

Bloodline 601

Chapter 601: That Doesn't Sound Like Angry

Bang!

The bald man landed face down on the floor with Gustav above him, causing another intense sound of collision to ring out.

At this point, Gustav had opened his eyes and was about to send out another attack when a green beam shot out of the bald's man back.

Bang!

Not being able to react in time to this unexpected action, Gustav was blasted backward once again.

He did several backflips across the air and landed about seventy feet away.

Using this opportunity, the bald man threw himself up with a surprised expression on his bleeding face.

He thought Gustav was passed out when he threw his punch towards his face earlier. He hadn't expected him to counter the attack without even opening his eyes.

Gustav stabilized himself with an understanding gaze in his eyes. It turned out this man could use any part of his body to send out energy blasts.

Gustav's mouth opened wide as he shot out a purplish beam towards the bald man causing him to react back by also shooting out several energy beams from his hands, chest, and face.

This overpowered Gustav's attack and pushed it back. However, Gustav leaped upwards, dodging the beams which slammed into the concrete behind.

Boom!

At this point half, this side of the building had collapsed from their attacks.

Gustav conjured another atomic blade as he prepared to dash forward.

"That power... It's you isn't it? You're the abductor," The bald man voiced out with a tone of disbelief.

"So what if I am?" Gustav didn't even try to deny it as he charged forward while swinging out the atomic blade.

Several beams shot towards him, which he cleaved in half one after the other while traveling towards the bald man.

Swwhhii~

Gustav swung for his left arm, but the bald man was able to react in time by swerving towards the side.

"My subordinates will send out a call for help. You're doomed when the others arrive here," The bald man voiced out as he tried dodging every one of Gustav's attacks while countering as well.

He didn't think he could defeat Gustav after seeing how Zergeref ended up, but he felt he could stall Gustav for long enough till the others arrived.

"The only reason why this battle hasn't ended yet is because, I want you alive," Gustav responded coldly as a gravitational force suddenly spread across the place.

[Gravitational Displacement Has Been Activated]

The bald man was about to move back to dodge one of Gustav's strikes when his body suddenly turned extremely heavy, causing his speed to reduce.

"Nooo!" He shouted out. He watched the atomic blade slash towards his right arm, completely severing it from his shoulders.

Plop!

Blood jetted out like a fountain as his right arm landed on the floor.

Gustav wasn't even done and had already swung around, sending his leg towards the bald man's face.

Bang!

His face ate the sole of Gustav's shoes along with the dust underneath as he was sent flying backward with a broken nose.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

Dashing forward, Gustav sent out several powerful punches, putting the bald man out of commission in a few seconds.

After some time, blood and teeth could be seen lying around as the unconscious and battered body of the bald man was being lifted up by Gustav.

Fwooosh!

He leaped across the air, landing on the other side of the building, before dashing forward with the bald man.

Swwoosh!

He arrived back in the room where the ambush began. Five Red Jackets who had been beaten down were tied together in place while Darkyl and Mill stood by their sides waiting.

Thwom~

Gustav threw the bald's man body to the floor.

"Tie him up as well," He instructed Mill before finding a place to sit.

They both stared at the body with surprised expressions recalling that this person was a last step Falcon-ranked.

They could understand Gustav dealing with the three Red Jackets the other day since all three of them were first steps Falcon ranks, but this didn't make sense to them due to the gap.

Mill didn't argue or try to talk back, he immediately did as Gustav said and tied the bald man up along with the other five.

"Darkyl... Interrogation tools," Gustav voiced out as he moved his chair towards the front of the six tied together.

Bam!

He placed it down and sat on it with his legs crossed in a slouching format.

"Time to wake up..." Gustav voiced out as he received two electrifying rods from Darkyl.

-The MBO Camp

"What's up with Angy lately I haven't seen her?"

Within a group of five standing together, a dark-skinned male with bushy afro hair voiced out.

"She's been avoiding everyone, us included," The green-skinned girl in their mist with a long pointy horse-like tail voiced out.

This group of five were Glade, Matilda, Falco, E.E, and Aildris.

"What exactly is going on?" Falco asked with a worried expression.

"I noticed that she had been out of it since Gustav left, but I thought it was because he wasn't in the picture, for now, so she was missing him. Looks like it's more complicated than that," Aildris, who also seemed to have been observing Angy's change in behavioural pattern, voiced out as well.

"We really don't know what's wrong with her. We've be..." Before Matilda could complete her sentence, Falco interrupted.

"Aren't you girls are close friends? What the hell are you doing?" Falco voiced out with a tone of anguish and disappointment.

"Calm down you fish brain. What makes you think we didn't try?" Glade voiced out in response as well, not taking Falco's statement lightly.

"I'm sorry, it's just..." Falco apologized, seeing as he let his emotions get the better of him.

"Look... She shut us out. We tried time and time again to get through to her and ask what's going on but she turned completely cold and started acting like we didn't exist," Glade explained.

"Over and over we tried visiting. We'd knock on her door for many minutes, but she'd never open. She stopped going for personal training and always disappeared the instant morning routine ended," Matilda added.

"That doesn't sound like Angy," Falco couldn't believe what he was hearing.

Chapter 602: GET LOST

"...That doesn't sound like Angy," Falco couldn't believe what he was hearing.

E.E and Aildris were just as surprised as Falco hearing this. They already felt that there was more to this than her feeling down that Gustav would be away for a long time.

"How about we go check on her right now," E.E suggested.

Normally they'd need a permission slip for them to get cadets of the opposite sex to their residential area and that would usually take a lot of time to acquire and they would only be given a specific amount of allowance time but due to them all being special classes, it would make things more easier.

Everyone agreed to E.E's suggestion and Matilda along with Glade did the necessary requirements to get the rest of them over there.

After about thirty minutes they all moved towards their residential area which was located in the middle of a garden area where the trees and plants in the vicinity occasionally swayed and moved their branches.

A kind of green fog was being emitted in this area which boosted the speed of channeling bloodlines.

This was a bit similar to what the best male cadets residence had as well but instead of plants inducing the speed, they all had special channeling rooms within thier rooms.

