

Bloodline 1141

Chapter 1141 Breaking Through To The Delta Rank

"Both of you have the same bloodline, however, the abilities you have unlocked are two different sides of a coin," The first figure stated.

"Does that mean we can both use each other's ability?" Teemee questioned.

"Yes and no," The first predecessor replied.

"Why yes and no?" Glade asked.

"As long as you are within close proximity of each other, the other will never be able to unlock the full potential of the bloodline," He explained.

"Why is this so?" Teemee asked.

"Because only one person was meant to possess the bloodline in a generation," The predecessor replied.

"That is unfair! We didn't ask to be born with the same bloodline," Teemee squeezed his fist with a look of disapproval.

"Life is unfair kid. You just have to deal with it," The predecessor voiced out.

"Tch!"

"While you two may not be able to unlock the complete abilities of the bloodline, you can each unlock separate ones and become far more powerful than you already are," The predecessor disclosed.

"Hmm... Are you saying this unfortunate revelation won't hinder us from becoming powerful enough to stand at the peak of earth?" Glade inquired.

'Peak of earth...?' Teemee turned to glance at her with a slight look of suspiciousness.

"You each just need to unlock half of the abilities contained in this bloodline to become very powerful entities," The predecessor replied.

"We shall reveal to you what you need to know about your bloodline..."

#####

"What the ten fingers are actually fingers from an ancient mixedbreed with destructive abilities?" Yonda questioned with a with a surprising look.

"Hnm, you must be wondering how you got my bloodline kid," The figure standing in front of him was a massive creature.

This creature looked like a fox but had silver colored furs with fourteen limbs. Behind the creature was a line up of multiple other creatures with similar looks.

By the sides were human looking beings.

"Are you saying... they... did the..." Yonda stuttered as he spoke.

"Yes exactly what you are thinking," The creature replied.

"cough cough Scumbags," Yonda voiced in response.

"Anyways, now you understand that it isn't ten fingers but fifty six. You have only unlocked ten fingers," The creature stated.

"I see..."

"There is more you have to know,"

'It is happening...' Endric voiced internally.

'This is truly marvelous... you have only spent a day in the fifth level,' Husarius responded with a fascinating tone.

'But four days have gone by since we arrived at the oasis already,' Endric added.

'Still, one day in the fifth level is truly miraculous,' Husarius stated.

Endric went on to focus as he could feel a gushing outpour of energy from all his bloodline channels within.

"Hnnngghh!" He groaned slightly as rings of telekinetic energy began to form around him.

Space also began to twist and turn within the oasis, causing the water to be seriously disturbed.

'Restrict it now!' Endric yelled internally as he felt his energy sour.

His forehead glowed as a green dot appeared on it.

Fwwhiiii~

A green crystal phased out of his forehead and floated directly above his forehead.

Tiiinnngggg!

It emitted a glow that encapsulated Endric's entire figure in the nex instant.

Slowly the distress in the vicinity began to reduce as the surroundings returned to tranquility.

Endric felt the energy that was about to gush out initially, get restricted by the force Husarius had created.

'Congratulations on achieving the beta rank, you are now amongst the hundred thousand,' Husarius said internally.

'Thanks, I guess,' Endric's face lowered as memories of atrocities plagued his mind.

'Don't think about it,' Husarius voice pulled him out of his reverie.

'Do you think I should tell him?' Endric questioned.

'Tell him you achieved the delta rank?' Husarius Inquired.

'No... should I tell him... I slaughtered... millions?' Endric voiced internally.

'You did it to change the path of fate... you did it to save him from future suffering... and you potentially did it to save the earth too,' Husarius listed.

'Stop making it look like i performed a noble act,' Endric face turned dark as he looked upwards.

'You did. Had you not done this, the future events would certainly be more troublesome,' Husarius added.

'I should keep this to myself. I don't want him to bear any more load. He has suffered enough... I just want him to be happy,' Endric replied.

'That is a good choice. You made a difficult but sacrificial call. You will have to carry this guilt for the rest of your days and you shall perform even more sacrificial actions in the future,' Husarius stated.

'This is what it means to be a time candidate,' Husarius added.

In a flash another day had gone by. During the last one day no one else had left the oasis besides Endric.

Endric sat on a grassy patch few feet away from the first level of the oasis. He seemed to be in a meditative state as the vicinity remained quiet.

After a while, he opened his eyes.

"Doesn't look like they will be done anytime soon," He muttered.

"Do you want to join them?" Husarius questioned.

"As much as I would like to, I can't disturb them," Endric replied.

On his way out of the oasis, he noticed the circle the group had formed with their hands connected to each other.

He realised that they must have figured something out while he and Gustav were in the other levels.

He was also interested in figuring out what they were up to and also joining in but with the way their figures were glowing along with how they were in a trance like state, Endric figured it wouldn't be wise to disrupt them.

"You mentioned something about being amongst hundred thousands of mixedbloods after I achieved the Delta rank... does that mean you can tell how many have achieved a certain rank?" Endric questioned.

"I can make a rough estimate yes," Husarius replied.

"Then, how many have achieved the Beta rank?" Endric asked.

"Ten thousand," Husarius answered.

"How many have achieved the Alpha rank?"

"About a hundred," Husarius answered once more.

"Out of billions of mixedbloods, only a hundred managed to achieve the Alpha rank... that is really something. I wonder how it feels to be at the pinnacle of power," Endric voiced out.

He wasn't so hinged on power like he used to since he was more driven by a higher purpose now but he still wanted to become one of the most powerful mixedbloods one day.

"Only one person has managed to achieve the Beacon rank," Endric muttered.

"Yet, he isn't the most powerful," Husarius stated.

"Huh? Then, who is?" Endric questioned.

"The..." Just as Husarius was about to respond a strange outburst of energy suddenly attracted their attention.

Thissihhhhsshhh~

"That energy... unbelievable... someone is breaking through to the Delta rank," Husaruis voiced out.

Endric's eyes widened as he looked up at the area where the sixth level was located.

"It is coming from the sixth level... don't tell me it's him..." Endric didn't even need to say this as he could only think of one person who was capable of this at the moment.

"It is the Outworldly," Husarius confirmed.

Endric's face was filled with even more astonishment as a torrent of energy that stirred up strong winds burst forth from the ascending oasis.

Gbbbbblllbbllll~

The grassy grounds began to quake as the energy caused a change in the weather.

"How is he on the sixth level?" Endric voiced out.

"The sixth level can only be endured by bet ranked mixedbloods... The Outworldly is truly a monster," Husarius added.

They could understand his current speed but they were still astonished by the how he managed to endure the pressure of the sixth level.

"Is the oasis is negating some of the effects of breaking through to the Delta rank?" Endric questioned as he expected worse.

"That is indeed the case... The surroundings would get destroyed if it doesn't," Husarius responded.

The last time Gustav broke through to the Kilo rank, he nearly evaporated an entire river so it was sure that something worse would occur this time but fortunately, the oasis was reducing the effect.

Usually, Mixedbloods at this level of strength would have a breakthrough containment where the energy discharge from their breakthroughs would be absorbed instead of causing environmental issues.

However, both times Gustav had broken through, he happened to be far from any location where he could use a breakthrough containment.

Within the oasis, the water was sizzling with intensity as Gustav's skin peeled off his body and his shorts got disintegrated.

Immense energy was flowing from within him uncontrollably as he felt his entire being undergoing a massive leap in strength.

'The Kilo rank is truly nothing compared to the Delta rank...' Gustav noted internally as he felt his bloodline channels fill up with energy.

He could feel the oasis reducing the excessive outburst of energy yet the surroundings were still getting affected.

Outside the dimensional bubble where the oasis was situated, the skies had darkened.

Boom! Boom! Boom! Boom!

Explosions rang out as a powerful pressure descended upon the mountains and sands that surrounded the environment.

Chapter 1142 The Five Premonitions

Boom! Boom! Boom! Boom!

Explosions rang out as a powerful pressure descended upon the mountains and sands that surrounded the environment.

Despite the oasis reducing the effect, the area outside the dimensional bubble where the oasis was hidden, had been thrown into chaos.

Some of the mountains were blasted into small chunks and massive holes had appeared in sands around the vicinity.

The MBO officers and other private guards in the vicinity activated a combined barrier from their bloodline energies as the energy from Gustav's breakthrough affected the area.

The occasional tremble could still be felt after the barrier was set up but fortunately, the surroundings had stopped getting destroyed.

"Isn't this too much?" One of the MBO officers said to their fellow officer.

"Who knows which one of those monstrous kids is leveling up now..." The officer replied.

"The effect still has a wide range even though the oasis limits such an occurrence," The other officer had a look of astonishment as he voiced out.

-

A couple of minutes later, the energy within Gustav began to calm. His initial hardened expression slowly returned to softness as his energy stabilised.

("You will have to contain your strength from now on...") The system voiced in his mind.

'I know,' Gustav replied while slowly opening his eyes.

Gustav slowly raised his fist while staring at it. He could somewhat guess what a casual swing of his fist could do now.

'I will only contain it on earth since I have to be careful about unnecessarily causing destruction but during IYSOP... I will be unbridled,' Gustav said internally.

The strength of the aliens they would be competing against were unknown but with all Gustav had figured out so far, there was bound to be really powerful opponents.

IYSOP seemed fair on the registration of participants based on age requirements but they knew very well that this was far from being the case.

