

Bloodline 1231

Chapter 1231 We're Out In The Open

Only Captain Strum was crazy enough to head to a red zone so he was the only participant who would get the chance to unlock the restraints on his supernatural abilities twice.

-

Gustav peeked through the spaces in between the gate like poles with keen eyes.

"It looks like they're gone," Gustav voiced as his eyes darted from corner to corner.

"I'm not entirely sure if it's a good idea to leave now," E.E voiced from the side.

"I agree with E.E... we've already been here for so long and we survived. I'm sure we only need to be here for less than a day more before the challenge comes to an end," Angy voiced.

Gustav had a look of contemplation as he turned to face them.

"You two certainly have a point, especially now since it looks like they have left..." From Gustav's manner of speaking it felt like there was a but coming.

He turned to stare at the entry point barricaded by the gate like golden poles, "This looks to me like we're at one of the edges of this yellow zone,"

The view through the spaces in between the bars showed that they were currently on the ground and there was no crazy looking structures and immensely long golden poles extending out of the ground up ahead.

It looked like the constant transformation of the zone had put them in a position that was close to the edge of the zone and on the ground nonetheless.

"If any beast should wander past this zone by coincidence, we stand a high chance of being spotted," Gustav added.

"We could just wait till this part of the structure moves again," Angy stated.

Gustav thought about it again for a couple of seconds. The structure had remained this way for the last hour and he was starting to worry.

According to the map, the direction they were currently facing would lead back to the region with holes all over the ground. This was the same direction they came from.

"Let's..." Just as Gustav was about to make a decision, a small rumble caused him to pause in place.

The space they were currently situated in began to move. They soon ascended as the entire structure began to undergo change once more.

"There's our answer," Angy smiled while voicing out.

"Alright, I guess we can keep staying here," Gustav stated before sitting beside Angy.

As the structure underwent change, the golden poles that had formed a gate before the entry point to this space, all shifted away as well and got replaced with a massive golden board.

In a couple of seconds, the entry point to the small space had been completely sealed without a single ray of lighting penetrating through.

The internal structure of the small space became even more dimly lit than before. The trio could only see each other due to the sensors from the purple helm formed from the lov bracelet.

"Why does this place even exist?" E.E suddenly questioned.

"What do you mean?" Angy inquired.

"We're the leaders of Ozious bored and decided they needed to create a beast haven for fun then bring in all sorts of creatures?" E.E elaborated.

"Hmm that's true, even creating complex areas such as this within the beast haven as well or maybe they just did this for IYSOP," Angy curiosity piqued after hearing E.E bring this up.

"What do you think Gus?" E.E asked.

"I think..." Gustav paused for a bit causing both of them to stare in his direction with focused expressions as well as interest.

"No matter how much we try, we won't understand what they were thinking when they created this," Gustav shrugged.

They both drew back with a slight expression of disappointment, "I thought you were about to give me the answer but I guess you're right," E.E voiced.

"I don't have all the answers in the universe but that's a pretty interesting thought you have there. Maybe we should ask the Ozis later," Gustav had a slight look of intrigue as he stated.

"I leaning on boredom then," Angy voiced from the side.

"For me, I'm leaning on IYSOP," E.E said.

They both called dibs on what the reason for the creation of the Beast Haven was and stared at Gustav, waiting for him to pick a side.

"What about you Gus?" E.E voiced.

"None of the two," Gustav answered with a smirk.

"Huh?"

"I'm hinging on the fact that it has been in existence since and wasn't created due to boredom or IYSOP. I'm betting on the fact that they use the beast haven for competitive competitions between natives or punishment for criminals," Gustav elaboration caused both of them to open their mouths.

Now that he mentioned this, it actually made sense.

"Why didn't I think of this before?" E.E nearly cussed.

"You were holding out on us before right? Sneaky," Angy pinched Gustav's sides.

"Ow, no haha," Gustav chuckled while responding.

While this trio stayed in the confines of this enclosed space, the rest of the Beast Haven with the exception of the green zones were in hot waters.

More participants were getting disqualified by the hour. If some participants were aware that these three managed to survive in a yellow zone and even stay there for over a day, they would have curse in anger.

A lot of participants that had been disqualified got ambushed in yellow zones by beasts. If they didn't need to recharge their life points, they'd still be here yet this trio recharged to the max and even hid within.

Gustav, E.E and Angy engaged in different topics uncaring of the situation of the beast haven. They were having a blast exchanging dialogues and E.E was clowning as usual which caused occasional laughs from Angy and Gustav.

<< 00 : 52 : 49 >>

They had practically spent another day in the small space at this point and were unaware of the current status of the challenge. However, they were sure that the challenge would most likely be coming to an end soon.

During the second day they spent here, the structure had changed a couple times more, however the space they hid within was still sealed at all corners without a single source of light.

As they stayed waiting for the challenge to come to an end, the structure began moving again after a couple of minutes.

"Hmm?" E.E exclaimed as he turned to the left side of the space which was supposed to be a dead end.

It suddenly detached in the next instant along with half of the small space.

Thirrrriiihhh! Clang! Clang!

Loud metallic vibrations rang through the air as the golden bits of the space collided with some platforms up ahead and stuck to it.

"Uh oh, we're out in the open again," Angy voiced.

Due to the detachment of half this space, they were currently wide in the open as the rest of the half where they sat in got moved across the golden entrapment.

They could see the poles in the distance as well as multiple other structures dividing and merging with another area.

"I think we have to get out of here," E.E stated as he noticed the structure start moving at very quick pace.

They wanted to get up but soon lost their balance and fell back, ramming their bodies against the sealed part of the space.

The now exposed space was no longer moving in unpredictable trajectories, it was now moving in a very straight line with the exposed part of the space pointing in a particular direction.

Thwwosshh~

What laid ahead wasn't something that the trio would count as very accommodating so they did their best to quickly jump to their feet and sped forward.

"Now now! jump now!" Gustav yelled as he arrived at the exposed ledge of the space.

The trio quickly leapt forward from the fast moving space.

Thriihh~ Bam! Bam! Bam!

They landed on a golden platform about seven feet lower than the height they jumped from. Fortunately, they managed to not fall off the platform but the instant they looked up.

Thiinhhg~ Thiinhhg~ Thiinhhg~ Thiinhhg~

Multiple horizontal lined poles stabbed into the space they were initially hiding in, merging completely to it as it slowly began to take a different shape.

If they were still within that space, they would have gotten impaled by the multiple golden rods.

"Now we're really out in the open," Gustav voiced.

"I don't see any beasts around though," E.E said with knitted eyes.

"Don't jinx things again," Angy voiced from the side.

"Too late," Gustav stated while looking downwards.

Angy and E.E's hairs stood on end as they followed Gustav's line of sight with looks of terror.

"Ah shit," E.E voiced as he spotted the six limbed creature with a calabash like upper body build.

It stood just before the entrance area of the yellow zone.

Chapter 1232 Situation Goes From Bad To Worse

"Ah shit," E.E voiced as he spotted the six limbed creature with a calabash like upper body build.

It was greyish in color with black dots all across its body while its six limbs which were connected to its lower body looked like human arms but with six fingers instead of five.

The creature size wasn't bigger than nine feet. It was one of the smallest beasts they had encountered since they arrived here.

"Maybe it hasn't seen us, we can still get away unnoticed," E.E voiced with a low tone since they were currently hundreds of feet from the ground.

It was almost like E.E's last sentence attracted it as the creature just happened to look upwards in the next instant.

"Ryuuhhhh!" A loud and sharp whistle like voice reverberated across the vicinity loudly as the beast spotted them.

"What the hell!?" E.E yelled as they all held their ears in pain while the platform they were currently standing on vibrated intensely.

"You just had to jinx it didn't you?" Gustav voiced.

"It's a small beast and it's just one, we can still get away," Immediately after E.E finished saying this a loud rumbling assaulted their earring.

The group turned around to spot a horde of beasts similar in appearance to the one below them, approaching the Golden Entrapment from the south.

"Now we're in deep shit, this thing called the others here," E.E voiced with an expression of horror.

The timer display showed that only around fifty minutes was left till the challenge would come to an end but if they didn't move now, these beasts would get to them in less than a minute.

"Go," Gustav turned North and sped forward.

Angy and E.E followed after him and immediately jumped forward the instant they arrived at the ledge.

The beasts approaching had began climbing upwards at very quick pace. It was obvious that they were incapable of flight, however, the six hand like limbs attached to their lower bodies were extremely quick and tight gripped, making it possible for the beasts tight climb up very quickly.

The golden rods shooting out of the ground were scaled very quickly and many of the creatures arrived over a hundred feet above in a couple of seconds.

The trio were trying to make their way down but these creatures were very quick. The first one who alerted the other, was already ahead of them as it already climbed quickly close to their current height.

Gustav and the others spotted it ahead leaping from one vertically positioned golden rod to another, as it headed in their direction.

They were practically jumping from one golden platform to another headed in the direction the first beast was coming from.

The instant arrived at an area of golden rods positioned vertically and horizontally, they began stepping forward slowly and carefully.

However, at this same instant, the first beast reached the same height as them. It sped across the rods very quickly.

"Oh shit," E.E voiced as the creature leapt towards them.

