

Bloodline 1171

Chapter 1171 The Sub Categories Begin

"Those are portals and we have to run in the mud eh?" Abestos muttered with a taken aback look.

"Yeah I'm not sure I understand the rules of the challenge," Phinx voiced.

"It's not difficult really... the portals in the surroundings, links the Varlins to this location... you guys just need to make sure they don't make contact with you till the countdown ends," Gustav explained.

"When the countdown ends, we successfully qualified for the next stage, right?" Angy questioned.

Gustav nodded in response.

"I hope you don't mind," Phinx moved closer to Angy and placed her lips on Angy's neck.

"Hnnghh!" An uncontrollable moan escaped her lips as Phinx drew blood.

In the next second, Phinx body transformed and another Angy appeared in front of Gustav.

-"That's kinda unnerving," Abestos voiced from the side.

"We have better chances when there's two of her," Angy shrugged.

There was no way to tell who was the real Angy. Her entire appearance and presence had been copied.

"Stop acting like you're me," Angy voiced.

"Technically I am," The second Angy who was originally Phinx replied.

"It's time for you guys to get in the circle," Gustav reminded while pointing at the time left before the competition began.

Up ahead, a barrier of light had surrounded a massive piece of land, whose circumference was unknown.

On this land mountains, plain lands, rocks, gloomy clouds and even streams could be seen. It was really massive and obvious that the Varlin Chase would be taking place there with the visible light barriers that sounded the place.

A major observation within the barrier of light was the extremely muddy grounds. Mud could be seen everywhere except for the streams and mountains.

This blue portals scattered across the place was another observation.

< The Varlin Chase Will Be Commencing In... >

<...5...>

<...4...>

It was finally time for the Varlin Chase to begin. Angy, Phinx and Abestos had already found their way into the expanse of land within the light barricades.

Many other species participating could also be spotted within, ready to begin.

Gustav had chosen to be an observer here despite the fact that another sub category was currently ongoing.

In another location, a cone shaped rock could be spotted piercing into the clouds.

It was quite long and rough looking. The clouds arounds it were dark and emitting occasional sparks. It seemed like lightning bolts was a common occurrence around this cone shaped tall rock.

Thrrriihhhhhh~

A streak of lightning bolt flashed across the east side of the rock and slammed into a green scaled figure who was climbing.

"Tiaaahhhh!" The creature screamed in pain a the petal shaped object in his hand got released, while he fell helplessly.

Another creature beneath with a square shaped head grabbed hold of the petal with a joyful look and kept climbing.

All around the cone shaped rock, thousands of species could be seen climbing. It seemed like a dangerous endeavour but they climbed with determined looks.

Some were climbing at very fast pace since they had multiple limbs. Some had Activated abilities that caused them to be surrounded by energy that couldn't be breached while they climbed so as to protect themselves.

A particular set of species that looked like spiders with multiple heads seemed to be having fun as they sped across the cone shaped rock and grabbed as many petal like objects as they could find. freewebnovel.com

On a part of the cone shaped rock a trio could be seen climbing together. One had a dark aura oozing from his figure which had formed another pair of arms on his back.

These pair of dark arms were responsible for climbing while the figure they were attached to used his actual hands to pluck a petal like object hiding within a small dark caved in part of the rock.

The instant he pulled two of the petals out, a cloud far above crackled with light and in the next instant...

Thrrraahhhh!

A strong lightning bolt descended upon the figure.

Fwwhooorrrmmm~

The dark energy oozing forth from this figure expanded and covered him entirely.

Bang!

Small parts of the rocks crumbled and rolled down but the figure remained unaffected after the lightning strike.

The darkness rescinded to an extent and the figure kept climbing.

"Lucky bastard, he has that protection... we will have to be careful when plucking the Triskets," Yonda stated from underneath as he stabbed his glowing red fingers into the rock before pulling himself upwards.

He repeatedly did this while climbing as his fingers seemed to be so strong, they cleanly stabbed into the rocky surface which he used in pulling himself up.

"Well, we have our own means of avoiding the repercussions of taking a Triket too so don't be too jealous," Fildhor voiced from the side.

His entire skin was currently the color of tar but looking so smooth, one could use Fildhor as a mirror.

Crunch! Crunch! Crunch!

As Fildhor climbed, chunks of rocks would be smashed due to his intensive grip.

Falco, Yonda and Fildhor were currently competing in the Seismic Climb sub challenge and so far it had been a crazy venture.

The petal like item everyone was trying to grab as they climbed up was said to give extra points and it was called a Triket. However, whenever a person took it from whatever spot on the rock, there would be repercussions.

Despite the warning, participants still tried to get the Trikets because one could still win points for their planets which might supercede the points the winner from the Seismic Climb got.

Fildhor spotted another petal like item about twenty feet towards his left and began climbing in its direction.

Once he arrived before it, he reached out with a hand and grabbed it. However, the instant he did...

Ghrrriihhh~

This part of the rock began quaking intensely and a gigantic mouth suddenly phased out of this part of the rock, swallowing Fildhor whole.

It was unknown how this monstrosity had been existing there but its massive jaw began to sink back into the rock after it successfully swallowed Fildhor.

Both Falco and Yonda eyes widened as this occurrence took them by surprise.

"Fildhor!!!" Yonda yelled with bloodshot eyes as he began to climb in the direction of the massive monstrous mouth.

However in the next instant he paused as a loud crash began to ring out from within the rock.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

This part of the rock began quaking intensely, causing many protruding parts to pull out and roll down.

The loud crashing sounds intensified like a collision was occurring within the rock.

Suddenly, the jaws of the creature which had been sinking back into the rock got blasted open.

Along with the blast, a wide hole was formed within this part of the rock and a tar skinned figure jumped out of it.

Thriihh~ Thriihh~

Blood poured down as Fildhor grabbed hold of a part of the rock above Falco after leaping out of the hole.

"Hey that creature had more in its belly," Fildhor jubilated as he held a bunch of Trikets in his palm.

"Bastard! I thought you were dead!" Yonda yelled from beneath.

"Huh? That thing is not nearly enough to cause my death," Fildhor yelled back in response.

"Since you're fine, let's keep going," Falco stated as the darkness surrounding him created another pair of arms.

"Who died and put you in charge creepy bastard!" Yonda voiced but in the next instant, Falco's figure turned blurry...

Fwwhiiii~

"Can't hear you..." Falco's voice trailed off as the arms made of darkness pulled him upwards with speed, increasing his climbing pace by over ten times the initial amount.

"Creepy bastard! It's on!" Yonda yelled and began climbing upwards with speed as well to catch up with Falco.

Not wanting to be left behind, Fildhor did the same as well.

In the other location where the Varlin Chase was taking place, ball sized creatures with string like tails and cat whiskers sped across the muddy environment.

These little animal like creatures, chased the participants across the vicinity at high speeds.

They were called Varlins...

It was only over an hour since the challenge began and nearly a thousand participants had been disqualified already.

The Varlins first appeared in twos from the portals all across the place. Although their speed was high, due to their numbers, the participants were able to easily evade them.

However, another set appeared from the portal fifteen minutes into the competition. When this happened, the speed of the Varlins suddenly doubled.

The participants were taken by surprise and this was how some of them got disqualified.

In another fifteen minutes another set appeared from the portals and their speed tripled. The participants realised at this point that the increase in the number of Varlins in the vicinity also caused their speed to increase.

The time interval at which they appeared from the portals was also fifteen minutes which meant the difficulty would increase by a couple of notches every fifteen minutes.

"Shit, these things are everywhere!"

Chapter 1172 We Didn't Even Come First

The time interval at which they appeared from the portals was also fifteen minutes which meant the difficulty would increase by a couple of notches every fifteen minutes.

"Shit, these things are everywhere!" Abestos voiced as he sped across a muddy terrain.

About fifteen Varlins could be seen chasing him from behind. They were moving very swiftly as they glided atop the surface of the muddy terrain.

The countdown displayed in the middle of the challenge venue showed how much time was left;

<< 00 : 54 : 07 >>

"At this rate I won't last till the end of the first stage," Abestos complained as he kept running forward while the Varlins behind were starting to catch up.

"I need to make sure I survive pass the next fifteen minutes at the very least," Abestos eyes gleamed with determination as he made a left turn.

Fweeeiii~

The Varlins also swiftly turned as they remained locked onto their target. Some even drifted across the surface of the mud due to their high speed.

For the next five minutes, Abestos still managed to keep enough distance between himself and the Varlins till he noticed another participant heading in his direction.

A horde of over thirty was chasing this participant. Abestos eyes widened in shock as he tried to make a turn quickly.

"This is bad! This is bad!" Abestos was well aware that contact would lead to his disqualification.

Just as he made a right turn in the direction where a mountain could be spotted, the other participant grinned with a nefarious expression.

'I can't let him get away. I can shake some or all of the Varlins on my tail with him,' The participant who was a Draconet thought as he turned to run in Abestos direction as well.

The Draconet happened to be a little faster so in just a couple of moments, he was already a few feet away from Abestos.

"Shit..." Abestos turned to his side after sensing a weird energy.

Pah!

The Draconet clasped his hands together and an unexpected phenomenon occurred.

His body which was only a few feet ahead of the Varlins floated about six inches above the muddy surface as he emitted a bright blur glow.

Hhhiinnnn~

A silhouette suddenly slipped out from his back and instantly appeared a hundred feet behind the Varlins chasing him.

