromagnetic charges will be effective since the system is not a that kind of technologi...
shit... i also can't reach into myself to do anything like a manual override since it's physical existence is inexistent ...'

More than a million different thoughts were popping up in his mind within a couple of milliseconds time frame.

"Activate dash..."

"Activate Lightning Blitz..."

[3...]

The countdown continued uninterrupted.

Gustav also tried multiple means besides activating a system ability but every single one of them proved abortive since the existence of the system was one that had never been seen before.

Till this day Gustav was still had very little knowledge about the system despite how long they had been bonded to one another.

[2...]

'Will I die when it self destructs or will only the system disappears?' This was amongst the myriad of thoughts appearing in Gustav's mind.

Just as the last second arrived, a plan that might work amongst the millions of thoughts he had conjured, popped in his mind.

[1...]

'I hope this works!' Gustav's face turned completely serious as he thought.

However, just as he was about to activate what he had in mind which was related with his Cosmic Superiority, the eye in the sky suddenly disappeared.

[Self Destruct Deactivated]

Gustav's face began to soften as he slowly returned to his calm state.

[System Has Returned To Full Operational Capacity]

Gustav stared at the sky, straight in the direction where the eye had appeared initially with a suspicious look.

He had now confirmed that whatever appeared was responsible for the system going bonkers just as he suspected earlier.

"Hey system... what the hell was that?" Gustav questioned with a calm but wary tone.

("Don't ask questions... you don't wanna know,") The system voiced sounded a bit metallic at first before returning to its usual tone.

"Don't play dumb! Just a while ago you were about to self destruct... tell me what that thing was and stop keeping secrets damnit!" For the first time Gustav was truly getting pissed at the system as he voiced out ("Relax... if I were to self destruct you'd be fine. I'd be gone but you'd be fine,") The system clarified.

"That doesn't explain anything," Gustav stated.

("So long as you're alive there is nothing to worry about,")

"Stop dodging the damn question,"

("It's gone anyways so i'm good... weren't you worried aboutme?")

"So the eye truly had something to do with you going bonkers... you cannot keep hiding things from me. Tell me what it was,"

("And i don't intend to hide things forever. It is just not the right time,")

"I've been hearing that for years... I'm sick of it! When is it ever gonna be the right time?" Gustav wasn't backing down on this subject.

Despite the earth barrier protecting the earth from the strange wave of energy that spread across the galaxy upon the appearance of the earth, Gustav very much sensed the maliciousness and sinister feeling it gave off.

("Did you forget that early revelation would bring about cause and effect earlier than intended?") The system reminded.

"Am i suppose to wait till the problem is right at my doorstep before finding a way to take card of it?" Gustav questioned.

("That is why you are being prepared... you already know all of these tasks and quests are not for nothing. Everything that has happened so far is in accordance to guide you towards the right path to achieving success in your future endeavours,") The system voiced lengthily.

"Am i supposed to battle whatever that eye is or what?" Gustav questioned while raising his eyebrows.

("No that is nothing compared to what is coming...") The system replied with a cryptic tone.

Gustav; "..."

"The only hint i can give you is, what had just happened today is one of the five premonitions,") The system added.

"Five premonitions? Does that mean four more similar events will take place in the future?" Gustav questioned.

("No, expect differences... I can't say anymore than that except, our time is running out,") The system replied.

"Occurrences that can mess with your functionality... the maliciousness and outburst of aura it spread across space that caused the entire earth to quake despite the barrier protection..." Gustav could tell, he would be dealing with no ordinary existences in the future.

If the earth didn't have a barrier, the entire planet would have sustained more damage just from its gaze alone.

He couldn't deny that at the moment he was not only curious but also on edge. Gustav had accumulated quite the strength since he started this journey but he knew he was still a bit far from reaching the pinnacle of power.

"No matter how much the authorities investigate they will never be able to find out anything about this," Gustav could already tell they would be hitting dead end with their investigations.

He would have to carry the cross alone for now and find out more about the whole situation before he could include anyone.

"Endric..." His mind suddenly drifted to Endric at the moment.

"He should know more about the situation,"

However, Gustav recalled Endric had not returned and his fake was still walking around pretending to be him.

"We leave for Flalencia in a little over one week for IYSOP... I'm sure he is aware that there's barely any time left so he should be returning soon," Gustav thought out loud.

("You intend to question him about the eye?") The system already knew where Gustav was going with this.

"Doesn't matter to you since you keep hiding things," Gustav responded before leaping off the skyscraper.

Fwwhooommsshhh~

His body traveled in an arc above Plankton City as he stared at the beautifully structured roads as well as the teleportation rings and circles down there.

In the past, the ground would be his means of transportation but three years later he's cutting across the sky in high speed.

Gustav was currently heading back to the MBO tower since he had only left for a bit to clear his head after he arrived with the others from the IYSOP training area today.

The sudden occurrence was something no one had expected to happen.

The massive screens in the city which were initially displaying the IYSOP candidates and information about the upcoming competition, were now broadcasting the current situation.

The image of the eye which had circulated across the media was now being broadcasted by media outlets too.

Gustav squinted his eyes as he leapt from place to place across the rooftops of the city skyscrapers while staring at the news display.

"Hmm?" He suddenly spotted something while his body was flying across the air.

[Hover Has Been Activated]

He activated hover to pause his movement in mid air as he stared down.

In a particular street within Plankton City some structures were to undergo rebuilding which was causing to currently get demolished.

Construction workers and a couple of worker droids could be seen moving about the area.

However, the exact thing that had caught Gustav's attention was an item within one of the half way demolished structures.

He could see that there were other items placed outside the partly demolished structure so as to prevent them from getting destroyed but this particular item was abandoned inside.

They didn't care if it was destroyed or not.

Zzhiiiiizzhhh!

A loud mechanical sound rang out as a massive steel like platform descended upon the half way demolished structure in a bid to crush it completely.

Fwwwhooommmmm~

At this point, Gustav swooped down with intense speed arriving right underneath the massive metallic platform.

Baamm!

A heavy sound of collision rang out accompanied with sneaky sounds as the platform was stopped.

It seemed it was struggling to descend further which caused the construction workers to display looks of confusion.

Gustav who was right underneath the massive metallic structure which shadow had covered the entire vicinity, slowly pushed upwards with his left hand.

The platform began to forcefully elevate while he stared at the tub in front of him which bore multiple lines of cracks.

A smile appeared on Gustav's face as he pushed the flat surfaced metallic platform up completely before reaching to grab the tub.

- "Who the hell is that?"

- "Did he just casually lift the crusher with a single hand?"

- "What the heck!? That thing weighs almost a million pounds,"

The construction workers in the vicinity had already sighted him from outside the range of the crusher and witnessed Gustav lifting the platform.

Chapter 1134 Sea Of Corpses

Fwwhoom~

Gustav got out of there with the tub in his grasp which caused the construction workers to stare at him even more shockingly.

- "That's... Gustav Crimson,"

Now they recognised him since he was closer. However, before any of them could approach, Gustav leapt into the air and flew off.

In an instant, he had disappeared into the far skies.

The workers and everyone in the vicinity were still at loss as to what would cause such a scenario but there was no one to answer all the questions in their mind.

"What the hell are you doing with a old bathroom tub?" Falco questioned upon spotting Gustav carrying a large tub into the MBO tower.

"This tub here has been my buddy during difficult times. I consider it a relic of the past which serves as a worthy reminder of the old times to me," Gustav responded while heading towards the teleportation elevator with it.

