

Bloodline 1151

Chapter 1151 Enjoying The Show

"Huh?" The instant he turned around a punch was already headed for his face.

Bang!

E.E's fist made contact with a crew member who the captain had grabbed with his dark tentacles and placed in front of him at the last instant.

Bleerrghh~

The crew member vomited out blood within his spacesuit helmet, causing the internal glass walls to be stained.

"Oops," E.E jumped back after missing the punch.

Swwwiiiiieehhh~

A dark tentacles swept across the place he had just leapt away from but it didn't stop and kept stretching forward.

"Now that my dimensional abilities are no longer hindered..." E.E smiled while snapping his finger.

Zhoosshh!

A violet vortex suddenly appeared right in front of him before the elongated tentacle could get to him.

Contrary to E.E's expectations, the dark tentacle suddenly turned illusionary and phased through the vortex without getting teleported.

"Uh oh," E.E realised this a bit too late as the tentacle had arrived right before his face.

Zhiiii~

A figure suddenly appeared right beside E.E and grabbed hold of the tentacle before it made contact with E.E.

"Aildris," E.E beamed with joy.

Aildris nodded at him before voicing out, "Color absorption,"

A strange phenomenon suddenly occurred where the black from the tentacle drained at quick pace.

fwwhii~

The captain quickly tried pulling the tentacle back but it was too late. The color had drained completely and it looked like a piece of paper.

"What in the world?" The captain could no longer feel any energy from that particular tentacle and could not control it as well.

Half of Aildris right arm had turned dark like the tentacle color and he raised it slightly.

The darkened part of his arm turned illusionary for a bit before returning to normal, "Thank you for this," Aildris stated.

"Let's get him," E.E yelled out before charging forward.

"I will teach you kids a lesson!" The captain yelled out as well as more tentacles shot out of his back while he charged forward as well.

Within the spacecraft, everywhere had turned chaotic as the candidates battled with the crew members.

Angy tried not to rip the place apart with her speed as he sped forward while grabbing the bodies of the crew members and slamming them against the walls.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

The sounds of collisions rang out across the place. The spacecraft which was larger than a football pitch vibrated intensely as the candidates battled against the bounty hunters.

Within one of the corridors a man with black scarf covering half his face was moving forward at quick pace when two substitutes suddenly arrived before him.

"You must be one of the crew members,"

"Let's get him,"

The male and female candidates charged forward instantly.

"I didn't want to hurt you kids before but now you leave me no choice," Rick voiced as he slowly pulled the scarf off his face.

Zzzhooooiinnnn~

A bright light was instantly emitted from the side of his face as the two who charged at him displayed expressions of horror in the next instant.

-

In another part of the spacecraft, Falco moved around with a dark burning flame on his forehead.

"I told you I didn't want this," Falco voiced out like he was talking to himself which made the crew members around him display weird looks.

"No, you come out and take the wheel,"

"Bastard, I don't want this," Falco kept speaking while moving forward.

The crew members charged at him with weapons and all sort of supernatural abilities.

Falco turned his face to the side and the burning dark flame on his forehead increased.

"Kyaaahhhhhh!"

The crew members who happened to be closest to him fell to their knees and began writhing in pain.

"Arrrghhh!"

"It burns!!!!"

"Kiarrrrhhh! Make it stop! Make it stop!"

They yelled and rolled on the floor in pain while begging with tears flowing from their eyes.

The others who were also charging forward initially stopped in place with looks of confusion on their faces.

They stared at their subordinates on the floor and still couldn't understand what was happening. Their bodies looked okay and physically it seemed like they were unharmed so they were at loss as to what was going on.

"Fine! Fine! Just this one time," Falco said out loud once more causing them to wonder if he had a few screws loose in his head.

'Good my king! Relish the feeling of darkness!' Dark Falco voiced in his head.

"Shut up. Don't say none of that," After voicing this out a massive dark scythe appeared in Falco's grasp while he swung forward.

SwwhwiiiiIIshhh~

The entire spacecraft instantly vibrated immensely as a large cut tore through the walls and left a holes within.

"Shit that was too much," Falco voiced out while piles on torn up bodies could be seen scattered across the place.

Fwwhwoouhhh~

A suction force came from the side of the spacecraft which now had a long spacious cut but Falco was unaffected due to the spacesuit.

However, even if he was to get sucked out, the bubble covering the spacecraft would still stop him from drifting through space.

-

"As expected, the spacecraft isn't going to hold with how much damage they are causing," Gustav watched from his seating position with God Eyes Activated.

He could see every corner of the spacecraft and it was almost as if he was witnessing everything going on like he was right there.

A container holding popcorn was stationed in between his laps as he occasionally grabbed some and stuffed his mouth full.

"Oh? Those substitutes are pretty strong too," Gustav made another remark as he took note of a group of substitutes that arrived at the upper part of the spacecraft with coordination.

They blasted their way through a group of crew members who were using spatial bombs.

Fortunately the spatial bombs didn't make contact with any of them or their body parts would have been forcefully teleported to different locations in space.

Which of course meant instant death...

"Some of the enemies crew have abilities while some only have good weapons..." Gustav analysed as he kept eating his popcorn.

("Out of the hundred and nine crew members, only around thirteen of them are truly threats. I don't think the whole group will come out of this unscathed,") The system said internally.

"Watch the corridor before the control room... we're about to have our first casualty," Gustav announced to the system.

Since the system was within him, it could obviously see everything as well and instantly understood what Gustav was talking about.

Just as he had mentioned, two candidates disappeared.

"That is the most dangerous person on the spacecraft right now. Even more dangerous than the captain," Gustav voiced before stuffing his mouth full once more.

("If he joins hands with the captain, E.E and Aildris will have it more difficult up there,") The system stated as well.

"He won't be able to... He is about to make contact with Elevora is a bit further away," Gustav replied.

("Wait... you are right. I don't sense any worry from you... you truly don't intend to help them?") The system questioned.

"No. I won't be interfering in the battle. They can handle themselves," Gustav sounded like a proud father as he voiced with a smile.

Gustav wasn't bothered with sitting this out after witnessing how powerful his teammates had become.

He was truly proud of them especially seeing as they had new abilities that could easily level the spacecraft if they weren't holding back.

"That spacecraft won't last for long so we'll have to look for another means of leaving the sticky void... or..." An idea suddenly flashed in Gustav's mind as he stared at a particular part of the spacecraft.

"Yeah... we could use that," Gustav smirked upon sighting what he was looking for.

-

Atop the spacecraft, E.E and Aildris had successfully dealt lot of blows to the captain who happened to be very durable.

However, it was quite obvious that both of them had the upper hand.

"Color absorbion..." Aildris voiced out once more as he appeared on the left of the captain while his hand was directly placed upon another tentacle.

"You bastard!" The captain yelled while another tentacle appeared from behind Aildris and stabbed forward.

Fwwhiii~

A vortex appeared right in between and the tentacle phased in before appeared in front of the captain's chest.

His eyes widened as he quickly turned the tentacle illusory, causing it to phase through him instead of piercing through.

Aildris who was by the side threw a punch at the captain's face causing him to get blasted backwards once once more as his face displayed a look of fury.

Thwwiiih~

Multiple dark tentacles shot out of the captain's back while his body was traveling in mid air and they all stabbed towards Aildris.

Fhoomm~

Aldris disappeared into a vortex in the next instant arriving behind the captain along side E.E.

Fwwhoop~ Fwwhoop~

They both threw out fierce punches at the captain's blind spots which he realised too late.

Bang! Bang!

Chapter 1152 You Can Go All Out

Fwwhoop~ Fwwhoop~

They both threw out fierce punches at the captain's blind spots which he realised too late.

Bang! Bang!

The combined forces from both punches sent him reeling across the air in the opposite direction once more as he puked out blood.

Pah!

Thrrraahhh~

The captain quickly stabbed his dark tentacles into the top of the spacecraft to stop the movement of his body.

Blood kept trailing down his mouth within the helmet. He glared forward with a look of anguish at his opponents.

'These kids are no ordinary kids,' He internally came to this realisation.

E.E and Aildris were about to charge forward once more when a figure suddenly appeared from an elevated stand that brought him to the top of the spacecraft.

Unlike the others, this figure was clad in red spacesuit and had a feminine build. However it was impossible to see her facial looks due to the darkness of her helmet.

"Tiara... you came at the right time," The captain stated grudgingly.

"Captain Gantz how did you get so injured by two kids?" She questioned while moving towards him.

"They're not ordinary kids, if you underestimate them you will come to regret it gravely," The captain replied with a strong tone.

"Sure oldie," She said after arriving before him.

E.E and Aildris glanced at each other before nodding.

Thissshh~

They both charged forward once more, however the moment they took a step forward the newcomer raised both her hands...

Sshrrrrriiiuuuhhhh!

A sudden wave of circular energy instantly covered up the vicinity as the crew member who had just arrived vanished.

"The hell?" E.E voiced with a shocked tone as the surroundings turned a little darker.

Aildris could feel a certain chill in the air which caused his hairs to stand on hair.

Zhinn~

The female figure suddenly appeared behind him with a blade two inches away and about to slice his head off.

E.E mouth widened as he turned to the side. It seemed like time had paused as the Captain also appeared in front of Aildris at this instant stabbing tentacles towards his ribs.

"Shit!"

#####

"What? They disappeared?"

-"Yes and we can't make contact with them,"

"How is that even possible?"

