

Bloodline 861

Chapter 861 - Are You Ready For Your Mission Briefing?

All of them had looks of dissatisfaction on their faces after hearing what Gustav said.

"Thanks bro, I'm pretty sure we were unaware of that tip before," E.E stated with a sarcastic tone.

"You're welcome," Gustav answered from within the kitchen.

E.E; "... " 'This MF,'

Everyone burst into laughter in the next moment. Gustav later came out of the kitchen with food and everyone settled down to have dinner.

"Y'all want me to come with you to the dungeon tomorrow?" Gustav asked.

"Of course,"

"Definitely,"

"Seems like cheating but I wanna see what's on the 45th floor,"

They all agreed to Gustav coming with them. They initially asked Gustav about the lowest floors and what to expect. Gustav did tell them everything they wanted to hear except for the 46th and 47th floors.

Gustav left out a lot of details on that and just drew them a rough mental sketch with his words.

They could sense that he was withholding information but Gustav had told them if they wanted to know, they should try scaling all the floors.

Which was impossible considering the MBO had put a seal on the passageways that led to the 46th floor. It was now impossible to go beyond the 45th floor.

Now they were trying to get to the 45th floor but it was proving really tough for them as well. They knew everything would turn easy the moment Gustav came along with them.

They had no idea that Gustav wouldn't be using Yarki so things would still be difficult with him around but it would be better than before.

"I won't help y'all too much. So don't expect things to still be very easy with me around," Gustav stated.

He didn't want it to look weird when they saw him struggling with the creatures on the lowest floors so he was saying this now. Using just his normal abilities would make things more difficult and he wouldn't be able to get past the 43rd floor all by himself but with the others around, it was possible even without Yarki.

"Sure sure, so long as you're coming with us hehe who knows your presence might even scare them away," E.E voiced out after gobbling a spoonful of food.

"I doubt that would happen. Anyways, we'll head there after my mission briefing," Gustav stated.

Everyone heard that and was reminded that Gustav would be having his next mission briefing the next day. Which meant he would be leaving camp the day after tomorrow and they wouldn't be seeing him for a couple of months again.

"Did you accept the IYSOP participant invitation yet?" Aildris asked after some time.

"Nah, I told them they'd have to wait for a few months before I make up my mind," Gustav answered.

"Wow it's crazy they agreed. Originally they'd have picked all their candidates and sub candidates by now to start registrations," Falco voiced out with a tone of astonishment.

"Well, it's either that or they can forget about me participating," Gustav said while shrugging his shoulders.

"It's Gustav, they wouldn't do that. They wouldn't want to miss out on the opportunity of him representing earth," E.E said with a tone of excitement.

"General world training will probably start in four to five months which means we might not even get the chance to embark on any missions before we get pulled into the IYSOP training program," Teemee voiced out.

"I heard that mixedbloods from other private training institutions will get drafted as well. It won't be just cadets from the MBO," Falco said with a thoughtful gaze.

"This makes things very interesting... Only Gustav and Elevora have been ascertained to be main candidates... The rest of us will still have to fight for our spot on the main team so we don't get placed in the sub candidates group," E.E said with a look of interest.

It turned out the MBO had already informed E.E and the others about IYSOP and wanted them to become participants but unlike Gustav and Elevora, the others would still have to undergo some kind of test and pass before they could be placed on the main team.

"Well, Aildris also has no issues... But the rest of us should be wary since final year cadets will also be competing to be on the main team," Falco voiced out with a slightly troubled tone.

They all knew Aildris was almost as strong as Elevora as of now. He had improved the most amongst all of them in these past months followed by E.E so they were sure he wouldn't have any issues competing to be on the main team even if it was with final year cadets.

"Mixed blood from other private institutions as well... We don't know what to expect so we should prepare ourselves properly," Falco added.

"Gustav, will you be attending the general world training?" E.E asked.

"I don't think I'll have the time which is also one of the reasons I'm not so sure about participating in IYSOP but I guess we'll see how things go," Gustav answered while finishing up his food.

He felt it would be a waste of time attending the training since he might be busy with something important at the time. He had decided that even if he did participate in IYSOP and the government made it a criterion for every candidate to attend the training, he still wouldn't attend unless he wasn't busy.

The night went by in a flash and the next morning, Gustav headed towards the main hall for his mission briefing.

Just like the last time, his briefing was taking place in Commander Cilia's office and an MBO personnel would be delivering it to him.

Gustav arrived there around 8 am as expected and an MBO officer was already waiting for him in the office.

"Welcome officer Gustav, are you ready for your mission briefing?" The MBO officer in orange striped uniform voiced out with a mild smile.

"Officer Xanatus, it's been a while," Gustav responded with a smile as well the moment he spotted this familiar-looking MBO officer.

Chapter 862 - The Vertigon Family Crisis

"Gradier Xanatus, it's been a while," Gustav responded with a smile as well the moment he spotted this familiar looking MBO officer.

Just like the last time, Officer Xanatus was the same person who came to give Gustav his next mission briefing.

"I don't need to ask if you've been doing well, your feats are spreading across the MBO so I hear of your tales a lot," Gradier Xanatus smiled as he voiced out with a praiseful tone.

Gustav just chuckled lightly in response. It was nice seeing Gradier Xanatus again after so long.

This man had always been an ally and Gustav was not in anyway doubtful that he must been a great help to situations regarding himself and Miss Aimee.

Even though the MBO had lots of corrupts leaders and officers, Gustav was sure of Gradier Xanatus unbiased attitude to the duty that concerns Mixedbloods just as the MBO was created for. Except he had strict orders from the higher ups.

Both of them sat in Commander Cilia's office alone as Gradier Xanatus began to break down Gustav's next mission.

Trrooinnn~

"This is the emblem of Vertigon Family," Gradier Xanatus voiced out as he gestured at the holographic picture that had just appeared in mid air.