The MBO officers in the vicinity stared in his direction weirdly as they spotted the tub he was carrying.

"Ehnn... I don't get it," Falco stated in response while following Gustav.

"You don't have to," Gustav replied.

Falco slightly rubbed his face before deciding not to give it much thought.

"The others are on the 628th floor in the cafeteria discussing what just happened," Falco disclosed.

"I'll meet you guys once I drop this off," Gustav felt he should have dropped this off at his house instead but they just got here.

He decided to keep it in a room here in the meantime till they left the MBO tower.

-

Chattsr! Chattsr! Chatter!

Within a restaurant like vicinity sounds of discussion could be heard all over the place. Some people had occupied tables where they sat and ate while chatting. Others were still trying to get something to eat.

The attention of hundreds of people within the vicinity seemed to be drawn to a particular area where three large tables were joined together. A group of seventeen sat around the three tables minding their business as they seemed to be chatting.

However, everyone in the vicinity could not help but glance in their area multiple times and even chatted about this group which seemed to be popular.

- "That's them..."

- "The highest ranked amongst them is said to be Sheila,"

- "Sheila? But she looks like the youngest?"

"She's a peak kilo ranked at such a young age,"

- "Abestos is just right after her,"

- "I hear Angy is fastest mixedblood of the young generation,"

? - "They all seem so powerful though, looks like we really have a high chance of winning the IYSOP,"

- "But three of them are missing, where is Gustav?"

Mutters could also be heard across the place.

A few moments later, a youngster with white hair walked into the cafeteria. He also drew everyone's attention as he moved towards the sitting position of the group of seventeen.

- "Falco, where is he?" Angy questioned upon his arrival.

"He went to drop something off... don't bother asking what... but yeah he should be here soon," Falco replied.

"Your hair has been getting quite dark lately... it might get difficult to tell the difference between you and Dark Falco if it turns completely black," Teemee voiced with a contemplative expression.

This had been happening since after the operation to get rid of the Genxodus. The operation had ended in success and they even later caught the main leader of the Genxodus.

However, it was still a day everyone would never forget especially for Falco. He was supposed to have lost his life as well but he still hadn't figured out how he plunged himself into an unfathomable scenario.

Dark Falco had been a lot silent since then so he still hadn't gotten answers.

"Dark Falco is noisy and can't go a second without calling someone a low life so I'm pretty sure we would," E.E replied before Falco could.

"I guess you're rightt," Teemee mumbled.

"Where is Endric?" Sheila questioned.

"Didn't he say he was going to the bathroom?" Matilda chimed in.

"Its been two hours already," Sheila voiced with a concerned tone.

"You sure are attentive when it comes to Endric," Angy stated with a suspicious look.

"He is my husband to be," Sheila said before pouting.

"He is thirteen you vile pedophile," Vin responded from the side.

"Age is just a number," Sheila placed her hands on her cheeks while fantasising with a look of delight.

"She's a lost cause,"

"Yep,"

"Certainly a nutcase,"

"We should tell Gustav,"

Everyone nodded or commented while glaring at Sheila.

"Tell me what?"

Everyone turned their faces to the sides as they heard a familiar voice.

"Gustav?"

"How did you get here?"

"No one saw you come in?"

They voiced oit with tones of surprise.

"Because you guys weren't paying enough attention and I tested out an upgraded ability," Gustav replied to them as he took a seat.

He noticed that the only person missing on this table out of their group was Endric.

'Where did the fake go?' He wondered internally.

"Brother in law, where is my husband?" Sheila asked from the side.

"Don't call me that," Gustav stated.

"Brother in law, brother in law, brother in law, brother in law," Sheila began poking Gustav's face from the other end of the table as she called out repeatedly.

Gustav grabbed hold of her finger and glared at her with a cold look.

"Brother in law," She donned a wide smile as she called out once more, ignoring his death stare.

Kon!

Vin knocked on Sheila's head from the side before voicing out, "Behave yourself,"

"Tch, you're no fun Vin," She voiced before pulling her finger back and slopping down her chair.

"We'll be heading to the Oasis tomorrow for the one week meditation," Gustav announced.

"Yosh, they finally approved?" E.E said with a look of excitement.

"Hnm," Gustav nodded.

"You all know it is closed to the rest of the world not just because of how potent its waters are but because its effects reduce upon usage. A day will come when the oasis will no longer exist if Mixedbloods are allowed to entry which is why it is a rare treasure to the entire earth," Gustav added.

"So they only let us cos we are Earth's IYSOP candidates?" Ria questioned.

"Obviously," Teemee responded.

"They only allow a single mixedblood to occupy the oasis once in every ten years," Falco disclosed.

"Since I was allowed in recently, they shouldn't be letting anyone in for the next ten years but fortunately for us, we get to have the place to ourselves for a week before we head out of planet for IYSOP," Gustav disclosed.

Every single team member had looks of excitement on their faces after they heard Gustav announce this even though some of them still didn't like him.

They never knew there would be a time in their livelihood where they would be given access to the oasis. It was truly a dream come true.

Within a massive medieval city with a dome surrounding it and ice chunks falling from the sky, a teenage boy with curly hair stood in the middle of what seemed to be a battlefield.

It couldn't even be called a battlefield anymore since it seemed like a one sided slaughter had occurred here.

Quiiisshhh~

A violent and invisible line slashed through the air and decapitated a group of twenty. Blood jetted out like a fountain, painting the cold iced ground with red.

As heads rolled, bodies also piled. Destructiveness spread across the city and houses were collapsed as well.

The teenage boy with black curly hair had a blood soaked body with his eyes hung low as he stepped forward slowly. His face was expressionless but his gaze bloody sharp.

His knees weakened after taking a few steps but not because of physical tiredness.

Plop!

He fell to his knees as he placed his hand on the pool of blood he had showered the city in. He slowly raised his hands with an expression of craziness as tears gathered in his eyes.

"Nooooooooooooooooooooo!!!!" He yelled out with an intense feeling of emptiness and pain.

Gbbbhhl!!!!

The ice on the grounds cracked as a wave of energy blasted forth from his figure and destroyed more of the structures in the vicinity.

krrrryhhhhchhkkk! CRASH!

Crashing sounds rang out as he kept screaming for close to thirty seconds.

"Hahahahahahahahaha!" He suddenly began laughing like a depraved lunatic as he picked himself up and resumed walking again.

He was stepping on a path of corpses as he moved forward with a lifeless look.

Suddenly, a corpse covered in blood far behind, rose to its feet.

"I... trusted... you... ENDRIC!" A weak feminine voice rang out.

Endric's suddenly paused his footsteps as he slowly turned around to stare at the seven feet tall figure who was covered in a cracked armor.

The muscular female figure had lots of holes in her outfit which was drenched in blood. The original color of the armor was unknown due to it being blood soaked.

"You... you... you... betrayed me..." She struggled to voice out as she held her belly region.

Chapter 1135 Heading To The Oasis

"You... you... you... betrayed me..." She struggled to voice out as she held her belly region. Blood was still flowing from her figure and dropping onto the icy ground.

Endric's head hung low as he stared forward with an expression of shame.

"It was either you or him..." Endric stated.

"You... You... what do you stand to gain from this...?" She voiced out while slowly taking steps forward.

"The survival of someone important... to make sure he doesn't suffer again, this was the sacrifice," Endric voiced with a low tone.

Step! Step! Step!

The Tarmac lips quivered as she continuously and slowly stepped forward till she arrived before Endric.