-"We don't understand as well. Grand commander Shion is off comms too,"

"How long has it been?"

-"Four days,"

"Four days!? You waited four days to tell me?"

-"Young miss- I..."

"You dimwit!"

A conversation ensued between Miss Aimee and an MBO agent that came to report an issue with her. They were currently at the MBO tower and fury had begun to build up within miss Aimee.

"Did you know about it too?" She turned to glare at Gradier Xanatus who seemed to be glued in place from pressure.

"I had no idea as well," He responded while shaking his head.

"Why did you wait so long to tell us you..." Miss Aimee's anguish was starting to twist the air in the room.

"Young miss we should be more concerned about where they are and how to find them," Gradier Xanatus quickly voiced out before her fury would turn the officer into mincemeat.

Someone could get obliterated from her fury alone and there was nothing the MBO would be able to do about it.

Misd Aimee immediately calmed down afterwards and turned to stare at Gradier Xanatus.

"We already have a lot on our plate as it is. I wonder which idiot is behind this! I will rip them to pieces!" Miss Aimee stated with a strong tone.

"It might not even be what you think... there are a myriad of possibilities," Gradier Xanatus said with a calming tone.

"Where was their last notable location before they vanished?" Gradier Xanatus asked the officer.

The officer who had a device in his grasp, operated it and a holographic screen appeared.

"Let's go," Miss Aimee commanded while turned around to head for the exit.

"Huh?" Gradier Xanatus stared at her from his position with a look of confusion.

"I don't know how to use that thing so follow me," Miss Aimee voiced before she resumed her movement.

'Just like that?' Gradier Xanatus was still wrapping his head around how powerful she was as he quickened his pace to catch up with her.

"Are you not going to make use of your original self?" He inquired after catching up with Miss Aimee.

"This avatar is more than enough to deal with any intergalactic threat... except for that eye," She replied.

"What if that eye is responsible?" Gradier Xanatus asked once more.

"It isn't... I have met enough dumb people to know this isn't related to that. My intuition tells me a stupid person is responsible for this," Miss Aimee voiced solemnly before grabbing Gradier Xanatus and speeding out of the building.

"And I won't spare them," She added as they disappeared into the skies at high speed.

Fwwhooommm~

All Gradier Xanatus noticed was they had somehow arrived in deep space in just a matter of moments.

'She's insanely fast,' He yelled internally.

-"Breaking News!"

-"The IYSOP Candidates Spacecraft is reported missing!"

-"The MBO are currently doing their best to locate it,"

news was being broadcasted across the world.

On the earth, the IYSOP candidates left nine days ago meanwhile in the sticky void the candidates were sure they had only been gone for five days.

#####

-(The Sticky Void)

"Yeah it's just right after that door... there are two crew members there," Gustav voiced through the comms.

"Hold on... there's someone coming your way," Gustav tone turned a bit worried.

"Teemee, go meet up with Phinx at the engine room. You're the closest to her," He added.

- "I'm a little busy... I'm sure you can see," Teemee replied through the comms.

"Leave it to Falco," Gustav instructed.

- "Falco isn't..."

"He's coming up behind you. Leave the enemy right now and go back Phinx up,"

Teemee stopped arguing at this point and Gustav could see he had suddenly left the enemy and began running away.

The crew member was baffled and wanted to go after him until he felt a dark presence in the vicinity.

His being was glued to place and in the next few moments, he felt cold hands crawling all over the back of his neck.

"How do you wish to die," A cold voice that caused a his heart to nearly jump out of his chest rang out.

The fingers reached the top of his head and grabbed onto it firmly from behind.

"I asked you a question... how do you wish to die?"

-

Meanwhile at the engine room Phinx had broken into it and beaten up the two crew members within.

Just as she was about to pull a glowing grey stone out of a storage unit in the engine room a large presence appeared behind her.

"You are not taking that!" The massive figure voiced out while throwing an attack forward.

At this same instant Teemee arrived.

"Pull it out right now," Gustav instructed as soon as the presence got distracted by Teemee's arrival.

Phinx grabbed hold of the glowing grey stone at this point while the dark figure reached out to grab her as well.

Pah!

Teemee slapped the hand of the figure before he could get hold of phinx.

"Hyaaah!" Phinx cried out as she pulled the grey stone from the storage unit.

"You little bitch!" The figure yelled the instant she pulled it out.

The entire vicinity suddenly turned weird as the sound of a powering down machine rang out.

"Good job," Gustav praised over the comms.

Outside the spacecraft, the bubble covering them had holes appearing over as it shrieked before eventually disappearing.

E.E and Aildris who had been getting their asses handed to them since the arrival of the female figure, paused.

Everyone paused at this point as they felt a certain way. Moving their arms created afterimages and was even more strenuous.

"E.E, Aildris... you two can go all out now... Don't worry about the spacecraft getting destroyed," Gustav voiced through the comms.

E.E and Aildris turned to stare at each other as wide grins appeared on their faces.

"Go all out and show them... show them they made a deadly mistake by messing with the wrong crew," Gustav voiced was like fuel as E.E and Aildris, unleashed their full bloodline energies.

Fwwwhooommmm~

With the sudden outburst, despite the restriction of the sticky void since the bubble had been compromised, they still caused the entire spacecraft to quake intensely.

The captain and female figure beside him had widened eyes as they stared at the two.

'They were holding back?' This question rang through their minds like alarm bells.

"Color grading... Restructuring,"

As Aildris let out this whisper, the world around them suddenly went from its present state to colorless and then from colorless to a spectrum of colors.

He stretched forth his hand at the two hostiles whose eyes were still widened in shock and fear.

"Monster!"

Chapter 1153 Another Threat?

He stretched forth his hand at the two hostiles whose eyes were still widened in shock and fear.

"Monster!" The captain yelled out just before his figure melted.

Purrruhhhbblllee~

"Dimension of colours..." The spectrum of light formed walls on both sides of the enemies.

They tried to escape but they couldn't and in a couple of moments the walls of colorful lights boxed them in completely.

The captain and the female figure melted like butter and turned into a puddle of color that got absorbed into the walls.

Aldris snapped his finger and the walls dissapeared in the next instant.

"Damn! You didn't even leave some for me," E.E exclaimed with an expression of disbelief.

"Sorry i got a little too carried away," Aldris displayed an apologetic smile as he voiced out.

"~Fiuuu~" E.E whistled as he was still astonished by the display he had just witnessed.

There was a large hole atop the spacecraft at this point as Aldris ability had affected it

-

Meanwhile, Gustav had stood up from his watching point and was currently atop the IYSOP spacecraft.

Zing~

A head shaped but transparent item appeared before him. The item had a fist sized gleam of light within and floated before Gustav as the light occasionally flickered.

"Get the stone," Gustav commanded.

The sacred jewel floated a bit forward and left afterimages behind as it only moved a couple of feet forward.

Zzzhiiiiinnnn~

Its entirety glowed intensely as a bolt of light shot forth from it.

It pierced through the laws of the sticky void and soon arrived before the intergalactic bounty hunters spacecraft.

In the next instant it disappeared and a glowing greyish stone appeared before the Sacred Jewel.

Hands grew out of the sacred jewels glassy circumference and it grabbed onto the stone before flying towards Gustav.

Gustav received the stone from the sacred jewel and nodded, "Good job,"

He said before bringing an energy crystal out of his storage device and handing it to the sacred Jewel.

The sacred Jewel seemed happy as the light within flickered even more before it disappeared into thin air.

"With this, there shouldn't be anymore problems," Gustav voiced out as he held the glowing grey stone before his face.

"Do you guys need help destroying the spacecraft or should I do it myself?" Gustav voiced through the comms as he stretched out his right arm.

- "Don't you dare Gus,"

- "We're having a lot of fun here,"

- "We'll do it ourselves,"

Gustav chuckled as he heard their responses.

He slowly lowered his arm, "You guys have less than a minute to clean things up," He stated.

In that same moment a purplish beam tore through the spacecraft from within, splitting the entire thing in two.

"Ouu," Gustav exclaimed as he swerved towards the right.

The remnant of the destructive beam blasted past his initial position.

"Be careful with that Elevora," Gustav said through the comms.

"You gave us permission to go all out. Don't complain," She responded.

Gustav clicked his tongue in pity for the opponent she had just obliterated.

The sticky void laws were causing them to shrink and reducing the output of their abilities yet the initial ability was still so powerful.

Gustav moved back into the IYSOP spacecraft and headed to the engine room with the stone in his grasp.

"I will activate the bubble when everyone gets back in the spacecraft," He announced.

In a couple of seconds a blinding glows began to appear in different spots within the IYSOP spacecraft.

The candidates were reappearing one after the other and from the transparent view of the walls, a violet gate could be seen standing atop what was left of the intergalactic bounty hunters spacecraft.

When the last IYSOP candidates phased into the violet colored gate, the gate which seemed to be in the form of a person disappeared as well.

The remnant of a once mighty and menacing looking spacecraft could be seen drifting into space along with its multiple disjointed parts.

"We're back in Gus," Aildris voiced through the comms.

"Good... its now time to activate the stone," Gussyav replied through the comms.

"Pilots, prepare to restart the engine," Gustav voiced through the comms.

The pilots in the control room replied immediately but they were still reeling in shock from the kids handling this intergalactic bounty hunters that had handled the situation.

In a couple of moments, a milky colored bubble began forming around their spacecraft.