For all they knew, the possibility of going up against aliens that could decimate earth high ranked moxedbloods was high.

("Your channels are have undergone too much strain and become quite damaged... you have to leave the oasis for it to get rejuvenated,") The system announced.

Fwwwiiii~

In response to that, Gustav sped sideways and found himself outside the oasis in nearly an instant.

He began to fall from the air after speedily phasing out the side of level six instead of swimming downwards.

Pllusshhh~

A loud splashing sound rang out as Gustav landed in the first level of the oasis.

His figure was releasing a cloud of steam as he slowly strided out of the oasis.

Endric who was standing a few feet away from the oasis met Gustav's gaze as he walked out of the oasis.

"Oh? You're out too?" Gustav voiced while arriving at the patch of grass.

"Yeah I needed to meditate outside," Endric replied.

"Hmm you're delta rank too... what a coincidence..." Gustav chuckled before sitting on the grassy ground.

'Husarius! I thought you said it is disguised?' Endric screamed internally.

'He is the Outworldly... I don't think we can hide such from his eyes,' Husarius replied with a defeated tone.

"You're quite fast now... You also have facial hair... Don't worry I won't ask," Gustav noted these but could tell Endric wanted to keep some things to himself so he refrained from being too curious.

"Thank you," Endric sighed in relief because he wasn't sure he would be able to keep the truth from Gustav if he asked.

"The others are still in," Endric disclosed.

"Thanks captain obvious," Gustav replied.

"They're... they figured something out," Endric ignored the taunt.

"Hmm? Figured something out?" Gustav looked up at the ascending pillar of water in the middle of the oasis.

[God Eyes Have Been Activated]

He instantly peered through the walls of water surrounding the fourth level.

"Oh? They truly seem to have figured something out," Gustav voiced with a tone of astonishment as God Eyes showed him a reading of the energy they were giving off while glowing.

"It doesn't look like they will be done soon and we still have a little over a day of time left," Endric stated.

"Hmm as curious as i am, I can't get into the oasis for at least a day," Gustav slumped his shoulders while stating.

"Huh? Why?" Endric questioned.

"I've slightly damaged my channels from staying within the high levels of the oasis for so long. It will take some time for it to completely heal up," Gustav explained.

"It is a surprise you aren't dead yet after spending a whole day in the sixth level," Endric nearly facepalmed at Gustav's recklessness.

"Even though you are the Outworldly, you should stop actively trying to get yourself killed," Endric added.

"Danger and fortune comes hand in hand... I went from the first step of kilo rank to the first step of Delta rank in less than six days. It paid off," Gustav shrugged.

"sigh I guess but still... be careful," Endric advised.

"Sure mom," Gustav reply caused Endric's forehead to twitch a little.

"I'm going to head back in," Endric voiced out.

"Hold on, did you forget we have something to discuss?" Gustav voiced in response.

"Huh?" Endric stared at him with a suspicious look upon hearing this.

-

Minutes later Gustav and Endric were deeply enagaged in a conversation.

"So it appeared already hmm," Endric voiced with a contemplative expression.

"I already knew but I was waiting for the right time to inform you," Husarius voiced was heard as he phased out of Endric's forehead.

"The talking crystal," Gustav stated.

"Husarius..." Husarius corrected.

"Talking crystal sounds better," Gustav replied.

Husarius; ...

"Anyways, do you know what it was?" Gustav questioned.

"It is one of the five premonitions... premonitions of universal disaster," Endric stated with a serious tone.

Gustav was about to say he was aware until Endric added the second sentence.

"Premonitions of universal disaster? The system didn't mention it," Gustav replied with a contemplative expression.

"I can only give you limited information as well but I can say we are getting close to the endgame," Endric voiced out.

"What endgame and how close?" Gustav questioned.

"A few years... Maybe three maybe two but we don't have much time," Endric replied.

"What exactly is that eye that appeared?" Gustav questioned.

"Can I tell him?" Endric asked Husarius.

"You can't tell him much... just a little," Husarius replied.

("You idiots, are you trying to ruin everything?") The system suddenly materialised in holographic form, just before Endric could say anything.

"You again," Husarius tone depicted he wasn't fond of the system.

("Keep quiet you wannabe!") The system red dress fluttered as its female face showed an expression of disgust.

"Make me... you fake," Husarius voice was unyielding as the crystal let out a bright glow.

The system also emitted a red glow as both their energy clashed and caused space to twist and turn.

"Enough," Gustav voiced out before emitting his Cosmic Superior energy.

Both energies were like babies before his and slowly faded away.

"System, get back in," Gustav stated with a solemn look.

("I cannot have them ruin things by revealing things to you earlier than intended,") The system voiced in response.

"We are not restricted like you fake," Husarius stated.

("It will...")

Endric interrupted before the system could complete a sentence.

"Husarius can stop the cause and effect to a certain extent so a bit of revelation is allowed,"

("This wannabe?")

"I embody wisdom and can see into the paths of the fates... This much revelation will not have a cause and effect," Husarius assured.

The system pouted in response and decided to keep quiet.

"Endric, tell me... what is it?" Gustav turned to stare at Endric once more.

"That eye belonged to one of the ancient executioners," Endric finally spilled the beans.

"One of the ancient executioners? So there are more eh?" Gustav muttered.

Endric nodded in response.

"What is their aim? And where do they come from?" Gustav questioned.

"Sorry, I can't reveal anymore than this," Endric replied with an apologetic gaze.

"Answers leading to more questions as usual..." Gustav voiced with a 'I should have known' look.

("You should not have asked if you weren't ready for the answer,") The system girly voice buzzed like a mosquito in Gustav's ears.

"Why are you still here useless?" Gustav questioned with a glare.

"tch," The system dematerialised in the next instant.

"You also mentioned this being one of the five premonitions like the system did... that means, more of these executioners would appear here in the future or their body parts..." Gustav said to Endric.

"They can't appear here in full physical form... at least not yet... the next premonitions won't be happening in the milky way," Endric replied.

"So... other galaxies then?" Gustav inquired.

Endric nodded in affirmation, "But you will still feel it because they give off your..."

Endric stopped himself before he could reveal anymore information.

"Give off my..." Gustav voiced with a questioning gaze.

"Can't say anymore," Endric shook his head.

"Alright... at least you were more useful than the system," Gustav replied.

("Suck yourself off,") The system yelled in his mind.

'When did you become so vulgar?'

Chapter 1143 Planet Desecrating Orbs

("Suck yourself off,") The system yelled in his mind.

'When did you become so vulgar?' Gustav teased internally.

"I'm happy to be of help," Endric smiled while responding.

"One last thing I can reveal to you is... after the fifth premonition everything will end," Endric smile faded at this point.

"But it is my job to make sure that doesn't happen, right?" Gustav could more or less tell that this was the case.

"Yes and Everyone of us will join hands with you to battle," Endric replied.

"Hmm... Alright then. Thanks once more for the information. Gotta go meditate now," Gustav waved as he walked further away from the oasis.

Endric watched him walk away and could understand that Gustav would have so many questions but there was nothing he could do in the meantime.

Endric decided to head back into the oasis after this to further channel his bloodline.

#####

"It embodies the energy of the universe that is why it is called Universal Enlightenment," A figure whose body was made of constellations and galaxies voiced out within an unknown realm.

"I draw the energy of the universe?" Angy questioned while floating in a cross-legged position.

"Not right now you don't. You don't even know how to properly draw energy from your surroundings. You gather kinetic energy and discharge it when it could be used for other purposes," The figure disclosed.

"Oh? How else can I use it then?"

#####

Within a fog of pitch darkness, a throne could be spotted up ahead with a figure kneeling in front of it.

With the amount of concentrated darkness within the vicinity, visibility was at zero percent. However, the figure kneeling in front of the throne could see rather clearly within.

Another figure donned in a dark armour stood beside the throne. This figure didn't look human. It had hollow and sunken eyes which were also laced with darkness.

The dark armor had weird carvings on them and it seemed like it was the body of this unknown figure. Claws could be seen on its hands and legs as well.

"You have been using my power all this time, it is time for you to start using yours," The figure standing besides the throne voiced out.

The figure kneeling had his eyes closed initially and a small mark was on his forehead. He slowly opened his eyes.

Indescribable intent brimmed from his gaze as he stared at the unknown figure standing beside the throne.

"I don't want this power if it will change who I am," Falco stated.

"This is not who you are! This weak, pathetic low life personality you have adopted is a facade my king,"
The dark armored figure replied.

"Shut it! I am who I am and anything that will change that, I won't allow," Falco stated with a strong tone.

"Accept the darkness!" The dark armored figure stated.

"Embody the negativity, become our sovereign once more," The figure added.

"I refuse and I will keep refusing," Falco replied.

"You cannot stay like this forever you fool! I mean my king... I will continue to fight for you but eventually, your true power will awaken,"

#####

While the group were still in their trance like state, Endric had returned to the fifth level to keep channeling his bloodline while Gustav continued meditating.

Everyone seemed to be undergoing massive transformation that would take years to achieve.

The world government seemed really hellbent on winning the IYSOP with the boost they had practically given the candidates. The substitutes did not get to enjoy the same treatment.

After this endeavour, it was certain that the twenty who had been given a one week access to the oasis would surpass all of their peers by multiple bounds.

They were already some of the strongest mixedbloods in the MBO and now they would get even stronger.