"Did these last two years mean nothing to you?" Her figure towered over Endric as she voiced while blood seeped out of her mouth.

"Were you only leading me on like a lamb ready to be slaughtered at the appropriate time...?" She questioned once more.

"...Yes," Endric's face turned dark as he replied.

The Tarmac's face froze up for a bit before a smile appeared on her face.

"That person must be really important to you then..." She suddenly hugged Endric after voicing out.

"I can't bring myself to hate you... live long... Endric..." Her body slumped after saying this and she fell to the ground.

"You finally got my name right... Elle," Tears began streaming down Endric's face as he stared at her giant lifeless body on the icy ground.

Trrihhh~ Thhrrriihh~ Thhrrriihh~

Her corpse began to turn into light particles in the next instant which flew towards Endric.

It formed a golden bracelet which strapped around Endric's left wrist. Endric stared at it with a myriad of emotions as he fell to his knees once more.

The entire city had turned into a ghost town at this point. There was not a single soul alive except for Endric.

A green glow appeared on Endric's forehead in the next instant as a voice was heard next.

"All three million, four hundred and thirty six souls within the city have been snuffed out... you did it," Husarius voiced with a heavy tone.

"Yeah... I did it..." Endric muttered with a flat tone.

"I understand how you feel but there was no other way..." Husarius said with a comforting tone.

"Do you? Do you really understand how i feel? You... a talking object..." Endric stated.

Gwwhiii~

The greenish crystal flew out of Endric's forehead and floated in front of him

"I may not be human anymore but I assure you I still retain human emotions and empathy," Husarius replied with a calm tone.

"So you've killed three million people before too?" Endric questioned.

"No I haven't..."

"Then you have no idea how I feel. Don't pretend like you do," Endric stood to his feet and rubbed the bracelet on his wrist for a bit.

"Erm... sigh" Husarius heavy a light sigh.

"It may have been two years in this world but in ours, only around four months have gone by," Husarius disclosed.

"It should almost be time for IYSOP right now," Endric realised.

"It is time to head back," Husarius announced.

"Hmm, let's go back," Endric responded.

Zzhiiiiisshhhhzz~

A portal began opening in front of them as Endric recalled his time spent here with a slightly regretful look.

'I won't forget you... Elle...'He said Internally before walking into the portal.

"I forgot about my physical appearance," Endric voiced as he stood in front of a mirror.

He had developed a light moustache and strands of hair could be seen around his chin region.

He had reached a height of six feet as well and his upper body developed a bit of muscles.

"In this world you are a thirteen year old but in reality, you are already fifteen so this is to be expected," Endric's forehead glowed repeatedly as Husarius spoke.

"They will get suspicious... is there something we can do about this?" Endric questioned.

Ting~

Husarius flew out of Endric's forehead in the next instant.

Zzhiiiiiooinnn~

The green crystal emitted a bright light and in the next instant, Endric turned a bit shorter. His hair looked less messy and all of his facial hair had disappeared completely.

"This is good," Endric nodded.

"It is just an illusion... Everyone that stares at you will never be able to tell how you look originally," Husarius stated.

"I hope so," Endric responded before he moved towards the shower.

-please visit .

kom! Kom! Kom!

"Yo Endric, you in there?"

Minutes later knocking could be heard from the door repeatedly.

"I'm coming," Endric answered before heading towards the door.

Upon opening it, a bunch of people could be seen.

"You've been gone the entire day man, you good?" E.E questioned.

"Yeah yeah i just needed to do some meditation," Endric replied.

"You sure you don't have a chick in there?" E.E said while stretching his neck in a bid to look indoors.

"Hubby, are you cheating on me?" Sheila voiced from the side.

"Huh no... who are..." Endric was about to ask who she was when memories from the clone drifted into his mind.

'Oh... she's a... mm... never thought I'd meet one in my lifetime...' Endric thought.

"Hubby, let's make babies through the night," Sheila voiced out while trying to force her way into his room.

Glare!

She sensed glares pricking into her bodies from all corners.

- "You pedo!"

- "Have you no shame woman!?"

"Come on guys, age is just a number," She screeched with an innocent look.

"Anyways, Endric, we just came to remind you that we're heading to the Oasis tomorrow," Falco said from the side.

"Oh? The bloodline Oasis?" Endric inquired.

"Yes. We were approved to occupy the place for a week," Falco added.

"Alright then," Endric nodded.

-

Minutes later, Endric was seated on his bed with a look of contemplation.

"I didn't channel my bloodline much in the last two years since I barely had the time but I still reached the peak Kilo rank... visiting the Oasis would mean I would reach the Delta rank," Endric thought loud.

"You would surpass everyone then... your brother included... intact you already do," Husarius analysed.

"It doesn't really matter since his strength can't be gauged by bloodline ranking measures but at least, this would make me more efficient. I can protect and assist him better," Endric replied.

#####

The next day arrived very quickly and the group of twenty found their way to one of the aircraft floors.

An aircraft that would take them to where the oasis is located was already waiting for them.

"Big brother," Endric voiced as he moved closer to Gustav within the aircraft.

"You're back," Gustav voiced in response.

"Huh? Back?" Angy and Matilda who were beside him, voiced in confusion.

"Yeah, I didn't think you'd realise," A wry smile appeared on Endric's face as he said to Gustav.

"It was quite easy for me... just like how I can see you have grown taller," Gustav and Endric kept talking, ignoring Angy and Matilda who still had looks of confusion.

'Damn Husarius... I thought you said no one would notice the difference in physical appearance?' Endric cursed internally.

"What happened to you?" Gustav questioned.

"Nothing much," Endric responded.

"Hmm, is that so? Alright then," Gustav could see that something was up but he didn't want to delve too deep since it might not concern him.

"I have something to ask you," Gustav added.

"Huh? What is it?" Endric sounded a bit surprised.

"Later. We'll talk about it later," Gustav replied.

Endric could already tell that it was something Gustav didn't want the others to know about so he just nodded in response.

Zzzwhhiiiiiihh~

The aircraft took off at this point and disappeared into the northern skies.

-SSSSS

he passed. He kept a box in our apartment and told my mother to give it to me when I awakened my bloodline like he already suspected I would..." E.E began disclosing.

"After opening the box I found cash that would last us for a period of time and something else... A guide to bloodline channeling," E.E added.

He explained to Gustav that this was when he began learning how to channel his bloodline due to the guide his big brother left behind.

He trained his ability by himself till he surpassed the first Bloodline rank and the opportunity for him to join the MBO arrived when registration instructors came to the city to scout for potential Mixedbloods.

He explained to Gustav that this was when he began learning how to channel his bloodline due to the guide his big brother left behind.

He trained his ability by himself till he surpassed the first Bloodline rank and the opportunity for him to join the MBO arrived when registration instructors came to the city to scout for potential Mixedbloods.

He explained to Gustav that this was when he began learning how to channel his bloodline due to the guide his big brother left behind.

He trained his ability by himself till he surpassed the first Bloodline rank and the opportunity for him to join the MBO arrived when registration instructors came to the city to scout for potential Mixedbloods.

Chapter 1136 Miss Aimee Arrival

The figure stood right in front of her after appearing.

"You know what to do,"

Miss Aimee's avatar nodded and blasted off into the sky in the next instant.

Within a bright conference like room, a projection of seven figures could be seen surrounding a massive floating table.

A man in silver colored MBO uniform stood behind on the left side of the table. He looked like a middle aged man but had a horn on one part of his head.

