

Bloodline 741

Chapter 741 - Data Transfer From Archive 001925482777452

Gustav felt if anyone besides Miss Aimee and those who already knew of his original bloodline found out about the secret, he'd have to silence them forever.

The two officers would have found out that he had such an ability, which would lead to the MBO and the whole world finding out as well.

He didn't want to cause more death than he already had, but... 'I already killed close to three thousand people... What's two more?'

This was Gustav thought process at the moment.

He wasn't trying to escape earlier for himself. He was trying to escape for their sake.

"Anyways, the first step of the plan is complete," Gustav said as he took a seat in front of one of the holographic computers.

"Are you ready to transfer the data now?" Gustav asked the system.

("Affirmative... Go ahead and place your hands on it,") The system responded.

"Hnm," Gustav nodded slightly in response and proceeded to place his hand on the holographic monitor.

[Data Transfer From Archive: 001925482777452 In Process]

"Huh? Why are the numbers so many?" Gustav voiced ou

("Cos I have a lot of data in here, "). The system replied with a scoff.

"Oh... Universal data, uh?" Gustav muttered underneath his breath.

He couldn't fathom just how much information the system had gathered within.

The system had said it would reveal things to him as time passed, but he still only knew a little, and sometimes he wondered if the system would actually reveal stuff like it claimed.

("Hey, your longing is quite disturbing, I said I'll reveal things little by little okay?") The system suddenly voiced in his head.

"I didn't say nothing," Gustav stated with a scoff.

("Yeah? But I could sense it... I live inside you,") The system girly voice repeatedly echoed in his head, causing Gustav to hold his head.

"Hey, stop it," Gustav stated with a slight look of annoyance.

"It's still weird hearing a girl's voice in my head saying 'I live inside you' ug..." Gustav said this, but he was completely used to the presence of the system right now.

("Oh? Is the virgin worried because things are supposed to be the other way around? Perv...") The girly giggling voice of the system echoed in his head.

"Shut it," Gustav wished the system had a physical body so he could just pull her ears whenever it started speaking like this.

("Of course you'd want that... I look this way because of you, and now you even want a physical body for me. You really want to have your way with me, eh?") The system tried mimicking a seductive tone as it teased Gustav.

"Hey, stop being creepy... Since when did you start sensing things without me thinking about them?" Gustav was curious, knowing the system couldn't do this before.

("Since when our bond increased... The more we accept each other, the tighter our connection becomes. Feelings and thoughts wise...") The system explained.

"Who accepted you... I... Didn't... You're still very annoying," Gustav voiced with a slight stutter.

("Hehe, of course, you'll deny it, just like you denied falling in love with Angy. Oh, I remember, here's a term for people like you... Tsundere,") The system stated and began laughing maniacally.

Lines appeared on Gustav's forehead as his face squeezed up. Just as he was about to respond, a system notification popped up in his line of sight.

[Data From Archive 001925482777452 Successfully Transferred]

"It's done," Gustav said with a longing gaze as he stared at the monitor in front of him.

[Video File Received]

This was displayed on the holographic monitor in front, along with a play button.

Gustav looked a bit emotional as he raised his hand to tap on the play button.

"Time to check this out,"

Trroooinnn~

At the top of a massive floating structure above a blossoming city, a figure could be seen flying towards the structure.

The floating structure looked like a chunk of rock the size of a building, ash in color.

"So it had been here this whole time, and it was invisible and impossible to sense?" The figure flying upwards was startled as they noticed the structure.

"Hey, Red Shadow, I found it," She voiced out through a communication device as the wind caused her jacket to flap.

"That's great young miss. You just have to disarm it using the T-67 now," Red Shadow responded through the communication device.

The figure flying towards the structure happened to be Miss Aimee.

Strange purplish energy surrounded her as she flew upwards.

In the next moment, she arrived in front of the massive chunk and could see a weird cone-shaped device protruding from the top.

She flew a little higher and floated towards the device protruding from the top of the massive chunk of ash-colored rock.

Beep! Beep! Beep! Beep!

A faint beeping sound echoed in her ear as she approached it and brought out a three feet long cylindrical-shaped device.

This was the T-67 device Gustav and Red Shadow found past the mixedbreed borders behind the neighbourhood a year back.

Just as Miss Aimee landed on the chunk of rock...

Beep! Beep! Beep!

The beeping sounds suddenly became extremely fast, and this was when Miss Aimee noticed the pinky finger-sized timer placed by the side of the device.

[00:02:00]

It suddenly went from two minutes to...

[00:00:01]

One second...

Miss Aimee's eyes widened as she charged forward with the T-67 device in her grip.

Booom!

From the intensity of her speed, half of the floating platform behind her got blasted into smithereens, and from below, it looked sounded like an explosion went off in the sky, causing the citizens of the city to look upwards.

Miss Aimee had already seen the keyhole where she was supposed to put it, so she instantly shoved it into the hole and turned it anticlockwise.

[00:00:00]

In the last millisecond, Miss Aimee managed to deactivate whatever this piece of machinery was. It slowly powered down since there were about seven more milliseconds before the one second was up.

Miss Aimee was fast enough to deactivate it in less than a second.

Chapter 742 - Ashy Fog Explosion

After handling the unexpected situation, she sighed in relief but then suddenly sensed something and turned around.

She was currently high up in the clouds due to where this platform was located, so even looking behind her, all that could be seen were clouds. However, Miss Aimee was powerful enough to see beyond all that.

Her eyes widened as she charged forward, but the moment she did, a loud blast rang out.

Boom!

Unlike the one where her speed caused it, this explosion happened in the far eastern part of the city within the sky.

Miss Aimee was currently seven hundred miles away from there, yet she blitzed at a speed that made her close in the distance in a few seconds, but even with all that speed, she was too late.

A grey-coloured fog had covered the skies in this part of the sky. It kept spreading, and it looked like the city underneath would be consumed in no time.

"Young miss, what's going on? Didn't you deactivate it?" Red Shadow's startled voice could be heard coming from the communication device.

"We got fooled. There were two of them," Miss Aimee responded.

"What? Two? Damn it! What are we going to do now?" Red Shadow asked with a worried tone.

