

Bloodline 1211

Chapter 1211 Alien Ability Upgrade

- "How dare you!?"

- "Does this earthling have no manners?"

"I should smite you where you stand if it wasn't for earth being amongst the leaders of the alliance," The teal glowing Rhombus head shaped member voiced with a tone of dissatisfaction.

Miss Aimee ignored their voices of displeasure and resumed speaking.

"The entire universe will be affected. This threat has only appeared in the milky way for now but four more anomalies are coming that will appear in other different parts of the universe. After the fifth anomaly, things will be at a very dangerous level and trying to prepare countermeasures against the incoming threat at that time would be too late,"

Grand commander Shion who stood beside her, had rays of light extending from the diamond like stone embedded in his forehead which displayed holographic footage of the incredibly massive and mythical eye that appeared in the milky way.

It's appearance in the footage casted a Ray of subtle gloom and disturbance across the entire vicinity, causing the seven to wonder in silence for a little while.

Grand commander Shion inwardly sighed in relief since the rhombus shaped headed council member didn't try to get physical with Miss Aimee. He knew better than anyone how that would end especially since her real body was present on Ozious currently.

"How does this prove that it is a universal and not an earth problem? Are we just going to take your word for it?" A member with uncountable tape worm like face finally broke the silence.

"Yes you should. I have no reason to save this rotten universe if it wasn't for him. If he is gone, rest assured i can let the entire universe get buried with him," Miss Aimee replied with an inhospitable tone.

"Who is him?" The council members voiced with tones of confusion.

"Ehem, council lords, what she is trying to say is, this isn't something earth can handle on its own," Grand commander Shion quickly butted in.

"Even if this is just an earth issue, we are one of the leading bodies of the alliance so it is well within your graciousness to assist. We ask that after IYSOP is concluded there be an alliance meeting involving all the leaders as well as leading members to discuss this," Grand commander Shion followed up with this.

Currently, the alliance of planets had a leading body of twenty planets, earth included. The leading bodies each had one representative who were referred to as Council Lords. These council lords practically led a body of over three thousand planets who were all under the alliance.

The thousands of planets underneath them also had representatives as well but only the leading representatives from the leading planets in the alliance were referred to as council Lords.

Currently, only around seven council lords were available in this meeting while the others were currently indisposed, including that of Earth's.

An alliance meeting where every single representative under the alliance would gather had not been held in over five hundred years.

Usually, it could only be issued by the council lords when there was a very important matter that concerned the fate of the entire universe or just the planets connected to the alliance.

Despite earth being one of the twenty leaders of the alliance, they couldn't just issue a meeting without the agreement of nine other council lords. It would be considered a matter of utmost significance if the Council Lords were to agree to an alliance meeting.

"We shall think about it and come to a conclusion before the end of IYSOP," The council lord who looked similar to a Handler voiced.

"We shall await your favourable response," Grand commander Shion said with a respectful tone before gesturing at Miss Aimee for them to leave.

Miss Aimee threw a glare at them for an instance causing the Council Lords to feel chills run down their spines.

"Let's go Aimee," He voiced with a pleading tone.

Miss Aimee turned around at this point and walked out with him. After they left, some of the Council Lords, heaved sighs of relief as the pressure within the vicinity vanished.

"What do we do about this?" One of them questioned.

"We have to inform the other council lords first except for council lord Jin since he sent them,"

The fourth disk went on to be chaotic for the next couple of days while the earth candidates found a place to hideout while everywhere else was in turmoil.

Gustav decided to check the notification he had ignored these past few days.

[Quest Completed: Successfully Bring The Rest Of Earth's Candidate Into The Dimension In Between The Fourth And Fifth Disk]

[Rewards]

<+10,000,000 EXP>

<One Alien Ability Upgrade>

Gustav proceeded to check his attributes to confirm the addition of the EXP.

'How many more levels till max?' Gustav asked internally as he stared at the stats before him.

("Now why would I tell you that?") The system responded with a rhetorical question.

'Just as expected. You never tell me anything,' Gustav scoffed internally.

("I still have that one piece of information I'll reveal after IYSOP,") The system voiced.

'Sure sure,' At this point Gustav didn't expect anything from the system besides its usual annoying daily tasks and occasional quests.

On the bright side, he got stronger everyday even if he decided not to channel his bloodline due to the attribute points he gets from the system after the completion of daily tasks.

[Alien Ability Upgrade...]

[Which Ability Does Host Wish to Upgrade?]

Gustav internally made a decision and in the next instant another notification popped up.

[Upgrading Tecophibe Vi Dimension...]

Gustav's face turned completely dark and whirly causing the others around to stare at him in confusion.

[0/100%]

Fortunately, they weren't sucked into the VI Dimension due to the fact that it was currently in the process of upgrade.

[Upgrade Complete]

Gustav's face returned to normal upon the completion of the upgrade and he was about to dismiss the system pop ups in his face when a new notification appeared.

[New Tecophibe Ability Unlocked]

'Oh? The upgrade triggered a new Ability from that Alien,' Gustav said internally as he checked the system stats in relation of Alien Lifeform Abilities.

[Alien Lifeform Abilities]

<Iro Silk>

<Rubber Skin>

<Kilapisole Transformation>

<Frost Manipulation>

<Frost Raikin Transformation>

<Tecophibe VI Dimension>

<Tecophibe VI Dimension Reanimation>

....

He spotted the new ability and multiple speculations began to play out in his mind.

'VI Dimension Reanimation... double the range of where the darkness appears, maybe if I activated it now the darkness appears on my back and anyone who stares at it gets sucked in,' Amongst Gustav's many speculations, this was one of the sensible ones but at the same time he wasn't convinced since this would be more of an upgrade than a new Ability.

'It could be that... The creatures within I can...' Before Gustav could complete this thought an air shredding sound rang out.

Thrrrrihhhhhh~ Boooooom!

Along with it came collision and explosion that caused a part of the iro silk surrounding them to crumble instantly as the environment trembled immensely from the impact.

The entire group was instantly alarmed as they all jumped to their feet.

("You didn't sense that?") The system questioned.

'I did but it was too late and sudden,' Gustav replied as he stood to his feet and slowly stepped through the gap created from the explosion.

Fog had covered the vicinity due to the blast but as it reduced, a group of twenty extending powerful pressure across the environment could be spotted stepping forward.

They all emitted a look of confidence and ridiculous air of strength that caused the approaching opposition to pause for an instant subconsciously.

"We finally found you earthlings,"

One of them yelled with a tone of desperation.

Up ahead the group could see twelve participants clad in massive red quill like outfits with an upside down cone shaped head. On the left was another seventeen participants with gem like humanoid bodies, possessing just a single eye in the middle of their stone like head.

On the right was yet another group of thirteen phantom like creatures with a spear like object in the middle of their heads. Behind these three different groups at the forefront were two more approaching groups.

They all looked like they had come for war, emitting intense malicious auras.

"What do you guys want?" Gustav questioned as he stood in front of his teammates.

"Nothing much, just hand over the Viondur eggs in your possession and we shall be on our way," One of the participants in the red quill like outfits stated.

Chapter 1212 Wake Up!

"Nothing much, just hand over the Viondur eggs in your possession and we shall be on our way," One of the participants in the red quill like outfits stated.

"We've worked to gather these eggs. They have been acquired as a result of hardwork. I'll advice you lots to leave now while you still can and work to gather eggs for yourselves as well," Aildris voiced calmly but inputted a subtle threat.

"This is us working to gather eggs. Hand it over earthlings," One of the gem like humanoid figures stated.

"You will have more success gathering the eggs in my black sack you oddly shaped motherfuck*rs," E.E yelled out while raising a middle finger.

"...I don't know what that means..."

"We're not giving you the eggs. Leave now and save yourselves the trouble of needing medical care," Gustav stated.

At this point, the oppositions were clear on the fact that peaceful negotiations or threats wouldn't work.

"Get them!"

"Hyaaaaahh!"

The oppositions charged forward with some immediately channeling attacks in the next instant.

Only a little over a day was left till the Viondur Egg challenge would come to an end. Gustav wanted to make sure they had gathered enough to stay in the first spot so he decided to make the group engage in the incoming battle instead of asking E.E to open a vortex to another location.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

The sound of powerful collisions soon rang out as the group of earthlings face the other groups simultaneously.

Gustav immediately went for one of the strongest amongst the opposition up ahead.

The red quill like outfits, the group in the middle were clad in, had turned into six pair of wings with bottle shaped white bodies in between.

With a swing of one of their wings, red sharp energy would cut across the air, splitting the ground open ahead.

Fwwhooosshh~

[Hover Has Been Activated]

Gustav's swerved sideways across the air, escaping the wing slashes as he arrived before the first Threandethran.

The captain of the Threandethrans spun repeatedly across the air, sending out multiple of the massive quills on his body like giant blades.

Clang! Clang! Clang! Clang!

Gustav waved his hands across the air multiple times, slapping the quills that shot in his direction before they could make contact with him.

All that could be seen from one angle was afterimages of his hands moving way faster than the normal eye could see.