What could be seen was a flat diamond shaped object. It was gold and white in color with a sharp looking edges.

In the middle was the carving of a three headed draconic like creature. All in all this emblem looked quite domineering as well as luxurious.

"It's actually a true piece of luxury in physical form and it suddenly went missing a month back from the main household of the Vertigon Family," Gradier Xanatus voiced out.

"Before anything, let me explain to you why this emblem is important," He added so Gustav would not think he was embarking on some lackluster mission.

"The Vertigon Family is a big extended family that has been existing for several centuries and they have grown in such large numbers during a long period of time that they even own a city of their own and are a major ally to the government," Gradier Xanatus began explaining.

"Not only are they just a mixedblood large family comparable to the size of a small city but they're also possess a lineage type bloodline which you might recall since you recently dueled with a cadet that comes from a small branch of the Vertigon Family," Gradier Xanatus went on to mention Von who Gustav dueled recently.

Von was also able to transform into a draconic like form and spit out lightning from his mouth.

Lineage Type bloodlines were always very powerful and would be passed down from generation to generation so everyone in such a family would have the same type of bloodline but in different variations.

While Gradier Xanatus explained more about the Vertigon Family, he didn't know Gustav was already aware of the information he was spewing out.

Internally Gustav was feeling excited after hearing his next mission related to this family contrary to what Gradier Xanatus thought.

'Wouldn't this make it a good chance for me to do that?' Gustav thought internally.

"So the emblem is passed to the next head of the main household who would lead the entire family and it possesses a special type of power that not only makes the every family member unable to disobey the new head but also adds a boon to their strength.

Now that this emblem is missing, the ceremony of the next Vertigon head cannot take place. Whoever may have taken it away, if they figure out how to access the power within the emblem it would cause a catastrophe," Gradier Xanatus explanation to this point had brought Gustav to an understanding that the mission was not as simple as it looked.

For all he knew this could be some type of family feud. For such a big family like this, it could be that another branch of the family or maybe some forces from the main family were not satisfied with the new head that was about to be appointed.

There could be a ton of reasons, like unknown internal strife and it was really unwise to meddle in this type of business.

However, it was now a case of crime amongst mixedbloods which also made it dangerous for them as well as the people living in their city. Now the MBO had to step in.

"It's been a month, why haven't the MBO sent someone to look for it?" Gustav asked.

"Well first off, the main Vertigon Family didn't inform us when it went missing. They tried to keep it under the wraps to prevent any form of panic or negative situation it could cause and decided to look for it themselves.

However, they were unable to find it even after weeks had gone by. The MBO was initially going to send you on a different mission but we found this suiting considering you've mostly embarked on investigation missions in the past even though some were rough and quite bloody," Gradier Xanatus explained.

It turned out this mission was given to him based on his other performances in other missions. The things he discovered during his undercover missions as well so Gustav was deemed intelligent and powerful.

This was precisely what the MBO needed for this type of mission. There was no doubt that at some point it might turn out physical. A scuffle could not be avoided and they were sending him to an area where one of the most powerful Mixedblood force on the earth was located. Besides being intelligent, he had to be strong enough because no one knew what might happen and the opponents he might have to face.

"Solo? Or am I getting a team?" Gustav asked.

"This is currently a five star mission but you will be going solo officer Gustav. The MBO needs to keep their engagement in this issue under the wraps to prevent any leak outs. It could harm the image of the main family which is not in anyone best interests. You are allowed to use lethal force when necessary but you will be the only officer embarking on this mission," Gradier Xanatus clarified.

Chapter 863 - Clearing The Floors With The Boys

Gustav had a serious look on his face as he heard this but internally he was rejoicing. There was nothing he wanted more than to embark on this mission alone.

Besides he had dealt with five star missions before so he was sure this was something he could handle on his own. Currently it's a five star mission but it could increase based on any change in situation which was why Gustav didn't want to be too complacent.

However this was perfect for him as he felt he would be able to perform actions without worries since he was going to be all by himself.

"Mysonite City is place where the Vertigon Family is located. Von Tridistle would have also been a perfect candidate for this mission considering he comes from one of the branches of Vertigon city but he seems to be currently indisposed as you well know," Gradier Xanatus voiced out the last sentence with a hint of sarcasm as the holographic image changed to a new one.

Gustav knew very well that Gradier Xanatus was referring to how he left Von with an injury that would he would not recover from for a couple of months.

He ripped off his wings after all and such an act dealt damage to Von's lineage bloodline. It was a miracle Von's Bloodline rank didn't decrease.

Gustav still didn't care about all these, he was glad he would finally be visiting a city that had tens of thousands of mixedbloods with the same type of bloodline he was interested in.

The holographic image had changed to display a small city located in between a body of water. It turned out the city was on an island.

"You'll be heading here first the moment you arrive..." Gradier Xanatus began to catch Gustav up on the different locations in Mysonite City.

From there he went on to brief Gustav about the suspicions of the main family and how they noticed the emblem got missing. Gustav was shown the pictures of all the people in the main family as well as the person who was chosen to become the next head of the family.

"He's just a kid," Gustav voiced out as he stared at the dark skinned young man who looked no older than eighteen years of age.

He had a curly looking hair with braids at the front that reached down to his chin area.

"Yeah he's quite young but he's the next head according to the hereditary line up," Gradier Xanatus responded.

'If it isn't normal for the next head to be this young before being placed at the seat of power, this may be where the internal issue lies,' Gustav thought as he took notice of every main family look.

Hours later Gustav was within the dungeon scaling the floors with E.E and the others. They talked about Gustav's new mission which he only told he would be heading to Mysonite City for.

They laughed at the irony saying, Gustav just dealt with a family member of theirs and now he had to visit their place.

Hopefully Von wasn't well known in the big family or someone would definitely try to make things difficult for Gustav if they found out what he did to Von.

