

Bloodline 781

Chapter 781 - Complicated Family Relationship

"She would have wiped us off the face of the earth too if her mother's last wishes weren't to leave us be," Rhilia added.

"That's... I'm surprised you'd still want to be around her," Vera stated.

"I always admired her even though I am close to fifteen years older than she is... She is the definition of pure talent. Unrelenting, Unforgiving, Determined... She was the type who never stopped reaching," Rhilia voiced out.

"I used to be known as the main star of the entire household till she came along. Even though we're both Alpha ranked Mixedbloods, she would easily toss me around like a rag doll if I ever decided to go against her," Rhilia revealed.

Vera had an astounded look on her face as she heard this. Turned out Miss Aimee was way more powerful than everyone realized seeing as even her own cousin that was one of the most powerful Mixedbloods on the planet admitted that she would easily be taken care of by her.

"Also, I think she's fond of me even though she hates our family... She did save my life once after all," Rhilia chuckled lightly as memories flooded her mind.

"Just how powerful is she? If she decided to go all out what would be the outcome?" Vera was curious and decided to ask.

"Honestly... no one knows. It's just like Jack, the most powerful Mixedblood, no one knows the full extent of their capabilities since there was never a reason for them to unleash all of it..." Rhilia explained.

"However... There is no guarantee the earth would still be in one piece if she decided to turn rogue one day. So long as she is within earth's atmosphere and decides to unleash her full capabilities, earth might not remain in space anymore..."

In a flash, over a week had already gone by and Gustav had remained within the underground tunnelway this whole time.

It had been a month since the incident with Boss Danzo and even though he hadn't solved the situation yet, Gustav still grieved every single day.

The pain of losing Boss Danzo was still as sharp till this day and whenever he thought about how he could have done things differently tears would flow down his face once more.

The system had told him over and over to stop beating himself up about it but such happenings were involuntary.

Emotions couldn't be controlled after all and Gustav had never borne the pain of losing someone he considered very important before so he didn't expect it to hurt this bad.

He still wondered how he was going to face Mara to tell her Boss Danzo died because of him.

In the last few days, his energy had completely recovered as well as the energy within the dimensional bracelet.

He had also spent a lot of time channeling his bloodlines. He could tell that his Yarki would be free of the restraints in the next few hours because he had checked it some time ago and witnessed the bandaids like restraints slowly falling apart.

"Because of Miss Aimee and the interference of the others, there is no need for the last step of the plan. They must have found the corpse already," Gustav muttered with a look of contemplation.

He still wondered what they were all doing on the surface and how everyone suddenly arrived. This had been on his mind since he arrived back here.

It made him wonder if a tracker was placed on him but Gustav was sure they would have found a way to get down here if that was the case.

Gustav couldn't call what had happened a coincidence but he hoped they never knew he was there because knowing of his presence would ruin everything.

"Was Miss Aimee there to help me?" Gustav thought as he recalled Miss Aimee standing in front of the hole without jumping in for the few seconds his dimensional bracelet was activating.

"She's really going to kill me after all this has died down," Gustav sighed as he voiced out.

This made him feel glad in a type of way.

Even though he had lost Boss Danzo, he was happy for the fact that Miss Aimee was still around and he hoped he never had to lose her.

A light smile appeared on his face as he thought about their experiences together before standing to his feet.

"It's time to move," He voiced out as he began operating the dimensional bracelet.

<<Initiating Spatial Jump>>

Zing~

He reappeared in Sir ZiL's office causing a small wind to scatter across the place.

Sir ZiL who was seated on one of his sofas was startled for a moment before spotting that it was Gustav.

"Gustav, you're back," Sir ZiL voiced out with a smile.

"Hnmm, how is Charisas?" Gustav asked.

"She's fine and prepared to give the presentation by tomorrow with Marshall," Sir ZiL responded.

"By tomorrow?" Gustav voiced out in confusion.

"Yes by tomorrow. We had to take the steps you asked us to earlier because your plan has already begun working and the authorities are currently re-evaluating your case," Sir ZiL voiced out with a smile of victory.

"Hold on hold on," Gustav couldn't believe his ears as he thought this would take longer.

"Are you saying they have found all the clues that I planted, the corpse included?" Gustav asked.

"Not only found, but an unknown individual also helped broadcast the results of the investigations that had conducted in the past week from the clues you dropped leading the narrative in the direction you wanted. The press had broadcasted it and now the whole world is questioning the government themselves instead of you based on everything that had been found so far," Sir ZiL explained.

"Interesting... So is this why they are presenting tomorrow?" Gustav asked.

"Yes, there is a hearing tomorrow and seeing as you hadn't been available all this time, I took the liberty of preparing them for the presentation for them to appear in tomorrow's hearing.. We couldn't miss the opportunity," Sir ZiL added.

Chapter 782 - The Upcoming Hearing

"Good job Scientist ZiL, I really owe you..." Gustav voiced out with a look of gratitude but something still bothered him.

"How is a hearing going to be held in my absence?" He questioned.

"It has been requested all over the news for you to show up at Court Vladlini tomorrow for the last few days. But the hearing would still have taken place regardless of your absence as the witnesses in several crime scenes have severally voiced their opinions on wanting to speak to the public on what they saw on that day," Sir ZiL explained.

"Every one of them who is fully recovered now will be attending the hearing and a defender has been put in place for you. Courtesy of your teacher," Sir ZiL added.

"Miss Aimee is involved as well?" Gustav voiced out.

"She appeared on the news recently, I'm sure she's doing all that she can from within to assist with the upcoming hearing," Sir ZiL responded.

"I guess I'll be seeing her soon then," Gustav stated.

"Will you be attending the hearing?" Sir ZiL asked.

"No, unless I'm sure of this whole thing working out... I actually haven't decided if I will attend or not," Gustav said with an indecisive tone.

"I'll make my choice before tomorrow arrives," Gustav added.