However since his body which floated a little above the ground didn't move for a split second, the Varlins had already pounced upon it.

To Abestos surprise, the Varlins phased through the Draconet body which suddenly turned illusionary and began to float backwards.

Zzhiiiiihhh~

The body floated straight towards the silhouette that slipped out from it and they combined once more before returning to solid state.

"Shit!" Abestos cursed again as he noticed the Draconet had distanced himself from the Varlins chasing him by a couple hundred feet.

The Varlins which were close to catching him earlier turned to Abestos now and identified him as their new prey.

Fwwwwhooommm~

Abestos yelled as he kept running with over fifty Varlins chasing from behind.

In another part of the location, Angy could be seen standing on a mountain and breathing profusely.

"I should probably reduce how I use her abilities if I wish to maintain this form for longer," She mumbled while the two horns on her forehead reduced in length.

"Never has a form drained me like this one... this girl is truly a monster," She voiced again while turning around.

Fwwweeehiii~ Fwwweeehiii~ Fwwweeehiii~

She suddenly spotted multiplr dark streaks cutting across the muddy terrain beneath from her view on the mountain top.

They were heading in her direction and soon sped across the slopppy mountain path, arriving before her in a few moments.

"Got to go again," She voiced as she stared at the Varlins leaping towards her figure in slow motion.

Their fast speed was really nothing to her.

Turning around, she took a step forward and quickly arrived more than two hundred thousand feet ahead of her previous location.

Fwhaammm~

The Varlins only caught air as they fell to the ground of the mountain top in confusion, wondering where the prey they were after had dissappeared to.

In another location, a second Angy could be spotted. She skipped playfully on a small green colored stream, ignoring the chaos around her.

At the edges of the stream, up to fifty Varlins had surrounded the vicinity.

They didn't need to lie in wait as their speeds also allowed them to run on the surface of a water body too.

However, at the moment, it looked like they had been frozen in time as Angy played on the stream.

They were barely moving and the surface of the stream seemed still as well. Whenever Angy stomped on it, even a small splash of water hadn't been able to completely form.

It was still slowly forming...

"Hihihihi," Angy kept gigling as she moved from place to place across the stream while everything around her still looked frozen in time.

She paused in the middle of the stream and looked towards the northern sky.

<< 00 : 42 : 37 >>

"This is too easy," Angy muttered as she watched the time countdown normally.

<< 00 : 42 : 36 >>

<< 00 : 42 : 35 >>

<< 00 : 42 : 34 >>

The timer was counting down normally but the time in her surroundings seemed to have been altered.

"Hopefully things will become more interesting in the next stages," Her left horn which had been emitting a silver glow all this time, suddenly dimmed.

Just as that happened, the time in the vicinity returned to normal as water splashed upwards and the Varlins sped towards her across the surface of the stream.

However, in the next instant...

Thwwwoooosshhh~

An outburst of wind caused the Varlins to get blasted backwards, as a pillar of water also rose to the sky, the instant Angy moved.

Her figure dissappeared into the distance instantly as not even a single one of the Varlins managed to get close to her.

Although it was against the rules to attack the Varlins with your abilities, Angy action wasn't counted to be rule breaking since it was the wind effect from her speed that caused the Varlins to be blasted away.

Angy speed was so much beyond their level, it didn't seem like the Varlins could catch her without some sort of handicap.

In other parts of the sub challenge location, other species could be seen running helter-skelter as well.

Abilities were only allowed for the purpose of running, not attacking the Varlins who were giving chase. Flying was also not allowed as a rule was given, stating that participants couldn't be above any surface for more than three seconds.

The rules didn't stop participants from attacking each other so, several of them already sabotaged other participants with their abilities, causing them to get caught by the Varlins.

Some of the participants realised this might be counter effective since lesser participants meant more Varlins chasing a single person, so they decided to refrain.

This was why the Draconet, Abestos encountered earlier only tried to pin the Varlins chasing him to Abestos, instead of engaging in any battle.

At the moment, Abestos could be seen jumping and swerving sideways, as the Varlins caught up to him.

His only option at the moment was to dodge them as much as he could.

As he approached a forest area, more Varlins appeared from up ahead and he was soon surrounded.

Fwwhii~ Fwwhiii~ Fwwhii~ Fwwhiii~ Fwwhii~ Fwwhiii~ Fwwhii~ Fwwhiii~ Fwwhii~ Fwwhiii~

They leapt towards him with speed and it looked like Abestos was done for.

All of a sudden, a small ding was heard as the portals in the vicinity brightened up.

ReadNovelFull.comn0v/el/b/in[./]net'

"Finally," Abestos rejoiced as another fifteen minutes had successfully went by.

"I can use it now..." He muttered while pointing his index finger towards the northeast at a mountain that was within the forest area.

It seemed like time had frozen as Abestos feet suddenly bursted into flames and he reappeared at the top of the mountain he pointed at.

Thewiiisshhhh~

A small blast rang out a moment later behind him as a blazing trail could be spotted on the ground leading from his initial to present location.

"Phew~ That was close," He heaved a sigh of relief.

"I can use it six more times... I should be able to evade the Varlins for the rest of the countdown," His face showed determination and excitement as he looked down the mountain.

#####

Hour later, nightfall had arrived and the participants all over the planet were heading back to their accommodation areas.

As Gustav and the others descended from the eight disk, he praised the team.

"Good job guys," He voiced within the sky elevator.

"We didn't even take first," Falco said with a tone of disappointment.

"It doesn't matter. You three managed to gather more points for the group and also qualified for the next stage. I would have liked to leave the rest to the substitute team but I'm going to need you three to participate in the next stage as well," Gustav responded lengthily.

Chapter 1173 Facing A Panel

"I would have liked to leave the rest to the substitute team but I'm going to need you three to participate in the next stage as well," Gustav responded lengthily.

"What if there come a time where we can't participate because we're busy with a main category?" Fildhor asked.

"We'll cross that line when we get there," Gustav responded.

"Angy, Phinx, Abestos, good job on your sides too," Gustav added.

"It was a piece of cake," Angy said with a smile.

"I can't wait for the next stage," She added.

"Nope nope it wasn't a piece of cake for me at all, that Draconet nearly sabotaged the whole thing for me," Abestos shook his head.

"I saw but at least you managed to get through to the next stage," Gustav tapped his shoulder twice.

"So long as I maintain Angy's transformation I'm good," Phinx cut in.

"According to the announcement, the next stage is in two days so you three can relax till then," Gustav stated.

"No rest for us, the next stage for the Seismic Climb is taking place tomorrow," Falco folded his arms.

"On the bright side, the River Splitting Challenge won't be completed till tomorrow so the group will be free for the entire day... so until the second stage for the Seismic Climb starts, you three are also free," Gustav voiced in response.

They arrived on the ninth disk and the group decided to go spectate the ongoing River Splitting Challenge.

Gustav on the other hand excused himself and went off to a residential part of the ninth disk.

-

"Hand it over," Gustav voiced within a hallway where a group of ten could be seen. They had white heads, completely green eyes and transparent skin.

These were the Xionsi...

"Now hold on earthling, you can't just take it from him," The captain responded.

"I can and I will. He lost the bet," Gustav stated with a strong tone.

Unda stood behind the group with a fearful look as he tried to avoid eye contact with Gustav.

"If he gives you his Sway force, he will be left powerless and become completely useless to our team in the course of this competition," The captain spoke with a pleading tone.

"He should have thought about that before he made the bet. Hand it over," Gustav said once more.

"I'm afraid we really cannot do that. If you could wait till the end of th..." The captain was still speaking when Gustav cut him short.

"I will not repeat myself," A dreadful aura began emanating from his being as he threw out a menacing gaze.

"Or what?" Another teammate voiced as he stared back at Gustav with an unfazed expression.

"Uzeki stop it," Their captain quickly cautioned the teammate who had just spoken.

"Captain Ilumo, we don't have to cower just because of his performance in the River Splitting Challenge," Uzeki voiced out.

-"Participants are not allowed to fight each other outside of challenges too,"

-"And if he was to complain to anyone, he doesn't have proof that there was a bet,"

The other teammates added as well. Unda was starting to regain his confidence back as he realised his teammates had his back on the issue.

"You all better stop thi..." The captain was about speaking again when Gustav cut in.

"Alright, time up," Gustav voiced as he began to take steps forward.

Step! Step! Step! Step!

"Hey hey you can't attack us, its against the rules," Uzeki's face turned tensed with every step Gustav took.

"Who said i was going to attack? I'm just going to take what is mine," The instant these words escaped Gustav's lips his right foot also made contact with the ground.

Fwwwheiooooo~

A pinkish energy drifted from his being, spreading across the vicinity.

"What is..." Uzeki was about speaking again when he sensed an insurmountable force descending upon his entire body.

Bam! Bam! Bam!

He wasn't the only one feeling this as they began to fall to their knees one after the other while Gustav kept stepping forward.

Captain Ilumo was the only one who managed to fight against the force as he struggled to remain standing. However, his trembling knees were proof that he was having a difficult time as well.

"Sleep," Gustav voice was like a mandate that couldn't be resisted.

The Xionsis began falling face flat for the ground as they passed out one after the other.

Their captain still remained the only one who kept fighting against the power as he tried activating his while a strong dose of drowsiness kept assaulting his senses.

He tried to scream and fight but he couldn't do so for long. As his body began to succumb, the last thing he saw before his vision faded was Gustav's hand on Unda's head.