Gustav also had such thoughts but instead of hoping for it not to happen, he wanted the opposite.

It was almost like Gustav wanted violence over peace with his current mindset and only him knew why.

Bang! Bang! Boom!

Sounds of collisions and small explosions rang out as they wreaked havoc across the floors while scaling them.

In a few more hours they had arrived at the 41st floor.

This was the same floor where Flames Death Ace Mixedbreeds were gathered. A similar scene to what happened when Gustav visited the 41st floor alone the last time played out again.

These gigantic owl faced creatures with bat wings and black scaly beast like body charged at all of them the moment they had been summoned.

Their three serpentine like tails, slashed across the place as they flew. Some were able to shoot out flames from these serpentine like tails and their body temperature was also very high so it made it even difficult to go near them.

Gustav was currently just using his normal abilities so as expected, the difficulty level had gone up by several heights.

Teemee hands glowed red as he grabbed hold of one of the three tails of a creature, causing it to start turning grey.

However he had to let go in the next moment to dodge another swing of the second tail but while doing so the third tail was swinging at him.

Zhrrriiihrrrr~

A purplish vortex ring suddenly slid forward, swallowing Teemee whole. He appeared on the other side of the creature in the next instant.

E.E who was several hundred feet behind turned his left palm anticlockwise causing the vortex to open as his right hand turned clockwise.

As Gustav flung one of the creatures towards the side, a vortex opened up and swallowed the creature. Only for it to reappear several hundred feet towards the east with its body still propelling forward.

Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

With its massive body that was three times the size of a truck, it slammed into multiple others of its kind.

On another side of this floor, Aildris eyes opened up as he held a creature that had lost its color up in the air and teleported to its top before sending a devastating punch towards its head that sent it hurling downwards.

Dark Falco on the other hand was being assisted by Ria who trapped a few of the creatures in the ground while Dark Falco darted across the place wreaking havoc with his power of darkness and sharp claws.

Despite the group managing to hold their own, it was still a difficult battle due to the numbers of these creatures as well as the sturdiness of their body that made it immensely difficult to kill one of them even after raining down barrages of attack.

The leader of the creatures would not just sit back and watch it's kind slowly getting defeated so at this point it flew off the blazing rock it was standing up, towards who it suspected was the leader of this mixedblood group.

Chapter 864 - Summoning An Army

It flew off the blazing rock it was standing on, towards who it suspected was the leader of this mixedblood group.

"Let's put all out attack power on a few and block out the rest till we've destroyed these ones first," Gustav voiced out as he darted towards the side.

Boom!

One of the creatures landed where he was initially standing on. Gustav turned to face it after dodging that and ran forward before sliding across the ground.

Fwhiiii~>

One of the creature's tail swept above his body sliding across the ground and Gustav raised his hand up which was armed with an atomic blade.

Sccreeevvv~

The atomic blade cut across the belly of the creature, slicing through it's tough hardened body as Gustav arrived on the other side.

Just when he was about to give the finishing blow, the leader of the Flames Death Ace came charging out of nowhere with a blazing figure and slammed head onto Gustav's back.

Bang!

Gustav was sent crashing forward as his body went over the edge of one of the areas that had a fire pit. He was falling into the immensely hot pit of flames due to the attack that had taken everyone by surprise.

E.E was unable to react in time as well as Aildris and the others. The leader instantly charged towards the others to give them a tough time thinking it had already dealt with thier leader as well.

Fwwwiiii~

A similar looking figure to the leader of the Flames Death Ace suddenly flew over the edge that led to one of the burning pits in the area.

Zhrrrrriihhhh~

Its entire body was burning with immense flames just like the leader which made it freeze in place with shock and astonishment.

Gustav who had transformed into the Flames Death Ace leader which bloodline he took days before, swooped down with force and landed on the head of this leader.

Boom!

An outburst of flames spread across the place as the ground also caved in while the creature's head was buried a few feet into the ground with Gustav standing atop with his gigantic body.

The shriek of the leader was heard as it pushed upwards with force, managing to release itself from Gustav's clutches despite receiving the heavy blow to its head.

The other creatures in the vicinity had paused for a bit not knowing who to attack between Gustav and the leader since both of them had similar leading appearances.

'Oh I can also do this,' Gustav thought as he stomped on the ground.

Boom!

A wave of flames spread across the ground in a circular format, forming a kind of runic figure on the ground as well.

In the next instant, Flames Death Ace Mixedbreeds began to phase out of the ground.

'It turned out to be more useful than being used only for flight,' Gustav said Internally as the creatures he had just summoned began to fight the other creatures from the leader of this floor.

E.E, Aildris, Falco and the others were shocked as they witnessed these creatures fighting their battles.

Things went from being difficult to pretty easy as they joined Gustav's army of beasts to push back the other Flames Death Ace.

Usually these creatures healed up after getting injured so it was necessary to finish them up as quickly as possible to avoid getting jumped by the same creature twice but it was initially difficult since there were so many of them.

Now E.E and the others could attack from the sides.

E.E ran forward as he conjured up multiple vortexes, sending them out with as much speed as he could.

Fwwhiii~

Some of the creatures would fly through these vortexes by mistake as it appeared in front of them and in the next moment find themselves receiving the full brunt of a mighty attack.

Some of them would land on the ground and sink into it due to a vortex trap E.E already left, in the next moment they would find themselves getting impaled by one of the pointy rocks by the side.

Gustav dealt with the leader, overpowering it occasionally as both of them clashed with body of flames.

Gustav's mobility was greatly reduced taking on this form but his combat capabilities still aided him a lot despite being on the same level of strength with the leader while using this form.

In a few more minutes he ended the leader by wrapping his three serpentine like tails around its neck and pulling it's head off its body.

