

Bloodline 1191

Chapter 1191 Falco Vs The Draconets

Looking at the current situation, it seemed nearly impossible to get hold of any Viondur Egg without attracting the attention of the waves of monsters down there.

Despite Gustav's current strength, it wasn't smart to attract the attention of thousands upon thousands of powerful monsters.

"This is the best time to use that..." A grin appeared on Gustav's face as he leapt towards one of the massive diamond looking floating platforms.

#####

"Back off!"

Accompanied with a loud yell, a wave of darkness blasted across a radius of nearly thirty thousand feet.

The frosty looking trees in the vicinity were instantly decimated as they blasted to smithereens while the mountains crumbled.

Four illusionary looking figures with multiple limbs and shadowy beings hovering above them stood in the midst of the blast, nearly unaffected.

"That is impressive earthling, however, if you do not hand over the eggs, we will not spare you," One of the figures who had a dark and massive being hovering over her stated with a threatening tone.

"As a fellow leading planet of the alliance, we are trying to be nice here so just comply," Another one of the four Draconets stated.

"It is mine. Come and take it if you dare," Falco responded as the mark of darkness on his forehead grew.

"Don't blame us for being forceful," Another Draconet with a fourteen feet tall shadowy being hovering over him yelled before charging.

The other two who also had odd looking shadowy beings behind them charged forward as well.

Fwwwheiiii~

The first to arrive before Falco was the shadowy being built like a minotaur behind the female draconet participant.

"Kiaaaahhh!" Glowing beams appeared in its mouth and eyes as it forcefully swung both fists in a clapping format, attempting to crush Falco's fragile looking figure in between its massive hands.

Thirrhhhh~ Thhiirrrhhh~

Two dark hands bursted forth from Falco sides, stopping both fists before they could make contact with him.

At the same instant, one of the Draconets appeared from above as both him and his shadowy being hacked downwards with glowing blades.

More dark hands phased out of Falco's figure and this time with claws as they slashed upwards to meet with the glowing blades.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Clang! Clang! Clang!

The battle had only begun a few moments ago, yet the surroundings were already in a state of destruction.

The other two Draconets has ambushed Falco from behind and at this point Falco had to turn around to block an attack himself.

Bang! Bang!

Throwing a couple of fists at their real selves, the female draconet, blocked Falco's attacks while the fourth draconet participant sent four arms swinging towards Falco at the same time.

Falco managed to jump backwards, dodging the onslaught of multiple limbs but he still had to focus due to the shadowy beings that had hovered above the draconets.

Multiple hands swung towards his back the instant he landed on his feet which he quickly deflected with more dark arms phasing out of his being.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

Falco barely managed to dodge their hits and was slowly starting to take damage without being able to successfully land a single attack on any of them.

The longer the draconets engaged Falco, the more he kept getting pushed back. Since they were not in anyway weak, one of them managed to land a hit on him.

Bang!

Falco's figure was sent flying and at this same moment, one of the gigantic shadowy figures which was up to two hundred feet tall descended upon him from above.

Boooooom!

Destructive shockwaves spread across the vicinity bringing along cracks as the already decimated surroundings caved in even more.

The massive shadowy being stood in place with a condescending gaze as the Draconets heaved a sigh of relief.

"Finally, that earthling got crushed,"

"Good job Cirula..."

They praised the female Draconet who happened to be the anchor of the massive shadowy being that stomped Falco.

"Siva, Than..." Cirula was about responding when her face froze.

Bllerrrgghh!

She vomited a mouthful of green blood in the next instant.

"Cirula!" Siva yelled just as a loud ripping sound reverberated across the air.

Thrrrruuuhhhhhh~

A figure tore through the massive two hundred feet shadowy being, from the bottom to the top, causing it to slowly dissipate like smoke.

Falco could be seen hundreds of feet above after ripping through the shadowy figure. The dark mark on his forehead increased in size as he descended with a look of anguish.

"So that is your weakness," Falco muttered as dark wings sprouted out of his back.

Fwwhiiiiii~

Stretching his right hand to the side, a massive blade of darkness phased out and he slashed forward the instant he arrived before the minotaur built shadowy being.

The being tried to counter by shooting out pillars of beams from it's mouth and eyes but Falco evaded swiftly with his slash traveling forward intensely.

Thrrrrihhhhhh!

The head of the minotaur built shadowy being was cleanly severed as it slowly dissipated after the damage just like the last one.

Another one of the Draconets with orange shaped stars all across his body, puked out a mouthful of blood as he fell to his knees.

"Two down, two to go," Falco muttered as he turned to face the third.

"The bastard is going for our Encours! Stop him!" Siva yelled to the other one as they turned illusionary and leapt into the air.

Fwwwwhooommm~ Fwwwwhooommm~

Falco was met with resistance as he arrived before the third shadowy being. The other two Draconets had arrived by his sides and were sending out fist strikes.

Eight fist were approaching different parts of his body at the same time from the sides while he had already conjured up a powerful attack for the shadowy being in front of him.

Falco could tell that, if these shadowy beings received a certain level of damage they would dissapear and their bearers would also take damage.

He had two choices at the moment, go on with the attack and cause the third encour to dissapear or block the attacks of the two on his sides.

While he could try to do both, if he made use of lesser force due to trying to defend when striking the encour, it would still be standing and it would make the draconets more careful.

Falco decided to put more power into his attack, as the dark blade phasing out of his side turned into a gigantic claw which he swung down upon the thirty two legged shadowy being in front of him.

Slaaassshhh! Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

The entire shadowy being was cleaved into multiple halves as the ground split open from the intensity of the strike.

However, at the same instant...

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

Multiple fist slammed into Falco's body sending him flying like a ragdoll as blood oozed out of his nose and mouth.

Bllerrrgghh!

One of the two Draconets who had just successfully landed hits on him, puked blood in mid air and began falling to the ground as he turned light headed.

"Pulah!" Siva yelled with a tone of exasperation as he descended swiftly and caught his teammate before he landed on the ground.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

Falco's body slammed into multiple trees thousands of feet away as he got blasted away, causing them to snap and break into smithereens.

Thrrrrrihhhh!

Dark tentacle like strings shot out of his body and stabbed into the ground, forcefully bringing his body to a halt before he could break through any more things.

"Kor! Kor!" Falco coughed twice, staining his outfit with blood.

"...One... left," His heavy breathing slowly reduced as his body descended.

He stepped on the ground and slowly stood to his feet.

"You will pay for harming my teammates!" Silva yelled from up ahead.

"You should have thought twice before coming after me," Falco spat blood to the side with a look of determination.

The shadowy figure behind Siva grew in size, becoming more muscular as it sprouted more limbs with glowing blades in its grasp.

Twwwwwhoosshhh! Twwwwoosshhh!

They charged at each other in the next instant, sending ripples of destruction across the vicinity.

#####

'It's working,'

("You're only lucky... this would have gone way worse if you didn't have this,")

'You can't just admit that I'm smart,'

("That would mean I am feeding your delusion if I did,")

'Fuck you,'

A snake like whitish creature could be seen flying upwards, across the side of a frosty mountain.

It's physical features were no different from that of a frost raikin so even with the hundreds of frost raikins swimming in the air around this floating frosty mountains, it blended in with them.

Although it wasn't as massive as they were, it was no doubt a kindred.

The creature soon arrived at the summit of the floating frosted mountain which happened to have a multicolored three feet tall egg sitting atop it.

("Here comes the tricky part,")

'So long as I am fast enough, they shouldn't notice the switch,'

The smaller frost Raikin approached the multicolored egg which happened to be a Viondur egg.

Chapter 1192 Thirty Seconds Countdown

The smaller frost Raikin approached the multicolored egg which happened to be a Viondur egg.

Although the other Frost Raikins in the vicinity were not suspicious, they still had eyes on the Viondur Egg.

The smaller Frost Raikin flew around the viondur egg and kept circulating for a period of time.

Thisssshhh~

Mist was instantly formed around the egg, impairing the vision of the Frost Raikins around.

Usually the Frost Raikins would have enhanced capabilities whenever they were close to anything cold so a mist wasn't supposed to impairing their vision.

However, this mist wasn't formed from frost or coldness. It was a different type of mist.

The Frost Raikins became suspicious at this point and flew into the mist after a few seconds.

The mist began to die down at this point and when they were finally able to see the summit of the floating frosted mountain again, nothing was out of place.

The Viondur Egg remained seated atop. However, the smaller Frost Raikin was nowhere to be found.

The other Frost Raikins just assumed it flew somewhere else during the mist covering so they still didn't think much of it.

Minutes later, a figure appeared more than ten thousand feet away from the floating frosted mountain. He stood above a massive floating diamond like platform with a Viondur Egg in his grasp.

"That was easy," Gustav muttered.

("Only because you were smart enough to acquire the form of a Frost Raikin initially,") The system voiced.

"Even with that, it would have caused alarm had i not exchanged it with a fake," Gustav stated.

Before Gustav took on the form of a Frost Raikin, he did a little painting with a white egg he had taken from one of the caves.

White wasn't one of the required eggs to make a Viondur egg but Gustav had taken this one just like he took many others that would be considered useless as well.

Cases like this was where the usefulness of these colors of eggs came into place. Gustav painted the egg to look just like a Viondur egg and replaced it with the one at the summit of the frosted mountain.

From the moment he stirred up the mist, he was already gone. He had made use of his Cognitive Concealment ability to mask his presence.

"One more Viondur Egg successfully acquired," Gustav stated before keeping the Egg in his storage button.

("Going after the others won't be as easy,") The system voiced.

"I know... especially since I don't have the forms of the other creatures," Gustav turned to stare in the south west direction.

A platform growing out from the rocky wall in the distance looked like the massive floating diamond like rock he was currently standing on.

However, this one seemed to be stationed on the wall, four times as large as a skyscraper and had an entrance.

Creatures who only had a massive owl shaped head for a body and thin but gigantic fowl like wings, could be seen flying around the entry point.

Besides this, they had sharp claws for beaks and their legs looked like it could easily rip a person in two like paper.

While it looked like there were only about thirty in number flying around the entry point, Gustav's perception had picked up on the high numbers that were nestling within the platform.

They were over fifty thousand feet from his location, yet Gustav's perception had infiltrated their territory to the point where he could already tell where the Viondur egg was.

