

Bloodline 1251

Chapter 1251 Endric Vs Muvierd

'Are you saying he can see the future?' Gustav was a bit surprised as he wasn't aware of this.

("Not entirely no... He can just sense and tell how certain events will play out seconds or maybe minutes before they do. I'm not completely sure about the time frame but since he doesn't really see images or anything like that in his mind, it isn't that he sees the future. Its just prediction of sorts,") The system added.

If anyone heard this explanation they would only understand vaguely but Gustav completely understood what the system was talking about.

On the stage, Endric stood before what looked like a pavilion as multiple othe pavilions could be seen scattered across the vicinity.

"They caused big brother some trouble, it's only fair if i return the favour ,” He muttered while picking a planet to challenge.

-“Hmm?”

-“Someone challenged us?”

-“Who is it? Who dares!?”

In the area where the Draconets were situated, a glowing panel had appeared before one of them which obviously meant they had gotten challenged.

-“An earthling?”

-“It is that boy...”

-“They say he is the captain of earth little brother,”

Upon discovering that the challenge had been issued by Endric, their expressions turned less prideful. This was no weak or ordinary foe.

The feud between them and earth participants hadn't been settled. It seemed like one was waiting for the other to challenge them first and now that Endric had broken the ice, things were about to get crazy soon.

“Muvierd... He challenged you. Are you too cowardly to accept?” Captain Strum voiced from the side with a solemn tone.

“I will make him regret taking this action,” Muvierd stated while reaching out to accept the challenge.

“That's more like it,” Captain Strum voiced with a light chuckle.

Muvierd was just as tall as Captain Strum but had green shaped star patterns all across his body with a black and white face. He also had four legs and six six arms. This was another aspect that made him looking different from Captain Strum since Strum had only two legs.

Muvierd was a little more muscular but no one doubted who was more powerful amongst both of them. Muvierd was considered to be the third strongest amongst all twenty teammates.

-“Muvierd accepted the challenge,”

-“I'm glad we're getting to see more battles between powerful youngsters,”

-“Who do you think will win?”

-“Muvierd is very strong but so is that Endric kid so it is hard to say,”

The acceptance of the challenge caused discussions to break out amongst spectators especially in earth and Draconet area.

The Draconets spectators area just happened to be opposite Earth's on the other end of the arena.

“Brons Midely, do you think Muvierd will win?” At the first row of the Draconets area, a spectator questioned a female Dracon who had red star shaped marks all over with a calm demeanour.

“He knows he will be punished if he fails so I will not doubt that he shall give this battle his all,” The female Dracon answered with a slight hint of intimation in her multiple eyes.

“Little Strum won't be too brutal now will he? You seem to have given him a lot of leeway,” The Dracon on her right voiced with a dignified expression.

“He only does what is needed to bring home the title of champion,” Brown's Midely answered, her tone giving off a hint of pride.

The Dracon at the side scoffed after hearing that but didn't utter a response. They stared at Muvierd moving up to the stage where Endric was situated.

Endric stood before the massive traingular structured golden pavilion with his back facing it.

He was waiting for Muvierd's appearance.

Fwwhwooommm~

A loud whooshing sound reverberated across the air as a body appeared in the sky. As Endric bent his neck to stare upwards, Muvierd descended with great speed.

Thump~

He landed before Endric, causing a small ripple of dust to spread across the vicinity upon his descent.

Endric's neck remain bent as he stared back at Muvierd who was looking down on him due to their height difference.

Muvierd was taller than Aildris who happened to be the tallest in their group so it was no surprise Endric had to look up.

It was like standing before a giant but situations like this was all too familiar to Endric. Muvierd gazed down upon him, obviously trying to show intimidation and was starting to get furious when Endric expression remained calm.

< Endric Oslov (Planet Earth) Vs Muvierd Hitl (Planet Draconet) >

Bang!

Muvierd suddenly launched three fists at Endric the instant the go ahead for battle was given.

The attack had been so sudden and unexpected since spectators had thought they would at least give each other some distance before getting into it. I think you should take a look at Endric's body flew across the air, passing through the spaces in between the pavilion after receiving the unexpected and devastatingly powerful fists.

Muvierd flew after him instantaneously, joining the fists from his three arms together. He arrived above Endric's body and swung the six fists combined downwards.

Bang!

A loud collision rang out once more as shockwaves spread across the vicinity. Endric's body could be seen catapulting downwards but the moment he was close to hitting the ground, he did a flip.

Beam!

Endric landed on his feet without a single scratch on him. He saw the attacks coming and had protected himself with layers of telekinetic energy before contact was made. Besides this, Endric always had a standby layer of telekinetic energy less than an inch from his skin but not a single person was aware of this.

Nobody had touched Endric's real skin in a long time because this layer was active every second of the day.

Endric stared upwards to see Muvierd descending at impressive speed with his arms arched backwards.

Endric's eyes emitted a silvery blue glow as he raised his right hand and swept it upwards forcefully.

A strange energy spread from his figure as an invisible force shot upwards with intensity.

'That's his power... I am aware,' Muvierd threw fists forward the instant he sensed the energy.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

Heavy collisions rang out like explosions going off as Muvierd clashed repeatedly with Endric's telekinetic force before managing to land a couple of feet ahead of him.

Fwwhwiii~

Muvierd charged forward, sending out a flurry of punches that were so swift, leaving the spectators to witness multiple blurs.

Pah!

Endric snapped his fingers causing telekinetic walls to appear before him as he stepped backwards.

Swehiii~

Endric appeared hundreds of feet away as these telekinetic walls appeared before him like layers.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

Muvierd continuously moved with speed and vigor, smashing through the telekinetic walls with barrages of fists.

Fwwhoosshh~

Endric's body swerved to the side as he circled around the approaching opponents. Throwing his fist forward, a telekinetic force shot at Muvierd, in an approach to tackle him from the side while he was dealing with the walls.

Muvierd spared an arm to throw a fist at the approaching force of energy that was forcefully ripping through the air.

Bang!

Upon contact, Muvierd's entire body was sent frying intensely.

“Urgh!” He groaned as the fist he had spared to counter wasn't powerful enough.

'His telekinetic energy is stronger than a while ago?' Muvierd came to a realisation as his giant body spiralled across the air.

Endric stood in the same position and snapped his fingers again.

“Moon Drop...”

Just as Muvierd was about to stabilise his body in mid air he felt a great pressure descend from above.

His body paused for a brief instant before he shot down at extremely high speed.

BANG!

The stage across a radius of five thousand feet instantly caved the moment he hit the ground.

From the spectators point of view, it looked as like Muvierd body slamming onto the stage was the reason for this, however, people like Gustav knew there were other factors involved.

Endric had dropped a telekinetic attack shaped like the moon on Muvierd. The weight, force and speed at it which descended were all factors that caused the entire stage to cave.

Muvierd who was now bleeding from his head and some parts of his body, tried to get up when he felt a another powerful force descending.

This time he quickly reacted by raising his six arms to stop it.

Bang!

The sound of collision rang out once more as a small ripple of wind spread forth across the vicinity. However, this time Muvierd had managed to catch the telekinetic attack.

His four legs planted firmly into the ground as his body was positioned in a arch while his hands trembled from the weight.

Muvierd gritted his teeth as he stopped Endric's moondrop this time.

However, before he could take any action he spotted Endric up ahead snapping his fingers from his left hand.

Muvierd seven eyes widened as his face scrunched up.

thrrriihhhzzh~

Chapter 1252 Battle Intensifies

Muvierd seven eyes widened as his face scrunched up.

thrrriihhhzzh~

The familiar pressure he felt a while ago doubled as Endric activated another Moon Drop while the current one was still active.

Boooommmm!

Another shockwave spread across the entire vicinity as dust particles and debris was formed from the force of collision.

The visibility from the stage was greatly hindered, leaving a lot of the spectators with looks of intrigue and awe.

Amongst the many stages where battles were ongoing, this happened to be one that had experienced the most destruction in a very short duration.

The debris that covered the air hadn't even cleared when the sound of collisions began to ring out again. The less powerful spectators couldn't see through all of that but Gustav and many others knew exactly what was going on.

Endric leapt backwards within the debris covered environment.

Bang!

In the next instant, a massive dark arm fisted a hole through the ground of the area he just evaded

As the massive arm swung across the air, wind spread from it, clearing the entire vicinity.

The moment clarity was regained, everyone spotted a massive shadowy figure hovering above the area where Muvierd was positioned.

It turned out that Muvierd had summoned his encour at the last split second to bear the weight of the Endric's second moon drop.

After the visibility of the environment reduced immensely, the encour tried attacking Endric.

Fortunately, Endric could see clearly so he was aware that his second attack had gotten flanked. He immediately released his energy and swerved to the side to dodge the attack of the Encour.

The Draconet Encours always varied in sizes and Muvierd's happened to be larger than that of Captain Strum's but it still wasn't the largest in the group.

The encour looked like it was wearing a pointy hat but that was just the shape of its head. The rest of its body looked like it was in a shadowy gown as it stood over a hundred and twenty feet tall.

Muvierd raised two of his arms and pushed two others forward while letting the last two face the ground.

The instant he performed this action, three green rings emitting bright glows appeared in mid air before the massive Encour.

These green rings each had different sizes and were positioned around separate heights in mid air before the Encour.

The Encour stood proudly with arms extended, ready to follow whatever command its conjurer gave.

Endric channeled his bloodline intensely at this point, causing his black curly hair to flutter as wind began gathering around him.

Muvierd moved at this instant...

Fwwhiii~

The moment he sped forward, he closed in the distance between himself and Endric. It was almost like summoning his Encour had given him a boost in speed.