"Kiaaarrh!"

"Arrrrghh!"

Screams reverberated across the vicinity as some of the massive quills Gustav slapped away slammed into the other Threandethrans and onto the ground, creating even more splits.

Fwwwiiiiih~

Gustav sped forward at incredible speed and caught the head of the captain of the Threandethrans before swooping downwards.

"Thiiissttt!" The captain hissed as he found himself unable to fight against Gustav's strength upon their descent.

Boooooomm!

Gustav slammed him into the ground heavily, causing the ground to cave in as shockwaves blasted across the vicinity.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

Multiple more Threandethrans were sent flying by the blast of the residual energy. Gustav wasted no time in charging forward once more, picking a new opposition to deal with.

On the other side, Aildris opened his eyes causing the world around him to lose color. His calm demeanour as he made powerful strides across the vicinity struck a fear of the unknown within the hearts of the oppositions before him.

The gem like humanoid figures emitted bright light from their beings but due to Aildris absorbing color from the surroundings, everything seemed to be black and white.

Thooooohmmm~

Firing black and white beams from their stone like face, Aildris tanked the attacks with his palm, causing him to occasionally slide backwards as mist erupted from his hands.

"How is the earthling doing this?"

The GXqur were surprised that their attacks were barely having any effect on him. It was like they had been completely weakened.

"You can have them back in high definition," Aildris said as he slightly raised his palm which was emitting a green glow.

He turned his palm towards them and out came the beams they had fired at him but this time with color.

Wwwiiihhh~ Booomm!

"Arrrghhh!"

The participants yelled in terror as the green pillar of light slammed into them with the effectiveness increased. The icy mountain behind them instantly spilt open and a lot of them lost body parts from the attack.

Aldris pressed forward unrelenting, as there were still quite the number of them.

E.E and Endric who were positioned on the right, dealt with the phantom like participants together. Endric had used his telekinesis to cause the ground covering a particular radius to float in mid air.

Their battle was taking place in the sky as multiple projectiles shot at Endric while E.E made use of his vortexes to send the projectiles to the rest of the oppositions on the battle field.

Elevora and Sheila had gone ahead of the rest to take care of the other groups arriving. Unfortunately, Elevora couldn't do anything but watch as Sheila took them down at a very quick pace.

The air cracked like glass as Sheila unleashed her power, causing the approaching opponents to question their vision and sense of perception.

With a swing of her hand, multiple participants would have their limbs turning to wood and their sensory organs shifting places across their bodies.

Elevora was in awe but this was to be expected since besides Gustav, Sheila seemed to be the strongest especially since her bloodline rank was the highest as well.

From the surface it seemed like Elevora and Aildris were third in terms of strength but Endric happened to surpass them. The group just wasn't aware yet.

Wong took care of some of the participants that had sustained heavy injury or passed out. Gustav had instructed him to take them somewhere else due to his plans.

Yonda lunged forward stabbing his finger into the air as a new group of participants arrived.

Thrrriooooohnnnn!

A pillar of energy blasted into the sky, knocking some milky glowing one foot tall creatures to the ground.

The planet groups that had come to attack the earth participants were around ten in number, making it over a hundred individual opponents.

Gustav's perception had spread across the entire vicinity so he could tell that they were all arriving from a particular direction which he found strange.

There were still more incoming as they dealt with the ones here. These planets were not weak but compared to Earth standing, they were considerably less powerful so Gustav and the others had no difficulty battling multiple of them at the same time.

'We're leaving,' Gustav instructed.

'Wait why?' Fildhor who was having much fun dealing with the opponents questioned.

'E.E make a vortex now and send us sixteen hundred miles to the south,' Gustav instructed.

"Hyaaahhhh!" More of the participants from different planets were still charging with intensity but Gustav had made his decision.

Trrrrroooiinnnn~

E.E conjured up a portal and Wong proceeded to speed in and out multiple times while carrying unknown participants.

The others headed in quickly while Endric made use of telekinesis to string a couple of unconscious bodies along with him.

"Don't let them get away!"

A participant behind conjured a massive white chaotic ball which shot forward with speed.

However, before it could meet its target, the vortex closed up and vanished completely.

The ground instantly caved in upon the impact of the projectile, leaving yet another hole in the area. This place that had turned into a battlefield was completely wrecked.

Even after Gustav and the others had left, there were still more participants from other planets arriving here to partake in the assault.

"Why did we leave? We were winning," Yonda complained the instant they arrived before the entry point of a frosted cave.

"We can't fight them all," Gustav replied.

"What do you mean? We were kicking their ass up there," Yonda stated with a grumpy look.

"And how many more do you think you can fight before you wear out? Before stronger groups arrive? Do you think you can fight an entirety of two thousand planetary group each with twenty participants?" Gustav threw out consecutive questions at Yonda, causing him to keep quiet.

"Why would we have to fight that many though? They can't all find us," Fildhor questioned.

"They actually can. It is not a coincidence that this many know of our location. I believe Gustav figured out that there's something fishy going on," Falco responded.

"Since they knew of our location initially, we can be assured that they will figure this one out as well. However, before they do, we could find out how they came to know of our location in the first place," Gustav voiced while turning to stare at the twelve different species laying on the ground unconscious by the side.

Some of them were missing limbs and oozing different blood colors but Gustav was unbothered.

[Mental Manipulation Has Been Activated]

"Wake up!"

Chapter 1213 The Difficult Part Is Finding Them

[Mental Manipulation Has Been Activated]

"Wake up!"

Dddiihhhhnnnnn!

Gustav's voice rang in their minds heavily and repeatedly. It was like a hammer continuously colliding with a nail with the sound amplified by over a thousand times.

"Aaahhhh!"

The bunch began screaming as some of them held they held on their heads in agony while wriggling uncontrollably.

"You lots are going to tell me how you found us," Gustav voiced with an intimidating tone.

"How could they have something like that? Is that even allowed?" Wong questioned with a look of surprise.

"Well, it isn't against the rules. Its just like how I have SJ here," Gustav replied as the Sacred Jewel appeared beside him.

The bunch they had abducted confess that a species known as the Ivdhar possessed an item that displayed the location of people they had bumped into irregardless of place and time.

This was how they had located earth candidates over and over again. What the Ivdhar group did was gather as many participants as they could find and convince them to join in the ambushing earth.

"Now we can be sure that they will definitely find us again," Matilda said with a disturbed tone.

"How do they expect to gain from this? They haven't even attacked us directly?" Glade questioned.

"Their plan is most likely to weaken us using the forces of other participants and then swoop in when we're out of energy. That way they will barely be any resistance from us and they get what they want," Falco analysed.

"We just have to destroy the item and then we'll be fine for the next 24hrs. The likelihood of encountering any opposing participants after we destroy it will be very low," Teemee said with a look of contemplation.

"Destroying it is the easy part... the difficult part is finding them," Falco stated.

"Not so difficult if we can get them to tell us," Teemee said while pointing at the participants who were bound on the ground.

"No one really knows their way around the fourth disk. It is way too large. They wouldn't be able to give us directions since they are also unaware of how to get back there," Gustav replied while slightly shaking his head.

"What do we do? How do we find them?" Matilda voiced with a concerning tone.

"I have a plan but we'll need to let them get to us again," Gustav stated.

"Shouldn't be long then," Aildris voiced while turning to stare in a particular direction.

"Don't expend much of your energy during the coming battle," Gustav warned.

"That reminds me, how are they even able to gather so much forces from all across the fourth disk?" Teemee questioned.

Since everyone was aware of how large the fourth disk was, it didn't make sense that so many of them just happen to coincidentally find the Ivdhar group who were offering the location of the planet group with the highest number of Viondur eggs.

"I searched one of their memories and found out that the item also randomly sends out holographic messages all across the fourth disk, giving other participants a directions on where to meet the Ivdhar group.

They meet the Ivdhar group, agree to their ambush plan and when a participant makes contact with the item, a kind of location pull appears in their minds that point them in the exact direction to head in so they can find us," Gustav explained lengthily.

"That is not good," E.E muttered.

This meant other stronger groups, closer in proximity could definitely get the holographic messages soon and also decide to join in the ambush.

"That is why we have to destroy it as soon as possible," Glade voiced.

"They're here," Gustav suddenly announced while leaping into the air.

Thooooooooom~

A massive tank shaped platform that happened to be descending from the sky had casted a looming shadow over them in an instant.

However, Gustav's figure had already ascended to meet it.

Booomm!

A loud explosion rang out as waves of energy blasted across the sky. Heavy winds spread in every direction, causing the ground below to quake as the earth participants found their hair swimming in the wind despite standing in place.

Bam!

Gustav landed back on his feet in the next moment, "Go and stick together till I say it's time to leave,"

He announced before, speeding off in a particular direction. The group wasted no time in chasing after him while channelling their bloodline energies as well.

This time the approaching numbers were nearly twice compared to before. Despite the figures, the earth participants unwavering charged in and another battle soon began.

Bang! Bang! Boom!

Gustav swept through a group of seven at very quick pace, punching a hole through the attack of another specie.