The girls in the vicinity Glared at Falco, Aildris and E.E who were walking right behind Glade and Matilda.

Falco felt jittery sensing their stares. This was normal since the girls felt weird about the opposite sex being in their space.

Some of them even started assuming things and hissed as the stared at the trio.

Vera spotted them from the side and wondered what they were doing here as well but she didn't go up to meet them because she wasn't very close to them even though they had ties with Gustav.

However Vera was still curious and sneakily went up as well as they entered the third building in the vicinity.

All five of them arrived at the last floor in a few and moved towards the position of the second room along the long corridor.

In a few they arrived in front of Angy's door and Glade proceeded to start knocking.

"Angy open up, it's Glade!" She called out repeatedly as she kept knocked over and over again.

Kom! Kom! Kom!

Even after five minutes had gone by there was no response from within.

"Maybe she's not in..." Falco voiced out with a low tone.

"She's in... I can sense her presence," Aildris stated.

Hearing that, no one doubted him knowing Aildris was the most powerful in their midst and also had amazing senses due to not using his eyes all the time.

"Angy... It's Matilda, open up... Glade, Falco, E.E and Aildris are also here to see you," Matilda proceeded to start knocking next as Glade pulled back with an expression of distraught displayed on her face.

"Angy!" Falco also voiced out as he joined in knocking with Matilda.

This went on for several minutes and still there was no answer.

"What's wrong, Angy? You know you can talk to us about anything..." Falco shouted as he banged the door loudly one last time and what followed next was a peering silence.

"Angy... We know Gustav is not available right now but he made us swear that we would always watch over you in his absence... We can't leave until we know you're alright," E.E voiced out as he stood in front of the door as well.

"I wouldn't want to dissappoint Gustav and you're also our friend... Talk to us if there's a problem, we're here for you," Aildris voiced out as well.

Even as everyone said their piece there was still no response from within.

After another five minutes went by with everyone waiting at the door, Aildris finally broke the silence.

"She just moved... She's coming towards the door," He announced.

Everyone jerked up as they heard that, fixing their gazes more intensely on the door.

But even after a minute went by there was still no response from the other side.

"G...go aw...ay...." A raspy out of breath voice was heard from behind the door.

"Angy? Is that you?" Falco was the first to voice out with a look of disbelief.

"G...et... Lo...st..." It sounded like a low pitched hissing animal speaking.

"Open the door Angy let's discuss... What's happening to you?" Glade moved closer to the door and voiced out.

"GET LOST!" This time a loud and clear scream was heard from the other side, which confirmed that the voice belonged to Angy.

"Angy open up,"

They started knocking once again but all their efforts turned futile.

"She's gone back farther in," Aildris stated.

They realized that no matter how much they tried, Angy wasn't going to let them in today so they finally gave it a rest after more than an hour of trying to get through.

Minutes after planning to come on another day, E.E, Falco and Aildris left while the girls left to their own rooms with dissapointed gazes.

An hour after they had left Angy's room door slided to the side as she stepped out.

Her silver and pink colored hair looked extremely rough and spiky. Her eyes were blackened with bags underneath them. She really looked to be in a dark state.

Dwooooosshsh~

She dashed through the corridor, dissapearing from the scene in a few moments.

Vera phased out from the side of intersection at the end of the corridor where a plant was sprouting from.

Squinting her eyes with a suspicious gaze, she quickly moved towards the beggining of the corridor.

Back in Region eight it was already late in the afternoon. Gustav and the rest of his half of the squad were still in this building.

The whole place reeked with blood and smell of lacerated flesh.

Two of the Red Jackets corpses laid on the floor in a pool of their own blood while the others were bleeding from different parts of their bodies and orifices.

Chapter 603: We Have To Prepare For The Upcoming Night Party

The bald man head hung low as he breathed in and out profusely while blood rolled down his forehead and the sides of his face.

"See, I don't have all day... Either you give me the information I need, or you end up like them," Gustav voiced out while pointing at the dead two by the side.

He had already taken off his mask at this point revealing, his charming but cold look and his dirty blonde hair that hung loosely on his head.

The bald man couldn't believe that they had been dealing with a kid all this time and couldn't understand how a young looking boy would be so vicious and strong.

"Tough luck kid... Do you think I'm weak like the others... I won't say a thing no matter how much pain you put me through," The bald man voiced out amidst his long hard breaths.

This had been the situation since morning. No matter how much Gustav tortured him and even used the other to have him speak, it didn't work.

The Red Jackets here didn't have the information Gustav needed which was why they were easily disposable for Gustav. He had gotten all the information he could from them but the most vital ones lied in the head of the bald man.

"I see... Armani Dio... A really interesting name," Gustav muttered.

"How do you know my real name? He asked with a look of surprise.

None of the Red Jackets or even the others on the same level with him in Sahil group knew his real name. They only called him by a code name so he was surprised that Gustav figured out his real name.

"You're not scared of going through the pain... But don't worry, I will find out what scares you and I promise you when I do, you will give me all the information I need," Gustav voiced out with a solemn tone while chuckling.

"Haha, you think that will scare me... You were just lucky in figuring out my name... Kor! Armani voiced out while spitting out blood and coughing.

"I sure was... If you knew the organization I worked for you wouldn't sound so confident," Gustav chuckled devilishly as he voiced out.

"Huh? Hmph! Like it matters," Armani stated.

All this time he had been kneeling in front of Gustav with his body tied and several black poles stabbed into several bleeding parts of his body.

As expected he wasn't dead yet due to the tenacity of mixedbloods and despite being in pain he was still able to speak properly due to being a stronger mixedblood.

Gustav stood to his feet at this point and turned around.

"I know..." A smirk appeared on Gustav's face as he voiced out.

"Know what?" Armani asked with a confused expression.

"I know you're already expecting a group of the masked Red Jackets men to arrive here soon... That's one of the reasons you've held out for so long thinking you're going to be rescued soon... I'm guessing someone as strong as you are is also coming here with them," Gustav listed out causing Armani eyes to widen in disbelief.