- "Hey i don't feel restricted anymore,"

- "Me too, i no longer feel sluggish,"

- "I've grown back to my original height,"

The IYSOP candidates began to voice out their observations.

Gustav appeared from the hallway in the next instant and they all stared at him with thoughtful gazes.

"Good job out there you all," Gustav commended them and they bursted out in uproar.

"Yeaahhh!"

"We did it!"

They seemed proud of themselves. Although some had disheartened looks and Gustav was instantly able to tell that these were close friends of the casualties that had fallen from their side.

It was absolutely normal for them to have a couple of casualties and there was nothing anyone could do about it.

Their numbers had lessened from fifty to forty-four. On the bright side there wasn't a lot of casualties however, every single casualty was a substitute member.

Gustav wasn't too surprised about this since the main members were way more powerful after the oasis...

Trrinn~ Trrinn~

The pilots had restarted the engines of the spacecraft and they worked perfectly within the bubble.

"He must be the one the captain was talking about," Gustav voiced out as he approached a person kneeling on the floor bound by dark glowing chains.

"Yeah he is Rick, the co captain," Aildris replied.

Gustav arrived in front of Rick who raised his head to stare at him with a blank look.

"The scarf covering part of his face... its because that power activates when it's revealed, right?" Gustav questioned already he already knew the answer since he witnessed the whole saga.

"That's why we had to leave it covered or he would trap anyone he stared at here in that unknown realm," Teemee replied this time.

"You are Gustav Crimson... all of you are true monsters," Rick voiced with a regretful tone.

He couldn't imagine how powerful Gustav was currently after witnessing the strength of his peers. Their data had been completely wrong because it gave info of the candidates strength from months back.

They had calculated their current strength based on that and it caused their failure.

"You wanted to spare everyone else and only let your crew members kill me... I commend you for that but who sent you guys after me?" Gustav questioned as they spacecraft began to move.

"The group known as Genxodus gave us a contract for your head over four months ago. It was good profit and the captain couldn't turn it down despite your status," Rick explained.

"Hmm I see. But I am sure you lots are aware the Genxodus got taken down. Why still do the job?" Gustav inquired.

"Because the contracted protocols let's us get payment regardless so long as the job is done," Rick responded.

"I see," Gustav nodded in understanding.

"Can we kill him now? He is responsible for murdering Debby!" A substitute appeared from the side while voicing out.

Without explaining, Gustav could tell Debby was one of the substitutes who met her demise at Rick's hand.

"Hold on... can you bring them back?" Gustav questioned Rick.

"Once anyone has been sucked into the VI realm, they can never return," Rick shook his head.

"Oh I guess this is where you meet your end then..." Gustav stated and was about moving away when a sudden presence caused the spacecraft to be hooked in place.

Zzhiinnnn~

The spacecraft had just disappeared from the sticky void a while ago through a teleportation that caused them to appear right in front of the Orion two gateway.

This was the same gateway they flew into and ended up in the diminishing void almost a day ago.

The instant they reappeared here the bubble surrounding the IYSOP spacecraft disappeared.

The pilots were initially on tenterhooks on whether or not to use the gateway again.

After making the decision to head to the third gateway point which would cause more delays in their travel, they decided to move.

However at this instant the spacecraft paused in space as it found itself unable to move.

Gustav and the others within the spacecraft had darkened faces as they felt an unfathomable force descend upon the spacecraft, pausing them in place.

"What is going on again?" A candidate voiced out with a tone of terror.

What they were all feeling at this moment was something they were sure they wouldn't be able to fight with.

Zzzhiiinnn~

A whitish figure suddenly appeared right in front of the spacecraft with flowing robes. She looked like an ethereal cosmic entity that was far above the level of mortal men.

Her eyes looked sharpened as she peered directly into the spacecraft like she was looking for someone.

"Miss Aimee?" Gustav voiced with a tone of surprise.

Chapter 1154 Siphoning Memories

Her eyes looked sharpened as she peered directly into the spacecraft like she was looking for someone.

"Miss Aimee?" Gustav voiced with a tone of surprise.

Miss Aimee who happened to be the ethereal looking deity that took everyone by surprise and caused the spacecraft to halt in space.

She floated closer to the spacecraft made use of her finger to draw a rectangular draw on the wall.

Fwwhii~

Miss Aimee instantly moved into the spacecraft along with another person who seemed to be behind her all this time.

"Are you okay kids?" Miss Aimee questioned while floating towards Gustav.

- "Who is she?"

- "Is she?"

Some candidates had no idea who Miss Aimee was while some had looks of astonishment and realisation.

"We're fine," Gustav replied with a smile as she arrived before him.

"That's a relief," Miss Aimee said while ruffling Gustav's hair.

"Yo its miss Aimee," E.E voiced from the side as the others gathered around her with smiles as well.

- "I heard she's a goddess,"

- "Yeah man she created a whole planet with life,"

- "Damn just how powerful is she?"

The candidates discussed about miss Aimee in the background.

"What are you doing here?" Gustav questioned.

"Your spacecraft was reported missing..." Miss Aimee replied.

"And it has already been a week," Gradier Xanatus added from behind.

"WHAT?"

Gustav wasn't the only one who voiced out in shock, the others were stupefied as well.

"We've only been gone for a day," Falco stated from the side.

"We set out to find your spacecraft on the fourth day from earth and it has been three days since then, making it a total of one week," Gradier Xanatus explained.

"That would mean the sticky void also affects time," Gustav came to this conclusion.

"It does... your atoms and everything within shrinks including time. Since the laws of the sticky void shrinks time therefore making it slower, the original time outside the sticky void moves at a normal pace," Rick who was still in a kneeling position explained.

"Sticky void? You all were trapped in the sticky void?" Gradier Xanatus's eyes widened as he questioned.

"Yeah... for almost a day," Gustav replied.

"How did you even manage to get out?" He was even more shocked after the confirmation.

"We just did," Gustav wasn't ready to go over the details.

"Is this person amongst the people responsible?" Miss Aimee asked while moving to the side and lifting Rick.

"Miss Aimee don't..." Gustav was about to warn her about the scarf covering part of Rick's face but was too late.

Miss Aimee immediately pulled it down after lifting Rick.

"Oh? Half of your face is the gateway to another realm," Miss Aimee uttered with a look of interest.

"She's... unaffected," The others in the vicinity said with looks of astonishment.

Rick was just as shocked himself. The moment a person stared at this part of his face, they would instant get sucked into the realm.

"This is not enough to stop me from obliterating you for putting Gustav in harm's way," Miss Aimee stated as her fingers wrapped around Rick's neck.

"Hold on," Gustav quickly pulled Rick from Miss Aimee's grasp before she could send him to the afterlife.

"I still have something to do with him before he dies," Gustav quickly wrapped the scarf back around the half of Rick's face which held an unknown realm.

"Hmm? Which is?" Miss Aimee questioned.

"It's private," Gustav replied before dragging Rick away.

He headed towards the room area amidst the stares of everyone and soon was out of sight.

They wondered what was on Gustav's mind but couldn't figure it out.

"Oh yeah, he didn't come out at all during the ruckus," Gustav recalled something as he arrived before the room door.

Thusshhh~

The door slid open and he walked right in with Rick still in his grasp.

There he was, floating above a bed with a look of serenity while his forehead gleamed a bright green light.

It was Endric who had been totally missing during the entire battle that went down.

Gustav was well aware that he was in the room but didn't bother to disturb him knowing that the others could handle the problem.

Endric seemed to be in a state of trance and Gustav was well aware that he was probably doing something important.

"Another monster..." Rick muttered the instant Gustav dropped him.

He could already sense a mystical and quite unfathomable energy from Endric as he floated above one of the beds with his eyes closed.

"Why did you bring me here? Why not just let them kill me?" Rick questioned.

"Don't be so hasty to die... before you meet your end, be of good use to me first," Gustav responded as his eyes turned cold.

"What are you..." Rick who had been calm since the start couldn't help but feel a little chill upon meeting Gustav's gaze.

[Mental Manipulation Has Been Activated]

"Memories siphoning..." Gustav muttered as he suddenly reached out and grabbed Rick's head.

"Ugghhhhh!" Rick groaned in pain as a seering pain tore through his mind.

Gustav was now able to use Memories Siphoning without having to take a bloodline boosting drug for the damaged mental manipulation bloodline like he used to in the past.

He could now use it on command.

Rick memories began to flow into his mind at a very quick pace. Unlike the last time in Aribia City where he was still a little slower in siphoning memories, this time was way quicker.

In a couple of minutes, Gustav had siphoned up to two years worth of memories and kept going.

"Kiarrrrrh!" Rick kept yelling in agony as he felt like his brain was getting split apart.

"Make it stop! Arrrrggghhhh!" He kept screaming in pain.

The scarf had fallen off his face at this point due to all the shaking but this didn't deter Gustav in the slightest as he kept at it.

Rick was in so much pain that he preferred death at this point. Now he understood why he felt the chill that went down his spine earlier.

It turned out that thie was what he was going to be facing.

'Demon!'

An hour later, Gustav let go of Rick's head and his body fell limply to the floor of the spacecraft.

Blood was seeping out of his right eye which was the only eye he had as well as his left nose and side of his mouth.

-

---SS

They were two hovercars speeding across the northeast streets and within each of them, there were four occupants.

With their speed, they would be able to arrive within the outskirts of the city in a couple of minutes.

Ding! Ding! Ding! Ding!

<Proximity Alert>

Alarms suddenly began blaring off within both hover cars as the security system sensed an hostile approach.