'You will do,' Gustav thought as he evaded the swing of the opponent blade that left afterimages.

Fwwhooommm~

Gustav ascended with incredible speed in the next instant.

[God Eyes Has Been Activated]

The moment he activated God Eyes and stared downwards he passed an instruction, 'E.E open up a vortex we're leaving,'

The battle was starting to get intense at this point so everyone was busy dealing with a couple of enemies at the same time. Since Gustav knew it would be difficult for them to just stop with whatever opponents they were facing currently, he swooped down.

"Go now!" Gustav yelled as he descended with immense speed.

[Energy Discharge Has Been Activated]

His entire figure lit up with a red glow as he heavily landed in the midst of the oppositions.

Boooooom!

A red wave of energy detonated across the vicinity from his figure, sending forth intense destruction that spread across a range of thirty thousand feet.

Screams were heard all over the place as the oppositions had been taken by surprise. The ground caved in across multiple areas causing a lot of them to fall in while others got blasted backwards by the powerful force.

A couple of them sustained gracious injuries instantly but a few still managed to tank the attack, receiving a little damage. Nevertheless, this had given the others time to leave as they already disappeared through the vortex E.E had created.

Fwwwwoosshhhh~

Gustav turned around and sped away very quickly, vanishing through the vortex E.E had left open.

The vortex closed up in the next moment and Gustav stared at the others who were looking at him like he had just done something crazy.

Up front a long divide had been left on the icy ground which happened to be from the residual energy of Gustav's blast. It had followed them in through E.E's vortex.

"Man you could have charred someone with that and they'd end up becoming difficult to locate during night-time like me," E.E gestured at his black face.

"It's a good thing no one stood in front of the vortex after coming in," Aildris chuckled and everyone began choking with laughter after a little while.

"Give us a warning next time man," E.E said while tapping Gustav shoulder.

"I kinda did but anyways I will be able to locate the item in a few. I just need one of them to head back to where the Ivdhar are," Gustav said while his eyes emitted a scarlet and green glow.

"You mean the dudes you just turned to tar?" E.E asked with a look of concern.

"I weakened the effect close to me so they'll be fine," Gustav replied.

Just as he said, the participants closer to him were barely affected. The energy discharge most just grew more powerful the further it spread.

"What do we do now?" Fildhor questioned.

"We wait," Gustav responded with a calm tone.

#####

"Hyaaahh!"

"Slaughter them all!"

"To hell with the vermins!"

In the dimension in between the fourth and fifth disk a battle seemed to be ongoing as thousands of beasts chased after a group of ash colored slimy individuals.

It was more of a chase than a battle. The ash colored gooey creatures seemed to be trying to escape due to the immense number of beasts chasing after them.

"How did it turn out like this captain? I thought you said we will be fine this time?" One of the goey creatures who was currently slimming his way across a rough rocky surface voiced with a tone of frustration.

"I don't understand how these creatures are aware of us... we can't get any eggs because of this and the sudden alarm that goes off when we get close to the eggs," Th captain's voice sounded more frustrated as they scurried away.

The Diaporonians happened to be the ones getting chased currently. It turned out that the advice Gustav had given the chief of the Zhergs was to use the Diaporonians as scape goats for the Viondur eggs that had been taken from here so far.

The chief of the Zhergs had gathered creatures together from all over, telling them about the beings that had been stealing their eggs.

Chapter 1214 Acquiring The Mirror

The chief of the Zhergs had gathered creatures together from all over, telling them about the beings that had been stealing their eggs.

The ones who already had their territories plundered were even more enraged and wasted no time in joining the Chief of the Zhergs course to eradicate the culprits the instant he proposed it.

The others didn't want their eggs to be stolen so they joined the course as well and now there were over fifty thousand creatures gunning for the Diaporonians. They had also received the blame for the Eggs Gustav and the others had taken.

Despite this, Gustav did something that gave off a loud warning the moment the Diaporonians were in close proximity with a Viondur Eggs. They would have successfully acquired a couple if it wasn't for this alarm.

Whenever it went off, thousands upon thousands of the beasts would be on the Diaporonians tail again.

Things had gone exactly according to Gustav's plan so he didn't need to bother himself about this place anymore. He only needed to be worried about the surface now.

#####

[Life Signs Tracking Has Been Activated]

"Found them," Gustav voiced as he turned to stare southeast.

"The item?" Aildris questioned.

"I am staring at it right now and its staring back at me as well," Gustav's response caused everyone faces to lit up with expressions of confoundment.

"What do you mean?" Ria asked.

"They know where we are," Gustav stated.

At the moment Gustav sight displayed what looked like a large and smooth reflective surface. On this reflective surface he could see himself like he was standing right in front of a mirror while his teammates surrounded him.

Gustav was no doubt staring at the item that equipped the Ivdhars with the ability to locate them and he was looking through the body of one of the participants whose life sign he had saved earlier.

"Does that mean they already found us?" E.E questioned.

"I can see everyone of us through the eye of the item so yes they have found us but none have gotten to us yet as that will still take some time," Gustav responded.

"But its all good since i know their exact location right now," Gustav continued to stare southeast.

"E.E open a vortex... nine hundred and thirty seven miles, four thousand, two hundred and sixty nine point three feet, thirty degrees to left..." Gustav voiced out lengthily, calculating the precise distance between them and the location of the item with the Ivdhar group along with the others.

"Hold on," E.E stood right beside Gustav with his eyes closed as he stretched out both his hands.

In the next few moments, he opened his eyes which were gleaming with a bright Violet colored and made a swirling motion with both his hands.

Zzzzzhioiiionnn~

A large vortex opened up in front of them in the next instant. E.E and Gustav didn't need to utter a word before the others understood where it led.

"We're leaving the instant it is destroyed. There will be no need to engage in any long battles," Gustav instructed as he stepped through the voetex.

His major reason for pointing this out was mostly due to the disgruntled in the group that felt like they could take on the entire world.

"Uh what is that?"

Within an area where a high number of group gathered before what looked like a thin layer of triangular glass frame, a violet swirling massive appeared behind them.

"Is that a feature of the heaven gaze mirror?" Some of them wondered out loud as they stared at it.

The group who had blueish hair like wrappers surrounding their body which extended from their scalp, had looks of confusion as they stared ahead.

On the surface of the thin layer of glass was a footage that displayed a group of people walking through the exact Violet swirling mass that had appeared here.

"No that isn't..." One of them was about stating when a purplish beam blasted forth from the vortex.

BANG!

It slammed heavily onto the thin layer of glass which in turn got forcefully yanked into the air.

"Protect the heaven gaze mirror!" One of them yelled as they quickly sent their hair like wrappers into the air to catch the mirror.

Fwwwwhooomm~

The first figure that came speeding out of the violet colored swirling mass, appeared right above the mirror in the next instant.

Bang!

The familiar figure feet was laced with milky glowing light as he swung one of them heavily, sending the mirror flying further away as a crack finally appeared on its surface.

Krrrrryychhh!

"Stop him!"

Some of them yelled loudly as they leapt into the air instantly.

The others behind had also followed suit immediately, appearing as soon as the oppositions leapt into the air. The inevitable clash occurred as the rest of the earth participants faced the groups currently gathered around.

Gustav followed the mirror with more than twenty different participants on his tail, throwing multiple powerful attacks at him.

However, Gustav still outmatched them in speed especially since he had taken them by surprise.

With his right fist coated in milky glow, he swung it forward powerfully as he arrived before the mirror once more.

A piece of hair like fabric extended from below at the same instant, faintly wrapping around the mirror while his fist made contact.

Boooooom!

The mirror was only wrapped halfway before the fist hit but even at that, the mirror only developed a few more cracks as the hair like fabric disintegrated upon the fist collision while mirror repeatedly spiralled across the air from the impact.

[Atomic Blade Has Been Activated]

'That thing is way more sturdy than it looks,' Gustav internally grumbled as a six feet long atomic blade appeared in his grasp.

The mirror had a very thin layer which was like that of a thread if not even thinner. Yet the multiple attacks they had landed on it, had failed to destroy it.

It had only gotten a little damaged but was still far from being completely destroyed. Gustav didn't put it into consideration that something like this would be so sturdy or he would have used more force from the start.

Thoowwwsshhhh~

Gustav increased his flight speed as wings sprouted out of his back. He stretched his arm sideways as he sped forward, ready to deliver a powerful strike on the mirror with the atomic blade.

Down below, one of the creatures who had a greenish hair like fabric wrapped around their body lunged forward.

Thrrrrrihhhhh~

The hair like fabric surrounding their figure extended forward and increased in length crazily before stabbing into the ground ahead.

Gustav was close to making contact with the mirror when a greenish wall of hair shot out from the ground ahead, rising so high it blocked the path of the mirror spiralling in mid air.

Fwwwheiiii~

The mirror rolled into it and got wrapped up completely by the wall of hair that had shot into the sky from below.

Gustav's eyes squinted as he swung the blade sideways mightily.

Thrrraahhhh!

A massive milky colored arc sliced forward with intensely, cleaving the entire wall of dense green hair into two halves.