"Hnm, alright," Sir ZiL nodded.

"I need footage on the news, I want to watch everything that has happened so far," Gustav requested.

Sir ZiL nodded and voiced out some commands.

In a few seconds, several holographic screens appeared in mid-air showing different media outlets.

The screens began playing different News footage which according to the date some were as early as two days after Gustav left the headless corpse in the hole and some were just a few days ago.

«WE HAVE RECEIVED VITAL INFORMATION RELATING TO THE WG DISTRICT INCIDENT AND THE CASE REGARDING GUSTAV CRIMSON! THE HEADLESS CORPSE OF MR VANISHER WHO WAS AMONG THE DECEASED ON THAT DAY HAS BEEN RECOVERED»

PROTECT THE CITY FROM IMMINENT DESTRUCTION»

«GUSTAV CRIMSON... PROTECTOR OR MASS MURDERER?"»

Gustav was able to keep up with every screen showing different media outlets and their similar but also different broadcast of news articles.

So far what he could see was his plan coming to fruition even faster than he expected. He didn't think someone would reveal the investigations that would be ongoing after he had planted every piece of evidence he created in the different spots.

It turned out someone within the MBO gave the press full revelation of everything that the MBO had uncovered.

Right now Gustav wasn't even being seen as a bad guy anymore except by some of those who lost loved ones in the destruction.

Gustav had gotten Ring Lord Vanisher's storage ring because the day he obliterated his entire body besides his head, the ring was the only thing left.

Of course, since Gustav was in a rage that day; he didn't even think twice about the ring neither did he even try to pick it up since he passed out a few seconds after destroying them all.

Fortunately, he recalled the existence of the ring long after he had regained consciousness and went back to the area where he snuffed them out of existence to find it.

He eventually did and getting the storage ring to open up wasn't an issue since he could take the form of Ring Lord Vanisher.

There were already compromising documents within the personal storage ring that listed out illegal operations the Ring Lords had carried out.

Gustav only needed to add more that would suit the narrative and make the Ring Lords look like the culprits of the destruction that had happened within the City on the day of Boss Danzo's death.

Since storage devices could not be opened up except by the owner they were linked to, the MBO and other authorities investigating did not doubt that everything they had found within was planted.

Of course, since they were the most powerful force in the world, they would have special means of prying open the storage device.

And now the things that have been found within as well as a fake footage Gustav created with the help of the system, the blame for the incident that happened was falling on the heads of the Ring Lords.

Gustav could not completely change things to look like he wasn't involved due to the eyewitnesses who already witnessed his involvement, so instead, he made it look more like the actions he had performed were for the safety of the entire city.

According to some of the records documented within the storage device of Ring Lord Vanisher, a man-made virus to which only them had the cure was to be released in the city.

They would then capitalize on the fact that only they could make the cure.

Chapter 783 - Traitor Revealed

According to some of the records documented within the storage device of Ring Lord Vanisher, a man-made virus to which only them had the cure was to be released in the city.

They would then capitalize on the fact that only they could make the cure.

The locations that had been destroyed were simply places the virus was being replicated and some other locations had also been rigged with them according to the records.

Even though Gustav's statement had not been taken yet since he hadn't fallen into the hands of the authorities, everything pointed to the fact that all these locations were destroyed for the preservation of the city.

Initial statements of some of the witnesses mentioned he was fighting off a group and even saved them so there were speculations that Gustav already found out about this ploy a long time ago and they tried to silence him.

The city still remembered the situation with Boss Danzo being charged several felonies, one of which came from Ring Lord Vanisher, and then Gustav released a statement about an illegal underground arena belonging to him.

They recalled that the city descended into chaos on that same day and Gustav was being attacked with Boss Danzo at a place they were settling down in on that same day.

The media had also helped in outlining these connections, stating that they couldn't just be coincidences which was why a hearing for Gustav was being conducted this early.

The speculations and news were blowing out of proportion worldwide as Gustav was now believed by the people to have saved the city. The methods however of doing so seemed to be a problem, which was why he hadn't been cleared as a suspect yet.

Now that Gustav thought about it, he would have to be present during the hearing to give his own statement and answer questions they might have for him to make the whole situation tally even more in his favor.

"So tomorrow by noon," Gustav voiced out as he saw the timing of the hearing.

"Yes," Sir ZiL nodded in response.

"I'll be there," Gustav decided.

"Good, this whole thing can finally end once and for all," Sir ZiL was genuinely glad as he voiced out.

After all, Gustav had been wanted and in hiding for over a month already. He felt it was really too much for a nineteen-year-old kid to be going through such especially when he was not really to blame for the whole situation.

The corrupt ways of the government and letting people with wealth act as though the law doesn't restrict them was what led to this anyways. Now they had met their Waterloo losing so much from the destruction caused by Gustav.

Sir ZiL didn't see anything wrong with Gustav changing the narrative to pin the blame for the whole situation on the Ring Lords since this incident which was clearly not his fault would have buried him.

There was nothing wrong with tricking the world since they didn't root out the evil ones in the first place. It was well-deserved after everything he had gone through.

Meanwhile, within the apartment, Miss Aimee stayed in with Angy and the others a situation was currently playing out.

In the living room, everyone formed a circle around the green-skinned girl with a brown colored tail.

They all had looks of disgust as they stared at her. While Miss Aimee behind shook her head with an expression of disappointment displayed on her face.

"What do you have to say for yourself... Glade," Miss Aimee voiced out with a cold tone from behind.

Glade who was encircled by Angy, E.E, Aildris, and the others, had a look of guilt racked up on her face as she tried to speak repeatedly but couldn't form words.

"So it turned out it was this green bitch, eh?" Rhilia voiced out from Miss Aimee's side.

"Having a different look sometimes is something to watch out for," She added while clicking her tongue.

E.E's eyes widened a little as he heard that and turned to look at her with a suspicious gaze as he recalled he looked especially different from the others.