"What is that?"

"Shit! It is an MBO officer!"

"Activate the weapons system,"

The Genxodus members in the second hover car voiced out frantically.

Elevora who approached from above could see canons phasing out of the hover cars.

Bam! Ting! Ting! Ting!

Projectiles began shooting towards her in the next instant.

sweeevvv! Fwoohh~

Elevora gracefully swerved from side to side across the air, dodging the projectiles.

One of them predicted her movement and fired out an explosive.

The Tarmac who was a beautiful and muscular looking lady with a scar ripping from her left cheek to chin, stood in place with a scowl on her face.

"Deactivate the barrier," The Tarmac instructed.

"DEACTIVATE THE BARRIER!" Sir Luchas yelled out the command.

In the next instant a vibrating sound rang out like something powering down...

Zhiiiiinnnnnn~

A dome that surrounded this part of the city turned visible for an instant before disappearing.

Thooom~ Bang!

The Tarmac leapt and landed right in front of Endric.

Endric who was less than six feet tall was at least three heads shorter than the Tarmac.

"I shall inspect it now," She voiced out before moving past him.

"Be quick before it reawakens," Endric advised.

The massive creature which was dark brownish in color with a mixture of furs and scales on different areas of its body, was wrapped by these massive chains.

The Tarmac touched a part of its body and nodded her head.

"Open the gates," She said before turning around.

"Follow me," She instructed Endric while proceeding to walk forward.

Endric picked up the end of the chain and began dragging the creature forward once more.

"Finally," He heaved a sigh of relief as he followed the Tarmac into the city.

#####Endric who was less than six feet tall was at least three heads shorter than the Tarmac.

"I shall inspect it now," She voiced out before moving past him.

"Be quick before it reawakens," Endric advised.

The massive creature which was dark brownish in color with a mixture of furs and scales on different areas of its body, was wrapped by these massive chains.

The Tarmac touched a part of its body and nodded her head.

"Open the gates," She said before turning around.

"Follow me," She instructed Endric while proceeding to walk forward.

Endric picked up the end of the chain and began dragging the creature forward once more.

"Finally," He heaved a sigh of relief as he followed the Tarmac into the city.

Chapter 1155 Sense Of Foreboding

"We're one week behind travel schedule... this means we will arrive at Galaxy Flalencia days after IYSOP has begun," Aildris disclosed. "That's bad... you kids will be automatically disqualified if you arrive there any later than a day before the competition begins," Gradier Xanatus voiced out.

Chatter! Chatter! Chatter!

There was instant panic amongst the candidates upon the revelation of this new information. "What do we do?" Angy questioned from the side.

Before Gustav could voice any response, Miss Aimee figure glowed up as she floated off the spacecraft floor.

"Hmm?" Gustav stared at her.

"I will take care of it," She said before flying towards one of the corridors.

In the next instant, Miss Aimee had arrived outside the spacecraft which was currently moving at a crazy speed.

Zzhiiinn~

It left a glowing milky trail as it cut through space faster than a shooting star.

Fwwhwooooo~

Miss Aimee wasted no time in following after it and caught up in a moment. She maintained the same speed with the spacecraft which was many times faster than the speed of light.

Her entire body suddenly lit up with a purplish glow. The glow extended from her figure to the spacecraft and in the next instant, the entire spacecraft had been covered with this purplish aura.

"Give me navigations," Miss Aimee voiced out as she increased her speed.

Within the spacecraft they hadn't expected the speed of the craft to suddenly increase by a notch and it took them by surprise. Some of them were sent flying in separate directions from the suddenly speed and activated their spacesuit once more to help them gain balance.

"That's why she is the only woman I will ever call master," A grin appeared on Gustav's face as he voiced out.

Without Miss Aimee's presence they were totally bummed out and he was sure he wouldn't be able to come up with a way to salvage the situation. Fortunately, she had truly appeared at a time where she was needed. With this their journey would be faster and they could make it to Flalencia Galaxy even faster.

The only issue was, it didn't seem like Miss Aimee was likely to slow down.

Thrii~ "Oh shiit," E.E exclaimed as space began to crack right before their very eyes.

Lines like broken glass spread across space from what they could see within the spacecraft. "Her speed is causing a rift to open up within space," Falco stated. Just as he had said, up ahead more lines had been torn in space and soon a rift appeared.

Fwwwheiii~

Miss Aimee wasted no time in dragging them in along with herself. She soon entered a world of purple with intense space turbulence pulling and trying to rip everything to shreds.

Miss Aimee was not affected in the slightest. The purplish aura spreading from her figure to the spacecraft also made sure Gustav and the others were unaffected as well.

Zzhiinnn~

Soon they reappeared in another part of space and Miss Aimee still hadn't slowed down. She kept charging forward with intensity.

-(Within the control room)

-"She has taken the piloting work off our hands," -"At least we get to arrive there days before the competition begins,"

-"The rifts she keeps opening are equivalent to the dimensional gateways but more chaotic,"

- "She is too powerful... we are not even affected in the slightest,"

The pilots and navigators couldn't help but express their shock as the spacecraft glided through space with the help of Miss Aimee.

-

"What about the grand commander?" Matilda questioned.

"What about him?" Gustav said with an unbothered expression.

"Shouldn't we be worried?" Matilda inquired. "That's an Alpha ranked Mixedblood. There is nothing to be worried about," Gustav replied. "The old man will find his way," Sheila added from the side.

Matilda felt that since even the old man great granddaughter was unbothered there was no need for her to worry.

Everyone else strapped in as Miss Aimee became the new pilot and flew them away.

-

In an unknown part of space a middle aged man clad in a silver colored MBO uniform floated above an asteroid as he looked around.

The asteroid was half the size of the earth's moon as it floated in space.

The diamond looking item embedded into his forehead blinked with a mysterious glow and a projection of lines appeared before him.

These lines formed a spacecraft upon closer look or what was left of it.

"Oh? The kids decimated them... as expected," He muttered. There was no sound but he kept speaking since he was speaking to himself.

"Time to leave here now... I should find a spacecraft in one of the checkpoint stations instead of expending all my energy," Immediately after saying this, his figure turned illusionary and he blasted forward with immense speed.

Boom!

The asteroid exploded to smithereens and scattered across space without any contact.

This of course was due to the impact of his speed.

#####

"Where is my hubby?" Within the spacecraft Sheila kept pushing her finger against Gustav's left cheek as she voiced out.

"where is my hubby? Where is he? I wanna see him? Where is he? Sniff sniff," She kept saying while pushing her index finger against his cheek.

Gustav kept ignoring her like she was a common housefly as his face remained straight.

Eventually Sheila got tired and laid back against the seat right beside Gustav's with a pout.

"You could have ended that whole battle easily... why did you choose to hold back," Gustav questioned from the side.

"Huh? No we couldn't risk destroying the spacecraft so we all had to hold back," Sheila voiced with a light tone.

"That's not what I am talking about... your power, you could have ended it quickly," Gustav stated once again.

"I don't know what you're talking about. I want my hubby," Sheila folded her arms with a pout.

"Sheila, you can hide it from the others but you can't hide it from me... I see everything," Gustav voiced with a tone that caused Sheila to feel a chill crawl down her spine. She remained silent and turned the other way so as not to meet Gustav's eyes.

"Your ability to manipulate reality could have contended and altered the laws of the sticky void itself yet you chose not to use it... why?" She remained silent.

"If you have made use of it we could have easily gotten out of there and probably wouldn't have needed to fight the intergalactic bounty hunters and wouldn't have lost numbers either

You could have ended the battle almost instantly... why didn't you?"

Sheila remained silent and kept her face turned away from Gustav.

"There something that restricts you from using your full power isn't there?"

Sheila's face showed conflicted expressions upon hearing that.

"Either something restricts the full usage of your reality manipulation or you restrict yourself because of something... its fine if you don't want to say but make sure you don't turn into a liability on the battlefield," After saying this Gustav kept quiet. ----

"Did we get the full contents of the journal yet?" Within the room Endric suddenly opened his eyes.

The green dot glowing on his forehead, flew out. "Not completely... it is truly complex. I guess this was why Elle did--"

"Don't say her name!" Endric yelled with a strong tone.

Husarius; ...

"...The Tarmac didn't want us taking it from there because it gathers information from any place it is taken too. Right now we are traveling half way across the universe and it is taking in more information as we speak which is making it difficult to extract the complete information from the area we need," Husarius explained.

"Isn't there any way to seal it?" Endric questioned.

"It is the Journal of the damned... a Galaxy ranked treasure. Only an extremely powerful entity will be able to do such, I fall short," Husarius responded with a sigh.

"Hmm at the very least we know where the next Outworldly weapon is now," Endric voiced as he descended from the air.

He landed on the bed as a mental picture of a location appeared in his mind.

"It won't be easy to get there," Husarius disclosed.

"Yeah for the first time I will be going on one of this missions with my big brother," Endric muttered as he stood to his feet.

"So it will have to be after IYSOP has ended?" Husarius voiced.

"That is the only option we have..." Endric began to head for the corridor after saying. "Hmm? What is going on?" Endric voiced out the instant he arrived on the corridor and sensed the strange energy covering the entire spacecraft. His eyes instantly glowed silvery blue as he blinked.

Zing~

Endric instantly reappeared within the sitting area of the spacecraft with his energy unleashed.