"How did you...?" Armani couldn't believe Gustav was able to figure out that a group would be arriving here by nightfall.

Darkyl and Mill who were standing watch by the sides were just as shocked not understanding how Gustav figured that out without receiving any information.

"It's easy to tell... I have observed your subconscious behavioral pattern since I started interrogating you," Gustav said while turning to the side with a sneaky smile as he started walking around him.

"How many times has your eyeballs darted towards the direction of the passageway..? How many times did you try to drag on the questions I asked you? How many times..." Gustav kept mentioning several things which caused everyone's eyes to widen by the second.

From just all those Gustav had put two and two together and figured out things.

"Haha," Gustav laughed lightly after causing Armani to turn speechless.

"I will make sure to welcome them with open arms now that your reaction has confirmed my suspicions..." Gustav stated.

At this point everyone eyes further widened realizing that Gustav wasn't even sure in the first place and only voiced this out to see how Armani would react.

Now he truly knew they were coming and started hatching plans in his mind.

"Kill the others... Leave only Armani alive," Gustav said to Mill as he turned around to head towards the corridor area.

"Please spare us!"

"No please we can be of assistance,"

The three Red Jackets who were left alive all this while started begging.

"Do we really have..." Before Mill could complete his sentence Gustav interrupted him from up ahead.

"Kill them, do not make me repeat myself again," Gustav's voice sounded extremely commanding and powerful at the moment which made Mill feel like something would happen if he argued any further.

"Alright squad leader Crimson," Mill gritted his seethed with a look of disapproval as he moved towards the Red Jackets left to do as he was told.

"Darkyl come with me... We have to prepare for the upcoming night party," Gustav's voice trailed away as he arrived at the end of the corridor.

Darkyl quickly ran after him in response.

Hours later within a part of Region seventeen a group of three dressed in black cloaks walked across the street.

They seemed to be heading towards the three storey structure up ahead shaped like a cone.

It was currently night fall and the crescent shaped moon appeared in the sky.

Only a few parts of the street was lighted up due to the partial destruction of structures in the area but this particular cone shaped three storey building was lighted up.

There was an intersection right in front of the building which was positioned right behind the roads that led towards the right and left.

As the three figures closed in on the building, they suddenly split up.

One moved towards the left while the other moved towards the right. Only the one in the middle kept moving towards the entrance of the building.

As the cloaked up figure arrived at the entrance, the guards in masks and Red Jackets stopped them from proceeding further.

Chapter 604: Let The Operation Begin

As the cloaked up figure arrived at the entrance, the guards in masks and Red Jackets stopped them from proceeding further.

"No entries allowed," One of them voiced out to the cloaked up figure.

The face underneath the hood slowly lifted up, revealing a slightly chubby and cute looking feminine face.

"Oh but mister I just need a place to stay for the night," She said with a sweet voice.

"This isn't the an hotel, you can't spend a night here," The one on the left stated without a shred of pity in the tone of his voice.

"Come on don't be so merciless Mister, I'm willing to offer something in exchange," She said while placing her hands on her boobs with a seductive gaze and jiggling them while moving closer to the first guard.

"You... Can't..." The guard stuttered as his eyes fixated on the jiggling, perky mass of flesh on her chest area.

He had lost focus at the moment so he didn't notice a purplish looking sharp item sprouting from one side of her back.

As the guard was about to regain composure and tell her off once again, a whoosing sound reverberated across the place as the purplish sharp looking item pieced forward and stabbed into his gut.

Blergg!

He vomited out blood as his entire body got lifted into the air by while the purplish sharp object kept extending like a blade, tearing through his back.

By the time the other guard was about to react to the unexpected situation, the body of his comrade was already flying towards him after being swung towards the side.

Bang!

His comrade body slammed into him, sending him rolling towards the side.

The purplish item protruding from this lady's back was actually one pair of wing with sharp looking edges.

Shhhinnng~

She swung outwards, towards the direction of the guard on the ground, causing a destructive purplish arc to slice into his body as he got sent flying further away.

A smile appeared on her face as the pair of wing slowly phased back into her body.

She walked towards the guard by the side and took an access card from his possession before moving back towards the door.

She dropped a device right in front of the door which shot forth rays of light that displayed a realistic projection of the two guards still standing in place guarding the entrance.

"Let the operation begin," She muttered while reaching out open up the door.

Kaching~

It slid open and she walked through.

Meanwhile the other two following her earlier had also found different entry points and were also moving in at this time.

These three were none other than, Officers Fiona, Ildan and Felgro. With this they had begun their operation to destroy this storage point.

Back in Gustav's location, the time for the group to show up had almost arrived.

All three Red Jackets had been slaughtered already with their bodies disposed of.

Gustav initially let Mill do the job to test him. He left with Darkyl the other time to make plans but his perception was still spread around observing the place where the Red Jackets were held hostage.

He knew Mill didn't like his method of doing things so he wanted to be sure if Mill would obey or plan something sinister behind his back after knowing that both he and Darkyl were not in the vicinity.

However his worries were unfounded when he saw Mill do as he was instructed and dispose of the bodies. Arman was the only one left alive at this point and he was shook with fear knowing what Gustav could do.

He still wondered how Gustav found out his real name and couldn't understand how someone so young would be this meticulous and able to figure out things from just minor observation to certain details.

What he didn't know was Gustav had spoken to the system internally to dig information on Arman out so he'd be able to use it against him. Gustav was still asking the system to dig for more but it only told him Arman's real name at the time.

Gustav figured every other thing out himself.

Traps had been set and plans had been made on how to handle the upcoming situation, the next thing left was for the gang to show up.

-

As they stood in the small space waiting, Gustav suddenly turned to stare at the balcony area.

"They're here," He voiced out to Darkyl and Mill who were standing by the sides.

"Get into position," He voiced out as he sprinted away, disappearing into the distance in nearly an instant.

Mill and Darkyl too got on the move and found their way out of the space where Arman was tied to arrive at the positions Gustav set.

Arman was the only one left in this place, tied against a pillar in the middle with his mouth sealed shut.