-

The night went by very quickly and the last day arrived. Gustav had spent all this time meditating and trying to heal his slightly damaged channels which was going well but he still wasn't completely healed.

He was lucky this didn't affect his strength. He had no choice but to stay out of the oasis so as not to make matters worse.

He opened his eyes after sometime and insurmountable energy gathered around his frame.

Zing~ Zing~ Zing~ Zinh~ Zing~

Over two hundred spherical balls containing destructive energy appeared all around Gustav.

They were purplish in color with red lightning arcs swimming across their circumference.

"System... add some of that energy you absorbed to everyone of these orbs," Gustav demanded.

("Huh? You know its for back up right?") The system voiced internally.

"This is also for back up, add em," Gustav replied.

("...Okay,") The system didn't know what Gustav was driving at when these orbs were already very powerful.

Red energy phased out of Gustav as he stretched his hand forward to touch the spherical balls one after the other.

A couple of minutes later all of the balls had turned from purplish to dark red while black electric arcs swam across it.

The all emitted fierce destructive energy which the air to vibrate intensely due to their existence.

Gustav went back to his seating position after imbueing them with more energy and looked upwards before whispering...

"Combine," He snapped his fingers.

Ziiiihhh~ Ziiiihhh~ Zzziiiihhh~

The spherical balls of destructive energy began to phase into one another at quick pace..

With every combination, they grew larger and larger. A few seconds later, a gigantic building sized orb had appeared.

THRRRIHHH!

The air sizzled with intensity upon the final product of the combination causing weird reactions to the vicinity.

"Compress," Gustav voiced out.

A space compression energy phased out of Gustav at this point and the massive spherical orb began to reduce in size.

("You... Do you know what you just created?") The system voiced with a slight tone of terror.

"A planet destroying orb... yes I'll call it PLANET DESECRATING ORB," Gustav decided with a tone of delight.

("You are crazy, that thing can destroy a planet almost twice the size of earth,") The system yelled.

"Exactly why I call it backup," Gustav replied.

"Now lets make more," Gustav added.

("...")

'Did this idiot even hear what i just said?'

Hours upon hours passed and Gustav spent half the day creating more Planet Desecrating orbs.

He didn't stop even after creating more than ten of them. This couldn't be called a backup anymore. It was more like a backup that had multiple other backups.

The system could only hope there wouldn't come a time where he had to use this because whoever would trigger the activation of such an attack would have an empty graveyard.

It was already evening time at this point and the others began to open their eyes.

When only four of them got out of the trance like state but the four had to remain in place with their hands locked so as not to disturb the others who might still be undergoing transformation from the predecessors connection.

After about thirty minutes, everyone had opened their eyes. They began to swim out at this point with delighted expressions.

It was obvious that they had transformed a lot from this encounter and they couldn't wait to test out the new abilities they had unlocked.

Fwwhiii~ Fwwhiii~ Fwwhii~

Upon swimming out of the oasis one after the other, they were met with a powerful pressure.

"What in the world is that?" They all looked up with expressions of disbelief.

In the distance, a large floating spherical ball could be sighted. It was as massive as a floating building and it emitted such destructiveness that they could feel, they would get obliterated if it was to get activated.

"What is going on?" Teemee and Glade who had come out of the oasis last, voiced with looks of concern.

"It's Gustav," Angy stated.

"It is always him,"

"That monster has increased in strength again?"

They headed forward as they spotted a person in the distance amidst the mist, this massive spherical ball had stirred up.

Streak of black destructive electric arcs were swimming across the ball.

One shot out unexpectedly in Angy's direction.

Everyone had expected that with Angy's speed she would easily swerve out of the way but to their surprise.

Thiirrrhhhzzzh~

The lightning streak arrived before her and suddenly made a spin around her figure before disappearing.

"Sniff!" Angy breathed in intensely as her figure lit up for a bit before she turned around.

"Achoo!"

Booom!

Angy suddenly sneeze caused the first level of oasis up ahead to blast upwards as the surroundings vibrated intensely.

The water blasted upwards, reaching a height of more than three hundred feet before descending.

"Huh?"

"Eh?"

"When did she...?"

Everyone had looks of surprise on their faces after witnessing what just happened.

"Compress," A familiar voice was heard from within the mist in the next instant.

Zzzhiiiiinnnn~

The massive spherical ball shrieked quickly before their very eyes and disappeared.

Everyone's attention was drawn from Angy towards the person responsible for the creation of the spherical ball.

Chapter 1144 I Just Wanna Be Me

"You two... mind telling us what in the Mary Mother of Zechariah that was?" E.E questioned with a weird look while alternating his gaze between Gustav and Angy.

"It is mother of Je..."

"I know what it goddamn is!" E.E cut Falco off before he could complete his sentence.

"Just creating a back up," Gustav shrugged as he stepped forward.

"You call that thing a backup?" E.E blurted out with a conflicted expression.

"That's no back up, that's mayhem," Matilda voiced out as well.

"To the enemies, it definitely will be," A smirk appeared on Gustav's face that caused chills to crawl down everyone's spine.

"I have unlocked more abilities related to my bloodline," Angy cheerfully broke the brief silence.

"It wasn't just speed related?" Matilda questioned from the side.

Angy shook her head in response.

"Looks like I'm not the only one who has undergone a big increase in strength," Gustav added while scrutinizing all of them.

"The oasis connected use to our bloodline predecessors," E.E revealed.

"Oh so that was what Endric was talking about," Gustav voiced in response.

"Where is my hubby?" Sheila hopped forward with a look of curiosity.

"Go find him at the fifth level," Gustav replied.

"Off i go," Sheila turned around while giggling only to be held back by Vin and E.E.

-"Cougar,"

-"Shameless pedo,"

"You are all at the Kilo rank now? That's good," Gustav voiced out as he noticed no one was below the second step of the Kilo rank.

"Not just that, we have also unlocked hidden potentials in our bloodlines by connecting with our predecessors,"

"Can't wait to test them out,"

Aildris and Ria voiced out one after the other.

Only Falco seemed to not share in the hype as everyone. He just stood at the sidelines.

Falco had already reached the third step of the Kilo rank from this endeavour so everyone just felt he was tired or something which was why they weren't too bothered by his current lack of enthusiasm.

"You should have joined us Gus," E.E stated.

'And have hundreds of thousands of predecessors down my throat? I'd rather not,' Gustav could imagine how chaotic it would have been due to the numerous bloodlines in his possession.

"Don't destroy nature... You can test out your new abilities when we arrive at Planet Ozious," Gustav instructed.

This was quite hypocritical of him since any ability he tested would usually affect the natural surroundings.

The entire group had jolly expressions and one could see that they had truly leveled up. With their current strength, they rivaled the strengths of even well known squads in the MBO.

"We are leaving tomorrow. I hope you are all ready," Gustav announced.

Everyone had sharp expressions upon hearing this. They were all fired up and ready to showcase their strength at the Intergalactic Youngsters Show Of Power,.

"I am hyped up," E.E stated while rubbing his afro.

-

Hours later, it was already dark and almost midnight at this point. Some were meditating and others were discussing all around the patch of beautiful flowers surrounding the first level of the oasis.

The scenery was even more beautiful at night due to glowing stream ahead. Some of the flower petals had dim glows as well.

"You take that half while I take the other half," Teemee said to Glade.

"Why do you wanna have all the cool ones? Why don't you take that half while I take the other half?" Glade responded with a look of disapproval.

"Such abilities would be wasted on you," Teemee responded with a look of ridicule.

"Oh you wanna go now? Don't think for a second you're more powerful than me just because you've been unlocking the better abilities," Glade threw Teemee a fierce look.

"You never stood a chance you monkey tailed tramp," Teemee replied with a vulgar tone.

Fwwhoommm~ Fwwhwoomm~

Both of them unleashed their bloodline energy at this point, causing a great clash. The vicinity vibrated as winds blew.

"Knock it off you two," The others came to separate them before anything could happen.

On the other side of the stream, Gustav laid on the patch of grass while Angy laid her head on his chest.

Her hands were slowly caressing his face as they both laid in place with peaceful looks on their faces.

She could hear his heartbeat. It beat in a slow but firm rhythm almost like Gustav had an unshakeable heart.

"Gus..." Angy called out to him with a soft tone.

Gustav responded with an "Hmm?" Without raising his head.

"Don't worry about me during the competition. No matter what happens, I want to be a support not a hindrance," Angy voiced while slowly turning her face towards his.

"Hmm... I know," Gustav replied.

"I know I have been naive in the past but I won't fail to do what needs to be done when the time comes," Angy added.

"Angy... do you know why I always liked you even though I pushed you away?" Gustav suddenly asked.

"Eh? Eh? Huh? What are you saying?" Angy's face reddened up as he voiced out.

"You reminded me of myself when I was young and full of heroic dreams. I also used to want to be a saviour... a protector of the weak... a pillar of light,"

Angy's mouth slightly hung open as she heard Gustav say this.

"It is never wrong to harbour such a mindset but it is wrong to harbour such a mindset thinking your journey is going to be one full of roses," Gustav stated.

"Can you bear the suffering? Can you carry the weight of guilt on your shoulders? Can you be decisive when it is required? Can you make choices that might brand you a villain?" Gustav added.

"The world's logic of a hero is flawed which is why an anti hero is more of a hero than a hero most times," He voiced out once more.

Angy face showed a look of contemplation after hearing this before she spoke.