'Why do they all keep the Viondur Eggs like its some kind of trophy?' This was amongst Gustav's many questions.

On the surface, the Frost Raikins protected the required eggs to form a Viondur Egg like it was their child and here, thousands upon thousands of creatures protected just a single Viondur Egg.

Gustav couldn't complain, he had managed to save days of wandering up there by getting a single Viondur Egg.

He didn't want to be too greedy but one wasn't enough.

Zing~

A circular metal like button appeared in Gusta's grasp and he proceeded to put it on his forehead.

[Cognitive Concealment Has Been Activated]

Gustav's presence completely dissapeared to the point. One wouldn't be able to tell if he was even around them unless they directly set eyes on him. His footsteps made no sound, if he tapped on anything, it made no sound.

His speed also made no sound as it would always generate whooshes. Everything was masked.

"I'll have approximately thirty seconds to get in there and take the Viondur Egg out before I am spotted," Gustav stated as he tapped the button on his forehead.

Thisshhhhwwwhhh~

His entire figure instantly turned invisible. Now he was at a near perfect state of Concealment.

Gustav's body transformed as he leapt into the air.

[Dash Has Been Activated]

The timer had started counting down.

There was no sound as he arrived before the entrance of the diamond like platform only a second after the countdown had started.

29 seconds~

Wings sprouted out of his back in his invisible state as he glided across the air, evading the creatures around the entrance so as not to make contact with them.

'Oh so they're called Ziaphanos...' Gustav took note of the species name as he flew into the diamond like platform.

The instant he got in, flashes of bright reflections assaulted his eyes.

The gravitational force within the diamond like platform shifted, causing Gustav to bear the weight of a hundred tons.

Gustav was surprised by the shift and paused for a bit as the pressure bore down on him.

However, the weight was really nothing and he resumed flying a moment later since it had only startled him a little.

The Ziaphanos kept flying across the place unrestrained by the difference in gravitational force between the exterior and the interior.

This made Gustav realise that, these creatures would be very fast so he had to be careful so as not to attract their attention.

25 seconds~

The scenery within the diamond like platform was quite inexplicable. It looked much larger on the inside compared to how anyone would have thought.

The shards and icicle shaped objects reflecting rays of light across the vicinity could be seen hanging from the rocky walls and even the ground.

However, one stood out the most...

'It's up there,' Gustav said internally as he stared at the massive shard in the middle of the Ziaphanos territory.

This shard was so massive, it towered high up reflecting blinding rays across the entire vicinity. Due to its height, the ceiling of this diamond platform was thousands of feet above.

Swarms of Ziaphanos flew around the massive shard, similar to how the Frost Raikins were flying around the floating frosty mountain earlier.

Just as initially calculated, there were over ten thousand of them flying around the shard and even more just moving about the place.

The space within their territory was like a mini city.

Despite the increment in gravitational force, Gustav flew upwards with speed. He was well aware of his limited time and didn't want to waste even a second.

The usual vibrational waves and turmoil, his speed would cause the environment had all been masked by the Cognitive Concealment ability and the invisibility button just made things smoother.

However, as Gustav flew higher, he noticed the difference in gravitational force.

For every fifty feet scaled, the pressure would increase by a hundred tons.

Gustav noticed this when his speed decreased after scaling up to a thousand feet in an instant. He knew that with his current speed he would be way faster but then the pressure was already bearing the weight of up to two thousand tons while still maintain flight.

The Ziaphanos who were higher up, still flew around the shard unrestrained which was quite surprising to Gustav. With this he realised that the ones lower were weaker than the ones at a higher height.

If Gustav got noticed, the chances of escaping would be quite low considering he would be spotted by their strongest first.

23 seconds~

Gustav's brain processed information very quickly so he already well aware of the current situation, he increased his speed and flew even higher, fighting against the pressure.

By the time Gustav Scaled two thousand feet, he felt like he was carrying an entire city on his shoulders.

Fwwhii~

He suddenly and swiftly swerved backwards, dodging the massive body of a Ziaphano that changed trajectory in mid air, nearly bumping into him.

The creatures were more up to three hundred feet large. Gustav size compared to theirs was like a grasshopper standing beside a human.

21 seconds~

He resumed flight upwards after distancing himself a bit from the area of the swarm circulating the shard.

Bearing the force of more than two million kilograms upon his entire being, Gustav kept flying upwards till he was on a couple hundred feet away from the top.

He could finally spot the Viondur egg above, firmly seated on the tip of the massive shard.

19 seconds~

Chapter 1193 Things Go Haywire

He could finally spot the Viondur egg above, firmly seated on the tip of the massive shard.

19 seconds~

Despite the immense size of the massive shard reflecting a blinding glow across the territory, its tip was as thin as a needle.

It was quite surprising that a three feet large egg sat upon such a thin surface looking incredibly balanced.

At this height, only around a hundred Ziaphanos could be seen circulating the shard. These ones also moved unrestrained so Gustav could tell they were the most powerful in the whole territory.

From what he sensed, taking a single one of them in a battle would be cumbersome. Not to talk more of when there were more than a hundred. Gustav wasn't breathing at this point as he made sure to move discreetly as possible.

He covered the rest of the height in about a second and calculated that he had around 18 seconds left.

Based on the timing he had only a second or two to get the Viondur Egg and leave the same way he got in.

The problem wasn't having enough energy to keep Cognitive Concealment active or not having enough invisibility buttons.

The issue was, the moment the invisibility button he currently had on his forehead, ran out of power, he would turn visible for an instant even if he was to quickly take out another and place it on his forehead.

That split instant was enough to bring attention to himself and he wasn't willing to take the risk so he wanted to make sure he got out before the timer counted down completely.

The Viondur egg was only a few feet in front of him at this point. Gustav had decided to use a similar tactic like before to cause a momentary visual disruption and switch the egg with a fake.

Sshshhsshhhhhh~

Mist began erupting from his figure in his still invisible figure which of course drew the attention of the Ziaphanos in the vicinity.

However, Gustav was still invisible and the mist spread so quickly, there was no way to ascertain the source.

Gustav moved quickly and reached for the Viondur egg as a fake appeared in his grasp.

He was only about thirty centimetres away from making contact when he suddenly felt a strange energy ripple forth before he could touch the Viondur egg.

("You just triggered some...") The system voiced but it was too late.

Boooooommm!

A yellow coloured blast was sent forth, which pushed Gustav as well the mist in the environment backwards.

The entire territory quaked intensely as the invisibility button on Gustav's forehead smoked and sparked with electricity.

"sigh" Gustav let out sigh of defeat as the massive eyes of the Ziaphanos turned to his direction and focused on him.

He was very visible at the moment, and marked by the yellowish energy that just blasted forth which happened to cause him to glow intensely as if announcing that an intruder had infiltrated.

'I didn't sense that,' Gustav forehead creased as he thought.

("It didn't exist a moment ago... it seems to be the ability of one of the Ziaphanos,") The system words explained why Gustav didn't sense any trap of sorts.

Fwwwwhooommm!

This wasn't the time to go into analysis so Gustav's quickly bolted forward and grabbed hold of the Viondur Egg.

"How dare you!?" The Ziaphano closest to the tip roared.

"They can speak?" Gustav voiced with a tone of surprise.

"You will die here vermin!" Another one of the Ziaphanos yelled as they all charged at Gustav.

Now wasn't the time to be in awe of the intelligence of the Ziaphanos who currently had it out for him. Gustav initially planned to make use of his dimensional bracelet if things went south but he currently couldn't.

Despite having put a checkpoint outside the Ziaphanos territory where one of the Diamond floating platforms was located, he couldn't use the dimensional bracelet or the crushing weight of the gravitational force would destroy it.

He had somehow positioned his body in a way that the Dimensional Bracelet would not be affected by the gravitational force which was making him bear the weight of nearly three thousand tons.

If he tried to make use of the dimensional bracelet right now, it would get crushed.

Fwwhiiii! Fwwhii! Fwwhhiii!

The Ziaphanos charged at Gustav with intense speed that clearly surpassed his despite their massive size.

Zing~

After sending the Viondur egg to his storage device, Gustav's wing rescinded into his back, causing him to free fall.

Swwhiiii!

The Ziaphanos quickly changed trajectory and flew after his falling body.

Despite his body, descending like a falling star, the Ziaphanos soon caught up to him and clawed at his body in a bid to rip the intruder to pieces.

Gustav's right arm transformed, becoming black, scaly and muscular as he grew three pairs of sharp looking claws which he proceeded to swung upwards in response to the massive talons ripping at him.

Shiiiiinnn! Claaanngg!

Upon collision, a sharp and intense metallic sound of collision rang through the vicinity, sending forth shockwaves alongside.

The territory quaked once more alarming the rest of the Ziaphanos around after Gustav's claws collided with the talons of the Ziaphano that first arrived before him.

Twwwwiiiiihhh!

Gustav's body shot downwards even faster than before as he had made use of this collision to escape the encirclement of the Ziaphanos.

Bang!

The instant Gustav landed on the ground which hadn't even been a second yet, he sped forward in the direction of the entrance.

However, the entire place was already swarming with Ziaphanos who were headed for the entrance as well and Gustav's speed was lacking compared to theirs.

Swwooosshhh!

Sprouting wings once more, Gustav activated as many speed related skills as he could to boost his flight.

Leaving a trail of white blur across the air, Gustav arrived at the entry point in less than a second since he was no longer carrying the weight of almost three thousand tons.

Unfortunately, the entry point happened to be packed with hundreds of Ziaphanos who were already aware of the intruder in their midst.

They all bit and clawed at Gustav intensely as he approached them.

"Haven't used this in a while but it should help," A red hilted katana with dark blade appeared in Gustav's grasp.

The instant he held onto it, a wave of alarmingly powerful energy was sent across the surrounding like a warning. Electric arcs coated the blade of this katana as it glowed intensely increasing the unease in the environment.

Gustav raised this katana with vigor and slashed down at the incoming Ziaphanos blocking the entry point.

THHWWIIIIHHHHHZZHZHHH!

A disastrous red arc, hundreds of feet long, swept forward with intensity, carrying lightning streaks with it after Gustav slashed downwards.

Boooooomm!