Endric body fluidly moved sideways as he tried evading the furious swings of Muvierd who still had a bloody face.

Thrrriinnghh~

One of the green glowing circles suddenly descended with speed, appearing in between Endric and Muvierd.

Endric's eyes widened in realisation as he swiftly leapt backwards and pushed his right hand forward conjuring telekinetic barriers before him in successions.

The moment Muvierd's fists went through the glowing green ring, hundred of fists suddenly appeared on the other side.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

The combined forces of these hundreds of fists, blasted through the telekinetic barriers Endric had conjured arriving before him in powerful waves.

Bam!

Endric conjured one last telekinetic covering over his entire figure as he got blasted across the air intensely.

The stage grounds had forcefully split into multiple cracks despite its already decimated state due to the multiplication of Muvierd's fist.

As Endric's body shot across the air, the Encour thrust its palms in his direction.

Endric reacted by quickly pushing his palms upwards to conjure a telekinetic wall that would protect him, however in the last instant he noticed that one of the green glowing circles had appeared between his body and the palms of the giant Encour.

Blink!

Endric blinked while pointing east.

In the next instant, the shadowy large palms phased through the glowing green ring, and hundreds of them suddenly appeared all across the vicinity.

BANG! BANG! BANG! BANG! BANG! BANG!

The palms descended upon the ground in barrages, causing even more destruction to the vicinity as powerful shockwaves spread across it.

If it wasn't for the barrier covering the circumference of the stage, the entire arena would no doubt have been affected by this battle.

Endric reappeared about three thousand feet away from his initial location right before the dome that covered the stage since there wasn't anymore room for him to teleport to.

A rectangular shaped telekinetic barrier surrounded his figure as the shockwaves from the barrages of the massive shadowy palms continuously descended upon the ground.

Bang!

It heavily slammed into the barrier he used in surrounding himself causing Endric to pour even more energy into it.

Fwwhiiisshhh~

A green circle suddenly appeared before him and from the other end came six fists shooting forward at the same time.

Blink~

Endric used blink again the instant Muvierd's fist phased through the glowing green ring that had just appeared before him.

Swwhiii~

His figure emitted a silver glow as he vanished the moment hundreds of fists tore through the telekinetic barrier he had just conjured.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

The dome covering the stage flickered repeatedly upon the powerful collisions from hundreds of Muvierd's fists. However, it still managed to hold as Muvierd retracted his fist after missing Endric.

"You can't run forever weakling!" Muvierd yelled as he turned around and began flying in the direction Endric had just reappeared in.

On the earth's spectators area, they watched with tensed expressions.

- "This Muvierd person is giving our Endric a tough time,"

- "He became stronger after that thing appeared on the stage,"

- "It is called an Encour and yes, it is meant to boost the abilities of the Dracons,"

They exchanged dialogues wondering how Endric would get the chance to counterattack, talk more of winning.

Gustav, watched from his position with an indifferent expression as usual. While the earth spectators were worried and the Dracons were cheering Muvierd on, he analysed the ongoing battle.

'The rings multiplies anything that goes through it...' Gustav wasn't the only one that figured this out.

However, besides the Dragons, he was the only one that knew it actually multiplied everything that went through it and not just Muvierd attacks alone.

("It would be very difficult for Endric to get the chance to counterattack, the shockwaves are too powerful so even if he doesn't get hit directly by any of the attacks, the shockwaves are still enough to cause a lot of damage,") The system analysed as well.

Gustav's eyes emitted a scarlet and green glow with a hint of gold as his vision remained fixated on the battle.

'Readings from God Eyes put the strength of these attacks to be capable of destroying a moon,' Gustav said internally.

("Yeah but will Endric...")

'Oh he'll win alright. I have no doubts about that,' Gustav was still the only one who knew Endric was currently not using all he had.

Endric was the time Candidate afterall. The places he had ventured into were legendary locations that would scare the powers currently spectating IYSOP. He had a lot of tricks up his sleeves.

Currently on the stage, Endric was starting to take damage as he couldn't keep evading the onslaught of attacks that gave him not a single moment of breathing space.

His telekinetic barriers cracked multiple times as he was running out of space to blink to.

'Can I activate my universe here?' Endric asked internally as he kept getting tossed from place to place.

'The barrier covering the stage prevents anyone from leaving till the battle is over... activating your universe will be hindered because it is just like leaving. Of course you could overpower it but we are unaware if that will lead to any disqualification or not so I do not advice it,' Husarius answered from within.

'Hmm... that's quite problematic,' Endric thought but he wasn't too bothered.

'I'll just need to win some other way then,' He thought as he activated 'Blink' again.

Endric vanished the moment fists approached from the left and right simultaneously. Muvierd and his Encour missed Endric again as he appeared thousands of feet at the east.

The moment he reappeared in another location, they moved like it had already been predicted.

However in that split second of freedom, a purplish gauntlet appeared in Endric's grasp. The instant he wore it on his right arm, energy built up around him very quickly

Fwwhii~

"Telekinetic Charge!" Endric voiced as Muvierd appeared before him while.

A silvery blue wave of energy burst forth from his being immensely spreading across the entirety of the stage in an instant.

Muvierd as well as his Encour got pushed backwards but at this same instant something noticeable happened.

The moment part of the telekinetic charge phased through the green glowing rings, its intensity multiplied.

Bang!

The massive Encour was blasted back intensely as the wave bore a hole into the ground that was thousands of feet deep.

Waaahhhhh~

Chapter 1253 Thank You Big Brother

Bang!

The massive Encour was blasted back intensely as the wave bore a hole into the ground that was thousands of feet large.

The encour slammed into the dome on the other side and Muvierd fell to his knees in the next instant.

"Koorrh! Koorrh!" He coughed out blood after his Encour took damage.

It wasn't that Endric was not aware that the Encour was also the weakness of Draconets, he just hadn't gotten the opportunity to deal it any damage. He wasn't aware that the rings would multiple attacks from an opponent as well so this pleasantly took him by surprise.

"It's my turn now,"

Taking hold of this opportunity, Endric sent forth a massive telekinetic hand which wrapped around Muvierd entire body, lifting him into the air before slamming him onto the already decimated ground.

Swwiihh~ Swihhh~ Bang! Bang! Bang! Swwiih~

Endric kept waving his hand across the place, causing Muvierd's figure to slam into the ground and the dome surrounding the vicinity.

"Ugh!" Muvierd groaned in pain while trying to free himself.

He had taken more damage in the process however, this didn't last as the Encour at the far end of the stage stood up shortly after Endric's Telekinetic Charge.

The green glowing rings shot forward as it charged in Endric's direction.

Endric turned his face to the side as he spotted one of the gigantic green glowing rings appear before him with incoming attacks from the Encour.

At this moment, something spectacular occurred...

Endric sped in the direction of the glowing green ring like he was charging towards his death while the fist from the encour was only one foot away from phasing through the ring.

Pah! Thwosshhh~

Endric snapped his finger, causing a telekinetic barrier to appear between the fist of the Encour and the ring, preventing it from going through.

Krrrryychhh~

It only took a split second for the encour to blast through the barrier.

Bang!

However, the momentary delay gave Endric enough time to arrive in front of the ring before the Encour.

Muvierd who had gotten freed after Endric performed this foolhardy action, realised what Endric was trying to do.

All of his eyes widened as he jumped to his feet and charged forward with all of his might, ignoring the multiple injiries on his body.

"NO!" He yelled with an horrified expression as he watched Endric leap through the glowing green ring.

Fwwhiii~

The instant Endric's body phased through the ring he felt an indescribable feeling, like his body was being split apart. In theory, his cells, consciousness, and everything that made up his existence were replicating at insane rate.

Waaahhhhh~

The voices of the spectators rang out as over three hundred Endric's appeared all across the stage.

"I AM EVERYWHERE!" Endric voiced in surprise but then covered his mouth as he noticed that his exact words had been chanted by every single replication, causing the surroundings to tremble.

He could control every single one of his replications with ease since he felt like his mind was within all of them.

He didn't know how long this would last so only one thought appeared in the minds of all the Endric's

"Yaaahhhh!"

A battle roar rang out from the army of Endric's as they all activated their telekinetic energy at the same time.

Ghrrrrhhh! Fwhiii~ Fwwhii~

A tremendous pressure descended upon the entire vicinity, giving neither Muvierd or his Encour the chance to evade.

Bang! BANG!

They didn't fall to their knees, they fell face flat on the ground unable to battle against the combined force of the Endrics.

Muvierd was lifted into the air in the next instant and tossed across the place.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

An Endric would drive a fist into his face, causing him to catapult towards another direction. Another Endric would be waiting for him a couple of feet away, who would also slam Muvierd with an heavy fist, causing him to shoot in a different direction.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

At this point, they had turned Muvierd into a lawn tennis ball. They kept swatting him across the place like a fly, leaving him no chance to fight back.

A couple of Endrics activated Moon Drop, causing Muvierd's Encour to be completely crushed under its weight as the Moon Drops stacked atop each other.

Muvierd was not only outwardly damaged at this moment, he has also sustained internal injuries from the brutality his Encour suffered in the hands of the Endrics.

Muvierd's Encour was stronger than the usual but after getting damaged continuously, it finally vaporised, leaving a gust of dark mist.

The Endrics formed a massive catapult like weapon with their telekinetic prowess combines. A massive pillar like projectile which was close to a hundred feet in length was mounted before it.

The other Endrics dealing with Muvierd on the other end suddenly grabbed hold of him and ascended into the air.