A discussion seemed to have ensued between him and the projection of these seven figures.

"It is yet to be unveiled," Grand commander Shion stated.

-"Is the MBO even doing their job?"

One of the projected figures voiced out.

"World Leader Five, this isn't the job of the MBO but the job of all authoritative figures on earth as well. We are unaware if it is a real threat yet," Grand commander Shion responded.

- "The energy waves caused a cataclysm on Jupiter and caused Saturn to get become solidified while also moving them out of their original orbital positions... and you say that isn't a threat?"

"And the MBO took measures to put them back in their original position. We are playing our part in trying to figure out what that thing was," Commander Shion replied.

- "Not to mention how it caused an earthquake all across the planet despite the barrier," Another of the projected figures voiced.

"It disappeared without a trace. Satellites are unable to detect its presence and some of our technological scanners are unable to sense its energy all across the galaxy..." Commander Shion explained.

- "The civilians are worried. We're gonna have to come up with a story for them soon since we still don't know what we're dealing with here," please visit .

"I suggest going with something simple to avoid planet wide unrest," Commander Shion suggested.

- "What is the MBO going to do about this next? Don't tell me you have nothing planned just because the Satellites are unable to detect anything?" World Leader One finally spoke.

"We have sent a team to the appearance point in space to collect data. Once we have information on what we're dealing with, I shall inform the world leaders," Commander Shion stated.

- "Whatever that thing is, we want it neutralised immediately if it is discovered in the process," Another one of the world leaders voiced out.

"Understood," Grand Commander Shion nodded.

- "We shall await the good news,"

After saying this, the projections began to fade. The figures disappeared completely after a couple of moments.

?

The whole place turned silent for a bit as Commander Shion seemed to be lost in his thoughts.

"Commander Shion," A feminine voice pulled him out of his reverie.

"Huh?" He quickly turned around with a startled expression as he hadn't expected anyone to get this close to him without his awareness.

"Aimee?" He voiced with a tone of surprise as he stared at the feminine figure in white outfit before him.

She gave off a celestial aura as she stepped forward.

Grand commander Shion felt it made sense now since no ordinary person would be able to get this close to him without his knowledge.

"What are you doing here?" He questioned.

"You know why I'm here," Miss Aimee replied.

"The giant eye?" Grand commander Shion felt this could be the only reason she would just pop by his place without prior notice.

"It appeared right beside my planet..." Miss Aimee voiced in response.

"...That means you were right next to it?" Commander Shion felt this would help bring in more information since Miss Aimee was closer.

"It was but it disappeared too quickly... I was unable to engage it in any form," Miss Aimee replied.

"The whole planet was plunged into unrest... Do you know what it is or its purpose for appearing?" Commander Shion questioned.

"No," She replied.

"Hmm, I sent a team to the location where it appeared. Maybe they will be able to discover something," Grand commander Shion stated.

"That is a waste of time. They won't discover anything," Miss Aimee voiced out.

"But..."

"I've tried, there is nothing. Not a single trace was left. It doesn't matter what technology they use, they won't be able to uncover anything," Miss Aimee bluntly shut down any hopes Great commander Shion had initially.

Great commander Shion let out a heavy sigh as he stepped back and sat on the table with a contemplative look.

"What do we do?" He questioned.

"That thing... it appeared like it had always been there and disappeared like it never existed. It gives off a presence unlike nothing I have ever felt before," Miss Aimee disclosed.

"What? It didn't travel across space to that point? It just suddenly appeared?" Great commander Shion questioned with a look of disbelief.

"Yes. I didn't sense spatial energy either. Also, it is at least eight times the size of Earth's sun. Spatial travel for such a massive entity is practically impossible," Miss Aimee stated her analysis.

"You said it gave off a presence like nothing you have ever felt... how exactly did it feel?" Great Commander Shion inquired.

"Powerful... unfathomable... choking... overbearingly powerful..."

Grand commander Shion's face went from intrigued to disbelief and then shock in a couple of moments.

He understood how much powerful miss Aimee had become and realised that for her to be giving this sort of description, meant none of them on earth would be able to withstand being in the presence of that massive eye.

"But it's just a eye..." Great commander Shion couldn't help but mutter.

"That's why it cannot be just an eye... we have to find out what it is and get rid of it," Miss Aimee pointed out.

"Get rid of it? We don't know if it is an enemy yet," Great commander Shion responded.

"I want to uncover all the necessary details about it but incurring the wrath of an entity that puts fear in you of all people's heart is not something that I think would be in the best interests of earth," Great commander Shion stated.

"Don't be a coward. That thing is nothing good I can guarantee that. Just because earth was unscathed this time doesn't mean the same scenario will play out next time," Miss Aimee voiced with a tone of coldness as her eyes squinted.

"We still don't know what we're dealing with," Commander Shion responded.

"I will kill that thing before it can cause harm to everything I hold dear and you will help me with the support of Earth," Miss Aimee stated with an authoritative tone.

An aircraft could be seen slowly descending from the sky towards the top of a massive mountain with the statue of a bird above.

The bird was looking like a Eagle but with very long talons which was bigger than a full grown adult.

The bird itself was a structure of its own and guards could be seen all across the vicinity.

Upon touching down, a group of twenty filed out from the aircraft one after the other.

Two MBO officers who were already awaiting their descent, began to slowly lead them down the mountain path on the east side.

"If we were headed for the bottom of the mountain, why didn't we just get off at the bottom?" Ria wondered out loud as they slowly made their way down.

"Because the security measures put in place will destroy the aircraft.

--SS

dwellers who seemed to be living very frivolously.

"Where are the ones you said were suspicious?" Gustav questioned as he tried to hide the expression of disgust he felt deep down.

"Your six o'clock... the one with the brown clothing and your two o'clock, the one with a wrapper like cloth," E.E. whispered.

"Hmm," Even without turning around to stare in their direction, Gustav could make out their entire appearance using his perception.

"Now that you mention it... they do seem kind of suspicious," Gustav stated.

"Did you notice it?" E.E questioned.

"The mud smeared on part of their body... it doesn't seem particularly old. It's barely noticeable but if they had been on the slums for a very long time, it would look a bit different," Gustav was finally taking note.

"I didn't notice that but what I did notice was, they act like they frequent this place a lot but if they did I would have seen them before... I have never seen them. This used to be the den of my brother's gang and it became like this after he passed. I know every single person that frequents this place and since they're adults, I would have seen them before as well but I haven't.

Secondly, the one sitting two o'clock, was holding the cards wrongly... The one six o'clock was observing the environment while trying to act like he's asleep," E.E listed out.

"I did notice he wasn't asleep but I didn't find him suspicious... you're right these two definitely need to be observed," Gustav whispered back.

Chapter 1137 Entering The Fifth Level

"There's a beam in the middle?" Angry voiced with an expression of confusion.

"That's not a beam... that is still a part of the oasis," Gustav replied.

"Huh? How..." Angy was about to ask again when the MBO officers ahead explained.

"The oasis have different level of effectiveness which is also represented by the floating pieces of rocks around it," The officer by the left voiced out.

"The further up you go, the more the effectiveness of the oasis. However, it is advisable not to go beyond the fourth level for Mixedbloods below the Delta Rank," The other officer explained.

"Why not?" Falco questioned.

"Mixedbloods lower than the Delta rank will feel too much pressure bearing on their bloodline channels which might cause the channels to burst, causing the mixedblood to lose their power and return to the Zulu rank," The officer responded.