Unda was in a kneeling position, facing a completely different situation to his teammates...

Bam!

Captain Ilumo's body fell to the ground and he finally passed out.

"I can extract it right?" It seemed like Gustav was talking to himself but this of course wasn't so.

("Yeah, in a couple of seconds,") The system replied.

-

A minute later, Gustav stared at the system notification in front of him with a satisfied expression.

[Xionsi Sway Force Has Been Successfully Extracted]

[Does Host Wish To Merge The Sway Force With A Bloodline?]

"Oh i can do this too? Interesting," Gustav muttered.

"Unda, thank you for your cooperation... you can go to sleep now," Gustav said to the person kneeling before him.

Bam!

Unda fell face flat onto the ground and passed out in the next instant.

A couple of other species passing by this corridor stared with curious gazes before one finally moved in Gustav's direction.

"Fights are not allo..."

"It wasn't a fight," Gustav cut her short before she could complete her statement.

[Sprint Has Been Activated]

"Gotta go,"

Gustav's voice trailed off as his figure left afterimages while he sped off. He didn't want to attract any more attention to himself here.

Everyone wondered what happened as the Xionsi lay on the ground like they had met their demise.

Time went by very quickly and the next day arrived. Since all planets didn't get to participate in the river splitting challenge the previous day they had today to do that.

Gustav headed out with the others to go spectate the challenge but on his way, he was accosted by a group of Handlers.

Fwwhiii~

A rectangular floating platform descended from the air and landed in front of them.

"Gustav Crimson, you're coming with us," The Handlers on the platform stated with authoritative looks.

The group had expressions of confusion as they wondered why the Handlers voices sounded hostile.

Gustav instantly knew what this was about but still decided to ask.

"This is about yesterday isn't it?"

"Yes, you are coming with us for questioning," One of the handlers replied.

Gustav stared at them once more before replying, "Okay,"

"You guys go ahead, I'll catch up soon," He said to the others before stepping onto the platform.

It floated upwards and soon disappeared into the southern skies before they were even able to ask what was going on.

"Does anyone know what happened yesterday?" Angy asked with a worried expression.

"No idea," E.E shook his head.

The others looked clueless as well.

"We better tell Miss Aimee about this just in case," Teemee suggested.

ReadNovelFull.comn/0v//elbin[.//]net'

Within a wavy looking roofed building, Gustav stood in front of what looked like a panel within a large hall.

They were seated on high transparent seats in front of the hall which made them look exalted above all.

Gustav stood on the left, while a bunch of Xionsis stood on the right. They all had familiar looking faces.

"Gustav Crimson, captain of earth, did you break the rules of IYSOP by fighting outside of the competition?" One of the exalted panel members questioned with a loud tone.

"Nope," Gustav replied.

"Then how did you successfully extract the Sway force from a Xionsi participant?" Another one of them questioned.

"I just did. I didn't have to fight to achieve that," Gustav responded with an unbothered tone.

"Answer with truthfulness as this could lead to your disqualification from participating in the rest of IYSOP," The one who first questioned Gustav, spoke again.

"Disqualification? Last i checked no rules were broken so just say so if you're looking to disqualify anyone unjustly," Gustav replied.

"Are you claiming you didn't make use of any special abilities against the Xionsis yesterday?" The panel member questioned.

"I did but there was no fight," Gustav replied.

"How do..."

"Just show a goddamned footage instead of wasting time. What happened within the corridors of the accommodation area was surely recorded so show footages," Gustav stated.

The panel members began whispering amongst themselves for a minute before facing Gustav once more.

"Display yesterday's footage,"

After the instruction was given, an holographic footage appeared in the middle of the hall.

It displayed what had gone down with Gustav and the others yesterday, stunning the panel members watching.

'How is he doing all this?' This question ran through their minds.

Chapter 1174 Twenty Thousand Points

'How is he doing all this?' This question ran through their minds.

"It looks like there truly wasn't a fight," One of the panel members finally voiced out.

The others nodded in agreement.

"But he assaulted us... surely the panel will be just in meting out punishment!" Uzeki finally voiced out as it seemed he had been holding himself back.

"It will be unjust for the panel to let Gustav go! He took my Sway force!" Unda stated as well.

"According to the footage, Gustav Crimson did make use of his abilities but we cannot see it as an assault since he did not physically harm anyone," One of the panel members replied.

"I have lost my abilities because of what he did! He put his hand on me! That is assault!" Unda yelled.

"Indeed this part cannot be ignored... Gustav Crimson, while no fights or physical harm occurred, you have taken something that doesn't belong to you," The panel member in the middle spoke.

"We ask that you give it back to put an end to this issue once and for all,; Another panel member on the left voiced.

"It belongs to me so no I will not be complying," Gustav responded.

"You will be punished if this matter is judged to be an assault since you have forcefully stolen something that doesn't..."

"Let me stop you right there... I only took back what was rightfully mine so y'all need to get your facts straight," Gustav cut the panel member short before they could continue.

"Lies!" Unda cried out.

"We made a bet and he lost. The wager was his Sway force so like I said, I only took what was rightfully mine," Gustav stated.

-"He is lying,"

-"This scum just assaulted us out of nowhere,"

-"He took it by force,"

The Xionsi participants voiced out simultaneously.

"It's your word against theirs... Do you have proof? Witnesses that can back your claim?" Upon the mention of this, Unda had a glint at the corner of his eyes.

The group was sure that Gustav had no proof. Although Aildris and a few other teammates were witnesses, it was still going to be their words against that of the Xionsis.

Not having concrete evidence would put Gustav in a tough spot and they would force him to give it back with punishment added.

"Oh yeah I've got evidence here," Gustav statement shook the Xionsi as they stared in his direction with shocked looks.

'He's bluffing,' They had similar thoughts.

"SJ," Gustav called out.

Zziinnnnhhh~

A translucent head sized item suddenly appeared out of thin air. A glowing florescent light, the size of a baby's palm could be seen within while its surface happened to be transparent and looked as smooth as glass.

"Display my time yesterday exchanging dialogue with that buffoon," Gustav pointed at Unda.

The flourescent glow within the sacred jewel suddenly glowed intensely, illuminating the entire hall for a moment.

In the next instant, the surface of the sacred Jewel began displaying a particular footage that was all too familiar the Xionsis and Gustav.

Their faces dropped as the Sacred Jewel even increased the volume of the ongoing scene currently getting displayed.

-"The Klaxosapes will win,"

Unda's loud voice reverberated across the hall.

Minutes later...

"Gustav Crimson, you are free to leave," The panel finally granted Gustav freedom without any punishment after watching the footage completely.

"As for the Xionsi..."

Chatter! Chatter! Scuffle!

The panel and everyone within the hall was suddenly attracted by a ruckus at the entrance of the hall.

"You can't go in..."

"You are welcome to try and stop me,"

Within all of the ruckus, a familiar voice drifted into Gustav's hearing.

Fwwhiii~

In the next instant, a figure clad in all.white robes appeared within the hall.

"What do you lots think you're doing?" Miss Aimee voiced the instant she stepped in.

A powerful pressure instantly descended upon the entire vicinity, causing a deathly aura to permeate the air.

"This earthling..." The panel members had shocked looks meanwhile the Xionsis found themselves on their knees yet again.

"Miss Aimee, stop," Gustav voiced out.

"I heard about what happened? Did they finalise the whole situation with a stupid verdict?" Miss Aimee questioned while walking towards Gustav.

"Actually no, we just finished and I was about to leave," He replied.

"Oh..." The dreadful look as well as aura permeating from her suddenly ceased. Her face warmed up as she arrived before Gustav.

"Looks like you took care of it," She said.

"Yes, its fine now," Gustav replied.

"I'm late again... but its surprising to see that some people in power can have sound reasoning," Miss Aimee voiced while staring at the five panel members.

"Shouldn't you apologise for barging in and inconveniencing everyone this way?" One of the panel members questioned.

"No. He shouldn't even be here in the first place so next time, make your findings before bringing my student before any panel," Miss Aimee replied before grabbing Gustav arm.

"Let's go," She said while dragging him along as they walked out.

The Xionsis had looks of devastation after Gustav and Miss Aimee left. They had lost a teammate at this point. A teammate who was one of their core strengths.

Now they would have to use a substitute to continue with IYSOP.

Gustav had met up with the others outside who had been worried and came along with miss Aimee. It turned out Aildris figured out it must had been related to the bet issue despite the fact that Gustav didn't inform him about it.

Knowing Gustav, he was sure a scuffle must have gone down where Gustav probably had to take the wager by force.

After he pieced things together he informed Miss Aimee and they inquired to discover where Gustav was taken before they showed up.

After the whole issue, they returned to the arena and for the rest of the day spectate the other planets who were still participating in the river splitting challenge.

Gustav kept taking notes of the other planets participants especially the ones that would pose the most threat to earth.

ReadNovelFull.comno/vel//bi/n[.]net'

As expected, three more participants representing different planets managed to split the tenth river as well.

Before the river splitting challenge ended, Gustav took note of those who were even more powerful than the participants who managed to split the tenth river.

Just as mentioned earlier, some powerful participants couldn't show more of their strength due to pairing against weaker opponents.

Some participants were also trying to hide their strength, which was most likely because they didn't want others to be aware of their cards before the one on one battles arrived.

In the span of five days, about two more main Categories were completed.