"You're late to the party," E.E's voice was the first he heard as he upon his reappearance. "Is everyone okay?" Endric felt a bit silly as he noticed their weird stares.

Chapter 1156 Bloodline Dampening Seed Enhancers

"Is everyone okay?" Endric felt a bit silly as he noticed their weird stares.

E.E chuckled a bit after seeing Endric's concerned expression.

'The kid's personality truly underwent a one-eighty,'

"It's just Miss Aimee, no worries," Gustav stated from the side.

Endric realised he must have missed something at this point.

'There was a little situation while we were busy,' Husarius voiced in his head.

'A little situation?' Endric still has a slightly confused expression as he moved to a corner to sit.

"Hubby! Hubby! I'll fill you in," Sheila voiced while hopping towards Endric heartily.

Gustav remained seated in place with an unbothered expression after she left his side.

'She acts like a kid but within... she hides her true personality,' Gustav took note.

("Well, i wouldn't say hide. This is still her personality or a side of it she chose to show while she chose to hide the other side,") The system responded internally.

'Hmm, i don't sense any nefarious intent so I know she's not a wolf in sheep clothing but she is hiding something for sure,' Gustav said internally.

("That is indeed true... She is just like Endric. Both their potential far surpasses their peers. Endric is higher but she is not far off either,") The system stated.

'Hmm looks like deciding not to kill Endric worked out for the best...'

("You get to have someone that loyal and powerful on your side. He is already amongst the top in terms of strength at a young age... truly an unmatched potential,")

This made Gustav think, 'I am the Outworldly, my little brother was also blessed with such strength... is there a force at play here?'

Their journey continued on and the candidates engaged in all sorts of activities on their way to Planet Ozious.

They had also passed by many planets, gone through multiple rifts, phased through a sun and shattered a star from Miss Aimee's speed.

None of these orbital bodies managed to slow Miss Aimee down in the slightest and they were soon closing in on Flalencia Galaxy.

While this was happening, Miss Aimee's real body which held around 80% of her strength was currently in deep space.ReadNovelFull.com

Her eyes were gleaming with a menacing purplish light as a whitish energy surrounded her as well.

She stabbed her hands forward and pulled sideways with her fingers like she was trying to rip something open.

"Hnnghh!" She groaned as it seemed difficult to separate what she was trying to.

It looked like her hands were just stretched in front of her holding onto nothing but in actuality this wasn't the case.

Space began to twist and turn as powerful winds began to blast out of a small tear that suddenly appeared while Miss Aimee was still trying to rip hole through space.

The separation finally began to happen as a reddish tear increased and miss Aimee fingers could be seen within trying to rip it apart even more.

Wwhoosshhhh~

A wave of energy suddenly blasted forth from the tear sending miss Aimee flying for thousands of miles in deep space.

The tear she had ripped in space repaired itself very quickly after she had gotten blasted backwards.

Miss Aimee stabilised herself after flying backwards for a period of time and peered forward with a suspicious gaze.

"I haven't used half my full strength in any situation for a long time," She mouthed before flying forward.

"If i was to create another planet I still wouldn't expend ten percent of the energy within me but this..." Miss Aimee raised her palm to stare at it.

Her fingers were scalded whereas a sun four times larger than earth's was unable to cause her to sweat.

The scald slowly disappeared and she returned to normal in nearly an instant but nevertheless she was surprised.

"Whatever we're dealing with is not something that can be taken care of earth alone... heading to IYSOP was a good plan. It would be better for the alliance to be informed so they can prepare themselves," Miss Aimee stated as her figure sent forth an outburst of white energy.

"I won't stop trying to expose their existence," She said before stabbing forward with her fingers once more.

#####

In a known part of space, massive discs like structures could be spotted in different colors floating around.

It was a very beautiful sight as this part of space had wondrous colors and constellation of stars in the distance that brightened it up.

There wasn't a sun like earth but there was fluorescent colored star in the the western part of space shining a blinding light across that illuminated every area the massive disks structures were situated.

It was a truly beautiful sight to behold and occasionally spacecraft would fly by towards the southern area.

There happened to be a nine disk structured orbital body in the southern area. Every disk looked copper like in color and the top one happened to gleam the brightest like a golden deity.

The disks were all aligned in a line up format from the bottom to the top. The ninth disk structure was as large as the the entire circular surface of earth and it also happened to be the smallest amongst all nine.

Spacecraft bearing the emblems of planetary bodies would occasionally enter the atmosphere of the last disk and land there.

However, that was only after they were screened by a blanketing barrier that surrounded the nine disks.

Three new spacecraft happened to have arrived at the same time just after two arrived some time ago and flew towards the ninth disk as well.

At this same moment a spacecraft approached from the west with a blue and red color. It bore a familiar emblem on its massive body.

Just like the three that had arrived, it was also given access to the ninth layer of the disks.

Within a space station situated right outside the gravitational centre of the nine layered disk structures, a group of people in spacesuit gave reports about the arrivals.

- "Planet Ghundabult has arrived,"

---SSS

E.E's eyes turned bloodshot as the violet glow that coated his finger tips turned to red.
red.ReadNovelFull.com

Deep in space, a collapsing red vortex appeared beside a satellite which was shooting down green beams towards the earth.

The vortex was not even one quarter the satellite but the instant it appeared to devour and suck everything in its vicinity towards it.

A barrier appeared around the satellite as a security measure but this still wasn't enough to stop the collapsing vortex.

It sucked the barrier along with the satellite into it in a couple of seconds and closed up.

It reappeared once more beside another one in a few moments.

- "We are calling for space check to take care of the issue," Gustav could hear one of the commanders voice through the comms.

"There will be no need for that, commander. My subordinate is taking care of it," Gustav voiced through the comms.

- "Which squad leader is this?" Commander Darmark questioned from the other side.

"Gustav Crimson," Gustav replied.

"Oh? What do you mean by taking care of it?" Just as commander Darmark questioned some beams of light from the sky began to thin out.

- "They are disappearing," One of the other squad leaders reported.

"There's your answer," Gustav stated.

"I and another one of my subordinates is headed for the upper district, I hope we're permitted," Gustav added.

- "That is beyond your designated area officer Crimson," Commander Colt voiced out.

"The situation is about to be dire... switching off comms to focus on the mission at hand,"

- "Officer Crimson! Officer Crimson don't you..."

Gustav totally ignored all of Commander Colt yells as he arrived before one of the houses in the upper district.

Bang! Bang!

Massive roots shot through the walls and headed for Angy and Gustav.

[Atomic Disintegration Has Been Activated]

Swing~ Swing~

Gustav swung his palm forward and the roots were immediately cleaved into multiple pieces.

It looked like he only moved his arm once but in actuality, he swung a couple of times. He was just so quick, it looked like it was once.

"Go look for the ones that haven't fully turned, I'll take care of this," Gustav leapt through the hole created on the wall after giving Angy the instruction.

Upon getting into the house, the sight that greeted Gustav wasn't a pretty one.

"Ghaarrkkk~ P-lease K... ki-ll me..."

The person who said this, did so with great difficulty. She was in a kneeling position, with giant roots protruding from his back, chest, thighs arms and even both her eyes.

She had was bleeding profusely and already lost a part of his skull yet she was still alive.

Body parts with roots protruding from them, were scattered across the floor with blood splattered on the walls. It would seem, these were the body parts of her family members.

The massive roots were everywhere and they began headed for him, upon sensing his arrival.

Swwhii~ Swhiii~

Multiple of them shot forward at him from every direction.

Gustav reached out and grabbed the first one that arrived before him.

"Intertwining Disintegration..." Gustav mummured as his palm glowed a milky color.

Chapter 1157 Are You Ready?

"Don't be too shocked when I reveal my full strength... master," Gustav added.

"I won't be... but the world... the universe... shock them," Miss Aimee smiled as she responded.

As they got out of the spacecraft, a bunch of people clad in weird looking outfits were spotted approaching them from up ahead.

They had landed in a vicinity where thousands of spacecraft could be seen. It was really an epic sight to behold.

The numbers exiting the numerous spacecraft were very high too.

The earth IYSOP candidates could spot all sort of unknown looking lifeforms scattered across the place.

The ground was golden and not a single speck of sand could be seen in the vicinity. Triangular structures with long metallic looking rod at the tops that pierced into the sky could also be seen far ahead.

"Planet Ozious welcomes earth candidates," The people dressed in flowing silky garments finally arrived before them.

Two of them had a pair of long antennas protruding from their rough looking brownish head.

These antennas had green eyeballs planted at their tips which made the candidates feel a little unnerved as they didn't know whether to stare at their faces or the eyeballs above the antenna.

They were all aware of the appearance of Planet Ozious natives but seeing them in person was a whole lot different.

The two that had approached them introduced themselves after tapping on a language transmitting device in their possession.

"I am Handler 27," The one with a small whitish mark on its forehead spoke first.

"And I am Handler 28... we will be directing you to the entry and registration point," The second one replied.

"I can't tell who is male and who is female between the two," E.E whispered to Gustav as they began walking.

"They're both females," Gustav replied.

"Whut? How do you know?" E.E questioned in a low tone.

"They have smaller eyeballs," Gustav responded once more.

"Huh? Those are small?" E.E couldn't help but express his look of shock.

Both handlers had eyeballs that were as large as fists which explained E.E's look of surprise.

"You do know it might be considered racist if you kept sizing them up like that," Falco voiced from the side.

"I can't help it... damn this is my first time every making contact with an alien," E.E sounded excited as he looked around.