The entire Ziaphanos territory rumbled fiercely as the red arc cut through the first Ziaphano in its path as well as destroying the entry point by making it even larger than it originally was.

Multiple Ziaphanos were blasted backwards as lightning streaks also spread to them, burning a few of their feathers.

The Ziaphanos happened to have very sturdy bodies so only three Ziaphanos who were directly in the path of the arc had been sliced into two scorched halves while the others were barely incapacitated.

The space that had been left in between gave Gustav the opportunity to fly out of their territory.

Zzzhiiii! Zzzhiii! Zzhiiii!

Three massive talons suddenly appeared above Gustav the instant he arrived outside the territory, slashing down at him vigorously.

Gustav didn't even have the chance to blink as he realised he had already been surrounded by up to sixty massive Ziaphanos and more were incoming.

These were the Ziaphanos who were at the topmost part of the shard. They had instantly caught up with Gustav the moment he managed to get past the entry point.

They were insanely fast, however now that Gustav was out of the intense gravitational force area, he was confident in escaping their onslaught.

[Lightning Blitz Has Been Activated]

Thhrrriihhhzzzhhhh!

Gustav turned into a lightning streak and disappeared straight into the east direction, tearing right through the wing of one of the Ziaphanos.

He instantly reappeared eight hundred thousand feet away from his initial location. He heaved a sigh of relief after successfully escaping far from the angry Ziaphanos.

He had given them a very wide distance but so as not to take any chances, Gustav decided to activate Lightning Blitz two times more.

Thhrrriihhhzzzhhhh! Thhrrriihhhzzzhhhh!

He was now millions of feet away from their territory, practically in another area entirely.

Gustav looked around and noticed this area was a little misty but had a weird looking structure erected on the ground thousands of feet below.

He was about to head downwards when he felt a sudden shift in the atmosphere. It sounded like a ripping sound that grew increasingly louder by the millisecond.

Thhrrriihhzzzhhh! Thhrrriihhzzzhhh! Thhrrriihhzzzhhh! Thhrrriihhzzzhhh!
Thhrrriihhzzzhhh! Thhrrriihhzzzhhh!

Gustav's eyes widened as dark streaks cut across the air in the distance and arrived across him.

These streaks were the same massive Ziaphanos guarding the top of the massive shard he had stolen the Viondur egg from.

"Shit!"

Chapter 1194 Gustav Vs The Ziaphanos

"Shit!" Gustav had suspected that they would be extremely fast the moment they left the intense gravitational force area.

However, he hadn't expected that they would be anything remotely close to this speed.

("They followed you,") The system voiced.

'Thanks captain obvious... you don't think I know that?' Gustav nearly yelled this out loud.

("No I mean they...") The system was about to add something else when Gustav activated another lightning streak.

Thhrrriihhhzzzhhhh!

("There's no point, look behind you,")

"I know," Gustav voiced as he turned around to see black streaks appear before him once more after scaling close to a million feet in one second.

("They are...") The system was about to add something once more when the Ziaphanos reached for Gustav.

"Die Vermin!" One of them yelled.

Zwewhiiii! Wwwwiiii!

They were extremely fast, causing their slashes to send sharp and massive arcs forward that tore through the air.

Gustav's body bloated a little and turned greenish as Iro silks sprouted out of his body like spikes, covering him up.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Slash!

Multiple sounds of heavy collisions rang out as the Iro silk along with Gustav got blasted backwards intensely.

They traveled speedily across the air with the Iro silk crumbling to little pieces as Gustav crashed through multiple diamond like floating platforms.

The hundreds of Ziaphanos flew after him in order to make sure they finish the job but the instant they got close to the diamond like floating platform Gustav's body was embedded in, an intimidating energy spread forth.

Gustav had used ultimate combination. He climbed out of the hole his body got embedded into with a powerful energy cascading forth from his being.

The air rippled continuously as it felt like space was twisting due to the strength of the form he had just taken. The Ziaphanos were well aware that the so called vermin they were looking at was no ordinary being.

However, they seemed confident in their numbers.

"Kill him and take back the Cifa," One of them yelled as they charged forward.

| 'This is troublesome... I guess I have no choice,' Gustav charged in their direction as well.

He wasn't ready to leave this place yet and there was no guarantee that he could use the dimensional bracelet to return fast. Time was a luxury.

"Each as powerful as level 250 mixedbreeds..." Gustav had to admit he had never done something so crazy before.

Level 250 Mixedbreeds were quite rare on earth and each of them were extremely powerful. Their strength was equivalent to a Beta Ranked mixedblood and yet he was going against more than a hundred of them at once.

Swwoooosshhh~

The first three Ziaphanos that arrived before Gustav swung their talons at him. Gustav reached out to grab the first one while his hands were coated with milky colored energy.

The talons which could easily rip an entire city in two, just from the wind generated with its slashes, were stopped by Gustav.

Fwwwwhiii~

He spun to the right and flinging the entire massive five hundred feet large creature in the direction of his associate.

"Kiiiiiiiiihhhhh!" The Ziaphano cried out as its associate talons ripped through its right wing.

White blood squirted out like a fountain while the Ziaphano fell from great heights unable to make use of its damaged wing.

Bang!

At the same instant, the sharp talons of the third Ziaphanos slammed into Gustav from behind.

Fwwwwhiii!

Fortunately, he had conjured Iro silk behind him. However, the iro silk crumbled instantly upon collision, sending him flying across the air for hundreds of feet.

In his years of using the Iro Silk, this was the first time any creature was able to damage it with just a single strike. The Ziaphanos were truly fearsome creatures.

Gustav had taken a little damage from that hit despite the iro silk but he quickly, stopped himself in mid air as he was flying towards the triple claws beak of another Ziaphano.

Trrrrriioooooonnn!

A massive destructive dark and purplish energy beam formed in the mouth of the Ziaphano he had stopped before.

With the way the air trembled, Gustav could tell that this was no ordinary attack.

Fwwhooosshh!

He sped forward and swung his fist upwards with intensity.

Booom!

It sounded like a thunder bolt as Gustav's fist slammed into the jaw of the Ziaphano, causing its entire head to tilt backwards while it got catapulted away by the force.

Thooooommm~

The energy it was initially gather, exploded in its beak, causing the head of the Ziaphano to exploded to smithereens.

Boooooommm!

The residual energy blasted across the place, sending forth charges that also slammed into Gustav.

'Being small has both advantages and disadvantages,' Gustav realised as the Ziaphanos around were not in anyway affected by the blast.

The Ziaphanos had swung out their talons once more, causing Gustav to quickly create iro silks.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

Gustav puked blood as his body got blasted thousands of feet away after the iro silk he constructed around himself repeatedly crumbled.

The Ziaphanos were unrelenting and he had only taken out about three of them so far. There were still in the hundreds.

"Take on someone of your own size," Gustav muttered as he cleaned his mouth.

Zzhooooonnnnnn!

His body suddenly began to lengthen, along with his silver scales and muscular arms. His horns grew very large along with his tail as well.

The glowing light on his forehead also increased in size as well.

The Ziaphanos were stupefied once more. It looked like the so called vermin had more tricks underneath his sleeves.

Gustav reached out to the closest Ziaphano with his right arm glowing yellowish.

Bang!

He slammed his fist onto the head of the Ziaphano causing it to get hurled thousand of feet backwards as a mark appeared on its body.

Booom!

An explosion from the mark sent the Ziaphono hurling further backwards as it cried out in pain.

Other Ziaphanos didn't wait for him to approach them before bearing their talons once more upon him. Now that he was larger, it was easier for them to attack him.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

Gustav moved as quickly as he could across the air, throwing multiple fists at the Ziaphanos while also receiving the full brunt of the attack from the ones at his flank.

The creatures were faster than he was but he had no trouble striking blows due to his perception that let him predict their movements. However, he couldn't dodge all of their attacks either.

The battle was becoming incredibly destructive and brutal as time passed.

Boooooom! Boom! Boom! Boom!

Every single Ziaphano that Gustav managed to make contact with, bore a small mark that exploded after some time. This caused the Ziaphanos to take more damage as time passed but Gustav was also very injured as well.

Thizzzzihhh! Thiiizzzhhh!

Gustav slashed at multiple massive, destructive and dark purplish energy beams shot from the mouth of Ziaphanos.

Each of them were as large as skyscrapers, causing the air to twist and turn but Gustav struck them with massive atomic blades.

Boooooommm! Boooooommm! Boooooommm!

They couldn't all be countered and the explosion sent destructive ripples across the air

"Energy dispersal," Gustav muttered as the atomic blades vanished from his grasp and he clasped his palms together.

Thoooooommmmm!

A red wave of Energy blasted forth from his being, colliding with the explosion.

Multiple floating diamond like platforms crumbled to dust as the ripples repelled everything within a radius of more than a hundred thousand feet.

Gustav's figure vanished and reappeared behind a Ziaphano that was hurling across the air due to the blast.

Grabbing hold of its neck, Gustav forcibly ripped its head from its body and flung it in the direction of another Ziaphano.

The creatures were very sturdy but it was nothing compared to Gustav's natural body defense.

Another Ziaphano clawed Gustav's from the side, piercing a little into his shoulder but it got stuck.

Gustav reached out and grabbed the two other Ziaphanos that had attacked from the front which talons were lodged in his bleeding body.

"Arrrrrrhhhhh!" Gustav screamed loudly, causing sonic waves to blast forth from his mouth.

Bang!

The two Ziaphanos in front of him got sent flying across the air as the sonic waves caused their organs to shatter from the inside out.

Reaching back to grab the Ziaphano that had clawed into his sides, Gustav held onto its beak and forcefully ripped the head of the creature open.

Blood splattered across the place as Gustav realised he had already taken down about forty of them.

However, there were still a little over seventy left and he had expended a lot of energy.

'I don't want to use cosmic superiority,' Gustav said internally as he flew upwards while the others chased after him.

("It's not like you haven't used it before,") The system responded in his head.

'On a small scale yes but with these creatures, I'll have to use it on a large scale but I'm actively trying to avoid that,' Gustav replied internally as he activated Lightning Blitz once more.

Thhrraaaahhhzzhhh~

("You can't escape from them using this be...")

"I know,"

Chapter 1195 They Are Your Friends Too

Thhrraaaahhhzzhhh~

("You can't escape from them using this be...")