However, the mirror happened to be nowhere to be found as the rest of the hair descended into the ground.

Multiple participants chasing from behind were catching up to Gustav at this point since he had suddenly paused due to the current situation.

He spotted the Ivdhar participant responsible for hijacking the mirror before he could destroy it, far below. The participant was speeding away with the mirror caught between his greenish hair like fabric.

The participants that numbered in the thirties chasing after him would get to him before he could even manage to give chase so the situation looked impossible.

"Unfortunately, that's not happening on my watch," Gustav stated as he descended with speed.

"SJ," Gustav muttered as he landed atop an icy mountain.

Zzhiinnn~

"Bring it to me," He instructed the moment SJ appeared before him.

"Hyaaahhh!"

"Get him!"

The participants chasing after him were right above at the moment and had caught up to him while the Ivdhar participant was getting away with the mirror.

All of a sudden the Sacred Jewel emitted a profound glow that caused everything in the environment to undergo an instant change of displacement.

Zzhiiiiinnnn~

The Ivdhar participant who was escaping in the opposite direction suddenly felt the landscape around him change and found himself standing before Gustav.

"Thank you," A smile appeared on Gustav's face as he yanked the mirror out of the participant hair like fabric that was holding it up.

"Don..." Before the participant could utter another word, Gustav palm slammed into his body, sending him hurling across the air.

Bang!

As for the participants that had caught up to Gustav, they found themselves attacking the ground in another location. This occurrence completely shocked them as they realised they were thousands of feet away from Gustav's position.

Chapter 1215 A Day Of Peace

This occurrence completely shocked them as they realised they were thousands of feet away from Gustav's position.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

"Shatter!" Gustav stated as he held onto seventeen feet wide triangular glass which was thinner than a thread.

Swinging one of his fist forward once more with intensity, Gustav drilled a hole through the glass, causing a powerful shockwave to rock the vicinity.

Boooom! Krrrycchhhhhh!

'Finally,' More cracks spread across the glass from the point where his fist had gone through.

As Gustav pulled his arm out, he could see that his entire fist was covered in blood despite the milky glow that initially coated it.

As there was no time to waste since the groups here were very high in number, Gustav shattered the mirror even more, snapping it into multiple pieces.

After all of this was done he told E.E to open a vortex that would get them out of there quickly.

Fwwhiir~

He lifted into the sky quickly, dodging multiple projectiles from the attacks of the groups around him who remained unrelenting in getting him.

"You may have destroyed the mirror but you delivered yourself directly into our grasp without much stress,"

"We shall not let you leave without taking the Viondur eggs off your hands,"

Two voices could be heard from the multiple participants chasing after Gustav.

At that same instant, they launched a joint attack, causing two massive palms to descend from the sky.

The greyish hands were so massive that they blotted out the sky and caused the winds to howl crazily.

'Everyone leave right away,' Gustav said through the mind link, to the rest who were still fending off the opponents around instead of leaving through the vortex.

Gustav was still thousands of feet away from the position of the vortex despite giving this instruction and it looked like he was in a pinch as both palms descended.

The descent of the palms brought forth an immense pressure that had carved out hand prints across a radius spanning for thousands of feet, affecting even the vortex that was quite a distance away.

"Get away quick!"

"Flee!"

Even the oppositions were trying to flee the area of concentration as they were also affected but the pressure the palms emitted had bound some of them in place.

Gustav wings struggled against the strong winds trying to push him to the ground as they spread out wider before sweeping backwards with intensity.

Swwwweeeeiiiiihhhh~

Gustav's body propelled forward swiftly, scrapping a little across the surface of the descending palms as he arrived before the vortex.

Pwwwheiiii!

The instant he phased through the vortex the massive palms collided with the ground, causing the surroundings to tremble greatly as a high number of participants got swept across the vicinity like sheets of paper.

"Arrrgghh!"

Cries rang out as the vortex dissappeared a moment later.

Fwwwheii~

Winds spread across the environment in their location as some of the residual energy from the palms swept into the vortex before it closed up.

Fortunately, everyone seemed to be okay and already went in before Gustav did.

"Well, we should have some peace and quiet before the challenge ends now," Teemee voiced with a sigh of relief.

"Don't jinx it," E.E said before sitting on the ground.

"It should end in another one day so if we stay out of their way it should be fine," Falco voiced before sitting beside E.E.

"What happened to stealing their eggs if they tried to steal ours," Yonda stated with a look of dissatisfaction.

"I would have actually done that if you guys weren't here," Gustav responded.

"Are you insinuating that we're weighing you down?" Yonda voiced with a triggered expression as he turned to face Gustav.

"Yes, sometimes. I cannot go all out because i have to consider the rest of you getting hit by an attack from me," Gustav replied with a straight face.

"Wha- what? Oh my God did you guys hear that? This guy really sees us as nuisances," Yonda said while looking around with an expression of dismay.

"Because teamwork is important, I chose what is ths best for the group to make sure there are no drawbacks," Gustav voiced once more.

"And he just keeps going! How are you guys okay with being called baggages? I am not baggage!" Yonda said while sticking his finger out before Gustav.

"He's more concerned with everyone remaining in one piece so leave it be," Teemee voiced from the side.

"There are attacks some of us cannot unleash when our comrades are in the vicinity in fear of harming them as well so we tend to hold back. That's normal in a team and Gustav just happens to have many of those sorts of attacks," Aildris stated as well.

Gustav ignored Yonda tantrums as he already felt this was normal. When the group was around him, he would make the best decision that would keep everyone safe. If he was alone, he could throw caution out the window and acted as he pleased.

This was one of the reasons Gustav wasn't a fan of groups and preferred solo action in the past. However, he had now come to understand how having a group was beneficial due to multiple situations.

Whenever it was time to act alone he would and when the time came to act solo, he would do the needful as well. The phrase 'There is a time for everything' had borne meaning to him.

"E.E take us further from here," Gustav instructed.

He wanted to make sure they would remain untraceable by the others who were trying to get them.

After traveling through vortexes a couple of times, the group finally settled beside a body of what looked like a frozen waterfall.

He created an iro silk barrier that shielded the entire group and they proceeded to wait as that was the best course of action right now.

#####

- "My goodness, how are they able to do such?"

- "This is bad, they need to stay away from the Phixiq group,"

- "They eggs will be stolen before they can realise it, if they cross paths,

- "We can only hope they don't cross paths,"

In earth's spectating area, some of the spectators seemed to be worried about a particular group being displayed on one of the floating screens.

It turned out that this alien group were capable of stealing eggs from other groups without having to engage them in a physical brawl.

Other planets spectating areas had worried expressions as well since some of them had witnessed the same thing. Some of their candidates were already victims of the Phixiq group.

The group were scouring the fourth disk to the best of their abilities so as to cross path with any group they could find and obtain their egg.

The fourth disk was still riddled with battles at multiple locations due to others trying to acquire eggs from other groups before time ran out. Whenever the Phixiq group came close to such places, they would acquire the eggs of everyone there if the groups battling were in possession of eggs.

They didn't need to engage in the battle and would leave as quickly as they arrived.

Earth spectators were hoping that this group would not come into contact with earth's participants before the challenge ended.

While this had a very low chance of happening, they were still worried that this group would end up acquiring more than the current number of eggs earth participants had gathered so far.

#####

Boom! Boom! Boom!

Explosions blasted all across the vicinity as a figure leapt from blade to blade, dodging their descent.

Thwwiiihhh! Thhhiiiisshhhh~

Thousands of massive thirty feet long blades were slicing across the air at very quick pace, spreading a layer of mist as they sizzled intensely.

Upon contact with his feet, the massive blades shooting forward at the figure would combust, sending more blasts across the vicinity.

As flames spread, consuming the figure within, the creatures chasing from behind had looks of relief only for their faces to lit up in disbelief again.

Fwwwiiii~

The figure has leapt out of the flames unscatched as a milky glow covered his entirety.

"Maybe I should have stayed in," Gustav muttered as the two Viondur eggs in his grasp dissapeared into his storage device.

(Six Hours Ago)

"Around seven hours should be left before the challenge ends," Gustav voiced within the covering of the iro silk barrier.

"Yeah we're really close. It will come to an end before we know it," Matilda voiced in response.

"I'm going out to steal eggs," Gustav stated while standing to his feet.

"What?" Teemee voiced with a tone of confusion.

"We're okay with this many. I don't see the need to acquire more," Falco voiced as well.

"I feel uneasy. You guys stay in here, it would be better if I go alone," Gustav voiced while stepping forward.

"Let's exchange before I leave," Gustav said while handing a blueish button to Aildris.

Aildris paused for a bit before nodding and handing Gustav a similar looking blueish button.

Chapter 1216 The Eggs Are Gone

Aildris paused for a bit before nodding and handing Gustav a similar looking blueish button.

"Alright, you guys stay here. I'm off,"

Thrrrrihhh!

A part of the Iro silk opened up and Gustav sped out before anyone could retort again. The iro silk opening closed back immediately, leaving the others within.

"Well, it hasn't been fruitless so far so it's all good," Gustav muttered as he escaped another cloud of explosion.