Fwwhiii~

They flung him in the direction of the massive catapult like weapon that had been formed from telekinesis. The massive pillar like projectile went off at this instant with over twenty Endric's pouring their energies into it to increase its mass and speed.

BANG!

A loud crash rang out as the tip of pillar like telekinetic projectile slammed heavily into Muvierd's body.

Powerful shockwaves spread across the place along with the sound of bones cracking, as Muvierd's face caved in.

Thrrrooommmmm~

The telekinetic projectile kept ascending with Muvierd's body still stamped to its tip before it collided with the barrier above.

Booom!

A loud explosive like crash reverberated across the vicinity as the barrier whittled away instantly.

Fortunately, the barrier seemed to have layers and only the first layer seemed to have been destroyed by that attack otherwise, Muvierd's body would have been sent to outerspace.

Thriihh~ Thriihhhh~ Thriihh~

The multiple Endrics began to vanish and in the next moment only a single Endric was left standing in the middle of a completely disfigured battle stage.

Pah!

He snapped his finger, causing the Telekinetic projectile to dissappear. The moment it vanished, Muvierd's unconscious and battered body began falling from the air.

Witnessing this, everyone knew the battle was over at this point.

At Draconets spectators area, all sort of glances were being shot at the stage, ranging from disbelief to disappointment.

"How did this earthling manage to survive the replication? Not even Muvierd would dare going through any of the rings with his full body?" Brons Midely questioned while squeezing one of her fists in anger.

"It is confusing to me as well... he should have been ripped to pieces the moment he went through. This earthing... how?" The male Draconet beside her also voiced out his confusion.

< Endric Oslov (Planet Earth) Wins >

< 1100 Points Attained >

"That useless little thing," Captain Strum cursed as he stared at the screens that displayed the loss of the Draconets.

Chatter! Chatter! Chatter! Chatter!

The entire arena had descended into noise at the moment. Cheers as well as exclamations of awe reverberated across the place.

Other battles in this batch were still ongoing but the one between Endric and Muvierd had completely captivated them. Everyone believed this to be the most intense battle since the start of the battle versus challenge.

The participants considered to be the most powerful in IYSOP had only just began challenging themselves so a battle on this level of destructiveness was the first of its kind since.

The spectators were fired up expecting more battles like this to happen soon while Earth was elated and ecstatic.

Every earthling that witnessed that battle initially had the impression that Endric might lose since Muvierd was not a weak opponent in the slightest. Now that things had gone this way, their morale had been boosted.

Endric was no doubt one of the most spectacular participants representing earth.

"Good job little man," E.E wrapped his arm around Endric's neck as he arrived before them.

There were bloodstains on different parts of Endric's body E.E didn't mind getting stained.

Everyone congratulated Endric on a good job except Gustav and Yuhiko. Yuhiko couldn't even go near him for obvious reasons.

Endric stared forward to see Gustav gesturing at him to come over. He slowly made his way out of the encirclement of the group and arrived before Gustav.

"Big... brother...?" Endric muttered with a nervous expression while looming down.

"Good job... made me proud, " Gustav voiced with a warm tone while stretching his hand forward to fondle Endric's curly hair.

A smile instantly appeared on Endric's face as tears brimmed in his eyes.

"Thank you big brother... thank you," Endric rubbed his eyes with his sleeves while voicing out.

For others this was a confusing scenario but only those who knew Gustav and Endric well along with their backstory understood.

Endric felt the weight of heavy load lifted off his chest as he finally looked up at his big brother's face, 'He finally completely acknowledges me as his little brother,'

Endric could tell that Gustav had truly forgiven him now and it was a great feeling for him. He felt all his hardwork to prove himself had paid off.

Chapter 1254 Yuhiko The Actress

Endric could tell that Gustav had truly forgiven him now and it was a great feeling for him. He felt all his hardwork to prove himself had paid off.

The battles continued and soon the batch ended. Endric and Muvierd's battle along with four others had been the highlight of this batch.

To say the spectators were stunned would be an understatement. Things were getting more interesting as weaker planets lost all of their points and got automatically disqualified.

Soon the planets challenging weaker ones to easily gain points would be unable to do so anymore once every single one of them was gone.

"Yuhuko, are you ready?" Gustav voiced while approaching the black haired beauty with a doll like face.

"Huh? Eh? What do you mean?" Yuhiko questioned with an expression of confoundment.

"We've lost 1200 points from declining the other challenges after our three tries," Gustav voiced.

Yuhiko nodded while maintaining an expression of intrigue wondering where Gustav was going with this.

"It's time to regain everything and add a little more to that," Gustav added.

"Huh? How? What d... do you mean?" Yuhiko stuttered.

Gustav stood before her and gave her a small finger twack on her forehead.

"You're going next dummy," He voiced.

Yuhiko looked up at the screens displaying the one hundred fifty participants selected for the next batch.

"I am not amongst," She voiced with confusion still.

"Yes but one of these participants are going to challenge you and its going to be someone with a high number of points," Gustav responded.

"Are you saying I should accept... a challenge?" Yuhiko eyes widened with an expression of surprise.

"Yes... don't be slow," Gustav responded.

"But I thought..." Yuhiko still couldn't hide the look of surprise on her face.

"Whatever you thought was wrong. I was letting everyone bear a stereotypical thought about you in their minds. It's gonna pay off now," A smirk appeared on Gustav's face as he closed in further on Yuhiko.

"You go out there, take them by surprise and win," After voicing this out Gustav turned around and moved back to his initial spot.

Yuhiko's body trembled slightly in both excitement and anticipation as she stared in Gustav's expression.

'I was wrong... he only did this to make everyone have a wrong assumption so it would be easier for me to win when I finally accept a challenge,' Yuhiko came to this realisation and her body trembled even more.

What a cunning young man...

As the next batch participants began making their way to the various stages, different discussions had broken out amongst the spectators area.

-"Captain Vilax is a part of this batch,"

-"The last two times he absolutely destroyed his opponents,"

- "Istron is part of this batch as well,"

- "I see Veskes as well,"

- "This batch is going to be intense as well,"

The spectators could recognise multiple participants representing planets that were in the thirty and twenty.

Yuhiko was a little intimidated after noticing the line up. She wondered if could truly defeat any of these participants but she maintained a focused expression.

About two minutes later, things went exactly as Gustav had predicted.

- "That earth participant replacement has been challenged again,"

- "What is the point? She is just going to decline again,"

- "Earth sure has a lot of points to spare,"

- "What a disgrace,"

While everyone was expressing their opinions of ridicule, Yuhiko stared at the light panel before her which of course showed 'Decline' and 'Accept'.

She turned to stare at Gustav by the side who nodded at her. Yuhiko proceeded to accept in the next moment.

< Yuhiko Of Planet Earth Has Accepted Veskes Of Oxlrk Challenge >

Waaaahhhh~

The spectators including that of earth's exclaimed with looks of surprise.

- "She accepted?"

- "I thought she was just a stand in?"

- "What is going on?"

Yuhiko's acceptance had definitely shocked everyone including the participants on their various stages at the moment. Some of them wished they had sent a challenge first since they saw Yuhiko as an easy participants to get points from.

Captain Vilax stared at the panel before him that displayed earth.

'Looks like I was too slow,' He internally regreted before deciding to challenge another planet.

Yuhiko approached the stage that was filled with water. It was like a small stream since the surface of the body of water was lower than their knees.

All around them were small rocks potruding out of the water and a few floating in mid air.

Her opponent stood on one of the floating rocks and stared down at her as she walked into the stage. Veskes was an Oxlrkik representing Planet Oxlrk.

Just like the usual Oxlrkiks, he had a cone shaped upper body with long arms nearly reaching his feet and a head sized hole on his chest. It's head was faceless yet but when it was about to speak, a mouth shaped hole appeared in the middle of its faceless head.

"You weren't my target but since you're easier to deal with I picked you," Veskes stated with a monotonous voice.

"Please take it easy on me," Yuhiko played the part by responding with a pleading and gentle voice.

"Hmmm alright I'll take it easy on you," He said before jumping down.

SPLASSHH!

"Thank you... what a pretty creature," Yuhiko voiced with a seductive tone.

"You think I'm pretty?" Veskes asked with a slightly intrigued tone.

"Hihihi of course... Just take it easy on me please, I know you're powerful," Yuhiko said while blushing.

"Ahem... yes I..." While Veskes was responding with a rather shy tone...

< Veskes Drupit (Planet Oxlrk) Vs Yuhiko Grande (Planet Earth) >

This moment this appeared on the screens above, Yuhiko's shy expression and smile vanished as she kicked up water with her feet.

Thrrriihhh~

This splash of water instantly transformed into golden spikes that shot forward with intensity in Veskes direction.

This sudden attack took everyone by surprise, Veskes included. He quickly tried to move aside to evade them but he couldn't get away fast enough to dodge all of the golden spikes.

Just as one was a couple feet away from contact, the hole in Veskes chest suddenly lit up with a bright red color.

Thiiinnggh~

A red beam shot forward with intensity in the next instant, incineration the golden spike and blasting a hole through some rocks up ahead.

Yuhiko had already moved the moment she initiated her first attack so at the moment she was ten feet away from Veskes as she approached from the right.

Veskes turned to face her as the beam in the middle of his chest began building up power again.

"You stupid bitch! You played me!"

At this same moment, he noticed that Yuhiko had a handful of nuts in her grasp which made him a little confused.

In the next instant he finally understood what Yuhiko's abilities were as his mouth widened in shock.

Yuhiko had thrown out the multiple nuts in her grasp and the moment she did, they transformed into gigantic rocks.