His eyes shone look of terror as he heard the sounds of hover cars coming to a stop in the vicinity.

Chatter! Chatter! Chatter!

There was the sound of chattering along with footsteps headed for the stairway.

-"Hey what's up with the place? Why is one half of the building destroyed?"

-"Let's go check up immediately,"

The footsteps got louder as they moved up quickly approaching the corridor that led to where Arman was tied up.

The entire vicinity was dark because it was currently around past ten pm and the lighting had already been destroyed due to the battle during the day.

About eight Red Jackets arrived up and behind them was a man wearing a black hat in a kimono like outfit. He had a green upside-down triangular shaped beard with a sharp long cut on his left face area which reached down to his neck.

Arman who had been making low humming sound since which this man seemed to have heard got even more terrified as they arrived.

"Sir Tia there's someone here," One of the Red Jackets voiced out as they moved in.

Chapter 605: Toxin Immunity Has Been Activated

"Arman? What happened to you?" The man who was referred to as Sir Tia voiced out with a look of disbelief as he moved forward along with the Red Jackets who already spotted him at this point.

One of them moved to remove the rope tied to his mouth, to which he kept shaking his head trying to stop him.

"Take it off I wanna hear what he has to say," Sir Tia commanded causing another Red Jacket to hold Arman in place so the other one could remove the rope from his mouth.

The moment the rope was taken off, a cube like item fell out of Arman mouth.

"Noo!" Arman shouted out the instant his mouth was free.

Before they could even react to his scream...

Boom! Boom! Baam! Brrraaahh! Boom!

A series of explosion suddenly went off.

Some Red Jackets were blasted across the place as the explosion leveled the place.

The floor crumbled and the walls blasted apart.

A Red Jacket who happened to be stepping on a place where a bomb was planted, had his lower half completely incinerated. His upper body blasted through the northern side of the wall as he screamed out.

Sir Tia who was also in the midst of the explosion was blasted backwards once towards the heart of another explosion but the moment his body arrived there he made a hand sign that caused him to transform into a green smoke.

This made a small quantity of green smoke blow across the vicinity.

As the chain of explosions ended, his body transformed back into his former look as he landed on the ground floor.

He had a few injuries on his body but they only looked minor along with his robes which were now rumpled.

The whole floor above had been pulverized into nothing along with the walls.

All that was left of the initial building was only the pillar standing in the middle where Arman was tied to.

Apparently Arman was still safely strapped to the pillar without a single scratch on his body besides the injuries Gustav inflicted earlier.

Even the pillar was barely damaged like the explosion did nothing to it.

The whole vicinity was still covered in smoke as well as debris and dust which made it impossible to see around, however Tia could still sense movements around him.

"Kiarrh!"

"Kiarrh!"

A bunch of screams rang out as well as sounds of collision and flesh being skewered.

The series of explosions had ended so no one should be screaming again at this point which made it obvious that underneath the coverage of bad visibility, the Red Jackets alive were being picked on.

"Who's there?!" Tia shouted out as he turned to the side where he last heard the scream of another Red Jacket being taken down.

"Kiarrh!"

Another scream rang out towards his left and he proceeded to swing his hand outwards clearing a lot of dust in that direction.

As a clear line was cut through, he witnessed a Red Jacket being held down by two shadowy figures on both sides while a young looking male sliced his throat with a dagger.

"You little..." Rage welled up within Tia as his hands turned into green smoke while he darted towards this person.

However before he arrived in front of him, he suddenly felt a force of energy driving towards him from behind.

Fwwiiihhh~

His entire body transformed into green smoke as a milky colored blade drove through his back.

Fwooosh!

Gustav's body also phased through the green smoke along with his blade as he landed in front, spinning around to quickly face the transformed Tia while sliding forward.

Tia transformed back into normal with a small blood stain on his back.

"Impossible... How did you manage to wound me?" He voiced out while staring at Gustav.

Gustav ignored his question and turned around to look at Mill who had just finished dealing with the Red Jacket.

Mill had red glasses on his face which enabled him to see even though the entire area was covered in smoke. Same went for Darkyl who was currently ambushing Red Jackets on another side of the smoke.

"Go handle the rest, I've got this," Gustav commanded.

Mill reluctantly obeyed, moving further into the smoke. He was hoping he would have battled Tia so he could show that he can deal with a powerful one as well but Gustav had come to snatch that from him.

"You can go on and transform into that smoke again... I'm interested in seeing how that ability works," Gustav stated while turning to stare at Tia.

Shiinn~

Another atomic blade appeared in his left hand as he prepared to battle.

"Ridiculous... You're just a mere first step Falcon, I still have lots of tricks up my sleeves," Tia voiced out as he took off his hat and threw it towards Gustav.

Gustav proceeded to slice the hat in two as it arrived before him but Tia appeared in front of him the moment he did that.

As Gustav's blade sliced through him...

Poof~]

He bursted into green smoke and spread across the place.

Gustav was covered in thick green smoke which entered into his nostrils, eyes and mouth. The whole place instantly had a pungent ionic smell.

Gustav gasped for breath as his movement stopped and his eyes watered. He subconsciously closed his eyes as he tried to move.

[Toxin Has Been Detected Within Host]

[Toxin Immunity Has Been Activated]

[Toxin is being evacuated]

Gustav suddenly opened his eyes as he started to feel better. The smell no longer bothered him and the heavy feeling of the green gas infiltrating his body began to dissappear.

'This is Amphaline....' Gustav's eyes widened as he realised what the gas Tia transformed into was made up of.

[Flame Energy Has Been Activated]

'Its Flammable...'

Gustav suddenly burst into flames as this thought appeared in his mind...

Fwwooosshhhh~

Boom!

An explosion suddenly occurred around him as the green gas was instantly lit in flames causing two large hollow eyes to appear within the gas.

A loud howling was heard within the fog of green gas as it burnt across the air.

Chapter 606: Two Operations Ongoing

Boom!

An explosion suddenly occurred around him as the green gas was instantly lit in flames causing two large hollow eyes to appear within the gas.