"I guess in this case it wouldn't be discrimination against color in this situation so I'll let that slide," He muttered and turned back around to face the situation at hand.

"I trusted you Glade... You were my best friend, how could you do this?" Angy voiced out with a betrayed expression.

"I... I... It's... You can't blame me, I had to watch out for myself," Glade finally voiced out.

"You had to watch out for yourself? Which is why you were giving out information on a friend?" Angy voiced out while giving Glade a ridiculing glare.

"I... I don't really consider him a friend. I'm only here because of you," Glade stated while looking down.

"Thanks for choosing to betray me then... So all this time, you acted like a friend and kept giving out information on our doings here. You told them everything they needed to catch him and they almost did. I remember you would ask questions about Gustav from me and tell me to stay away. Sometimes you acted like you despised him... Does that mean this has been going on for long?" Angy voiced out with a look of realisation.

"I... I... No... Yes... I didn't mean to okay? I just ha..." Angy interrupted her before she could complete her sentence.

"You've been doing this even in camp? Who have you been feeding information to and what do they want with Gustav?" Angy voiced out with a threatening tone as she moved closer to Glade.

"I can't say... I'm not allowed to," Glade responded while shaking her head.

The others stared at Glade with an expression of disgust and disappointment.

"How could you even do such and stay with us? Were all those times we shared a lie?" E.E voiced out.

"No, I was only looking out for myself, you can't blame me... You all would do the same too if you were in my posit...."

Chapter 784 - One Minute Left

"I'd never betray a friend for any offer no matter how good, but you have made it clear that you are no friend, Glade," Aildris's tone was laced with immense disappointment as he voiced out.

"Who have you been feeding information to, Glade, and what did you tell them, you treacherous bitch!?" Angy's voiced out in a hate-filled tone.

"I can't... tell you..." Glade said with a crestfallen expression.

"I guess this is what trusting someone gets you... Gustav was always right," Angy anger was building up the more she stared at Glade.

"Yo chill Angy, we're still here," E.E said trying to calm her down.

"This is how being nice to others brings betrayal and suffering... First, Endric, and now you, Glade! You..." Angy arrived in front of Glade at this point while pointing her index finger at Glade's forehead.

"Angy I only did what I had to... It's not be..." Before Glade could complete her sentence Angy's hand swiped an arc across the air.

Pah!

A loud crispy slap reverberated across the vicinity as Glade was sent tumbling towards the side from the collision of Angy's palm on her face.

"You bitch! Who were you selling information to!" Angy screamed out after sending Glade flying with a slap.

"Hey, Angy, calm down!" E.E voiced out as everyone moved to restrain Angy.

Angy had a murderous gaze in her eyes as everyone in the vicinity turned slow in her line of sight.

Thwwwiiiiii~

Before anyone could lay hands on her she had blasted forward across the living room and picked Glade up before she could move an inch after colliding with the wall.

Bang!

The wall of the living room was blasted through as Angy pushed Glade's head through it.

Swwoooooosshh~

By the time everyone realized what was happening, Angy had already disappeared from the vicinity with Glade.

Two massive holes could be seen in the walls ahead.

One led to the kitchen area and the other one within the kitchen led outside the apartment and they happened to be many floors above the surface of the ground so the wind blew in through the hole up ahead.

They could see the small view of the city from the hole in the kitchen.

"Angy!" Everyone screamed out but they were already long gone.

They could hear distant sounds of a blast which proved that Angy was not taking it easy on Glade.

"Miss Aimee you have to stop Angy," E.E shouted out as he recalled what happened during the time Endric injected her with that poison.

If they weren't there the second time around Endric would most likely have been snuffed from existence.

Miss Aimee folded her hands from behind while checking the time, "Hmm, not yet," Miss Aimee voiced out.

Everyone's jaws hung open as they heard that. It was always an adult's job to separate fights between youngsters. This was a fight that Miss Aimee could easily separate but she looked like she wasn't interested in doing that.

In fact, they could swear they spotted a glint in Miss Aimee's eyes that proved the situation was favorable.

"Come on, we have to stop them before they kill each other," Aildris voiced out while opening his eyes.

Zzhhhrrrrrhhh~

The color in the vicinity instantly disappeared turning everyone around him to black and white.

Everyone, except Miss Aimee. In this world of white and black, Miss Aimee was the only one who retained color, which frankly shocked Aildris a little but then he remembered who she was and wasn't so surprised anymore.

Zhrrr~

He disappeared from the spot and the color of the top of a building several hundred meters away began to warp before he appeared right atop it. Turning the vicinity to the same black and white color.

E.E conjured a vortex and jumped through, arriving several thousand meters above the city.

Fwwhiiii~

His body fell through the air as he looked at the city from this height.

"I see them... They're headed for the James street conjunction, let's intercept them and surround Angy from all directions," E.E voiced out as he spotted the silver streak cutting through the city streets at immense speed.

The reason Angy didn't seem to be moving as fast was that she kept moving in a zig-zag format across the street repeatedly bashing Glade's body into every structure she could find.

The cars, the buildings by the side, the metallic poles, the ground... Practically everything.

Glade freed herself at one point in time and even tried to fight back but Angy was just too quick and moving with immense anger so she didn't hold back in dealing blows to Glade.

One could see Glade being tossed across the place with slaps, kicks, and punches from Angy, disabling her before she could even properly use the three feet reddish glowing sickles she conjured.

Angy proceeded to grab hold of her neck again and sped across the place while bashing her across multiple buildings' windowpanes.

Elevora flew across the air, not restricting her abilities as she headed for the interception point E.E mentioned.

The others didn't stay put as well and also moved fast across the city, jumping from rooftop to rooftop as they headed in the direction Angy stormed off in.

Miss Aimee and Rhilia stayed back, staring at the hole in the walls with unbothered expressions.

"You're not gonna stop them?" Rhilia asked.

