

BloodLine 75

Chapter 75 - Aftermath 2

I read from the alliance network that, this liquid scientific term is T1EH. It's a special ailment liquid. It's a product of rare herbal plants and chemical agents. Once it is injected into your bloodstream. It stops the blood clot. The agents present in liquid starts to heal the wound. Both do help by strengthening the antibodies. And indirectly by the use of healing agents present in the liquid.

After the liquid, injected into my left hand.. The Swelling is reduced. I can feel a cold sensation in my bones. It's the work of a healing agent that, I read before. Time went by, my broken parts were joined and I got completely healed. "It took just one hour to heal completely" I commented in my heart.

Meanwhile, The robbery planners.

Will Roach, Frank Terry, and Bernard Barks were reviewing their stolen items. They were at a secluded place outside of Thomas Trade Centre. This place is located in the border region. They decided to come here. So, that after reviewing stolen auction items. This can be split among the groups and robbers can escape via the border. Before the information reaches out to the Border Patrol Warriors.

"What happened to the last guy?" Will Roach asked with worry. Currently, there were four robbers. The last robber has not arrived yet. There was panic among the members. One of the robbers said, "I think we should escape now. Otherwise, it's impossible to cross the border." Hearing that, the rest of them had different thoughts running through their mind.

Pessimistic Frank got alarmed. He already imagined the scenario of himself getting beaten by auction authorities. He gulped his saliva thinking that. "It was horrible, " Frank commented in his heart. He wanted to say something to his teammates. Especially, Will Roach and Bernard Barks. They too had dreadful looks on their face. Seeing that, words did not come from his mouth.

But, later seeing that still there is no news from the last robber. "Guys look like he is being caught," Frank said with worry. Both Will Roach and Bernard Barks were already on edge. Hearing Frank's words. Will Roach pissed off. "Do you want to die Frank?" Will replied in a threatening tone.

Will Roach had different thoughts running through his mind. He made a flawless plan. Especially, selecting the robbers. He wanted them to have at least a special trainee. He clearly knows, after having years of experience. And connection from Thomas Trade Centre. He knows that Thomas Trade Centre won't use special trainee warriors as staff in their building. They keep them as hidden Force.

That's why timing is important to their robbery plan. They have to finish their robbery before the hidden force gets dispatched. But, looking at the latest events. There might be the appearance of variables. He doesn't know yet. If what Frank said was true. Then it won't be long before they caught our trails too. He is getting into a dilemma. That may be his assumption is wrong. Maybe the robber escaped with his loot.

You can't trust these rogues. So, he wants to verify the situation. But, Bernard Bard was quite clear in his head. He wants to escape. The deed is done so, there is the point in staying here. One day or another they will get caught. All he wanted was a move to a new place. And have a long awaiting breakthrough there. But, still there is fear in his eyes.

Seeing the worsening situation. The remaining four robbers didn't waste time to escape from here. They collected their looted share. Leaving behind the trio alone. "Will, I think we should also escape now," Bernard said with a heavy tone. For the first time, Will Roach didn't dare to voice out his opinion. He listened to his friend and nodded. Then the trio also escaped from this place to a new town.

Meanwhile, Zack exited the Thomas Trade Centre.

After healing was done. I exited the building. I rotated my left hands frontwards. To see any difference, but it's working perfectly. I decided to visit Leki Restaurant. The Fatty must be waiting there. Yet, I have some bad feelings in my heart. At first, I thought it was due to Assassin. But, now the situation was clear. But, I didn't know why I'm getting chills on my backbone. There is a vague feeling that something is wrong.

Maybe I should go back to check the casualty ward. There is the possibility that he got injured. "Why he is not picking up the calls? And he is not replying to the message either". It's only making my assumption for the casualty ward stronger.

While Zack is on his way to Leki Restaurant. There is another person waiting outside and keeping eye on him. He was the same beggar. One of the men of Sir Lowell McClain. Currently, He is in a different disguise. Like normal pedestrians wearing simple casual clothes. Earlier, he watched both Zack and Fatty entering the building. But, now Zack only comes back.

He has also noticed something wrong with Thomas Trade Centre. He is reporting all the developments to Sir Lowell McClain. The Thomas Trade Centre didn't yet announce anything. All the injured ones were in Thomas Trade Centre. And the partners of bidders were not allowed inside the building.

Meanwhile, on the top floor of the Thomas Trade Centre.

A heated debate is going inside the conference room. "Thomas Trade Centre. Must take responsibility for this robbery" commented the bald man with a serious tone. He is the chairman of this Mini-Auction. He is arguing with people from Thomas Trade Centre. He got furious, it's a huge loss for their Auction. More than a hundred Million credit points' worth of Auction items was stolen. The damage was reversible.

The Admins from Thomas Trade Centre didn't know how to answer their questions. This is the first time they face a situation like this. They even called their shareholders for the discussion. If the news was leaked out. It would cause huge damage to their reputation. Suddenly, now. The brute man came. He was none other than the team leader. He informed the latest developments.