The group behind remained unrelenting as they gave chase but Gustav was in no mood to stick around.

[Lightning Blitz Has Been Activated]

He disappeared out of view after turning into a lightning bolt, leaving the group behind cursing their luck.

Gustav had been on this for over six hours and he was aware that only around an hour was left before the challenge would come to an end.

[God Eyes Has Been Activated]

Gustav made use of life signs Tracking to check on the others he had left behind, within the iro silk barrier.

After confirming that they were okay, he decided to head back. Just as he was about to leave, Gustav's perception picked up on a battle occurring at the far end of his perception.

His perception which covered thousands of miles only picked this up very close to the edge, which meant he would have to travel over a thousand miles to arrive there.

He felt it wasn't worth it and decided to leave anyways. However, at this moment, something unanticipated occurred.

Gustav felt a strange pull and the next thing he knew, the Viondur Eggs he had acquired appeared from his storage device and vanished.

"What the hell?" Gustav voiced with a look of confusion as he tapped on his storage button multiple times.

All the items within had been completely emptied.

"The eggs are gone..." Gustav's eyes turned listless.

(Minutes earlier)

"The magnetic space bar is picking up on another nearby,"

Within a group of thirteen a creature with white striped mechanical looking body, voiced out.

"Is that Gustav Crimson?" One of them whose eyes were white and completely mirror like said with a surprised tone.

-"The captain of earth? We've hit the jackpot,"

-"The magnetic space bar is scrambling with the frequency of his spatial pocket now,"

These mechanical looking creatures seemed to have multiple holographic screens floating around them along with rays of light shooting out of their eyes. It looked like they were a race mixed with technological parts as well as that of living tissue.

The black piece of liquid metal floating in their midst seemed to be the magnetic space bar that they were referring to.

This were the Phixiq group who had been stealing eggs since. So long as anyone was within a particular proximity from them, they could acquire the items in their spatial storage.

Every single IYSOP participant had a spatial storage place where they kept everything they possessed. The Phixiq group being capable of this was practically a cheat as no one would expect such.

- "We should have his eggs in 3... 2... 1... now," One of them voiced with a tone of enthusiasm as a small glow coated the vicinity.

Thiiiiinnngghhhh~

Four Viondur eggs appeared around the group after a couple of moments and their mechanical faces had hints of dissatisfaction.

- "Just four? Wasn't earth having around nineteen eggs a week ago?"

- "This doesn't make any sense. They should have acquired more in the last week,"

- "At least he still gave us more than the other groups we've hijacked,"

They voiced out their confusions as they took possession of the four eggs that appeared.

"We need to leave here soon to avoid contact with any group," Their captain voiced.

(Present Time)

"It's all gone?" Gustav voiced with a tone of utter confusion.

("Obviously someone is responsible for this,") The system voiced in his mind.

"Yeah but then i don't sense anyone remotely closeby except where the battle is ongoing and a little distance from there as well which is expected since there are multiple groups involved," Gustav replied.

("There's your answer,") The system voiced.

"That is too far away for there such an occurrence. There is no way anyone would manage to steal the contents of a spatial storage device from such a distance, not to mention also telporting it as well," Gustav stated with a logical tone.

("Well, you don't sense anyone else around so...")

[God Eyes Has Been Activated]

Gustav leapt into the air as wings sprouted out of his back in the process. His vision turned completely reddish as he zoomed in to the far ends of where his perception reached, crossing hundreds of miles.

"The Phixiq group..." Gustav's screeched as he muttered.

"Over six hours of work... y'all think you can successfully render it useless," Gustav's eyes gleamed with intensity as he watched the eggs they had stolen phase into a floating black liquid metal.

("That thing might be responsible...") Before the system could complete its statement, Gustav butted in.

"It is. I have analysed its components and confirmed that the black item is indeed responsible for this," Gustav voiced while multiple glowing readings were displayed before him.

"But it is running out of power very quickly, it won't last for more than a couple more minutes," This made Gustav realise that if he was further from here for a few more minutes, his six hours of robbery wouldn't be wasted.

'On the bright side, I exchanged storage devices with Aildris. Things could have gone way worse if I hadn't,' Gustav recalled making the decision to leave the iro silk with Aildris empty storage button.

'Still, I won't let things slide,' Gustav decided as he deactivated God Eyes.

[Lightning Blitz Has Been Activated]

[Lightning Blitz Has Been Activated]

Thrrraazzzzhhh!

After turning into a lightning bolt five times and streaking across a distance of over eight hundred miles in just a few moments, Lightning Blitz went into cooldown mode.

Gustav was still over six hundred miles away from their location and they were currently on the move, but he had decided not to let this situation be bygones.

[Ultimate Combination Has Been Activated]

"We're being chased," One of the Phixiq group members voiced as the group made their way across a frozen ridge.

"It is earth's captain," The team member with mirror like white eyes voiced.

"He will never get to us in time," Phixiq group captain voiced as numerical figures appeared in his line of sight.

Thhiiiihhzzzhhhh!

"THE VIONDUR EGG CHALLENGE HAS OFFICIALLY COME TO A FINISH!"

A loud announcement reverberated across the fourth disk as well as other disks on Planet Ozious.

On the ninth disk, the sound of tense dialogues could be heard from all over.

Chatter! Chatter! Chatter!

-"Who do you think won?"

-"My money is with the Phixiq group. They may not have acquired any eggs during the first two to three weeks but their act at the last few days puts them at the top,"

- "I don't think earth will remain in the top spot. That group acquired too many eggs,"

"The Draconets acquired many as well from weaker planets before time ran out,"

- "Honestly I don't believe Earth participants would even be top three. After the second week they just hid in one place till the challenge ended,"

- "The last minute battle Gustav Crimson had with the Phixiq though... it looked like something happened before time was up,"

Speculations about who would win could be heard all across the ninth disk and now earth was not even considered to be the top spot anymore based on the last events that occurred on the fourth disk.

Some of the spectators had witnessed a battle going down between Gustav and the Phixiq group who were speculated to be the first position just before time ran out.

Zing! Zing! Zing! Zing! Zing!

Currently IYSOP participants were appearing on the podium in the midst of the arena in tens. They were all getting teleported out of the fourth disk and as they arrived, they seemed to have brought an air of coldness with them.

"Finally we're back here where the temperature is fairly normal," E.E voiced with a sigh of relief as he stood side by side with the others.

Every group that had been battling before the challenge ended, remained in place despite exuding an air of animosity. They couldn't attack each other anymore now that the challenge had ended or it would lead to disqualification

"Where have you been Gus?" Teemee questioned the moment Gustav appeared.

There were cuts on his face and his entire right arm happened to be charred. However, right before their very eyes Gustav happened to be regenerating very quickly.

Underneath his armpit area were two Viondur Eggs which he held with a slight look of dissatisfaction despite being unbothered about his injuries.

"I ran into some trouble,"

Chapter 1217 Viondur Egg Challenge Results

Underneath his armpit area were two Viondur Eggs which he held with a slight look of dissatisfaction despite being unbothered about his injuries.

"I ran into some trouble," Gustav voiced before turning to face Aildris.

Aldris nodded and handed the storage button in his possession to Gustav. As Gustav made use of Gravitational Manipulation, the eggs in his grasp floated while he passed Aldris storage button back to him as well.

Zing! Zing!

The two Viondur Eggs vanished from sight at the same moment all of Gustav's burns and cuts healed up completely.

His skin returned to its usual rosy color along with his dirty blonde hair exuding an enchanting allure.

"All captains are required to place the eggs they have acquired into any of the Flaming Cauldrons for proper calculation,"

Handler One's voice reverberated across the entire vicinity as flaming cauldrons began rising from the ground at the corners of the arena.

Each cauldron was as large as a full grown human so there wouldn't be any issues with putting the Viondur Eggs in. The captains began heading to the cauldrons to place their eggs in.

At the moment, the screens floating above displayed the scoreboards without scores. Only the planet names were visible.

Each time a captain placed a Viondur egg in one of the cauldrons, scores would appear before their planet name on the screens and their position would move up.

In a couple of minutes about three hundred captains had emptied the contents of their storage into the cauldron and the calculation of scores was still ongoing.

Some captains didn't move from their standing point since a lot of planets didn't manage to acquire a single Viondur Egg at the end of the challenge.

Besides this, some planet groups also lost their eggs to the Phixiq participants before the end of the Viondur Challenge. Their animosity was currently fueled as they glared in the direction of the Phixiq captain who was walking over to one of the cauldrons.

It almost seemed like the captains who were suspected of holding the highest number of Viondur Eggs by the participants finally decided to move at this point.

As Gustav stepped forward with his storage button in hand, so did Ozious, Oxlrkik, Xionsi, Draconets and a couple other captains as well.

Captain Strum glared at Gustav from the corner of his eyes as the animosity in the air grew higher at this point. Gustav's face remained expressionless as he stepped forward, ignoring the stares from everyone.

Bolstron the captain of the Phixiq planet happened to be structured like a mechanical red upper humanoid body and the lower body of an arachnid like creature with thirty two legs.