"I'm sure both were set to go off at the same time, which means it will be less effective and spread slower with just one going off... Evacuate the citizens from the eastern part of the city as quickly as you can. I'll do my best to slow the spread and disperse as much as possible," Miss Aimee voiced out as the purplish aura-like energy surrounding her increased in output.

This was the far eastern part of the sky in the city, so beyond it were road routes that led outside the city, which was mostly void of life.

Miss Aimee spread her hands, and a whitish glow covered them.

Two massive items began forming in her hand as the grey fog kept spreading till they covered even her.

All of a sudden...

Fwwwwoooooommmm~

A loud whooshing sound reverberated in the sky as two massive objects could be seen moving in the sky.

The cloud of ashy fog suddenly got blown backwards by a lot.

The citizens beneath stared at the sky with a look of astonishment and confusion, wondering how half of the fog that was already looming over a large quarter of the city was suddenly blown back.

High up in the sky, Miss Aimee could be seen holding onto the handles of two massive hand fans.

The hand fans were each the size of four-storey buildings, so it looked like she was holding a massive building in one hand and another in the second hand.

Miss Aimee swung out both fans once again at the same time, causing an immense gust of wind to blowback the ashy fog once again, decreasing the range of its spread.

Meanwhile, on the ground in the city, Red Shadow was working with some MBO agents, helping the citizens evacuate the city.

Ruckus! Ruckus!

"Come on, move this way. There's no time!" He shouted out as he pulled some kids out of the hover bus bringing them back from school.

He stretched his hand forward, and a star-shaped reddish light appeared.

"Go!" He shouted to them.

All of them ran forward one after the other and disappeared the moment they went through the red star-shaped light.

The entire vicinity was crowded with panicking crowds, and vehicles had blocked the roads due to people who had already been evacuated leaving their vehicles behind.

The MBO agents moved swiftly as well, leaping towards the buildings by the side, where workers were situated and bringing them down.

Red Shadow would open multiple portals simultaneously, which led to the outskirts of the city over at the west side. The range of the fog they were trying to protect everyone from was only within the city.

"Move, come on!" Red Shadow hurriedly helped another twenty people move teleport away.

This part of the city had at least twenty thousand people living in it, and so far, he had only managed to help around ten percent of that.

He knew they didn't have much time because even though Miss Aimee was helping reduce the speed of the spread, they were still dealing with gases in this situation, so there was no way some of it wouldn't mix with the oxygen in the air and become invisible.

It would soon start having little effect on the surroundings regardless. They had requested for more help from the MBO to move the people away faster, which was why more MBO agents were arriving on the scene.

But even with the amount of MBO officers on the scene, it would still take a lot of time to get everyone out of here.

In the sky, Miss Aimee had fanned a lot of the ashy fog back with just brute strength alone that it looked like the skies had cleared, but this was far from the case.

Miss Aimee could sense a greater pressure than before coming from upwards where she had fanned the ashy fog to.

Suddenly...

Boom!

There was another outburst of the ashy fog as they spread across thousands of feet instantly. They were spreading out way more violently than before, catching even Miss Aimee by surprise.

It was almost as if they had sentience as a massive amount of them formed a gigantic upside tornado in the sky, charging towards Miss Aimee with the tip.

Miss Aimee raised both massive fans again and swung them out with force.

Fwwwwhoooooommmm~

An outburst of wind blasted forth and slammed into the massive upside-down ashy-fogged tornado. Even though it was the size of a skyscraper, the violent wind crashed into it and dispersed it instantly.

However, as it dispersed, more ashy fog suddenly burst forth in every direction, instantly covering Miss Aimee's small figure up in the middle of the sky.

'Hmm? It's starting to consume my protective energy field?' Miss Aimee sensed the purplish aura-like energy surrounding her, thinning out as she found herself within the sea of fog.

Chapter 743 - One Year Mission

'Hmm? It's starting to consume my protective energy field?' Miss Aimee sensed the purple aura-like energy surrounding her, thinning out as she found herself within the sea of fog.

At this point, she remembered information about this ashy fog when she was making her findings with Red Shadow.

For the last year, Miss Aimee and Red Shadow had been on a mission together to find out what the T-67 device Gustav and Red Shadow found beyond the border was linked to.

Government scientists had inspected it back then and revealed that it was a key to a piece of technology, and it held a lot of power. Hence, the piece of technology was definitely nothing to be scoffed at.

Not only was it a key, but it was also a generator that was actually powering up the main piece of technology regardless of the distance between them.

They revealed that destroying it could cause disastrous consequences, so that wasn't an option. They had to find the main piece of technology.

The person who had created this T-67 device was Sahil and his boss, Sharmax. Sahil looked like a boss himself, but he was actually a lackey compared to Sharmax, who remained uncaught to date.

Sharmax was said to have escaped to another planet when he knew the MBO was onto him. He knew he would be caught eventually, so he didn't want to risk staying behind.

Miss Aimee was able to round up every single person he worked with within the last year using the scattered info she gathered.

They revealed they were working on a poisonous explosive device and Sharmax assistant, Sahil, just happened to be conducting illegal activities after his boss had disappeared.

At this time, the main piece of technology had been completed and sent to a particular location. According to them, the timer on it had been activated and when the explosive device went off, an ashy poisonous fog would consume an entire city in a manner of seconds, degrading the cells of every living creature within and rewriting them.

It was meant to be an insane test, and Sharmax was plotting to see how it would end up.

The henchmen barely had enough information to give about this explosive device, especially its location still remained unknown and was unable to be found by satellites even after checking.

The MBO sent several agents to go after Sahil and failed to catch him so many times until Gustav intervened.

At that time, Miss Aimee was still gathering information about the main explosive device from so many other places while Gustav was catching Sahil.

After Sahil was caught, it took some time for them to get information out of him, but Miss Aimee managed to make that possible.

Unfortunately, even though Sahil had more information to give than the rest, it still wasn't enough, but he did manage to reveal the others involved in the experiment as well as the supposed city where the explosive device was located.

Miss Aimee and Red Shadow moved to the supposed location, which was Dharma city, the neighbouring north city, to Vehical city, while Gustav travelled to go see Boss Danzo.