Swweewii~

"Down," Gustav voiced and jumped from the horizontal golden rod they were currently walking on.

The trio followed Gustav, wasting no time in jumping after him.

The beast missed them as it leapt past their initial spot landing on a golden platform ahead.

After dropping past a certain point, Gustav grabbed an horizontal positioned rod tightly, causing his entire body to come to a stop.

Angy and E.E who were falling from the air after him were unaware of his plans before jumping. They only blindly followed him not caring about what would happen.

Gustav reached out and grabbed hold of E.E's right arm. E.E in turn reached out and grabbed Angy's causing all three of them to be suspended in the air with Gustav's right arm doing all the work.

Their abilities might have been restricted but Gustav could still do this much.

"Ughh," He groaned while pulling upwards with all his might.

E.E's right arm leveled with the golden pole as Gustav placed his hand right before it. He quickly wrapped his hand around the golden pole and pulled Angy' upwards as well.

They all climbed to the top of the horizontally inclined golden pole and began moving forward across it. As they were headed for the golden platform up ahead, the beasts had arrived at the position the trio were initially.

"Ryuuuhhhh!"

The whistled voices of the beasts rang out again and in unison this time upon spotting their preys below.

The trio held their ears as they speedily made their way across, trying to get out of the zone as quickly as they could. The beasts began jumping from place to place as they made their way downwards again not willing to let the trio get away.

The trio arrived at a steep golden platform that extended to the bottom of the golden entrapment. Gustav wasted no time in diving forward and landing ahead before taking a crouch.

His entire figure began sliding downwards at quick pace. Angy and E.E wasted no time in moving forward and sliding across the smoothened golden platform as the beasts also hurried down from the height they climbed to.

"Go!" go! go!" Gustav yelled as they arrived at the bottom.

Their breaths were hurried and their hearts pumping with adrenaline as they charged out of the golden entrapment. They were still moving at human speed but they had quickly made their way to the outskirts after running for some time.

The unfathomable and inexplicable structured Golden Entrapment was now tens of feet behind them. However, the structure wasn't the only thing that was behind them...

"Ryuuuhhhh!" The incoming beasts clamored as they charged at their preys.

They were over a hundred of them chasing after the trio and there was no doubt that they were faster as well.

"Should we split up?" E.E questioned as they began to make their way across the sandy area with multiple holes in the ground.

"No, let's keep going," Gustav responded as they swerved across large holes to avoid falling in.

The vicinity behind them had been shrouded in a cloud of dust due to the numbers of these beasts making their way forward at full speed.

Bam! Bam! Bam!

Multiple of them fell into the holes positioned all across the vicinity, causing them to slow down.

"They're low intelligence beasts," Gustav stated as they turned their necks to the side slightly and spotted the creatures tripping on themselves and falling into the holes around.

"If we're lucky enough, we can make it across before they catch up to us," E.E voiced.

"I'm not sure that kind of luck exists in reality," Gustav responded with a pessimistic tone.

He was well aware that some of the beasts would still catch up to them very soon since there was no way they'd all fall into holes.

Regardless, they did their best to keep running forward and avoid the holes.

In a couple of minutes, they suddenly spotted a purplish fog up ahead.

"Is that...?" E.E squinted his eyes as he noticed the purplish fog closing in.

"It can't be..." Angy eyes showed a hint of defeat as skeletal faces with glowing purple eyes appeared within the fog.

The situation immediately went from bad to worse as these beasts flew in their direction while the other beasts with multiple lower limbs were still chasing from behind.

The strong stench of dust in the air reeked ominously as the two different hordes of beasts sped towards the trio with obvious nefarious intentions.

Gustav turned northwest with a still determined expression despite knowing it was an impossible situation.

"Looks like I'll have to use the rest of my attacks," He voiced.

Angy and E.E turned in his direction, wanting to follow him but he quickly yelled.

"Don't follow me. E.E," He gave E.E a look and E.E instantly understood what it meant.

He quickly turned to the right with and grabbed Angy's hand.

"What are you...? Didn't you say we'll keep moving together?" Angy yelled as E.E dragged her away.

"Go!" Gustav yelled, not giving any room for explanations as he kept running with speed.

"Heyyyyy!!! Come affter me bastards!" Gustav yelled with a loud tone as he grabbed something from the ground and flung it in the direction of the beasts chasing from behind.

As E.E and Angy made their way forward in practically the opposite, direction, the hordes began to split.

This was something Gustav knew would happen but he already decided he was going to pull their attention to himself alone.

Teh! Teh! Teh!

He quickly tapped on his lov bracelet and activated an attack.

[Energy Cannon Blast]

Gustav turned around and pointed his arm at the ground as energy built up across the bracelet.

Tuuuinn~ Boom!

A loud blast rang out in the next moment as a green beam shot into the ground from his arm.

Heavy winds dispersed dust in all directions, covering up the entire vicinity in a couple of moments.

Chapter 1233 Five Seconds

Heavy winds dispersed dust in all directions, covering up the entire vicinity in a couple of moments.

E.E understood that this was Gustav's plan and swiftly followed up by jumping into one of the holes in the ground along with Angy while the dust covered their whereabouts.

The visibility in the environment had been hindered due to the dust and the beasts had been affected as well. Fortunately, Angy and E.W were not noticed when they jumped into one of the holes to hide.

However, on the other side, Gustav didn't try to hide in the cloud of dust. This was a part of his plan.

Fwwwheii~

Gustav's frame sped out of a corner of the cloud of the dust, instantly becoming visible to the beasts outside of the dust covered area.

"Ryuuuuhhhh!"

"Sssiiihhhh!"

The beasts loud voices rang out across the vicinity, alerting the others of the position of their prey. The skeletal flying beasts as well as the multiple lower limbed beasts all turned in the direction of the others alerting them from outside the cloud of dust.

Since Gustav was the only visible one of the the three, they all rushed at him while moving further and further away from Angy and E.E's position.

Gustav kept running as fast as he could to garner more distance between himself and the area where E.E and Angy had separated with him.

No matter how fast he went, he was still no match for the speed of the flying and land beasts who were catching up at frightening pace.

In less than a minute, some of the skeletal flying creatures arrived behind Gustav, sweeping their wings forward.

Fwwshii~

Gustav jumped into one of the holes at a timely mannrs, barely dodging the purplish sharp waves that blasted forward with intensity.

With a speed that was only a little faster than the average human, Gustav was still hit by some of the residue energy causing him to slam face down into the bottom of the hole.

[- 50 Life points]

"I still got a lot of that to go around," Gustav muttered as he arduously pushed himself back up, ignoring the raging pain in his joints.

One of the skeletal beast swooped down with speed at this point while bearing its talons in a bid to land on Gustav, however, he managed to pull himself out of the hole in the last second.

Bang!

A small wave of dust spread forth from the hole as the creature landed within and Gustav resumed running forward.

The beasts were closing in from every direction at this point and it seemed like Gustav wouldn't be able to evade them for more than a few minutes if he was lucky.

Gustav knew there was no way out of this but he wanted to make sure he brought the beasts a safe distance away from E.E and Angy so they could get away without being noticed.

He had decided that he would put his all to it even if this was the last thing he did before getting disqualified. He didn't care about that right now so long as they remained.

Swwwiihh~ Swwwiihhh~ Swwwiihh~

Gustav was doing his possible best to escape the attacks descended from above but no matter how much he tried, he would still get hit by parts of the blasts.

He could make calculations on their trajectory and how far he would have to move to completely escape the purplish arcs generated from the wings of the skeletal beasts but it still took speed to actually execute such successfully.

----SS

[- 100 Life Points]

[- 50 Life Points]

[- 150 Life Points]

[- 70 Life Points]

He was losing life points at very high rate and his ears were ringing intensely but he didn't stop. He would get blasted across the air for tens of feet, crash onto the ground, and slide for a couple more feet yet Gustav remained unrelenting.

He would pick himself up again and keep running despite feeling blood rushing to his head. He felt like his limbs would disconnect from each other and fall off despite still having over eight thousand life points.

Some of the multiple lower limbed beasts had arrived before him at this point and were jumping onto him and raining kicks on his body.

Gustav couldn't evade these ones and rolled on the ground, falling into a hole ahead which helped him to slip out of their grasp.

[- 100 Life Points]

·c0m [- 100 Life Points]

[- 100 Life Points]

[- 100 Life Points]

He was still losing life points at an insane rate due to attacks attacks were coming from every direction. Fortunately, due to their high numbers, the attacks from above was slamming into the multiple lower limbed beasts as well.

So it turned out to be a win lose situation at this point. Gustav had not been completely caught due to this but he was running out of steam. His nose was running, his entire body was sweaty and his vision was starting to turn blurry.

He felt he must have gone far enough at this point but kept going, deciding that he wouldn't stop till he could no longer stop moving.

Fwwhiii~ Fwwhii~ Fhwwii~ Fwwhii~

A couple of seconds later the skeletal creatures were swooping down from above in tens while the lower limbed beasts were leaping towards Gustav at the same time in high numbers.

They approached in waves unlike before where some of them hadn't managed to meet up, descending in such high numbers that it looked like a swarm of darkness.