The number of participants glaring at him in animosity happened to be way higher than others but the mechanical like creature didn't seem to care as a black metal liquid appeared before him.

Fwwhwiiii~

Viondur Eggs began to phase out of this floating black liquid metal which he placed in the flaming cauldron one after the other.

-"That bastard!"

-"They robbed you too?"

-"My group is a victim as well and we only acquired two eggs,"

-"I'll make sure he pays in the next challenge,"

Some of the participants seemed to be triggered as they stared at the number of eggs that kept phasing out of the black liquid metal. Seeing so many of the eggs, the other captains who had placed their eggs in a cauldron already lost all flicker of hope they initially had.

"Hmph, We may lose this one but our great planet will remain on top," Captain Strum scoffed as he placed the last egg from his storage into the egg.

Staring up at the scoreboard, his eyes widened a little as he spotted the current situation.

1. Planet Phixiq - 30 Viondur Eggs > 12,000 points
2. Planet Diaporonian - 22 Viondur Eggs > 8800 points
3. Planet Draconet - 21 Viondur Eggs > 8400 points
4. Planet Ozious - 20 Viondur Eggs > 8000 points
5. Planet Hixto - 17 Viondur Eggs > 6800 points
6. Planet Diov - 17 Viondur Eggs > 6800 points
7. Planet Tronvida - 15 Viondur Eggs > 6000 points

8. Planet Earth - 15 Viondur Eggs > 6000 points

...

This scoreboard was still counting since the captains were still inputting their eggs which was why Captain Strum was shocked when he noticed a considerably weaker planet was currently first position.

He couldn't fathom how this was possible especially since he had dropped every egg in his position into the cauldron already.

While he didn't expect to have the first spot anymore due to his suspicions about earth after the scoreboard was displayed at the ending of the second week.

They had only managed to acquire four more eggs than what Earth acquired at the end of the second week when the challenge finally ended so he wasn't very optimistic.

"Planet Phixiq..." He growled while turning to stare in the direction of their captain.

Captain Bolstron still happened to not have finished dropping all the eggs in his possession into the cauldron.

The spectators were going bonkers at this point as everyone seemed to be hinged on the fact that Planet Phixiq had won.

After a few more seconds the rankings on the scoreboard had undergone change once more.

1. Planet Phixiq - 41 Viondur Eggs > 16,400 points
2. Planet Earth - 40 Viondur Eggs > 16,000 points
3. Planet Diaporonian - 22 Viondur Eggs > 8800 points
4. Planet Draconet - 21 Viondur Eggs > 8400 points
5. Planet Ozious - 20 Viondur Eggs > 8000 points

6. Planet Hixto - 17 Viondur Eggs > 6800 points

7. Planet Diov - 17 Viondur Eggs > 6800 points

8. Planet Tronvida - 15 Viondur Eggs > 6000 points

9. Planet Oxlrk 15 Viondur Eggs > 6000 points

...

-"Planet Phixiq won..."

-"Earth was came very close. If they had one more egg it would be a draw,"

-"The statistics are unbelievable, how did this happen?"

-"I did not even expect to see the earth in top three... Who knew they gathered this much,"

Chatter! Chatter! Chatter!

The entire place had turned noisier as Captain Bolstron could be seen heading back to where his other teammates were positioned.

'If earth's captain had not taken two back out of the four we stole from him we would have gotten totalled 17,200 points but the current statistics isn't bad either,' He thought as he walked back to his teammates area.

This undoubtedly meant that he had inputted all the eggs in his possession into the flaming Cauldron. However, Gustav still seemed to be standing before the cauldron in front of him unmoving.

The spectators as well as other participants felt that he must have been shocked by the results above as acquiring such a number of eggs would make one believe they had definitely won.

While the environment was extremely noisy, Gustav was in his thoughts.

'I really wanted to experiment on some and see what makes it so important... I guess i can't do that now,' Gustav was internally at loss as he reached for his storage button.

Tap!

He singled out two sphere shaped objects that were emitted in holographic format from his storage button and right before everyone's eyes, an unexpected scenario played out.

Zing~ Zing~

Two multicoloured three feet large eggs appeared before Gustav.

- "What? He had two more?"

- "How in the world does he have more?"

- "This is unbelievable,"

- "Why did he stand there all this time if he still had more?"

The spectators areas lit up in a frenzy once more as this unexpected occurrence took them completely by surprise.

At the position of the handlers, they had a look of relief as they watched Gustav drop these two eggs into the flaming cauldron before him.

Planet Ozious were fifth place currently, yet the handlers seemed to be relieved when Gustav relinquished the last two Viondur Eggs in his possession, putting earth at the top.

If Gustav had noticed them, he would definitely have found this suspicious, however, his mind was currently elsewhere.

'What a loss... oh well,' Gustav decided to stop being bothered about it and turned around at this point.

He had wanted to keep the last two eggs he stole back from the Phixiq group to himself but he eventually had to drop them or earth would have lost.

Chatter! Chatter! Cheer! Cheer!

While there were loud voices of confusion and displeasure all across, the cheers coming from the earth spectators area happened to be very loud as well.

"You sure gave us a scare there Gus,"

"Looks like you were taking your time to cause this type of reaction,"

Everyone began voicing out one after the other upon Gustav's return.

"Yeah I wanted to keep an egg for myself but I guess I'll just have to let things be," Gustav shrugged as earth completely became the centre of attention at this point.

"This isn't possible? How?"

On planet Phixiq area they were plenty shocked as to how they still lost the first place despite how many groups they stole from.

After a couple more minutes went by, the final result of the Viondur Egg challenge was on display for everyone to see.

Chapter 1218 Confrontation

After a couple more minutes went by, the final result of the Viondur Egg challenge was on display for everyone to see.

1. Planet Earth- 42 Viondur Eggs > 16,800 points

2. Planet Phixiq- 41 Viondur Eggs > 16,400 points

3. Planet Diaporonian - 22 Viondur Eggs > 8800 points

4. Planet Draconet - 21 Viondur Eggs > 8400 points

5. Planet Ozious - 20 Viondur Eggs > 8000 points

7. Planet Diov - 17 Viondur Eggs > 6800 points

8. Planet Tronvida - 15 Viondur Eggs > 6000 points

9. Planet Oxlrk - 15 Viondur Eggs > 6000 points

10. Planet Indulus Prime - 14 Viondur Eggs > 5600 points

11. Planet Tribetes - 14 Viondur Eggs > 5600 points

12. Planet Ghundabault - 14 Viondur Eggs > 5600 points

13. Planet Xillion - 13 Viondur Eggs > 5200 points

14. Planet Klaxosape - 11 Viondur Eggs > 4400 points

15. Planet Torin - 11 Viondur Eggs > 4400 points

16. Planet Cirus - 11 Viondur Eggs > 4400 points

17. Planet Osiris - 11 Viondur Eggs > 4400 points

18. Planet Orion - 11 Viondur Eggs > 4400 points

19. Planet Ustanbid - 10 Viondur Eggs > 4000 points

20. Planet VA - 10 Viondur Eggs > 4000 points

21. Planet Roidinstack - 10 Viondur Eggs > 4000 points

22. Planet V#B - 9 Viondur Eggs > 3600 points

23. Planet Qivendale - 9 Viondur Eggs > 3600 points

24. Planet T429 - 9 Viondur Eggs > 3600

...

The final results displayed on the scoreboard undoubtedly solidified Earth's place as number one in the Egg Viondur Challenge.

The Handler went on to congratulate the earth's candidates for winning, ignoring loud chatters that reverberated across the vicinity.

It had been a very long three weeks and the Handler went on to announce that there would be about four days of rest before the next major challenge.

During this time frame only sub challenges would be ongoing so the main team from every planetary group could recuperate.

While the Handler gave briefings, Gustav wondered if they were going to mention the other dimension in between the fourth and fifth disk.

He eventually realised they weren't going to mention it, neither were they going to say anything about the Diaporonians who went in with twenty participants and came out with only ten.

The Diaporonians weren't the only group that lost teammates during the Viondur Egg Challenge, however, they were the only group that had purposely sacrificed their teammates.

The other groups had lost teammates in accidents or dangerous situations. No one that lost their life, did so due to another participant.

Gustav figured that since the handlers were not going to say a word about this, then there was a high chance footage within the other dimension on the fourth disk was not displayed. He was right.

The spectators as well as every IYSOP participant besides Earth and the Diaporonians, no one was aware of the other Dimension.

'I wonder why they decided to keep all of it a secret,' Gustav thought.

("Well, I guess its normal for every great planet to have a secret or two... or more than two,") The system responded internally.

'Hmm, so long as they don't put anyone I care about in harmsway, it's fine, I guess,' Gustav felt he had more things to worry about than the intricacies of an alien planet.

He recalled he wouldn't have a moment of rest after IYSOP ended because there was something he instantly had to do. If he could leave IYSOP midway he would since he considered that more important but as the captain, he couldn't just abandon everyone.

Currently Handler One was announcing that they were closing in on the mid phase of IYSOP and it was finally time for the first round of disqualifications.