"Nope... She has two minutes left," Miss Aimee responded causing Rhilia's face to lit up in confusion.

"If she can't kill her within this time frame then we'll have to let it go," Miss Aimee's words hinted that she would only interfere after the timer she set for Angy to deal with Glade was up.

"You will interfere after two minutes?" Rhilia asked.

"It would be seen as bullying if I was to take matters into my own hands, so it's better this way," Miss Aimee added.

A chill crawled down Rhilia's spine as she heard these words. It was literally giving Angy the go-ahead to commit murder since Miss Aimee couldn't do it herself.

Chapter 785 - Angy Runs Mad

Minutes earlier, Miss Aimee had gathered everyone to the living room, saying she had an announcement.

Before this, Miss Aimee had brought everyone besides Vera who remained in the city, back to Burning Sands city.

After the stunt Gustav pulled before he disappeared once more she figured there was no reason to leave the cadets watching other cities.

As things began to unfold after Gustav planted the headless corpse and the narrative began to change for him, Miss Aimee was even more convinced to bring the cadets back to the city.

She had a feeling she'd be seeing Gustav real soon now so there was no need to try and fish him out.

Her prior discussion with Vera in the presence of Rhilia as well led her to plant a technologically advanced and very impossible item to acquire, call the transmission tapper.

Only a handful of these technology devices were created worldwide and with her special privileges, Miss Aimee was able to acquire one.

After successfully planting it in the apartment all she had to do was wait. It was called a transmission tapper because of its ability to snoop in on any call happening with any communication device no matter how encrypted the device may be.

It would record the conversation between both parties and transmit it back to the person that installed it within the desired environment.

Glade happened to use a mind communication device to engage in frequent discussions with the person who she fed information on Gustav.

Even though words weren't said out loud, the transmission tapper still infiltrated the mind communication frequency and saved a recording of their discussion.

It only happened once throughout the entire week but it was enough information for Miss Aimee to figure out that Glade was the traitor in their midst.

The moment everyone arrived for the gathering, Miss Aimee revealed a recording of Glade's discussion with the mystery person within the MBO causing everyone in the room to turn to her with looks of disbelief and disappointment.

Angy especially couldn't believe her ears and kept questioning Glade telling her to say it was a lie but Glade knew very well that there was no way she could lie her way out of this one. Especially when Miss Aimee herself was the one who had initiated the whole thing.

In the present time, Angy and Glade were still blasting across the city. According to Miss Aimee, there was still one minute left before she would interfere but one minute was a lot of time for a mixedblood that could move faster than the speed of sound regularly.

The moment Angy arrived at the conjunction street with Glade in her grasp several figures appeared from different directions in that same area.

Traffic was delayed as Angy angrily slammed Glade into a hovercar, causing it to flip repeatedly in the air as it headed in the direction of a building up ahead.

Fwwwheiii!

A purplish vortex opened up behind it in mid-air, swallowing the vehicle up which reappeared on another street without a scratch.

Angy was about to turn to the side to speed away again when E.E who appeared above a rooftop swung his hand forward causing multiple vortex rings to open up.

Shrrruui~ Shrrruui~ Shrruuui~

The gravitational force of the environment instantly changed as Angy felt a pull from every direction decreasing her speed.

Ria gave a warning to the others before causing the road in the vicinity to turn soft with a stomp of his feet.

VrrrhUUU~

Angy's feet began to sink into the ground like it was full of mud. Elevora arrived on the scene too at this point and was swooping down from mid-air in a bid to grab Glade from Angy's clutches while Aildris was aiming to pin Angy down as he dropped from the top of a skyscraper in the vicinity.

Teemee and Matilda blocked the areas of escape Angy could possibly use as they activated their bloodlines ready to stop her while Vera was the only one who distanced herself from the others like she was only here to spectate.

The citizens in the vicinity were struck with fear as they watched the scene of these Mixedbloods displaying powerful abilities on the streets.

Many of them had already abandoned their vehicles and run into the buildings by the side for cover.

As Angy's feet sunk into the ground, she could see Elevora closing in on her from above with speed that rivaled her current one and Aildris descending from the other side as well.

Her face squeezed up with anger...

"So you are all traitors as well? No one will stop me from killing this bitch today!" Angy voiced out as a third horn began protruding from her forehead.

Shrrriiuhh~

The moment Elevora grabbed hold of Glade's shoulder and pulled her away from Angy's grasp she suddenly felt the build-up of fierce energy.

Turning to the side she saw Angy's figure was already covered with a silver light.

Aldris's eyes widened as he was only a few inches away from making contact with Angy as well.

In the next instant...

Thrrruihhhhh~ Boom~

A discharge of silver-colored energy blasted from Angy's being, spreading across a radius of more than a thousand meters.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

Multiple sounds of collision rang out as the energy slammed into everyone and everything within its range, vehicles included.

Cars flipped repeatedly in mid-air and crashed into the structures in the vicinity while everyone watching from far could see the figures gathered around the silver streak getting blasted halfway across the street.

The ground cracked open and a crater was blasted into the ground as tremors spread across the place.

Even Elevora was affected for a moment as the energy had hit her more violently due to being the closest to Angy.

She slammed through a building by the side while Glade was released from her grip.

As Glade's body flew across the air, Angy sped forward and jumped up while stretching out her feet.

Chapter 786 - Interruption From An Unknown Figure

Bang!

Her feet crashed into Glade's chest with intensity as both of them blasted through a business building.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

Glade's back kept crashing into multiple walls within the building, destroying offices while Angy's feet were still stamped on her chest pushing her forward with the leftover force she had accumulated from the small sprint she did earlier.

Bang!

They slammed through the last wall on the end of the building and fell from the one hundred and eightieth floor down to the next street below.

Glade conjured two sickles in her hand as they fell through the air and swung them towards Angy.

Angy bent her body backward in the mid-air, easily dodging the attack, and proceeded to grab both Glade's hands.

Grab!