"I know. They're fast although their speed is quite inconsistent. At the very least it gives me one second to collect my thoughts," Gustav voiced out as he reappeared close to a million feet away.

("I was going to tell you that they're not that fast, they just tag onto your energy with an ability they possess which also lets them reappear wherever you are when you activate Lightning Blitz,") The System stated.

"What? Why didn't you tell me?" Gustav voiced with a slightly surprised tone.

("...")

To Gustav, this explained why their speed was inconsistent.

The Ziaphanos were still really fast but their speed was not a match for Lightning Blitz during Gustav battles with them. If they could move that fast every time, the battle would have gone in a completely different direction.

Gustav had noticed the inconsistency and chalked it up to something related with acceleration. He thought they could only do it at specific periods and not limitlessly.

Now it turned out, they only tagged along with him whenever he made use of it. Knowing this information out wasn't of great use to Gustav since he wasn't aware of any means of stopping them from following him after lightning Blitz activation.

"Looks like I will have to use that... What better time to test out its effectiveness than now," Gustav voiced.

As he made his decision, the one second he had to collect his thoughts were up.

Thrrrrihhzzzhhhh!

Black streaks tore through the air and with it bore the arrival of the Ziaphanos.

Gustav stood in place as they approached him with speed.

[Tecophibe VI Dimension Has Been Activated]

Gustav's entire face suddenly turned black, looking mushy as a weird energy permeated the air.

The incoming Ziaphanos, heading in Gustav's direction, suddenly turned to strands of black lines that go sucked into the blackness on Gustav's face.

("This is such a convenient ability,") The system voiced in Gustav's mind as close to thirty of them got into this predicament.

The other Ziaphanos in the vicinity turned to the sides upon seeing what became of their kin.

"What has he done to our brothers!" One of them yelled as he turned around and to slash Gustav from behind.

Gustav turned around at this point, the Ziaphanos gazed upon the face of darkness and got transformed into a black line that got absorbed into Gustav's face as well.

Some others in the vicinity happened to witness this and gazed at Gustav with fury mixed with intrigue, trying to figure out he was doing this.

However, they suffered the same fate, turning into black lines and getting absorbed into Gustav's dark face.

Thrrrihh! Thrrrihh!

The darkness on Gustav's face flickered a couple of times, before disappearing.

[Tecophibe VI Dimension Has Been Deactivated]

"Oh looks like it has a limit... forty," Gustav voiced out as he took note of how many had gotten sucked into the VI Dimension.

He reckoned that all of them would have gotten sucked in if the ability was not limited in usage.

Gustav tried to activate it again but it had apparently gone into cooldown mode.

("It doesn't matter, they are intelligent species, they would have figured it out sooner or later,")

'Partially true. Taking them by surprise was the biggest step to making the ability successful,' Gustav also realised that some of them flew in different directions and hid behind some floating diamond platforms in the vicinity because they didn't understand how the ability worked.

This saved about thirty of them as they were still unaware at the time that, the ability works by gaze.

The moment the creatures gazed upon Gustav's face while the ability was activated, their entire being would be pulled into the VI Dimension. Trapped forever, never to come out again.

The best way to defend against this ability was to keep one eyes shut. There was no fighting against it's power the moment anyone stared at it.

The others seemed to have figured out by now that the ability had been deactivated and began charging at Gustav once more while some shot out destructive dark purplish beams from their mouths.

"You lots never learn," Gustav voiced.

"We shall avenge our fallen kin!" One of the Ziaphanos yelled.

"Intelligent but stupid," Gustav voiced as he charged forward as well.

Thhwwooosshhhh!

#####

"What happened here?"

An overbearing looking figure with six arms, two legs and blueish star shaped marks all over his body voiced out.

"Captain Strum," Another figure looking similar but smaller, mumbled in a low tone.

This figure could be seen laying in a massive ditch with weakened expression and a battered looking body. Someone held up his head with a look of pity as other similar looking species could be seen standing around the place.

Three others were sprawned out on the ground in different areas in this decimated looking location. The massive craters, cracks, uprooted trees and ditches covering a radius of thousands of feet, hinted that an intense battle had occurred here.

"So it was an earthling," Captain Strum states with an overbearing gaze.

"Cap... captain... we tried... but he was too strong," The Draconet answered with a distressed tone.

"You disappoint me Siva," Captain Strum raised one of his legs.

Bang!

A massive vibration rang out as he stomped on the chest of the already battered Siva.

Bllerrrrghhh!

Siva puked blood as the ground quaked heavily and caved in even more. He held onto captain Strum leg with a pleading and suffocating expression.

"Cap... cap... cap-tain ple..." Siva tried begging.

"Ugh you got blood all over me, useless!" Captain Strum kicked Siva away before emitting a small glow that disintegrated the blood on his body.

"I have seen the image in your head of the person that laid waste to all four of you. He is not weak as you have stated but your uselessness has made us look weak," Captain Strum began to levitate after saying this.

"It is time to regain the two things you fools failed to acquire. Our pride as Draconets and the egg," His eyes squinted as he turned in a direction.

Thooooommmmm!

His body ascended further into the air and cut across the sky with immense speed. Five other Draconets in the vicinity ascended into the sky, following after him.

"Vice captain, are you not joining them?" One of the Draconets that stayed, inquired.

"The captain is more than capable of taking care of it himself. Even the others joining won't be able to do a single thing," Vice captain Ostril replied.

"Truly the captain would feel it is beneath him to employ the help of anyone else," The Draconet recalled Captain Strum's intense pride.

"Let's take care of the injured," The Vice captain didn't seem to be as intense.

She proceeded to move towards the teammate that was nearly stomped to death by Captain Strum and administered treatment.

#####

- 'My idiot liege you have to accept the full power of the crown. That way these vermin would be no match for you,'

"Shut up Darko," Falco voiced out loud.

If one could witness Falco occasional outbursts with the way he often spoke out loud to himself, they would think he wasn't sane.

However, his friends would understand that he was most likely speaking to Dark Falco who still existed within him.

Falco was currently able to control his abilities better than in the past so he had full dominance over Dark Falco. This was also the reason he had been engaging in most battles himself.

Dark Falco could only take over if Falco fell unconscious. However, not everyone was aware that Falco had been fighting the battles himself lately.

Falco's attitude was changing so much that during battle, it was difficult to tell that it wasn't Dark Falco throwing the punches.

Within him, Dark Falco stood beside a dark throne where half of a floating crown could be spotted.

'You already took half of it... It won't be long before you take it all my idiot liege hahahaha!' Dark Falco began laughing mischievously.

"I won't but even if I do, I will not become what you want," Falco stated as he arrived atop a large icy mountain.

'You are not very self aware my liege. You do not see what you are already becoming,' Dark Falco stated.

"If I ever become something else, I trust my friends to deal with me,"

A smile appeared on Falco's face as he stared at a massive half spherical barrier made of icicle like rocks up ahead.

It happened to be situated between four mountains and despite being unable to see what was within, Falco was sure he had arrived at his destination.

'Your friends will be in danger if they ever try to deal with you,' Dark Falco voiced internally.

"They're your friends too so you better make sure nothing happens to them," Falco replied.

Dark Falco who was about to say something initially paused. His legs buckled as he lowered himself and sat beside the throne with a speechless dark look.

'Hmph! You just don't understand...' Dark Falco muttered.

Chapter 1196 Please Save Me

'Hmph! You just don't understand...' Dark Falco muttered.

Falco ignored Dark Falco and leapt forward.

Thooooooooommm~

He landed right before the massive barricade made of iro silk that covered the entire vicinity.

"This is the designated point we're meant to meet Gustav in but I can't sense anyone around," Falco voiced with a slightly confused expression.

He was well aware that the barricade was Gustav's doing since he had seen him use the iro silk a couple of times and even covered nearly an entire city with it in the past.

He just didn't understand why Gustav was not in like he was supposed to be.

"Maybe he's out doing something... I should just hold on in the meantime," Falco proceeded to sit in a crossed legged position.

He tapped on the his storage button, which revealed holographic images of the contents within. About twenty five eggs could be seen arranged within.

Falco was quite satisfied with the number of eggs he had gathered himself. He was also eager for everyone to meet up since it would make it easier for them to gather more eggs together.

'My liege!' Dark Falco yelled internally.

"What is it? Don't start with your whole whining again, I am not interested in..."

'Incoming hostiles,' Dark Falco cut Falco off before he could finish his sentence.

'Incoming...!' Dark Falco was still speaking when a massive blueish glowing spear tore through the skies.

Thrrraahhhh!

Falco leapt to his feet instantly but the spear which happened to be moving at immense speed slammed into the icy ground at that same instant.

Fwwwheeee~ Boooooooooommm!

Intense shockwaves blasted across the vicinity as Gustav's iro silk barrier crumbled to dust along with the four icy mountains in the vicinity.

The attack was so powerful that everything in the vicinity, except the designated machine disintegrated.

It was unknown if Falco was unscathed but a figure with multiple limbs and a massive shadowy being towering over him could be spotted descending from the sky.

#####

Gustav held onto a Ziaphano's beak, panting with his entire figure covered completely in blood.

"It's been a while since I've battled this hard," The torn fabric on his body due to the intense battle began to join back together just like his injuries.

("You just fought against beings on the level of Omegas... it is quite impressive that you managed to take care of them all,") The system voiced.

Gusta recalled when he struggled to cause even the slightest damage on a Omega ranked mixedblood and now he managed to kill over a hundred of them.

He had truly gotten way more powerful than he was in the past but seeing as he still couldn't use Cohilia, he knew he still hadn't gotten to the strength level of an Alpha.

If this battle had occurred on earth, it would have caused a great catastrophe but fortunately, the fourth disk was immensely large and Whatever this dimension was, it somehow absorbed the shockwaves from their battles.

His breathing soon returned to normal as his body also transformed to his usual look.

[Atomic Disintegration Has Been Activated]

Gustav's body emitted a milky glow on the parts with blood, causing them to turn into light particles and dissipate.

He currently looked like someone who didn't just finish a crazy battle. The corpse of the Ziaphano in his grasp still had blood seeping out of its body from multiple areas.

"Might be useful later," Gustav fingers grew longer as he stabbed his right hand into its flesh, staining his arm with blood once more.