[Host Has Killed A Level Eighty Flames Death Ace]

[2,000,000 EXP]

[Host Has Killed A Level Eighty Flames Death Ace]

[2,000,000 EXP]

Multiple notifications kept popping up due to the his summoned creatures also dealing the opponents.

At this point things were already ending with Aildris, Falco and the others as well.

Gustav's army of forty two had been reduced to twenty nine but still they managed to wipe out all the opposing creatures.

Gustav didn't know how to unsummon them so they had to move to the 43rd floor with the creatures.

Things got tougher in the 43rd floor due to increase in strength of the creatures but since they had help from Gustav's summoned creatures they still managed to push through till they arrived on the 45th floor.

The 45th floor which was now labeled as the last floor had only one creature. This creature was way more stronger than the others in the previous floors and had impenetrable skin.

It looked like a fourteen feet tall armadillo with violet colored outer covering. It stood on two feet like a human with a muscular frame but it's look was nothing like that of a human.

It was considerable smaller in size compared to the other creatures but it's power was unmatched. It was the literal definition of smaller doesn't necessarily mean weaker.

Its violet outer covering would glow immensely anytime it charged forward like it was building up power, and the moment it slashed out with it's claws, it wreaked immense destruction across the place.

Despite dodging a lot of times, Falco and Ria had been blasted backwards by the residual impact.

Chapter 865 - Scaling The Last Floor

They already sustained minor injuries at this point, meanwhile Aildris, and Teemee had engaged it in close combat throwing lots of attacks at it but they still hadn't managed to deal any damage to it.

Gustav's summoned creatures are well were lunging at it with everything they had and it was taking them down one strike at a time.

Swhiii~

With a single slash, he ripped one of the creatures which were at least three times larger than him in half.

Internal organs fell out of the air as the creature dissected body parts flew in two opposite directions.

The toughness of the creature they were supposed to defeat on this floor was the main problem. Even though its power was something to watch out for, they wouldn't be as worried if they could inflict damage on it.

But all their attacks seemed to be repelled back by its body, leaving them running across the place aimlessly.

Teemee's power that could cause anything to degrade didn't seem to be working on its body. Even after using a very powerful attack that covered a large range and was supposed to degrade the body of the creature, there was no effect. What Teemee didn't know was it was having an effect but the effect was so minimal it looked as if there was none at all.

E.E had conjured up multiple vortexes saving the others from the attack of this mixedblood multiple times.

At the moment he was about to use a powerful vortex attack which he was sure would work against the creature but he was reluctant to use it because of the way it would make him feel.

Gustav was sitting behind far behind them, on a small rock protruding from the ground, crossing his legs while watching them battle with the mixedbreed.

"Daum! How did you kill this MF alone Gus?" E.E voiced out from up ahead as he sank into one of his vortexes dodging another attack that caused the entire vicinity to descend into shambles.

Of course, Gustav couldn't tell them he only had to use Yarki to cause it to submit and one touch from him caused the creature to get obliterated. With Yarki, the toughness of the creature didn't matter since it was being obliterated from the inside out but he couldn't perform such a feat without Yarki.

"Focus your attacks on one point or aim for its internals," Gustav voiced out.

This was easier said than done as getting close to the creature was close to impossible due to its speed and power. Aiming for its internals was also something no one there could do except for E.E.

Aildris appeared at the creature's blindspot as it was being flanked by Dark Falco, Ria, and Teemee.

The instant it fended off their attack and speedily turned around to counter Aildris, he had already opened his eyes at this point.

Fhrrrooummm~

The environment turned into black and white as the Mixedbreed lost color and found itself unable to move for an instant.

Bang!

Aldris's fist slammed into its jaw area sending it flying upwards. His speed increased exponentially as afterimages were left in his wake while he leaped upwards and continued to thrust his palms forward repeatedly.

Bam! Bam! Bam! Bam!

In barely a second, he had already slammed his palm on the chest of the creature up to a hundred times. He kept aiming for the same spot despite the fact it was barely having any effect on the sturdy body of this creature.

The others joined as well sending multiple strikes. The body of the creature suddenly glowed up immensely as it began to regain color forcefully in mid-air.

Boom!

A charge blasted forth from it sending all of them tumbling backwards.

Gustav pushed his palm forward, constructing a gravitational barrier before him to prevent the blast from making contact with him.

Bam!

It landed right in front of Aildris who was no longer able to extend the colorless world towards it. As it swung out, E.E's vortex had already opened up and swallowed Aildris before contact could be made.

The mixedbreed angrily jumped forward, heading for E.E.

Gustav wasn't interested in participating in this fight because he wanted to confirm something.

E.E pushed his hand forward, causing the beast to be swallowed up by a vortex that teleported it to E.E's back.

The creature had a confused look as it appeared in a different spot, only for it to feel a hand on its head.

Trroooinn~

E.E had climbed onto the shoulder of the creature and placed his hand on its head.

A reddish-colored vortex appeared around the neck of the creature like a collar and began shrinking in size.

The creature began thrashing around as it felt what was happening but E.E latched on strongly. A vortex opened up beneath the feet of the creature, causing it to sink in a bit before getting trapped there.

The creature reached out its hands to grab E.E so it could forcefully rip him off its shoulders but then, Aildris and Dark Falco appeared on its left and right side respectively.

Aildris grabbed hold of its left arm while Falco grabbed hold of its right. It was slowly starting to overpower them but then, Ria and Teemee appeared on the right and left as well, assisting both of them.

They managed to hold the creature in place till the red vortex E.E conjured and shrunk completely, causing the creature's head to be yanked off.

Blood jetted out crazily but then the creature wasn't dead yet.

With its headless figure, it swung all four of them away and turned to swing at E.E who had just fallen to the ground with a nauseous look.

Swooooooshhh~

A burst of wind blasted across the place as Gustav's figure arrived behind the Mixedbreed and he sent it hurtling towards the wall with a fist.