They checked Dharma city and couldn't find any signs of the explosive device no matter how much they checked.

Even with Miss Aimee's level of strength and the way she could spread her perception all across the entire city, she was still unable to find anything of the sort.

They began to question whether the device was truly here, but then Sahil had revealed they might need to get information from two other people.

One of the two turned out to be completely useless, while the second one, which Miss Aimee nearly burnt to a crisp underneath the engine of a spacecraft, revealed something about the explosive device.

- "He got a clear sky varnite from me at the time and told me to keep it a secret,"

"Speak in simple man terms,"

- "The clearksy varnite helps to build a material that can cloak an object, literally putting it in another space, so it doesn't occupy normal space. It's like this... Whatever gets cloaked is there, but at the same time, it's not. It cannot be accessed, seen or sensed until the varnite is deactivated,"

"How do I do that?"

- "You have to get a..."

This was how Miss Aimee's last conversation with the other person went. It turned out that the explosive device was built using this Varnite substance, so it couldn't be accessed because it was like it wasn't there.

The only time it would be revealed was when the timer was coming to an end.

Miss Aimee took the necessary steps as directed and was able to finally expose the explosive device in a part of the sky that she had initially checked.

This showed just how powerful the device was.

Miss Aimee had practically disarmed it but what no one mentioned was there were two of the explosive devices. To be more accurate, none of them knew there were two of them.

Sharmax had been one hell of a calculative and scheming person that he placed two in different spots.

Both of them were revealed at the same time, but Miss Aimee found one first and only sensed the second one at the last second.

Within the ashy fog, Miss Aimee remembered that when they asked everyone about the information on the ashy fog, they revealed it had sentience and was capable of taking actions on its own. It also got more vibrant and effective the longer it remained exposed to oxygen.

Which meant the fog would only get stronger and stronger, and no one knew the effect it would have on people. There was also a probability that this city wouldn't be the only casualty after it had consumed it since it would get stronger with time.

Having sentience just made it even more dangerous.

'Looks like I have to take off my seal,' Miss Aimee thought.

She initially felt that wouldn't be necessary but seeing the state of things, she knew she had to get serious before things escalated beyond control.

Chapter 744 - Miss Aimee Deactivates Seal Once More

From below, Red Shadow could see the sky above already covered by ashy fog, which was extending at an insane speed.

He gritted his teeth and burned his bloodline energy, creating a massive red star up front which was as large as a sky scrapper.

"Everyone quickly!" He shouted to the people in the vicinity with his hand stretched out as his entire body glowed with dark red light.

Some MBO agents picked up multiple people and threw them into the red star up ahead. Multiple people could enter this one at once, unlike the others, where they could only enter at a time.

Usually, Red Shadow never creates a portal this large due to the way it sapped a lot of energy, but seeing the way they were about to be consumed by the fog soon, he decided to do this.

Red Shadow pulled his hand back and pushed it forward with force.

Shrrrruuuuooommm~

The massive red star drove forward with speed, swallowing up everything in the vicinity as it moved, vehicles and people included.

Just with this action alone, he had already managed to send over three hundred people away in a manner of seconds.

"We need more time!" He shouted out as he saw the fog drawing nearer and nearer with intensity.

They had managed to evacuate eighty percent of the population of people living around here in twenty minutes. More and more MBO officers were arriving on the scene, and none of them even tried to take on the fog after hearing that the Demon Queen was already dealing with it.

They focused on helping the citizens out of this area since they felt if she couldn't handle it, then none of them could.

Seeing the buildings and everything behind them getting consumed by the ashy fog, dark shadow prepared to unleash another massive teleportation star.

All of a sudden, a massive spike of energy blasted forth from within the ashy fog.

The ashy fog was thick, and the moment it flew past a particular area, anything that was visible in that area before would no longer be visible, but everyone could see a figure within the ashy fog, this time covered in purplish energy that blasted across the place.

The ground began to quake from the outburst of energy coming from this being and the ashy-colored fog initially headed in their direction suddenly got dispersed as a purplish wave consumed it.

They initially thought they would be affected, but the purplish wave suddenly stopped and created a massive wall behind them.

The whole place instantly became calm. They couldn't see what was going on beyond the purplish wall, but Red Shadow could sense the outburst of energy and felt Miss Aimee had gone all out right now.

If they weren't being protected by the purplish wall, they would most likely be affected.

Beyond the wall, Miss Aimee was flying at an insane speed around the wave of ashy fog, sealing it from spreading with her purplish energy.

No matter how much more powerful the fog had become in the last twenty minutes, even with its sentience, it couldn't contend with Miss Aimee in this state.

Fwwhwii~ Fwwhii~ Fwwhiiii~

Miss Aimee circulated around the fog at speed way faster than light, using his purplish energy to tear lines in space.

Vrrrrhiii~

A dimensional rift suddenly appeared on the east, cackling with destructive energy and blueish and purplish light. An immense suction force came from it, and it began pulling the fog into it.

In the next moment, another rift had appeared on the west.

Vrrrhiii~

And in the next on the north, south, northwest, southwest...

In a manner of seconds, seven rifts had been created, and they were each in a position that surrounded the ashy fog from every direction.

Some were so high in the sky while some were placed just a few feet above the ground, but they were still in a position where they had encircled the ashy fog.

Each rift carried an intense amount of suction force that was powerful enough to wipe an entire city off the map, but since they surrounded each other, they cancelled out the force that would spread out to the surroundings.

Instead, the ashy fog in the middle was being sucked from every direction into the dimensional rifts, leaving it no chance to escape.

Miss Aimee stayed in the middle. Her grey-colored hair floated in the air as her eyes remained glowed the same purplish color with the powerful energy surrounding her.

Even with the intense suction force coming from every direction that would rip a person to shreds in an instant, she remained unaffected.

A shriek was heard as a part of the Ashy fog formed a massive cone-shaped head with two dark eyes. It flew towards Miss Aimee and slammed into the protective purplish energy surrounding her.

To its disappointment, it was unable to break through no matter how much it tried. It couldn't even get closer than twenty feet to her.

Miss Aimee waved her hand once with a nonchalant expression.