"Begin extraction," Gustav commanded.

-

Minutes later, Gustav could be seen flying across this unknown region once more while planning his next step.

He had acquired two Viondur Eggs in this unknown place which brought earth up to three Eggs in possession currently.

He didn't want to spend too long here due to the others approaching the designated point so he decided to only get two more and leave.

He wasn't sure if bringing the others here was a good idea since their speed was not a match for his so he hadn't given that much thought yet.

Fwooosshhh~

Gustav increased his speed after deciding which place he was going to visit next. He had practically gone round this whole place during his battle with the Ziaphanos so he knew just how large it was.

There were a lot more creatures down here than he thought and some of them had gained awareness of his presence but didn't seem to be interested in him.

Gustav felt, they wouldn't come after him unless he breached their territory first.

About thirty minutes later, Gustav arrived above a misty surrounded structure.

The structure looked like a temple of sorts but had a torso statue of an unknown creature erected above it. The structure was multilayered but still had only a single ground floor.

The statue of the creature upper body seemed quite muscular but its head had what looked like an upside down horn protruding from it.

Gustav perception picked up on the seventeen feet tall creatures in the vicinity that looked similar to the statue above the temple like structure.

These creatures were capable of walking on two feet like humans but everything else about them looked nothing human like.

They had greenish looking armored upper body with oddly shaped variety of weapons in their grasp as they moved about the place.

Gustav was still thousands of feet above their territory but he could see them clearly and even hear they way they communicated with one another.

This was another intelligent species with strength and a special ability which Gustav wasn't aware of but he could tell that those upside down horns protruding from their scalp wasn't ordinary.

He reckoned that there were around twenty thousand of them but they happened to be weaker than the Ziaphanos. However, even with this discovery, Gustav wasn't going to underestimate them.

Something happened to catch Gustav's attention upon scanning their territory with his perception which made him activate God Eyes.

[God Eyes Has Been Activated]

His eyes zoomed in on the altar area of the structure and he happened to spot an unexpected sight.

"There's a participant here?" Gustav muttered.

("Not of her volition from the looks of things,") The system voiced in response.

"How do you even know its a her," Gustav eyes squinted as he stared at the participant's body which looked like an ever outpouring source of goo.

The participant body was covered in ash goey liquid that never stopped flowing. However, greenish glowing binds could be seen all over their body which was in a kneeling position on the altar.

("It is a female Diaporonian," The system voiced once more.

"How did a participant even manage to get here?" Gustav recalled nearly getting erased from existence on his way down here.

("The Diaporonians are not as powerful as the planets that lead the alliance but they are not bad in terms of abilities,")

"Yes but none of their abilities should be able to help her get down here. Besides, if she is that powerful, how did she wind up in this situation," Gustav voiced.

("Saying that like you were not almost unalived by the Ziaphanos a while ago,"

"Tch, I won that fight,"

("Barely,")

Gustav decided to ignore the system taunts and stared at the Viondur Egg right in front of the participant who had become a captive.

"Hmm maybe she was also trying to steal their Viondur egg and got caught," Gustav felt she was also doing the same thing as he was.

"Anyways, its time to get the egg... since she's so powerful, she should be able to save herself, right?"

Just as Gustav was about to deactivate God Eyes, the head area of the Diaporonian turned and two snake like creatures bore out of the parts where her eyes were supposed to be located.

These eyes suddenly stared directly into Gustav's causing him to pause in place.

'Please help me,' A high pitched feminine voice rang in his mind.

"What the hell?" Gustav voiced.

'Please save me,' The voice which was undoubtedly that of the Diaporonian rang in his mind once more.

("You are aware of their abilities and you still fell into one of it. I would be shaking my head if I had one... oh wait,") The instant the system finished speaking, it appeared before Gustav in holographic format.

Her eyes held a look of ridicule as she shook her head repeatedly like a disappointed human.

"Fuck you," At this point, Gustav couldn't count the number of times the system had made him cuss.

The Diaporonian had made use of an ability that trapped anything in place the moment she stared at it, making that thing or person completely unmovable.

Gustav was aware of this ability since he had made his research on the aliens the earth would be going up against during IYSOP but he didn't think the Diaporonian would be able to activate it from such distance.

He wasn't even aware that she was conscious or would be able to see through the structure and discover his existence.

It took him completely by surprise.

Chapter 1197 The Diaporonian

He wasn't even aware that she was conscious or would be able to see through the structure and discover his existence.

It took him completely by surprise.

'Stop whatever it is you're doing and let me go,' Gustav spoke in his mind.

'Please save me... I'll free you if you promise to save me,' The Diaporonian voiced.

'Let me go now while you still have the chance. You can get yourself out of whatever pickle you got yourself into. It is none of my business,' Gustav replied.

'Please save me, they will turn me into a sacrifice. Please save me! Save me! Save me! Save me! Save me! Save me! Save me!' Her voice kept ringing in Gustav's head causing him headache.

His face squeezed up with annoyance, "Enough!" Gustav yelled as a small pink and reddish glow emitted from his being.

Thissskkkk!

He was instantly freed from the hold of the Diaporonian.

"You just ruined your chances of getting saved, do it yourself," Gustav stated before stamping an invisibility button on his forehead.

[Cognitive Concealment Has Been Activated]

He tapped the button on his forehead after activating Cognitive Concealment, causing his entire body to disappear as he turned invisible.

("Are you truly not going to save her?") The system inquired.

'Tch why should I?' Gustav said internally before swooping downwards.

("Don't be reckless like the last time,") The system voiced.

'No worries, this time there isn't a crazy internal structure with unexpected gravitational laws,' Gustav was relieved that it seemed easier than the last time.

Upon getting close to the ground he hovered slightly over it, flying forward into the massive temple.

More statues bearing semblance to that of the one above could be seen placed in different parts of the temple interior. Although smaller in size, they seemed to be arranged in a way meant to beautify the temple.

However some of these statues were in compromising positions, some with weapons jarring through their head or chest. Real internal organs planted in different corners as well. Gustav could easily tell.

Weird rocks that Gustav had never seen before could also be spotted which made him wonder how their sense of beautification worked.

Any normal person that stumbled into this temple would be scared out of their wits instead of standing there and praising the design.

Gustav immediately arrived before the altar area after avoiding the multiple creatures moving about the place.

The system had once again revealed the name of this species to Gustav but he wasn't interested in that right now. He just wanted to get the Viondur Egg and move out of this territory as soon as possible.

'I'll alert these creatures about your existence if you don't help me right now,' He suddenly heard the voice of the Diaporonian in his mind the instant he reached out to touch the Viondur Egg.

She looked even more slimy and goey in closer proximity. Gustav only took a glance at her and the binds surrounding her figure.

'No. I'll be out of here before they can even do anything,' Gustav responded while grabbing the Viondur egg.

'Please, I'll owe you one. I'm a princess I'll give something back in return! Anything you want,' The Diaporonian participant begged.

'Why can't you just slither your way out of that thing... you're practically liquid,' Gustav questioned.

'The binds stop me from dematerialising,' She voiced.

'I promise to do anything, please just free me,' She added.

Gustav paused at this point, 'Anything?' He questioned internally.

'Yes anything, you have my word,' She voiced.

("You have limited time before they discover your presence,") The system reminded.

'We have a deal,' Gustav said internally before letting go of the Viondur Egg.

("Didn't you say you weren't going to help her,") The system wanted to facepalm at this point.

Gustav ignored the system and stared at the invisible lines surrounding the Diaporonian who was still bound.

He had seen the lines around her when he activated God Eyes initially and assumed it was some kind of trigger but didn't understand why they didn't put it around the egg.

("The lines are ritualistic design which would have sucked out her life-force upon activation,") The system stated.

'Looks like its not a trigger like I thought... explains why they didn't put it around the egg. Are they really that confident that no one would be able to get it?' Gustav wondered internally.

("It would still cause a trigger if you tried to save her though,") The system voiced.

'Yeah... I'll just disintegrate it then,' Gustav decided while activating Atomic Manipulation.

[Atomic Manipulation Has Been Activated]

He tapped his right feet on the altar and a milky glowing line spread from his feet to the lines surrounding the Diaporonian.

A circular decline was instantly formed on the altar. The ritualistic lines had completely dissapeared, however the creatures in the vicinity had been alerted.

Gustav was super quick to have already grabbed the egg and the Diaporonian before flying upwards.

Bang!

He broke through the roof of the temple like platform instantly, however...

Fwwhiiii!

The moment he ascended about fifty feet above the ground, the Diaporonian suddenly dematerialised despite the binds surrounding her body.

The occurrence took Gustav by mistake and before he knew it, she was wrapped around his right arm and extending further to the rest of his body.

Thhhhhiiiiihhnnnn!

Multiple outburst of greenish energy surrounded the entire vicinity at once, causing Gustav to only see a world of green before he began falling to the ground.

"What the hell is this!?" Gustav voiced as a barrier suddenly appeared around him while he fell to his knees.

'Hihihihihihihih,' The Diaporonian began laughing hysterically in his mind while Gustav struggled to break free but he couldn't get off his knees.

Step! Step! Step! Step!

Multiple of the green armored creatures with weapons stepped towards the barrier with cold looks.

"You fell into our trap thieving scum!" One of the Zhergs stated as he arrived before the barrier.

He happened to be around twenty feet tall with a massive club like weapon in his grasp.

'What is this? Cosmic Superiority? Not quite it feels different,' Gustav questioned internally with his forehead creasing.

His body wasn't listening to his commands and this wasn't like the hold the Diaporonian had on his body earlier. That power made him unable to move but this power was compelling him to kneel.

Looking upwards, Gustav could see the upside down horn on the scalp of the Zherg glowing a bright green light.

However, it wasn't just him. Other Zhergs in the vicinity had the same green glow and it seemed to have set up the barrier surrounding Gustav.

The Diaporonian goo slid down from his arm and moved across the ground towards the largest Zherg.

"Good job Fena," The Zherg stated as the ashy slime arrived before him before getting sucked into the upside down horn on his forehead.

"A participant working with one of the creatures down here?" This didn't make any sense to Gustav.

The binds which were supposed to stop her from dematerialising seemed to have been a fluke and she could have dematerialised anytime she wanted.