Bang!

"You good?" Gustav asked as he stretched out his hand to pull E.E up.

"How the hell is that fu*ker still able to move?" E.E voiced out with a tone of disbelief.

Chapter 866 - E.E's Unstoppable Ability

"How the hell is that fu*ker still able to move?" E.E voiced out with a tone of disbelief.

This was the first time he had seen any mixedbreed move after getting decapitated.

He wasn't the only one shocked, the others were just as shocked.

After slamming into the wall, the creature pulled itself out of the hole that was created and began to charge toward Gustav while blood was still jetting out of its empty neck area.

[Sprint Has Been Activated]

Gustav dashed forward and leaped upwards, somersaulting in mid-air as the creature's claws missed him by a few inches.

A spherical orb appeared in Gustav's palm as he was flying above the creature, which he pushed down into its bleeding neck before flying past it across the air.

Weird sounds rang out as the orb forced its way down the bloody throat of the creature, causing its neck area to bloat immensely.

After landing several hundred feet away, Gustav gave the boy's signal to distance themselves while the creature held onto its headless neck, trying to stop the orb from going further down.

E.E who had turned around to puke was unable to move away or create any vortex for them so Gustav stomped on the ground.

Shrrillkkk~

Diamond-like stones protruded from the ground in a line up spreading and reaching where the others were.

In a few moments, it created a tall wall behind them, blocking them from the creature.

Gustav leaped backward, leaving more gap between himself and the creature before also creating an iro silk wall in front of himself.

At this point, the mixedbreed was still holding onto its neck but the orb was close to the internal walls of its chest area.

Gustav looked from beyond the barricade with God Eyes and snapped his finger.

Pah!

An immense dark purplish and red-colored blast rang out as destructive waves of energy spread across the place.

Boom!

It was so powerful the ground quaked immensely and even when the waves hit the iro silk barriers Gustav had created, some chunks got blasted away despite their toughness.

The body of the Mixedbreed got blasted into multiple pieces and scattered across the place as a crater was left in the middle of the ground along with cracks that spread for over a thousand feet radius.

After many seconds, the place returned to tranquility as the debris flying across the air slowly began to clear up.

The iro silk sank back into the ground as Gustav and the boys slowly walked forward.

E.E had just finished emptying the contents of his stomach so his face looked quite pale. Aildris tapped on his back while comforting him and Falco passed him some water.

Gustav looked up ahead at the location of impact and could barely see any body parts left where the creature was initially standing.

<+5,000,000EXP>

Just like the last time Gustav got a lot of EXP from this but he still couldn't take the form of this creature. He had reached the limit for acquiring Mixedbreed bloodlines.

He could still acquire Mixedblood bloodlines but he already had way too many Mixedbreeds he could transform into and now it had reached the limit.

The only way for him to get rid of one, was by transferring it somewhere else because it was impossible to use combination with Mixedbreeds bloodline like the way he did with that or Mixedbloods.

Combination would only work in a battle where he got to combine several transformations which resulted in Ultimate Combination unlike combining Mixedbloods bloodline where it could turn into an entirely different bloodline.

It was still disappointing for him since this Cosmic Armadillo had a lot of uses but there was nowhere to transfer any mixedbreed bloodline to at the moment.

Normally this blast would barely affect it if Gustav hadn't shoved the orb down its throat.

"You good?" Gustav voiced out as he approached E.E.

"Yeah... It just felt gut-wrenching," E.E said while wiping his mouth with his sleeves after blowing air into both cheeks.

"Hmm, you'll be okay," Gustav voiced out with a smile.

"Yeah, I just decapitated a level 90 mixedbreed even though the f*ker took me by surprise and didn't die," E.E voiced out before laughing lightly.

Everyone understood that E.E had mentioned opening a vortex within or around a person or a living creature and how it usually felt for him. He had killed someone by opening a vortex within them before and he felt everything the person felt.

It was never nice because at that moment he would connect to the being and that was the same thing that happened a while ago after he decapitated the creature which was why he reacted in the way he did.

E.E's ability was actually very powerful. He could practically destroy anyone but it was never a nice feeling whenever he used it in this way so he only ever did so as a last resort.

Gustav didn't want to join them in fighting all this time because he wanted to see E.E use his ability like this and also wanted to see the guys defeat a powerful creature like this without his input.

He was satisfied with their performance and was assured they'd never be dead weight when they went on missions together.

"We cleared the dungeon guys," Falco voiced out with an excited tone.

"Yeah!" Ria clenched his fist and yelled out as everyone had smiles on their faces.

[God Eyes Has Been Activated]

His sight passed through multiple layers of walls and kept going down till it arrived at another floor where a mighty altar could be seen with a massive creature chained to a towering icicle.

"I see you, Tabitha. We'll discuss one day if I ever come back here," Gustav muttered.

"SURE KID,"

Gustav was in his room for the rest of the day preparing to leave camp the next day.

Chapter 867 - Miss Aimee's Hidden Message

He had no idea how it was leaked but the entire camp knew Gustav was leaving for his next mission the next day.

A lot of them were still trying to befriend him so they tried to get some kind of parting gift and give it to him but Gustav had purposely refrained from leaving his room for the rest of the day so he was able to avoid them.

He held onto a small fingernail-sized device and placed it on the bed beside him.

"Why did Gradier Xanatus ask me to play this only when I'm alone?" He voiced out loud with a look of suspicion.

This was supposed to be where more information about his mission was computed so he still had to study it. However, he felt a little suspicious when Gradier Xanatus mentioned he should only check it when he was alone.

It was normal not to play such in public since it was a personal mission so why did Gradier Xanatus feel the need to specify it.

Gustav also felt he might also be reading into things too much but it didn't matter since he would be checking it now anyways.

He proceeded to tap on the device, causing holographic footage to appear in mid-air.