So far the challenges had been types that would require the participants to use their abilities in specific ways and also follow a set of instructions as well as rules.

Points were shared based on how the planet participants performed in these categories and it was mostly high.

Angy and Phinx had managed to qualify for the last stage of the Varlin Chase which was holding the next day while Abestos had been disqualified in the previous one.

As for the Seismic Climb, Fildhor, Falco and Yonda reached the last stage but finished at the twentieth place.

Gustav wasn't in anyway disappointed with the results since they still managed to score a total of six hundred and twenty points for earth.

Angy, Phinx and Abestos had only managed to score three hundred points for earth so far despite reaching the final stage of the Varlin Chase.

As for the other sub categories that kicked off, Gustav had the substitutes participate in them as he couldn't spare any main teammate in the last two days.

Another sub category would be starting the same day Angy and Phinx would participate in the last stage of the Varlin Chase. However, Gustav didn't have any plans of making a main team member participate.

He already decided that the earth sub candidates would be participating. This was mostly due to the fact that a very major category would be holding a day after the last stage of the Varlin Chase.

This category happened to be a major one due to the fact that it was never reshuffled. This category was always in every IYSOP and this year it would be too.

It granted the winner a total of twenty thousand points which happened to be way higher than many other categories. Gustav was looking forward to it and also making plans as to how earth participants would act.

"It's an entire week long, I think we'll have enough time to find each other," Teemee voiced within the main room of their accommodation area.

"I'm not sure you realise how large the fourth disk is... to make it worse, they're using a dimensional expansion machine," Falco stated from the side.

"So what? Who cares if it is thirty or fifty times larger than earth? The Viondur Egg Category is an entire three weeks duration,"

Chapter 1175 Planet Desecrating Orbs

"So what? Who cares if it is thirty or fifty times larger than earth?" Ria yelled and soon regretted his action.

Everyone stared at him like he was an idiot.

"The Viondur Egg Category is an entire three weeks duration... he's not entirely wrong," Teemee added.

"If the disk is truly as large as recorded and the also make use of the dimensional expansion machine, the probability of us finding each other is really low... Angy is the only one that has a chance of finding anyone since she's very fast," Gustav analysed.

"Indeed, since according to the information given, we will all be scattered across different locations on the fourth disk," Aildris added.

"I think its best we come up with a plan now," Endric voiced out.

"A map of the fourth disk might help," Sheila spoke as well.

"I doubt the Handlers would let the fourth disk bear its usual look... A map would become completely useless if the terrains of the entire fourth disk got changed," Gustav shook his head.

Everyone agreed with Gustav's reasoning. So far the handlers had the power to change how the location of a category looked. There was a high chance they would do the same again.

"I don't think we have any other choice than to just gather as many different colors as we each can and meet in a designated point," Endric voiced with a low tone.

"But there are over nine hundred designated points... how do we know which one to head to?" Phinx asked with a serious expression.

"This is gonna be difficult," Matilda sighed.

"Now now just relax guys, how about I cook a dish to calm everyone down," E.E stood to his feet with a smile as he proposed.

"No!"

The unified voices of everyone left E.E standing in his spot with a look of betrayal.

"Come on guys, i promise I'll cook something good this time," E.E voiced with a wry smile.

"The last thing we need before taking on a tasking challenge is food poisoning," Sheila pointed out with her shrill voice.

E.E; "..."

pat pat Aildris patted E.E shoulder as he took a seat with a defeated expression.

"Back to the issue at hand... I have a way out," Gustav stated.

Everyone's attention instantly focused back on Gustav.

"Do you guys know that I can track everyone of you, no matter how far away you travel?" Gustav announced.

"What?" They exclaimed with expressions of surprise.

"Even if we're on different planets?" Fildhor questioned.

"Yes... it gets weaker the farther away you are. Meaning, I'll still be able to see you and your surroundings but I won't be able to sense which direction to head in since its like a tracker..."

Everyone was still reeling in shock about Gustav having such a power. Like what he had displayed in these last few days weren't enough. He still had more in his arsenal.

"However, so long as we are on the same planet I'll be able to do both. See everyone and pinpoint locations as well," Gusyav explained.

"But that's just a one way ability, no? We won't be able to see you or talk to you but you'll be able to see us," Abestos inquired with a contemplative expression.

"That's where SJ comes in," Gustav replied.

"SJ!?" Everyone faces showed expressions of confusion upon hearing this.

Hours later, Gustav stood in the middle of a corridor with glass walls. He stared through the transparent walls towards the buildings in the distance.

"What are you worried about again," Angy approached from behind.

"We have only managed to accumulate a total of nineteen thousand points so far. There will be a huge gap if we don't win the Viondur Egg Challenge," Gustav stated.

"And we're currently sixth position out of over two thousand planets... so far I think we're doing good," Angy said while wrapping her arms around Gustav from behind.

"Yeah... I don't wanna lose though," Gustav replied.

"Don't worry, even if we don't take first place in this challenge, other challenges will still take place. Also, losing this category doesn't mean we can't acquire any points at all," Angy voiced with a comforting tone.

"You're right but we haven't lost haha... this is more fun than I expected," Gustav said while slowly turning around with Angy's arms still wrapped around him.

"I'm glad you're having fun... I hope Gustav junior will be less stuck up and be more of your current self," Angy placed her head on his chest at this point.

"Gustav Junior eh... I think I'll name him Danzo instead but no we won't be making a mini me till after two years," Gustav replied with a light chuckle.

Angy's face turned reddish at this point, "We? You want me to..." She stuttered while speaking.

"If not you then who else? Haha anyway let's focus on the current task," Gustav said while separating from Angy.

"A little fun every once in a while wouldn't kill you..." Angy muttered while pinching the chest area of her fabric and pulling it a little downwards.

This time Gustav's face turned red as Angy's cleavage was exposed, displaying the smooth lumps threatening to spill out.

'Damn it... I gotta look away... she really got bustier,' Gustav said internally.

("Are you just noticing that?" Compared to the last three years her chest is twice as large... her thighs are also...")

'Shut the fuck up! You're making things worse,' Gustav cursed internally as he felt blood rush to a certain part of his body.

"cough cough See you later Angy," Gustav turned around and sped away.

"How is he still so shy after all this time," Angy smiled while shaking her head before recalling she was similar.

Her face turned red, 'I love him... with all my heart, soul and body,'

The next day arrived very quickly. Gustav and the group didn't have to head to the arena since no main category was holding today.

Only sub categories were taking place today. Angy and Phinx would be heading to the seventh disk for the last stage of the Varlin Chase.

As for the other sub categories, Gustav had picked a couple of earth substitutes to participate in them.

As Earth's captain, he was still the leader of the substitutes as well so he had to make sure he let right ones represent earth in the sub category that was suited them.

Gustav wanted to witness the final stage of the Varlin Chase in person so he gave Aildris the task to take care of the rest.

Fwwhwiisssshhh~

ReadNovelFull.comn0/v//el//bin[./]net'

On a large screen towards the east, a group of species could be seen running from a bunch of black round creature with cat whiskers.

The black round creatures with cat whiskers moved so quickly, black streaks were all the screens could capture as they sped across the vicinity.

Gustav who witnessed the Varlins chasing the participants was amongst the spectators who were able to properly follow the fast movements.

"They're already this fast in just thirty minutes?" Glade voiced from the side.

"Yeah, that's more than seventy miles per second," Gustav analysed.

"If they're already moving this quickly, then how fast will they be moving in the next hour?" Matilda had a worried look on her face as she spoke.

---SS

Red energy phased out of Gustav as he stretched his hand forward to touch the spherical balls one after the other.

A couple of minutes later all of the balls had turned from purplish to dark red while black electric arcs swam across it.

The all emitted fierce destructive energy which the air to vibrate intensely due to their existence.

Gustav went back to his seating position after imbueing them with more energy and looked upwards before whispering...

"Combine," He snapped his fingers.

Ziiiihhh~ Ziiiihhh~ Zzziiiihhh~

The spherical balls of destructive energy began to phase into one another at quick pace..

With every combination, they grew larger and larger. A few seconds later, a gigantic building sized orb had appeared.

THRRRIHHH!

The air sizzled with intensity upon the final product of the combination causing weird reactions to the vicinity.

"Compress," Gustav voiced out.

A space compression energy phased out of Gustav at this point and the massive spherical orb began to reduce in size.

("You... Do you know what you just created?") The system voiced with a slight tone of terror.

"A planet destroying orb... yes I'll call it PLANET DESECRATING ORB," Gustav decided with a tone of delight.

("You are crazy, that thing can destroy a planet almost twice the size of earth,") The system yelled.

"Exactly why I call it backup," Gustav replied.

"Now lets make more," Gustav added.

("...")

'Did this idiot even hear what i just said?'

Hours upon hours passed and Gustav spent half the day creating more Planet Desecrating orbs.

He didn't stop even after creating more than ten of them. This couldn't be called a backup anymore. It was more like a backup that had multiple other backups.

Chapter 1176 Angy Activates A New Ability

Within the light barrier that encircled the location, a silver streak suddenly cut through a forest area.

Thrrriihhhhhh~

Multiple black streaks followed about a second later, chasing after the silver streak.

The silver streak soon arrived before the tallest tree within the forest area and sped across it. In less than a second, the streak arrived at the top of this seven thousand feet tall tree.

"Phew~ It's getting tasking again, I need to shake them off," The figure with silver and pink hair as well as two short horns on her forehead voiced.