Gustav had been successfully fooled. These creatures were truly intelligent but a lot still wasn't adding up.

"I found Fena and made her my slave..." The twenty feet tall Zherg began stating upon seeing the look of confusion on Gustav's face.

After saying a couple of things, Gustav now understood everything.

The Zhergs were aware that someone was going to try and steal their Viondur egg and from the looks of things he wasn't the first.

The power of the chief of the Zhergs upside down horn let's him bring back to life someone and make them his slave.

He apparently found the corpse of Fena a Diaporonian participant somewhere unknown and brought her back to life as his slave. Being her master, he und

----SSS

"Two reasons... bad match up and that's their captain," Gustav replied.

"Ohhh," Teemee voiced, "Will you be going then?"

"Nah, I have a better match up... Elevora you're up," Gustav announced.

Elevora's face turned focused as she heard this.

"How far do I have to go?" She wanted to know if it was necessary to go all out.

Gustav had told everyone initially that they wouldn't be displaying all of their strength from the start but eventually they would go all out.

"Just make sure you get to the ninth river," Gustav instructed.

Elevora nodded and began heading forward. The grounds E.E destroyed initially had been fixed and new rivers were now positioned there.

As Elevora arrived before the first river, the Anusa relic appeared before her and she reached out to grab it.

A few moments later, She was holding onto a massive spear with a fiery purplish flame at its tip.

Elevora stared at her weapon with a look of satisfaction before pointing it at the river before her.

Her entire figure was soon emitting a bright purplish glow as the ground began to quake.

On the other side, captain Shumi held onto what looked like a massive cannon. It was four times her size yet she held it above her like it was nothing while pouring energy into it.

A couple of moments later, they both took action...

Boooomm!

A shot was released from the cannon which flew into the river ahead and exploded with intensity.

Meanwhile, Elevora who had levitated to almost a hundred feet height, flung the spear in her grasp downwards.

Fwwhiii~

A purplish streak cut through the air as it bore through the river instantly, emitting a shockwave that caused the entire river to be emptied.

Both opponents went through the first to sixth river, performing the same actions and clearing it out.

'Her strength should be reaching its limits after this river,' Captain Shumi thought as she gave it her all and cleared the seventh river as well.

The purplish aura surrounding Elevora climbed as she flung down her spear from the air once more.

Bang!

The entire river was emptied once again effortlessly as cracks spread across the floor of the river.

'Tch... there is no way she's as calm as she looks,' Captain Shumi peeked at Elevora from her end below.

They were currently at the eight river now which was the limit for a lot of participants.

"If I manage to clear this, it should be the end for her," She whispered while pouring energy into her cannon.

Didididididididii~

Weird popping sounds rang out as the projectile within the cannon kept growing in energy until she finally fired it.

Thuusshhhh~

It cut through the surface of the gigantic river which was well over a million feet in length, before falling into it.

Boooooomm!

A loud explosion rang out as huge amount of waves rose into the air, displaying the bottom of the river as the blast kept spreading.

Unfortunately, it wasn't powerful enough to split more than a quarter of the river before dying out.

"That's... the gravitational force is so strong that it causing the power of any blast to be reduced to a third of its output," She had a grudging look as she came to this realisation.

"I just need to amp it up then," She said with determination while infusing a large amount of energy into her cannon once more.

Up above, Elevora was also gathering energy as the purplish aura surrounding her continued to climb. Her headtie was still wrapped around her forehead and there didn't seem to be a need for her to reveal it.

The sky had begun to change color in her position due to the purplish aura she emitted but she knew it still wasn't enough.

On the ground, Captain Shumi finally fired her cannon once more.

A rocking explosion rang out, clearing three quarters of the river in front of her but it still wasn't enough to clear all.

At this point she stared at the river before her with a look of disbelief since she was aware of how much power she had just used.

"That other earthling must be immensely powerful," She recalled E.E.

However, she wasn't ready to give up as she began charging her cannon again for the third and final try.

At this same instant, Elevora held up her spear and arched her arm back to the limit with a serious expression.

Fwwwiiiiii~

She flung her spear downwards with intensity, causing shockwaves to spread from her location even before the spear hit the water.

The sky cleared out and the river surface blasted open while the spear was still a hundred feet away from making contact with its surface.

Booommm~

In a split second the spear had made contact with the bottom of the river and a powerful force spread forth from it, pushing the water body out of it's one million feet hole radius.

Cheers~ Cheers~ Cheers~

Cheers were heard from the spectators area as she cleared it in one attack once more.

Captain Shumi instantly lost morale as she witnessed this and released her shot impromptu. As expected, it didn't manage to clear the eight river, leaving Elevora the winner.

<<< Planet Earth 2 - 0 Planet Ghundabault >>>

The spectators areas focusing on earth and Ghundabaul's faceoff erupted in cheers and groans of satisfaction as well as disappointment.

They both headed back to their respective groups. Elevora and the othes jubilated after their second win while a cloud of gloom was casted on the Ghundabaults area.

"We can still win this... they are using all their powerful representatives from the start, meanwhile we still have Tivan, Shui and the others," Captain Shumi voiced.

"Captain Shumi is right, we can still win," Some of them agreed as they tried not to lose hope.

Gustav proceeded to send Teemee next as he wanted and there was no disappointment.

Teemee cleared seven rivers while his opponent did not manage to successfully clear the seventh.

The earth had been hailed to have one of the most powerful species in the universe but they hadn't expected to lose three bouts in a row without winning a single one. It was humiliating.

Captain Shumi wasn't happy with the current turn of events but she made sure to keep to her strategy and kept sending out the weaker teammates from her side first.

Time went by very quickly and before everyone knew it, both planets had completed seven bouts. So far, Aildris, Glade, Vin and Yonda had participated and none of them lost.

<<< Planet Earth 7 - 0 Planet Ghundabault >>>

At planet Ghundabault side, captain Shumi turned to one of her teammates who happened to be the smallest in their midst. He was about two feet tall with a glowing green root like hair that floated up.

"Tivan it's time for us to make a comeback, head out there and do the needful," She said to him.

He didn't say a single word in response and just began to head forward.

"This will be a tough one... Endric you're up," Gustav voiced.

Endric who had been silent all this time behind, finally walked forward.

"I see what you're talking about... he's strong," Endric stated as he arrived before Gustav.

"Yes... the type of weapon you two get, actually matters..." Gustav voiced.

"Have faith in me big brother... I will take care of this," Endric reassured before he began stepping forward with a solemn expression.

"He has become quite reliable," Aildris voiced from the side.

Gustav remained silent but deep down he admitted to what Aildris had just said.

Endric soon arrived before the river and the Anusa relic appeared before him.

'What type of weapon do you want?' His forehead beeped with a greenish glow as Husarius voice rang in his mind.

'You can manipulate that?' Endric questioned internally.

'Yes... just tell me the weapon you are interested in,' Husarius inquired once more.

'I just want something that doesn't hinder my telekinetic abilities,' Endric replied while reaching out to grab the relic.

liinnnnnggggg~

In the next few moments, a four feet long katana with blueish glowing blade appeared in his grasp.

"This is good... now I have no worries," Endric voiced as he raised the katana.

Zzhiiinnn~

His irises turned sky blue as he gathered telekinetic energy.

On the other side Tivan held onto what looked like a metallic club. The club began to extend in length as he floated into the air.

It became so long, it extended beyond the first river.

-"Woah, is that even allowed?"

The spectators began questioning this but then it wasn't against the rules since it was his abilities manifesting through the weapon.

Bang!

Swinging the massive metallic club downwards, it instantly split a couple of rivers as it dropped onto them.

Meanwhile, Endric also swung his katana forward at the same instant.

"Telekinetic split... universal separation..." He muttered as a wave of energy was released from the blade of the katana.

Chapter 1198 Trouble On The Surface

Right before their very eyes which was filled with uttermost bewilderment, Gustav stood to his feet no longer hindered by their abilities.

"What? How are you doing this thieving scum!?" The chief of the Zhergs voiced.

"It's just a Yarki dupe..." Gustav muttered as he stepped forward and grabbed the Viondur egg.

Gustav barely Activated Cosmic Superiority since he didn't want to bring any attention to himself. Exuding a little bit of its energy was enough to break out of the hold of the Zhergs power.

-"Yarki?"

-"That creature is dangerous chief!"

-"What is this...?"

The Zhergs were already astonished and wary upon witnessing Gustav's feat but in the next instant he suddenly disappeared from sight...

Bang!

A loud crash assaulted their ears as the barrier blasted to smithereens. The Zhergs were unable to process things very quickly despite their powerful ability.

Their eyes widened when they spotted Gustav in the sky with their chief in his grasp, powerless.

The club like weapon in his grasp had fallen to the ground as well.

"Chief!"

They yelled with looks of horror as they began throwing weapons upwards.

"It's time to send you to the afterlife..." A smirk appeared on Gustav's face as his frame cut across the air with intense speed.

Despite his size, the chief of the Zhergs struggled powerlessly with Gustav's right hand holding tightly onto his throat.

"Please spare me! You can have the egg," The Chief pleaded after seeing their immense difference in strength.

"I already have the egg, you don't strike a good bargain," Gustav stated as his fingers tightened around the neck of the chief which was very small in comparison to his size.

"Arrrrrghhhhh, I will- I ha-ve a bet-ter bargain pl...ease...spa-re m...ee..." The chief of the Zhergs pleaded.

"I don't wanna hear it, greed got me into this situation. Your power will be enough compensation," Gustav replied as he prepared to extract the Chief's ability.

"Ma-p...I ha-ve a m-ap...I c-an he-lp y...ou...g-et mo-re eg-gs..." The Cheif kept struggling to speak.

("He says he has a map,") The system voiced.

"I already know my way around," Gustav replied.

("You do but you keep getting into these situations that delay you... didn't you say you wanted to get out of here as soon as possible?") The system inquired.

"Hmm," Gustav thought about it for a second.

He was unaware of the abilities of the creatures here so he kept getting into unfavourable situations.

However, if a native of this part of the fourth disk helped him, things would become easier and he wouldn't get delayed by falling into unexpected situations again.

"I guess you're right... but I really like their abilities though," Gustav reluctantly released his tight grip on the chief throat.

"You're not just gonna give me a map, you will also steal the eggs for me," Gustav stated while still holding the chief up.