This holographic footage displayed information about the mission just as it was supposed to. More details were being displayed and some of them emphasize things Gradier Xanatus initially gave a brief explanation on.

Gustav took note of these pieces of information one after the other which included not just different locations in Mysonite City but also the Abilities of everyone in the main Vertigon family.

Gustav found out that Von's family was fairly close to the main family and was the third revered branch of the family.

There were also two more before them that was well revered since these branches had a few Mixedbloods who were already a part of the MBO.

Cousins, half cousins, brothers, sisters, uncles, aunts, step aunts, grandmothers, grandfathers, e.t.c. you could find all these and more in the Vertigon family.

There happened to be a particular location in the city where all of them were situated that took up half the city because of their size.

The person who was meant to become the next family head, Stark Vertigon happened to be quite a powerful Mixedblood at such a young age but he was never interested in joining the MBO despite how talented he was.

Gustav checked on more information about him and realized he was quite popular in the family not just because of his title as the next head but also due to some feats he had performed in the past.

It took up to two hours before the different footage being displayed about more information on the Vertigon family finally ended.

"Oh so there was nothing then," Gustav voiced out after it ended without anything suspicious happening.

However, he seemed to have spoken too soon as the holographic image that was clearing up suddenly glitched repeatedly.

Zhrrerhhhh~

In the next moment, it changed into a footage.

"Miss Aimee?" Gustav voiced out with a surprised expression as a portrait of Miss Aimee appeared on the holographic projection.

"Gustav by the time you'll be seeing this I'll already be gone. This means he'll be one step closer to achieving his goals. He managed to get me to a certain extent but not to worry I'll be fine," Miss Aimee began voicing out.

It was obvious this was pre-recorded footage with the way she was speaking.

'So she did leave a message for me,' Gustav said internally as he focused on the footage.

"You have to kill him. He's close to achieving his plans so I want you to kill him since I currently cannot do it myself," Miss Aimee voiced out.

"Earth is no longer conducive for me and it's all his doing. I am looking for a way to reverse what he did but by the time I successfully do so, he might have already achieved his plans... I left this for you because you're the only person I can trust with such a mission. I cannot inform any other person on earth or it will cause adverse effects... I know you can do it little rascal," Miss Aimee smiled at the last sentence as her face began to turn grey.

"I need to leave now. Make sure you kill Yung Jo!" The instant she finished saying this, the footage scrambled and disappeared altogether.

Towards the middle, Gustav kept wondering who she wanted him to kill but at the end, his face lit up with confusion as she mentioned Yung Jo.

Miss Aimee had stopped Gustav from going after Yung Jo multiple times claiming he had different protection methods and she also mentioned how she couldn't outright kill him because it would cause problems.

Now that she was telling him to kill Yung Jo, he figured whatever she found out before leaving must have been very messed up.

So messed up, she decided to disregard everything and decided that at this point Yung Jo just had to die.

"She left because of him?" Gustav voiced out with a tone of disbelief.

He recalled seeing her face turn greyish when she mentioned there was no time left. Yung Jo was just a weak mixedblood from what Gustav remembered but his assets and connections and background made him a force to be reckoned with. If he was able to pull such a thing off with Miss Aimee, Gustav could no longer underestimate his intelligence.

It was one thing to have a lot at his disposal due to background and it was another thing to be intelligent enough to use all that to achieve your goals. He even managed to send Miss Aimee packing.

Everyone thought Miss Aimee was infected with the so-called grey particle from the city she saved, they had no idea it was due to Yung Jo who had successfully plotted against Miss Aimee.

"Well I've been wanting to kill him for a long time and now I have more reason to do so," Gustav's face turned cold as he spat out.

Chapter 868 - Off To Mysonite City

"Well I've been wanting to kill him for a long time and now I have more reason to do so," Gustav's face turned cold as he spat out.

Gustav had actually been using the sacred jewel to secretly spy on Yung Jo sometimes and he had noted a few things.

The sacred jewel could show footage of anyplace so long as Gustav could direct it so Gustav had occasionally checked the household of the Jo's as well as where their company was located in Plankton City and Yung's office.

However he hadn't found anything of real substance except for maybe a few suspicious movements and disappearance.

He couldn't ask the sacred jewel to spy on places he had no idea about which was why he still hadn't found anything substantial even after spying on Yung a few times.

Yung Jo wasn't so stupid that he would engage in his suspicious activities in known places like his father's industrial areas or even his own place. He would always pick somewhere shady and well hidden. So long as Gustav didn't know where to look, it was impossible for the sacred jewel to spy on such places.

"I still need to find out what he's up to and device the best way of killing him..." Gustav voiced out with a contemplative expression.

Gustav had decided that he would kill Yung Jo no matter what. He just needed evidence that Yung Jo had been up to something that was detrimental towards the earth so killing him would be justified if it ever got revealed.

At this point Gustav didn't care about his backing or who was protecting Yung. Miss Aimee had said he had to die so he had to die.

Trroooinnn~

The sacred jewel suddenly appeared in front of him. The flicker of florescent colored light within it had become as large as a half a baby's palm at the moment.

"I want you to check Yung Jo's office once more," Gustav voiced out.

The flicker of florescent light within it suddenly dimmed and dissapeared before the entire circular surface turned white.

A footage of Yung's office was displayed in the next instant. It was quite large with a luxurious looking desk at the right corner and arts on the wall. There was no one within the premises

"Can you keep tabs? Record this particular location and don't stop recording even when anyone comes in... until I tell you to stop don't stop," Gustav commanded.

The sacred jewel disappeared in the next instant. Gustav needed eyes to be on one of the environments where Yung frequented 24/7.

He couldn't decide to keep an eye on the office himself for long so the sacred jewel was going to record all the happenings within the office for the next few days and after he had left camp he would playback some of the footage.