"They're coming," Shs barely had a moment of rest as she spotted the approach of the black streaks once more.

Fwwwiiii~

Just like her, they scaled across the tree in a jiffy. However, before they arrived at the top, she jumped off.

Thrrihhh~

As her body traveled across the air, the Varlins were only just arriving at the top of the tree.

"I may not be able to attack them directly but I can do this..." She muttered while her entire figure gave off a silver glow.

Dhooooom!

An outburst of silver colored energy spread forth from her figure the instant she landed on another tree.

Fwwhii! Fwwhii! Fwwhii! Fwwhii!

Trees began to topple one after the other, including the one she had just landed upon. She had to leap off once again.

The instant, she landed on the ground which currently had visibility issues due to the dust she stirred from her initial action, she turned towards the west and sped away.

Thwwoosshhh~

As she sped away, her facial muscles squirmed a bit, making it look like her face would fall off but a moment later, it went back to normal.

-

In another part of the venue, Angy could be spotted running sideways on a sloppy mountain side. Her body was in a slanted position like the mountain as she sped across its sloppy surface with no issues.

"That cave would have been a good hiding spot if there wasn't a portal right there," Angy muttered underneath her breath.

No Varlins could be seen chasing her as she was moving at a speed that was more than twice theirs.

Her feet were starting to cut lines into the mountain so she decided to descend so as not to split the entire mountain by mistake.

"Oh well... this is still too easy," She muttered while speeding across a plainland.

Fwwhiii~

Her figure blasted past another participant who was about to get caught by the Varlins. They instantly got attracted by her presence and turned around to give chase.

However, they soon lost her due to speed and were unable decide on which direction to head in.

Time went by very quickly and soon only around five hours were left on the timer.

< Planet Foheng Last Representative Disqualified >

< Planet Draconet Last Representative Disqualified >

< Planet Tahuhti Last Representative Disqualified >

< Planet Rihverk Last Representative Disqualified >

Disqualification nnouncements kept ringing out by the minute as more participants got disqualified.

At this point only around a hundred participants were left. More than two thousand, eight hundred planets had been disqualified as well.

There were barely any planets left with more than one representative. It got even worse after another fifteen minutes went by.

"Now they are moving at a hundred and seventy miles per second," Gustav analysed from his spectating position.

"That's just insane... I can barely follow their speeds anymore," Matida stated.

"And there is still over three hours left... just how fast will they be moving by when the timer is less than an hour?" Glade looked agitated as she spoke.

The only person besides Angy who was able to move at the current speed was Gustav but the group were worried that Angy might reach her speed limit before the timer counted down completely.

Gustav on the other hand was more concerned about how many Varlins would be in there with them in the next hour.

Currently there were about six thousand Varlins that had appeared from the portals according to Gustav's calculation. He felt that, the participants left would soon run out of space.

By the time the Varlins filled everything, there wouldn't be anymore room for movement which would eventually lead to disqualification.

'They still aren't as quick as Angy's usual speed,' Gustav also took note of this. The Varlins had not reached Angy's normal speed yet despite how fast they were moving.

Gustav calculated that with the current rate of disqualification, less than ten participants would be left in the next hour.

...and he wasn't wrong.

<< 02 : 51 : 27 >>

It was going just as Gustav predicted, the sheer numbers of the Varlins was starting to become a problem as there was little room left.

Angy could be spotted on the screen getting slower and slower as she tried to keep away from getting caught.

Fwoosshh~

She soon stopped behind a giant rock and began panting heavily.

"Fuck..." She muttered as her flesh began to squirm like there were worms underneath.

A white foam like substance fell from the side of her face, revealing a different look. Gnashing her teeth, she quickly sped forward as a bunch of Varlins arrived at her location.

Bam!

One landed from the air at her initial location.

Fwwhii~ Fwwhii~

As they bolted forward to make contact, she swerved repeatedly across the place. However, her figure suddenly glitches as she felt her speed getting sapped.

Her left horn melted from her forehead as she tripped and tumbled across the ground suddenly.

The instant she managed to get herself up she had already been surrounded by the Varlins...

Minutes later, Phinx was teleported out of the venue.

"You did well," Gustav praised as he passed an energy snack to Phinx.

"sigh I could have tried to hold on longer," She muttered while receiving the snack.

"You did your best, now the rest is up to Angy," Gustav added.

Phinx had gone back to her original look after getting caught by the Varlins. She was already running out of energy.

Gustav understood that this was mainly due to the fact that Phinx had to use Angy abilities more to escape the Varlins who were multiplying and increasing at a rapid pace.

Now only seven participants were left. Angy was still doing well in escaping the Varlins but they were becoming too many to count and her opponents were not weak as well.

They were evading the Varlins pretty well too.

Fwwhiii! Fwwhiii!

"Oh? You're fast for an earthling," A participant with twenty seven wings voiced out.

"What is that supposed to mean?" Angy questioned while sizing her up.

The seven mini wings lined up across her feet to her calves happened to be quite eye-catching.

"I'm saying your kind is usually slower," She voiced in reply.

"I hope you can keep this same confident tone when you lose," Angy stated as they sped forward side by side.

"Lose? You make me laugh earthling," The female participant who happened to be a Terocile chuckled before speeding further ahead.

Fwwhwoooooomm~

Her speed went up to one million, five hundred feet per second. Angy squinted her eyes before increasing her speed as well.

Fwwwhooommssh~

The land was getting split apart as these two sped side by side. Angy had caught up with her again.

"Oh is it a race? Let me join! Let me join!" Another participant with flaming limbs voiced as he approached from the left with an excited tone.

"A Peracule? Looks like I need to show you lifeforms with lower speed, your place," The Terocile voiced as she increased her speed once more.

Her face soon turned shocked as Angy and the other participant caught up with her in a couple of moments.

One more soon joined their race as well as they sped across the vicinity of the sub challenge. Winds were soon stirred up as these four ran non stop increasing their speeds occasionally.

Despite the size of the venue, they had run across it more than a hundred times in a couple of minutes

<< 00 : 25 : 55 >>

At this point only three participants were left. Angy, Moroove and Vilkan. These three were Earth, Terocile and Peracule representatives.

Due to their speed, no Varlin was able to approach them as they were currently moving at more than two million feet per second.

They had created storm's from their speed which kept blowing the varlins away whenever they tried to approach the three. Gustav had to admit he didn't expect this, but soon they would have to break it off since only one of them was expected to win.

"It's time for you two to lose!" Vilkan stated as he prepared to attack Angy and Moroove.

"You have to catch us first fool!" Moroove stated and suddenly increased her speed by over a hundred thousand feet again.

Moroove had suddenly leapt into the air at this point, ready to kick Angy in the face as she was right beside him.

The instant Angy was kicked out of the circle, the Varlins would be able to get her and he would have one less competitor.

However at this same momemt Angy activated an ability.

Thhiiinnzzhhh~

Her left horn glowed a silver color that suddenly illuminated the environment. Vilkan who had leapt into the air, suddenly found himself moving in very slow motion.

Chapter 1177 Losing Consciousness

"Huh?" He expressed his confusion as Angy suddenly sped off while the heavy winds created from their speed, blew him out of the circle.

Thhiiinnzzhhh~

Her left horn emitted a silver light that suddenly illuminated the environment. Vilkan who had leapt into the air, suddenly found himself moving in very slow motion.

"What is..."

The winds generated from the speed of Angy and Moroove who were unhindered, sent Vilkan spiralling across the air.

Bam!

He soon landed outside the encirclement and found himself surrounded by thousands of Varlins.

< Planet Peracules Last Representative Disqualified >

The ability Angy had just activated was amongst the new abilities she got from connecting to her bloodline predecessor.

It stole time and speed from a particular radius while other areas remained unaffected.

Angy had already caught up once again with Moorove who kept trying to outrun her but to no avail.

<< 00: 12 : 34 >>

Minutes went by and none of them had been caught by the Varlins. They were already in the last fifteen minutes.

The Varlins at this point were moving at over three hundred miles per second which was well over one million, five hundred thousand feet per second.

Despite how insanely fast this was, they weren't able to keep up with Angy and Moroove.

The Varlins got pulled into the storm that was still maintained from their speed and kept swirling about.

At this point it looked like they would both get to the end of the timer. The Handlers hadn't expected this and only wanted one winner.

"Initiate the merge," The handler in charge of sub challenge instructed.

Dddihhiinnn~

A beam suddenly descended upon the venue of the challenge, drawing the attention of the spectators.

The instant this beam appeared, all of the Varlins started getting pulled into it and the storm generated from Angy and Moroove's speed disappeared.

"Aiiiiiiiiihhhh!" A loud roar rang out from within the beam the instant all of the Varlins got sucked completely into it.

The beam disappeared in the next moment and everyone could see an enormous Varlin in the middle of the venue.

It was up to three thousand feet tall with a long four hundred feet long tail and massive whiskers. Its eyed gleamed a dangerous white light as its massive black body moved.

"That is troublesome," Falco muttered.

Zzhiiinn~

Moroove and Angy suddenly felt a mighty pull the instant the Varlin moved. It suddenly appeared in front of them with its massive paws swinging downwards.

Fwwwheii~

Angy stepped towards the left instantly, barely missing the paws as they landed on the ground.

Booommm~

Gusts of winds blasted across the vicinity, slamming heavily into Moroove and Angy the instant they escaped the paws.