"I agree I agree but can my savior release our egg since we will be helping you steal more," The chief inquired.

"You don't get to make demands besides, what do you guys even need them for?" Gustav questioned.

"Please saviour! You might as well just slaughter us now if you still wish to take our egg," The chief pleaded.

'Why is the Viondur Egg so important to the creatures down here?' Gustav wondered internally with a slightly raised left brow.

("Who knows?") The system answered like it was unaware too.

"Very well then," Gustav voiced while turning around.

Fwwwheiiii~

He sped across the air once more and arrived above the territory of the Zhergs who were still prancing around in despair.

Gustav let go of the chief who fell from the aid and landed before his kin.

"Chief!" The Zhergs yelled in joy.

"Now listen up..." Gustav floated a few feet above the ground with a menacing gaze, causing the Zhergs to shudder.

They meekly fell to their knees and listened as Gustav made demands on what he wanted. The creatures would do anything to make sure their eggs were not taken from them so they accepted Gustav's demand.

They couldn't even disobey even if they wanted to since their Chief already agreed. With the partnership, the Zhergs informed Gustav of this part of the fourth disk properly.

Apparently, it was a kind of dimension between the fourth and fifth disk but they were still a part of planet Ozious. However, they weren't completely recognised by the major species existing on the surface of the disks... The Ozis.

They were seen as less important and inferior and the eggs happened to be what helped them evolve and grow as a specie.

Gustav still didn't really understand a couple of this about this whole dimension but he had more knowledge about Planet Ozious now.

It was normal for a planet to have multiple species especially one as massive as this. However, he didn't understand why the Ozis choose not to acknowledge the existences of the ones here.

As he stayed longer he realised the Zhergs were more peaceful than they looked on the surface.

Despite the chief special ability to revive the dead with that upside down horn of his and turn them to his slave, he didn't think of conquering more territories.

This ability could change the tide of battles if he wanted to conquer even the surface but the chief only wanted to protect his people.

"This is the one we will be infiltrating second... the Butfahg territory. They have warping abilities and tend to set a lot of traps but I can get you the egg without them ever knowing it..." The Cheif spoke to Gustav after their first haul.

They had already managed to get one Viondur Egg in the last hour. It was so easy to get into the territory due to the help of the chief and get the egg out after replacing it with a dummy.

This time Gustav didn't get into any scuffle. It was almost too easy that he thought something was wrong.

"So you know their leader?" Gustav questioned.

"We have been acquainted in the past yes," The chief answered.

"So you're willing to double cross this acquaintance of yours?" Gustav inquired once more.

"To save my people, with no question, I would," The Chief answered unhesitatingly.

"Alright then, let's go," Gustav voiced before getting off the altar within the temple.

Thhhinnnghh!

"Hmm?" Gustav held his right eye as he felt a small thump.

"Saviour, is anything the matter?" The chief questioned with concern while staring down on Gustav due to his large size.

"Nothing, let's move," Gustav lowered his arm before stepping forward.

#####

"Koorrh! Kooorhh!" Falco coughed out spurts of blood as he knelt in the middle of a massive crater.

The frost in the surrounding had completely vaporised, leaving a completely decimated environment.

Falco looked up with an unyielding expression as a figure descended from above.

Bang!

He landed directly on Falco who was struggling to get up.

The entire vicinity quaked intensely as the figure with six arms and blue starred patterns got off Falco back which had made a loud crack upon collision.

"Oops, I didn't mean to earthling," Captain Strum squatted before Falco and grabbed his hair with one of his left hands.

He slowly pulled his head up a little which had blood smeared across, "I applaud you for surviving my first attack. You are indeed strong... but you know, it's only right for me to treat you the same way you did my subordinates. I'll get the egg back after having a little fun with you," A confident and prideful grin appeared on his face.

"Don't die just yet," Captain Strum voiced before pulling Falco completely off the ground and smashing his face into the wall of the crater.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

Captain strum blurred across the vicinity in a ZigZag format as he repeatedly smashed Falco's face into the walls and ground causing a quakes.

"Come on don't make this boring for me," He raised Falco's entire body with two of his arms and began punching his gut with the rest of his four arms.

-"Should we stop him?"

-"Do you wanna die? Captain Strum would rip you to pieces,"

- "Wouldn't the earthling die if this continues though?"

- "I think there's a penalty for that but we can't do anything but watch right now,"

Above the crater, five figures who also had multiple limbs watched with worried expressions and discussed their concerns amongst one another.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

Hundreds of punches slammed into Falco's gut at very fast pace causing him to spit out more blood which touched Captain Strum's face.

"Ughh that's gross, you got blood all over me," Captain Strum let go of Falco at this point who fell to his face with a battered body.

"Disgusting," Captain Strum stated before swinging his left foot forward.

Bang!

His foot collided with Falco's face, sending him flying out of the crater.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

Falco slammed into the ground and repeatedly ricocheted off it, sweeping across the ground for hundreds of feet.

- 'My liege wake up! Wake up! Or I'm taking over! Wake up!'

Chapter 1199 Disappear!

Falco slammed into the ground and repeatedly ricocheted off it, sweeping across the ground for hundreds of feet.

- 'My liege wake up! Wake up! Or I'm taking over! Wake up!'

Dark Falco kept yelling internally as Falco's body swept across the ground, creating long ridges.

"Ugghhhhh..." Falco groaned as his body came to a stop after a while.

He felt extremely sore all over and lightheaded.

"Bleerrghhh!" He vomitted out another mouthful of blood as his visibility slowly returned to normal.

- 'My liege, you are not a match for him as you are now. Accept the full power of the crow...,'

"Not a ma-tch huh... we shall see about that," Falco interrupted with a stubborn look while trying to pick himself up once more.

Thwwwwoosssshh!

Captain Strum's figure flew out of the crater which happened to be hundreds of feet ahead, with intense speed in Falco's direction.

His arms were arched back as he prepared to launch another flurry of fists on Falco's body.

Immense dark energy suddenly radiated from Falco's being before Captain Strum could get to him.

Thrrahhh!

Falco's left arm which was twisted 180° right due to the damage he took from the beating earlier, spun back to its usual angle as he leapt into the air to receive Captain Strum.

A large fist conjured from dark energy formed as Falco swung his initially broken arm forward to meet with the multiple fist headed in his direction.

Booommm!

Shockwaves blasted in every direction as the massive dark fist collided with Captain's Strum's multiple fists, causing both figures to instantly separate in mid air.

Falco landed on his feet and slid tens of feet backwards just like Captain Strum who has a little expression of excitement on his face.

"Now that's more like it earthling," He stated while two of his arms rested on his hips while another one smoothed his hair backwards and one pointed at Falco.

"Don't make this boring for me," He added.

"You only held the upper hand for a little because your attack took me by surprise. Don't get too full of yourself," Falco wiped the blood off his mouth with his sleeves.

"Big talk for a person that I don't need my encour to defeat," Captain Strum stated with a confident grin planted on his face.

Falco recalled that what the Draconets called Encours was that shadowy figure that would be projected behind them which was usually very powerful.

However, he felt things might have been easier if Captain Strum made use of it considering that he was aware that the encours was also their weakness as well as it was their strength.

The aura of darkness covering Falco entire being grew in size as the mark on his forehead enlarged as well.

Twwwwosssh!

They both charged forward without saying any more words at this point as Captain Strum didn't seem to have gotten enough out of the beating he gave Falco earlier.

Multiple dark arms phased out of the dark aura covering Falco's being as he clashed repeatedly with Captain Strum.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

They both threw out thousands of punches in seconds, making it look like a flurry of blurry arms swinging forward repeatedly.

Shockwaves wrecked the entire vicinity even more as these two continued to exchanged fists in mid air unyielding to the other.

- "He managed to hold his own against the captain,"

- "That earthling is truly impressive,"

- "We can't even interfere or the captain would face us and beat us to a pulp,"

- "This won't last for long though,"

- "The earthling might be able to hold his own now but the moment the captain stops holding back, that would be the end,"

The five Draconets in the sky watched the battle unfold with interested expressions and speculations.

It looked like the battle was still in stalemate even after a few minutes had gone by but Falco was not interested in letting things stay this way.

He had conjured more than seventeen dark arms to combat Captain Strum six arms yet the captain was able to fend off the attacks from every single one of them by swinging faster each time there was a new dark arm.

'I need to incapacitate him,' Falco thought as dark energy spread further from his being encapsulating Captain Strum's figure within.

Zzhziinnnnn!

In the next instant, a radius of more than a thousand feet had been covered in darkness.

All captain Strum could see was darkness as every ounce of light completely got snuffed out.

Thrraahh! Thrraahh!

Captain Strum suddenly found his entire figure wrapped by massive dark arms shooting from the ground behind him.

Fwwwiiii!

Falco dashed forward at this point with the other dark arms extending from his being suddenly grabbing Captain Strum's six arms to trap him in place.

Falco who had arched his right arm back to the limit, hurled a punch forward at Captain Strum's gut the instant he arrived before him.

Bang!

Captain Strum's figure catapulted across the air with intensity, spiralling for several hundred feet before slamming into the ground far ahead.

Fwwosshhhh!

Falco charged forward once more, as multiple arms shot out of the ground in this vicinity of darkness, trying to trap captain Strum in place once more.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

Captain Strum swiftly threw fists across the place, hitting the dark arms away but the instant he fended them off, Falco arrived before him.

Bam!

Fists were exchanged once more and before Captain Strum could fend them off completely, hundreds of dark arms had held onto his six arms once more trapping him in place.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

This time, Falco didn't let him off with a single punch.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

Falco's face squeezed up in anger as he repeatedly punched Captain Strum across the air, leaving him no chance to counter or land before driving fists into his gut.

'Tch such humiliation... I need to find a way out of this dark domain,' Captain Strum thought as he received a flurry of fists.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

Conjuring another massive dark fist, Falco threw an upper cut at Strum sending him hurling upwards.

As his figure ascended for hundreds of feet, his figure escaped the dark area Falco had set up for an instant.

Falco charged upwards instantly but Captain Strum was quick enough to further fly upwards, escaping the dark domain.

'I need to get him back in,' Falco thought as he flew after Captain Strum.

"Such nuisance..." Captain Strum voiced with a frustrated tone as a massive shadowy figure appeared behind him.