The instant she did that, she pinned Glade's body in a way that left them falling through the air with Glade's back facing the ground.

Bang!

Traffic was once again disturbed as Glade landed on her back while Angy landed her feet on Glade's chest causing the sounds of ribs shattering to ring out across the air.

Blergh!

Glade vomited out blood profusely as her vision turned blurry and she felt immense pain from within.

Angy proceeded to pick Glade up once more and slammed her into a wall by the side before raining barrages of punches on her face, chest, and stomach region.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

Angy's anger kept rising as she recalled all the things she had done with Glade and all the times they spent together.

"You treacherous bitch! I trusted you!" Angy screamed out with a thunderous tone of annoyance as she kept raining immensely fast punches on Glade's body leaving her without the ability to fight back.

E.E and the others on the other end of the street began picking themselves up after being sent flying across the place due to Angy's sudden discharge.

They knew she was capable of performing such a feat initially but besides the time when she was infected by whatever Endric poisoned her with, they knew she could only build up enough charge to do that by running first.

The time she used it without doing that was understandable due to what was happening to her.

Also, the third horn had to have protruded from her forehead initially before she could do this but none of that happened. She just suddenly made use of it which was something none of them expected.

They could hear the distant sounds of collisions as they slowly picked themselves up. Almost all of them had sustained some kind of injury from that except Elevora.

But even though Elevora was unharmed she was still affected in some kind of form as she felt her body was a bit more sluggish than before.

Everyone quickly rushed towards the source of the collision, hoping to get there before Angy killed Glade.

Back in the apartment Miss Aimee stood in front of the hole within the kitchen area and counted down silently.

'Fifteen'

'Fourteen,'

'Thirteen,'

"I think the MBO might interfere soon since they're wrecking up the city," Rhilia voiced out from behind.

"None of them will be able to appear before the timer is up," Miss Aimee voiced out as she could already predict everything that was going to happen.

Her senses were spread across the city so she could already tell that the MBO was on their way but she knew before they could arrive the timer would be up and Glade might already be gone at the time.

"Hmm?" She suddenly stopped counting as she sensed something.

"It already ended?" Rhilia seemed to have sensed that the battle stopped as well.

"...Someone interrupted," Miss Aimee said while squinting her eyes.

"But you said..." Miss Aimee interrupted before Rhilia could complete her sentence.

"It's not the MBO," The Instant she said this, she charged forward.

Fwwhiioooooomm~

His figure created an arc across the air in the city as she travelled several miles in an instant.

Rhilia teleported after her and in the next few moments, they both arrived above the spot where Angy was punching the living daylights out of Glade.

Even though they were farther, they had arrived before E.E, Aildris and the others could.

They both stood on the rooftop of a skyscraper opposite the one Glade and Angy had just fallen from and stared at the scene happening on the ground level.

Glade was buried into a wall beneath and Angy who had obviously been pounding her mercilessly deeper into the wall stood in place with her right hand held up and tightened in a fist only a few inches away from Glade's body.

A person in a red hoodie stood right beside her, holding onto her right hand tightly, preventing it from moving forward.

Their eyes squinted in suspicion as they stared at the back of this person who had a hoodie disguising their face.

At this point, the others arrived as well to witness the same scene.

"Let go of me!" Angy said with a fierce tone without looking back as she prepared to discharge the silver energy building up around her again.

"What are you doing..?"

Everyone's eyes widened in disbelief as they heard a familiar voice come from the person in the red hoodie.

"Angy..."

Angy's eyes which were glowing with silver light began to die down as her eyes also widened in shock.

"It can't be..." She slowly turned around to stare at the face underneath the hoodie with a look of disbelief.

"G... Gustav?" Angy voiced out with a trembling tone as the third horn protruding from her forehead began to sink back into it.

Miss Aimee, E.E, Aildris, and the others all heard Angy's previous word which confirmed their suspicions.

'It's him,' They all thought at the same time.

"What are you doing?" Gustav asked again with a look of confusion as he stared at Angy and then at Glade who was already at the jaws of death with a battered-looking body within the hole on the wall.

"I was..." Before she could reply three aircraft suddenly arrived on the scene.

Chapter 787 - Reunion

"I was..." Before she could reply three aircraft suddenly arrived on the scene.

"Cease every form of movement and get on your knees!" A loud announcement was heard from the aircraft in the middle as MBO officers began descending from them.

Everyone turned around to look upwards at the agents descending except for Gustav who remained in the same position with the hoodie covering half of his face.

Miss Aimee finally decided to intervene at this point.

Swwooshh~

She suddenly appeared in front of Angy and behind Gustav as the MBO officers that had just descended marched towards them with the intent of wanting to detain them.

The MBO officers paused their movements as they spotted Miss Aimee.

"Young miss?" One of them in front voiced out with a surprised expression.

"This was a test conducted under my jurisdiction... I will take care of the damages since there was no loss of life," Miss Aimee voiced out.

"But young Miss, according to protocols we're to bring them in till the damage and level of disturbance to the environment is assessed so judgment can be passed," The MBO officer voiced out again.

"I said, this is on me... Are you going to take me in?" Miss Aimee asked with a cold look.

"...I... No... Young miss... We will leave this to you then..." The MBO officer had cold sweat rolling down his back as he saw the glare.

"Good, just get a medical team over here to take care of the injured," Miss Aimee voiced out next.

The MBO officer in charge did as he was told and communicated with a nearby medical center who responded that they would be on their way to the scene immediately.

'Who is that person? CCTV didn't capture him earlier when we got the alert. He must have just arrived,'
The officer spotted the person in a red hoodie behind Miss Aimee with his back facing their direction.

He was intrigued but he knew he would be risking his life if he decided to remain here so he turned around at this point and gestured at the other officers to turn back.

They all turned around and headed back to the aircraft which descended by the roadsides.

In a few minutes, the aircraft that appeared earlier had lifted off into the skies and were currently out of sight.