The main scoreboard appeared on the floating screens above, displaying the points every planet had acquired since the start of the competition.

"The earth has an allocation of twenty thousand extra points after coming first in the Viondur Egg Challenge,"

<< Planet Earth - 55,800 points >>

<< Planet Draconet - 34,400 points >>

<< Planet Ozious - 31,000 points >>>

<< Planet Indulus Prime - 27,600 points >>

<< Planet Tribetes - 27,100 points >>

<< Planet Phixiq - 25,400 points >>

<< Planet Osiris - 24,400 points >>

....

Gustav stared at the main scoreboard and could see that the results had been updated. Earth was initially sixth place overall with a score of nineteen thousand points.

Now with the combination of the points from the eggs gathered along with the bonus from being the first place in the latest challenge, they had given Planet Draconet quite the gap.

Planet Phixiq may have lost the first place in the Viondur Egg Challenge but they gained enough points to climb to sixth place from their initial 542nd position.

The Viondur Egg challenge was said to be the challenge where the highest number of points can be gathered compared to other major challenges and there was no doubt about that right now.

The current scores would make it difficult for others to contend but they still had hope due to the fact that not even 50% of IYSOP challenges had been scaled yet.

"Teams that have acquired lower than five thousand points will now be disqualified," Handler One announced as everyone placed their focus on the bottom parts of the rankings.

There were still close to three thousand participants planets at this point but now that it was time for disqualification, over nine hundred planets didn't make the cut.

At number 1927, planet Vorisha was the last with the 5000 points required. Every other number after had less than five thousand points.

Zing! Zing! Zing! Zing!

Groups began to disappear one after the other from the middle of the arena. This obviously marked the disqualification of weaker and less remarkable planetary groups, leaving the other nearly two thousand planetary groups remaining.

While the number had whittled down by a lot, there were still many groups left.

"I'm guessing the next disqualification round will happen after the next two major challenges," Gustav said out loud.

"Hmm, so long as our points are high, we should be fine right?" Teemee questioned from the side.

"It depends on the what the next requirement is placed upon. This time it is points, but it might be something else next time," Gustav responded with a dismissive tone so as not to make anyone worry.

"I feel like I've been getting really nefarious glares," Glade voiced from the side.

"That's normal. We're first position, remember?" Teemee stated from the side.

"It feels different from that," Glade added with a slightly creased eyebrows.

"You're just overthinking," Falco chimed in.

Everyone felt this was the usual since they had all engaged in battle with a couple of participants who were still here.

Handler One mentioned a few more things before finally dispersing the crowd as he officially announced once more that the Viondur Egg Challenge had ended.

The participants began to make their way out of middle of the arena at this point, when suddenly Gustav's path was blocked by a figure with multiple limbs and star shaped patterns all across his body.

"We have unfinished business," Captain Strum stated as he emitted an outburst of energy.

Wwhooooosshhh~

Blaring winds blasted across the vicinity as dust was stirred up as well.

"Oh?"

The participants in the vicinity instantly moved aside to avoid getting caught in as they spectated. The official spectators in the spectators corners all paused as well.

...

Gustav reappeared before a flaming frosted tree in the next instant. Up ahead he could spot another familiar looking cave.

This was one he already looted so he didn't bother going in. Instead he turned to another direction before heading forward.

"Since these flaming trees that don't get consumed signify checkpoints for areas with caves possessing the same colors of eggs, there's no point in checking the other caves," Gustav was well aware that he would find the same eggs colors he got from this cave earlier which was still in his possession.

He needed other colors so he had to leave this area.

Fwwwwhooommm~

Gustav leapt into the air and dissappeared from sight in the next instant.

#####

"That is exactly why I have come here. The leaders of the alliance need to be warned," Within the seating area of earth's spectators Miss Aimee voiced out.

"Are you sure? For such a claim, proof is needed or no one would be willing to take your word for it," Grand Commander Shion responded.

Chapter 1219 Reunion With An Old Friend

"Oh but then, wouldn't it be delusional to think you could win against an opponent that is clearly more powerful than you are?" Wong had an expression of confusion as he questioned.

"If the disparity in strength is immense then yes, but if not, then there is definitely a chance of winning. Loss or win in a battle cannot be decided by strength alone. Uncertain and unexpected factors can lead to a completely turn of events during a battle," Gustav responded.

"Do you think you can defeat him?" Wong asked.

A smile appeared on Gustav's face after hearing this question, "I guess we'll find out soon enough,"

The group also followed side by side with Gustav as they headed towards their accommodation area.

As the participants witnessing the initial events by the side dispersed, two figure with transparent skin, green eyed and white radish shaped head, glared in the direction of the earth participants leaving.

-"We shall revenge the humiliation they brought upon my brother,"

- "That human must die by our hands,"

They eyes displayed a solemn resolve as they swore.

"Gustav," A loud and cheerful voice rang out the instant they arrived back at their at their accommodation area.

A warm, soft and feminine figure had jumped into Gustav's embrace, enveloping him in an alluring fragrance. Gustav slowly wrapped his hands around the slim waist of the familiar figure that had just hugged him.

"Angy," He muttered while slowly caressing her back while her body meshed onto his.

The tip of her short horns poked his chest area but he was unbothered by that as he held her tightly in his embrace for a couple of moments.

"cough cough we're still here guys," Matilda voiced from the side.

"squeal" Angy quickly seperated from Gustav as a red tinge appeared on her cheeks. She looked up and down shyly while greeting the rest of her teammates.

"Are you alright?" Matilda hugged Angy with a smile.

"Ou? Did you get larger?" Matilda voiced while cupping Angy boobs and softly squishing them.

"Eeeek! Noooo," Angy scurried away like a flustered chicken while Gustav shifted his gaze.

"You had us pretty worried when you passed out," Falco voiced from the side.

"i just used something I wasn't supposed to," Angy replied.

"We're glad you're alright or homeboy here would have gone back to being grumpy and cold," E.E stated from the side as well while pointing at Gustav.

The group laughed while Gustav ignored their taunts, taking his seat at the corner. The group seemed relieved that Angy was back.

She was no doubt a valuable asset to the team as well as someone who was cared about by all. They hoped she would have recovered enough to join the next major challenge.

"You guys won..." Angy was both delighted and slightly low spirited at the same time.

'The group can function well even with my absence. They don't need me,' She thought.

"It was difficult without you," A hand that had reached out to touch her shoulder, brought her out of her reverie.

"We had to put in more than a hundred percent effort due to your absence which is something we can't do all the time. The group is incomplete without you," It was as if Aildris had read her mind as he spoke with a warm smile.

Angy's face lit up as she nodded in response.

"Man i need to take a shower. This is the first time I didn't take a bath in three weeks," E.E had a look of self disgust as he voiced out.

"Make that two," Teemee yelled from the side.

"Make that three," Yonda stated as well.

"Make that four,"

"Make that five,"

"Make that six,"

"Make that seven,"

"I'll just create a hot bath then,"

All the boys soon joined turning to leave for the exit.

"Are you not joining us Gus?" E.E questioned.

"It's a hot bath. No," Gustav replied with a dismissive expression.

"Aw come on man don't be boring,"

"Let's bask in nakedness together,"

Everyone turned to stare at Abestos with a suspicious expression as soon as he said that.

"I mean..." He chuckled wryly.

"You mean bask in dirtiness together. Hard pass," Gustav waved his hand.

Minutes later Gustav sat in the hot bath together with the rest of the boys who were playing around and splashing water all across the place.

"Why did I even agree to this?" He voiced in regret.

"Lighten up!"

In a flash three days had gone by and during this time period, the earth participants had spent their time recuperating and preparing for the next major challenge.

Gustav had allocated the rest of the thirty substitutes to different sub categories to participate in. None of the main teammates took any part in the sub categories in the last three days.

Gustav made sure to pick substitutes suiting for each sub challenge and even though a few of them failed, he wasn't bothered about it.

During this time, unrest had been growing amongst the participants as rumours of the supposed next major challenge spread. There were a couple different thoughts on what it might be but Gustav couldn't believe any of them since the Ozis hadn't announced it themselves.

Gustav was sure that information was getting leaked from somewhere and some alien teams had access to it just as the Diaporonians were aware of the other Dimension before entering the fourth disk.

He knew it couldn't be mere coincidence that they just happened to possess knowledge of rituals and sacrifices that would lead them to the other dimension.

Gustav couldn't mention this to just anyone since he didn't have concrete evidence that someone amongst the board of Handlers was spilling things. However, he did mention it to Miss Aimee.

"It must be a rotten mouse. No planet is void of corruption," Miss Aimee said as they walked through an open market area on the ninth disk.

The traingular structures stacked atop each other with the long rods poking through their middle into the sky above, gave off a spectacular sight.

The golden roads were an even more delightful sight as floating boards flew across the air on the night disk which gave off a slightly similar vibe to earth.

"No doubt but this could harm our chances in the future. If I had never encountered that other dimension by mistake, the Diaporonians would no doubt have won," Gustav responded.