Gustav's plan was to at least spot some type of clue or anything that could help him against Yung Jo. He already knew Yung Jo wouldn't do anything suspicious within his office but at the very least it was possible to find something that could help.

Maybe with this he could find out what Yung Jo did to miss Aimee and what he was plotting.

"Yung Jo..." A silent rage was slowly building up within Gustav as he calmly voiced out his name.

He had to quickly deal with his current mission so he could handle this afterwards but he actually wished he could go after Yung Jo right away.

"You will be sharing the same fate with your little brother soon," Gustav swore underneath his breath.

The rest of the night went by very quickly and the next morning arrived. Gustav was ready to go as early as 5:00am in the morning.

He had to move to the main hall where he would go through the mirror teleportation checkpoint that led to the massive ship like platform in the middle of the ocean.

All his friends had come out to bid him farewell including the girls. Angy shared a passionate hug with him before headed towards the main hall. She was too shy to kiss him in front of everyone.

Matilda, Vera, Elevora and Glade as well we're all present. E.E and the boys shared fist bumps with Gustav and agreed to meet up in the outside world when they finished over here as well whether or not Gustav decided to participate in IYSOP.

Minutes later Gustav was heading through the teleportation mirror after getting cleared to leave the camp. He turned around and looked at the place with God Eyes Activated.

For all he knew this might be the last time he would be here except he had some business with the MBO camp. As of this point he was done training in the MBO camp.

He turned around and headed in through the mirror before arriving on the massive platform gliding atop the ocean.

The moment he went through, just like before one could see several building like structures on this platform and many MBO officers moving around the place.

Up ahead, many aircraft were parked with different sizes, all having the MBO emblem crafted on their sides. Gustav only moved forward for a bit before an Officer wearing pilot uniform approached him.

"Officer Crimson, I'm Jay Bach your pilot," He voiced out with a respectful tone while reaching out to shake Gustav.

Gustav received his handshake and the male officer who had a black alligator like head, lead Gustav towards his aircraft.

It was among the most luxurious looking ones in amongst all the aircraft with only a few passenger seat.

Gustav settled down in no time and they took off. Mysonite City was on the other side of the world which originally would take no less than six hours of flying to get there but this particular aircraft was pretty fast so the time was cut in half.

Fhwowoommmm~

It glided off into the sky a few moments after the pilot started the engine. The aircraft was moving so fast, it already broke the sound barrier in a couple of seconds.

Chapter 869 Arriving In The Vertigon Premises

Despite how immensely fast it was moving, everything seemed smooth. It was almost like turbulences were being cleared for them to move with ease.

Gustav just sat in one of the passenger seat strapped in and kept going through some of the information for this mission in his head.

p???? ?????? At the same time his mind was alert as he recalled his last time flying out of camp. Internally he was hoping he got attacked again so he could finally lay his hands on evidence that would be traced back to Yung Jo.

Surprisingly the travel went smoothly and in just two hours, they had nearly reached the other side of earth. Although Gustav now had flight ability, he knew he could never match up to the speed of this aircraft. At least not now.

The only person he knew capable of moving even faster was Miss Aimee as he recalled that when she was unsealed she moved like she was teleporting.

Gustav could never forget the day Miss Aimee took him almost halfway across the world in barely a few seconds and displayed her true strength to him.

Sometimes he forget that Miss Aimee was one of the most powerful beings in the universe presently. Destroying a planet was truly something she could do if she willed it but then Yung Jo who was significantly weaker had managed to get the better of her.

This proved that intelligence was truly powerful in a sense. Although he knew Yung Jo's was more of scheming, nevertheless it was still a part of intelligence.

Gustav just had to beat him at his own game or literally beat him to death.

After another hour went by, the aircraft began to lose altitude as they took a particular route in the sky. Gustav could feel they had descended by a few thousand feet compared to their initial height.

He looked at the holographic monitor which displayed the outside and could see a kind of thick fog up ahead blocking the entire sky.

The pilot kept moving and flew straight into it.

Few moments later they phased through the fog and what appeared in their line of sight was an island situated in the middle of the ocean. No land could be seen at all in the surroundings except for this particular island which looked well structured.

One could already see tall buildings and we'll constructed paths from this height in the sky. Mountains, trees and other natural views looked good from the sky. The aircraft had significantly slowed down as it descended at this point.

Fwwhiiii~

Gustav could see the city on this island better as they glided above the structures towards the eastern part.

? "Vida 001 is cleared for landing,"?

A voice was heard through the communication device on the aircraft as they closed in on a part of the city that looked way more better structured than the others. pa??a ???????

A few seconds later they landed in a private airspace. Gustav got off the aircraft and a few people were already waiting for him up ahead.

"Welcome to Mysonite City officer Crimson," A dark skinned woman who looked no older than the age of thirty voiced out as she walked towards Gustav.

"Thank you," Gustav said as he received her handshake.

There were two other men beside her who also welcomed Gustav as well.

"I am Madam Cilora Vertigon and these are, Marklin and Jude," She said with a respectful tone.

Gustav recognized all three of them from the information he had gotten on the family recently. Madam Cilora was the direct aunt of the next head of the family while the other two, Marklin and Jude Vertigon were his uncles from his mother's side.

They were important members of the main Vertigon household and they had come here to meet with Gustav directly. Some guards were positioned around the place. It would seem they were followed around by guards even though they were currently within the Vertigon premises.

"This is the Vertigon hangar, please come with us to the main household," Madam Cilora said while gesturing for Gustav to follow them.

"Sure," Gustav responded as they moved towards one of the small land vehicles parked at the side.

There were about three of them and Gustav got into the first one with Madam Cilora while the other two got into the next one and the last one was occupied by the guards.

As they drove off, Gustav looked around. The runway of the private hangar area was quite massive. There were also multiple private aircraft parked by the sides all looking luxurious with some engineers attending to one or two.