Everyone was heading in the same direction.

The massive entry point that looked like a giant 'n' with an energy barrier within.

"If you are not deemed powerful enough, the barrier will restrict your entry," Handler 27 stated.

"Oh? So its already like a test upon arrival?" Teemee questioned.

"Something of the sorts but it is a filter... only those worthy are capable of getting through," Handler 28 replied.

They stared at the numbers heading towards the entry point and realised they were in the thousands.

Gustav wasn't surprised since he had made research about the participating planets before this.

There were up to three thousand planets participating and each planet had twenty main participants just like them. This meant the total number of participants were over sixty thousand.

Currently only a couple of thousands could be seen heading towards the entry point which meant some hadn't arrived and some had arrived earlier.

Earth participants got to planet Ozious four days before IYSOP began. It was still a period where planets would be coming in.

Bang!

A person up ahead with two layers of fur covered got blasted backwards the instant they made contact with the barrier surrounding the entry point.

"Oooof looks like someone is unworthy," Ria voiced out.

"ouch," Angy hit him lightly with her elbow from the side.

"Don't make fun of the weak," She muttered.

The group arrived in front of the entry point and kept walking forward with looks of confidence.

The others in the vicinity were stopping and slowly stretching forth their hand to see if the barrier would grant them access while Gustav and the others just walked through unbothered.

Step! Step! Step! Step!

Eyes from every corner was planted on them as they phased through unbothered and unrestricted.

Their entry caused a chain of reaction and others also tried to move in immediately. Some phased through easily while others had to push with all their strength before they were given access.

A few got blasted backwards like the other unknown planet candidate.

The instant Gustav and the others arrived on the other side, a look of fascination appeared on their faces.

"Finally we're here,"

Hours later, Gustav and the others stood within a tall structure and stared through the transparent walls to view a foreign city.

Flying objects could be seen moving from place to place and triangular structures erected. Sands didn't exist on this planet yet there was a massive plant like structure deep in the heart of this foreign city.

The roads were copper colored mostly and the blinding light of the star that illuminated the entire galaxy could be spotted on the southeast area.

They could even see the outline of other similar planets in Flalencia galaxy, giving the sky a beautiful look.

"They mentioned that the competition will have different categories and multiple locations for different stages," Falco voiced from the side.

"Some of the categories are not mandatory but they are good for accumulating extra points according to the handlers," He added.

"Yeah and there are also mandatory categories where the whole team will be involved from what I've gathered. For the unmandatory categories, we could split and have smaller numbers take care of them. Not everyone has to participate," Aildris voiced as well.

"Which categories should we participate in?" E.E questioned.

Everyone turned to stare at Gustav at this moment.

"We will be participating in every single category... no one is getting the opportunity to slack off," Gustav replied.

The group began chuckling upon hearing this. None of them were interested in slacking off. They wanted to accumulate as many points as they could for the sake of earth's win.

"I will split everyone properly when the time arrives so you know the unmandatory category you'll be participating in," Gustav added.

#####

Within another area where a group of twenty unknown planet participants were situated, a similar scene to what had played out with Gustav and the others was repeating itself.

"Captain, what do we do?" One of the candidates who had a blueish face with a stalk at the top of his head voiced out.

"We're participating in the categories that complement our strengths. And we must win," The captain who had a similar head look but with a broader body responded.

They all agreed as he began to give out instructions.

#####

~"Ehistu mafikolo eidu renu basiti rlmah..."

"Vindulus Prime and the Tharlorkans might be the only threat to us out of the hundred alliance 09:07 leaders,"

In another area, a purple mist headed figure with red scales on the rest of his body voiced out.

They were speaking in their native language which would be incoherent to any earthling.

"I have made research on all of the planets who lead the alliance, we just need to watch out for a few. We will gather a lot of points,"

The translation device would have interpreted his first statement as this.

~"Akistah Vindulud Prime eiti torial vatu terila bati Tharlokans..."~

"Vindulus Prime and the Tharlorkans might be the only threat to us out of the hundred alliance leaders,"

The figure kept speaking.

~"Aitan shima utan?"~

"So what do we do captain?"

The captain purple mist face formed a shape that made the others who looked just like him gasp.

#####

The days went by very quickly and during this time over two thousand planets had made it to Flalencia Galaxy.

Just one day was left before IYSOP would kick off and the rest of the planets had only today to arrive or they would be disqualified.

This day being the deadline for registration, hundreds upon hundreds of planets kept arriving one after the other.

They numbered in over ten thousand participants that showed up before the day ended. This was a high number compared to the day Gustav and the others had arrived.

Ultimately the day ended and about a hundred planets still failed to meet up with the deadline. This was to be expected since it was possible to have last minute deterring.

The night before IYSOP kickoff was a very long one. Every participant were on their toes as indescribable feelings of excitement bubbled from deep within.

The universe was going to watch them show their prowess. This was also an opportunity to get leadership of the resource that every planet under the alliance was gunning for.

Gustav stood atop a triangular building as he stared down at the city with a solemn expression.

"It is time," He voiced as the star that illuminated the nine layered disk planet, appeared in the distance.

A vortex opened up right beside him at that moment and E.E appeared by his side.

"Are you ready?" E.E questioned with an excited expression.

Chapter 1158 The Intergalactic Youngsters Show Of Power Begins

"Are you ready?" E.E questioned with an excited expression.

"I would say I was born ready but I really wasn't," Gustav replied sarcastically. E.E chuckled in response before saying, "It doesn't matter that you weren't born ready, what matters is we have fun. Its good that you're no longer as stuck up as you used to be," "That is thanks you you guys," Gustav stated while turning to face E.E.

"Aww come on man don't make me shed tears this early in the morning," E.E turned to face Gustav as well with a smile.

"Even though its dangerous and we might die, let's have fun," Gustav said while stretching out his fist.

"Yeah let's do this man," E.E stretched forth his fist as well and gave Gustav a fist bump.

"Let's do this," --

Cheers! Cheers! Cheers!

Within a massive arena all sort of lifeforms could be seen seated around and cheering with loud voices.

It was numerous times larger than a stadium and had multiple triangular designs surrounding it.

The IYSOP participants were close to sixty thousand while the live audience spectating were over three million in number.

The highest percentage from the spectating population came from Planet Ozious natives whereas the rest were from other planets who had their candidates currently on the center stage.

The earth spectators area had up to five hundred people who had gotten access to witness the event live on the planet. They were amongst the most important people on earth.

Some were familiar faces that Gustav would recognise if he were to pay them any attention.

They all stared at the area where the earth candidates were currently standing within the arena as they waited for the competition to fully kick off.

The substitutes of course were sitting this one out as only the main candidates would be allowed to participate in most of categories except something happened to one of them.

"What is the first category going to be about?" Teemee asked from the side.

"They mentioned it was going to be random... not all categories have a certain challenge," Falco replied.

E.E who stood by the side kept looking around as all sort of aliens crowded the arena alongside them. He couldn't count how many different looking species he had seen so far.

"Also this isn't a qualification round so even if any group fails, they still get to participate in the next category," Gustav voiced from the side.

"Yes, so even if earth fails, they don't need to be ashamed," A small chuckle came from the left.

"Huh? Who said anything about failing?" Matilda stated from the side while everyone stared in the direction of the voice.

"With we the Marlians here, the earth is guaranteed failure," This time another person from the same group as the person who had spoken earlier, voiced out.

The group had shard like skins ranging from green to purple. They really looked like they were made out of gems with humane statures.

"Oh its those guys that have something against earth," Falco voiced out.

The others had looks of understanding upon hearing this.

"Why though?" E.E was still lost.

"You earthlings should prepare to lose since we're participating. Is that your captain? He looks weak," The one who had spoken earlier voiced out once more while pointing at Gustav and laughing.

Angy was about to speak when Gustav gave her a look and shook his head.

'Don't bother,' Angy decided to keep her cool at this point and stared at the Marlians like they were clowns.

"We don't care about the Marlians and Earthlings but the Orion Emp is taking the win," Another group from behind spoke.

They all had green faces shaped like onions and their eyeballs were at the far ends of their heads. They looked menacing to day the least due to the aura the exuded.

"We shall see about that," The Marlians retorted.

The tension had gone through the roof at this time as the groups in the vicinity stared at each other with hostility. It didn't seem like anyone was willing to make friends and one couldn't blame them...

It was a competition after all.

A couple of moments later the screens that floated in mid air displaying footage of the current location, focused on a particular spot.

At this spot, a platform suddenly began to extend into the air and it carried a person with an exuberant expression and majestic flowing outfit.

This person had a look similar to the handlers that helped the candidates with settling in upon their arrival but seemed larger especially in the eyeballs category.

"We welcome every planet under the alliance to the ninth edition of the Intergalactic Youngsters Show Of Power," The person began speaking.

'Oh? Ninth edition? This has been going on nine hundred years already? Interesting,' Gustav thought.

(Yet the earth hasn't won a single one,") The system stated internally.

'No surprise about that...' "I am Handler one and I will be your host for the first category of the tournament," Handler 1 introduced himself.

The cheers intensified at this point as excitement built up to the peak. The Handler waited for a bit before resuming his speech.

"The first category challenge is a random one which will be decided by the wheel spinner," Immediately after Handler 1 finished saying this, a massive holographic wheel appeared in mid air.

- "Wow,"

The audience voiced their astonishment as they stared at the different challenges illustrated on the wheel.

- "What in the world is a death stance?"