"Hmm I can't go talk to those old geezers since I confronted them only recently. I'll have to investigate on my own," Miss Aimee voiced.

"Wait, who did you confront?" Gustav paused while questioning with a suspicious look.

"Those old geezers... what do they call themselves... council lords I believe," Miss Aimee replied with a ridiculing tone.

"You confronted the council lords? Why?" Gustav questioned once more with a worried tone.

"About the incoming danger. The eye that appeared in the milky way," Miss Aimee responded.

"But we don't know much about that yet," Gustav nearly facepalmed.

"Exactly. If there is a join investigation from the resources powers all across the universe, it would make things faster and ease the burden on your side too," Miss Aimee explained.

"Hmm, true," Gustav agreed.

"Those geezers were annoying. The idiots think I am out of my mind," Miss Aimee voiced with a calm but cold tone.

"I hope you didn't kill anyone?" Gustav stared at her from the side of his eyes with a suspicious look once more.

"Miss Aimee!!!" He yelled her name when she failed to respond.

"I didn't but next time I might not be so nice," She voiced with a straight face.

'I see why they say I took after her,' Gustav sighed in relief as they continued moving about.

Gustav and Miss Aimee went on to tour the eighth disk after their time on the ninth disk. Gustav was still unaware that Miss Aimee's real body had arrived in planet Ozious and was floating in the stars above.

She was currently staring down upon the planet like a guardian angel from space but not a single soul was aware of her presence except for Grand commander Shion who only found out because she chose to tell him.

"Now to find the corrupt mouse responsible for spilling information," Miss Aimee muttered in space as she peered forward.

--

Before the day ended, Gustav happened to meet a familiar individual he hadn't seen in about a year.

"Stark? What are you doing here?" Gustav was pleasantly surprised to see the leader of one of the biggest families on earth right here.

"Did you forget that my family is very rich?" Stark responded sarcastically as his dark braids swam in the wind.

"You're late, I didn't think they'd let anyone join the spectators at this time," Gustav said with a light chuckle.

"Yeah there was a lot going on back home which caused my lateness but let me not bore you with the details," Stark voiced with a strong tone.

Chapter 1220 We Need An Ultimate Killing Attack

"Yeah there was a lot going on back home which caused my lateness but let me not bore you with the details," Stark voiced with a strong tone.

'Something about you him has changed,' Gustav thought.

"How has taking on the responsibility of the family head been treating you?" Gustav questioned.

"Well, it for sure isn't easy but somehow i made it work," Stark had a slight change in expression that Gustav caught for a second before it went away.

"You've gotten way stronger since the last time I saw you," Stark voiced with a tone of astonishment.

"So have you... you're an Alpha now?" Gustav said with a surprised expression as he finally sensed Stark's bloodline rank.

"It's the emblem. I'm not a true Alpha," Stark responded quickly while waving his hand to dismiss the misconception.

"Are you just saying that to make you look weaker than you are?" Gustav eyed knitted as he voiced out.

"No its true haha I'm not really an alpha. It's the emblem fooling you. I'm not actually supposed to tell anyone that," Stark started off with a laughter before turning into a whispering at the end of the sentence.

"Hmm but no doubt i can sense that you have really increased jn strength," Gustav decided to take his word for it but was also sure Stark had increased in strength.

"Well, I can do the three headed Draconic Transformation now," Stark revealed as they moved around.

"Congratulations on that. You should be able to rule much easier," Gustav voiced in response.

"I guess. Thank you once again for your help back then. You really saved my life in more ways than one," Stark said with a smile.

"I was just doing my job," Gustav nodded.

"Speaking of job, do your guards need to keel following us? I doubt you're in any form of danger around here," Gustav added while squinting his eyes.

"Hahaha I knew you would be able to sense them," Stark laughed lightly as he turned to the side.

"Viltru, Askim," Stark called out.

Thiirrh! Thrriih!

Two figures clad in robe like outfits appeared beside Stark in the next instant.

"Family head," They both voiced out simultaneously.

"He was aware of you guys presence," Stark chuckled.

"That is quite remarkable Officer Crimson," Viltru voiced with a tone of astonishment.

"Hmm," Gustav didn't even know how to respond to that. He had noticed them since the start so he didn't even find it remotely remarkable since it felt normal to him.

"There's no need to keep following me everywhere in disguise, I'm not in any danger," Stark voiced out.

"We cannot comply with that, family head. We have to remain at close proximity at all times," Viltru stated while the other guard nodded.

Stark shrugged in defeat as he stared back at Gustav.

"Follow me back to our accommodation quarters," Gustav voiced before leaping into the air.

Fwwwiiii~

Wings sprouted out of his back and a loud flap reverberated across the vicinity.

"You're on," A smile appeared on Stark's face as his skin turned smooth and shiny.

Golden scales appeared all over his body as he increased immensely in size while massive wings spread forth from his back.

In a couple of moments, he had completely transformed into a nearly thirty feet large draconic figure, with three heads, sixteen horns and blazing yellowish eyes.

A powerful aura spread forth from his being across the vicinity, attracting the attention of everyone in the area as he flapped his wings.

Fwwwooooooooomsshhh~

Stark figure instantly ascended into the sky, disappearing into the distance as powerful winds blasted across the vicinity.

He caught up with Gustav in barely a few moments, "You're still slower than me," His deep and menacing voice was heard along with a light chuckle.

"I let you catch up," Gustav responded from the side.

"Then by all means, go all out," Stark kicked his Draconic feet in mid air like an excited little child as he spoke.

"We're here," Gustav voiced before pausing his flight in mid air.

"Oh that was short..." Stark responded as he quickly made a turn in mid air after flying past the structure below.

Within an unknown accommodation area, a group of five could be seen having a meeting of sorts.

They all had similar body features. Transparent skins, green eyes and an oddly shaped reddish like head.

One of the members within the gathering seemed to be currently speaking.

"She humiliated my brother! He is still recovering and cannot join us for the next major challenge. Even after IYSOP is over, this humiliation will follow him for the rest of his days.

Everyone witnessed what he became after that earthling used her power on him. They witnessed his utter nakedness and the form he would take in old age. His tufaka out on display.

He will never be the same. Never!"

The person speaking happened to be seething with rage.

"And that is why she must pay," He added, "With her life,"

"The problem is, we cannot kill a participant on purpose without getting disqualified," Another one of them voiced.

"Then we shan't kill them on purpose or at least we will have to make it look like it wasn't on purpose,"

"You're right Uzeki. We still haven't paid their captain for what he did to Unda. Let's see how he feels after he loses one of his teammates," The first one responded.

"How can we make it look like it is not on purpose? Last I checked, the earthlings are very strong so killing any one of them without getting into a fight where attacks are traded doesn't seem possible," One of them stated.

"There's only one way. It had to be done in a single attack. We have to make sure that earthling loses her life with a single attack. That way we can pretend it was a mistake especially since the mixedblood earthlings are known to be quite durable," Orimon voiced.

"If that is the case, we need an ultimate killing attack. One that will guarantee instant death no matter how powerful the opponent is. One that cannot be guarded against," Uzeki voiced.

-"We have to ask Master Shirmin for help without letting the captain know,"

#####

In another accommodation area, a group of twenty formed a circle. They all had bandage like black clothes wrapped around their bodies from bottom to top, leaving only their eyes exposed. However, even their eyes were pitch black and soulless looking.

They stood in place for a bit with dark mist emitting from their figures. In their midst, the dark mist formed a pair of '1' shaped green eyeballs that seemed to be speaking.

-"Have you made confirmation?"

"We need more time Prime Vessel Ji," The captain spoke with a raspy tone.

- "The kid, is he worthy?"

"He is fighting the possession of the crown.

#####

The next day arrived very quickly and the IYSOP participants began to make their way across to the arena.

---SSS

"Anyone would think they have arrived at the edge of the fourth disk if they saw this," Gustav muttered.

("Indeed... however, you and I are aware that there is something down there,") The system added.

"It is pretty deep though," Gustav eyes squinted.

There was no way to tell if anyone was down there from this height but Gustav's intuition told him there was definitely danger and fortune at the bottom or at least on the way to it.

"You're not telling me everything again, right?" Gustav said with a suspicious tone.

("Since you already know how things are why do you still bother asking?") The system retorted.

"Tch," Gustav proceeded to step forward at this point.

Fwwhiiii~

His body began to rapidly fall through the air into the depths of the unknown.

Surprisingly as he descended, the darkness had reduced due to the glowing lines which he occasionally phased through during his descent.

However, mist became visible upon further descent which become denser and denser, impairing visual capabilities.

The mist around him had become so dense that one couldn't even see their own body but Gustav's high perception made it so this wasn't a problem.

It felt like Gustav had been falling for ages but he didn't wish to increase his speed just yet because he was unaware of what to expect.

Hundred and ten thousand feet~

Hundred and twenty thousand feet~

Hundred and forty thousand feet~

Hundred and sixty thousand feet~

Two hundred thousand feet~

Three hundred thousand feet~

As Gustav continued to descend, he began to feel moist. Usually the dense fog was enough to make one feel moist but this was different.