Rocks began raining down from the air, causing Veskes to focus on evasion again.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

Large amount of waves splattered in every direction as the rocks crashed onto the body of water one after the other.

Yuhiko didn't stop there, she flung out more nuts which increased in size, turning into rocks that were hundreds of feet large and speeding forward with intensity.

Not only were rocks raining from the air, they were also speeding forward at Veskes who had no other option but to do his best in evading.

'Damnit! Transmutation! She is not as weak as I thought,' Veskes cursed internally as he leapt sideways to dodge another raining rock.

Thooooommm~

He fired a beam at another rock that was close to making contact.

Boom!

He proceeded to jump through the hole he created in the rock only to meet another up front.

Boom! Boom! Bang! Bang! Bang!

For the next five minutes Veskes was unable to do any other thing rather than evasion and attacking the rocks that were turned into projectiles.

From the earth's spectators area, Gustav watched with a look of satisfaction.

'Yuhiko is only a kilo ranked but her bloodline... raises her potential to a higher level,' Gustav wasn't surprised that this was the case.

("Her bloodline is like an upgrade of Aimee's,") The system chipped in.

If anyone was to ask who was stronger between the two, he would say Veskes. However, he would mention that Yuhiko was more powerful overall due to the abilities that her bloodline granted her.

She had come far from the time she nearly crushed him to death. Gustav could see that she was capable of applying her bloodline in different ways now.

On the stage, Veskes had closed in on Yuhiko because she ran out of nuts. He lunged forward at her while she was trying to get some more things to hurl from her storage device.

The water surrounding them suddenly turned into mud and Veskes found himself sinking.

Yuhiko's standing point in the water turned solid and lifted her in the air like an elevator.

"Nnghh?" Veskes looked up and noticed another massive rock dropping from the sky.

Chapter 1255 You Are Pretty!

Yuhiko's standing point in the water turned solid and lifted her into the air like an elevator.

"Nnghh?" Veskes looked up and noticed another massive rock dropping from the sky.

Throooou~

Red beams suddenly shot out from the soles of his feet, freeing him from the muddy terrain.

The incoming rock was close to colliding with his skull when his left arm lengthened, shooting towards a nearby floating piece of rock.

twhwiii~

The moment the lengthened hand, clutched the rock firmly, it pulled his entire figure away.

Bang!

He narrowly managed to escape getting crushed as he climbed onto the floating piece of rock he used to save himself.

The moment Veskes got away, he rays of light began to gather within the hole on his chest.

'I'll just destroy everything in range then...' This thought appeared in his mind as the air began to vibrate.

-

On another battle stage, two figures clashed repeatedly.

One of them had a brownish insect like face with long antennas and intense green eyes positioned at the top of the two antennas. His flowing silky green robes flapped loudly as his body blurred repeatedly while he clashed with his opponent.

His opponent on the other hand was a white skinned being with thick gator like tail that was over twelve feet long. He had two eyeballs positioned at the front and back of his face with a humaooid like body structure.

These two were the Ozious and Sinxtro Captains. Captain Vilax had challenged Doxta twenty minutes ago and the latter accepted his challenge.

The battle seemed quite intense as both figures turned to blurs that appeared all across the stage constantly.

Bang!

Their fists clashed once more in the middle of the ring, causing a wave of strong winds to spread in every direction.

Both figures separated after the clash, landing hundreds of feet away from each other.

The brownish aura like energy surrounding Captain Vilax figure intensified as he spoke, "You are really good but how long can you go before making use of an ability,"

"Hmm as long as possible... I'll never let you successfully imprint," Captain Doxta responded with his back eyes squinting.

"Are you sure about that? You'll lose if you don't use your abilities," Captain Vilax warned.

"I think I'm doing just fine," Captain Doxta responded before straightening his hands and charging forward once more.

Captain Vilax met his attacks with equal force, pushing his insect like arms forward as they clashed repeatedly once more.

- "Captain Doxta is really playing it safe,"

- "But can he really keep going this way without using an ability?"

- "Captain Vilax can't defeat him either,"

- "This is one hell of a stalemate,"

Spectators also had their eyes on the battle of Captain Doxta and Vilax which currently looked like they were on the same level.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

They clashed repeatedly for the next few minutes but Captain Doxta was starting to get worried the more they clashed.

The brownish aura surrounding Captain Vilax was increasing as the battle went on and this was quite worrisome.

'He hasn't imprinted yet... how does it keep climbing?' Captain Doxta wondered but after sometime he understood why.

Captain Doxta began to spot weird markings on his hands the more he clashed with Captain Vilax.

Fwwhii~ Fwwhii~ Fwwhii~

He suddenly distanced himself from Captain Vilax, jumping back multiple times. Captain Vilax green eyes darted in his direction before he turned into a blur once more.

Thrrrihh~ Thrrrihhh~ Thrrrihh~

He swung his fingers at Captain Doxta repeatedly who reacted by swerving sideways to evade. Captain Doxta did his best to avoid making contact with Vilax as he kept moving backwards while evading.

"You've noticed haven't you?" Captain Vilax questioned with a tone of intimidation while still sending out a flurry of attacks.

"How did you manage to..." Captain Doxta voiced while pushing his neck to the side, barely managing to evade one of Captain Vilax's thrust.

"It doesn't matter, so long as I don't make contact with you, it should be okay," Captain Doxta leapt across the air in the next instant.

Thooooommm~

As his body ascended, so did Captain Vilax's, giving him not a second of breathing space.

"How long do you think you'll be able to keep evading," Captain Vilax voiced while chasing after him.

"How long do you think you'll be able to keep attacking," Captain Doxta shot back.

"I guess we shall see," The brownish aura covering Captain Vilax body spiked again.

As the battle continued, Captain Doxta realised that he couldn't keep evading and swung his tail at a tree behind.

The moment his tail completely wrapped around the tree, he yanked it off the ground and flung it in Captain Vilax's direction.

Bang!

With a double spin while flying across the air, Captain Vilax swung his foot at the tree, instantly causing it to split in two.

swhiio~ wwiii~ Wwhii~

That wasn't the end of it as ten more trees were flung out simultaneously which Captain Vilax either evaded or cleaved in half.

'I'll activate it for a split second and attack him before he realises what is happening,' Captain Doxta said internally as he sped towards the left while his eyes emitted blue glows.

Circular blue energy swirled around his arms as he raised them, pointing his fingers in Captain Vilax's direction while Vilax was thwarting the trees shooting at him.

Glowing blue firearms materialised in Doxta's grasp which he joined together swiftly to produce something even larger resembling a massive gun.

BOOOM!

He fired it instantly at Vilax who had only just noticed the powerful force of disintegrating blue beam when it was inches from his face.

At this same moment, the brownish aura surrounded Vilax climbed intensely, blanketing the entirety of the stage while the beam made contact with his face.

Waaahhh~

Loud voices of disbelief rang out as the spectators watching this battle witnessed a shocking scenario.

-

On Yuhiko's side of the stage havoc and destruction had surrounded the entirety of the stage.

Red circular glowing energies floating in different locations were sending forth charges one after the other that caused everything in view to disintegrate.

The body of water below evaporated, turning to steam as the rocks floating in mid air crumbled to dust as well.

After a minute, all that could be seen around was an empty vicinity with a completely charred ground that had gotten leveled.

On a part of this ground, a pod like cover extending from the ground split in two and a girl with a slightly darkened body fell out of it.

"Koorrrh! Koorrrh!" She coughed profusely as a figure landed before her.

Twack!

An intense kick sent her flying after this figure mercilessly swung his foot at her.

Yuhiko eyes watered due to the hotness of the environment as her figure flew across the air.

Bam! Bam! Bam!

Her body ricocheted across the ground as Veskes leapt into the air and landed on her body.

She was completely pinned to the ground in the next instant as Veskes began to rain fists on her face.

"You dare fool me!?"

Bang!

"Guess who is pretty now!?"

Bang!

"Not you,"

Bang!

"I'll mess up that human face of yours!"

Bang!

- "Oouu he must have really gotten triggered about getting called pretty,"

- "As far as male Oxlrkik beauty standards go, he's ugly,"

- "That is why he must be so triggered,"

- "Welp that earth girl is losing now even though she was pretty good,"

The spectators watching this part of the battle stage all concluded on Yuhiko's loss as she continued to take a beating.

"Wait..." Yuhiko suddenly voiced out, causing Veskes to pause.

He subconsciously held on for an instant with one of his fist a few inches from her face.

"You are actually pretty..." She voiced while spitting out blood.

"Don't try to fool me again..." He voiced while arching his arm back once more.

"I'm serious you're pretty..." Yuhiko breathed in and out profusely as she voiced causing Veskes to pause again.

"...pretty stupid..." Yuhiko adding this to the mix caused Veskes face to scrunch up as he yelled out and threw his fist forward...

"You bit..."

Before he could complete his action, he felt a chill within his body and in the next instant the world around him tumbled.

"...warruuhh glinmg eoonn..." His voice trailed away as his speech pattern became unrecognisable.

Waaahhhhh~ Chatter! Chatter! Chatter!

Exclamations and expressions of shock could be seen on the faces of the spectators as thsy stared at the screens.

Veskes body had fallen to the ground like a piece of inflated rubber. It seemed like his internal skeletal system suddenly dissappeared as he found himself unable to move or even speak up.

Yuhiko's left hand could be seen clutching his left foot and spotting this brought a look of realisation to the faces of the spectators.

"You made the mistake of thinking I'm only capable of turning non living matter to what I desire..."
Yuhiko voiced as she stood to her feet and cleaned her bloody mouth.