Fwwhiiiiiiihhhh~

A massive claw made from purplish energy appeared in mid-air and swiped at the massive cone-shaped head formed by the ashy fog.

Even before the collision was made, the immense force from the claw dispersed the fog instantly, causing even more winds to be generated across the place.

This made the fog clear out even faster, as that part got pushed into the rift on the west.

In a few more minutes, the entire place had become clear as every remainder of ash-colored fog in the area completely cleared out.

The rifts in the vicinity were slowly shrinking as well. This was normal since space always repaired itself when torn but depending on the size of the rift, the duration would either be shorter or longer.

Miss Aimee stood in place high up in the sky, waiting for the rifts to completely disappear before she deactivated the cocoon of the purplish wave she surrounded the place with.

At this point, Red Shadow and the other MBO agents had managed to evacuate everyone living in this part of the city.

Chapter 745 - Appearance Of An Alpha Ranked Mixedblood

At this point, Red Shadow and the other MBO agents had managed to evacuate everyone living in this part of the city.

After Miss Aimee deactivated the purplish walls and cocoon surrounding the place, the skies were clear. There was nothing to be seen beyond destruction behind the parts where Red Shadow and the MBO officers initially were.

The buildings, roads, and everything in sight had been completely decimated. It made the place look like a ghost town.

Beyond the point where Miss Aimee activated, the purplish wall remained intact but behind was like a wilderness.

Miss Aimee slowly floated down from the sky and landed on the spot within the decimated part of the city.

'The damage isn't as bad,' She thought as she inspected the vicinity.

This was how Miss Aimee felt because she knew just how powerful the rifts were and the havoc they could have caused if she hadn't let them cancel out the force of their pull by making them surround each other.

However, if another person saw this amount of destruction, they would freak out because even the outskirts of the city were affected.

Miss Aimee looked forward and flew off from this point.

Regardless of how bad things were going to get, there was no way miss Aimee wouldn't have been able to handle dealing with the explosive fog. Sharmax didn't expect his plan to be foiled by the most powerful female mixedblood on the planet.

It would have been a problem if she could never find it, but from the moment she did, the plan was destined to be foiled even though he unexpectedly created two of the explosive devices.

Miss Aimee would have much preferred it if they never went off, so she wouldn't have to resort to extreme measures, but nobody had expected what happened today.

Red Shadow and the rest of the MBO agents were still trying to get the citizens from another part of the city out even though Miss Aimee had already handled the situation.

Miss Aimee supported this action because it was a gaseous explosion, and some parts might have mixed with the oxygen in the city, which would make the air poisonous in some parts even though it was invisible.

The effect would most likely reduce a lot, but still, it would be safer to get everyone out of here and detoxify the air in the entire city.

Miss Aimee decided to request for an Alpha ranked Mixedblood currently on earth to show up in the city.

"Rhilia, How fast can you get here?"

-"I never thought you'd ever call for help, Lil sis, hehe,"

"Just get over here, idiot," Miss Aimee voiced out through the call.

-"I'm already here," She heard from the other end of the call and paused her flight above a part of the city.

The moment she turned around, a beautiful lady with grey and blue colored hair was floating in mid-air right behind her.

This lady had a slim figure, clad in a red leather gown with a long slit reaching her left thigh. Her busts were almost as massive as Miss Aimee's.

Albeit faint, she had facial similarities with Miss Aimee.

"The air is toxic," Miss Aimee warned.

"Not toxic enough to affect me," She voiced out with a smirk.

"We could have used your help earlier," Miss Aimee stated with her usual straight face.

"I just arrived back on earth a few hours ago. Give me a break, Lil sis," She responded to Miss Aimee by folding her hands and smiling.

"Get everyone out of here," Miss Aimee didn't even try to sympathize with her and immediately went straight to the point.

"Ugh, no nice to see you again. I missed you, or anything, your straight-up commands... You're no fun,"

"Rhilia!" Miss Aimee called out her name with a tone of discomfort.

"Sure, sure," Rhilia responded while raising her hand and snapping her finger.

Pah!

In that instant, blue glows appeared all across the city, and everyone left in the city was instantly teleported out of the city towards the border at the north.

All the MBO agents and even Red Shadow were also teleported away.

Over a hundred thousand people had been teleported away in one go, towards the same location.

"Done," She responded with a dissatisfied expression.

"One more request," Miss Aimee stated with mixed expressions on her face.

Rhilia was a bit surprised to see her poker face crumble.

"Official? Or personal?" She asked with a hint of suspiciousness.

"I need you to teleport me to Burning Sands city," Miss Aimee requested.

"Ah, so it's personal, hehe, Lil sis. You're being sus right now," Rhilia said with a teasing expression and began slowly flying around Miss Aimee.

"If you're not going to do it, just say so," Miss Aimee said with an undisturbed tone displaying her poker face once again.

"I mean, you could just fly there. You're fast enough to arrive there quickly anyway," Rhilia pointed out.

"If I move too quickly, rifts will be created. Also, I have to reactivate the seal soon," Miss Aimee explained.

"Oh, you're still on a leash? Tsk tsk, that's not cool, Lil sis. What if you're attacked in your weak state? Remember, you're only the strongest when you're at your full strength," Rhilia's words made it seem like she was concerned, but her tone of speaking sounded threatening.

"I welcome anyone who is willing to try. I hope they come prepared to visit the afterlife," Miss Aimee voiced out with a strong tone and intense gaze before flying away.

"Where are you going, Lil sis?" Rhilia voiced out and flew after her.

"You're wasting my time," Miss Aimee responded from up ahead without turning around.

"Ah wait, I'll do it. I was just messing around," Rhilia yelled out as she followed behind Miss Aimee.

-Burning Sands City

It had been two days since Gustav infiltrated the medical center to get something related to his plans from Boss Danzo's corpse.

At the moment, Gustav was in Sir ZiL's lab chatting with Charisas.

Chapter 746 - Making Plans

"You're going to remain hidden for now and present them with the things I have given you at the appointed time," Gustav stated.

"Are you sure Marshall is on board with this?" Gustav asked.

"Hnm, I spoke with him yesterday," Charisas nodded.