A loud howl of pain heard within the fog of green gas as it burnt across the air.

Gustav at this both darted forward past the coverage of the green gas with his entire frame still lit on fire.

He arrived outside the sea of flames and watched as the green gas began to shrink in size.

Hooooo~

The howling continued as it shrunk down, covering only a small amount of space before it transformed back into Tia.

At this point his entire body was blackened and burns could be seen all over with some places having deeper wounds than others.

Gustav dashed towards him after the transformation as his hands turned red and muscular with brownish fur.

Fwooo~

He threw an upper cut towards Tia's chin area.

Bang!

The collision sent him flying backwards as he screamed out more in pain and passed out.

At this point, the screaming had come to an end as the visuality of the environment returned to normal.

The debris and dust from the explosion had cleared as well as the green gas Tia transformed into earlier.

Now that the visibility had returned, they could see that almost nothing was left of the three storey buildings structured like a square around each other.

Walls had crumbled and only a few parts of the entire place were still standing.

The pillar in the middle of where they had just finished battling was one of them.

All the Red Jackets had been slaughtered. Only Tia was left alive among the group he brought with him.

Gustav had instructed Mill and Darkyl earlier that the Red Jackets were to be killed the instant the explosion went off.

Killing them was way easier than capturing them alive because then Gustav knew they'd have to pull their punches if they wanted to capture all of them alive which would in turn make the battle more difficult.

Tia was the only one who Gustav felt had information for them so he didn't see any point in leaving the Red Jackets alive.

Especially when he actually wanted to slaughter them all.

Gustav walked towards the unconscious body of Tia up ahead and picked him up.

Even though Tia was bleeding heavily and had immense burns injury on his body, Gustav was not in anyway gentle while moving him towards the pillar.

Just like Arman who was tied up against the pillar, they administered the bloodline dampening drug to Tia as well before strapping him to the pillar.

Tia was powerful and his bloodline was quite the tricky one due to his ability to mimic different gases with different properties.

He could essentially infiltrate a person's body and kill them from within with such a bloodline ability.

He would even be able to escape getting hurt from physical attacks if he had enough energy to keep the transformation up and his battle with Gustav would have been a much more difficult one compared to that of Arman

However, Tia just happened to be unlucky getting into a battle with Gustav. Atomic disintegration was capable of making anything disappear, including air so the atomic blade was a bane for his gas like state.

He transformed into a gas that was toxic but such a gas is also a component of a fuel like substance used to sustain some technology.

Gustav was able to instantly recognize it from it's scent because that fuel like substance came from Mixedbreeds and he had sold a lot of Mixedbreeds carcasses to agencies that deal with such.

-

"Don't we need to give him a healing pill?" Mill asked as he stared at Tia disfigured look.

"There's no need, he'll live," Gustav responded while moving towards the side.

They had caused so much ruckus in this environment in the span of a day and even had to deal with the guards who were at the entry point back when they were about to come into this area.

Now that two out of the six who were considered the highest in command after Sahil and his henchmen had been abducted, Gustav finally felt they might be able to end the first objective of the mission quickly.

"Get him down," Gustav said to Mill while pointing at Arman who was still strapped to the pillar far upwards.

Two dark figures phased out of Mill's being and leaped upwards to untie Arman and get him down.

After all that was done, Arman was tied to the bottom of the pillar, right behind Tia.

Gustav had properly planned the whole ambush from the beginning, making sure the chain of explosions didn't harm Arman or affect the pillar.

He already knew they'd tamper with the rope tied to Sahil's mouth so he put the controller there. The moment it was released, the explosions would go off and they did.

Gustav smiled at Arman with a, 'I told you so look,' before moving to Tia's front.

Pah! Pah! Pah!

Three crisp slaps landed on Tai's left cheek as Gustav spoke, "Wake up... I need information,"

In a particular location within Region seventeen the sounds of collision and explosion reverberated across the place as occasional screams would be heard coming from the three storey building shaped like a cone positioned in the middle of an intersection.

The street wasn't very lively due to the war but those who were still alive and living within the vicinity stayed in their homes in fear that the groups in power had brought their battles here once again.

On the third floor of the building, a cloaked lady with chubby looking cheeks had a pair of wings sprouting from her back as her figure shot forward with her legs joined and stretched forward.

Bang!

Her feet slammed into a Red Jacket sending him flying.

Krryyh~]

He broke through the window and fell towards the ground while screaming out.

Fiona kept spinning with her wings slashing spherically around.

Chapter 607: Operation Success On Both Sides

Slash! Slash!

Two Red Jackets were sent flying again as arcs of purple shot across the place hacking their bodies forcefully.

Blood jetted across the place as Fiona continued to charge forward from one space to another like an unstoppable warrior.

She would occasionally attach a pinky sized triangular shaped device to the walls at every corner after getting rid of the Red Jackets in the vicinity.

As she darted through another corridor a whirling whitish colored blade suddenly shredded the wall by the side open heading for her neck.

Fwoom~

With a flap of her wings, Fiona's body shot forward at a faster speed, decimating the vicinity with wind.

However it didn't end here as the blade changed trajectory and started heading for her once again.

It wasn't very fast in speed but, it's acceleration was on another level.

Fiona rolled to the side in mid air dodging another one of it's advances as she turned around and started flying backwards.

The blade got to a point far ahead and ripped Through another side of the wall before turning around to give chase again.

Fwwwoom~

Fiona flew through the opening created on the wall where the blade came from and arrived in front of what looked like an hall.

She could see a Red Jacket standing aboard what seemed to be a glowing massive white dagger.

The moment Fiona spotted him she knew he had to be responsible for the swirling blade that kept chasing her around.

Just as she was about to charge forward the Red Jacket raised his left hand and what happened next was another massive swirling blade came flying from behind him towards her.

Fiona swerved and charged upwards dodging the one that flew towards her from ahead and the one chasing from behind.

A battle ensued between them both as Ildan and Felgro also cleared up the Red Jackets too from their end.