"Ths effectiveness is quadrupled at that height but so is the pressure," The other officer added.

Everyone Besides Gustav had looks of astonishment after hearing that.

They stared at the pillar of water extending from the stream below straight up. The pillar of water extending up turned into a different color the higher it extended.

"Seven levels and we can't go beyond the fourth," Aildris mumbled.

At the fifth level the pillar of water was starting to look reddish but was still transparent. However, from the sixth level it was pure red with no transparency. The seventh level above, glowed a bright and crimson color. It looked similar to blood.

The first level was the stream itself where everyone could soak in without issues.

"We'll leave now so you all won't be disturbed,"

"Be careful,"

The two officers voiced out after arriving at the bottom of the mountain.

Everyone voiced out their appreciation and bid farewell to them before moving further ahead.

"I can already feel my bloodline energy stirring up," Teemee said with a tone of fascination.

"Same here... the air itself makes my bloodline channel faster," Abestos voiced out.

"With this, I should at least reach the second or third step of Kilo," Phinx said with a slightly delighted expression.

"I will reach the third step and defeat Gustav! The captain position will be mine!" Yonda stated.

"Not a chance," Everyone voiced at the same time.

"Tch," Yonda expression turned sour.

"Give it up man, just focus on getting stronger," Fildhor said while patting Yonda on the back.

Vera moved forward and began removing her clothes.

"Eh? Eh? Eh?"

"Ah not here Vera!"

Ria and Falco faces burned up as they voiced out.

"Hmm?" Vera paused for a bit before completely unbuttoning her MBO uniform.

Some of the guys had covered their faces with their hands.

"I have a swim suit," Vera voiced out.

"Ohhh," Falco hand dropped after hearing this.

Vera had a greenish swim suit underneath which complemented her hair color and slightly lifeless eyes.

The other girls giggled upon seeing the reaction of the boys and took off their clothes as well before jumping into the stream.

"A marvellous sight to behold indeed," E.E voiced with a smile.

Pah!

He felt a push from behind and before he knew what was happening, his body had already blasted forward.

"You MF..."

Tusssshhhhh!

A loud splashing sound rang out as he landed in the stream right beside Elevora.

E.E quickly pushed his head out of the water before he could drown. Elevora who was right beside him with a yellow swimsuit began chuckling upon seeing his expression.

"You can laugh?" E.E voiced with an expression of disbelief.

Elevora turned to the side quickly while E.E added, "Looks good on you... you should definitely smile more,"

Elevora had a slight blush on her cheek as she slowly descended into the water.

"As for my revenge..." E.E snapped his fingers.

Zzhiih~

A vortex appeared right behind the culprit who happened to be Falco.

"Huh?" It was too late for Falco to react as he turned around in the process of the Vortex swallowing him up.

Zing~

He reappeared from a vortex above the stream and fell straight into the oasis.

The group was jolly as they moved into the stream one after the other while laughing and chatting.

Gustav only had a black shirt on at this time as he stared at the stream.

Everyone was already in except for him.

He slowly raised his head. If one followed his sight, they'd see that he was staring at the ascending pillar of water in the middle of the stream.

It seemed to be swirling with a compelling torrent of energy.

"Yo Gus! Get in!"

A yell was heard from within the stream.

"See you guys after one week," Gustav voiced out in response before leaping.

Fwwhooommm~

Everyone eyes widened as Gustav's body ascended above the fourth level instantly.

Psshshhhh~

A mixture of splashing and sizzling sound rang out as Gustav's entered the fifth level which had a transparent red coloring.

"Wasn't the fifth level off limits?"

"What the hell is he doing?"

Some of them instantly went bonkers upon seeing Gustav enter the fifth level.

"We need to inform the guides and get him out of there!" Matilda yelled while jumping out of the oasis first level.

'Guys I'm fine. Focus on increasing your strength.' Everyone heard the soothing voice of Gustav in their minds.

"Did you guys hear that too...?" Rosalin voiced out.

"We did," Falco confirmed.

"Oh good, i thought I was hearing things," Abestos sighed in relief.

"Well technically, you were,"

The group was a bit startled at first but after hearing Gustav's voice in their mind, they relaxed.

'It is Gustav after all,' E.E, Aildris, Falco and the others had this thought in mind.

Meanwhile, the others were still reeling in shock and wondering if the officers earlier gave them wrong information.

'How is he still fine, despite staying in a level that is dangerous for Mixedbloods below the Delta rank?'

Some of them wondered if Gustav had already achieved the Delta rank. However, they knew this wasn't the case since they only sensed the rank of a first step Kilo from him earlier.

"I am heading higher... I will reach the fifth level too," Yonda decided as he moved towards the middle where the pillar of water could be seen.

Everyone had no idea that the last time Gustav visited this place, he had stopped at level four.

He rose through the levels one after the other, getting used to the feeling of meditating and channeling his bloodline within each one of them.

Stopping at the fourth level the last time meant, bloodline channeling would be slower for him than the last time which was why he immediately headed for the fifth level.

The first level of the oasis felt like being wrapped by comfort. Every cell in a mixedblood body would feel like it was getting exclusive treatment.

Channeling bloodline there was four times faster than normal.

The second level was where a mixedblood would start to feel a little strain but it was barely noticeable. Bloodline Channeling speed at this level was eight times faster than normal.

From the third level, it became very noticeable but the pressure felt within was something any Falcon to Echo rank could handle. Channeling speed was sixteen times faster at this point.

At the fourth level it became a matter of how powerful one's pain tolerance was. Staying within this level was accompanied by the feeling of one's insides getting crushed.

Not only was bloodline channeling thirty two times faster but, it also automatically strengthened the durability of a mixedblood.

Channeling here for a week was no different from channeling in the outside world for a year. This was how Gustav easily got to the Kilo rank.

At the fifth level which Gustav was just trying out for the first time, he could feel a pressure on his internal organs.

His veins threatened to explode as well and overall an invisible weight bore upon his mental state. However, one of the good parts about being in the fifth level was, channeling speed was hundred times faster.

This wasn't the only good part... The oasis also channeled a mixedblood bloodline automatically and there was a high chance of bloodline grade increment.

---SS

Gustav proceeded to squat.

He placed a hand on his left eye and placed the other on the ground before activating an ability.

[God Eyes Has Been Activated]

"All seeing vision of the night..." Gustav muttered as his eyes changed from crimson and green glow into sky blue.

His exposed right eye had entirely turned completely blue.

Zzhhhiiinnn~

Gustav's body cranked up like he was having a seizure in the next instant as...

----SSS

"For now, we observe," Gustav whispered.

"I take dibs on the one 6 'o clock," E.E whispered back before they both seperated and moved to different parts of this demolished building.

Despite the fact that this building was almost completely run down, it still had some higher floors and missing stairways.

The slum touts usually made their way to the upper incomplete floors regardless. Some would climb.

This made the upper floors in use as well.

Gustav could already tell that there were over two hundred slum dwellers in this decimated building alone which was most likely very large when it was a complete building.

Now that E.E and Gustav had focused on one of each suspects, they would have to secretly follow these two wherever they went.

For the next three to four hours, both suspects didn't engage in any suspicious acts besides the games that were ongoing in this part of the slums.

They mingled with the others, smoking, frolicking and drinking. Gustav and E.E also pretended to join in with the games they played here.

Gustav secretly activated God Eyes to scan both suspects and confirmed they weren't Mixedbloods.