Meanwhile, a flying ambulance had arrived on the scene to take Glade away from there.

Gustav could feel everyone's eyes on him even though he hid his face properly with the hoodie.

They all had a myriad of expressions on their faces ranging from, excitement to confusion to happiness and for Angy guilt was mixed in with all that as well.

"Gustav," She voiced out and leaped into his embrace.

"Angy," a smile appeared on Gustav's face as he wrapped his arms around Angy's small waist pulling her closer to himself.

Angy inhaled his scent with a feeling of ecstasy rising from deep within her. He felt so warm that being in his embrace made her forget her worries. Being in his arms, she felt like she was in an entirely different dimension and she didn't want to leave.

Gustav felt Angy's soft body press against his and rested his chin on her hair, in-between her horns.

Her sweet fragrance drifted into his nostrils, awakening the hidden desires within, making him realize how much he longed to share such a moment with Angy for a long time.

Their intimate embrace lasted for many seconds, making everyone else feel weird as they thought Gustav and Angy may have forgotten their present situation.

"Let's go," Miss Aimee said to Gustav and Angy as well as the others who were standing not too far away.

"Y'all can tell me about what happened later, bye guys," Gustav voiced out as he separated from Angy before suddenly speeding off.

[Sprint Has Been Activated]

The wind blew across the place as Angy's hair blew backward while her face lit up in confusion.

'He didn't just leave after all that,' She thought.

The others also had confused looks on their faces as Gustav sped off.

In only a few moments, he had disappeared from their line of sight.

Miss Aimee stood in place and folded her arms with a nonchalant look.

"Rhilia," She voiced out.

Zing~

In the next instant, Gustav appeared back on the spot he was initially standing in.

"What?" Gustav voiced out in confusion knowing he had gotten quite a distance from here.

He sensed the other presence above the rooftop and could instantly guess they were responsible for this since E.E would have to open a vortex before he could teleport anyone or anything.

Grab!

Miss Aimee grabbed onto the chest area of Gustav's hoodie and raised him.

"Where did you think you were going? We have a lot to catching up to do, don't you think?" Miss Aimee voiced out while staring into his eyes.

A wry smile appeared on Gustav's face, "I was just going to check on my uhm... You know... pet mixedblood fish... He needs very special grooming," He voiced out.

"You have a pet mixedblood fish?" Falco voiced out from behind.

Everyone rolled their eyes as they heard that.

"You really couldn't come up with a better excuse?" E.E voiced out.

Gustav shrugged while still being lifted above the ground.

"Do you mind putting me down now?" Gustav asked.

Miss Aimee's eyes squinted as she heard that.

"I can't run off, your friend up there would just teleport me back here wouldn't she?" Gustav was starting to feel embarrassed being lifted in mid-air like a weightless piece of paper among his friends.

Everyone was still amazed at how Gustav spoke so casually with Miss Aimee who was feared worldwide. This made them realize even more how close these two were.

Their relationship definitely seemed tighter than student and teacher especially seeing the lengths Miss Aimee would go to make sure Gustav was okay.

Swowoossh~

In the next Instant, Miss Aimee darted off into the skies with Gustav in her grasp.

Chapter 788 - You Knew?

"Oh come on now," Gustav grumbled in dissatisfaction as Miss Aimee flew towards the apartment while still holding him.

Rhilia snapped her finger from above and everyone else on the ground level disappeared from the spot. She disappeared as well an instant later, arriving back in the apartment the same time Miss Aimee arrived.

--

"You really wanted to leave uh?"

"After that dramatic entrance... Man, you wanted to waste all that?"

Falco and E.E voiced out as they stared at Gustav who was restricted in the middle of the living room.

His body was currently floating in mid-air with purplish energy surrounding him.

"I wasn't even... You guys were not supposed to see me till tomorrow. Y'all were causing too much havoc in the city, so I had to take a look," Gustav responded while rolling his eyes.

"Still, you can't just jump in on us and leave just like that," Matilda voiced out with a slightly annoyed tone.

"Come on you guys were gonna see me tomorrow anyway," Gustav replied.

"Now that my rival is back our battle shall be..."

"Not now Ria!"

Everyone shouted out at the same time before Ria could complete his sentence.

His mouth hung open as he paused his sentence and slowly lowered his hand that was raised up before sitting down in silence.

"Are you not even concerned about what happened... With Glade," Teemee finally addressed the elephant in the room.

Everywhere turned silent at this point and everyone turned to stare at Angy and then back at Gustav.

Gustav was truly curious about what had brought about the battle and why Angy was on the verge of murdering Glade before he arrived on the scene.

Angy looked down at this point afraid to meet Gustav's eyes because of two reasons.

The first being, she felt Gustav would be hurt the moment he found out that one of his friends was selling out information on him. The second was, she was scared to tell Gustav she lost control and really had it in mind to kill Glade because he might start seeing her as a monster. Another problem was, this wasn't the first time it was happening as she almost killed Gustav's little brother in the past as well.

"I have a feeling that it might be something upsetting... I prefer dealing with one thing at a time and I haven't finished dealing with my current predicament," Gustav voiced out.

Everyone had a look of understanding as they heard that.

"That being said since I'm here... Clearly against my will... But I am here... Angy, why did you want to kill Glade?" Gustav asked.

Angy eyes remained locked on the floor after Gustav poised the question.

"I..." Just as she wanted to answer Miss Aimee arrived back in the living room.

"The damage you lots caused is being taken care of," She announced as she moved towards one of the sofas and sat down.

"Thanks, Miss Aimee," Everyone voiced out in appreciation knowing it would have been too much for them to handle if Miss Aimee wasn't here.

"Hey, get me out of this thing," Gustav said to Miss Aimee.

"No, you stay there. That's punishment for hiding away all this time," Miss Aimee responded with an unbothered expression.

"You know I could get out of this if I wanted to right?" Gustav voiced out with a mischievous grin.