Ildan was currently on the other side of the last floor while Felgro was in the basement area, placing the triangular shaped pinky sized device on the walls and boxes in the vicinity.

"We have two more minutes to evacuate," Ildan voiced out on their mind communication device causing the other two to act hurriedly.

Bang!

Felgro got shot from behind with a electric yellowish charge which sent him flying but he barely sustained any damage due to him changing the composition of his cloak.

Daggers appeared in his hands as he laid in place while the Red Jackets in the vicinity moved forward to check on his unmoving body.

The instant they arrived within range and made contact, Felgro suddenly sprang upwards and stabbed the first one straight up his chin, instantly penetrating through his head, leaving a hole within his brain.

This lead to instant death. Before the other Red Jacket could react he had already rolled to the side and swung his daggers sideways, severing his legs from his ankle.

His body spun towards the side as reached down to stab the falling body of the Red Jacket twice.

Puchi~ Puchi~

Both of them were sent to the afterlife in a few moments and Felgro proceeded to move out of the place quickly towards another spot.

Within Ildan's current location, the entire space had been flooded with water and the Red Jackets in the vicinity were drowning.

Originally Mixedbloods could still hold their breaths for a longer period of time underwater but this time, the water was forcing it's way through their nostrils and mouths and wrapping around their internal organs.

Some of them felt their internal structures being torn apart and in a few...

Bang! Bang! Bang!

All three Red Jackets drowning earlier exploded from being filled with too much water. The initially clean looking water was now soaked with blood and guts.

"Ewww... I'm not trying that again,". A weird voiced could be heard within the water as a part of it pulled out towards the entry point before transforming into Ildan.

Ildan was soaked from head to toe with a look of disgust visible on his face.

He started moving towards another spot since he had placed the triangular shaped devices on the walls of this space as well.

-

In a flash only ten seconds were left for them to get out of the building. Fiona wings suddenly began amassing energy as she flapped them intensely.

The Red Jacket who still had blades flying around that could increase and decrease in size by will, was still keeping her busy.

She remembered she still had two spots to place the devices in and only ten seconds were left.

The Red Jacket felt something was wrong as he saw the purplish rays of energy gathering across the place into her wings.

"I no longer have the time to hold back," She voiced out as the dude sent out three blades towards her at once.

These blades increased greatly in size as they whirled towards her with so much force that they even began to suck things in the atmosphere towards them.

At this moment...

Swwoosh~

Fiona flapped her wings once causing her body to get forward with immense speed, so much that the pillars in the vicinity blasted apart.

Her wings stabbed through the Red Jacket who had widened eyes as she used him to blast through several walls.

Fwiiih! Fwwiih!

While her wings were stabbed into his body and she shot forward through walls using his body as shield, her hands threw out several triangular shaped devices outwards.

Bang!

She blasted through the last wall before arriving outside the building.

Fwowoo~

Spinning around she threw the body of the Red Jacket towards the hole she created by the side of the building.

3~

2~

1~

Her wings flapped as she flew further upwards while listening to Ildan countdown.

0~

Booom!

A loud explosion went off as the entire massive structured buildings blasted into smithereens.

The explosion was so loud that shockwaves spread across the place causing the region to quake intensely for some seconds.

"Did you both get out in time?" Fiona asked through the communication while floating above the building.

"Yes we did,"

Ildan and Felgro responded at the same time.

Chapter 608: You Are Gravely Mistaken

"Did you both get out in time?" Fiona asked through the communication while floating above the building.

"Yes we did,"

Ildan and Felgro responded at the same time through the communication device.

With this, one storage location had been completely decimated.

According to the previous information Gustav gathered, there should be four more left to destroy. Since the first location had been changed, they only had information on the other three.

Just like that another night went by, making this the third day the squad arrived in Leoluch city.

They had already made progress in two days but Gustav was sure that Jabal would start noticing that something was up soon.

The destruction of one of their storage center would definitely get to his hearing soon and he also would notice that some of the henchmen were missing soon enough.

Gustav was sure that Jabal wasn't stupid since he had been working as Sahil's look alike for a long time and managed to survive for this long.

He was sure Jabal would figure out that an unknown group were onto them soon so Gustav felt they would lose the element of surprise soon and things would get harder if they didn't speed up the mission.

Currently he has been interrogating, Tia and Arman all night and surprisingly they both still hadn't passed forth any information.

"It's about time one of you went to the afterlife," Gustav voiced out as he walked round the both of them.

"So who is it gonna be? You..." Gustav pointed at Tia first.

"...or you," He then proceeded to point at Arman.

The both of them had frightened looks on their injured faces as they heard that.

Gustav held a dark dagger in his hand as he walked around the both of them.

Fwwhiii~

He suddenly threw the dagger out.

Bam!

It stabbed into the pillar half a centimeter away from Arman's neck. A three inches cut appeared on his left neck area and blood trickled down it.

Arman eyes showed fright as he shifted his eyeballs towards the side to stare at the dagger with the blade half a centimeter away from his neck.

Gustav squatted in front of him and stared into his eyes with a deadly look before pulling out the dagger.

He turned towards the side and arrived in front of Tia.

He suddenly stabbed forward.

Puchi~

A flesh penetrating sound rang out as the dagger got stabbed into Tia's left shoulder.

"Kiarrh!"

Tia screamed out in pain as Gustav kept pushing the dagger forward almost burying the entire hilt into his left shoulder area.

"Maybe it's gonna be you... How about you give some information in exchange for your life?" Gustav asked while still pushing and twisting the dagger into his left shoulder area.

Tia kept screaming and wailing in pain.

Suddenly his cries stopped and he started laughing.

"Hmm?" Gustav had a look of confusion on his face as he pulled out the dagger and stabbed it again into Tia's shoulder area.

"Kahahahahahaha!" Tia kept laughing like a maniac as blood spilled out crazily.

"What's so funny?" Gustav asked him as he let go of the dagger.

"Hahahaha- hehe- haha... You can't kill any of us," Tia stated with his face showing confidence amidst the pain.

"Oh?" Gustav exclaimed while raising one of his eyebrows.