"Disappear," He voiced as the Shadowy figure raised his arm with a massive glowing blueish spear appeared in his grasp.

Falco eyes slightly widened as he recognised the massive spear but it was too late.

Fwwwiiii!

The spear was flung down, instantly cutting through the air with intensity and bearing a tremendous pressure as a massive line could be spotted in the sky.

Boooooom!

Falco's entire being shot downwards, as the spear crashed him into the ground beneath, sending blueish destructive waves across the vicinity.

The darkness in the vicinity instantly disintegrated into light particles as the blueish blast leveled the surroundings.

- "Looks like that was all the captain needed to do,"

- "There's no way that earthling survived now since it was a direct hit,"

- "Now the captain will get a strike sigh"

The Draconets shook their heads with looks of pity as it seemed like any attack from Captain Strum's encour was absolute.

#####

"Are you guys going to need any help protecting yourselves though?"

Within the Temple like structure Gustav held onto another Viondur Egg with a look of satisfaction on his face.

"We will be fine saviour," The Chief of the Zhergs stated.

"You know it wouldn't take a rocket scientist for the Butfahgs to figure out that you're responsible if they ever find out that the egg with them right now is a fake," Gustav voiced out.

"What is a rocket scientist?" The cheif of the Zhergs questioned with a look of confoundment.

"That's... never mind, its an earth term," Gustav replied.

The Chief still had a look of intrigue but Gustav wasn't going to explain it no matter how much he asked.

"Say chief, are you the only one that can use that revival power?" Gustav inquired.

"Indeed I am the only Zherg on that level of power but another could achieve it maybe in the next fifty to two hundred years," The chief of the Zhergs responded.

Gustav figured it was a thing of cultivation and stared at the other Zhergs in the vicinity.

'So it's not entirely impossible then,' Gustav thought.

"Also, I cannot revive a person that has been a corpse for longer than five minutes," The chief added.

"Then the Diaporonian girl was only a fresh corpse when you found her," Gustav voiced.

"Yes. I don't know where she came from. I just found her corpse nearby and used my power to turn her into my slave. I didn't even know that it would work," The Captain of the Zhergs answered.

Chapter 1200 Master Orders

"Nuff said... by any chance do you have convict Zhergs that are no longer trusted by you and your fellow Zhergs," Gustav wasn't really interested in how the Diaporonian candidate got here anymore.

"Yes, we have those who stole," The Chief responded.

"Any one with more grave offences besides stealing? Like killing or something?" Gustav inquired.

The chief of the Zhergs had a slightly downcast look as he replied, "There is one,"

The chief of the Zhergs had a slightly downcast look as he replied, "There is one,"

"Good, take me to them," Gustav got to his feet after saying.

Minutes later Gustav stared at the system notification before him.

[Zherg Ability Extraction Complete]

The massive Zherg bound with glowing tiles before him fell to his back powerless after Gustav let go of his neck.

"This concludes our partnership," Gustav said to the chief before leaping into the air.

Fwwwwhoosssshhh~

His figure disappeared into the distance while the Zherg whose powers had just been stolen remained in place with a look of despair.

("There is trouble... I'm sure you already sensed it,")

The system said to Gustav as he began ascending at very quick speed.

"I did..." Gustav replied as he touched his right eye which thumped rhythmically.

"Best to check out the severity of the situation," He paused atop a diamond like floating structure.

Gustav immediately activated God Eyes and went on to connect to Life Signs.

#####

Captain Strum gazed downwards with a condescending expression as he spotted a human figure twitching repeatedly on the decimated ground that had leveled by hundreds of feet.

-"The earthling survived the captain Time Spear,"

-"phew lucky but he is in no state to battle,"

-"I didn't expect him to last this long,"

The Draconets watched from afar as Captain Strum descended while Falco's body twitched repeatedly below as he was in an unconscious state.

Falco had lost his arms along with his entire left shoulder leaving only a small part of his chest intact.

His eyelids fluttered from time to time as it seemed like he ss struggling to regain consciousness.

'My liege! My idiot liege! Wake up!' Dark Falco kept yelling within but to no avail.

"This is what happens when you try to be difficult," Captain Strum landed before Falco's battered body.

"A mere earthling subordinate like you managed to make me use my encour twice," Captain Strum had a look of angush as he grabbed Falco's head and lifted him off the ground with a sinhle hand.

"Such humiliation,"

Bang!

He threw a fist at Falco's gut.

"You cannot shame me without consequences,"

Bang!

"I shall not tolerate humiliation to my great planet!"

Bang!

"How do you like that now earthling!?"

Bang!

"Did you think you were strong!?"

Bang!

"Did you think you would win?"

Bang!

"That you would even harbour such thoughts..."

Bang!

"...makes..."

Bang!

"...you..."

Bang!

"...worthy..."

Bang!

"...of..."

Bang!

"...great..."

Bang!

"...punishment..."

Bang! Bang! Bang!

Blood flowed down Falco's body as he soon got drenched due to the intense beatings.

#####

From the earth spectators area, they watched the happenings with looks of anguish as a lot of them voiced their dissatisfaction.

-"Isn't that supposed to be illegal?"

-"Why does he keep hitting him? Does he intend to kill an earth representative?"

-"Where are the others? Where is officer Crimson?"

Miss Aimee sat in place with keen eyes focused on the multiple screens above the arena area.

"Gustav isn't on any of them, is he?" Grand Commander Shion questioned.

"No he is not," Miss Aimee replied.

"Wherever he is must be distant from there. It looks like the Falco kid is on his own," She added.

"This is not good, we can't lose a mixedblood with such potential," Grand commander Shion had a disturbed expression as he spoke.

As much as they would have loved to intervene, it would cause earth to get disqualified if they did so. The only thing earth spectators could do right now was watch and it was getting even more disturbing by the second.

#####

-"We should really stop the captain before he kills him,"

-"It will be a problem if the earthling dies because this will not be tagged as accidental,"

-"Yes we will be penalised,"

- "Which one of us is going down there?"

There was a bit of silence after the last Draconet raised the question. They stared at each other for a bit and began pointing at one another.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

At this point Falco's body had stopped twitching as he turned completely unconscious. His ribs had been smashed in and his body was in an unrecognisable state.

"You will..." Captain Strum stretched back four of his arms as he prepared to drive fists into Falco's body again.

"...regret ever..."

A loud rocket blazing sound suddenly reverberated across the air as a golden and metallic humaoid looking figure swooped in from the right.

Thwwwosssshhhhhh~

The figure snatched Falco's battered body out of Captain Strum's arms before he could deliver the fists.

"Huh?" Captain Strum's face showed confusion and annoyance as he turned to stare in the direction the figure disappeared into.

Thousands of feet towards the east, the humanoid golden figure with a circular shaped translucent stone for a head stood atop a slightly exalted but flattened ice surface.

This was actually a frost mountain that had gotten flattened due to the battle in the vicinity.

The figure with the translucent head, had a bright glowing fluorescent light the size of two fists within it.

It slowly let Falco's body down and materialised a glowing pill which it proceeded to put into his mouth.

Twwhoosshhh~

"Hey who the hell do you think you are to take my prey away?" Captain Strum suddenly appeared behind the golden metallic looking figure effortlessly with his arms throwing punches forward.

The fluorescent glow within the circular shaped translucent head, brightened intensely at this moment.

Thhhrrrrhiiiihhh!

The entire terrain suddenly expanded, causing the golden figure and Falco to get separated from Captain Strum.

They didn't even need to move as all his punches missed their target upon the expansion of the terrain.

They were suddenly thousands of feet apart again. Captain Strum had a conflicted expression as he stared forward, 'What sort of power is this? It isn't teleportation,'

He charged forward to attack the figure once more and the same situation occurred. He was unable to touch the golden figure no matter how much he tried to.

The environment wasn't the only thing shifting and changing. His attacks were transforming as well and he couldn't understand how this golden figure was doing this.

Captain Strum couldn't recognise this specie and knew it wasn't an earthling.

"You are not a participant are you?" He soon realised that this might be why this golden figure hadn't even tried countering his attack and only evaded.

However, if this golden figure wasn't an IYSOP participant then what was it?

#####

-Minutes ago

Tsssshhhh!

Gustav slightly opened his mouth but could only hiss in rage as he witnessed what was happening on the surface through God Eyes.

("Welp... you would have prevented this if you had gotten back up there earlier,") The system stated.

"SJ, take care of Falco till I get back," Gustav could see the Sacred Jewel floating in place beside the designated machine without any sight of the Iro Silk he built around.

"Don't touch that guy, he's mine," Gustav stared directly at Strum who was still beating Falco up.

The sacred Jewel communicated to Gustav through a telepathic link so it already replied Gustav and began transforming.

It took the form of a golden but humanoid looking being about twelve feet tall, with its glowing translucent body taking the form of a head.

Gustav deactivated God Eyes at this point and stared up.

[Lightning Blitz Has Been Activated]

Thhrrraaaahhhzzhhh!

Gustav's being ascended with immense speed as he transformed into a lightning streak that dissapeared from this dimension.

#####

"Fight back you low life thing," Captain Strum was getting even more frustrated as time passed.

He even found himself throwing fists at a hill at one point and couldn't understand just what sort of ability SJ was making use of.

[My master said he wants to have the pleasure of dealing with you himself]

A projection of light appeared above SJ displaying words that only the Draconets would understand.

"Your master? Who is that?" Internally Captain Strum was a little disturbed that such a creature had a master.

[Behind you]

"Huh?" Captain Strum turned around with a look of surprise and what he witnessed stunned him.

A brewing ice storm had covered the entire vicinity behind. It looked like the ground and sky had ripped open and blasted into little pieces that caused the ice storm.

This was due to a something that was traveling at incredible speed and causing destruction to the environment due to ripples spreading from it.

On closer look it was a silhouette...

"What is..."

Before Captain Strum could even dissect the situation, the silhouette had arrived before him with glowing crimson eyes, bearing down a punch that parted the sky.

Booom!

A fist packing intensive destructive force on a subatomic level slammed into Captain Strum's chest, triggering a shockwave.

Thooooooooommm!

It seemed like gravitational force had come to a reversal as every solid particle within a ten mile radius got crushed into little pieces that ascended into the sky.