"So, do you still wanna be a hero?" Angy asked.

"I just wanna be me. Not a hero or a villain... just Gustav doing the things he wants to do. Becoming unhindered by the ideals and restriction of the world.

No white knight or dark Lord... becoming one who writes his fate because at the moment, I only have it written for me like a script that an actor has no choice but follow,"

Angy felt Gustav's last sentence was hinting at something deeper than it seemed but she couldn't place her thumb on it.

One could say Gustav wasn't very controlled at the moment since he literally did what he wanted and even disobeyed higher ups when their decision wasn't suiting to him.

Only Gustav knew what he truly meant.

"I will stand behind you like a pillar," Angy voiced out.

"You can lean on me for support," She added.

"You're the one leaning on me right now though," Gustav stated.

Angy chuckled and moved her face upwards.

"That's because I want to do this..." Angy said before placing her lips on his.

Lips smacking sounds could be heard faintly in the background as the two engaged in a passionate smooching session.

-

The night went by very quickly, bringing the arrival of the next morning.

"Our aircraft is here to take us to the first base," Gustav voiced while pointing at the direction that led to the top of the mountain.

Everyone was gathered together already in front of the oasis.

"First person to get to the aircraft gets a million," Gustav announced.

"Yooooooooooooo~"

The announcement instantly caused a uproar as everyone instantly activated their bloodline abilities.

A vortex instantly appeared in front of E.E which sucked him into it.

Angy blitz forward instantaneously causing her figure to disappear within a mili second.

Booommm~

Heavy winds blasted across her initial location in the next instant.

The same moment E.E and Angy used their bloodlines, the others didn't slack off as well and did the same.

Aldris opened his eyes and instantly drew himself to a color above, causing him to close in the distance instantly.

Ria had sunk into the ground instantly and Teemee's entire body had been covered up with a red glow. He proceeded to dash forward with immense speed too.

All this while everyone was activating their abilities, Gustav had already faded away into oblivion.

Boom! Boom! Boom! Boom!

All that could be heard at that particular instant was the sound of numerous missile like explosions.

The three people to arrive at the top of the four thousand feet mountain were Ria, Phinx and Matilda.

They had only arrived a second later, yet they found out the others arrived mili seconds earlier than they did.

"Maniacs," Phinx yelled out, regretting she didn't met the requirements to mimic a person with speed before the race.

They had moved four times faster than the speed of sound, yet everyone got to the mountain top before they did.

Chapter 1145 Leaving Earth

"So, who won?" Ria asked.

Teemee shrugged before answering, "They got here before me," He said while gesturing at Aildris, Elevora, E.E and Endric.

"They got here before us," Aildris went ahead and passed the batton to Gustav and Angy who were already seated in the aircraft in front.

"When did they...? These monsters," Yonda voiced with a look of astonishment.

"So guys, it was a tie," Gustav announced.

"I and Gus arrived here at the same time," Angy added.

Both of them had arrived here at the same instant Gustav had voiced out the word million.

They moved at the same time and arrived at the aircraft instantaneously.

Meanwhile the others that were still speeding forward looked slow to both of them. Even E.E who activated a vortex was spotted by Gustav who watched as the vortex slowly phased into existence and sucked him in.

He and Angy were already in the aircraft at this point.

"Sucks to not have super speed," The others complained with looks of unwillingness but they had no choice but to accept the results.

'Maybe I should have used that...' E.E slightly regretted not using one of his new dimensional abilities.

'I'll just save the surprise for later,' E.E decided as they filed into the aircraft one after the other.

The MBO officers who were standing on the sidelines still had their jaws hung loosely with opened mouths.

The mountain path had almost been completely obliterated from the actions the group had just performed.

The aircraft would have gotten damaged as well even if no one made contact with it but Gustav already used his energy to protect it after he arrived here.

The aircraft took off immediately after they had all boarded. They headed off to the MBO first base.

#####

Deep within space a ship could be seen in a stationary position right behind a massive asteroid.

It was as massive as a football pitch with a pentagon shape and four pillar like extensions at the edges.

Greenish floating rocks could be seen in the vicinity which would make one wonder how this spacecraft managed to arrive in the midst of all these without collision and damage.

Within the spacecraft, a crew could be spotted moving to and fro while a man with leather like covering and a scarf covering the right side of his face walked towards the cockpit.

The crew members greeted with respect when they spotted him and some even threw friendly remarks at him which he received positively.

Upon arriving at the cockpit, a globe like projection could be spotted in the middle. The projection displayed multiple parts of space and seemed to be triangulating something.

A ten feet tall figure stood right behind the globe like projection. He emitted an authoritative aura as he stood there.

Some noticeable features were the dark tentacle like things protruding from his back.

"Captain, are we really doing this?" The male with a scarf covering half his face voiced out.

"We accepted it months earlier so yes we are going through with it," The captain replied.

"There is no point to it since our contractors have been caught, presumably dead," The male with a scarf covering half his face voiced out once more.

"Rick, we can't get payment if we don't get the job done," The captain stated.

"I have a bad feeling about this. Can't we just focus on other jobs?" Rick questioned.

"The payment can get us going for the next fifty years without having to work a single job," The captain voiced out.

"It carries too much risk," Rick replied with a tone of disapproval.

"That is why we have you Rick. You are our master planner. The crew will follow whatever plans you draft up so I'm sure this will go well," The captain voiced with a dismissive tone.

"And since the contract has long been drafted, we get the money regardless of their demise so long as we complete the job so pull up your big boy pants, we are doing this," The captain added before turning around with a giant smirk on his face.

#####

"Of course I am coming with you lots. Did you think we were going to let our main candidates go alone," Grand commander Shion voiced out to the group of twenty before him.

"Uh? Like... you don't have better things to do? A whole grand commander?" Sheila voiced with a tone of disappointment.

"Is that anyway to speak to your great grandfather little Sheila," Grand commander Shion didn't seemed bothered by her disrespectful tone and smiled.

"Hmph, G grandpa you still owe me twelve box of chocolates, sixteen crates of beer, twenty four packs of cookies and thirty two carts of juice," Sheila listed while folding her arms with a pout.

- "Shameless loli,"

- "This shorty drinks?"

- "Huh? They're related?"

The group threw out remarks of disbelief one after the other.

"Now now my little Sheila, great grandpa will pay up okay," The aura of sharpness around Grand commander Shion reduced as he pat Sheila on her head.

"How are you two even related? She's... she's..." Teemee voiced out with a look of confusion.

"I'm black doesn't mean G grandpa isn't my relative you fool! I was just born with a different skin color," Sheila yelled out.

"...oh..." Teemee nodded in response.

"Anyways, it is time for you all to gear up for IYSOP," Grand commander Shion announced.

"I have assembled a technological team specially tasked with assisting you all in this. Your spacecraft will be ready to leave within the hour," Grand commander Shion added.

-

- "This is an amplifier... you all have four amplification shots before it runs out so make sure you make use of it wisely during IYSOP,"

- "A bult in suit shell,"

- "Healing meds,"

The group was currently within what looked like a massive warehouse with technology items stacked at different corners.

The group assigned to handle this actually had someone that Gustav was familiar with, included.

"Mara did you make this?" Gustav questioned while holding onto a metal ball.

"Yes and the combat suit too," The beautiful red haired girl who had a slight semblance to boss Danzo replied.

"What combat suit?" Gustav asked with a slightly suspicious expression.

"Hehehe I created an adaptive combat suit for the IYSOP candidates which merges with a mixedblood bloodline, cells and skin," She disclosed with a proud look.

"You have really gotten better at creating tech, keep it up," Gustav rubbed her head with look of praise.

Despite being agemates with Gustav she didn't seem irked by his gesture instead she looked delighted.

"Thank you... now try them on," Mara stated before tapping on a controller.

-"Hey are those...?"

-"The IYSOP Candidates?"

- "They look powerful,"

- "Do you think we will win?"

- "I heard Gustav Crimson is leading the team,"

Chatters could be heard in the vicinity of the first base as a group of twenty were spotted striding forward with confident expressions.

- "What are they wearing?"

The group was clad in a blue skin tight suit with red lines around the waist and neck area. The suit covered up their neck and the back of their head as well, leaving only their faces exposed.

A small artistic depiction of earth could be seen on the left chest area of the suit.

The group could be seen heading into the area where aircraft were kept.

A visible spacecraft could be spotted up ahead. It was so much larger than the aircraft parked in the surroundings that it could be seen vividly even though it was positioned at the far end.

The group moved towards the spacecraft where a bunch of MBO officers could be seen standing around it.

The spacecraft was as massive as a small skyscraper in a horizontal position. It was at least seven stories tall too.

It had designed with a red, green and blue color, depicting both the earth and MBO organisation. It looked quite majestic.

"It is time," Grand commander Shion voiced out from his position in between two grand generals.

"Are you ready to represent the earth and win this competition?" He questioned.

"Yes!" The group yelled with enthusiasm.

Grand General Shion nodded at them and gestured at them to move into the spacecraft.

Gustav couldn't understand why they decided to make them travel in such a large spacecraft but he wasn't too bothered by it.

The travel to Planet Ozious would take more than three weeks of journeying through space. Even with the multiple dimensional gateways set across space to make the journey faster, Planet Ozious was located in a distant galaxy so this was normal.

They would arrive at the venue just a few days before IYSOP would officially kick off.