"Alright then...There's still one more thing I need to complete before leaving here," Gustav added.

"After that, I'll hand everything over to you and Scientist ZiL... I will come back after the tide starts turning to get you. At that point, they won't be able to label me with anything extra and try to bring me down than they already have," Gustav mumbled.

At the moment, theories were circulating around about how Gustav was working for terrorist organisations because, in some other small city, there were explosions similar to ones that happened in Burning Sands City.

A terrorist group came out, claiming they were responsible for the happenings.

The city wasn't as grand as Burning Sands city. Neither was the destruction level even close to what Gustav caused, but people began to link it to the one that happened to Burning Sands city.

Gustav could tell someone was trying to set him up to look like he was in league with terrorists, which was one of the reasons he knew revealing himself to let them take him in for questioning would be a very bad idea.

That would be him setting himself up for execution since they would just pin everything against him without giving him the chance to explain.

The system had snooped around, and he knew that lots of the higher-ups in the MBO were already against Gustav for giving the MBO a bad name, so they wanted him gone.

It gave Gustav this information and told him he needed a way to get himself out of this predicament.

Now that Gustav understood how things were and the fact that he was being plotted against, he had decided to turn the story about the whole situation around.

Yes, he was practically the cause and the villain here, but he had decided to turn things with his plan and pull off fooling the entire world.

Gustav had completed three phases of his plan in the last three days, and now one more was left.

"Big brother Gustav, will you be okay?" Charisas asked with a look of concern.

"Hnm, I'll be fine," Gustav responded.

'Maybe I should call Miss Aimee to let her in on my plans...' Gustav thought but quickly discarded the idea.

He stared at the holographic projection up, which was currently displaying a paused video.

Gustav instructed for the video to be played, and it began displaying a person's point of view.

Boom! Boom! Boom!

The sounds of an explosion could be heard from the video, and one could see from the view of this person that battles were going on up ahead. When this person turned around, Charisas and Marshall could be seen in the same encirclement as him, and after saying a few words to them, this person was flung forward with immense speed by both of them.

From the point of this person's view, a golden beam was also shot out at the same moment he arrived before Gustav and pushed him out of the way while his body was still being catapulted in mid-air.

As the golden beam tore through him, this person turned to the side to stare at Gustav, who had a look of disbelief and confusion before the video blacked out.

"We should never have agreed to throw him forward like he asked," Charisas lamented once again after seeing the footage.

"I would probably be dead too if you hadn't," Gustav voiced out.

"Ah... No... What..." Charisas was truly lost for words as she thought about it too.

It turned out that during the battle with the three mixedbloods that were sent after them, when Gustav was about to get killed, Boss Danzo had asked Marshall and Charisas to throw him out.

They kept questioning what would Boss Danzo do since he was just an ordinary human being. It made sense for both of them to go out and help him, but somehow Boss Danzo was able to convince them.

Marshall and Charisas activated their bloodlines.

Marshall's bloodline gave him a power boost which helped him in lifting Boss Danzo and flinging him forward while Charisas made use of her telekinesis to catapult Boss Danzo's body faster in the air, making him arrive before Gustav just when the golden beam was about to be shot out.

Charisas had explained to Gustav about how it happened some days back, but Gustav couldn't blame her or Marshall. He would be dead if Boss Danzo didn't show up at the time he did, which would still lead to everyone's death too.

It turned out that Gustav's reason for visiting the medical center and coming into contact with Boss Danzo's corpse was to withdraw the data of Boss Danzo's last five minutes before death.

The system had explained to him that this was possible with its help and gave Gustav all the necessary requirements.

Now, this was another evidence of things that had happened on that day. The authorities were unable to recover any footage from the scenes of destruction.

Everything had been reduced to ashes, and even when trying to recover footage, they were unable to. They even called in a popular MBO officer that could reanimate everything that had happened in a particular area within a specific time frame, and his abilities didn't work here either.

All this was due to the lingering energy of Decimation. Decimation had been both Gustav's bane and help. Even though he saved them and had his revenge, it also prevented the authorities from getting the truth about how the whole incident began.

Now Gustav was trying to rewrite the whole scenario with everything he had gathered. If things went as planned, he would be free, and all accusations would be dropped.

"How did you manage to get this?" Charisas asked.

"That is of no importance. Be ready to play your role when the time comes," Gustav stated before standing to his feet.

"Time to le..." Just as he was about saying again...

Vrrrrbhhhhhhrrrrehhh~

A strange and powerful pressure suddenly descended upon the entire city.

Chapter 747 - The MBO Uses Life Signs Tracking

Vrrrrbhhhhhhrrrrehhh~

A strange and powerful pressure suddenly descended upon the entire city.

"What is that?" Charisas voiced out with a wary tone.

The entire city could feel the sudden and enormous invisible pressure in the atmosphere. This made everyone pause their actions and look up in confusion.

Gustav's eyebrows creased as he turned suspicious after this pressure descended.

He could feel a certain kind of familiarity within this pressure.

Gustav proceeded to wear a hoodie around his head and moved out of the lab.

"Big brother Gustav where are you going?" Charisas asked with a worried expression.

"Stay here," Gustav commanded and leaped out through the window of Sir ZiL's office.

Sir ZiL happened to just be coming in when Gustav leapt through the window.

"Gustav!" He called out, but Gustav was already gone. It turned out he had information to pass to Gustav.

Gustav landed in the middle of the street right beside Greyscale Pharmaceuticals and activated Sprint.

[Sprint Has Been Activated]

He ran up the side of a two hundred storey skyscraper and arrived at the rooftop in a few seconds.

The pressure descending upon the city kept increasing as different media outlets in the city were broadcasting a particular News that concerned the MBO.

At this point, people began to be affected and started moving indoors to decrease the effect of the pressure coming from above.

Gustav looked up into the sky and could see a faint fluorescent light in the middle of the burning star-shaped pearl high above the city.

The burning star-shaped pearl was always dazzling with yellow flames, but the small hint of fluorescent light could be seen in the middle this time.

It was barely noticeable, but due to Gustav's eyesight, he could spot it.

Just as he wanted to activate God Eyes...

Thrrtrroooooommm~

A pillar of fluorescent-coloured light suddenly shot down from above, landing right in the middle of the city.