Chapter 1256 Ozious Captain Is Also A Force To Reckon With

"You made the mistake of thinking I'm only capable of turning non living matter to what I desire..."
Yuhiko voiced as she stood to her feet and cleaned her bloody mouth.

-"Her transmutation ability is able to affect living tissue as well?"

-"This is inconceivable,"

The crowd went bonkers once more.

'She practically has my Flesh Warping ability...' Gustav nodded in approval after witnessing this. He was also unaware that Yuhiko abilities had graduated from non living to loving matter.

It was truly a powerful upgrade.

("But she is about to pass out... it took all of her energy to achieve that,") The system voiced internally.

'She is really a great actress... no one is aware,' A smirk appeared on Gustav's face.

< Yuhiko Grande (Planet Earth Wins) >

< 1600 Points Attained >

Yuhiko maintained a seductive smile on her face as she moved forward. After pinning her to the ground, Veskes had let his guard down. Yuhiko did her best to twist her hand while underneath his weight so she could grab any part of his body.

Underneath the barrages of blows she successfully made contact with Veskes leg but he was still unaware and even if he knew he wouldn't have thought much of this.

It took a massive chunk of her bloodline energy to successfully dissolve the skeletal system of Veskes but fortunately she managed to pull it off.

Swwoosshh~

Gustav vanished from his standing point and reappeared before Yuhiko just as she got out of the stage.

Plop!

Yuhiko fell forward weakly and he proceeded to grab her.

Swwoosshh~

He vanished again and reappeared at his initial standing point. He slowly helped Yuhiko take a seat and Angy passed an energy recovery pill to him from the side which he fed to her.

"Why?" She muttered weakly.

"Hmm?" Gustav voiced while squatting.

"I was among the many who made you miserable... I thought this was another revenge set up but it wasn't. You even helped me win," She questioned with a confused tone.

"I'm past the point in my life where I act like a bully to deal with bullies... besides, I already dealt with you enough, I have more important things to set my sights on than becoming a bully," Gustav chuckled lightly before getting back up.

He was never the type to not get revenge but he already did that so he didn't see the point in keeping it up especially when other things were at stake here.

Yuhiko stared at Gustav with an unfathomable expression, 'His glow is too bright... he's like the sun,'

Some of the spectators were still talking about the battle that had just ended between Yuhiko and Veskes but they another intense battle in one of the stages had caught their attention.

Gustav also took note of this battle with God Eyes, 'Battling the Ozis will definitely be a problem with their imprinting ability,'

He watched as Ozious Captain battled against Sinxtro Captain. The tide of the battle had shifted in favour of Captain Vilax due to Doxta previous actions.

'If he was faster maybe he would have been able to pull the attack off but now there's no way out for Doxta,' Gustav thought as he watched the ongoing battle.

The entire stage was bathed in a brownish glow, emitting from the body of Captain Vilax. Within the brownish world, a large blue beam floated right before the Ozious Captain.

It seemed to be receding as black ink like writings appeared within the beam corrupting its entirety. The ripples in mid air created from the force of the beam began retracting as well.

Hundreds of feet away, Captain Doxta stared with a look of horror.

'Damn it! How was he able to Imprint on it so fast?'

Captain Doxta had attacked earlier with his ability after leaving Captain Vilax preoccupied by yanking a bunch of trees at him.

He thought Captain Vilax would be unable to counter his attack on time but at the last moment, Vilax did.

As Captain Doxta stared at the beam he fired increasing in size by the moment he clenched his fist.

"I might as well not hold back anymore!" He yelled as a bluish energy swirled around his entire figure.

Thriihhh~

A transparent encasement of blue energy surrounded his entire being and formed a giant bot of sorts. He floated within this transparent mass of energy and giant muzzle shaped weapons began protruding from different parts of this giant bot.

Booom!

He fired a destructive shot at Captain Vilax who was floating in mid air.

The blueish glowing projectile caused ripples of wind to spread across the vicinity but in the next moment, it slowed down after closing in on Captain Vilax.

The beam came to a stop before captain Vilax and the same situation with the other attack played out again. Ink like letters began spreading within the beam.

Captain Doxta gritted his teeth as he began to continuously fire.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang! Boom! Boom! Boom!

The ground caved in from the firepower this suit of energy was emitting. Debris had spread across the entire vicinity and the barrier trembled repeatedly, yet Captain Doxta did not stop firing.

Bang! Boom! Boom! Boom!

'He's trying to overload him...' Gustav understood what Captain Doxta was playing at.

"How will throwing more attacks help?" Ria had a confused expression as he questioned.

"If Vilax loses focus for even a moment one of the attacks could hit and the imprint would go bad, triggering an explosion that would fry him," Gustav responded.

"Oh..." Ria had a look of understanding upon hearing this.

Hundreds of massive blue beams had surrounded Captain Vilax at this point. No matter how much, Captain Doxta fired, the projectiles never truly reached Vilax.

"Exo double..." The energy swirling around Captain Doxta suddenly doubled upon voicing this out.

The air trembled intensely as energy began building up in waves, causing the surroundings to vibrate as well.

The suit of energy surrounding Captain Doxta increased in size tremendously as a cannon like muzzle appeared in the middle of its chest area.

A purplish energy began swirling at its tip as the air continued vibrating intensely. The swirling circular purplish energy reached the size of three boulders before firing at Captain Vilax.

Thooooooooommm~

The spectators eyes widened as the circular purplish energy shot across the air and suddenly exploded before it reached Captain Vilax.

BOOOOOOOOMMMM!

The entire stage was engulfed in a wave of purple as destructive ripples blasted across the vicinity. The grounds crumbled and the trees around were instantly incinerated as the waves slammed into the barrier surrounding the stage, rocking it intensely.

It looked like everything had been destroyed as both captains were consumed in the wake of the blast.

Chatter! Chatter! Chatter! Chatter!

The crowd was going bonkers once more.

"Did he make it explode before it got to Captain Vilax so Vilax wouldn't be able to Imprint on it?" Ria asked with a look of contemplation.

"You're finally getting a little smarter," Teemee voiced in response which practically gave Ria the answer to his question.

"That was a really smart move from Doxta... but unfortunately..." Aildris shook his head from the side causing Ria to stare at the screens with an intrigued expression.

As the purplish wave of destruction calmed, a figure could be seen floating in the mid air with a brownish glow surrounding him.

A small circular purple glow could be seen floating above his insect like hands along with multiple other blueish beams.

"Fortunately for me and quite Unfortunately for you, explosion still carries residue energy from your attack which I can still imprint on..." Captain Vilax voiced at the whitish figure who was hundreds of feet away let out heavy breaths.

"No way," Captain Doxta said with a horrified expression.

Captain Vilax raised his insect like hands, causing the circular purplish energy floating above to rise.

It began increasing in size rapidly along with the other bluish beams floating around in the vicinity.

The purplish glowing circular energy soon became the same size with the attack Captain Doxta had initiated earlier.

Captain Doxta activated his abilities again and leapt forward, not willing to accept defeat.

"This is the end for you," Captain Vilax said before swinging his arms downwards.

Fwwhii! Fwwhiii! Fwwhiii! Fwwhiii! Fwwhiii! Fwwwhii! Fwwhii! Fwwhii! Fwwhii!

Streaks of massive blue energies shot down at intense speeds simultaneously while Captain Doxta tried to erect a barrier of blue energy around him in the last second.

Boom! Boom! Boom! Boom! Boom! Boom!

Heavy explosions rang out in the next moment, wreaking havoc across the already desecrated vicinity.

To top it off, Captain Vilax dropped the massive purplish ball of energy last, inciting the final explosion.

BOOM!

The first layer of the barrier surrounding the stage shattered as the entire stage got covered in a world of purple even more destructive than the first.

"He has won," Ria voiced while the explosions were still going off.

"Ozious Captain is also a force to reckon with," Aildris stated.

Chapter 1257 Decline

"Ozious Captain is also a force to reckon with," Aildris stated.

Everyone was well aware of the abilities of the Ozis by now. The one they were mostly known for was their imprinting ability.

The moment they managed to imprint on any energy successfully, that energy would become theirs. They would be able to manipulate the energy as they wished afterwards.

They could increase or decrease its size, make it more powerful or snuff it out completely. Whatever they wished to do with the energy that they had successfully imprinted on was up to them.

This was why Captain Doxta only initiated melee attacks at first. He was trying to make sure Captain Vilax didn't successfully imprint on the energy of his attacks.

Captain Vilax speed of imprinting had shocked the entire crowd of spectators since some of Captain Doxta attacks should have hit before he successfully imprinted on them.

< Vilax Chifure (Planet Ozious) Wins >

< 1000 Points Attained >

Chatter! Chatter! Chatter! Chatter!

The two captains battle had been quite intense and lasted longer than most of the fights. The crowd wasn't surprised at how long this took since it was a battle between two captains. Afterall they were captains for a reason.

After the destruction on the stage calmed, Captain Doxta's unconscious and battered body could be seen laying in the crater that the stage had been turned into.

The battle had ended in loss for Planet Sinxtro.

The spectators continued to watch the battles unfold in this batch. At this moment only a few others were left before the batch would come to an end.

Another intense battle was playing out between two participants and one of them happened to be a Draconet. The Draconet had been challenged by the other participant and from the looks of things, the challenger was losing.

Gustav of course kept gathering information and insight as he watched the ongoing battles on every stage.

He turned to stare in the direction of the Dracons as he noticed something.

'Looks like he's not out of the woods... Endric did quite the number on him,' Gustav said internally as he noticed Muvierd receiving treatment. Muvierd happened to still be unconscious.

At this moment Gustav suddenly locked eyes with Captain Strum.