Gustav got into the space craft which also had a couple of crew on board who were tasked with piloting, space navigation, cooking, cleaning and other tasks.

It looked even more massive within with multiple hallways.

"This is gonna be one hell of a ride," E.E voiced out excitedly as they moved towards the bedroom area.

Chapter 1146 Games

"This is gonna be one hell of a ride," E.E voiced out excitedly as they moved towards the bedroom area.

Despite the spacecraft being quite massive, the bedrooms were not very large and there were not a high number of them.

They had to share the bedrooms, four each before they headed to the sitting area.

Everyone wondered why the rooms were so little considering how big the spacecraft was but after making use of God Eyes, Gustav understood the reason.

The group soon arrived in the sitting area where hundreds of seats positioned in rows and columns could be spotted.

At the edges, some of the walls were see through, which meant anyone that sat close to the wall could see into space while they were journeying.

Gustav being a sucker for space and nature, proceeded to pick a seat close to the wall while the others also sat in their desired positions.

"The substitutes will be joining us in a few," Grand commander Shion announced after arriving in the sitting area.

Gustav wasn't surprised about this since it only made sense for them to follow.

This meant they would be around sixty of them journeying on this spacecraft to Planet Ozious.

Up ahead in the seating area was the cockpit where the pilot and navigators were situated.

The journey would begin the moment the substitutes came on board.

-

- "The Earth's IYSOP candidates are leaving for Planet Ozious today,"

- "As you can see, they are moving into the spacecraft with the earth and MBO design,"

- "We can only hope for the victory of our young participants,"

All across the world, the area where the spacecraft had appeared was be displayed all across the world on different media outlets.

The media outlets also made reference to how the IYSOP competition would be broadcasted on earth when it begins.

Of course there were people who had the privilege to witness IYSOP in person but the slots were already full. Only a limited number of people from each planet participating was allowed.

The media outlets displayed the spacecraft lifting off the ground and dissapearing into the sky after a while.

(Five Days Later)

"I thought you would go with him," Gradier Xanatus voiced out to a beautiful lady clad in all white garment.

"This takes priority. Besides he is safe with that grandpa so it's fine," Miss Aimee replied.

"Oh I guess you are right young Miss," Gradier Xanatus nodded.

"My avatar will remain on earth while I try to find out more both here and on my planet," Miss Aimee informed.

"The team we sent out haven't discovered anything yet," Gradier Xanatus reported.

"I am not surprised... even I can't sense a shred of its existence after its disappearance," Miss Aimee replied.

"In times like this, I always send the kid to investigate and somehow he always discovers something that even experienced officers and researchers are unable to find," Gradier Xanatus felt Gustav always managed to crack every mysterious situation without a lead.

"That reminds me, he must have witnessed it too... how did he react?" Miss Aimee questioned.

"He had just returned to the tower then... we didn't speak much about it because he was busy with getting permission for the IYSOP candidates to visit the Oasis," Gradier Xanatus disclosed.

"I see..." Miss Aimee decided she would still hold a conversation about this with Gustav later to see if he had any idea about it.

"Looks like I will be attending that IYSOP after all," Miss Aimee voiced out.

"Oh? It is already quite late to leave by this time young Miss. The people attending already left two days ago and it takes three weeks of journeying..." Gradier Xanatus was still explaining when Miss Aimee cut him short.

"That is no problem, I'll journeythere myself," She stated.

"Should take about a week... so I still have a week more," Miss Aimee muttered with a calculative tone.

"Huh?" Gradier Xanatus eyes widened slightly.

"Do you wanna come with me?" She questioned.

"Erm young miss i still have a lot to..." Gradier Xanatus was still answering when she cut him short again.

"So that's a yes then, good, see you in a week time," She stated before walking out of the room while waving.

Gradier Xanatus; ...

"Keep me posted if you discover anything," She added before completely disappearing.

#####

Deep in space, a spacecraft moved at incredible speed, parting a cloud of red dust in the path.

There were never ending speck of stars but due to the speed of the spacecraft these stars were soon left behind.

The aircraft was moving at more than a hundred thousand light years per hour which was considered insanely fast.

Within a particular part of the spacecraft, a group could be seen standing in front of an holographic screen.

- "Will he break the record?"

- "He probably will,"

- "Dennis sure is strong,"

The group chatted amongst themselves as they watched a display in the screen above.

A purple haired male could be seen gliding across a turbulent looking sea on a small piece of block.

This male, avoided the lightning strikes from above and even parried them sometimes as the small piece of block kept taking him forward.

"He is getting there," Glade voiced out.

"Do you really think he can surpass Fildhor's record?" Falco questioned.

"Doubt it," Teemee and Glade responded at the same time.

They briefly glanced at each other before turning away.

On the screen, a golden colored lightning bolt suddenly descended from the sky and landed right in the turbulent sea.

Fwwwwhooommmmm~

The sea suddenly rose with intensity throwing the purple haired male high into the sky. The piece of block kept spiralling intensely in the air as he reached out to grab it.

However, before his hand could make contact with it...

Thrraaahhh~ Thhrraahhh~ Thrrraahhh~

Seven lightning bolts descended from seven different positions in the sky and struck him down.

BAM!

His figure evaporated in the next instant and a display of 'Game over,' was shown on the holographic screen.

"Awww,"

Some of them let out disappointment sounds as a figure who was standing up ahead pulled a transparent helmet off his head.

---out

"I have a plan but I can't go through with it till nightfall," Gustav disclosed.

"Really? Is everyone gonna be saved?" Yusha face brightened up as she questioned.

"If it works, yes..." Gustav replied.

At this point Yusha was all beams and smiles.

"But it only has a fifty percent chance of working..."

Her face turned a bit sour after this follow up revelation.

"Is there anyway to raise the odds?" Yusha questioned.

Gustav shook his head in response before saying, "The only thing that can be done right now is secret evacuation... the MBO will handle that,"

"I can't believe this is happening..." Yusha sighed her figure plummeted leaned back against the chair.

"In case it doesn't work, not everyone has to die at the very least," Gustav added.

"There must be a way to save everyone," Yusha couldn't handle the fact that her concert would cause death despite the fact that it wasn't her fault.

"Like your employees said, don't try to inform them... the MBO plans to evacuate the fans discreetly. Nobody will be informed about it," Gustav said in response.

"What will you be doing till nightfall?" Yusha asked since there was still around five hours left before the sun would set.

"Making plans and assisting in getting the fans out," Gustav replied before standing to his feet.

"Let me come with you, I wanna help," Yusha requested.

"You will only hinder me..." Gustav said while turning around to leave.

"But..."

Yusha paused her sentence after noticing Gustav pause in his tracks.

Gustav's face beamed up as he slowly turned around. He just had a crazy idea.

"You're coming with me," He voiced out.

"Huh?" Yusha was stunned by the sudden change of heart.

"No young Miss cannot possibly..." The assistants were about to refute but they were met with the response of whooshing air.

"Younh miss?"

"Officer Crimson?"

They had both dissapeared before any of the assistants could complete their sentence.

Hours later Gustav was floating above the conventional ring with massive bat like wings sprouting out of his back and a beautiful female figure in his arms.

"Are you ready to go again?" He inquired.

Gustav's face beamed up as he slowly turned around. He just had a crazy idea.

"You're coming with me," He voiced out.

"Huh?" Yusha was stunned by the sudden change of heart.

"No young Miss cannot possibly..." The assistants were about to refute but they were met with the response of whooshing air.

"Younh miss?"

"Officer Crimson?"

They had both dissapeared before any of the assistants could complete their sentence.

Hours later Gustav was floating above the conventional ring with massive bat like wings sprouting out of his back and a beautiful female figure in his arms.

"Are you ready to go again?" He inquired.

Chapter 1147 Is Everything Okay?

Ki! Ki! ki!

It was like the blade made contact with the hardest metal in the universe as the atomic blade failed to cut through the creatures.

However....

Thwiwhii~ Thwiwhii~ Thwiwhii~

More than twenty of them were still sent hurling through the air upon contact due to Gustav's high physical prowess.

The creatures who looked like giant bees with golden and silver plated armors covering their entire body up to their head, smashed into each other one after the other as the wind and force Generated from Gustav swing crashed into them.

Gustav wasted no time in flying upwards even more as he swung out repeatedly, sending hundreds of them spiralling across the air and crashing into one another.

Twwhiii~ Twwhii~

These massive bee like creatures shot out a red like web from the tip of their rear towards Gustav.

Thousands of these red like web shot towards him with intensity which he wasted no time in parrying one after the other.

Tah! Tah! Tah! Tah!

it sounded like the clanking of metals once more as Gustav slashed out repeatedly at the web like projectiles.

In a single second he had slashed out more than a thousand times sending these webs back to the creatures.

Some of the creatures that made contact with the red like web after Gustav's counter were instantly shredded to pieces despite their sturdy armor covering.

Gustav had dropped thousands of them since the battle began and continued to show forth his prowess until a pure golden bee like creature appeared.

Upon its appearance, this creature instantly shot out a web like projectile that was more than a thousand times larger than the ones it's subordinates had been shooting out.

Gustav stretched his atomic blade forward at first before making a weird expression.

Zing~

The atomic blade disappeared and a milky glow instantly coated Gustav's hands as he watched the oncoming massive violet glowing web.

This web had bloated the entire sky and was even several times larger than the mountain below.