- "The Klorkan Tame..."

The spectators voiced their confusion and excitement as different opinions flew around.

"Spin the wheel!" Handler 1 instructed.

ticckii~ ticckii~ ticckii~

The wheel began spinning at a very quick pace and slowed down after a couple of seconds.

In the next few moments it stopped and the arrow in the middle was pointing directly at an illustration with a tree.

The Handler's voice turned excited as he voiced out the challenge, "The Blovan tree race,"

Cheer~ Cheer~ Cheer~

Cheers were heard from the audience upon the announcement but it was mostly from the planet Ozious spectators area.

The others who were unaware of the details waited for the Handler to explain and their curiosity was sated in the next moment.

"The Blovan tree race is one where the participants uproot a Blovan Tree and race to a designated location while carrying it as a group. The first to arrive at the designated location wins the race," Handler 1 explained.

The participants had looks of interest upon hearing this description and some of them instantly began to look forward to it while others still seemed skeptical.

"I might add that uprooting a Blovan tree is no easy feat and even after successfully uprooting one, the group has to make sure every single participant is holding onto it while they race to the designated point," The Handler added.

"Uh? What happens if anyone let's go of it then?" The instant Falco threw out this question, the Handler addressed it despite not being able to hear any of their voices from down there.

"A group member letting go of the tree means automatic disqualification from the race," A uproar was heard within the crowd of participants at this point. The announce rule automatically made the first category more difficult. "Lastly, underhanded tactics are allowed to make your opponets drop their tree but abilities are restricted. Using powers will automatically disqualify a group. If you must battle, make use of your tree," After saying this the Handler wished the participants goodluck. "Where are we having the race?" E.E could tell it wouldn't be in this arena.

"Probably a different location," Aildris responded as they waited.

All of a sudden something unexpected played out right before them.

Grrrrbbllll~

The ground began to quake intensely and the arena got split from the middle of the spectators area down to the opposite side.

The arena separated and the space within began to widen as the ground lowered even more.

Sand that was thought not to exist on this planet was now visible as the arena underwent a complete change, turning into a different location entirely.

The platform where the close to sixty thousand participants stood began to move towards the north as the arena continued to undergo change and widen even more.

Soon they arrived at the start of the track where tall dark trees could be spotted. These trees were completely black including their branches and leaves and they were each over a four hundred feet tall.

Some were taller than others but none were little. The platform descended and merged into the sands as they got off. The trees were more than five thousand in number scattered across the massive area.

"Which one are we going for Gus?" Aildris questioned from the side.

The group waited patiently as other participants began to head in the direction of the Blovan tree they had picked.

[God Eyes Has Been Activated] 'They don't forbid the use of abilities before the race begins anyways,' Gustav said internally as he looked around.

"That one," Gustav pointed at one that was up to five hundred feet tall.

At the same instant he picked, a loud announcement rang out.

"The Blovan Tree Race Has Begun!"

Chapter 1159 The Blovan Tree Race

At the same instant he picked, a loud announcement rang out.

"The Blovan Tree Race Has Commenced!"

Immediately after this announcement, the groups sped forward intensely at their desired tree.

The stampede had caused a cloud of dust to scatter across the place but such couldn't hinder anyone of them.

Gustav and the others arrived in front of the one he picked and immediately placed their hands on it in a bid to pull it out of the ground.

"Hold on... send your energy into it first," Gustav stopped them before they could forcefully yank it with their strength. "The tree must accept your energy before you can pull it out. If we try to do so forcefully, the roots will extend further into the soil and keep extending till it becomes impossible to pull out. Using our abilities are restricted so imagine how long we would spend here trying to uproot a supernatural tree," Gustav explained lengthily causing the others to stare with astonished expressions. 'The Handler decided to withhold this information... how did he figure it out in just a glance,'

Everyone placed their palm on the tree at this point to do as Gustav had instructed. Meanwhile in the vicinity, the other participants were struggling to pull theirs out.

After two minutes, the tree roots began to pull out of the ground and Gustav gestured at the others.

At this point they grabbed it and pulled it out.

The tree fell to the ground and they raised it up at different angles.

-"How the hell did they get theirs out so fast!?"

-"Damn it, we're not having any progress here,"

-"Is that planet earth?"

- "Those other guys managed to pull theirs out as well.

Voices could be heard in the vicinity as many of the groups kept struggling with theirs.

"Aildris take the front, Angy take the rear, E.E stay in front of Angy, Fildhor stay behind Aildris, everyone else get in between and make sure you don't take your hands off the tree no matter what," Gustav instructed. "Yonda you're the shortest here... your height would cause issues so just hold on instead of trying to get your feet on the ground," He added.

"Why am..."

"Now is not the time," Aildris tapped Yonda's shoulder before he could disagree. "Hmph!"

Everyone quickly did as Gustav instructed and went on to raise the tree above their heads as they gave each other a particular amount of distance.

The tree being over five hundred feet long still had untouched spaces ahead and behind but Gustav didn't seem to mind after everyone followed his instructions. The tree was heavier than a thousand tons but this was something Gustav could easily lift himself. Having the help of everyone else was a bonus.

The major issue would be making sure no one let go of it as they raced along with it.

"Let's go... whenever I give the 'Grow' call sign, make sure you tighten your grip around the tree harder," Gustav stated.

The group answered as they began to race down the sandy path.

They weren't the only ones who had managed to pull out their trees as it seemed a couple of group also figured out the trick.

At first it was a little difficult for everyone to keep the same pace and this caused them to move slower in some areas. Eventually they began to get used to it as everyone followed Aildris pace who stood at the forefront.

Gustav was right in the middle with Endric who stood behind him. Gustav had placed Angy behind because she was the quickest. It would be difficult for everyone to keep to her pace if she stood at the front.

Minutes into the race, more groups managed to pull their trees out and tried to catch up to the others who were ahead.

Gustav group who was far ahead with six other groups kept speeding forward with their trees above their heads.

Gustav didn't need to look to the left or right before he could sense the groups by the sides closing in on them.

He wasn't interested in unnecessary confrontation at the moment as he could see they were closing in on a tricky terrain up ahead.

"Aildris... everyone decrease pace," He yelled out.

Aildris began to reduce his speed which also caused a chain of reaction as everyone tried to slow down as well.

The space they had left between themselves help to adjust to a change in pace but it was still a bit troublesome.

The groups who were closing in on earth's candidates from the sides noticed the speed reduction but weren't interested in reducing their speed as well.

It was a race after all.

The terrain up ahead had a path that extended upwards but only had a two meter breadth which was pretty small.

A little mishap could cause a group to fall from the sides which would cause them to let go of the tree and get disqualified. However they were two paths by the sides of the bridge like path in the middle.

These two paths were wider and looked better but it was difficult to tell which would be a better choice.

The two groups who were initially closing the gap with Gustav and the others from the side, had gotten ahead.

They were no longer interested in confrontation as both of them picked the left and right paths simultaneously.

The earth's candidates were currently in sixth position due to the decrease in pace but Gustav was unbothered as he gave another instruction. "We're taking the middle path," "What? It looks like the smallest... why?" Fildhor questioned from up ahead.

"Just trust me... besides didn't you guys do a balance training on a tinier platform?" Gustav stated.

Everyone recalled the training they went through. A smile appeared on their face. This one was really nothing compared to it.

The other three groups ahead of them also picked the left and right paths. It didn't seem like anyone was interested in taking the risk of picking the middle path.

A group behind had begun catching up to earth candidates and were looking to collide but at this same moment, Gustav gave the instruction to speed up.

Fwwwheiii~

The group behind with the intention of colliding had looks of surprise as they saw earth's candidate head towards the middle path.

They quickly swerved to the side to avoid following them and headed towards the right path.

At the moment, seven groups had chosen their paths and the others behind were catching up and choosing theirs as well.

-

Far behind the track a group who looked like rock giants, had just managed to get theirs out of the roots.

There were still other groups struggling to pull their trees out but their captain looked pissed as he stared at the many that had gone ahead of them.

"~Grruhh thisahheiii~"

"Everyone get on," The interpretation of the captain words read as thus. He raised the six hundred feet tall tree in a vertical format causing it to extend high up.

The others jumped to various parts of the tree branches and hung on.

"~Siahitu Grruh tibia~"

"They do not forbid the use of physical strength so we won't be disqualified," The rocky jaw of the captain moved as he spoke.

After everyone latched on he squatted as he built intense strength in his legs...

The ground began quaking from the force and in the next instant...

Thooooomm~

He leapt forward with intensity while carrying the entire weight of the tree and his teammates along with him.

The groups who were ahead looked upwards and spotted a body traveling across the air with one of the Blovan trees in his grasp.

-"Is that even allowed?"

A lot of them wondered out loud but since there was no disqualification, it meant this was allowed.

The rocky figure would land thousands of feet ahead of his initial jump point and leap forward once again.

The other groups couldn't imagine just how high his physical strength was to be able to lift all of that and still leap into the air while carrying it.

-

Gustav and the others currently transversed the small bridge like path which was up to fifty feet above the floor level.

They could spot the other groups by the sides below as they sped forward on this small path unrestricted.

They could also spot the small body of water up ahead on the left and right paths below.

Now they understood why Gustav had picked the terrain that extended upwards.

The small body of water was at least seven hundred feet wide and left no land for the groups to run on till they scaled through it.

The first group to arrive before the body of water, tried leaping over it together.