Gustav was unable to take another step forward as they landed on him in droves, completely covering him up. Their weight pressed against him like the weight of a mountain as his face kissed the ground.

All that could be seen before him was darkness along with the small glow of the computerised internal helm the lov bracelet created.

Gustav was losing hundreds of life points in a second and reckoned that it would take less than three minutes before his life points were depleted to zero.

He struggled to reach his left arm, barely tapping on it despite not being able to raise his face from the ground. He had no idea what was currently displayed on the surface of the lov bracelet, he could only hope he was tapping on the functions he had in mind.

"If I'm gonna get disqualified, i might as well take as many of these bastards with me as I can," Gustav managed to curse under his hurried breath as he pressed his lov bracelet surface against the ground with his last strength.

Trrihh~

He barely heard the sound of the bracelet depicting that his last attack had been activated.

[Unlocking Participant Supernatural Abilities For Ten Seconds]

If Gustav could see the display on his arm at the moment, he wouldn't have been able to believe his eyes. However, this didn't stop him from suddenly opening his tired eyes widely as he suddenly felt streams of energy flowing into him.

'I didn't get rid of the restrictions on my abilities did I?' He internally wondered with a confused expression.

[9 Seconds]

The instant a beeping sound rang in his ears, he raised his head with ease and stared at the loy bracelet on his left arm.

"Ohhh so that's why," Gustav immediately understood as his fatigue disappeared along with all of the pains he had been afflicted from the barrages of attacks.

The view from above displayed hundreds of beasts bodies gathered in a particular area like a hill. They had piled on Gustav and from anyone's point of view, it seemed like he was done for...

Boooooom!

A loud blast suddenly rang out as a reddish wave of energy spread forth from Gustav being.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

The hundreds of beasts initially surrounding him got sent flying in every direction with their limbs seperating from their bodies.

Green and blue blood rained like a fountain as body parts fell from the air as well. Gustav stood to his feet with a menacing gaze in his eyes as the aura emitting from his figure caused the vicinity to tremble from pressure.

[8 Seconds]

His figure turned illusionary as he dashed across the vicinity, driving his fists into the heads of the beasts that were left.

Bang!

They were unable to escape his onslaught as he moved like a phantom arriving before the next target once he had finished ripping one to shreds.

Fwwiiihh~

Heads were still falling from the air, yet Gustav had ripped five more before they could touch the ground.

He leapt into the air and grabbed a skeletal creature by the head, forcibly ripping it from the neck before flinging it with immense force.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

A line of four Skeletal creatures were instantly burrowed with holes as the head turned into a projectile that tore through them mercilessly. Gustav was like the harbinger of death at this moment, leaping from one creature to another and leaving holes in them before they could even understand what was going on.

[5 seconds]

Chapter 1234 Beast Haven Challenge Comes To A Finish

[5 seconds]

Only five seconds had gone by since he regained his abilities, yet he had managed to lay waste to all of the beasts in the vicinity who numbered in over two hundred.

Gustav turned his head in a particular direction as he sped sideways, managing to evade a pouring body parts that landed exactly in the position he initially was

Swwoosshhh~

He arrived thousands of feet away from his initial location, standing before a hole.

"Gustav?" Two familiar voices rang out from within.

Knowing there was limited time left, Gustav grabbed hold of Angy and E.E swiftly and pulled them out of the hole.

Fwsshoom~

He leapt into the air with both of them in his grasp, leaving them with tons of questions which he was currently unable to answer.

Large bat like wings sprouted out of Gustav's back as he ascended into the air with speed. He dived forward with the wings flapped powerfully.

They tore through the air at intense speed, leaving afterimages across it and crossing two regions in a manner of seconds.

[1 Second]

Bam!

Gustav landed heavily on a grassy patch of land in the last second, before slowly dropping Angy and E.E.

[0 seconds]

He felt his supernatural strength and abilities leaving once more but fortunately they had served their purpose.

"Phew," Gustav sighed in relief as he crouched, before taking a seat on this patchy grass land.

"How the hell did you manage to use your powers?" E.E questioned with a tone of utter astonishment and confusion.

"You even got us to a green zone," Angy was just as shocked.

"The last attack on the lov bracelet wasn't an attack," Gustav answered.

"It unlocked my abilities for ten seconds," He added.

Both of them had looks of understanding upon hearing this. They initially thought Gustav had found a way to cheat but now it made sense.

For Gustav, crossing a distance that would take them up to five hours of hiking with human capabilities, would take him five seconds if he was unrestrained.

<< 00 : 31 : 25 >>

"Thirty one minutes left phew... I thought we were toast," E.E voiced as he checked the bracelet.

"This isn't the green zone we were headed... did you change direction?" Angy questioned as she noticed the name on the map was different.

"Yeah, there was really no time, I just went in any direction and landed us here," Gustav responded.

"Who cares anyways... so long as we're safe," E.E slumped onto the land and closed his eyes with a relaxed expression.

"I'm down to around a thousand life points but it is more than enough to make it through thirty minutes," Gustav stated.

"Only three hundred and thirty seven participants managed to make it this far," He added, causing E.E and Angy to stare at him with looks of curiosity.

"I expected more," Angy voiced.

"Especially since the Beast Haven is very large," E.E added.

When Gustav's abilities were unrestricted momentarily, his perception had combed through the entirety of the Beast Haven. Due to this he had managed to perceive the precise number of participants left when the horde of beasts were stacked atop of him.

He happened to see a particular one that made him a little surprised due to the action they were engaging in at that moment.

However, Gustav didn't think much of this as he was busy trying to make the best use of his ten seconds.

"The number of beasts are too high for participants not to fall into unfortunate scenarios," Gustav reminded, hinting that they barely managed to get through one themselves.

The trio agreed with Gustav as they recalled all they had been through in the last three days.

They continued chatting as they waited for the rest of the time to pass so the challenge could come to an end.

#####

<< 00 : 00 : 04 >>

<< 00 : 00 : 03 >>

<< 00 : 00 : 02 >>

<< 00 : 00 : 01 >>

<< 00 : 00 : 00 >>

< The Beast Haven Challenge Has Come To A Finish >

A loud electronic voice reverberated across the ninth disk and the location of the beast Haven.

After the announcement, a scoreboard was displayed on the floating screens, showing how many planets had participants left.

It turned out that out of over a thousand planets, only a little over two hundred managed to have participants that made it to the end.

<< Planet Rudundbergh : 2 Participants >>

<< Planet Ozious : 5 Participants >>

<< Planet Ghundabault : 3 Participants >>

<< Planet Indulus Prime: 6 Participants >>

<< Planet Draconet : 1 Participant >>

<< Planet Oxlrk: 7 Participants >>

<< Planet Klaxosape: 10 Participants >>

<< Planet Phixiq : 2 Participants >>

<< Planet Earth : 5 Participants >>

<< Planet Xionsi : 1 Participant >>

<< Planet Hixto: 1 Participant >>

<< Planet Tronvida : 1 Participant >>

<< Planet Tribetes : 12 Partipants >>

...

The results had both the spectators and participants astonished as they took note of the winning planets.

- "Only the Draconet Captain managed to make it all the way through,"

- "That's the fruit of recklessness,"

- "They still passed though,"

- "Who else thought Earth would have the highest number left?"

- "Me,"

- "Planet Tribetes were the most organised that's why they have the highest number of participants left,"

The spectators debated about how the results turned out like they didn't witness the happenings with their eyes.

Their reactions were to be expected since a lot of them couldn't keep eyes on all the screens at the same time. There was no way to observe the activities of every location within the Beast Haven at the same time.

Zing~ Zing~ Zing~ Zing~ Zing~ Zing~ Zing~ Zing~

The participants within the beast haven began to appear back within the arena on the ninth disk in successions.

"Yo man, did you make it?" E.E voiced out as soon as they reunited with the others on the arena.

"No, I got disqualified with Glade and Yonda," Aildris chuckled wryly.

"Oouu I thought you were one of the last two who finished with us," E.E was quite surprised since everyone knew how capable Aildris was, with or without supernatural abilities.

·cθm He glanced at Yonda in suspicion who in turn looked away guiltily.

"I was watching and rooting for you guys from here. Endric and Teemee were the last two besides you guys," Aildris voiced while using his thumbs to point in the direction of Endric and Teemee who had just appeared right behind them.

"Good one guys," E.E chuckled while raising his right hand.

Pah! Pah!

He gave them both high fives and the group began catching up with each other.

-----SS

"If they wanna steal from us... we'll steal from them instead," Gustav stated.

"Yeeehhaa! Those motherfuck*rs can bring it on!" E.E yelled with fired up spirit.

"This way we'd also be able to increase the number of eggs we have while others are stealing from one another as well," Aildris also agreed with the decision.

"Are you up for it?" Gustav asked Falco while placing a hand on his shoulder.

"Of course, why not," Falco responded with a wry smile.

"Good," Gustav voiced.

Falco walked away with a contemplative look to wait for the others outside the iro silk cover.

'Darko where the hell are you?' He wondered internally as he raised his right palm.

("He isn't alright,") The system voiced in Gustav's mind while he deactivated the iro silk.

'I know... but I won't push it unless he asks for my help,' Gustav replied internally.

"Guys shall we?" E.E proceeded to conjure a large vortex.