Angy found herself spiralling across the air from the sudden contact of the shockwaves along with Moroove.

The creature swung both of its paws downwards oncemore in their directions since it was large enough to reach both of them without moving.

This happened to be the deciding moment as both participants looked like they would be disqualified in this moment.

Thiiiiihhiinnnn~

Angy's left horn suddenly gleamed once more with the silver glow as the right paw of the Varlin slowed in descent for a moment.

"Hnnghh!" She groaned as she landed on her feet before it made contact with her.

Thooosshhhh~

Turning to the south, she blitzed off, appearing more than a million feet away before its paws landed on the ground.

BOOOOOMMM!

It sounded like a nuclear weapon had gone off as its paws slammed onto the ground. The right one descended before the left due to Angy's interference.

< Planet Terocile Last Representative Disqualified >

Now only Angy was left in the last stage. However, the others didn't rejoice yet.

Moroove got disqualified because the rules of the challenge did not allow flight, which meant she was incapacitated till she landed on the ground.

The massive Varlin didn't let her land before it got to her and now that only Angy was left, it could focus on her alone.

<< 00 : 07 : 31 >>

The Varlin Chased after Angy and caught up in a jiffy, it began slamming its paws down occasionally to disrupt the entire environment.

Whenever this happened, Angy's entire figure would be thrown into the air and the Varlin would try to catch her in mid air. However, Angy would take away part of its time and speed, giving herself the opportunity to escape.

This happened over and over and over again till only a minute was left.

<< 00 : 00 : 59 >>

At this point Angy was weary and blood was oozing down her nose and forehead. She had nearly drained herself completely, repeatedly using that ability.

"Come on Angy, less than one minute left," Glade voiced with a look of hope.

The last few seconds were like days to Angy as time slowed down for her and the creature. Her vision was turning blurrier by the millisecond and she could feel her head was heavy.

She decided to stop using the ability in the meantime and kept trying to keep as much distance between herself and the massive Varlin.

However, this wasn't working as the Varlin kept adapting to her speed and catching up. There was also not enough room in the venue which meant they were running in circles so much, they could catch their own tail.

<< 00 : 00 : 15 >>

<< 00 : 00 : 14 >>

<< 00 : 00 : 13 >>

<< 00 : 00 : 12 >>

Boooooommm!

In the last ten seconds another shockwaves blasted across the vicinity as the Varlin suddenly leapt into the air and landed on the ground with its massive body.

The ground responded by quaking and destructive ripples blasted across the place.

Bang!

The instant it hit Angy, she got swept across the air and instantly passed out in mid air.

"Angy!"

Matilda and the others yelled as they spotted her body traveling across the air due to the shockwaves which were still spreading around.

Her eyes were shot and the massive paws of the creature was headed for her.

<< 00 : 00 : 07 >>

The tension in the spectators corner had risen to an insane level due to the number of seconds left.

Would Angy get disqualified now?

<< 00 : 00 : 06 >>

The paws were only inches from making contact with her when...

[Mental Manipulation Has Been Activated]

'Wake up, Angy!' She suddenly heard a familiar voice in her mind, causing her to open her eyes at the last moment.

Thiiiiihhhiiiiinnnn~

A silver glow suddenly coated the tip of Angy's right horn this time and an unexpected phenomenon occurred.

Zhiiiiihh~

As the silver glow from the tip of her right horn, spread across the vicinity, the massive Varlin paw suddenly paused along the rest of its body, then began to reverse.

Its actions began to reverse, with its paws recinding and its leap into the air retracting along with the effects it brought.

The distance between Angy and the creature suddenly increased as her right horn glow disappeared.

"Koorrh!" She coughed out a mouthful of blood as she sped forward to further increase the gap between them.

'I still can't use it...'

(Seconds later)

< The Varlin Chase Last Stage Has Ended >

< Earth Wins >

< + 700 Points To Earth >

Loud cheers reverberated across the vicinity as Angy's unconscious figure was teleported out of the venue.

Gustav and the others quickly ran to where she was receiving medical treatment.

"That ended up being way intense than I expected,"

As the Varlin Chase came to an end, the spectators moved to other parts of the eight disk where other sub categories were ongoing.

Other sub categories had long begun but Gustav wasn't interested in spectating their substitutes.

At the moment he stayed in a room with Angy laying on a bed.

"She's still unconscious?" Aildris walked in.

"Yeah," Gustav replied.

"Should we get a substitute to replace her for the Viondur Egg Challenge tomorrow?" He inquired.

"No one can replace her but just in case yes, we should have someone with speed abilities, ready to substitute with her for tomorrow," Gustav responded.

"I understand. When do you think she'll wake?" Aildris said with a disturbed look.

"I don't know... she used something she shouldn't have," Gustav face surprisingly looked unbothered despite how he was feeling at the moment.

"The time rewinding ability, right?" Aildris muttered.

Gustav nodded in response.

"Her body doesn't seem accustomed to such power,"

--SS

"Now now my little Sheila, great grandpa will pay up okay," The aura of sharpness around Grand commander Shion reduced as he pat Sheila on her head.

"How are you two even related? She's... she's..." Teemee voiced out with a look of confusion.

"I'm black doesn't mean G grandpa isn't my relative you fool! I was just born with a different skin color," Sheila yelled out.

"...oh..." Teemee nodded in response.

"Anyways, it is time for you all to gear up for IYSOP," Grand commander Shion announced.

"I have assembled a technological team specially tasked with assisting you all in this. Your spacecraft will be ready to leave within the hour," Grand commander Shion added.

-

- "This is an amplifier... you all have four amplification shots before it runs out so make sure you make use of it wisely during IYSOP,"

- "A bult in suit shell,"

- "Healing meds,"

Chapter 1178 Viondur Egg Challenge

"What better time is there than now to go all out? Stop wavering and make use of what you have," Gustav added.

"Although I wouldn't advice overdoing it like Angy did so as it won't result to the same situation," He added.

"She didn't have any other choice... I don't think she would have done so under normal circumstances," Aildris said before placing his hand on Gustav's shoulder.

"Don't worry yourself, she'll be fine," Aildris added with a comforting tone.

Gustav nodded before Aildris walked out. A few moments later, Matilda and Glade walked in with some food.

The time in Planet Ozious flowed differently from that of earth. Not only was the Galaxy home to a completely different orbit, the planets and major star was completely different as well.

Compared to Earth, Planet Ozious day was almost three times longer. This was why major or sub categories could continue on for a long period of time within just a day.

Currently, it was almost nightfall and Angy had been unconscious for about thirty seven hours. At this point, Gustav already felt that she might not awaken till after the next category began.

If she didn't wake before then, she would be unable to participate even if she regained consciousness before the category ends.

[God Eyes Has Been Activated]

Gustav activated God Eyes for the umpteenth time and could see that Angy didn't have any complications.

Just as he had seen the many other times he scanned her body, she only seemed to be recovering energy very slowly which was why she hadn't regained consciousness.

("There's no point, she's not reawakening before the next main category begins,") The system voiced in Gustav's mind.

ReadNovelFull.comno/vel//bi/n[.]net'

'Is there a way to speed up her recovery?' Gustav inquired.

("There is but I think it's best to let her recover naturally... her body will naturally come back stronger so long as there is no outside interference,") The system replied.

'Alright then... so long as she is okay...' Gustav softly carressed Angy's silver hair as he noted internally.

("You have to take her out of your plans... at least for now,") The system voiced internally.

'That's the only option... this makes things a little more difficult. Angy is truly irreplaceable but I guess we'll have to make do,' Gustav decided as SJ appeared behind him.

Zzhiinnnnhhh~

"Hmm? You're hungry?" Gustav questioned as he turned around and rubbed SJ affectionately.

Flicker ~ Flicker~

The glowing light within flickered repeatedly in response.

"Is it ready?"

Within one of the accommodation rooms, some creatures resembling humans but with multiple limbs and star like patterns on their bodies could be seen in an encirclement.

"Yes," One of them who stood in the middle with what looked like a black candle voiced.

"Captain Strum, with the flame of the primordial link, we are sure to appear in the same place," The one in the middle added.

"Sure, I hope it works. This will help us win easily," The largest in their midst with a half black, half white face, responded.

In another accommodation location, a group with acorn shaped white heads were also holding a meeting.

"I must kill that earthling! I won't be satisfied if I don't kill him!" Uzeki yelled.

"We have the chance to do that in the Viondur Egg Challenge," Another teammate by the name Dartin spoke.

"Captain, we have to end that earthling for Unda sake," Uzeki said once more.

"It is only because of Unda that this happened in the first. I am against partaking in any form of vengeance," Captain Ilumo responded.

"Unda is one of us, no matter what happened... Gustav Crimson deserves to pay for what he did," Another teammate stated.

"They had a bet and he failed. It is the consequences of his own actions, drop it," Captain Illumo voiced with a tone of authority.

His voice reverberated across the place for a couple of seconds, causing silence before he spoke again.

"Now we have more important matters at hand... The Viondur Egg Challenge," Captain Ilumo.

In another accommodation location a similar scene could be seen playing out with a different group of species.

"It is best we use this to eliminate some competition," One of the flaming headed species voiced.

"Give me a list of participants you have in mind,"

#####

The next day arrived in a jiffy and the participants began leaving for the forth disk.

As for the spectators, the arena on the ninth disk would be displaying the challenge from start to finish on the multiple screens floating in mid air.