The one in a wrapper like cloth had a buzz cut and slight pot belly but that was about it.

While the other one with a tattered brown clothing, was bald and had a tattoo on his inner thigh.

Chapter 1138 Heading Higher

It was said that this particular one could make the mixedblood increased in strength by a couple of steps.

A mixedblood who managed to reach this point in the oasis would become way stronger than whatever Rank they achieved when leaving this place.

'Are you storing up more energy now?' Gustav asked internal as he withstood the pressure of the fifth level.

("This time I should be able to absorb more and put it into a backup storage just in case,") The system replied internally.

'Alright...'

("This time, what happened the other day will not repeat itself,") The system added.

'Hmm? You going bonkers the other day?'

("Yes... There will be enough energy to protect against any forceful override,")

'Just as i thought... that thing was truly responsible then,'

("...")

'Did it appear because of me?'

("You already know I won't answer that but it looks like you haven't regained a single power of your Outworldly identity that you can control yet so you cannot truly understand anything,")

'Hmm... So until I'm able to use Cohilia then...' Gustav slightly raised his left palm and peered into it.

The multicolored slanted rhombus glow deep within was still trapped in a barrier.

'I'll just focus on getting even more powerful...' Gustav's face turned serious as he closed his eyes back.

Nothing could be seen in this world of red so there was no point to leaving his eyes opened unless he activated God Eyes. The pressure of the fifth level was something he could bear.

He could feel all of his bloodline getting nourished as he floated within the fifth level.

A torrent of energy slowly began circulating around him, causing the glowing red oasis to start spinning as well.

Originally it would take a Kilo ranked around five to ten years before they could get to the next rank.

However, for people like Endric who had a high bloodline grade, it would take them around two to three years.

Being in the fifth level meant, one week of bloodline channeling would equal two years in the normal state. please visit freewebnovel.com.

'When you are done tell me... I will challenge the higher levels,' Gustav said to the system internally.

("Sure...")

[Daily Task Completed (2/3) : Enter the fifth level of the oasis a??]

[Rewards]

<Accumulation Skill Level Up>

<+8,000,000 EXP>

<+30 Attributes Point>

Gustav's eyes remained closed while the notifications kept ringing in his head.

He ignored the sounds and focused, letting the energy from the Oasis seep into his body.

-

'You don't wanna go higher?' Husaruis questioned within Endric's mind.

'Not yet... did you forget the phenomenon of ranking up to Delta?' Endric reminded.

'Why is that a problem?' Husarius inquired.

'I don't want everyone to be aware of my strength level. Too much questions will be asked since a lot of things don't add up. I should be at the peak of Echo instead I am at the peak of Kilo...' Endric explained.

'If it is the phenomenon that you are worried about, i can suppress it,' Husarius stated.

'Huh? How?'

'I will trap it in your core for the meantime and which means you would have achieved the Delta rank but not completely... when you finally have the chance to be alone, I will unleash it and you will become a full fledged Delta rank,' Husarius explained.

Endric; e?α"

'This is a once in a lifetime opportunity, you can't waste it all because you're afraid of becoming more powerful,' Husarius added.

'Well alright then...' Endric opened his eyes and looked around.

Almost everyone was still in the second level of the oasis while some had already moved to the third level.

Endric could spot Vera and a few others here with their eyes closed. They just floated within the body of water.

Waving his arms down multiple times, Endric arrived at the third level where he could spot, E.E, Angy, Aildris, Abestos, Falco, Ria, Phinx, Fildhor, Matilda and Glade here.

They had formed a kind of circle as they floated within the fourth level with their eyes closed.

Some of them had expressions of pain on their faces which depicted they were still adjusting to the pain of the third level.

'Man, if the third level hurts this much, then how painful would the fourth be?' E.E had this thought in mind as he bore the pain.

He wasn't the only one having this thought. Some of them hadn't expected it to hurt this way but at the same time they could feel the energy from the oasis flowing into their bloodline channels.

'No pain no gain i guess... but I'm staying here for now. No way I'm gon try to kill myself like these maniacs,' E.E decided.

Endric could feel the improvement just from staying within the third level for a couple of hours. However, he knew within himself that this wouldn't be enough to break through to the delta rank.

The peak stage of the Kilo rank was the most difficult out of all four steps. Trying to break through could take years and Endric could tell that this level of the oasis wasn't fast enough to get him to breakthrough in a week.

'Time to go further up,' Endric began swimming higher.

The further he swam the more the pressure. It started making him feel like he was lifting over a thousand ton while swimming.

He could see the fourth level right above him but getting in was more difficult than he had expected.

'Telekinesis Tube...' Endric said internally, causing energy to spread forth from his being.

Zzhiinnnn~

An intense vibration could be felt within the oasis as space shifted.

A hollow passage that led up was formed right around Endric, leading straight up into the next level.

The others who had felt the intensity, opened their eyes and were shocked to see Endric floating straight up into level four unhindered.

Upon closer look, they could see that there was no water within the area he ascended from. The oasis water had been pushed aside for a bit.

In a few moments everything returned to normal after Endric had gotten into the fourth level.

'Did he just...?'

'That kid is a monster like his brother,'

They had these thoughts in mind as they stared up while shaking their heads.

The only other two that had arrived at the fourth level were Elevora and Yonda. They hadn't expected someone else to go up this quickly.

-

In a flash, three days had gone by....

"Hnnnnghhh!"

Pllusshhhh!

A massive water pressure pushed a short guy in tank top and shorts back downwards.

He stared up with an unyielding expression where a transparent red floating body of water could be seen.

'I will get to the fifth level no matter what!' He swore internally while charging upwards again.

Fwwhoohhh~

Waving his arms downwards, his body ascended across the oasis with speed.

Thiiiihhh!

Only for him to be met with another hindering force. The waters right before the fifth level was so dense that no matter how much he tried, he couldn't break through it.

Elevora, Sheila, Vin, Abestos and Endric who were all floating in the fourth level further below, looked upwards for a bit before resuming their meditation.

They paid no heed to Yonda who had been trying to get into the fifth level for the past day.

Abestos shook his head with a slight expression of pity, 'If he spent more time channeling his bloodline rather than trying to get into the fifth level, he would have progressed farther by now,'

The others seemed contented with this level of speed and remained focus on channeling their bloodline, knowing they would get good results from it regardless.

'How did that muppet do it? He got in so easily,' Yonda thought as he recalled just how easy Gustav leapt into the fifth level.

He had already tried the same thing from outside the oasis but the pillar of water extending upwards was extremely hard at level five.

The instant he made contact with the outside walls of water, he got blasted backwards with force.

-----SS

The ground opened up in the next instant shooting out a blinding light and they both disappeared.

After disappearing, E.E shifted out of his hiding place and was about to approach the exact spot the two culprits were positioned initially when...

Swwwwoosshh~

An invisible figure sped across and disappeared into the distance along with him.

A blast of wind scattered across the vicinity but the sources were unseen.

-

"Why did you stop me from heading there?" E.E questioned after they had gotten quite a distance from the initial location.

"There could be hidden cams... we'd be uncovering ourselves if we actively approached that area after what had happened despite using a different identity," Gustav voiced out.

"Hmm, did you check?" E.E inquired.

"We've passed that location before during the day while we were scouring the slums... and no I didn't spot anything out of place. I made sure to observe using my abilities yet I didn't uncover anything..." Gustav purposely said every word firmly so E.E could understand.