However, they didn't seem to have leapt at the same time, neither did they use the same amount of strength...

This caused an imbalance and in the next moment, a couple of them were forced to let go of the tree as it slipped out of their grasp.

Splashh~ Splashshh~

Splashing sounds rang out as some of them fell into the water body.

"Planet Ghundabult Disqualified,"

"Distance Scaled; 12029 Meters,"

The announcement went off for the first group disqualification at this point.

Meanwhile the first group on the right side had also arrived before the water body and foolishly tried the same as the disqualified team.

"Planet Gshack Disqualified,"

"Distance Scaled; 12029 Meters,"

Cheers were heard from the spectators area as one of the floating screens above showed the current leading possible group.

1. Earth

2. Ustanbid

3. VA

4. Roidinstack

5. V#b

The footage displaying the race zoomed in on Gustav and his group as they made their way to the end of the exalted path.

They had easily scaled through the water areas due to taking the high ground. However not only them had done this.

Some groups behind seem to have caught onto reason to use the high ground as they also picked the middle path.

A couple of other groups still got eliminated due to the water body encounter on the right and left paths but that changed when the first group managed to scale through.

The second group jumped right into the water body and made use of one hand to swim their way to the other side while still holding onto the tree.

This caused a domino effect that led to other groups copying as well and teams stopped getting disqualified at this point.

Gustav and the others were in the lead at the moment but others behind were giving chase and steadily catching up.

Not everyone in their group could move very quickly so Aildris was moving at the most moderate pace possible. Some groups had more members with higher speed which helped.

They soon began to close in on another tricky terrain. Two mountains were on the left and right side respectively while a normal path was stretched out in the middle.

The two mountains also had paths that led upwards while the one in the middle just looked straightforward and leveled to the ground.

"Which are we picking Gus?" Aildris questioned from up ahead.

"All paths have issues we have to be careful... let's head to the left," They had thought Gustav would pick the middle again but this time was different. They made a swerve and headed to the left while the group catching up to them from behind, kept on the middle path.

They had learnt their lesson from last time and didn't want to repeat it.

Other groups were beginning to arrive at this point as well and began to make their decision. Gustav and the others ran up the path that led up the mountain on the left and some groups seemed to be catching up behind them.

"Left..."

"Right..."

"Seven feet to the left..."

"Left..."

Gustav kept giving instructions as they closed in on the top of the mountain.

Boom!

A small explosion suddenly rang out behind.

Chapter 1160 Main Leader Betrayal

Boom!

A small explosion suddenly rang out behind.

A group got blasted across the air with their tree flying out of their grasp.

"Are those...?"

"Yeah they stepped on traps,"

Gustav answered Teemee before he could complete his question.

Now they understood why Gustav had been directing their movements.

They still didn't understand how he was doing this without activating any abilities. What they didn't know was Gustav had been using his perception this whole time.

Perception was a default ability just like how strength was and since it would always be active without need for any activation, it was practically a normal part of him.

Gustav's perception was so powerful at the moment that he could slightly sense an occurrence before it happened.

Besides this, his perception was spread to the ending point of the race so he had a mental depiction of how the terrains looked in his mind.

"Left..." Gustav quickly yelled as they arrived at the top of the mountain path.

The group quickly swerved as quickly as they could.

A group catching up from behind saw this as a window of opportunity and quickened their pace.

They caught up in just a few moments and sped across the part of the path Gustav's group avoided.

Fwwheeeiii~

"Uh?" Their eyes widened as a massive hole suddenly opened up on the path.

"Arrrghhh!"

Screams were heard as the alien lifeforms with gator like red heads fell into the hole.

Gustav's group continued on ahead without stopping as they reached the part of the path that led downwards.

The groups that had taken the ground path were currently struggling with escaping a river of molten lava that was flowing from the mountain walls on the side.

Screams were heard as they tried to outrun it. Using abilities were not allowed so those who could originally fly were unable to use that at the moment

-"What in the hell?!"

- "Are they trying to kill us?"

Some of the groups complained as they sped upwards but some were soon caught in the river of lava.

"Kiarrhhhh!" One of them quickly activated powers and blasted the river of lava away from his surroundings after letting go of the tree.

"Planet Thrizta Disqualified,"

"Planet Ezretil Disqualified,"

"Planet Riz Disqualified,"

In the span of a minute a couple more planets got disqualified and were teleported off the race track.

Currently forty six planets had been disqualified while up a hundred were still struggling with pulling out their tree at the starting point.

More than two thousand five-hundred were still in the race and sixty three of them has gone past the middle point of the race.

Earth was still in first position but other planets were not too far behind.

In the next minute, Gustav and the others were close to the ending path of the mountain.

"Follow them closely, don't lose them," A group behind with humanoid figures but purple wings closed in on Gustav and others from behind.

The wings on twenty of them back obviously meant they could fly but with the current state of things, that would get them disqualified.

The instant Gustav and the others arrived at the bottom of the mountain, the group from behind closed in the distance.

"Time to get them kicked out of the race, they're too dangerous," The captain of the purple winged team voiced as they charged forward intensely.

Gustav who was well aware of them closing in from behind looked towards the side before yelling, "Grow!"

The instant everyone heard this, they held on tighter to the tree, their arms completely wrapping around its body.

The purple winged group behind pushed their tree forward in a bid to slam it into Angy's back since she was the one behind.

one thousand tons tree along with his teammates.

10:50

Dust blasted in all directions as he gave the group behind a massive gap in a matter of seconds.

However in the next instant, Gustav raised the tree up with everyone holding onto it.

Fwwhii~

The tree top heading towards Angy back missed, as she got raised completely with the tree after Gustav lifted it.

Swwoosshh~

He swerved to the side with speed and charged forward with intensity.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

It sounded like giants were pounding the ground as he charged forward intensely while lifting the one thousand tons tree along with his teammates.

Dust blasted in all directions as he gave the group behind a massive gap in a matter of seconds.

"What?" Their jaws nearly dropped to the ground as they witnessed this.

"How is he...?"

Cheers! Cheers! Cheers!

More Cheers were heard from earth's spectators area everyone who witnessed this action were left in awe.

"Chase!"

The captain of the other team yelled out and the group tried to increase their pace in a disorderly manner.

This caused some of them to subconsciously separate one hand from the tree and nearly got disqualified.

With the present state of things, the captain decided not to push it.

The only way for them to move forward with speed and ease was to adopt the same method Gustav had used but it didn't seem like anyone of them were on Gustav strength level.

Up ahead, Gustav announced that he was going to bring the tree down and they should be ready to keep a steady pace once more.

Gustav's bugged up muscles that were being displayed from their battlesuit slowly returned to normal as he brought the tree down to the normal height.

The group quickly got accustomed to the normal speed and continued heading forward.

They weren't surprised at Gustav initial action since they were well aware of his high physical prowess.

However, keeping it up would be an issue as Gustav might run out of stamina before they reached the finish line. Even if stamina wasn't an issue, it was still dangerous for him to keep it up for various reasons.

Hundred of feet behind, the other groups struggled to catch up as they began to ram into each other.

More groups caught up and it turned into a tree battle which ended up slowing them down even more.

It seemed like Gustav's decision to get ahead was a wise one. If they had engaged in any tree fights, it would have slowed them down as well.

There was no telling if they would have gotten disqualified from there too since anyone could get hit from the group of twenty.

They were beginning to close in on the finish line at this point and Gustav could sense that there was only one more rough terrain left.

The last one seemed tricky but he knew they could scale through with proper coordination.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

Far behind, more groups were catching up and it had turned into a tree battle as they continuously rammed into each other.

A group slammed the tree into the head of another group member causing her to instantly let go.

"Planet Rivide Disqualified,"

"Planet Caymure Disqualified,"

This clash had caused up to a hundred Planet disqualification and it was getting even more intense by the second.

Some groups were trying to break out of the area and move up ahead to prevent Earth's win but it was proving difficult due to the numbers.

Bang!

"Arrghh!"

While they continued to clash a figure was spotted heading in their direction from above.

Baamm!

The figure holding onto the five hundred feet tall Blovan tree landed directly in their midst.

Everyone's eyes widened as they noticed this rocky figure was holding onto the massive tree like a stick while his teammates were latched onto it.

"Riaaaahhh!"

The rocky figure swung the tree sideways with intensity, clearing a bunch of groups from the path with ease.

Bang!

"Arrrghhh!"

Screams rang out as groups were scattered across the place from the brute strength of this rocky being.

"Fuck its the Klaxosapes," A person yelled in terror as it recognised the group.

However the group didn't seem to want to engage them for long as the captain held the tree straight up and leapt forward again.

Thooooomm~

Dust scattered across the place as they disappeared into the air in the next instant.

The other groups cursed as having that level of high physical prowess wasn't their specialty.

A couple of groups made use of this opportunity to charge out of the battle area. Their speeds were pretty high as they soon left the others in the dust.

The ones behind didn't want to be left in the dust and quickly stopped fighting. They began to push forward as well.

Up ahead, Gustav and the others were currently running steadily on a path of ice.

"Is this ice even strong enough?" Fildhor could see that there was water underneath.

"Since it has supported our weight so far, it is strong," Teemee replied.

"But, we have to be careful to make sure it doesn't give way," Falco stated as well.

"Incoming!" Gustav suddenly voiced with a serious tone.

"What?" Everyone voiced with wary tones.

"Grow!" Gustav yelled.

Everyone instantly held onto the tree tighly as they heard this.