Zzhrrrrriiii~

The moment it made contact with the ground, the light spread from the point of impact towards every corner of the city in a manner of seconds.

The ground was glowing with a fluorescent light at this point in every part of the city. Later on, the pillar of light in the middle slowly dimmed. Everyone was startled at this, and they began to feel the pressure slowly disappear.

However...

"Arrgh," Gustav groaned in pain as he felt a sharp pain on his forehead.

'This energy... It's the same as Life Tracking,' He said Internally as he held his forehead.

("Gustav... The MBO forwarded their plans,") The system suddenly voiced in his head.

"Forwarded their plans?" As Gustav voiced this out, his eyes widened as he came to a realisation.

Currently, his forehead was glowing with a... "/_!#!_/" sign which was quite visible.

"They had the capacity to use Life sign tracking too?" Gustav was astonished as he voiced out after understanding what this was.

("You have to move n...") Just as the system was speaking...

Zzzoom~ Zzzoom~ Zzzoomm~

Bright lights suddenly concentrated on Gustav's position from different directions, and multiple people dressed in MBO uniforms began to appear on the rooftops of the buildings surrounding the one Gustav was currently standing on.

Before Gustav knew what was happening, he was surrounded by multiple MBO officers.

"Gustav Crimson! Come with us quietly for questioning!" One of them voiced out with a loud tone.

Gustav looked around with a strong and piercing gaze.

'There's seventeen of them... More will probably arrive soon too,' Gustav was instantly able to calculate their numbers.

The entire area radiated with the combined pressure from all of these MBO officers, all channeling their bloodlines at the same time.

They were ready to attack Gustav the moment he took acted in an unsatisfactory manner.

This was a situation Gustav never saw coming once again, but he would be damned if he let himself get caught when he was almost done implementing his plans.

"Alright... I'll come with you guys..." Gustav voiced out while raising both hands.

This caused some of them to crease their eyebrows in suspicion seeing the way he just agreed.

"...After I prove my innocence," The moment Gustav voiced this out...

[Combination Has Been Activated]

[Sprint + Dash]

He turned to the side and charged southwest.

Twwwwhoossshhh~

Gustav blasted across the place with immense speed, but a kind of barrier suddenly appeared the moment he tried to pass through the midst of the two MBO officers on the building he leapt towards.

Bang!

Gustav slammed into it and got blasted backwards.

Ting! Ting! Zzweehii~

Walls of white suddenly began to connect from one MBO officer to the next, and in a manner of moments, a barrier had been fully constructed around Gustav.

Gustav fell towards the window of the building behind and did a flip in mid-air before landing sideways on the window and leaping downwards towards the street below.

"There are civilians in the vicinity. Make sure you're careful with the usage of your abilities!" One of the MBO officers shouted out as the MBO officers all moved towards the ledge of the building and began to jump down after Gustav.

Bam!

The instant Gustav landed on the ground, he wasted no time in charging forward again towards the left side of the building he had just fallen from.

Conjuring an atomic blade, he raised his hand diagonally and slashed down at the whitish barrier that had been erected around the vicinity.

Thwwiiii~

The instant contact was made, a small line appeared on the barrier, which depicted how sturdy it was.

Gustav calculated in his mind how many times he would need to strike with that amount of force to break through it and realized that it was a lot.

'There's no time...' The instant this thought appeared in Gustav's head, he jumped towards the side.

Bam!

A massive boulder size black drilling object slammed into the barrier beside him as well as a yellow beam.

Gustav began running around the sides and swerving as multiple attacks began to head towards him from different directions.

"Come quietly with us, Gustav Crimson!" One of them shouted out as he saw Gustav's figure from above, leaving afterimages across the place.

Chapter 748 - Escaping The Pursuit Of The Officers

He sent out a landslide across the entire street since it was empty except for the MBO officers chasing after Gustav.

As Gustav felt the vibrations, he leaped forward and blasted through the fifty-second floor on the building by the left."

Kiiarrhrrhhh!"

Screams rang out as Gustav's actions startled the people on that floor. However, Gustav didn't mind and kept charging forward through the walls like they were paper thin.

Twwwhooosshh~

The MBO officer who had used the landslide attack gritted his teeth as he stood several feet above the ground on an exalted pillar extending from the ground.

He pointed his hand at the building Gustav leapt through and was about to use an attack when an MBO officer with a square-shaped red face placed held his shoulder from behind.

"Don't... The life of the civilians takes priority. If anyone is harmed during this operation, it will be another stain on the MBO's name," He voiced out before a rocket-like ignition blasted out of his back and legs.

Fwwwwooomm~

He flew forward and infiltrated the building through the same hole Gustav created after leaping into it.

The MBO officer gritted his teeth even more as he stared at the other MBO officers in the vicinity going after Gustav too.

Some of them had already gone up ahead through the same hole to continue chase before he tried implementing his attack.

'A mere Cadet is causing us so much trouble?' He was pissed that they couldn't unleash their abilities to the fullest due to the civilians in the surroundings.

Originally, they would only care about their goal, which was getting Gustav and but now they had to be concerned about people because of the situation of things.

The pillar shooting out of the ground began moving forward with speed carrying him along with it. He passed the side of the building, deciding to chase from the side.

Thwwieihhh~

Gustav's figure blasted through the back of the third building up ahead.

'That's an irregular speed for a cadet,' This was everyone's thoughts as they saw how far Gustav had gone already.

They had been briefed before that Gustav was one of a kind. Still, they were not expecting his speed to be way faster than everyone here, especially when they were all higher than him in terms of bloodline rank.

'He's fast but not out of my range,' The MBO officer, who was being carried forward by the pillar extending from the ground, thought as he stretched his hand out.

Currently, Gustav was in mid-air, leaping towards the next skyscraper up ahead that was up two thousand feet away with a wide road in between.

Kkrrrtyhhhhcchh! Krrrryychhhh~

The ground below suddenly cracked open and multiple spikes shot out from it.

Gustav could see the spikes coming at him from every direction below and a red-faced MBO officer who just happened to be flying towards him from behind.