Swoooooosshh~

Gustav's wings flapped intensely and his body bolted across the air at incredible speed, approaching the oncoming projectile.

He instantly arrived before it and grabbed some of the webstrings with his fingers which were coated in a milky glow.

fwwhwiiii~

His figure was getting pushed back upon contact but in a bit he managed to stabilised himself in the air before raising the massive glowing web.

Thrrrrroooiiuuhhh~

Turning around to spin repeatedly, Gustav flung the massive web back in the direction it came.

[illegible]

These creatures body parts that had been ripped into pieces began to fall from the sky. Gustav didn't stop there and instantly charged forward once more.

He grabbed the massive web again and began swinging it about like a weapon.

The full golden bee like creature that had just appeared was unable to counter before it was ripped into pieces as well.

Ting~

The massive web disappeared after its creator was killed and all the creatures in the vicinity had been ripped apart at this point.

The milky glow coating Gustav's hand slowly dimmed and disappeared completely, revealing two bloodied palms.

'Looks like whatever that was is stronger than Atomic Disintegration...' Gustav wasn't surprised with this result.

He would have lost his fingers and even his entire body would have been ripped to shreds if Atomic Disintegration didn't manage to hold up for a bit. Coupled with the sturdiness of his body, he only suffered a light casualty compared to what he should have suffered.

[Level 52 Cleared]

[Does Gustav Crimson Wish To Progress To Next Training Level?]

[Yes/No]

Just as Gustav was about to give his answer, a voice called out to them.

"Guys! Let's try the gaming room,"

Gustav recognised this voice to be that of Teemee's.

'Hmm?' He had a slightly contemplative look on his face before he made his decision.

"No,"

[Logging out Gustav Crimson]

A spectrum of light blinded his vision for a bit before everywhere turned completely whitish.

Gustav pulled the transparent helmet from his head and turned around to see that the others in the circle had taken theirs off as well.

"What is this about a game?" Angy questioned.

"There is a gaming room right next to this one," Teemee replied.

Gustav already knew about this since he scanned the entire spacecraft from the first day they left earth.

"You guys have been using the training room since the first day we left earth. It wouldn't be bad to play games for a bit," Glade stated.

"Well technically the training rooms are similar to the gaming room since they are all simulations, no much different in training and gaming," Gustav disclosed.

"Lighten up a bit man, training won't be as fun as playing games," E.E tapped Gustav on the back with a persuasive look.

"We've been training for months too so maybe a little slacking off won't be bad," Matilda nodded.

"Alright guys," Gustav finally gave in.

They proceeded to leave the training room right after.

#####

-In Another Part Of Space

A spacecraft as massive as a football pitch with a pentagon shape and four pillar like extensions at the edges could be seen floating in this part of space.

Just a couple hundred kilometers to the north west of this spacecraft was a giant wormhole. This wormhole like any other wormhole twisted the space within which was like a tunnel. It obviously led somewhere but it was unknown why this spacecraft remained stationary not too distant from the wormhole.

Within the spacecraft the crew seemed to be in positioned at different corners of the spacecraft. They had taken some unknown formation and had serious looks on their faces.

In the cockpit area, two male figures seem to be discussing.

- "Is everything ready now?"

- "All crew members are in position and ready to take action at the appointed time,"

- "That is good. Estimated arrival time?"

- "Twelve to thirteen hours..."

- "Let's do this,"

#####

Within the IYSOP candidates spacecraft the pilots of the spacecraft, stared at some readings from the navigations with a slightly troubled look.

"The Orion gate seems dysfunctional," The main pilot voiced out.

"The readings state that the dimensional energy within is a bit chaotic," One of the navigators informed.

"We can make a diversion and head for Orion gate 2," The second navigator suggested.

"That will set us back twelve hours," The second pilot had a slightly concerned look as he stated.

"It will but it definitely is safer," The second navigator replied.

Both pilots glanced at each other for a bit before nodding. They already made their decision without even exchanging a word.

The spacecraft made a little turn but continued ahead unhindered.

In a couple of minutes, they phased past a gigantic wormhole and continued heading deeper into space.

Meanwhile in one of the spacecraft rooms...

"E.E!"

"E.E!"

"E.E!"

"E.E!"

"E.E!"

Chants of E.Es name reverberated across the gaming room as a group of more than twenty watched an holographic display up ahead.

In the display, E.E was spotted riding an hover car that was escaping the raining of flaming projectiles in the vicinity.

The projectiles rained down uncontrollably as E.E's vehicle sped forward while swerving from side to side.

"E.E is pretty good at this thing," Falco couldn't help but voice out while Gustav smiled and nodded.

He was glad E.E was having fun. It looked like he had finally returned to his usual cheerful self.

"He is reaching the highscore!" A girl yelled in excitement.

Everyone fixed their eyes on the projection with even more intensity at this time while Gustav's face suddenly displayed a weird expression.

"Hmm?" He turned to the side while his face scrunched up.

Angy seemed to have noticed this and moved close to him.

"Is everything okay?" She questioned with a concerning tone.

"I hope so," Gusatv replied before turning around to walk away.

"What? What do you mea..." Angy face displayed a look of confusion but before she could voice out her question completely, Gustav was already gone.

("Are you going to ask them about it?") The system questioned while Gustav walked through a brightly lit corridor.

"They are the pilots so I'm sure they know what they are doing but I'm curious as to why we skipped a gateway... wouldn't that make our journey slower?" Gustav muttered while walking along the corridor.

What Gustav had just sensed a while ago was a massive cluster of dimensional energy. He had sensed this up to five times since they started this journey but this was the very first time Gustav sensed they moved past it.

Gustav knew that these were spatial gateways constructed all across different parts of galaxies to make space journey easier.

Unlike the previous times where they went in, this time they didn't which ended up making Gustav feel a little suspicious.

Chapter 1148 Success!

Unlike the previous times where they went in, this time they didn't which ended up making Gustav feel a little suspicious.

He soon arrived at the seating area of the spacecraft and walked along one of the Isle. Only a few substitutes and candidates were at the sitting area. Most of them were in the gaming room.

Gustav's presence drew their attention as a lot of them had barely seen him since the spacecraft began journeying through space five days back.

"Is there a reason why we didn't use that gateway?" Gustav questioned as he arrived at the area where Grand Commander Shion was seated.

Grand Commander Shion who had his eyes closed, replied to Gustav, "The pilots are responsible for our travel. If you wanna find out you should ask them,"

Grand Commander Shion didn't seem bothered in anyway as he remained in place with his eyes closed.

"Alright then... I might as well just ask them," Gustav replied before turning and starting to walk ahead.

Soon he arrived at the corridor that led to the spacecraft cockpit area and knocked twice as he reached what looked like a dead end.

-

"Huh? Why is he here?" The pilot questioned while staring at the left where one of the holographic screens were displayed.

"We don't know..." One of the navigators replied while staring at the display of the dirty blonde haired young man standing in front of what looked like a metallic shutter.

"Should we let him in?" The other navigator questioned.

"Hmm... I guess there is no harm in that. I will kick him out if he causes distraction," The pilot stated firmly.

One of the navigators clicked a control button and the shutter slid upwards, giving Gustav access into the spacecraft control room.

He walked in with a calm look as usual and slightly inspected the vicinity. The glass walls in front of the pilots was a giant display of space and how fast they were moving.

"Why are you here?" One of the navigators inquired.

"Why did we skip the last gateway?" Gustav threw a question back.

"Oh that, the gateway had a little dysfunctionality so it looked unsafe," The first navigator answered.

"Dysfunctionality? How?" Gustav asked once more.

"Chaotic dimensional energy... it could have damaged the engines of the spacecraft. We were not willing to risk it," The other navigator explained.

"I see... but wouldn't this make us slower?" Gustav questioned.

"It only sets us back by twelve hours so long as we get to the second Orion gateway and make use of it," The co pilot spoke up this time.

"Interesting..." Gustav took his seat behind and watched as they navigated the way through space.

Different holographic screens with different displays were spotted. Some showed estimated routes they were supposed to take and some showed areas to avoid in space. One also displayed how much time was left till they arrived at Galaxy Flalencia.

"Erm why are you still here kid?" The co pilot questioned.

"Don't mind me just carry on like I'm not here," Gustav answered while staring at the transparent walls up ahead.

"Uhhhh...." The pilots and navigators didn't really know what to say after this.

They didn't want to get any more distracted than this so they decided not to argue with Gustav over leaving or not leaving.

Since he was the only one here out of all the participants, they felt it was still okay.

#####

In another part of space, a dark and green colored spacecraft hovered several thousand kilometers from a massive wormhole.

Within the crew members could be seen activating some weird spacesuit that covered their entire being.

"It has to be activated the moment they alarm goes off. Any second later could lead to the mission being a bust," A crew member said to another one through the comms as they stood atop the hovering spacecraft.

"Understood," The other crew member nodded.

He squatted with a wheel like device planted to the top of the spacecraft and began to operate this device to a desired frequency.

Wwhooolloohhhpp~

A weird bubble suddenly encapsulated the entire spacecraft in the next instant, also covering the two crew members standing atop the spacecraft.

"Captain Brask has activated the fonsil... they must be close! Be ready to activate the Wheel!" The crew member voiced to his subordinate who nodded in response.

Tiingh~ Tiinngh~ Tiinnghh~

The wheel like device planted to the top of the spacecraft beamed up and both crew members waited with keen eyes while staring at a direction in this unknown part of space.