The group proceeded to move into the vortex and reappeared a great distance away. E.E's spatial abilities had become so powerful that he could open a vortex in space while standing on the surface of a planet.

His range had improved a great deal as well as many other aspects since their time at the oasis.

The group wasted no time in searching for eggs upon arriving at a new environment. This was a sparse forest of frosty trees which happened to have a sloppy terrain.

Gustav's first action was scanning the entire vicinity and telling his teammates which direction to head in to gather eggs.

They soon cleared the area of required colored eggs and moved onto the next. E.E ensured to conjure a vortex that was close to a thousand miles away just to make sure they were away from the vicinity completely.

Gustav would always make sure to spread his senses around so he could inform the group when there was nothing left.

Occasionally, they came across different participants of other planets but they continued on with their business and only left if Gustav sensed that there was no eggs around.

-

After many hours had gone by, they arrived in another area that happened to be silent and very gloomy. What stood out to them were the massive statue towers arranged in rows and columns across the surroundings.

These statues were around three thousand feet in height and each of them looked similar to handlers with insect like head and antennas that held their eyeballs.

However, each of these frosty statues held on to different weapons each just as massive as they were and Gustav calculated that there were at least ten thousand statues.

Since the statues were lined up in rows and columns, there were passable spaces in between them despite their figures covering up the entire vicinity.

Chapter 1235 Pre Determined Next Challenge

"Elevora and Ria weren't the only ones who got harrassed during the Beast Haven Challenge ," Glade suddenly voiced out from the side.

The group turned to stare at her with looks of confusion upon her utterance.

"Those guys came looking for trouble," Glade added while pointing at her seven o'clock.

There were all sort of participants from different groups all around them so it was hard to make out the exact individuals she was referring to.

"Which one of them?" Teemee questioned.

"Those guys we met during the Viondur Egg challenge that Gustav also had issues with," Glade didn't seem to recall the name of their species as she explained.

"The Xionsis?" Gustav voiced with a slightly surprised expression.

"Yes them... the transparent skinned weirdos," Glade responded with an irritated expression.

Glade and E.E had a nack for insulting other species that irked them in the most natural way possible but no one too heed of her subtle word jab at the moment. They were more interested in how her encounter had gone with them.

"Two of them i came across ambushed me and are also responsible causing my disqualification," Glade stated.

"You just bumped into them on a random or..."

"I bumped into them on a random and they were out to get me at the cost of getting disqualified because of their teammate I and Falco battled the other time," Glade went on to narrate her experience and how she had to make use of her attacks to protect herself from them.

"They acted like a deranged bunch, coming at me with so much animosity," Glade finished recounting her experience causing the others to shoot intense glares in the direction of the Xionsis.

"I suddenly feel uncomfortable," One of the Xionsis voiced while rubbing his skin.

"It's the earth participants," Another one of the announced after spotting the multiple eyes glued to their direction.

"Why are they staring at us like that?" The vice captain of the Xionsis questioned with a clueless expression.

"I hope no one did anything stupid," Captain Illumo questioned but the lack of reply made him overlook the whole situation.

By the sides Five of his subordinates stared at each other with hidden intentions.

On the side of the earth participants, Gustav was addressing the issue.

"Listen guys, it's obvious that we have garnered spite and dislike due to our current position along with the conflicting situations we have found ourselves in during each of these challenges. Everything you faced in the Beast Haven Survival Challenge was also to be expected because in the end only one planet can win. We are a threat to everyone, it wouldn't be beneath them to try every tactic to get rid of us," Gustav said lengthily causing them to nod in understanding.

·cθm "However, since you all know me well, you should also know that I won't let the latest events go by without appropriate payback. The Xionsis will be dealt with first. As for Captain Strum, I'll take care of him when the time comes," Gustav added.

"How are we dealing with the Xionsis?" Glade questioned while squeezing her fist. She was just as angry as Elevora and wasn't interested in letting things slide.

"Attention Participants..." Handler One began addressing the bunch from the platform above.

"I'll brief you guys later," Gustav stated.

Although the group who had been with Gustav before IYSOP didn't really care about Glade. No one had forgotten and forgiven her for what she did back then. However, this was a team matter.

They couldn't ignore it or such would continue. It was also obvious that Glade wasn't the only one being targeted by the Xionsis. Teemee had also been a part of the battle where he had given one of their teammates an injury they still hadn't recovered from completely till now.

Gustav felt they were out to get both of them and he wasn't willing to let anything of the sorts happen to Teemee.

"...Five Thousand points to all teams that survived till the end of the challenge as well as a hundred points addition for each team member left..." Handler one continued briefing them on the gains gotten from finishing the challenge.

He congratulated the groups that managed to make it to the end as the scoreboard displayed the additional points added to every group based on the number of teammates they had left at the ending.

Gustav already suspected that something like this might happen but there was no helping it since only five teammates, himself included, managed to make it to the end. He wasn't too bothered about it since it was only one hundred extra points per head.

Earth had gained five thousand, five hundred points in total after the tallying of points. Planet Tribetes had extra one thousand, two hundred points due to the number of participants that finished, bringing them to a total of six thousand, two hundred points acquired.

They gained the highest in this challenge while many planets had only a hundred extra points due to having just one participant left at the end.

The Draconets especially were feeling bashful at the current turn of events and internally blamed their captain since a lot of them got disqualified due to his unbrazen acts.

"Hmph, this is nothing but a victory for cowards! Be proud that we shamed not our great planet," Captain Strum voiced strongly causing everyone to display looks of disgust and discomfort.

Those who had gotten disqualified earlier had witnessed how captain Strum laid waste to a lot of the beasts within the Haven. He was no doubt one of the strongest captains but they also felt he was too prideful and hotheaded.

It was only a matter of time before that caught up with him according to their thoughts.

The main scoreboard was displayed a few seconds later, showing the current change in scores of every planetary group.

Earth remained number one while a few others beneath had changed places due to the current addition in scores. Planet Tribete had climbed to fourth place by a couple of points but it seemed like earth's number one position was still indisputable.

Handler one made it clear that they had just finished the first half of IYSOP and the next challenge would be the start of the second half of the competition.

Performing their best in the second half and being above earth in almost all major challenges was really the only way to surpass earth current number of points for those below.

Based on the image Earth had built for themselves, it was looking like a difficult task, however the moment the next challenge was announced, everyone began to see a glimmer of hope.

"The next major challenge has already been pre determined," Handler One announced.

Everyone paid even more attention after hearing this. It was no doubt that pre determined major challenges were usually more complicated and had the best gains like the Viondur challenge.

They knew it most likely wouldn't be as lengthy but they were looking forward to it as they knew, acquiring a lot of points would be possible if they performed well.

"Points Acquisition Versus Matches," Handler One announced with a loud voice.

Chatter! Chatter! Chatter! Chatter!

"It will hold the day after tomorrow, and as for the information on everything you need to know about this challenge, I will of course be explaining everything on that day," Handler One added.

This caused another loud ruckus across the arena.

---SS

I am aware and you're not helping," Gustav only reason for attacking the balls were to deter them and avoid making any contact.

He was never trying to destroy them in the first place.

Fhwwhiiii!

As the group made it past a quarter of the statue challenge terrain, the statues behind suddenly stabbed their weapons downwards.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

The statues behind, lined in an horizontal format blocked the path with their weapons slamming into the ground.

The ice balls chasing after Gustav and the others were completely blocked off and could no longer chase them.

"Phew, that was something," E.E heaved a sigh of relief as the group came together once more.

"Man you didn't even have any issues," Teemee voiced with a slight tone of annoyance.

"Gustav are you okay?" Vera questioned as they stared at Gustav standing with a single leg and missing an arm as well.

"It will grow back," Gustav stated.

"Don't let your guard down. We're not out of the clear yet," He quickly added before the group could ask any more questions.

"We've definitely entered another stage of the challenge," Aildris stated as they peered forward with intrigued and wary gazes.

"We should..."

Just as Falco was about to suggest something, the ground began caving in around them.

Krrrryyccchhh! Diiiihhhhh!

As the icy sloppy ground caved in around them, they were forced to head towards the middle path as it seemed to be the only unaffected area.

The statues remained standing in the vicinity despite the crumbling grounds.

The team arrived in the middle path which was large enough for them to stand side by side. Looking over the edge, they could see a water body hundred of feet below where the grounds had caved in.

[God Eyes Has Been Activated]

"It is as i suspected... the water below us is not ordinary," Gustav informed the others, the instant he inspected the liquid below.

Chapter 1236 Discovering Axiler

"Miss Aimee," Gustav responded with a warm tone before his eyes darted to the person next to her.

"Stark... I see you two have finally met," Gustav voiced while moving closer to them.

"Why does this strung up kid say he knows you? He stopped me from dealing with the rat," Miss Aimee voiced while pointing at Stark.

"Hehe..." A wry chuckle escaped Stark lips as he rubbed his head nervously. Anyone would show respect to him as the head of the Vertigons but Miss Aimee didn't seem to care about that.

He felt this was rightly so too since he found out that this was the famed Aimee. The Mixedblood who became a goddess.

Immediately after Gustav heard Miss Aimee's statement, he knew what she was talking about.

"You guys go ahead I'll catch up," Gustav said to the others.