Thrrriizzzhhh~

It was like streaks of electricity going off as an unfathomable pressure suddenly spread across the vicinity.

The spectators and every of the participants felt the tension in the air like a physical presence as these two glared at each other intensely.

No words were uttered but they were both saying the same thing to each other with the gaze of intensity.

'Soon!'

With this they both looked away at the same time and tranquility soon returned to the vicinity.

Gustav hadn't forgotten what Strum did to Falco and still partly blamed him for Falco's current state while Captain Strum couldn't forget the humiliation he felt at the hands of Gustav.

Their initial battle had been shortlived but nothing was going to stop them from facing each other here...

Time went by very quickly and soon the third day of the Versus Battle Challenge arrived.

During this time frame every single participant had gotten the opportunity to be a part of the batch and choose their opponent at least twice.

Gustav had won both his matches and didn't try to challenge Captain Strum yet. He had lesser points so he was trying to gather enough to challenge without getting turned down.

Captain Strum also hadn't challenged him yet as well for unknown reasons. Since the first challenge from Navira, no one had challenged Gustav.

It was unknown if it was due to fear of losing or other reasons, but participants didn't try to challenge captains that led teams that were in the top hundred.

Gustav's battle with Navira just showed that the captains were in a different league entirely especially since Gustav beat Navira while barely making use of any abilities.

Gustav had amassed around three thousand points extra from the three battles he had won so far.

Today was the day of disqualification and every planetary group were doing their best to amass as much points as they could before the disqualification period arrived.

Sheila's turn arrived for a batch once more and she made her way to the stage.

Gustav didn't bother telling Sheila who to challenge. The small framed girl was way more powerful than her appearance depicted.

'She's still holding back but she should be fine for now till we arrive at the final stages of IYSOP,' Gustav said internally.

("Her reality warping ability is stronger than that of the Sacred Jewel... I think she might be afraid of letting it all out which is why her body subconsciously created a restriction on her abilities,") The system analysed.

'That seems logical but we never truly know.... I won't push her into letting go if she doesn't want to. Everyone is capable enough to cover for each individual shortcomings...' Gustav said internally.

("Wouldn't you like to see what she could do if she wasn't restricted though?") The system questioned.

'As curious as I am, would rather not risk her losing control and putting anyone in Jeopardy,' Gustav watched as Sheila battle began with who she had challenged.

She had challenged a participant from a top hundred planet who was considered fairly strong and had acquired a good amount of points.

The moment the battle begin, the crowd of spectators marked the challenge as lost.

Sheila was a very playful person and her mouth was usually ever running like a broken tap. This made it worse for the challenged as she played with him while also verbally brutalising their existence.

"Big brother kikikiki you need to try harder than that," She voiced while waving her hand across the air.

Cracks appeared across the stage like reality was a broken mirror causing the attacks in the fireballs in mid air to fall to the ground and break to pieces.

The crowd was astonished as they stared at Sheila unleash her reality warping abilities over and over again.

Her figure would reflect all over the stage on the broken glass like vicinity, making it confusing to tell where she really is.

The opponent would churn blazing firestorms all around, only for it to hit the mirror like air and smash to pieces, revealing that no one was there.

"I'm right here big brother kikiki,"

Bang!

"Right here,"

Bang!

"Right here,"

Bang!

"Not there silly kikiki,"

Bang!

"You missed again,"

Bang!

Her opponent felt like he was going insane the longer the battle went on. He had not been able to deal a single damage on Sheila yet she could harm him at anytime she willed.

Sheila suddenly appeared from behind him with her body flying across the air. Her opponent only noticed when it was too late.

Her hand was already wrapped around his face as she sped forward while laughing maniacally. The glass air up ahead transformed into solid which she smashed his face into intensely, dragging him across the stage.

Gustav shook his head as he watched Sheila totally traumatise her opponent.

'She's too playful...' Gustav knew Sheila was immature and saw this as fun.

She wasn't actually an uncaring person, she just found the current situation to be a game which was having fun engaging in.

Gustav focused on the other matches in different stages since he was well aware of how this one will turn out.

Soon enough Sheila opponent surrendered. He didn't lose consciousness or get beaten to a pulp yet but he knew this was a battle he couldn't win so he made the smart choice and gave up.

The spectators couldn't blame him. It would just be more humiliating if the battle had continued.

More batches went by and a couple of participants from earth got challenged in some of these batches.

So far not a single earth participant had lost but this was mostly due to the fact that other participants were barely challenging them. Earth had only accepted five challenges so far. Three of them were from strong planets which Gustav, Yuhiko and Phinx had taken care of.

The other two were fairly powerful planets and had been handled by Ria and Fildhor. Other times when earth participants were to challenge another planet, Gustav had made sure they challenged someone they could win against.

It was unknown how long the winning streak would last since more weaker planets were getting disqualified, leaving only more powerful planets as challenge options.

However, Gustav wasn't too bothered since he knew they still had lots of points overall. He'd just have to play it safe.

Thrrrihhh~

"Hmm," Gustav mumbled as he stared at the panel before Teemee.

"This guy from Planet Xionsi just challenged me... Orimon," Teemee nearly chuckled as he voiced out.

"They must still bear a grudge," He added.

Gustav stared at the stage where the transparent skinned figure with a greenish colored face, stood with a nefarious looking expression.

He happened to be throwing a fierce glare at the earth's participants area, showing that he meant business.

"Decline," Gustav voiced.

"Huh? Wait... what?" Teemee's expression turned from smiley to confused as he voiced out.

"Decline," Gustav repeated himself.

Chapter 1258 Mass Disqualification

"Decline," Gustav repeated himself.

"But I can win this guy," Teemee said with a tone of indignation, "I already even beat him and his group," Teemee added.

"You had my help," Glade chimed in.

"Still, I'd definitely win," Teemee voiced.

"Decline," Gustav shook his head.

Teemee was about to retort again when Aildris held his shoulder from the side while shaking his head.

"You should know by now that every decision Gustav's make has a reason behind it... you may not be aware of the reason but you should know that whatever it is... its definitely a solid reason," Aildris chided.

After hearing this, Teemee decided to back down.

"Alright then," He sighed before declining the challenge.

waaaahhh~ Chatter! Chatter! Chatter!

-"Did he just decline the challenge?"

-"I thought that Teemee guy was one of the strongest on earth's team,"

-"If that is so why would he decline?"

-"Planet Xionsi is strong but they are not close to earth's level,"

-"Then why would he decline?"

The spectators and reporters discussed about the reasons why Teemee could have declined but they couldn't figure it out.

Only Gustav knew why he told Teemee to decline and he didn't want the others to know.

Gustav recalled the incident with Axiler. A Xionsi elder was leaving after concluding transaction with Axiler the moment they arrived.

Gustav didn't know exactly what the Xionsi elder purchased from Axiler but he was leaning on it being an item that would boost the strength of the Xionsis in this battle challenge.

The Xionsis have performed pretty good so far so Gustav's suspicion was even higher. If they still bore a grudge on Teemee for defeating them in the Viondur Egg Challenge, there was no doubt that they wanted to use a win to redeem themselves.

A lot of planets under the alliance had massive egos after all.

Gustav didn't want to risk it so he had Teemee decline. Axiler was no longer on the planet so Gustav was sure that no one would be able to acquire his services in the future.

if they were to meet in future challenges, Gustav wouldn't mind if Teemee chose to battle them but for the current challenge, he wouldn't allow it.

"Damn it! That little vermin declined," Orimon cursed as he played with the trinket on his finger.

"I'll challenge the other one then," He decided before picking earth again.

On the earth's participant area, everyone stared at a particular person as they noticed the same challenger had picked their planet again.

"Why is this dude so obsessed with us?" Fildhor's face scrunched up as he voiced out.

"He definitely has a bone to pick with us," Teemee shook his head.

"Considering we've had a few run ins with them and they've been on the losing end each time, it kinda makes sense," Matilda chimed in.

"Should I accept?" Glade turned to Gustav while questioning.

"Decline," Gustav shook his head.

Apparently, Glade had been challenged this time. Gustav's suspicion had already increased at this point.

Usually other participants would pick a different planet and opponent altogether after anyone declines that challenge request, yet Orimon challenged yet another participant from earth.

Glade wasted no time in declining after Gustav told her to. Under normal circumstances there was no doubt that these two could defeat Orimon but Gustav was skeptical this one time and for good reasons.

"Damn it, i shoud have gathered enough points before challenging any of them," Orimon had a look of frustration after the second decline.

He didn't challenge any of them since because he had way lesser points but as the challenge continued, he accumulated points. However, they also accumulated more points during the challenge so despite increasing the number of points he had, he still couldn't meet up.

He thought they'd at least accept his challenge since both of them were sure they could defeat him. Unfortunately, things didn't turn out as he expected.

Orimon went on to pick a different planet to challenge, knowing he had lost both targets.

"If anyone from Xionsi challenge any of you in the future batches, decline," Gustav voiced out.

"We should?" Teemee asked with a confused expression.

"Yeah..." Gustav decided he was going to be the only one who would accept their challenges moving forward. That was only if they challenged him instead of the others.

The group nodded in understanding despite wanting Gustav to explain his decision. Knowing Gustav, they didn't push it since he tended to keep things to himself.

The batch continued and Orimon battled a considerably weaker opponent which of course brought him victory. Gustav didn't notice anything off with the battle bit he still stuck to his decision.

As the batches continued, Angy, Phinx and Abesos had another turn before the day finally came to an end.

After the 112th batch, the computerised systems didn't pick the next batch of participants. Everyone could see the podium where the Handler was standing, slowly rise above the ground.