[Slash Has Been Activated]

Gustav increased the force of his arm swings as he conjured two atomic blades in his hand and spun repeatedly.

Swish! Swish! Swish!

It looked like white lines were swimming around in mid-air as he cut down every one of these spikes protruding out of the ground.

The entire place was covered up in dust as some of these spikes were obliterated from a single slash.

At this point, the red-faced officer flying from behind had caught up to Gustav as he was falling from the air.

He reached out as he kept flying forward, calculating Gustav's fall speed and knowing that he only needed to keep flying forward to catch Gustav, regardless of whether they were on the same height in the air or not.

As he kept flying forward with speed...

[Hover Has Been Activated]

Gustav's body suddenly floated in mid-air just before he made his descent, reaching the same height as the officer flying towards him from behind.

Fwwhii~

The officer's eyes widened as he slowly flew past Gustav from below, not expecting that Gustav would suddenly float in mid-air.

He thought this was the end of it, but he was sorely mistaken as he felt feet on his back.

Gustav had landed on the officer's back and crouched a little before leaping upwards with force.

[Super Jump Has Been Activated]

Boom!

A loud sound reverberated across the air as the officer was blasted downwards from the force of the jump while Gustav's body ascended across the air with speed.

The entire force chasing from behind was stunned speechless, seeing a fairly high-ranking MBO officer get tossed towards the ground from a jump.

Bang!

He slammed into the streets below, leaving cracks all over the place while Gustav's figure could be seen flying over the skyscraper.

They kept chasing regardless since they knew Gustav would arrive at a dead-end behind this skyscraper due to the fact that the whitish barrier ended somewhere around there.

Multiple attacks were still being sent towards Gustav, but the officers had to be watchful of the amount of power they used around here, and they weren't as quick as Gustav, so it made things a whole lot more difficult.

On the bright side, they were seventeen of them present, each with different bloodline abilities and even more MBO officers would be here any moment, so they felt no matter how much Gustav tried to escape, he would be caught soon.

In a few moments, over ten of them had managed to get beyond the building. Gustav leaped over, and just as they thought, the dead-end was right there.

They could see Gustav up ahead with his back placed against the barrier since he had nowhere to go.

They surrounded him but paid no heed to the fact that his right hand was on his left wrist.

"Are you ready to surrender yourself now, Gustav Crimson!" One of them shouted out as blueish wings protruded out the sides of his right hand, which was pointed at Gustav.

Gustav kept inspecting the MBO figures as they moved closer and closer.

Chapter 749 - Breaking The Barrier

Gustav kept staring at them as they moved closer and closer.

The others arrived, and the circle became tighter as they moved closer to Gustav.

Gustav looked around one final time and stomped on the ground with his left foot as his body bloated and turned green.

Thrrrilkk! Thrrrilkk! Thrrrilkk! Thrrrilkk!

Icicle-like rocks instantly began protruding out of the ground, surrounding all eighteen of them.

In a moment, they had all been trapped along with Gustav within the encirclement of iro silk Gustav had just conjured up.

"What is this?!"

"What are you doing?!"

"Stay right there and don't make another move!"

They shouted out one after the other after finding themselves trapped in this space with Gustav.

"Just one more movement," Gustav voiced out before tapping on his left wrist.

"What is..." Just as the officer who controlled the ground earlier was about to voice out, a bright light surrounded Gustav.

"No!" He shouted out as he controlled the pieces of the ground to surround Gustav in a bid to trap him.

At the same time, the other officers also sent out different attacks towards Gustav.

But before any one of them could make contact...

Zing~

Gustav disappeared from the spot.

The MBO officers had looks of astonishment after this happened.

"Destroy the entrapment!" One of them shouted out, and everyone began attacking the icicle-like rocks that had surrounded them.

The Iro silk was immensely sturdy and strong, but in the face of so many bombardments from multiple powerful MBO officers, it would definitely crumble in a manner of seconds.

However, Gustav wasn't hoping to trap them there too long anyway, so this was all within his plans.

Zing~

Gustav reappeared on the other side of the barrier where he had initially attacked, which was quite a distance from where he had trapped the MBO officers.

It turned out he had marked this place as a spatial checkpoint the previous time he attacked the barrier.

'This will cost a lot of energy. But I have no other choice right now,' Gustav thought as he stretched out his right hand.

Zhiiiiii~

The hilt of an atomic blade appeared within his hand and began growing in size.

In the next moment, it was thrice as long as an average height human.

Gustav swung it forward with intensity and speed.

Shiiinn~

A long line was cut on the whitish-colored barrier, but in the next instant, it began to heal back.

'Atomic disintegration causes everything to get disintegrated from a molecular structure... The bigger atomic blade is, the faster it can disintegrate atoms... even though the atom can regenerate, it just has to be able to disintegrate them at a faster rate...' As Gustav analyzed, he turned around and sped backward as the atomic blade increased more in size.

[-100 EP]

[-100 EP]

[-120 EP]

[-150 EP]

The more it increased in size, the higher the energy points consumed.

Gustav turned around after leaving a bit of distance between himself and the barrier up ahead.

He stretched the massive milky glowing colored blade forward and activated combination once more.

[Sprint + Dash]

Dwwwwoosshh~

Lines of cracks were left across the place as Gustav's body blasted forward with immense speed, arriving in front of the barrier in an instant.

Bang!

A loud sound of collision rang out as he stabbed the Atomic Blade into the barrier.

The shockwaves spread out from the point of impact, slamming into the buildings on the sides and causing the sound of glass shattering to ring out as well.

Gustav groaned as he kept pushing the atomic blade with as much strength as he could muster.

His arms bulged intensely and became larger as he pushed forward, causing cracks to extend from the point where he was standing on the road to other parts of the surroundings.

Krrrryychyyy~ Krrrryycchhh~

Sparks began to appear around the areas where the tip of the milky-colored blade was piercing through.

The atoms that made up the barrier were being disintegrated so fast the blade was beginning to make its way through.

On the other side of the barrier...

Boom!

An explosion rang out as the multiple iro silk covering the environment was finally shattered after a few seconds of relentless attacks from within.

Debris and smoke covered the entire vicinity decreasing visibility immensely, but this didn't stop the MBO Officers within as they charged out of it.