The group nodded and greeted Miss Aimee as well as Stark before leaving. After they had left, Miss Aimee, Gustav and Stark moved to a particular part of the spectators area to discuss privately.

"You found the person selling IYSOP information?" Gustav questioned.

The instant Miss Aimee mentioned getting stopped from dealing with a rat Gustav knew she was definitely referring to whoever was selling info.

"I did," Miss Aimee replied.

"So who is it? Which one of the handlers? It definitely has to be someone high up," Gustav voiced in quick successions.

"It isn't one of Ozis," Miss Aimee instantly dismissed.

"What? If it isn't one of the Ozis then who is it?" Gustav inquired with a tone of curiosity.

"It's an individual named Axiler," Stark replied from the side.

"Uh? Who is that?" Gustav was thrown into the sea of confusion once more.

"He's or She or it since they do not have a gender, is a Diklaro, from the planet Deklan," Miss Aimee stated.

"Deklan... the planet that got destroyed due to the intergalactic war against the Fixians about five hundred years ago?" Gustav recalled this from one of the books he read within the MBO camp over a year ago.

"Yes them... their species or what is left of it is now scattered across the universe since they no longer have a place to call their home," Miss Aimee voiced in confirmation.

"This one in particular, Axiler, is a well known intergalactic trader, guide and collector who is wanted in four different planets under the alliance... Some of the activities It engages in are not entirely legal but at the same time, It is still well known in many places as Its endeavours had spread across galaxies. It is said to possess many unique collections from all across the galaxies and have sold to both questionable and authoritative figures

I've been given a mission in the past to capture It due to one of the planets after him asking for earth's help in catching him," Miss Aimee's last sentence piqued the interests of both of them as she gave them information on Axiler.

"You didn't manage to catch him?" Gustav questioned with a look of surprise.

"Of course I did," Miss Aimee responded.

Gustav's face at this moment was one that without a doubt displayed what he was thinking, 'Then how is he still at large?'

"They let Axiler go... My job was only to catch him and hand him over which I did. I wasn't going to concern myself with whatever they chose to do to it. What I do remember is, despite being wanted, Axiler is also protected by powerful figures all across the galaxies so I'm sure they found a way to free him," Miss Aimee explained.

Gustav wouldn't have believed it if Miss Aimee had failed to catch Axiler. The whole scenario made more sense now.

"He doesn't sound like someone that would be allowed to attend IYSOP," Gustav said with a look of confoundment.

"Because it isn't... It came here disguised as someone else. I'm not surprised it managed to sneak in undetected. One of Axiler's strong suit is getting into any place he wishes to no matter how protected or dangerous such a place is. That's why he is one of the most famous collectors all across galaxies today," Miss Aimee replied with faint admiration despite the status of the Diklaro.

"And by now you would have caught him again if it wasn't for Stark, right?" Gustav tried to piece things together based on what he had heard so far.

"That is right... It possesses what is known as a sentient level breach artifact. This item is the stuff of legends as many intergalactic travelers who also bear the title of collectors have tried to acquire it for themselves and failed. Turns out it succeeded and is also using that to figure out information on IYSOP challenges before they are issued. He sells the information here on the ninth disk to participating planets who are able to afford it. That little critter is still as greedy as I remember," Miss Aimee voiced lengthily.

"I identified Axiler from up there and swooped down to capture him but your friend here, stopped me from taking Axiler at the last minute, saying you wouldn't have wanted things to go that way," Miss Aimee added.

"Uh? Stark why did you stop her?" Gustav questioned while turning to face Stark.

"Because I have a preposition," Stark voiced with an insightful expression.

"Instead of capturing him and handing him over to the handlers, why don't we use him to our advantage," Stark added.

"Using him to our advantage would be considered cheating which could also bring problems to use if it people were to find out," Gustav responded while shaking his head.

He would have given it more thought if this wasn't the case. He wasn't willing to jeopardise the earth especially since their current standing isn't bad.

"I don't mean use him like that," Stark statement caused Miss Aimee to stare with curiosity.

"I mean use him to sabotage the others purchasing information from him. This way we could ruin their plans and still remain free from the corruption of cheating," Stark explained.

"I see... that's a good one," Gustav held his chin before turning to stare in Miss Aimee's direction.

"Can we do that? Can we make him sabotage the others?" Gustav questioned.

"Knowing how it takes pride in its actions and reputation, Axiler will definitely refuse to do such so his credibility remains unsullied and it doesn't affect his business in the future," Miss Aimee voiced in response.

"So we can't..."

"No its fine because it won't be a request, it will be a demand. A demand he won't be able to refuse," Miss Aimee spoke with a frosty tone, causing Stark to chuckle nervously.

"Great, then let's do this," Gustav stated with a look of excitement.

"I can see him right now, he's currently conducting a business," Stark voiced with his eyes emitting a golden glow.

'So quick? The Beast Haven Challenge just ended an hour ago... I guess it is to be expected since everyone is curious as to the details of the upcoming major challenge,' Gustav thought.

"You can see it?" Miss Aimee questioned Stark.

"Yes, the same way I saw you when you were up there and knew where you'd land first. I've also had my eyes on him since I arrived on Planet Ozious," Stark's responss caused miss Aimee to show a hint of astonishment. Stark was truly remarkable being able to see her real body when no one could.

Gustav had nearly forgotten that Stark had the all seeing eyes till he made use of it again. He wondered how being able to see everything must feel like.

If Stark was unable to control it, this was something that could definitely drive anyone crazy since it was like having a bunch of monitors lined up in a circular format within you, giving back vivid footage of ongoing activities in both personal and public spaces.

It really was like having an invisible CCTV placed everywhere.

"Shall we?" Stark questioned after a brief silence.

"Lead the way," Gustav responded.

"Gladly," Stark mouthed off as he turned in a particular direction and leapt into the air.

Fwwhiiii~

In mid air, he transformed into a three headed draconic figure that flew off into the distance.

Gustav and Miss Aimee followed behind effortlessly.

#####

Within a space with a restaurant like setting, a bunch of individuals clad in all sorts of outfits that were unrecognisable to any earthling, enjoyed having the meal before them and chatting away in various languages.

A lot of these individuals also happened to bear different appearances since the restaurant had different planetary species gathered within.

The manner in which the interior of restaurant was structured was one that a human would most definitely find odd.

The golden colored floors happened to be triangular in shape. The floors were so steep that people and the feeding tables set before them should be falling off, yet everything was well balanced on the steep floor.

To make things even more complicated, the upper floors of restaurant were shaped in an upside down triangular format, making it look like everyone was eating upside down yet, no one fell off.

At a section of this odd looking restaurant which was apparently normal to its inhabitants, two unknown figures sat before each other.

Chapter 1237 Capturing Axiler

At a section of this odd looking restaurant which was apparently normal to its inhabitants, two unknown figures sat before each other.

One had an armadillo shaped face with brownish scales all over with a humanoid structured full body.

The one on the other side had a transparent like skin that looked like a layer of water with weird reddish markings on his face. He had an extremely serious expression as he spoke while the armadillo shaped faced creature on the other end looked like he was in a silly goofy mood.

"I really need it, please help," The transparent skinned being begged.

"Hnnmh ouuu," The Armadillo faced like creature exclaimed pleurably as it chewed on the contents of the plate before it.

"Oh mine this dish is definitely amongst my top ten now... It replaces Dahumar special at number ten. Planet Ozious truly lives up to its reputation as one of the leaders of the alliance, really top tier food quality here..." It added while grabbing another piece of the purplish dripping wormy like eyeball on the table.

"This is serious! It is a matter of life and death," The transparent skinned being stated with a strong tone while looking around as he tried not to speak too loud.

"It is a matter of life and death that I finish this dish uhhmmm..." The Armadillo faced being exclaimed pleasurable again as it downed another mouthful of the dish before it.

Ugh..." The transparent skinned being did his best not to lose his temper as he sat in place for a seconds, watching the creature before him gobble down chunks after chunks.

"Shirmin, you... hav-en't gulps touched your food," The Armadillo faced being voiced amidst his chews.

"I am not hungry... this is a ma..." The transparent skinned being hadn't managed to complete his sentence when the Armadillo faced being cut him off.

"Then can I have it?" It questioned.

"You... fine you can have it," Shirmin folded his arms and leaned backwards with a tired expression while the armadillo faced creature kept devouring everything in sight.

"Thank you Shirmin..." It voiced joyously.

About a minute later, it had devoured every piece of food on the table completely and began cleaning it's hands.

"Why do you have a scowl on your face... oh that's right a matter of life and death," The Armadillo face creature said with an empathetic tone.

"Yes yes will you help me now?" Shirmin questiond.

"From what you told me it seems like you folks are the ones that wanna sentence someone to death," The Armadillo faced creature voiced with a tone of awareness.

"It is still life and death... the other party deserves it," Shirmin responded.

"Haha when you put it that way, you're not entirely wrong. I have something for your young sappling that would work but it will work just once and can never be re used afterwards," The Armadillo faced creature stated while raising its right paw like hand and tapping on a necklace around it's chest.

Ting~

A small trinket that looked like a mix between a ring and a necklace appeared in its grasp. The metallic edges emitted a faint magenta glow and the circular ring like area had the carvings of the mouth of an unknown monster on its surface.