"Oh? Get out of it then," An evil smirk appeared on Miss Aimee's face as she replied.

"You villainess," A defeated smile appeared on Gustav's face as he voiced out.

Miss Aimee was the only person that could easily put Gustav in his place without remorse and she was still the one who doted on him the most.

"You should be glad I chose a small punishment like this... I initially had something more difficult in mind," Miss Aimee said while crossing her legs.

The tense atmosphere had eased up a little after Gustav and Miss Aimee's dialogue.

'He expresses more emotions with people he's closer to,' Elevora thought from the side after witnessing the banter between Gustav and Miss Aimee.

She could see so many similarities between them as people who never showed emotions. Now they had teased each other a little and even smiled which was something that never happened.

'Looks like there are more sides to him that he reveals... I wonder how he will take Glade's betrayal,' Elevora thought with an intrigued expression.

"Now is anyone going to answer me about why Angy was close to murdering Glade?" Gustav questioned once more.

Angy had steeled herself at this point and was about to spill the whole truth to Gustav when Miss Aimee spoke.

"Angy was doing you a favor. Too bad you stopped her from ending Glade's life," Miss Aimee stated.

"How would ending Glade's life do me a favor? What did she do?" Gustav could already tell that Glade must have done something.

"She's a traitor," Miss Aimee voiced out bluntly.

"She has been giving someone within the MBO information about you this whole time," Aildris added when he noticed the slight look of confusion on Gustav's face.

"Since back in the MBO camp, she has been in contact with this mystery person... And even here, the reason you were almost caught at the location you initially destroyed was because of her," Teemee voiced out as well.

"Oh? So that's what it was haha," Gustav laughed lightly as he spoke.

Everything made sense to him now. Everyone was a bit surprised by his reaction as they had expected a different one.

"The dots connect... Yeah, I knew," Gustav voiced out.

"You knew?" E.E asked with a doubtful gaze.

"I began suspecting her since I was still in camp. Why do you think I made sure she was absent in most of our meetings?"

Aldris, E.E, and Falco's eyes widened in realization as they thought about it.

"I would have reconciled with Angy long ago if I wasn't suspicious of Glade... Staying away from Angy was a good way to keep her away too since I wasn't hundred percent sure that Glade was spying on me," Gustav added.

Chapter 789 - Indirectly Making A Threat

"I would have reconciled with Angy long ago if I wasn't suspicious of Glade... Staying away from Angy was a good way to keep her away too since I wasn't hundred percent sure that Glade was spying on me," Gustav added.

"I did spot her a couple of times following me around camp, but I acted like I didn't see anything," Gustav said with a reminiscing expression.

"Well damn, why didn't you mention anything?" E.E asked.

"No proof... I am a hundred percent sure you guys would have said I was just being insecure or mistrustful like always," Gustav replied.

They couldn't deny that Gustav was correct with this. If he had mentioned it they would have tried to talk him out of suspecting her since she managed to fool them all.

"I even tried to convince myself that there was nothing, but the moment I have suspicions about a person, the feeling never goes away...

It all makes sense now, but still, she must have given the other party a lot of info since she was probably able to get one or two things from you guys,"

"Well... We... She asked me questions about you sometimes and I gave her answers," Falco revealed.

"I swear I had no idea she was..." Falco quickly tried to explain as he sensed everyone's gaze on him.

"I'm not blaming you, Falco... If I had mentioned it, I'm sure you guys would have given her reason to covertly seek information and hide her intentions better because you all suck at acting," Gustav felt he was the only one with good acting skills among all of them except for Glade.

But he felt even Glade wasn't as good as acting as he was because he could remember she had visibly displayed hostility towards him and even acted suspiciously a few times to his notice.

He never showed any signs that he was suspicious of her, but he felt the others would have if they were told.

"I'm sorry Gustav," Angy voiced out.

"Sorry? Why?" He asked.

"All this time I placed a lot of trust in her and told her a lot... I feel like a fool. You were always right when you said I was too trusting," Angy stated with a crestfallen expression.

"It's not your fault. She was really good, now I feel bad for not letting you finish the job," Gustav voiced out.

"Yeah, you really stopped her from doing you a favor," Miss Aimee stated.

"I think I would have very much preferred it if everyone had kept acting like we knew nothing after finding this out... Would be nice to use her to feed the MBO wrong information about me since they're so interested in me," Gustav liked the idea of keeping Glade unaware that they knew about her betrayal, so they could fool the MBO but what was done was done. It's not like they could reverse the circumstance.

"There will be lots of opportunities for an accident to happen to her in the future, nothing to worry about," Gustav said with a casual tone but everyone understood exactly what he meant.

Angy might have failed to kill Glade today, but Gustav would definitely end her in the future.

"It's really interesting that the MBO feels the only way to get to me is by using the people in my inner circle. I just hope they know they'll be sending others to their death if they ever decide to try something like this in the future," Gustav said with a playful but also sounded serious tone.

"I don't mind sending anyone here to their early graves,"

Gustav didn't need to be direct before everyone here understood that he was voicing out a threat this way. There was a little bit of silence for a few seconds before Miss Aimee finally spoke.

"Where were you the whole time the world we were searching for you?" She asked.

"Oh that... I hid underneath the burning sands surrounding the city," Gustav revealed.

Miss Aimee's eyes squinted as she heard that while the others reacted by furrowing their eyebrows in contemplation or slightly opening their mouths.

"I guess that explains why we were unable to find you," Miss Aimee stated.

"How did you do that?" Falco asked from the side.

Gustav proceeded to narrate his experience with the MBO in the past one month after Boss Danzo's death. Everyone knew by now about Boss Danzo and they sympathized with Gustav but they hadn't mentioned it yet since they were just reuniting with Gustav.

Gustav also hadn't mentioned it to them, he was just explaining how he had been moving within the last one month and the plans he put in place to turn the whole narrative around.