"If you kill me or him, the other person knows that they're your only chance of getting information which means I or him could still decide not to say anything," Tia explained.

"Good theory but are you really sure about that?" Gustav asked.

"Haha you can't do nothing to any of us," Tia kept panting due to the injuries as he voiced out.

"Hmm, I see..." Gustav cut his statement here as he stood to his feet and turned around, making his back face Tia.

"...but sadly you're gravely mistaken," Gustav's eyes squinted as his face turned cold.

Fwwhhii~

He suddenly turned around with speed and threw the dagger forward again.

Puchi~

It was so fast that Tia only felt his neck getting punctured after moments.

"Kur! Chur! Kia!" He coughed repeatedly as blood oozed down his lips and his throat.

Gustav moved closer and squatted again before pulling the dagger out of his throat.

Puchi! Puchi! Puchi! Puchi!

Gustav stabbed Tia all across his body repeatedly before finally swinging the dagger towards his neck again.

Fwhiii~

Tia's head was cleanly severed from his neck, fell towards the side and rolled a few feet away.

Blood spilled out like a fountain staining the floor and even Gustav too as the lifeless and headless body of Tia fell limply towards the side while still being tied up.

Arman wasn't able to witness what happened with his own eyes due to being tied on the other side but he had heard the gut wrenching sounds of Tia being slaughtered.

His eyes shone fright as he realised at this time that Gustav was a maniac.

Darkyl and Mill who had been watching from the background were still trying to get used to Gustav's brutality.

The way he killed was something they hadn't quite witnessed before.

"Sigh~ He could have lived but too bad, his uncontrollable mouth got him to this state," Gustav stated with a look of pity.

Darkyl and Mill in the background knew that this was false. With what they had seen in the past two days, they were sure Gustav would still kill them both eventually.

"But he was right," Gustav said as he moved to Arman's front and squatted.

"I can only get information from you now, so you can chose to withhold, make a bargain to safe your life or something and I have to comply..." Gustav added.

Arman's frightened look was slowly starting to dissipate as he heard that but he wondered where Gustav was going with this.

"This would have been the case if I hadn't received a piece of information..." A smirk appeared on Gustav's face as he stated this.

"Uh?" Arman was confused as he heard this.

Same with Darkyl and Mill who were in the background.

Chapter 609: Undergoing The Recovery Mission

Gustav proceeded to bring out a device and tapped the button.

Troooiinnn~

An holographic projection of two kids, a boy and a girl, appeared above the device.

Arman's eyes widened in terror as he stared at the holographic image of these two kids.

"By your expression I'm sure you recognize them..." Gustav stated while standing to his feet.

"Currently they are in Falcon city with their mother... Street 22 Amazon," Gustav added while moving around.

"How..?" Arman's eyes had looks of disbelief as he voiced out.

"As you know by now... I don't really care. If I willed it, they would both be dead in a manner of minutes. You don't care if you live or die but I'm sure you don't want these two following you to the afterlife," Gustav stated with a devilish smirk on his face.

"Please don't lay a hand on my kids," He suddenly started begging.

Darkyl and Mill now understood what was going on but they wondered how Gustav got this information.

"You really thought I wouldn't investigate more after finding out your name..." Gustav shook his head in pity as he stated.

"Please don't harm them, they're just kids," Arman voiced out again.

Darkyl and Mill felt Gustav was taking it too far at this point seeing as those kids were no older than seven years of age but they knew better than to confront him in the middle of the interrogation so they kept quiet.

"Do I look like I care about that?" Gustav asked as he turned around to face Arman who had a look of despair.

"I only want one thing now and you know what it is," Gustav picked up a chair by the side and sat right in front of Arman after voicing out.

Arman looked down after hearing that, "Okay... I'll speak," He proceeded to say.

In the next thirty minutes it was around eight am in the morning.

Arman had finished giving Gustav the information he needed at this point.

Gustav still sat in front of him with a look of contemplation as he digested the information he had gathered.

"Looks like it was truly Jabal..." Gustav muttered underneath his breath.

Arman had given them information on where the supplies formerly in region six were moved to and according to him, Jabal himself resided in that current location and gave commands from there.

This location had the highest amount of supplies among the remaining five and Gustav didn't doubt that it would be well guarded just like the last time where he was chased down by so many of them.

"Region 22 ei?" Gustav muttered while standing to his feet.

"Are you gonna let me go now?" Arman asked.

"Not until I confirm that your information is correct..." Gustav stated while moving towards Darkyl.

"Contact Officer Fiona," He said to him.

Darkyl nodded in response and brought out the communication device to connect with the other half of the squad.

"Squad leader?" Fiona voice could be heard from the other end as the call went through.

"Did you complete the objective?" Gustav proceeded to ask.

"Yes... We have successfully destroyed all the supplies in this location. Currently on standby awaiting next instructions," She responded with a tone of respect.

"Good... I need you lots to visit Region twenty two ASAP and gather information on a particular location for me. You lots have to be very covert in this objective.

After checking out the location, report back to me and standby in the meantime," Gustav stated.

"Understood... Where is this place located in region twenty two?" Fiona proceeded to ask.

In a desert like region with dark skies and whirlwinds occasionally moving from place to place, a figure strode across the sandy grounds.

His legs digged into the sands, dragging a line across the sandy grounds as he moved forward.

He was wearing a white hoodie with black boots and glasses which were to prevent the sand in the air from getting into his eyes.

Even with the glass covering half his face, his face still displayed a strong look of resolve as he moved forward as quickly as he could.

After another hour of striding through this desert region he spotted a small structured made of hardened sands up ahead.

He pulled off his glasses to properly scrutinized the weird looking structure and the face displayed looked like a younger version of Gustav.

This happened to be Endric and he was currently on the mission related to Ancy's recovery.

"Another redune, I should check this one out too," He muttered while bringing out a triangular device.

Troooiinnn~

The traingular device displayed an holographic image of a structure similar in semblance to the one about a thousand feet away from Endric's standing point.

Endric nodded and took a step forward but just as he did....