Within the control room of the spacecraft a male with dark tentacles sprouting from his back voiced out, "It is almost twelve hours, I hope you are right Rick,"

"My calculations are always precise... they will appear at anytime from now," The man with a scarf covering the right side of his face replied.

The captain was about to speak out again when...

Weeeiii~ Weeeiii~ Weeeiii~ Weeeiii~

Blaring alarms suddenly began to go off.

"Activate it now!" The captain yelled through the comms.

The two crew members atop the spacecraft heard the command and the one squatting quickly raised his finger to tap on the button in the middle.

At the same instant his finger was descending towards the button, a piercing starlight far ahead the massive wormhole had appeared.

This starlight looked like it was moving but with so much speed that even though it was thousands of light years away, it arrived before the wormhole in a couple of moments.

Tap!

The instant the finger of the crew member, made contact with the button, the starlight also arrived before the wormhole. In that split second, it could be seen that the starlight was actually a large spacecraft moving at incredible speed.

The wormhole suddenly made a fluttering sound as it changed color then instant this spacecraft flew into it.

Zzzhiiinnghg~

It turned completely violet.

"Success!"

"Yess!"

Within the spacecraft that had been laying in wait since, all of the crew members rejoiced with loud voices.

"You did it Ray! I knew I could count on you!" The captain voiced with a joyful tone.

"We can't celebrate yet until we confirm he is dead," Ray replied with a normal tone.

"He will be. They can't escape there without us so they will all meet their end without our intervention anyways," The captain replied.

Ray slightly raised his left eyebrow after hearing that.

"Yes I haven't forgotten our agreement Ray. We're only killing the boy but we won't harm the others," The captain voiced with a cheerful tone while tapping Ray's shoulder repeatedly.

"Lighten up," He added.

"Hmph, this job really put a lot on me. Let's finish it properly," Ray voiced in response.

"Let's finish it," A smile appeared on the captain's face as a vortex appeared in front of them which their spacecraft got sucked into.

Zhiinnngg~

Upon their disappearance, the gaint wormhole returned to normal.

---SSS

of the portal that would lead to the conventional centre floating about fifty feet above were still trying to get in.

At this point, hundreds of MBO officers were headed towards the area to clear them off the premises.

It had been over thirty minutes since Gustav started trying to create the projection and so far, he hadn't been successful yet.

The MBO could no longer take any chances so the next move was to get everyone within the vicinity, out of the premises.

This time they didn't care about the Genxodus figuring out that they were aware of the nanites planted. The aim was to save as many as possible and there were still millions in the premises that will be affected if the nanites go off.

-"What is going on?"

-"Why are there MBO officers here?"

Some of the fans within the vicinity who were initially dancing and vibing to Yusha's performance, stopped as they noticed the MBO officers arriving in droves.

The instant the MBO officers arrived, they commenced the operation.

Spreading out, each of them placed a circular and metallic looking device on the ground within the multitude of fans.

The fans were clueless as to what was going on but no MBO member gave any form of explanation.

- "Dove C planted,"

- "Dove E planted,"

- "Dove H planted,"

- "Dove V planted,"

The MBO officers reported through the comms one after the other and in a couple of seconds, a command was heard.

"All doves successfully planted, all officers should activate their shielding armors now,"

The officers in the vicinity did as told and in the next instant...

Zzzzhiiiiinnngg~

The circular and metallic devices planted on the ground gave off a very bright fluorescent glow.

Afterwards, every single fan within the AOC of this glow, vanished.

"Uh?"

The fans that were left in the vicinity and had witnessed the disappearance of the others became wary.

Some of them tried to run and escape the area but of course, the MBO officers were well skilled and more powerful than ordinary mixedbloods so they easily handled the situation.

With every planting of the doves and activation, up to fifty thousand fans would be teleported in an instance.

Chapter 1149 The Arrival Of The Culprits

The candidates that were initially getting thrown across the place, found stability as the suit glued them to the floor of the spacecraft.

With this, they began making their way forward in a bit to understand what exactly was happening.

Within the control room, Gustav sat in place with metallic straps connected to his body as he looked up ahead.

The pilots and the navigators had looks of horrors as they tapped on multiple buttons while the lights in the entire control room kept flickering.

From the transparent glass walls up ahead, all that could be seen was strobing red lines of light. They were transverse a world of complete red and Gustav could tell that this gateway wouldn't lead to anywhere good.

His eyes formed slits as he peered forward with a suspicious but calm gaze.

'This was a set up,' He instantly came to this conclusion.

("We're gonna appear somewhere different in the next second,") The system suddenly informed him.

Tap! Tap! Tap!

Gustav tapped on his dimensional bracelet at very quick pace and activated it in less than a second.

<Unable To Access Dimensional Energy>

The bracelet displayed this information which caused Gustav's face to deepen with suspicions.

He initially wanted to try if the bracelet could transport the entire spacecraft away before they arrived at the other side of the gateway but unfortunately this was the result.

It didn't make sense to Gustav considering they were in a dimensional gateway at the moment which increased his suspicions.

"We are being drawn to the other side, we can't make a getaway," The pilot yelled with a disturbed look.

"Activate the drift beam!"

"It isn't functional!"

"The jumpback checkpoint beam?"

"Also currently unoperational!"

"We have to do something before..."

"It is too late,"

Zzzhiiiiinnnnnn~

A golden light suddenly illuminated the entire area and sucked the spacecraft into it.

Thiiinnn~

They appeared within an unknown area in the next instant.

The functionality of the entire spacecraft came to a stop at this point as everything turned off. The engines, the lights, the navigation systems...

The spacecraft began slowly drifting in this unknown space without any direction.

"The sticky void..." One of the pilots voiced with a defeated tone as he looked up ahead after letting go of the control jockey.

"Whatever that means... I can tell it isn't anything nice," Gustav unstrapped himself as he stood to his feet.

He moved forward as well to scrutinize this unknown part of space where they had appeared in.

All that could be seen in the vicinity were glowing golden sands in different areas. Not a single star could be sighted in this part of space but one could see a cluster of floating rocks towards the south east.

It really didn't look like they had arrived anywhere special from what Gustav could see but he knew there was more to this unknown part of space than met the eyes.

[God Eyes Has Been Activated]

"Hmm?" Gustav let out an exclamation of confusion as he looked around with God Eyes Activated.

Everything would usually have a kind of reading and different look whenever he activated God Eyes but surprisingly Everything in this part of space remained its usual color.

There was no reading, there was no difference like they weren't really there.

"What is up with this?" Gustav wondered as he took another step forward.

Fhiinnnnzzhhh~

He suddenly felt a strange energy as his body let off slight afterimage before returning to normal.

This was something that shouldn't be happening unless he was making use of his speed so it made things even more confusing.

"We won't be able to leave here without help," The other pilot stated.

"What exactly is this place?" Gustav questioned.

"It is a part of space that is usually avoided by spacecraft pilots and captain..." Grand commander Shion suddenly appeared within the control room.

"Why?" Gustav questioned.

"Because everything that finds itself here gets trapped and eventually gets snuffed out of existence," Grand commander Shion replied.

"Usually there is a 0 percent chance of the pilots will make a mistake that would lead us here which means... we got here through unknown means," He added.

Gustav was still waiting for them to explain why this sticky void was as bad as they said it was.

"We believe the orion two gateway was sabotaged which led us to a different location than intended," The pilot voiced out.

"The question now is who or what is responsible for the sabotage and what their aim is," Grand Commander Shion's face displayed a calm but deep expression.

"How exactly do we perish here? Can't the engines be restarted?" Gustav questioned.

"The sticky void works by..." Just as Great commander Shion was about to explain, a bright glow of light drew everyone's attention.

A spacecraft surrounded by a weird milky bubble suddenly appeared up ahead.

All of the IYSOP candidates and substitutes had gathered in the sitting area so they had all witnessed the appearance of this strange spacecraft amidst their confusion.

Their faces displayed an even more conflicted expression upon the appearance of this dark spacecraft.

"What is going on?" This was still the question running through the minds of everyone.

A male with a dark helmet suddenly appeared above the spacecraft a moment later. Dark tentacles could be seen protruding from his sides and he was well over ten feet tall as he stood proudly above the spacecraft.

Twwhii~ Thwwii~

Two others appeared and stood right beside him as they stared directly at the IYSOP spacecraft.

---SS

of media outlets were buzzing with this information a lot of people wonder what the cause could be.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

All of a sudden white streaks fell from the skies and landed in the premises of the conventional centre.

-"An unknown group in white battle mech have just arrived at the venue,"

While Breaking the news, another crazy scenario began playing out.

"Get into the conventional centre and assist the other team," The whitish mech in the middle of the five that had just arrived, voiced out with a commanding tone.

The MBO officers who were in the vicinity took notice of their arrival and actively approached them.

-----SSSS

concert had begun.

Initially, it was meant to be an eight hours concert and the nanites was set to explode when the event was at its peak.

With the Genxodus figuring out about the MBO having knowledge about thier plan, they needed to speed up the process now.

Gustav knew there was no guarantee the nanites wouldn't explode before the set time since the Genxodus might become aware. This was why he actively searched for suspicious looking fellows before he activated Night Eye.

Delaying them was possible through this.

("The MBO officers are currently in a battle with a bunch of suspicious people they suspect to be Genxodus members,") The system reported.