Everyone was amazed, hearing the things Gustav came up with and how he evaded the MBO quite a number of times.

They still had a hard time believing, Gustav outran multiple squads of MBO officers that included even Kilo ranked Mixedbloods. But it was Gustav, every feat he performed despite still being a first-year cadet, was nothing short of fascinating.

His improvement within the last six months that he was away from camp really shocked the others and had Elevora wondering if she could still spar with him and manage to win.

"So that is why your presence kept appearing and vanishing," E.E voiced out.

Everyone had connected the dots from Gustav's narration and understood that Vera had truly been able to sense Gustav just as she said. Miss Aimee already confirmed it, but Gustav's narration painted a clearer picture to them.

"Now that I remember, how did you manage to find me, Miss Aimee?" Gustav asked.

He knew that them almost meeting at the location where he planted the headless corpse was no coincidence.

"Vera could sense your presence anytime you appeared in the city," Miss Aimee answered.

"Vera... Is able to sense my presence within a specified proximity?" Gustav voiced out with a slightly confused tone as he turned his face towards Vera's direction.

"Yes, I am..." She said with a slightly shy expression glad internally that Gustav finally gave her some attention.

Chapter 790 - Emotional Rollercoaster

"How are... Oh, it's because of that..." Gustav came to a realization before he could pose the question.

"You never did tell me the connection wasn't cut off," Gustav said to her.

"I...I... Wanted to but I thought you might find it creepy," Vera's cheeks burned red as she responded.

"You've done something even worse in the past so, nah, I wouldn't find this creepy. It's actually not entirely bad since Miss Aimee was able to find and offer me assistance but at the same time not entirely good..." Gustav felt he wouldn't be able to hide if others wanted to find him using Vera.

But it was still okay since it had a proximity range. He just hoped the proximity wouldn't increase in the future.

This connection came about when Vera tried to turn Gustav into a puppet in the past. Gustav still counted himself lucky that Vera decided to deactivate the parasitic strains she planted in him because the system had sensed it late.

If he eventually had to make the system get rid of it before she did, he would have found a way to kill her because that would mean Vera was overly insane and useless. But the fact that she decided that it wasn't the right way to acquire Gustav's love and decided to get rid of the parasitic strains made Gustav find usefulness in her.

Even though she got rid of the parasitic strains before Gustav's consciousness was taken over, the connection between her and Gustav wasn't cut off.

She had the same situation with Endric. She was able to sense if he was within city-wide proximity to herself because she also planted the parasitic strains in him back then but she never revealed that this was a side effect.

Everyone was at a loss as to what Gustav and Vera were referring to, but they could guess that this was another secret between the both of them that wouldn't be revealed to others.

At the very least, this confirmed that Vera was able to sense Gustav and they could use her next time Gustav ever went missing.

"What truly happened, Gustav? Why did you rain chaos upon the city?" Aildris asked the main question that everyone was dying to know.

They knew about Boss Danzo but they wanted to know the whole story.

Gustav's mood changed a bit as he heard that and they could sense it. The place was silent for a long time.

As Gustav finally wanted to say something there was a knock on the main door and a holographic image appeared in the living room, displaying who had just arrived.

Miss Aimee finally released Gustav from the purplish energy binding as the person at the door was let in.

It was a beautiful-looking girl with an oval-shaped face, a slim figure around the same height as Angy, and dark red hair.

"Mara," Gustav voiced out as he spotted her entering the living room area.

He was both surprised and feeling ashamed at the same time. She shared a stare with him that radiated with both sadness and understanding.

"Gustav," She voiced out as she arrived in front of him and proceeded to wrap her hands around him.

She was almost two heads shorter than him so her arms were wrapped around his waist as she buried the side of her face into his lower chest area.

Gustav stood in place for a while at loss at whether to embrace her back or not. He slowly raised his right hand and placed it on her head before stroking her hair backward repeatedly.

"I'm sorry I couldn't protect him," His eyes narrowed as whispered with a guilt-filled tone.

Mara pulled back from his embrace after hearing this.

"It's not your fault. I'm sure you did what you could," Mara said with a comforting tone.

"I do not blame you and I'm sure he wouldn't want you to blame yourself either," She added while holding onto Gustav's hands.

Gustav heaved a heavy sigh as he heard that.

"I was there... I watched it happen right before my very eyes... I should have saved him but instead, he saved me..." Gustav mumbled as tears threatened to spill from his eyes.

This was the first time everyone was seeing Gustav get so emotional and it shook them to their very core. It was close to impossible to put Gustav and emotions in the same sentence so this made them realize Boss Danzo must have been a significant figure in his life.

Only Miss Aimee truly understood this along with Angy.

"Stop it... I don't want you blaming yourself but I want to know everything that happened," Mara voiced out once more.

More than anyone here, Mara was the one who truly deserved a full narration since she was Boss Danzo's granddaughter.

Gustav now decided to tell the full story of how he came here almost three months back.

Everyone paid attention to him as he explained his purpose for coming to Burning Sands city in the first place and his experience after getting here.

How he discovered the illegal underground arena, the Ring Lords, and how they engaged in other illegal activities within the city to how he saved Boss Danzo and Charisas.

Of course, he omitted some parts, not wanting to reveal a lot of his abilities and how he managed to pull some things off but it was impossible to miss the sadness in his voice whenever he mentioned Boss Danzo.

It took over two hours before he got to the part where the Ring Lords sent Kilo ranked mercenaries after them and at this point, everyone had looks of astonishment listening to Gustav narrate this part.

In about thirty minutes more he was done and they all had looks of amazement and disbelief on their faces.

'He fought off Kilo ranked Mixedbloods and not only won but destroyed all of them?' Everyone couldn't process this revelation without looks of astonishment.

Gustav had lied to them that he consumed a drug specially created to raise the potential of a Mixedblood for a brief period but it came with side effects which were what led to the destructions that happened within the city.