Swerroooovvvv~

The sand on the ground in front suddenly began spiralling and sinking further into the ground.

The spiral increased in size covering a vicinity of more than a hundred feet in a manner of seconds.

Endric's eyes widened as he activated his bloodline causing the space around him to tremble slightly.

Fwwwoomm!

He spread his hands towards the sides and leaped upwards.

His body travelled towards the side with speed as he seemed to be moving away from the location of the spiralling sand.

As his body travelled across the air, a black octopus looking tentacle suddenly shot out from the middle of the spiralling sands.

It was so fast that it wrapped around Endric's left leg in a manner of moments while he was in mid air.

Before Endric could react, his body was being pulled down with force, towards the spiralling and sinking sand up ahead.

Pah!

Endric clasped his hands together while his body was being pulled downwards and a strange force suddenly spread out from his being which held the massive black tentacles in place.

Endric's body was now extended in place as the blackish looking tentacle tried pulling him down while his face shone concentration as he held the tentacle in place with his telekinesis.

"A Drakil... I have to deal with this as quickly as possible before it unveils it's full body," Endric said internally as his eyes glowed a bright blueish color.

Chapter 610: I Can Do This With Just My Mind

"A Drakil... I have to deal with this as quickly as possible before it unveils it's full body," Endric said internally as his eyes glowed a bright blueish color.

He stretched out both his hands towards the side and joined his index and middle fingers together before swiping downwards.

Pshhh~ Psshh~

A sharp wave of telekinetic energy slashed downwards hacking into the blackish tentacle.

A fountain of black blood jetted out as the tentacle below was smoothly cleaved off, freeing Endric from the grasp of the creature.

As Endric fell through the air after getting freed, he quickly clasped both hands together, forming a telekinetic board below.

Bam!

He landed on it in a kneeling format and controlled it to move forward.

Fwwhiii~

It darted across the air at a very fast speed, moving away from the location of the sinking spiralling sands as quickly as possible.

The black blood jetting out of the severed tentacle had already covered a large area across the spiralling sands but it suddenly stopped bleeding.

Grruuhhh~ Grruuuhh~ Grrruuhh~

A weird sound was heard next as it slowly started to regenerate while the spiral on the ground increased in fierceness.

Thrrrii~]

Suddenly another tentacle shot out of the spiralling sands towards Endric who was speed away up ahead.

Unlike before, Endric had his guard up and had escaped a farther distance so he was able to quickly react to this attack.

He suddenly turned around while standing on the telekinetic board and streched out his hand.

Bang!

The tentacle slammed into a telekinetic barrier he conjured, the moment it arrived in front of him.

Even with this, the force ended up sending Endric flying across the place as his legs seperated from the board.

The tentacle shot forward again after the telekinetic barrier dissapeared.

Endric swung both arms out in a 'X' format while in mid air causing two more sharp telekinetic waves to be sent forward, dividing the tentacles into three different parts.

A shriek was heard from the position of the spiralling sands as the first tentacle which already healed up was already shooting forward with ferocious speed.

Endric was unable to react properly to this as he had just landed on the ground when it slammed into his chest area sending him flying with blood spilling out his mouth.

The tentacle reached out to his flying body and wrapped around his left leg again in a bid to drag him back to the location of the spiralling sands.

Endric's face turned dark as he stretched out his hand to use a telekinesis attack again but suddenly another tentacle shot out wrapping around his right arm.

Thwwiir~

Before he could even react to that another one had shot out again towards his left and held him in place preventing him from making use of any of his limbs.

He started getting dragged back across the air at a faster speed.

Endric gritted his teeth and turned his face to the back to stare at the weird structure behind.

Spotting the massive ball of rock sitting atop it, Endric's eyes glowed brighter and in the next moment it began floating upwards.

"I can do this with just my mind," Endric voiced out with a decisive look as the rock began breaking into bits, taking a different form.

Krrryychh~

The rock broke apart, forming three massive stalagmite looking pieces.

"Hyaaah!"

Endric screamed out as he turned his head forward causing all three sharp pieces of rocks to start hurling towards his direction.

Puchi~ Puchi~ Puchi~

With the speed at which they travelled forward, all three tencales were impaled in a manner of seconds.

The shriek was heard again as Endric was freed once more.

He quickly darted forward as quickly as possible upon landing, using his telekinesis to increase his speed.

Meanwhile the tentacles behind couldn't recover like before, due to being impaled by the stalactite like rocks. The wounds wouldn't close up since the rocks were still lodged into their body.

Endric arrived in front of the weird looking structure while seemed like a square shaped half armless body and quickly leaped in through the eyes.

As he dissapeared into the structure another tentacle shot out of the spiralling sands again before reaching out to pull all the rocks out of the other tentacles.

Crrrhhhhiii~

Loud screeches reverberated across the place as the tentacles waved around the air repeatedly.

As it couldn't sense the presence of anyone in the vicinity anymore, the tentacles slowly descended back into the sands.

In a few moments the area went back to being normal like before.

-Leoluch City

It was currently two hours past noon and Gustav had just gotten feedback on the objective he gave Fiona and the rest.

According to her, due to tight security and other precautionary measures that had been taken to prevent the technological drones from working effectively, they were not able to gather a lot of information.

However, it was confirmed that the location given by Arman was truly a certified one. The amount of Red Jackets present over there was one of the proofs.

There was also confirmation of spotting a person that looked like Sahil since Gustav had given them an image earlier.

Fiona also mentioned that they spotted a small group of them leaving in hover cars and they seemed to move like there was an emergency.

Gustav saw this as a cue to finally leave this location as it seemed that they would be arriving here or at Region seventeen soon.

Either ways he was sure Jabal would want to understand why he hadn't gotten feedback from two of the strongest six henchmen.

Gustav instructed them to lay low after inspecting that location and wait for his arrival.

Now that it had been confirmed that this location was where the a lot of supplies were and also where Jabal was situated Gustav wouldn't let the three of them handle it by themselves.

"Arman, thank you for your service," Gustav voiced out with a smile as he approached Arman who was still strapped to the pillar.