Besides these details, the trinket looked quite ordinary.

"So long as your young sappling wears this while activating an attack, it will do the required job but remember, it can only be used once," The Armadillo faced creature spoke while passing it to Shirmin on the other side.

"He won't get another chance to use it? That is quite risky... what if it misses the target?" Shirmin questioned.

"It can't. Once the target is decided by the user, nothing in the entire universe will stop it from meeting the goal," The Armadillo faced creature stated with an aura of confidence that immediately erased any doubt Shirmin had.

"Thank you," Shirmin said while keeping it away.

"Just pay my fee and scamper off, i have another appointment soon," The Armadillo faced creature voiced with a light chuckle.

However, in the next instant its facial expression suddenly changed.

"I have to go now! You can pay through the usual channels," It voiced quickly while standing to its feet.

This change shocked Shirmin as he had never seen this creature look so perturbed. It was always carefree and unbothered.

It frantically tapped on one of the multiple rings on its finger which glowed brightly but its face showed more shock as it remained in place.

"You cannot run from me!" A loud and powerful feminine voice reverberated across the vicinity causing its face to show even more fear.ReadNovelFull.com

"Who said that? What in the world is going on?" Shirmin became instantly startled as he jumped to his feet as well.

ReadNovelFull.com The Armadillo faced creature tapped on multiple buttons on his its fabric very quickly as a loud whoosing sound reverberated across the vicinity.

Thiiinnghhh~

A beam of light was emitted from his being as he vanished instantly. Meanwhile two individuals arrived in place of where the Armadillo face creature had just vanished from.

Shirmin who had already left the seating area when he noticed everything intensifying, could be seen leaving through the exit of the restaurant very quickly.

One of the individuals with a 6'2 build, extremely charming face with a dirty blonde hair and well chiseled upper body, was about to give chase when he felt a hand grab his shoulder.

"No need, he isn't who we're looking for," Stark voiced.

"Oh I thought we might need him too," Gustav said while pausing in his tracks.

"Miss Aimee is gone..." Gustav noticed.

"She chased after Axiler," Stark voiced.

"Looks like he knew we were coming," Gustav said with a tone of realisation while the entirety of the individuals in the surroundings stared at them with expressions of confusion.

They couldn't understand what was happening and why there was a popular IYSOP participant here right now.

"She has cau..." Before Stark could complete his sentence a figure flickered into existence right before their eyes.

The powerful looking figure in all white had the same Armadillo faced creature from before in her grasp as she floated slightly above the ground.

"...ght him," Stark finished his sentence after their appearance.

"He tried to escape in his spacecraft hovering deep in space," Miss Aimee voiced while holding the Armadillo face creature above the ground effortlessly.

'Did both of them just bypass the planet's security in seconds going back and forth within its orbit like its nothing?' Stark couldn't help but be astonished despite being aware that these were two legends in different fields.

It was even crazier that they were undetected and he had seen Axiler flying away in his spacecraft already but Miss Aimee was just too powerful. She breached it and took him out forcefully before bringing him back to the ninth disk. All in less than five seconds.

There was no doubt that had Gustav and Stark done this themselves without the help of Miss Aimee, Axiler would have been long gone already.

It seemed like he was ready to leave instantly at the first sign of danger. However, since this was Miss Aimee, he was completely out of luck. She had caught him in the past when she still took missions for the MBO, there was no doubt that she would capture him again, especially now that she was more powerful.

"A...ai... Aimee, please spare me eheei," Axiler shrieked in fear while begging.

"You shouldn't have tried to run then," Miss Aimee voiced while expressing a smirk of depravity.

"au au... I... its reflex action you can't blame me, please let me go, I'll give you half... no you can have all of my wealth," He begged frantically while recalling the past of how he suffered intensely in the hands of Miss Aimee in the past.

This woman was the devil to him. She imprinted a fear deep into his mind five years ago that he couldn't get rid of even till now.

"You know I need none of that. Even if you were to offer me your pitiful life, I wouldn't take it," Miss Aimee replied while turning around.

"I have something else you can do for me instead," Miss Aimee stated before flickering out of existence like she appeared here in the first place.

This didn't mean Miss Aimee had teleportation powers or anything, she was just so fast that it looked like she was vanishing when she moved. Miss Aimee had grown so powerful that her rapid movements didn't have much effects on the surroundings so everyone within the restaurant were barely affected.

Gustav and Stark on the other hand were different.

Fwwhooommssshhh~

They sped out of the place, causing winds to blast in every direction as Ozis law enforcement made their way to the location.

#####

"What do you want from me this time? Please hand me over to the authorities here," Axiler voiced within a secluded dark space.

He preferred being far away from Miss Aimee even if that meant getting locked up.

Chapter 1238 Witnessing Death

He preferred being far away from Miss Aimee even if that meant getting locked up.

"No, they will just get you out like last time. That's useless to me," Miss Aimee replied while conjuring a seat before the creature.

She proceeded to gracefully take her seat before Axiler who was completely bind.

Gustav stood by Miss Aimee's right and Stark stood by his.

"I heard you've been selling information on IYSOP using a sentient level breach artifact," Miss Aimee voiced with a frosty tone as usual.

"Ek... I... I... I am only trying to survive as a poor trader," Axiler responded with a shaky tone.

"You lying rat, you're already rich enough," Miss Aimee stated, causing Axiler to tremble even more.

"Anyways what i want is... I can't take you seriously with that look, take," Miss Aimee demanded strongly.

"Y...yes," Axiler quickly muttered a few incoherent words after replying.

"Iktu shei rakuma..." The sixth ring on his right hand emitted a greenish glow and in the next instant, Axiler began transforming.

Thrrriihhhh~

His furry skin turned smooth as the hairs on them retracted. His pointed rodent like face, reduced in width and increased in length, turning human like. The rest of his body changed as well and in the next moment what stared back at them was an extremely beautiful looking creature.

Axiler's face and skin were so smooth that they could be mistaken for glass. His skin was a mixture of yellow and whitish colors. There was no hair on his head, instead it was replaced with a red crown that looked like an helmet covering his entire scalp. This was surprising a part of his body and not a wear.

His beautiful figure and enhancingly structured body, along with his full red lips, would make anyone wonder if he was male or female. Anyone would be confused.

Gustav was glad Miss Aimee had informed him earlier that the Diklaros were genderless and usually reproduce asexually. He couldn't imagine just how many people would be disappointed by this all across galaxies where Axiler have visited in the past.

Gustav had no idea that Axiler also had to run from depraved and lustful male and female species who all wanted him to sate their sexual desires regardless of his origin.

"Better," Miss Aimee voiced before resuming.

"First tell us who your clients have been since the start of IYSOP," Gustav voiced from the side.

"It is not your place to ask me that little Chimp," Axiler responded with a scowl.

"Answer him," Miss Aimee stated with an authoritative tone.

"I'm not supposed to reveal my clie..." The instant his eyes met Miss Aimee's he paused.

"Diaporonians, Ridonta, Phixiq, Draconets, Xionsi..." Axiler began to list them one after the other without adding the details of what exactly he sold to them.

"That's a lot... I didn't think some of these planets were rich enough to afford your services," Miss Aimee said with a tone of interest.

Axiler had mentioned a total of eighty-seven planets that had contacted him for one service or the other since the competition began. This meant that a lot of these planets didn't care that he was a wanted entity despite being under the alliance.

"Not every single one of them requested for information on the future details of IYSOP. Some required cheaper services while some required services beyond just information," Axiler stated.

"Now here is what you're going to do... When next they require your services, you will provide them with wrong information... not just wrong, information that will sabotage their participation in the future challenges," Miss Aimee finally revealed her terms.

"But... but.. I can't do that... It would tarnish my reputation and I could lose lots of customers in the future," Axiler eyes expressed pleading.

"I don't care. That is the only reason you're here right now. You will sabotage the others for me," Miss Aimee stated with an intimidating expression.

Axiler gulped with fear and indignation in his eyes, "Please Please anything but this, I'll leave the planet right now if you want me to please..." He kept begging and laid on the ground before Miss Aimee

"This is the only thing I need you for or will you like for us to take a trip down memory lane?" Miss Aimee eyes emitted a mischievous glint as she stated.

"NO! PLEASE NO!" Axiler eyes widened as he wailed like a miserable new widow just by thinking about it.

'Just what did he experience for him to have this much fear?' Stark wondered.

'It's been a while since I last saw anyone show this much fear for Miss Aimee... She was truly a demoness back then,' Gustav recalled just how much fear her name and face would put in the minds of everyone who knew her back when they would go everywhere together.

#####

Within one of the rooms in the earth's participants accommodation area, a figure could be seen moving from side to side on a bed. I think you should take a look at

His sleeping face displayed an uncomfortable expression as he rolled across the bed while dark tattoos would occasionally appear on his body.

"Ughh..." He exclaimed in discomfort once more while still unconscious as a dark mark appeared on his forehead.

His eyelids twitched repeatedly as the mark grew until dark mist began to phase out of his head.

This dark mist started to form a spiky crown which hovered above his head while his body thrashed around even more violently and uncontrollably.

The moment the crown formed halfway, his eyes suddenly sprang open.