At this point, only around one thousand five hundred planets had not completely depleted their points and gotten disqualified along the way.

However, it was now time to tell whether or not these planets had enough points to continue participating in this challenge or not.

Tension permeated the entire arena as many participants hoped and prayed that their efforts wouldn't be in vain.

While a lot of them were worried, planets that already had a high number of total points were unbothered.

"It is time... I will now be revealing the required number of points accumulated to remain in the challenge. As mentioned earlier, planets who fail to reach the required number, will be immediately disqualified from IYSOP," Handler One voiced out.

- "We'll be fine, it's just 10,000 points, we have enough," Some participants whispered to themselves with looks of relief.

"The required number of points to remain in the challenge is, 17,000," Handler One announced with a loud voice.

Gasp~ Waahh~ Chatter! Chatter~

The entire arena erupted with noise after the revelation that left a lot of participants with looks of disbelief and hanging jaws.

- "What? How the hell is it 17,000 points?"

- "This cannot be,"

- "The collector told us we needed to have only 10,000,"

- "Shit we got wrong information,"

- "We only accumulated 15,000,"

- "Damn it we have only 11,000,"

- "Captain, I thought you said we'll be fine?"

Many planetary group broke out in lamentations as they stared at the screens above which displayed lists of the planets who accumulated enough points.

A lot of them could see that their planet names were missing from the list but this was to be expected since they didn't accumulate enough.

'That darned collector!' A lot of them were cursing the same person internally. It was the person they had bought information from.

"How come the collector said 10,000?" Orimon questioned the Xionsi Captain.

"Who knows? Probably an error. It doesn't matter to us, we have enough points," Captain Illumo voiced while staring at a part of the scoreboard.

<< Planet Xionsi - 31,000 Points >>

He could see that they had climbed the ranks and reached 221.

Zing~ Zing~ Zing~ Zing~

Participants began vanishing very quickly from the arena. These were obviously the disqualified planets who didn't meet the quota.

Gustav could hear all of the rukus around him and he knew a good chunk of the complaints were from those who bought information from Axiler.

The misinformation had played a role in causing their disqualification since Axiler gave them a number that was 7,000 lesser than the actual number of points.

A smirk appeared on his face as he looked up at the scoreboard. Earth was still in first position despite not being the planet that accumulated the most points during this challenge.

<< Planet Earth - 76,201 Points >>

<< Planet Draconet - 61,900 Points >>

<< Planet Ozis - 59,400 Points >>

<< Planet Indulus Prime - 57,000 Points >>

<< Planet Oxlrk - 55,300 Points >>

<< Planet Tribetes - 54,900 Points >>

<< Planet Diov - 54,000 Points >>

<< Planet Hixto - 53,500 Points >>

<< Planet Osiris - 53,400 Points >>

<< Planet Xillion - 52,000 Points >>

<< Planet Klaxosape - 51,900 Points >>

<< Planet Orion - 50,100 Points >>

<< Planet Ghundabault - 48,000 Points >>

....

-"The big three position remain unaffected,"

-"Indulus Prime is coming real close to that third spot,"

-"So many groups didn't get up to 17,000 Points,"

The spectators were astonished at the current situation.

Close to a thousand planets had gotten disqualified. Only 572 planets were left in the competition.

IYSOP started with nearly three thousand planets and now it was down to nearly a quarter of that. The competition was slowly coming to an end yet things were only going to get more intense from henceforth.

The participants area now had way lesser numbers than before making it look a bit scanty. However, there were still over eleven thousand participants left.

This wasn't a small number but compared to the sixty thousand participants that IYSOP began with, it was a considerably lesser number.

"The Battle Challenge shall resume tomorrow and by the end of the challenge, there will be another disqualification round," Handler One revealed.

Chapter 1259 Beyond Darkness?

"The Battle Challenge shall resume tomorrow and by the end of the challenge, there will be another disqualification round," Handler One revealed.

"A higher number of points will be required to carry onto the next challenge?" Teemee voiced out.

"Most likely," Aildris responded with a contemplative expression.

Another round of loud chatters reverberated across the arena as the spectators guessed amongst themselves how many points will be required at the end of the Battle Challenge.

Gustav reckoned that only a few planets who had bought information from Axiler were left. It was uncertain if they bought even more future information. Gustav wondered if they'd still be willing to believe Axiler if they did.

The Diaporonians was amongst those who were disqualified this night. Gustav clicked his tongue in pity as he remembered them.

They had gone through extreme measures to further their rise in IYSOP only to get disqualified here. The Diaporonians initially had enough points to escape disqualification but some of their representatives lost a couple of times during the versus challenge, causing their points to dwindle.

"Let's head back," E.E voiced as the Versus Battle Challenge came to an end for the day.

The coming days were about to get even more hectic since it was majorly stronger planets that remained.

The group retired to their accommodation quarters along with other participants. Gustav excused himself from the group as they headed in and went in a different direction.

-

Minutes later Gustav and Stark could be seen strolling across a golden paved streets with natives of Planet Ozious around them.

"Have you discovered anything yet?" Gustav questioned.

"Hmm I tried.... its still the same," Stark responded with a slightly dispirited look.

"A dark fog still shrouds your vision of the interior of their quarters?" Gustav looked like he wasn't convinced as he voiced out.

"Yes..." Stark heaved a low sigh.

"I thought you said you could see everything?" Gustav questioned with a look of disbelief.

'He recalled that Stark was even capable of seeing Miss Aimee's real self hovering above the planet before anyone could.

"I can... Its not that i can't see the interior, it's more like the visibility within the interior is inexistent. Even if a person entered they wouldn't be able to see anything because of the lack of visibility in the environment," Stark explained.

"But you can see in the dark... how is this any different?" Gustav questioned.

"This is different because it is beyond darkness... its beyond anything comprehensible. Light wouldn't even be able to infiltrate that room, it would be instantly vanquished. I would lose my sight even if i got in," Stark kept explaining with a visibly disturbed expression.

It was obvious that this was something he had never experienced before. He didn't know this was possible.

"Could you force your all seeing visuals to catch a glimpse of anything at all...? Even the smallest detail would be appreciated," Gustav said with a tone of concern. This whole situation was getting more intense than he expected.

"I can try but I can't guarantee anything... I will certainly give it my all tonight and let you know if I discover anything," Stark replied with a smile.

'I owe him my life...' Stark still felt like he hadn't repayed Gustav so he was willing to do whatever he could to help.

"Thank you Stark," Gustav voiced with a tone of appreciation.

"Not a problem... if you don't mind me asking, why are you so concerned about them?" Stark questioned.

"I do mind you asking," Gustav replied.

"Ow," Stark mouthed with a sour expression.

After a few moments of silence Gustav spoke.

"All I can say is, they might be connected to whatever is responsible for causing problems for a friend. I need to be sure before taking any action," Gustav expressed with a suspicious expression.

"Oh so its for a friend," A hearty smile appeared on Stark's face.

"You really do love your friends," Stark added.

"Don't be cringe," Gustav turned around while trying to maintain a cold look.

"Am I right? Or am I right? Hehe," Stark teased from while Gustav sped away.

"Contact me if you discover anything," Gustav's voice echoed across the air despite being long gone.

Stark stood in place for a few moments with a smile on his face till two figures appeared beside him.

"Family head... any word yet?" One of the two cloaked figures questioned.

"He has only been gone for like three days... its to early pffft," Stark respomded with a light chuckle.

"Then, what business do you have with Gustav Crimson?" The other one inquired.

"He needed a favour," Stark replied while strolling forward.

"Family head... I wouldn't advice being acquainted with someone like him. It would be trouble if he finds out our real purpose of coming here," The first one spoke again.

"Relax Viltru, he isn't going to find out especially since he has a lot on his plate and Axiler won't be meeting us on this planet after acquiring the item," Stark said with an unbothered tone.

"Family head should be aware that Gustav Crimson is one of the smartest MBO officers on the face of the earth despite his paltry sum of filed experiences," Viltru sounded with a tone of warning.

"On earth hehe not on earth right now heheh..." Stark's face slowly went from chuckling to straight as he noticed their expressions didn't change.

"That was supposed to be a joke... Anyways, like I said, you worry too much. Besides Gustav is a friend who has not only saved my life but saved the family as well. Hr is not someone I can ignore when he needs a favour," Stark reiterated with a firm tone.

"This young lad has accolades to his nam..."

"Enough with the complaints... let's go," Stark shut them both down and continued strolling forward.

"I have a job to do this night,"

Gustav had arrived back at the accommodation area minutes ago. He sat in place with a contemplative expression.

'For someone capable of seeing even Miss Aimee when she didn't want to be spotted, it is inconceivable that Stark is unable to see the interior of their accommodation area...' Gustav thought.

'Are they using a power beyond that of Miss Aimee? Indulus Prime are average on planetary strength under the alliance, that doesn't make sense,'

Gustav suspicions about Indulus Prime had festered since the start of the battle Challenge. He had tried to spy on them but God Eyes wasn't powerful enough to do the job.

Gustav decided to contact someone who he thought had the capability to successfully spy on them so he could gather a bit of information and increase chances of piecing things together.

Unfortunately, even Stark All Seeing eyes were unable to give imagery feedback of the happenings within Indulus Prime accommodation quarters.

'Beyond darkness?' Gustav recalled Stark mentioning that even light would be instantly snuffed out if it tried to phase through their accommodation quarters.

There was only one other person he recalled with dark abilities that had manifested something on that level... Falco.

Gustav recalled the incident at Aribia City where Falco was supposedly transitioning. The thick darkness that had clouded the environment was so polluting that even a powerful Mixedblood would not survive more than a second in there.

