

BloodLine 132

Chapter 132 - Part 3: Zack Versus Daniel

The battle platform inside the dome.

Zack and Daniel remained rooted in their positions. One is planning strategies, while the other is waiting for the cool-down period to end.

Perhaps I should move closer and unleash a bolt of lightning. I considered several options. I'll get closer to him. If I get close enough. It's very likely that I'll get hurt. I'm not sure what other cards he got. With the help of his energy shots. He has the ability to effortlessly evade close combat. It's difficult to stay here and wait for the conflict to end. A sigh escaped my lips.

I took a step closer to him. There are a few meters between us as well. I'm also wary of his movements. If anything changes. With my perception, I am able to notice.

Seeing Zack approaching him. Daniel smirked. The cool-down time is still five minutes away from being over. "Sh*t, I'm not letting him get any closer." Daniel made a mental remark. He pulls out another Hand Gun of the same model right away. He wields two weapons at once. At first, he thought killing him would be simple.

However, this is no longer the case. With only one weapon, he was unable to kill him. He compelled him to draw another weapon. But he had a nagging feeling about it. So yet, he has only shown his card. His weapon talent and fire element were revealed.

Newcomer, on the other hand, did not reveal anything. So far, he's been able to effortlessly avoid his energy bullets. The method of avoiding was likewise surreal. As though he had foreseen the onslaught. He laughed at himself and said, "It's impossible." It's because he is a newcomer. He doesn't have experience and instinct.

For the time being, he resolves to keep him at bay. Once the cool-down period has passed. He'll kill him with both handguns. He smirked, thinking of how Zack's corpse would be riddled with holes.

He's angry with himself. It's taking a long time to kill him. Now that I've realized that. So far, he has only been hit by one bullet. Despite this, he continues to move around with the injury. It's the element of fire. The injury was treated with a medicinal pill. He didn't see him use it, though. Something about it bothers him.

When he saw Zack approaching, he fired a few rounds of ammunition.

The sound of "bang" "bang" shooting reverberated throughout the area.

He aimed at different spots this time. Even if he tries to get away with it. There are only a few spots available. He wouldn't be able to defend it there. Zack's heart, throat, abdomen, and leg were all targeted with energy bullets.

The energy bullets whizzed by at a rapid pace.

Seeing him, pulled out a new weapon. My pupils constrict. "There is another weapon, as expected." In my mind, I made a remark. This also aids me in resolving another issue.

Previously, he had not been fired due to a lack of energy. Something to do with the energy gun, I'm sure.

He would have used both guns in the beginning. If he hadn't used both weapons. Then avoiding the energy projectiles is impossible. If he used both handguns at the same time. After knowing this, I remember, I still have pain in my shoulder.

I'm thinking about it. He unleashed a barrage of bullets. My attention is drawn to perception. "This time, dodging the energy bullets will be more difficult. I, on the other hand, will not go backward." "I told myself." As the energy bullets approached, I was able to avoid some of the energy bullets by using perception. However, only a few hit my stomach.

I clenched my teeth, bearing the agony. It's great that my bodily strength is at its Peak Level. Otherwise, I'll have to take a number of Healing Pills. To counteract the fiery energy, I used lightning energy.

He was trying to fire a few more shots when I noticed him. I made use of my moving strategy. I vanished from my original location in a second. And ran in his direction. I grab my black Sword from the ring of storage. I grabbed it and made a Swift Slash.

The Black Blade sliced through the air like a knife.

As the blade's tip approaches him. To defend himself, Daniel used his Hand Gun.

"Clang" and "Clang" echoed throughout the area.

The tremendous strength was too much for Daniel to handle. He stepped back one step. Realizing the force of the blade, his pupils narrowed. "Are you at the Peak Level?" With astonishment, he said.

Why does a beginner have such a high level? He's a year or two younger than I am. His realization quickly turns to envy. He despised talented individuals. It's due to his lack of ability. His family despises him. His contorted visage became even more distorted.

Due to his rage, he shot even more rounds haphazardly. To avoid it, Zack moves to the side.

"What happened to him?" I thought. This guy seemed calculated personality to me. He now appears to be different. I took note of his expression. Hearing what he has to say. This was confirmed by me. He's taken aback by my strength. I cocked my head and smirked. Observing him becoming disoriented. Reckoning Circle was created from this opportunity.

Seeing that the shots were hitting empty space. Daniel makes an effort to control his rage. He couldn't afford to waste bullets of energy. Zack is now a Peak level Trainee Apprentice, This prospect has been realized. Fear begins to overpower him as he encounters the unknown. He doesn't want to get himself into trouble. Because of the cool down, he couldn't use both handguns.

After realizing this, he makes the decision to use his energy shots. "I'm going to get closer to him." And shoot this jerk in the head." In his thoughts, he devised a nefarious scheme. Since then, they've both become Peak Warrior. He's strong enough to handle it. All he has to do now is get near. As a result, he won't be able to avoid this time. He lunged forward immediately, grasping his handgun.

As I begin to concentrate on the defensive rune in my mind. Instead of moving away, I noticed Daniel. He made a dash for me. As soon as I saw that, I was overjoyed. The attack was started by me.

"RECKONING CIRCLE" The sound of thunder resonated throughout the region.

A wheel appears, overflowing with lightning force. I use as much lightning energy as I can. As a result, this attack has the potential to kill Daniel in one fell swoop.

Daniel, who comes closer to Zack by one inch. He senses something at this point. He examines his handgun on the left side of his body. The cool-down period has come to an end. He smiles sheepishly as he realizes this. "This time he won't be able to avoid it." I'll make holes in his body with both handguns." He made a mental remark.

He covers two handguns behind his back with a firm grip. As a result, Zack is oblivious to this. However, poor soul. As he drew nearer to Zack. He suddenly senses a dreadful omen. His chest constricted. A violet colour wheel pops out of nowhere. His pupils dilated. He couldn't speak the words completely.

"Lightning..." he couldn't say. He couldn't backtrack in the final second since his momentum was so strong. He collides with Lightning Wheel helplessly.

"Boom" A loud roar reverberated throughout the region.

When Daniel's body comes into contact with lightning energy of the Peak level. He is electrocuted by the lightning energy. Daniel screams in agony, "Aaaarrrrgggghh!" The lightning paralyzes his entire body.

"Finally..." I saw him go paralyzed as I muttered. I didn't want to squander this chance. I make a decisive move with my black sword, slashing at his neck. My blade cuts with precision. As a result, the head continues to roll down. The decapitated body gushes blood.

As soon as I noticed this, I knelt. "As always, Reckoning Circle came through for me." In my head, I stated. Daniel's headless body drew my attention. Then there's his beheaded head, which has a helpless look in his eyes. "if I'm late." I mutter, "He must have prepared to fire a shot at close range."

I noticed that he was holding two handguns in his hands. It's hard to avoid the bombardment of close-range fire. Realizing this, I took a deep breath. "He still managed to injure my shoulder and abdomen," I thought to myself.

The injury is still not completely healed. Mr. Arthur's healing pill is exactly what I need. I drew in my consciousness to observe what happened next. Fortunately, the fire energy is canceled by the lightning energy. Nonetheless, the organs are damaged as a result of the impact. Otherwise, If not for having a double breakthrough. The ramifications may have been disastrous.

I can see how that may happen. If there is a warrior who can take my place. He would have perished as a result. I'm thinking about it. The living signal is picked up by many sensors and the monitor screen from above. I'm the last survivor of the warriors. The door to the exit slid open.. I sighed and took a few steps toward the exit.