There was no doubt that the Vertigon Family was very wealthy. They probably had a spacecraft as well since it was not news that very rich families could own spacecraft if they wanted to.

The entire Vertigon premises was like a small city itself as they drove for about twelve minutes, bypassing multiple well structured houses and people moving across the place before arriving at their destination... The main Vertigon Family house.

Gustav got off the land vehicles with the others as they arrived before this gigantic building that was at least thrice the size of a mansion.

It was silver and violet in color with the golden statue of a three headed draconic creature in front. This was the most luxurious looking household Gustav had ever been to and this wasn't so surprising considering this family was one of the top three richest in the entire world.

Before this he had also seen multiple households and there were at least a thousand Vertigons living in this Vertigon premises.

Everyone he had been seeing all bore some type of resemblance to one another which depicted they were all blood relatives living in this large city like premises.

Unlike the others they were also a mixedblood family with a Lineage Type Bloodline which was another reason why they were so close guarded and lived isolated from the rest of the world.

It was very rare to find any mixedblood with a lineage type bloodline because of how families like this liked to keep to themselves and keep the bloodline from getting out of the family.

Chapter 870 - Doubts Of The Vertigons

This was also another reason why a lot of them couldn't be found in the MBO.

It was actually a miracle that Von and the others were ever allowed to join the MBO.

The surroundings was teeming with all type of guards dressed in the same whitish robe-like outfit with the emblem of the three headed draconic figure on their backs.

Gustav walked into this massive household with the others where the rest of the main family members were waiting as well.

The living room was so massive, it made Gustav wonder how many people lived within. He only had information on the family members but they still had chefs, maids, cleaners, guards and butlers. He reckoned over fifty people could gather in this living room and there'd still be enough space for more.

Expensive artistic pieces on the wall, chandeliers made from raw diamonds and rare stones, pieces of furnitures that looked like they'd sell for millions.

Gustav decided to stop observing the household for now as he sat on one of the sofas. The entire main household was gathering here. It looked like his arrival was going make them hold a meeting.

In a few seconds, Sixteen Vertigons had gathered in the living room. Gustav could recognize every single one of them. Three children of the previous head who were all women, four uncles and aunts which included the ones who welcomed Gustav upon arrival.

Four grandparents, two male and female and lastly the acting head of the household, Madam Lilian.

Madam Lilian just like Madam Cilora was also dark skinned but the others had lighter skin tones yet they still bore some kind of resemblance to each other.

Some of them greeted Gustav when they saw him while others just stared at him with inexplicable looks and took their seats.

"Where is Stark?" Madam Lilian voiced out after noticing that one person was still missing.

"I have sent a butler to inform him about the meeting," One of the uncles who had a mixture of white and black hair voiced out.

"I would like you to go and hasten him up. We cannot keep officer Crimson here waiting like this," She voiced out to the uncle who responded by nodding and standing to his feet.

He walked towards the Southside where one of the diamond structured stairways was located and began moving up.

"My apologies Officer Crimson for taking up your time like this," Madam Lilian said with an apologetic tone.

"No worries," Gustav responded with an unbothered tone.

He wasn't in anyway offended as this was a part of his mission after all.

The others also looked at him like they were scrutinizing him.

'This officer seems quite young... hopefully he is capable enough,' Most of them had thoughts similar to this and some of them were just waiting to ask Gustav all sort of questions when the meeting begins.

Minutes later the uncle who had left earlier arrived back alone.

"Young nephew Stark seems currently indisposed... He claims he can't attend because he is working on something and we should just go on without him," He voiced out while taking his seat.

Madam Lilian had a wry look on her face as she sighed. Gustav could see the frustration on her face which made it seem like this wasn't the first time something of this sort was happening.

"Let's just go on then," She said with a look of defeat.

"Welcome once again Officer Crimson. I believe you have been briefed on our current predicament," She said to Gustav.

"Yes. According to the information I received, I have to help you find the original emblem of your family," Gustav stated.

"Correct... You see this emblem is a symbol and without it, Stark can't rule the family in the future. We've pushed the timing of the new head appointment several times because we have been unable to find it with our capabilities so we believe the MBO sending you here, you must be capable enough," She said lengthily.

"No worries, I'll start conducting my investigation as soon as possible to find it. If the information I got about it is accurate and truly only a real member of the main household can activate it's power then it would very much lose its value if it was taken away from this island... I believe it's still here, the only issue will be how to pinpoint it's exact location," Gustav said with a contemplative look.

Some of them seem to agree with Gustav's words and nodded their heads while some still had unimpressed looks.

"Pfft the MBO sent a kid to do a man's job? What qualifications does this kid have that makes you lot believe he can find the emblem?" One of the uncles voiced out with a tone of disagreement.

"Oh Bila, Being in the MBO at such a young age is enough capability is it not?" Madam Cilora said on behalf of Gustav.

"It is not," Bila who happened to be the second uncle voiced out.

"Being young also means lacking in experience. The MBO should have sent us someone who has handled similar cases before. We cannot have a youngster wasting our time," Another aunt voiced out in agreement to Bila's words.

"I don't think the MBO would send someone who is incapable of handling the situation," One of the three sisters of Stark voiced out.

"Little niece you seem not to know that this kid just came here straight from the MBO camp. Which means he is still just a cadet or he just finished... That screams inexperience," Uncle Bila voiced out again causing the others eyes to widened.

Those who didn't initially doubt Gustav capabilities began to doubt after hearing this.

"Is this true?" One of the uncles asked after hearing that.

"Absolutely correct... I infact just completed my MBO training," Gustav finally responded with an unbothered tone.

- "What is the MBO thinking sending us an inexperienced officer,"

- "We need to switch and get a better one right now,"

Some of the family members instantly voiced out their dissatisfactions after hearing that.

"What is your bloodline rank kid?" One of them asked.