Chapter 1139 Connecting To Bloodline Predecessors

Thiiizzzhhh~

A strange phenomenon suddenly occurred where both their figures displayed a bright glow upon contact.

'What the hell was that?' E.E wondered internally.

He and Elevora stared at each other with looks of confusion but they couldn't speak within the oasis.

E.E raised his right palm and Elevora did the same as they turned to face each other.

Stretching their hands forward, both of them made contact again.

Thiiizzzhhhh~

The same phenomenon occurred once more as the veins in their body expanded and appeared on their bodies. Their visible veins were glowing a red color which slowly turned to blue as it spread across their bodies.

"Ughh!"

Both of them groaned for a before separating once more.

Everyone in the vicinity were staring at them at this point, wondering what just happened. They seemed to be waiting for some type of explanation.

E.E and Elevora stared at each other for a bit before smiling. E.E then gestured at everyone for them to follow him out of the oasis.

Fewhwiiii~

While speech was currently impossible, they understood the gestures. Since everyone was curious, they followed.

The others at the lower levels wanted to understand why everyone was leaving so they followed as well.

Only Endric and Gustav remained in the Oasis at this point. They couldn't get to Gustav so it was understandable why he wouldn't be a part of this but no one understood why Endric remained.

After everyone had left, Endric looked up at the area where the water had turn a bit reddish.

'I have to get in there...' He said Internally before swimming upwards with force.

Dwwhiiii~

His speed was immense but he still met with resistance upon reaching a certain point, just like Yonda.

However, Endric pushed forward with his telekinetic energy, battling against the immense force of the oasis.

After a couple of seconds, he broke through the resistance and finally found himself in the fifth level.

-

Outside the oasis everyone had gathered except for Gustav and Endric.

"Make this quick I need to get back to entering the fifth level," Yonda voiced out upon getting out of the oasis.

- "Give it a rest,"

- "You're never getting there,"

- "Keep wasting your time when we only have four days left," please visit freewebnovel.com.

Sheila and a few others laughed at Yonda's statement.

"You little shits! I'll show you who's boss!" He yelled in response.

Sheila kept laughing before Elevora spoke.

"We connected to something when we touched in the midst of my bloodline channeling earlier," She voiced out.

"We both saw a line up of people and for me it felt like I was in the presence of kinship..." E.E added.

"What does this mean?" Ria questioned.

"Didn't you guys do any research about the Oasis before arriving here?" E.E voiced in response.

"The connection to the bloodline predecessors?" Falco chimed with a look of surprise.

"That seems like the best possible explanation," Elevora answered.

"We didn't get enough time to bask in it properly but I felt like I was basked in a world of dimensional energy," E.E added.

Everyone knew E.E's vortex creation bloodline was related with spatial manipulation so his explanation made sense.

Elevora chose not to reveal hers but it she definitely felt she was in the presence of figures who carried the same bloodline energy as hers.

"Since it only worked through contact, does that mean we have to touch each other?" Angry questioned.

"You guys have been in the fourth level since the first day, did anything similar happen?" E.E asked.

They shook their heads in response which gave them the answer they were looking for.

"Everyone, let's pair up," Aildris voiced out.

"Where is my hubby? Hubby! I only wanna pair up with my hubby!" Sheila jumped around like a kid while ignoring Ria who had just tried to pair up with her.

"Hold on guys," Falco suddenly voiced with a contemplative expression.

"From both their explanations, it wasn't vivid enough. They sensed it but it didn't seem like it was very clear..." Falco added.

"Yes but what are you getting at?" E. E questioned.

"If contact with another Mixedblood is required during bloodline channeling, then, how much of an effect would it create when there is contact between more mixedbloods," Falco replied.

Everyone's faces sharpened up with an expression of understanding as they heard this. They entertained the possibility of this having a better effect.

"Then, does everyone just need to touch one person?" Ria wondered out loud.

Everyone turned to stare at him while rolling their eyes. Teemee had the urge to facepalm.

"It requires everyone to hold hands... why am I explaining this?" Falco hunched his back with a look of tiredness.

"Let's try it," Aildris stated.

"First level or fourth level?" E.E questioned.

"There's no guarantee it would work on the first level but let's try," Falco suggested.

Everyone moved towards the stream at this point and lowered their bodies to the position where only their heads were left above the surface.

They closed their eyes and locked hands together after forming a circle before proceeding to channel their bloodlines.

The group channeled their bloodlines together, while waiting for a similar phenomenon like what happened with E.E and Elevora to repeat itself.

"Uhh guys... I don't feel anything," After some time, Sheila voiced out.

Everyone began opening their eyes one after the other.

- "I don't feel any different too,"

- "Looks like it didn't work,"

They voiced out one after the other before leaving the oasis.

"We have to get back to Level four," Falco stated.

Everyone already figured out at this point that this was the only way it would work.

The others who had settled on level three initially had dark looks on their faces as they heard this. They could already predict how much discomfort they would have to endure.

However, since no one in the group was below the peak Echo level, they could endure the pressure of the fourth level.

The group proceeded to move towards the fourth level next.

-

("Done,")

'Took you three days... hmm looks like I won't be able to make it to the last level before time runs out then,' Gustav responded.

("The chances of you exploding to smithereens at the last level is 99% so don't be greedy and make do with what you can handle,") The system replied.

'Is that your way of telling me, you delayed for this long on purpose?' Gustav questioned internally.

("Maybe... what are you gonna do about it virgin?")

'Fuck you,'

("You can't fuck me. I don't have a physical body you pervert haha,")

'No I... fuc... you bitch that's not what I meant,' Veins appeared on Gustav's forehead as his eyebrows twitched repeatedly.

("Dumb little pervert who knew you had such fetishes haha,") The system kept laughing at him.

Gustav; e??'

'I'm heading up...'

Thwwwiishshh~

Waves of waters blasted across the vicinity as Gustav figure sped upwards.

He could sight the deep red waters hundreds of feet of feet above which prove he was still in the fifth level.

("The results are pretty satisfactory... you already reached the third step of Kilo rank,")

'Still unrefined...'

("You reached the third step in three days... if you can endure the sixth level you might reach delta rank before the next four days are up,")

'If? So you don't 100% think I can endure it,'

("I am a computerised being despite my sentience so I statistically reveal every data after proper analysis... You have a 30% chance of enduring... 70% chance your channels burst open and you return to Zulu rank,")

'I know,"

("Yet your dumb ass still tries to head straight to mishap anyways... What is the use of your intelligence?")

'Look system... I have a higher intellect than most but I am not a computerised being like you. Despite being aware of the low odds, every cell in my body wants to compete with the pressure.

Your computerised sentience would make you decide to forfeit trying anything with low odds but mine, makes me eager to push the boundaries...'

Just as Gustav finished saying this, he pushed his palm upwards with force.

Twwhuuusshhhh!

Streams of force tore a space between the oasis and Gustav shot upwards with even more powerful force.

In a few seconds, he had successfully broken through the resistance that prevented access to the sixth level for lower ranked Mixedbloods.

"Hgghhhhhh!" The instant Gustav got into the sixth level he groaned loudly.

Energy from the sixth level of the oasis from flowing into his bloodline channels from every angle and he felt like he was burning on the inside.

"Ghaahhhh!" The oasis trembled and waves of water streamed out as Gustav yelled with bloodshot eyes.

--

'What was that?' Everyone wondered internally as they locked hands at the fourth level.

However, they didn't pay it too much attention to it since they didn't feel the water vibrations much due to being a bit distant from the sixth level.