"Nooooooooo!" Falco yelled at the top of his voice as mist burst forth from his pitch black eyes.

Fwwwhhrrroooowwwmmmmm~

A cloud of darkness surrounded the entire structure instantly.

"I... don't... want... it..." He struggled vehemently, causing the crown to stop forming.

In the next moment the crown began dissipating along with the dark clouds in the vicinity.

Falco breathed profusely as the dark tattoos covering his body began to disappear as well. In a few moments, his breathing slowly calmed but the sweat covering his entire body was proof of his distress.

"Falco, are you okay?" A feminine voice was heard from the other side of the door ahead.

Falco recognised this voice to be Angy's but didn't respond immediately because he was trying to calm himself so as not to sound strange when he did.

"Hey man, we just wanna know if you're good... we heard screams," E.E voice was heard next from the other end of the door after there was no response for a couple of seconds.

Falco stood to his feet and walked towards his room door. He breathed in deeply once more to calm himself before sliding the door open.

"I'm fine guys, I was just training," Falco said with a smile as he stared at the three before his door. Angy, E.E and Teemee.

The trio had a look of relief on their faces as they heard that.

"Man we have a place for training haha we were worried when the entire building got covered with darkness," E.E said while tapping Falco's shoulder.

"My bad," Falco chuckled wryly but in the next instant his facial expression changed.

"What is that...?" He questioned with a look of horror while pointing forward.

"What is wha..." E.E hadn't managed to complete his question when a strong wave of darkness spread from up ahead.

Falco's eyes widened and his legs began trembling as the trio in front of him fell to the floor with their body parts splattering all across the place.

Angy's smiling face rolled to a corner as her head was cleanly decapitated. Her limbs looked like the props of a horror movie lined up before him as a pool of blood was formed on the floor.

"Auh..." His mouth slowly began to open as his eyes widened even more.

E.E's chest had a hole in it as his torso kissed the floor up ahead. His heart was still falling from the air, sending splutters of blood across the place. His two legs remained straightened on the ground as blood poured from his tip of his knees area which was missing along with the rest of his body.

"Auuhhh...."

Teemee's head stamped to the other end of the wall, missing eyeballs which upon closer look were rolling across the floor, right behind E.E.

The rest of his body parts along with his intestines and bowels, turned into a carpet behind E.E, making the floor look even more sophisticated as a stench of death spread across the air.

A gritty and long arm made from pitch darkness held onto Angy,'s head, lifting it off the ground.

"Auuuhhh...." Falco's knees continues to tremble intensely as he watched the horror that had unfolded before him powerlessly.

The long arm brought Angy's decapitated head to his face, holding it before him like it was trying to make a point.

Her smiling decapitated head showed no pain or discomfort like she had died before she could realise what was going on.

"Auugghhh!!!" Falco eyes turned completely red as he slumped to his knees while tears began streaming out of his eyes uncontrollably.

The dark arm brought the decapitated head down to his face level while it dripped with fresh blood continuously.

"Look at them!"

An imperial voice laced with dominance and doom voiced loudly.

Chapter 1239 Dark Falco Is Not Gone

The dark arm brought the decapitated head down to his face level while fresh blood dripped from it continuously.

"Look at them!"

An imperial voice laced with dominance and doom reverberated loudly across the space.

"I said LOOK... AT... THEM!"

The voice boomed loudly, causing Falco to raise his head as his lips quivered uncontrollably. Color had left his face at this point.

"Auughhhh!"

"It is all your fault! You did this to them!" Falco yelled.

"No... YOU DID THIS TO THEM. YOU ARE TO BLAME MY SON," The imperial voice boomed once more.

"Arrrghhhh!! Aahhhhhhhhhhh!" Falco began screaming at the top of his lungs. His heart broke into tiny little pieces as he stared at the scenery of death before him.

"You did this to them!" The voice stated once more, piercing deeper than a million knives into Falco's chest.

Falco clinched his hairs and pulled like he was trying to yank bits off his scalp as he kept screaming.

"NOOOOOO!" He screamed till his voice cracked when all of a sudden the world around him changed.

"Fuuu! Fuu! Fuu! Fuuu!" Falco eyes suddenly sprang open as he jolted from his bed, breathing erratically.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

"Falco! Are you okay in there?"

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

"We're coming in!"

A loud voice was heard from the other end and what came next was a loud crash.

Boom!

The door was blasted open with strong force, causing it to slam onto the wall on the other side.

"Guyyyss..." Falco's voice cracked as tears streamed down his face.

Everyone had looks of bafflement on their faces but Angy quickly reacted by stepping forward and pulling Falco into her embrace.

"You're alive..." His voice trailed off as Angy placed his face on her shoulder and gently stroked his hair.

"It's alright, its fine... I'm sure whatever happened was just a nightmare... you're good now," Angy comforted him with her words as well.

- "It's gonna be fine man,"

- "Are you okay?"

- "Do you need a glass of water?"

- "If you want to talk about it, we're here,"

The others gathered around Falco and comforted him as well, taking a seat beside Angy except for Endric who still stood at the entrance.

'Husarius what did you notice?' Endric questioned internally as he watched the scenery before him with a suspicious expression.

- 'A presence out of order... i have never sensed anything like it before but its gone now,' Husarius responded internally.

'Is it one of them? Because I recall you've only described them in a similar way before this,' Endric questioned internally.

- 'The possibility is high but at the same time, I do not understand what they would want with this kid... unless, this kid isn't what everyone thinks he is,' Husarius answered with a conflicted tone.

'What do you mean by that?' Endric brows furrowed.

"I mean, you might have to start considering him to be a threat," Husarius stated.

'Can't you just see into the fates again and confirm if he is going to be trouble or not?' Endric questioned.

'Not when it might directly connect to them. Such an act bears immense risk and we could be setting your brother back with such. As a time candidate you know very well we cannot use the power of the fates loosely...' Husarius cautioned knowing well that Endric was currently capable of doing it himself.

'You just have to be observant... keep your eyes on the kid,' He added.

'Hmm, alright,' Endric responded internally before stepping forward.

#####

"I lost Darko," Falco voiced in the living room of the accommodation area.

"Lost him? How is that even possible?" Teemee questioned with a look of confusion.

"I don't know... I just did. Since after I had that fight with the captain of the Draconets, I could no longer feel him... he's gone," Falco voiced in response.

"So all this time, you've been fighting by yourself? You've been the one using your dark bloodline abilities without his help?" Matilda questioned with a look of surprise. I think you should take a look at ReadNovelFull.com

"Yes..." Falco answered.

Everyone was stunned because they didn't notice this. They hadn't realised that it was Falco all this time because barely anything changed. His fighting was just as brutal.

"Dark Falco lives within you like a second personality so doesn't that mean that your current personality might have gained dominance?" Aildris voiced with a logical tone.

"He isn't a second personality. He is... was a part of me... how can I bring him back?" Falco said with a dejected expression.

"Have you tried speaking to hi..."

"I've tried everything that there is to try... No response... I can't feel or sense him... he just vanished," Falco leaned his face onto the palm of his hands in frustration.

ReadNovelFull.com He hated Dark Falco's existence in the past and how he would slaughter mindlessly whenever he took over his body. However, over time Falco had come to understand that despite how much Dark Falco insulted him, he was always doing all he could to protect.

Falco was losing his mind since Dark Falco vanished but he tried his best to be cool headed. He couldn't handle what came with the power of darkness... the continuous urge to commit heinous acts and subject living beings to experiences of torture.

It was driving him insane... Dark Falco seemed to handle it well but he couldn't.

It was even crazier now that he was having realistic nightmares...

'Realistic Nightmares...' Falco's mind went back to earlier.

"...YOU DID THIS TO THEM. YOU ARE TO BLAME MY SON,"

'Son?' Falco had thought his nightmares was from the crown of darkness but the words from that imperial voice plagued him.

He recalled his father on earth who was a business mogul with billions of rads. Although he was a mixedblood, he wasn't even close to being as powerful as Falco currently was.

'Dad couldn't even manage to pull something like this off even if he tried... why would that voice call me son? Is it another Manipulation tactic?' Whatever it was, Falco was surrounded that he was losing his mind.

He didn't know what to do at this point. The others were still speaking in the background and expressing ideas but Falco was already lost in deep thought so he wasn't listening.

Thiisshh~

The door at the entrance made a low noise as it slid open.

Falco looked up as this little sound brought him out of his reverie.

"Hmm? What's with the look on you guys faces?" Gustav questioned as he walked in.

"It's Falco..." E.E said from the side.

"He's having really intense nightmares," Angy said while rubbing Falco's back gently.

"Hmm..." Gustav's mind was instantly plagued with a myriad of thoughts as he picked one and centered on it.

'This all started with that incident in Aribia city... I'm sure it has something to do with what Dark Falco told me,' Gustav thought.

"He said Dark Falco is gone, he can't sense him anymore," Aildris voiced as well.

"I know," Gustav responded.

"You do?" The others were quite surprised that he was already aware.

"I sensed it from the time Falco got badly injured in the fight against Strum," Gustav stated.

'Nothing really gets past his eyes,' Similar thoughts ran through their mind.