The Viondur Egg Challenge would be holding for a duration of three weeks so the spectators were bound to not witness the entirety of it but a lot of them had vowed to witness most of it.

-"We are here today with Foheng participants,"

-"Who do you think would win the Viondur Egg Challenge,"

A couple of earth's reporters who were allowed to come witness IYSOP in person, questioned some of the participants on their way to the fourth disk.

Floating cameras that transmitted the footages back to earth could be spotted around them.

"Huh? We will win of course. None of them can stand against us," One of Foheng representatives stated.

-"Who are you most wary of?" Another reporter questioned.

"Strum, Vilax, Irland, Fhirus and... Crimson! Hmph! They still can't hold a candle," One of them answered.

-"Who are you most wary of?" The reporters would occasionally ask the participants they came into contact with.

"Crimson, Strum, Vilax, Fhirus, Irland, Volx..."

"Vilax, Strum, Volx, Crimson, Strum, Gasula, E.E..."

"Endric, Strum, Crimson, Fhirus, Irland..."

While everyone had a list to give, certain names always popped up every time from different species.

The participants had been taking note of the opponents who had been performing the best out of over fifty thousand participants.

The earth reporters approached yet another group with multiple limbs and star like patterns on their bodies.

"Captain Strum, who are you most wary of?" They questioned the one with the black and white face.

"Nobody," He answered with a proud smile.

"Not even the participants who have been doing the best so far?"

"No one is good enough to waste a one second thought on," Captain Strum responded.

"Then who do you think will win?" The reporters questioned yet again.

"I," Captain Strum stated before walking away with his teammates.

Just after they left, a group with dark clothes covering their entire body also passed as well, emitting a dreadful energy.

- "Is that...? Captain Gustav Crimson is approaching, let's question him too,"

"Phew~ We're finally here," Teemee voiced as they arrived within a massive hall missing a roof.

"Captain, I really appreciate you giving me the chance to be a part of the main team," A participant with green eyes and hair voiced.

"Never mind about it, we just needed to fill in the space," Gustav said with a dismissive tone.

"Still, I am grateful," The new addition replied with respect.

"I WELCOME YOU ALL TO THE VIONDUR EGG CHALLENGE," Handler one who happened to be standing on an exalted podium announced with an excited tone.

Everyone focused their attention on him the instant he started speaking.

"As you may already be aware, this challenge will be holding for three weeks and your tasks are as follows..."

Trroooiinn~

An holographic projection of different colors of eggs soon appeared before everyone.

These eggs were up to three feet tall and the colors they each had were;

< Violet >

< Indigo >

< Orange >

< Neon >

< Dark red >

< Ultramarine >

< Raisin Black >

The colors of the eggs displayed on the holographic screens were specifically listed out as Handler one resumed briefing them.

"One of each with the colors listed must be found and combined at the designated points. The combination of all seven eggs with each color would form a Viondur Egg which of course gives a certain amount of points.

The team with the highest number of points at the end of the three weeks is the winner," Handler one explained lengthily.

---SS

on a small piece of block.

This male, avoided the lightning strikes from above and even parried them sometimes as the small piece of block kept taking him forward.

"He is getting there," Glade voiced out.

"Do you really think he can supass Fildhor's record?" Falco questioned.

"Doubt it," Teemee and Glade responded at the same time.

They briefly glanced at each other before turning away.

On the screen, a golden colored lightning bolt suddenly descended from the sky and landed right in the turbulent sea.

Fwwwwhooommmmm~

The sea suddenly rose with intensity throwing the purple haired male high into the sky. The piece of block kept spiralling intensely in the air as he reached out to grab it.

However, before his hand could make contact with it...

Thrraaahhh~ Thhrraahhh~ Thrrraahhh~

Seven lightning bolts descended from seven different positions in the sky and struck him down.

BAM!

His figure evaporated in the next instant and a display of 'Game over,' was shown on the holographic screen.

"Awww,"

Some of them let out disappointment sounds as a figure who was standing up ahead pulled a transparent helmet off his head.

This was the same person who had been displayed on the holographic screen. He had a face full of smiles even though he was a bit disappointed as he approached the group.

"I tried my best," Dennis voiced out.

"Yeah you tried," Some of them nodded.

"I will break the record," One of them who was flat faced voiced out with confidence.

"We should probably go and join the others in training," Falco said to Teemee and Glade.

Chapter 1179 I Don't Intend To Kill Anyone

"If a participant receives three strikes, they will get disqualified,"

With this announcement, the faces of many participants flashed with a dark expression.

Handler one mentioned how a participant would be instantly disqualified if they were deliberately trying to kill or successfully murder another participant as opposed to it being a mistake.

After Handler one mentioned a couple more things...

Zhiinnn~ Zhiinnn~ Zhiinnn~ Zhiinnn~

Flourescent glowing doorways began to appear all over within this massive roofless Hall.

"Once you go through the light, you'll arrive within the venue but as mentioned earlier, you all will be scattered across the fourth disk," Handler one stated.

"Let the Viondur Egg Challenge begin,"

The participants began to move towards the glowing doorways closer to them. Despite Handler one mentioning they would end up in different places, groups still went in together.

As Gustav and the others moved towards the one closest to them, another group followed right after.

"It's time," Gustav voiced as they approached the light.

"Remember the plan guys," Aildris stated.

They all nodded with serious expressions.

"We'll be waiting for the link," E.E said to Gustav and they headed into the light.

"Gustav Crimson... you will pa..."

Gustav heard a familiar voice trail off as he disappeared into the light.

'...looks like someone intends to use the Viondur Egg challenge as cover to try to eliminate me,' Gustav thought as his figure continued to sink into the light.

("Looks like your nice streak ends here... I don't think you've gone this long without killing anyone,") The system replied internally.

'I don't intend to kill anyone still so stop with the instigation,' Gustav announced internally.

("Oh we'll see about that,") The system chuckled.

Gustav; 'Tch,'

--

In the next moment, Gustav found himself falling from a sky with ice clusters.

Bang! Bang!

His body slammed into some frosted clouds that remained in a stationary position in the sky.

Parts of them instantly came crumbling down.

("Looks like the fourth disk is extremely cold,") The system voiced as Gustav began to leap from ice cluster to ice cluster.

"Yeah, the North Pole pales in comparison to this," Gustav stated as he leapt off another icy platform.

Fwwhwiiiiii~

His body began to free fall unhindered and now he could finally spread his perception.

'An area of ice rocks... interesting," Gustav muttered as his senses spread across the vicinity.

He could sense the frost covered grounds and then multiple icy rocks scattered across the place as he descended. His senses were still spreading so he was slowly picking up on more of the terrain while descending from the sky.

"Hmm? There's fire?"

Bang!

Gustav soon landed on a two hundred feet fall icy rock, causing it to crumble.

"How is there fire in such a place?" Gustav turned to stare northeast as he sensed this.

From what he sensed, it wasn't coming from a person instead, the source seemed to be something unexpected.

This of course drew his attention as he turned in its direction and began to head there. The icy rocks mostly were around two hundred to five hundred feet. They weren't very tall.

Fwwhoosshh~

Gustav sped towards the direction he sensed the flames and arrived on a high terrain where he could spot a one thousand feet tall tree in the distance.

This tree was ablaze with blue flames that looked undying but the white leaves on them didn't seem affected in the slightest as well.

Gustav could see that right in front of the tree was the entrance to a completely ice cave where multiple icicles could already be spotted.

"Looks like I have company," Gustav muttered while squinting his eyes as he spotted three participants walking into the cave that seemed to lead further underground.

What was more unnerving was, they were teammates. It turned out these three had arrived here at together.

"So much for separation... some insane luck they have," Gustav muttered as he spread his senses further out.

Gustav perception was currently so great that he could cover up to three quarters of the earth, however the fourth disk was more than thirty times larger than earth.

With the current challenge, the dimensional expansion machine had been used to make it an even larger land mass. It was impossible to tell how big it was presently.

Despite how far, Gustav spread his senses, he couldn't find a single earth participant. Unfortunately, he discovered there were more participants in the vicinity who were headed in this direction.

"The eggs tend to be found easily underground than in other places..."

Gustav recalled one of the things Handler one mentioned as he glanced at the icy cave entrance up ahead.

Fwwhoosshh~

His figure disappeared down the path and into the cave in the next instant.

#####

"Why the hell is it so cold?" Glade cursed as she conjured a red glowing jacket around her figure.

As she tried looking around all she could see was a thick layer of fog that affected her senses. All she could tell was, she was on a sloppy terrain.

Bam!

"Huh? Who the..." She was about to curse as her figure bumped into someone, when she noticed who it was.

"You again!?" Teemee voiced with a look of shock.

-"That's my line dweeb! How are you here too?" She questioned.

"Don't tell me we somehow got linked again because of that?" Teemee forehead scrunched.

"Yeah... it is the only explanation," Glade found herself agreeing with him.

"Hmph!" They both pouted before turning to face separate directions.

"We should get moving and at least gather something before Gustav link..." Teemee turned to the east and began walking forward.

While Glade turned towards the west and performed the same action.

"Huh?"

"Huh?"

They both paused at the same time before turning around.

"Where are you going?"

"Bastard I should be the one asking you that?"

"Let's go this way,"

"No, let's go this way dummy!"

They both argued for a bit before doing a playing a game and finally deciding to head south.

"You lost," Teemee voiced as they walked away.

"You too idiot," Glade replied while her tailed rose in frustration.