The concept of light didn't exist within that vicinity but he made use of perception to pinpoint Falco's presence within.

'To go through such measures, they must have something to hide,' Gustav thought about how he could infiltrate if Stark ended up being unsuccessful.

("Falco could do it,") The system suggested.

'No not him... I'll find another way,' Gustav immediately shut down the system's suggestion.

There was no doubt that someone like Falco who was an entity of darkness with a title Gustav didn't understand yet, would definitely be able to see in such a place but Gustav wasn't willing to include Falco in his investigations especially because of his current state.

Also, they needed to be spied on so Falco couldn't just walk into there like he owned the place or something. Watching them without their realisation was the best way to finding out what they were hiding.

'I didn't count on IYSOP be this complicated...' Gustav wondered what would have happened if he had chosen not to attend IYSOP.

Gustav analysed an idea in his head which he decided he would try if Stark failed to have any new information for him by tomorrow.

"What are you thinking about?" E.E voiced as he walked into the main room.

"A lot..." Gustav responded.

"I can tell... you've been more worked up since we arrived on this planet," E.E stated while taking a seat from across Gustav's position.

"IYSOP is more than it seems on the surface... there's a lot going on. I only hope i can figure things out before its too late," Gustav brows furrowed as he voiced with a concerned tone.

"You need to relax man... no matter what is going on under the surface, so long as we are all together in one piece we can handle it," E.E said with a tone of encouragement.

Chapter 1260 No Cowards

'But what if we're not together or in one piece...' Guatav didn't want to voice out his concerns and sound more troubled than he looked so he only nodded in response.

"You're right..."

Gustav and E.E continued discussing for some time as E.E threw in occasional jokes to lighten the mood. Gustav couldn't help but chuckle a couple of times before he finally decided to retire to his room and channel his bloodline for the rest of the night.

The next day arrived in a jiffy and the IYSOP participants were once more gathered in the arena.

Cheers~ Cheers~ Cheers~

Spectators cheers for their plamet representatives to boost their morale as they stepped into the arena.

Spectators from disqualified planets were allowed to remain present till the end of IYSOP. Some of these spectators were still sour from their planets losing but others had already gotten over it and picked new favourites to support.

- "I will stake my bets on the Draconets,"

- :Nah for me I'll pick Ozious, captain Vilax is my current favourite,"

- "I'll place my bets today with logic instead of favouritism,"

- "If I see two participants paired and I'm sure one is more powerful than the other, I'm placing my bets today on the more powerful one,"

- "I'm with that Kid from earth Endric,"

The arena was loud as usual before the computerised system began picking out participants for the next batch.

----SSS

Fwwwwhooomm~

The circular beam flew off into the distance with the beast within, returning a bit of tranquility to the environment.

'Lucky,' E.E face displayed a relieved expression once more as he moved to the side and took a seat.

On the other side, Gustav hugged Angy's body to his as he fully regained clarity.

"Thank you," He whispered.

"Hnm, I'm glad you're alright," Angy voiced while rubbing his back affectionately.

Gustav face displayed a smile as he relaxed completely for a while, closing his eyes and soaking in the warmth of her body.

After some time he opened his eyes with a single thought in mind, 'What was that?'

He wondered for a couple of seconds as he tried to recall what could have brought about that.

'Fear... even though I told the system to restrict itself and go offline, it shouldn't be a reason for me to develop such deep fear that would cause a panic attack,' He thought.

After thinking for a few more minutes, Gustav finally figured it out. The encounter with these beasts here and wearing himself out... his last thoughts before he entered the state of panic was... powerlessness.

While he hadn't noticed it, he subconsciously feared going back to being plain old Gustav with only the ability to change his hair color and a strong penchant for suicide.

He thought he had forgotten the feeling of powerlessness... He was unaware that he had been cultivating the fear of going back to being the same weak and useless person he used to for years.

An incident like this was the only thing needed to trigger the overwhelming fear of powerlessness that had been creeping from deep within.

Internally he was extremely grateful for Angy and E.E's presence since he had no idea what he would have done if they weren't here.

< 10,000 Points >

"My life points have maxed out," E.E voiced from the other end as he stared at his lov bracelet.

Gustav and Angy slowly separated from each other after hearing that. They each proceeded to check their lov bracelets.

"Mine has maxed out too,"

"Mine as well,"

Angy and Gustav noticed that the points displayed on their bracelets was neither decreasing nor was it increasing.

Gustav calculated that this meant they had been in the Golden Entrapment yellow zone for over two hours.

Although their life points had maxed out, they were still in a yellow zone. This meant, they weren't completely safe even though they had found a place to hide out.

This was precisely one of the things Handler One mentioned earlier. Yellow zones were not void of danger but they were also not completely dangerous like red zones would be.

Maybe more yellow zones like this existed where participants could find a place to hide out within.

However Gustav still felt they weren't completely safe and still needed to find a way to get to a green zone.

This of course was easier said than done since the closest green zone was five hours away.

"They're still here," E.E voiced as he peeked through the holes in between the golden gate like poles.

He could still visibly spot the purplish fog across the air and hear faint wings flapping sounds. The skeletal flying beasts were obviously still around here.

"They sure are persistent," Angy muttered.

Gustav's main worry was them finding this place and attacking with a combined force.

Although the last beast who tried attacking the gate like poles was unable to break through, there was no telling if the same situation would repeat itself in an event where multiple of them attacked at once.

Not to mention that the small space they were currently hiding in, had stopped moving in the meantime. The entire Golden Entrapment was in a constant state of change but there were times when certain areas would remain unmoved for minutes or even hours.

"We need to find a way to sneak out," Gustav voiced.

#####

In another part of the Beast Haven, a participant with multiple limbs and blueish star shaped patterns all across his body, bolted across a dark vicinity with intense speed.

Treeechhh! Puuchhhii!

The sound of organs ripping and body parts splitting reverberated across the environment as this participant stabbed his multiple limbs into the bodies of menacingly large beasts.

He arrived before one that was over thirty feet tall, throwing a fierce upper cut with three of his right arms.

Booom!

His entire body traveled upwards in speed with his arms bursting through the head of the creature instantaneously, leaving a large enough hole for him to fly through.

[4 Seconds]

[3 Seconds]

Fountain of blood and brain matter splattered across the place as a timer counted down on this particular lov bracelet.

A large shadowy figure reaching over a hundred feet in height suddenly appeared behind him as he raised one of his left hands.

The large Shadowy figure conjured a massive blueish glowing spear in the last two seconds, before passing it to the figure with multiple limbs.

The participant held onto the thirty feet long glowing blue spear with three of its hands at once before flinging it forward with intense force.

Thooooooooommm!

A shockwave spread from his location sending a ripple of dust across the vicinity as the blueish spear shot out with immense speed.

It phased through a line up of beasts up ahead causing them to disintegrate into blue light particles instantly. The spear made a c-turn after reaching a particular distance, stabbing into the rest of the beasts in the vicinity.

[1 Second]

[0 Second]

In the next instant the glowing spear vanished along with the dark shadowy figure hovering over the participant initially. The participants raised his arms slightly as he felt power leave his body.

"Ten seconds was enough," He voiced with a tone laced with pride while staring at the corpses that drenched the surface of this environment.

He turned around and moved towards a small black crate up ahead. The instant arrived before it, he placed his left arm into it.

Thrihh~

A computerised sound rang out before he withdrew his hand.

< Attacks Restocked > [+1 Extra Attack]

His multiple eyes had displayed hints of astonishment and excitement as he noticed the notification on his lov bracelet.

"Things are about to get more interesting. Unlike these unworthy weaklings... I the captain of the Draconets shall not cower in the face of any adversity... even powerlessness... I shall bring the Beast Haven to its knees," Captain Strum stated with a short burst of laughter while turning around.

He tapped on the map display on his lov Bracelet.

< Scarlet Canyon >

The location that was displayed on the map as his current position showed that he was in a red zone. What he had come here for was unknown, however what was known was how he had slaughtered over two hundred beasts here since his arrival.

Is this to say that he still had his supernatural abilities? No, that wasn't the case.

Captain Strum had made use of two of his attacks before his arrival here. His last attack just happened to be one that displayed...

[Unlocking Participant Abilities For Ten Seconds]

He was allowed to use his supernatural abilities for ten seconds due to this and that was enough to lay waste to the entire region. He only came here to restock in the first place, ignoring that it would be packed with all sort of dangerous beasts.

It was like Captain Strum was without fear or restraint despite losing the teammates who were initially around him earlier.

Now that he had achieved his objective, he began making his way to the closest yellow zone. Now he had four attacks instead of three after restocking.

Time went by very quickly...

<< 23 : 45 : 10 >>

Less than a day was left till the end of the Beast Haven Survival challenge currently. At this point, over half of the participants had been disqualified. From the initial numbers of nearly two thousand, only a little over six hundred were left.

The challenge was filled with unexpected situations and despite the participants receiving briefing before going in, it ended up being more crazy than anticipated.

Some that had survived so far were lucky since despite being capable some participants had gotten disqualified due to unfortunate situations.

Currently, many participants were unaware of one thing as they held onto whatever was left of their attacks as a last resort...

This last attack in the loy bracelet wasn't an attack. Instead it was a ten seconds temporary unlock of the restraints on their supernatural abilities.

Those who has already made use of all their attacks were aware of these but many others still held onto their last attack not wishing to make use of it until they were in an inescapable situation. They were certainly in for a shock if they ever made use of it.

Only Captain Strum was crazy enough to head to a red zone so he was the only participant who would get the chance to unlock the restraints on his supernatural abilities twice.