The group gave each other looks of affirmation before closing their eyes.

They began to channel their bloodlines after they had formed a circle and were connected by holding each other hands.

Zzhiiinnnnnn~

Chapter 1140 Teemee And Glade Discover A Shocking Information

Zzhiiinnnnnn~

A bright glow was suddenly emitted from all eighteen of them. Their veins had expanded and were now visible on their bodies. The veins glow which was initially red, turned to the blue like the color of the sky.

Everyone of them instantly felt their consciousness traveling to another plane as the vicinity gave off a tranquil and unfathomable energy.

#####

"Did you think you were the first?"

A masculine voice greeted Angy the instant she opened her eyes to find herself floating in the middle of what looked like a galaxy.

"What?" She turned around to see a human like figure right in front of her.

"You thought you were the first, didn't you?"

She could hear a voice from the figure but this figure didn't have a mouth or any body parts for that matter.

Instead, this figure body was made of dark matter which embodied constellations, galaxies and planets.

"First what?" Angy questioned with a slightly suspicious look.

"The first with a universal enlightenment bloodline," The figure replied.

"Universal what now?" Angy had a look of confusion.

"That is the name of your bloodline and I am your predecessor... the first user and I was supposed to be the last but looks like the universe had other plans," The figure pointed out.

"What do you mean?" Angy questioned.

"You have merely awakened the true abilities of your bloodline... you have only scratched the surface with speed and discharge of kinetic energy," The figure stated.

"There is more?" Angy asked.

"Way more than your fragile mind could possible comprehend,"

####

E.E opened his eyes and saw that he was standing in a sky like realm.

Massive figures could be seen lined up behind him. His figure was like a dot as he floated in front of the first one massive forehead.

"What is this?" E.E voiced as he slowly turned around to see the line up of thousands upon thousands of these massive figures in the sky.

Initially when he connected to them by touching Elevora, he only felt their presence but now everything was clear. It looked like he had traveled to another realm.

"It has been a couple of centuries since another earthling awoken this bloodline," The first one spoke.

"I'm still confused, I can sense you all give off dimensional energy but where is this? Are you guys my predecessors?" E.E questioned as he couldn't understand why they were all so massive.

"Youngster, do you wish to unlock the secrets of your bloodline?" The first massive figure questioned.

"...Do you think I would say no to that?"

#####

Elevora opened her eyes and found herself standing on a dark path with dark mountains all across the vicinity.

The sky was completely purple and a line up of one eye figures standing on the mountains could be seen.

Elevora subconsciously reached for her forehead which wasn't wrapped with an headtie this time.

The eye on her forehead was completely revealed and it seemed to be glowing menacingly in the presence of these unknown figures.

"YOU HAVE THE CAPACITY TO AWAKEN THE SEEKING EYE TO ITS FULL POTENTIAL,"

The first figure atop the mountain voiced out.

#####

Ria opened his eyes and found himself atop a large rock which was thousands of feet above the ground.

Turning around, he could spot a line up of figures that led down the path of the rock straight to the bottom.

There were up to a thousand of them.

Pah!

"Ouch! What was that for?" Ria yelled out after receiving a slap from behind which caused him to turn around.

"You are the most idiotic descendant for not realising the full potential of your bloodline," The figure voiced out.

"Hmph... Even the dead mocks me now," Ria face turned serious as he proceeded to sit on the ground of the rock top.

- "Have some respect,"

- "Worthless fool,"

- "We were better than you when we were alive,"

- "This kid..."

The other predecessors behind yelled out upon hearing Ria's statement.

"I know i know I'm a disappointed, I'm the weakest in the group, everyone is stronger while I'm just... I'm just..." Ria sighed while picking up a little rock and squeezing it.

"Hey fool, listen to me," The figure at the front voiced out while pointing at Ria.

"Your bloodline is way more powerful than you think. You are only using a fraction of it," The last predecessor added.

"How much stronger?" Ria seemed a bit more interested as he looked up.

"You only manipulate the earth but what you don't know is, you can manipulate any natural resource to your desired intent and even embody it... become it... or let it become you..."

Ria face showed a contemplative expression as he heard this.

"Natural resource? Doesn't that mean I can manipulate any physical item?" Ria questioned.

"Looks like you're starting to understand... Your bloodline is an embodiment of nature. The earth itself is the biggest part of nature which is why it came easy for you to manipulate..." The last predecessor voiced once more.

Ria stood to his feet at this point as he began to show a look of interest.

"Kid, do you wanna unlock more of your bloodline potential?" He questioned.

"Yes, I want to become stronger!" Ria yelled with a fired up look.

Gustav sucked in air as he clasped his palms together while his veins wriggled intensely like they were about to burst out of his skin.

'This is way more difficult than i anticipated,' He said Internally.

("You were warned,") The system voiced in his mind.

'Have... you... begun absorbing... more backup power?' Gustav questioned.

("Yes but it will take about a day to complete or it would become unstable if you left at the moment,")
The system responded.

'Who said... anything... about leaving...' Even speaking in his mind was getting difficult as Gustav's felt like his insides were both getting burnt and crushed at the same time.

("Let's see how long you will last in this condition,") The system added.

The deep reddish waters bubbled with intensity as Gustav's frame twitched repeatedly within. The energy spreading forth from this location was so suffocating that a normal Kilo ranked mixedblood would have exploded to pieces after spending just a second here.

Time continued to pass as Gustav endured, unbothered about what could be going on in other levels of the oasis since he was fighting his own demons here.

#####

Aldris opened his eyes and found himself in a dark realm.

He stared at his arm and the rest of his body before realising he was black and white.

Gazing forward, he could see a massive wheel up ahead. This massive wheel had lines of different colors extending from the middle to the a part of the circumference of the wheel.

These lines of colors were millions in number and everyone of them glowed colourfully, giving that particular part of the realm a beautiful scenery.

However, his position remained dark and gloomy.

Zing! Zing~ Zing~ Zing~

Figures began to appear on the wheel one after the other and in a few seconds, up to twenty five of them had appeared.

"Come child," One of the figures voiced.

Aildris began to float towards them without control of his actions.

As he closed in on the wheel with millions of colors, his body began to change from black and white to a stroke of different colors.

Looking closely, these were the same number of colors that would appear in Aildris eyes whenever he opened them.

'Looks like i still have a lot more to unlock...' Aildris said internally.

#####

Teemee opened his eyes and found himself in a dimension of red.

The first thing that caught his attention wasn't the figures in red glowing armor lined up but something else...

"What are you doing here?" He voiced with a tone of confusion.

"I was about to ask you the same thing," A greenish scaled female figure replied him.

"Huh? We aren't even holding each other so I don't understand how this happened..." Temee voiced out once more.

"Maybe we should ask them," Glade responded while turning to look up ahead

"Descendants... you have both awakened our bloodlines in the same age," The first red armored figure ahead voiced out.

"What?" Both of them exclaimed at the same time.

"We have different abilities," Teemee stated.

"I create weapons and structures I can easily control out of my energy," Glade voiced out.

"And I can speed up the time of anything I lay my hands on or increase my speed using my energy..."
Teemee voiced out as well.

- "Do you two not realise how the red energy covers both your beings while activating your abilities,"

- "The speed is shared as well,"

- "You with the black hair, have you not created a weapon from your energy before?"

- "You with the tail, you have absorbed someone else's energy before, haven't you?"

Both of them were starting to realise that they truly had similarities with their bloodlines despite the differences.