"Would it kill you to be more lady like?"

"Lady like? What's that? Is it a training regimen?"

Facepalm~

They both soon arrived outside the foggy area after traveling for a bit. Just as suspected, they had been on a sloppy terrain all this time.

As they arrived outside the fog, they realised they had been walking down a frosted hill.

At the bottom of the hill were, buildings of sorts made from ice. However, there weren't just buildings up ahead, there were also people.

Fwwhooo~

Both of them activated their bloodline at the same time, causing their bodies to emit reddish glows.

"You ready?" Teemee questioned.

"Yeah," Glade eyes squinted upon response.

"Let's go,"

#####

Atop what seemed like a frosted statue, a teenage looking kid with dark curly hair could be spotted in a squatting format.

He looked down upon a terrain filled with icy mountains. The frosted statue was shaped to resemble a bird with four massive wings.

It was very large and seemed to be resting on a mountain top as well.

"This reminds me of there..." The dark curly haired figure muttered.

A green dotted glow appeared on his forehead in the next instant along with a familiar voice.

"Indeed... but the Frosted Medieval Kingdom was a much pleasurable sight compared to this," Husarius voice rang out.

Bang! Bang! Boom!

The sounds of collision rang out as a battle played out in the distance.

"Well, this is to be expected since they landed together in a location that happened to have eggs on display in the frost," Endric voiced as he kept watching the battle between a couple of participants.

"Do you intend to take the eggs?" Husarius questioned.

"I do... Once someone wins," Endric replied.

"I hope you are aware that you are not the only one waiting," Husarius voiced.

"I am... In the end, it will be a matter of speed and timing," Endric responded once more while his eyes darted across the vicinity.

#####

Bang!

"Talk about inconvenience," Aildris mumbled as he slowly retracted his fist from the gut of a white spider like creature.

"What a way to spawn right?" E.E replied from the side as snapped his finger.

Thirrh! Bam! Thrrihh! Bam! Thrrih! Bam!

Six vortexes opened above them and creatures boxy parts began to fall from them.

Limbs, skull, teeth, internal organs and the likes, just kept raining down.

"You say it like its a video game," Aildris chuckled upon hearing E.E's response.

"I'm saying bro, there's no way these Handlers niggas didn't play games from earth," E.E voiced with an excited tone.

"Haha, that may be the case but then we have to gather any color of Eggs we can find before Gustav's link," Aildris reminded E.E of the most important aspect after they had finished dealing with the creatures in the vicinity.

Chapter 1180 Acquiring Four Eggs

"Haha, that may be the case but then we have to gather any color of Eggs we can find before Gustav's link," Aildris reminded E.E of the most important aspect after they had finished dealing with the creatures in the vicinity.

"Which way do we go from here?" E.E asked as he looked around.

All he could see was a long flat terrain of frost. Nothing could be spotted in the vicinity for miles.

"I think this place is an original location on the real map of the fourth disk. Look at those markings," Aildris called E.E attention to some engravings on the frosty ground a couple of feet south.

"I didn't check the map since Gustav said it would be switched," E.E replied.

"He did but he also said some locations might be remain original... we just might have spawned in one of them," Aildris pointed out.

"So are we heading south?" E.E questioned.

"No, we have to head north... we should find some lowlands in that direction which increases our chances of coming into contact with eggs," Aildris clarified.

E.E nodded and they began to head forward after the agreement.

#####

"...this must be one of those points," Elevora stood before a ten feet tall machine with seven spherical shaped slots on its surface.

The machine had a hole atop it and was shaped to look similar to a funnel.

Elevora happened to have spawned very close to this which was a bit surprising to her.

"I need to gather some eggs first," She turned around while looking around.

She noticed she was currently on an unknown ice summit and right behind her were multiple holes on the icy mountain.

Elevora stepped forward and stopped in front of one of the holes which was large enough for two people to jump in.

The hole looked like an icy slide that led somewhere within the mountain. This made Elevora intrigued.

She turned around once more observe the vicinity and could only see white frosted mountains in the distance.

Elevora stepped forward after her inspection, dropping straight into the icy hole.

Sshshhsshshhhshh~

Her body slid down the icy opening as she found herself within a dimly lit space.

#####

"Blue," Gustav squatted before a three feet tall egg.

He was within a dimly lit ice cave. All that could be seen in the vicinity were rough icy walls, displaying the reflection of the environment along with rays of light from small spaces above.

One could occasionally spot cluster of icicles hanging from the cave ceiling as well as spotting some of them on the ground in specific areas within the cave.

"I'll take this," Gustav picked up the blueish egg and tapped on his storage button.

Zing~

The egg disappeared and he turned to the side to carry the rest of the colored eggs in the vicinity.

In the next instant and he began walking forward.

("Do you intend to use the colored egg for what I think you will?") The system questioned.

"Most likely..." Gustav replied as he continued stepping forward while inspecting the environment.

He was well aware that eggs he took were not a part of the required eggs for creating a Viondur egg since they had a different color to what was expected.

However, he had his reasons for acquiring it.

Gustav senses had already spread across the entire cave so he knew the exact direction to head in so as to get more eggs.

However, it would seem he wasn't the only one who was aware of where the eggs were located within the cave.

Gustav could already see the figures ahead of him, heading in the same direction as he had in mind. The cave had multiple chambers and spaces.

It was easy for a person to get lost here since the paths below would lead to three separate areas at once, making it difficult for a person to pick which direction to head in.

Gustav on the other hand, had chosen the left, left and right entrances to different Chambers and for the last one, he was supposed to go left which would help him end up where another set of eggs were located.

Just as expected, the trio ahead of him, also went left. Gustav arrived a couple of feet away from the entrance to the next chamber and felt a presence awaken.

'I didn't sense that initially,' Gustav's eyebrows creased as he moved towards the side and focused his perception in the direction of the presence.

"Patik gilau slabitu venri labeshaba ori..."

The alien participants celebrated as they spotted the numerous eggs embedded in the northern part of the icy walls.

They couldn't hide their excitement as they saw the eggs bore the required colors for making a Viondur Egg.

"U'catiatca'c Tahilieu vavi labi saju..."

- "Let's get them out of the ice and mark this area so we can come back here,"

The participants with massive transparent wings, flew towards the eggs embedded in the icy walls.

Just as one of them placed their hands on an egg, a loud rumbling reverberated across the vicinity.

"Uuuuhhhuuu~" It was accompanied by a mighty roar that caused the cave to tremble immensely.

Ice fell from the ceiling area as the ground split open in some areas.

The participants were alarmed but before they could react, a massive furry head phased out of the ground and instantly ripped off one of them left arm.

"Kuuuuuhhhh!" The participant screamed in pain as green blood poured out of where his arm was initially situated.

He had been lucky enough to get the help of one of his teammates who flew with speed and dragged him away in time or his entire existence would have been swallowed up.

Thwoosshhh~ Gbblllbbll~

As the cave rumbled intensely the presence that had been hidden underneath the ground floor of the cave, bursted forth with part of its body still hidden in the ice.

The entire place turned foggy in a matter of moments as the participants tried to leave a small distance between themselves and the creature.

It looked like a snake and a dragon without wings all at the same time but happened to be very massive and whitish. It looked like it was made out of frost.

One of the participants flapped their wings intensely, causing the fog to suddenly clear. However, the instant they did, they noticed the face of the creature was already right in front of them.

Fwwhiiii~

Fortunately, his figure blurred as the face of the creature flew past him while he appeared up to a hundred feet higher than his initial position.

Bang!

The creature slammed into another ice wall behind which just happened to be very close to where Gustav was hiding.

Chunks of ice blasted across the vicinity as the walls came crumbling down. The entrance to the chamber became wider as well, revealing the presence of the person behind it.

"Huh?"

"Huhu?"

"Huh?"

The participants as well as the massive creature paused as they spotted Gustav with an unknown round floating object beside him which happened to be emitting a mysterious glow.

What made them pause wasn't his presence or the presence of the glowing object floating beside him...

What made them pause in their tracks was the Blue Egg in his grasp which turned into a Violet colored Egg right before their very eyes.

As their eyes darted towards the ice wall on the other end where the Eggs with the required colors were embedded, they noticed some of them had been replaced with a different color.

The blue Egg Gustav was holding onto a moment ago was right in the space where a Violet colored egg was initially and now the Violet colored egg was in Gustav's grasp.

"Hiii," Gustav voiced with an innocent tone as the egg disappeared into his storage button.

"Uuuuhhhuuu!!!" The creature roared with intensity as it charged at Gustav.

"Get him!" The participants yelled as well.

"Bye," Gustav said as he looked upwards.

[Lightning Blitz Has Been Activated]

Thrrrihhhhh~

His figure suddenly turned into a lightning streak as he blasted straight through the ceiling and disappeared into the sky in an instant.

The creature missed Gustav by a few inches, causing it to roar more in anger. However, he was long gone.

It turned around after noticing the approach of the participants and lunged at them angrily. Gustav had left them to take the full brunt of his actions which had triggered the snake like creature to get even angrier.

Fwwhiiii~

Gustav figure began to fall from the sky once more after reaching a certain height. His figure had already repeatedly blasted through some floating ice on his way up.

He had to cancel Lightning blitz in the next moment he activated it but he already crossed more than a hundred thousand feet height before he could.

Gustav turned towards the south, "I've gotten four eggs now but I can't go back to that cave since what it has left are repetition of the same colors of eggs,"