Just as stated, Gustav was indeed aware that Falco had been battling all this time by himself. Despite all of Falco's actions to hide it, Gustav could still spot little differences between how they made use of the darkness bloodline.

"Why didn't you say anything?" Angy questioned.

"I figured he'd ask when he needed help... I didn't want to pry," Gustav didn't add that he had closely watched over Falco as well so he could act if things ever got to a level where Falco needed his help.

The others were not too glad with the fact that Gustav was aware of this and didn't do anything to help.

"He's gone..." Falco's voice trailed off as he spoke with a dejected tone.

"Falco are you aware that you're not who you think you are?" Gustav voiced as he stepped forward.

Everyone's faces instantly lit up with confusion as they heard this while Endric eyes emitted a glint of suspicion.

'It sounds like big brother knows something,' Endric thought.

"What do you mean? Are you talking about the crown?" Falco asked while looking up.

"Crown? What are you two talking about?" Teemee asked the question on everyone's mind.

"I do recall the crown but Dark Falco had also mentioned something back then when you were unconscious," Gustav stated.

Everyone was still lost at the moment, not understanding what the two were talking about and this was because none of them were present at the time. Even Falco was unconscious at the time.

"Dark Falco mentioned a couple of things back then which I am not very clear on yet but I am sure you know more by now... Another thing I'm sure of is that Dark Falco is not gone," Gustav said with a tone of certainty.

"Do you mean I can get him back?"

Chapter 1240 I Won't Accept!

Dark Falco mentioned a couple of things back then which I am not very clear on yet but I am sure you know more by now... Another thing I'm sure of is that Dark Falco is not gone," Gustav said with a tone of certainty.

"Do you mean I can get him back?" Falco expression brightened up with a hint of hope.

"Yes, he isn't a personality... from my observations, he is a different entity that just so happens to share a body with you. You stopped sensing him after the battle with Strum, right?" Gustav voiced.

"Yes... when I regained consciousness, I could no longer sense him," Falco replied.

"When did you awaken your bloodline?" Gustav questioned.

"Erm... I was ten at the time," Falco answered with a contemplative expression.

"When did Dark Falco appear and start taking over your body?" Gustav asked.

"About a year later... I was always unable to control my bloodline abilities before then," Falco recalled.

"Then, It is just as I thought..." Gustav voiced with a tone of realisation.

"What do you mean by that?" Falco inquired.

[God Eyes Have Been Activated]

"Some abilities have damages that are irreversible regardless of the applications of high grade meds... even if a person survives and gets treated, the side effects of getting hit with such an attack still remains..." Gustav's explanation caused everyone to perk their ears up as they focused their attention on him.

"You should have died when Strum's spear struck you... or more like your entire existence should have been reversed to the point where you become inexistent," As Gustav mentioned this, Falco's eyes widened slightly in realisation.

"Captain Strum's spear ability is time related," He voiced as his brain began piecing things together.

"Exactly... Dark Falco took most of the damage from that spear and despite the fact that you've completely recovered, the effects still linger. Dark Falco will come back but it will take time," Gustav voiced with a tone of certainty.

It was now apparent to every one that this was a time reversal effect that was untreatable.

"So he should be back in a year since it took that long for him to manifest in the first place..." Falco had a look of relief for a split second before it turned back to despair.

'I can't handle this by myself for a whole year...' Falco thought.

"It should be less than a year... that time your abilities were just manifesting, they were in no way as powerful as now. You should be able to bring him back faster," Gustav voiced in response.

"How? I've tried everything," Falco hand turned shaky as he stretched the right forward.

"You haven't tried everything..." Gustav said while shooting Falco a knowing glance.

Falco eyes widened in realisation, "I am not trying that... I am never trying that!" He yelled in fear.

"What is it?" Everyone was still confused even if they had a little grasp on the current predicament.

"Dark Falco said you'll become someone else if you were to transition completely and was against it at the time but it is your power after all... You don't have to accept it completely maybe you can tap enough from it to bring Dark Falco back," Gustav voiced lengthily.

"NO! I AM NEVER GOING TO ACCEPT THE CROWN!" Falco yelled while holding his head as he recalled all that had happened in his nightmare prior to this.

"Maybe this too isn't real... you're fake right? You're showing me another nightmare hahaha you psycho I won't..." Falco voiced like he was deranged while standing up and grabbing Gustav.

"You're not the real Gustav are you? Who..."

"Stop it," Gustav said while grabbing Falco's hands.

"I'm still in a nightmare! What's next huh? Hahaha I won't accept the crown! I won't accept it! I won't accept! I won't accept it! Ahhhhh!" Falco kept screaming and pushing Gustav forward.

Everyone had jumped to their feet at this point.

- "Falco calm down,"

- "It isn't a nightmare,"

- "He's only trying to help,"

- "This is real,"

"I won't accept it! Don't you dare hurt my friends!" Falco began screaming and crying at the same time.

"Okay Falco, its fine, you do not have to accept it," Gustav said while tapping on Falco's arms gently.

Falco paused as he heard that and began letting out heavy breaths.

"I can't just..." Tears began rolling out of his eyes once more.

The situation seemed dire than expected since this was something that weighed heavy on Falco's mental state.

Angy moved forward to console Falco again and get him to clam down. Almost eeryone assisted in getting him into his room to rest.

Gustav stayed back with a couple others. They all had disturbed expressions on their faces.

"Big brother, we need to talk," Endric voiced after approaching Gustav.

"Hmm, alright," Gustav responded.I think you should take a look at ReadNovelFull.com

They moved out of the accommodation area to the passageway so as to discuss privately.

"What is it?" Gustav inquired.

"Falco..." The instant, Endric mentioned his name Gustav let out a sigh that depicted he knew this was what the conversation was going to be about.

"He is a threat," Endric added.

"He is a friend," Gustav stated.

"A friend who is a threat to your wellbeing as well as that of the others," Endric said with a strong tone.

ReadNovelFull.com "I can handle myself and he hasn't done anything that makes him a threat yet so there is no reason to see him as one... yet," Gustav responded.

"You're letting your emotional attachments blind your logical sense of reasoning... I know you saw something that everyone didn't and you know more than we do... and I'm very sure that whatever you saw doesn't paint him in a very positive light, yet, you don't see him as a threat because of your emotions," Endric pointed out with a strong tone once more.

"Stop it. You don't know Falco. He has the best interests of the people he loves in his heart, that is enough to give him the benefit of the doubt. Like I said, he hasn't done any wrong," Gustav stated.

"Yet... He hasn't done any wrong yet. Are you going to wait till he puts everyone at risk before considering him to be a threat?" Endric inquired with knitted eyebrows.

"And what do you suggest should be done? I should walk in there and slaughter him just because of your suspicions? And then tell the others what? 'Endric said he was a threat so I killed him'?" Gustav stated with a slightly ridiculing tone.

"What is this really about?" Gustav questioned.

"Is there something you figured out that you're not telling me?" He added with a suspicious look.

"I am not sure yet but I think..."

"He has managed to fall asleep," Angy approached from the accommodation area, interrupting Endric's speech.

"We'll talk about this later," Gustav voiced before turning to the side.

"Gustav... everyone is worried, we want to understand what is going on," Angy said.

Gustav's face displayed a contemplative look before he began walking back to the accomodation area.

"Are you sure it is a good idea for Falco to fall asleep at the moment?" Gustav questioned as they walked back into the accommodation area.

"There's nothing else we can do to make him calm down. Mara administered some medications to dampen brain activity and bloodline circulation so it is very unlikely he'd have another nightmare," Angy explained.

Gustav was still concerned but he just had to let it be.

"With the current state of things, Falco seems unfit to join the next challenge. I'll be picking a substitute to fill his shoes tomorrow," Gustav announced to everyone.

"Who are you gonna pick?" Teemee asked.

"I haven't decided yet," Gustav responded.

"I believe we have a right to understand what's going on fully before we think of replacing him," Matilda chimed in while flaying her arms.

"Even I, do not fully understand what is going on so I suppose we will just have to wait and see," Gustav answered.

"But you do know more than we do, you just don't wanna tell us," Glade stated.

"We have every right to know, he's our friend too," Ria voiced.

"I hate to say it but I agree with them man... what ain't you telling us?" E.E added.

Gustav moved to the side and took his seat before everyone. They all stared at him with looks of curiosity, waiting to hear what he had to say.

"I cannot speak on matters that I haven't fully grasped. I had kept what happened from you all because I haven't fully uncovered it as well," Gustav explained.

"Just tell us what happened in Aribia city man... you seem to have witnessed something that we didn't," E.E voiced with a pleading tone.

-----SS

[Gravitational Manipulation Has Been Activated]

A Gravitational force blasted forth from Gustav's frame, causing the Diaporonians to pause in mid air.

Their liquid form began coming apart, turning into multiple ashy drops that separated in mid air.

However, the captain who was swivelling across the ground had managed to reach Wong's foot.

"Yaa! Hu! Hu!" Hong screamed as he ran around swinging his limbs to get rid of the captain but the Diaporonian had firmly stuck to him and spread around his entire body in a moment.

"I told you guys to be careful," Gustav voiced with a slight tone of frustration.

Fwwhiii~

Wong left a green blur across the place in the next instant...

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

"Ugh!"

"Gurrhh!"