Zhwwiii~ Swwhooossh~ Fwwhii~

Multiple figures blasted out from the smoke with speed and began moving towards the other end of the barrier.

At this point, Gustav finally pushed the entire atomic blade through...

Swooosshh~

His body phased through the hole that was created instantly, along with his massive atomic blade.

Finding himself on the other end of the barrier, the atomic blade in his hand disintegrated into light particles as he charged forward with immense speed.

Swwwowoooosshshhhzzzz~

Cracks appeared all over the road as his figure instantly disappeared from the spot.

Reddish scales grew out of Gustav's legs as his thighs and calves increased in size, furthering his speed even more.

Combination was still activated, so he was currently moving at speed faster than sound, and now it had increased even more.

At the time the MBO officers arrived at the position where Gustav had escaped from, the hole created had already sealed itself.

"He got out," One of them shouted the instant they saw the cracks all over the place.

'How did he get out?' This question was circulating in the minds of everyone at the moment, but now wasn't the time to make any analysis.

The MBO officer with a reddish-colored face tapped a controller on his right wrist, causing the barrier to fade away.

"After him!" He commanded before flying forward with immense speed.

Boom!

The fiery ignition on his back turned blue and made a booming sound as he shot across the sky with an even faster speed than before.

The officer controlling the ground earlier landed in a street of the city and sunk into the ground. Rumbling sounds that suggested he was moving underground could be heard.

Some MBO officers leaped from building to building while using gadgets to enable flight for them and chase after Gustav.

Chapter 750 - Final Escape

Other MBO officers were arriving on the scene with vehicles, and the entire area had become even more crowded than before.

Those who arrived later asked about the current situation from their colleagues as they also gave pursuit with the understanding that they were currently going after Gustav.

At this point, Gustav was closing in on the border of Burning Sands city to the south.

Swwoosshhh~

He didn't stop running for a moment.

[Super Jump Has Been Activated]

Once he arrived at the border area, he leaped upwards with intensity.

Boom!

A massive tremor affected the surroundings, spreading out from where Gustav had leaped upwards.

This!

His figure cut across the sky with intense speed, looking like a red streak.

The burning Sands were right below him as his body flew several ten thousand feet across the air.

'Would be nice to have the ability of flight,' Gustav could not stop thinking about this as his body soured through the sky.

But he remembered that the only time he could fly was when he used the ultimate Combination Form or when DECIMATION was activated.

When these were activated, flying seemed so natural to him, and it was also in difficult situations, so he didn't think much of it, nor could he enjoy the feeling that came with flying.

Hover only allowed him to float in mid-air for a few seconds, so it couldn't be considered flying, and the only Mixedbreed he could transform into that could fly had lower movement speed compared to when he was running at full speed, so he couldn't even consider that at the moment.

Gustav could already feel his speed in mid-air decreasing which meant the momentum was slowly starting to die out, and he would be falling towards the Burning Sands soon.

He was still very high up in the air, but he could feel the intense temperature from below. It was unlike anything Gustav had ever felt like he was being cooled down and cooked at the same time.

As his body began to reach the farthest point it could in the sky, he started descending.

'This should be far enough,' Gustav thought as he began to click on the dimensional bracelet on his left wrist.

He repeatedly swiped as different checkpoints were displayed until he finally saw the one he was looking for.

He clicked on it instantly as he fell across the air.

Zwwhiinn~

Fifty feet away from making contact with the burning sands, a bright light surrounded his figure, and he disappeared.

Zing~

The Officers who were chasing from behind had also arrived at the border, and they had several surveillance gadgets pinpointing the direction Gustav moved in.

At this point, they realized he had crossed over the Burning Sands. Those who had the flight ability or staying off the ground continued to scale through after him. In contrast, those who were already making use of an aircraft had no issues with continuing the chase.

But all of a sudden, Gustav disappeared from the radar.

"He disappeared!" They were once more startled by this act.

This was due to the fact that a spatial disruptor had been put in place, which meant no act of teleportation should work around a radius of Five hundred miles.

"Spread out and find him. He would still have to be somewhere around," All the MBO officers could hear the voice of a well-renowned commander through their comms.

The number of MBO officers chasing after Gustav at this point had reached a number of thirty-nine.

They spread out across the place, using one means of flight or the other as they traveled across the Burning Sands.

Each MBO officer was echo ranked with a few of them already at kilo rank, so they felt humiliated having to put in this much effort to locate a mere Falcon ranked mixedblood.

The ones who had arrived earlier felt even more humiliated, recalling that Gustav even managed to trap them for a few seconds and escape the barrier they set up.

They vehemently searched for Gustav everywhere above the Burning Sands for Gustav, making use of both technological gadgets and even their bloodline abilities.

An MBO officer who could scan an entire area with his mind kept giving reports as he moved across the place, saying he couldn't find any signs of life around here.

Others with unique scouting bloodlines also failed to find Gustav no matter how much they searched.

-

Over six hours later, most of the MBO officers included in the search had returned back to the base to give their reports.

Within a large hall where a multiple number of MBO officers gathered, a dissatisfied-looking officer with a face similar to that of a gigantic praying mantis could be seen yelling out with a loud tone.

"A Falcon ranked mixedblood managed to outrun every single one of you? Ptoi!" He spat out to the side.

"You shameless pricks are soiling the reputation of the MBO! How did he manage to escape your hands when the higher-ups even gave the go-ahead to use Life Signs tracking to find him?!" He kept voicing out his questions with a strong tone of disappointment.

"Commander Linstrunt, we were not given enough information on the abilities of Gustav Crimson. If we had accessed him properly, we would have been able to deal with the situation better!" One of the Officers in the vicinity voiced out.

"We even set up a spatial disruptor, but he was still able to use spatial ability to vanish... We weren't expecting that, and the variety of abilities left us with surprises, not knowing what to expect," Another officer voiced out, and the others in the vicinity nodded their heads in agreement.

"Our first encounter with him was also within a civilized area. We had to be careful with the use of our abilities, so we wouldn't harm innocent civilians.... These factors gave Gustav Crimson the opportunity to escape from our clutches," Another officer voiced out.