'My haunch was right... they sent a group to manually detonate it. Looks like they really don't care for even their own subordinates...'

The team that had been sent to detonate the nanites manually would definitely perish here as well if they went through with it. Yet they still showed up to display their unfettered loyalty to the organisation.

'We're they brainwashed?' Gustav couldn't understand how they'd just throw their lives away for this.

Gustav retained his focus on trying to complete the night projection while the MBO engaged the Genxodus members they had come into contact with.

Since Gustav was now assured of their presence, he tried to speed things up because there was no saying what could happen now.

--

- "Breaking News! For reasons unknown MBO officers have been clearing fans within the premises of the conventional centre!"

- "We bring you live news from the location of the event! The MBO officers taking fans away without permission..."

News outlets began showing footages of flashing lights on the ground where the fans had cooped themselves up while the concert went on within the conventional centre.

Social media and all sorts of media outlets were buzzing with this information a lot of people wonder what the cause could be.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

All of a sudden white streaks fell from the skies and landed in the premises of the conventional centre.

- "An unknown group in white battle mech have just arrived at the venue,"

While Breaking the news, another crazy scenario began playing out.

"Get into the conventional centre and assist the other team," The whitish mech in the middle of the five that had just arrived, voiced out with a commanding tone.

The MBO officers who were in the vicinity took notice of their arrival and actively approached

The person reporting voiced out with an apologetic tone.

"They are trying to get as many people as possible away! This can ruin our plans of causing a major catastrophe!"

"Activate the nanites now!"

One of the figures commanded.

-"It will take us a few minutes to do so manually since we are no longer using the timer,"

The figure disclosed.

"Speed things up and get it done as soon as possible," One of the dark figures commanded yet again.

-"Yes leader, we will do our best,"

The communication was cut off at this point.

"How in the world did they figure out our ploy?" One of the dark figures voiced with a tone of bafflement.

-"Do we have a mole?"

Chapter 1150 Count Me In

-(The Sticky Void)

Grand commander Shion's original speed had been interfered with due to the laws of the sticky void.

The unknown assailants were aware that someone as powerful as Grand Commander Shion would be able to break out of the void due to his strength but the hinderance from the void had delayed him quite a bit.

This was why they had acted very quickly in removing him from the equation as they had not expected someone this powerful to be on the ship.

They were well aware of the powerlevel of the IYSOP candidates being unable to contend against the laws of the sticky void so the plan looked solid without Grand Commander Shion's existence.

"Phew..." The captain of the assailants let out a sigh of relief after Grand Commander Shion's disappearance.

"Don't expect to be saved... we sent him very very far from here!" He stated with a strong tone afterwards.

"Now send Gustav Crimson out if you all wish to survive," He added.

Within the spacecraft the candidates all stared at each other with conflicted looks as they struggled to come up with an answer to this unexpected predicament.

-"Where is Gustav?"

-"I haven't seen him since,"

-"I think i saw him heading for the control room,"

-"We can't believe this maniacs! They are definitely lying,"

Gustav who was stationed in the control room all this time finally stepped out.

Thisssshhh~

A metallic shutter like door slid open up ahead and they watched as an irrefutably domineering presence walked towards them.

"I'll go," Gustav voiced out amidst the chatters and stares.

"Uh?"

"We dont even know what they want with you?"

"It definitely isn't anything good,"

Matilda, Angy and Aildris voiced out simultaneously.

"Send Gustav out now if you want to survive," The voice of the captain rang out once more.

"Let us try to communicate with them first to finf out why they want him," Falco suggested.

Aildris tapped on some controls attached to the spacesuit which had a space transmission function.

Although everything on the spacecraft had stopped working, the spacesuit still functioned well. The only bad part was they couldn't use the spacesuit to communicate with others at very long distances.

"Incoming transmission link," Rick stated from within the other spacecraft.

"Hmm from the kids? Okay accept it," The captain responded from above.

Thirrihhzz~

A small static sound rang out before a masculine voice was heard.

-"Why do you lots want Gustav Crimson?"

"Who do you think we are and what do you think we do?" The captain questioned in response.

"That is for you to reveal and for me to listen," Aildris replied with a calm tone.

"You've got spunk kid... we are Intergalactic bounty hunters. We've got a contract for the Gustav Crimson's head," The captain replied while his dark tentacles kept waving.

"So you have plans of killing him?" Aildris inquired.

"Yes... that is what having a contract for his head means," The captain replied with a weird tone.

"Unfortunately, we will have to refuse," Aildris replied.

"You kids don't have a choice. Either you give him to us or you die here along with him," The captain stated.

"You kids are lucky Rick doesn't want any collateral damage which is why we are willing to save the rest of you. Should you kids decide to hand Gustav over, you get to live," He added.

"Hmm I am guessing we all perish in this place if we fail to find our way out?" Aildris questioned in a knowing manner.

"Yes. The sticky void keeps you within and then shrink everything within to a molecular level till eventually you all vanish so even if we chose not to do anything, Gustav Crimson will still perish here. We are just being generous right now," The captain revealed.

Gasp~

Within the IYSOP spacecraft, the candidate gasped in terror upon the revelation of how dangerous the sticky void was.

'Just as I thought,' Gustav said internally as he slightly raised his left hand.

Afterimages appeared with every movement which was another insight Gustav took notice of upon their arrival here.

He could already sense the difference and how their internal anatomy as well as the anatomy of everything within this part of space was slowly changing.

Movement was immensely difficult because it felt like you had to travel longer to get to where you wanted to be and Gustav sense it would be even worse outside the spacecraft.

"If you kids want to get out of here, I suggest you hand over Gustav Crimson," The captain stated once more.

The spacecraft was currently unoperational since the pilots and navigator had tried their best in starting it but nothing worked.

if they had not knocked out the engines and energy systems of the spacecraft, the pilots would have been able to activate a jump that would get them out of the sticky void.

'Looks like they calculated properly before they made their move,' Gustav could see that the intergalactic bounty hunters actions were almost flawless to this point.

"Why are you lots unaffected?" Aildris asked through the comms.

"So long as we are inside this bubble, the laws of the sticky void will not apply to us. We are truly your only ticket out of here," The captain replied.

"So... as long as we can get into that bubble we're safe?" Aildris inquired.

"Yes," The captain responded.

"Alright then, we'll just switch spacecraft," Aildris stated.

"What do you mean by that?" The captain questioned with a confused tone.

"It means we're not giving Gustav up you punk ass bitch," E.E's loud voice suddenly rang out through the comms.

"Who is that vulgar creature?" The captain sounded irritated as he spoke.

"Go ask your granny motherfuc*er cos we bout to send you on a one way ticket to the afterlife," E.E replied with a loud laughter which caused everyone in the vicinity to also began laughing.

The tensed atmosphere turned lighter upon E.E's remark causing everyone to relax a bit as they looked into the situation.

"I don't know about you guys but I really wanna whoop these bounty hunters asses," E.E stated.

"They're getting on my nerves too calling us kids," Fildhor voiced from the side with a annoyed look.

"I'm in for the ass whooping," Teemee announced.

"This sounds fun, count me in," Sheila giggled while voicing out.

"Count me in too," Angy yelled out.

"Me too,"

"Me too,"

"Me too,"

This created a domino effect in which everyone except for Gustav agreed to deal with the Intergalactic bounty hunters.

---SS

Three officers landed hits on different body parts of the same mech again, causing it to fall to its knees as another fist size hole was left on its armor.

The MBO officers were winning but they had no idea this was a distraction.

-

In another part of the Conventional centre, two Genxodus members with black masks squatted and hid themselves within the multitude of fans.

-"Status report,"

"Currently setting up the remote connector," One of them answered through their secret comms.

- "How long?"

"In three minutes it will be ready and we will blast this place to kingdom come,"

The same masked member reported once more.

On the ground they had a row of bar like metals set on the ground.

- "How is the signal looking?"

- "All good, it's almost set..."

From the looks of things, in three minutes the Genxodus would manually detonate the nanites.

-

- "Hold on for at least three minutes,"

Every Genxodus member who had equipped the mech heard this announcement through the comms.

At this point, three had been put out of commission but the members were still within.

"Stay down or you will perish right now!"

One of the MBO officers voiced out to the mech on the ground in front of them.

"It is very unwise to engage us knowing we do not care about the lives of anyone here," A voice was heard from the person within the mech.

"Huh?" The MBO officers exclaimed while they moved closer.

"Detonate!"

The instant the MBO officers heard this their eyes widened...

"Get d..."

Booom!

The mech exploded in the next instant, engulfing a radius of a thousand feet in an instant.

Fwwhooommm~

A blueish sphere suddenly appeared around the flames, trapping them in a kind of bubble before they could spread any further.

Unfortunately, some fans were caught in the range of the flames and were quickly turned into barbecue.

"Shit!" One of the officers yelled out after witnessing this unfortunate sight, however they didn't know that this wasn't the end...

"Detonate..."

"Detonate..."

The other two that had been put down as well also detonated their mech.

-

Booommm! Booommm!

"Huh? What was that?" Gustav wondered out loud as he felt the vibration from the original dimensional frequency.

His original body was still passed out in place so he could sense his surroundings were in shambles.

"I can't waste any more time here, I need to get rid of this as soon as possible," Despite saying this, Gustav was still unsure of how to do this.

What he was staring at was something that had no switches or buttons he could operate so he was at a loss on how to deal with this.