

Bloodline 951

Chapter 951: Full Recovery

"It definitely isn't your typical morning in space," He voiced out as he looked through it. All he could see here was that the direction of the sun had changed but everywhere still looked pretty dark.

One wouldn't know if it was morning or night in space since there was no day or night but with the direction of the moon changing along with the sun Gustav could easily figure out what the time was currently.

The rooms had an anti gravitational field so despite being this high in the sky, the gravity would not be affected around here.

Gustav stared at the cluster of stars in different areas, small floating rocks in the distance and grey circular moon on the far east with a smile.

Dark matter could be seen endlessly but space still gave off a mythical feeling that was hard to fathom.

Gustav was in shorts at the moment and as he moved towards the bathroom, he paused for a bit in front of the mirror.

"Hmm... I should be around 6'1 by now," He muttered as he stared at his buffed figure in the mirror.

Gustav wasn't looking extremely buffed like the bouncers of earth but he had a perfectly chiselled upper body with six outlined abs and broad chest.

His dirty blonde hair falling in front of his face and draped around his shoulder made him look a particular charming way.

Gustav pulled his hair back and stared at the mirror with a little more intent, "It's getting too long again, I should cut it," He muttered before letting go of his hair again.

Gustav proceeded to brush his teeth and wear a black tank top before moving out of the room.

This was the first time he would be leaving his room since he got here and this was become he had completely recovered his strength.

Gustav felt whole again and even stronger than before, he was ready to test out some of his newly acquired abilities.

He arrived at the corridor that led to the elevator and tapped on a small watch that was given to him by one of the officers here.

Troooooinn!

A small holographic map was displayed and it showed the entire outline of the MBO tower.

Gustav used it to navigate his way towards one of the many training rooms within the tower. Taking the teleportation elevator he arrived at the 567th floor.

The training room covered nearly the entire floor and every floor within the tower was immensely massive.

As Gustav arrived on this floor a few other MBO officers were moving towards this floor as well.

The instant Gustav was spotted he instantly became a topic as everyone began to glance in his direction with gazes of admiration.

Gustav walked in, ignoring all that and moved towards a private bunk where he could train by himself.

All the private bunks were like rooms and looked small from outside but upon getting in, they were twice the size of a stadium and even had the option of expanding beyond this if the person training within wanted that.

They were built using some expensive technologies that had to do with space expansion. On the outside it would look small but on the inside it would be way larger.

Gustav moved towards the area where you could set the private training room to be however you wanted.

Zhrrriihhh!

In the next instant it looked like he was in a desert area. It looked extremely realistic that one could even touch the sand.

"I should try Lightning Blitz first," Gustav thought out loud as he prepared to use it.

[Lightning Blitz Has Been Activated]

Gustav looked in a particular direction and in the next instant...

Thrrriiizzhhh!

He turned into a bolt of lightning that streaked forward and appeared a hundred miles ahead his previous location.

"Wow," After Gustav arrived on a sand dune he looked around with an expression of amazement.

[-1000 EP]

"It takes a thousand energy points and I can activate it five times before it goes into cool down," Gustav noted.

He turned towards the west and activated it again.

Thrrriizzzzh!!!

He turned into a lightning bolt that streaked across a hundred miles instantly once more.

It was literally like teleportation since it was instantaneous.

Gustav was glad to have this new ability on his list but then he decided to try using it in a practical sense.

'Time to set a challenge,' Gustav said internally as he picked a training setting to spice things up.

Within a large boardroom a group of seven people could be seen sitting around a diamond colored table that was floating in mid air.

"Looks like its going well," One of them voiced out.

"Yes, so far the MBO has managed to fish out more of Yung Jo accomplices," Another one responded.

"Leader Seven, this kid Gustav Crimson, should we be worried about him being a future threat to earth or you have him under control?" Another questioned.

"We have nothing to worry about. As you can see Leader Two, he has shown he will always be on the side of earth despite having the power to take over us in that moment of earth's vulnerability. He didn't join sides with Yung Jo and try to conquer earth," Leader Seven responded.

"We still don't know how he was able to over come the bloodline disruptor and use his bloodlines. From what I heard, Yung Jo was able to do the same thing and that is understandable since he created the bloodline disruptors he would be able to find a loophole... so how did this kid find a loophole too?" Leader Two said with a logical tone causing the room to descend into silence for a bit.

"There are only two explanations for that, either he was smart enough to discover a way or he was secretly in league with Yung Jo which might make this all a facade," Leader Three stated.

"Exactly," Leader Two agreed.

"You all need to relax with the allegations and assumptions. This same kid just saved the entire earth, you shouldn't be having degrading thoughts about him," Leader Seven stated.

Chapter 952: Retrieval Mission

"We let down our guard once with Yung Jo thinking he was on our side when all this time he had been plotting a takeover. It would be unwise to make the same mistake twice," Leader Two voiced out in response.

"As I said earlier, he had every opportunity to work with Yung Jo and take over the earth but he saved us instead. That is more than enough proof that he will always be on our side," Leader Seven stated.

"Always? People change you know? Who is to say that he won't become a big threat in the future with the potential he has? If he becomes as powerful or even more powerful than Jack, how are we sure we can control him?" Leader Two questioned.

"We don't need to have control over him, the kid is on our side, you don't know him as much as I do," Leader Seven stated once more.

"Or you're just letting sentimentality cloud your reasoning since he is a part of the MBO the same way you advocated for Aimee back then," Leader Two argued.

"Is there anything wrong with Aimee? She may not be completely under control but she has never done against the interest of earth," Leader Seven said with a strong tone.

"Enough of the quibbling between you two," Leader one suddenly voiced out.

"We are not going to neutralize someone who has just saved the earth. That makes us no better than savage old men and we might just be destroying a future powerful ally since he might become the most powerful protector of the earth with his current potential..." Leader one added.

Leader seven nodded in agreement as they heard this.

"However we cannot overrule his potential danger as well since a lot of things Gustav Crimson is a mystery... So we will just keep watch over his actions in the meantime and eliminate him in the future if he proves to be a threat... he still has a long way to go before becoming as powerful as our number one, Jack," Leader One stated lengthily.

"You're right Leader one," Everyone agreed with this idea to keep watching Gustav.

Since it would still take a long time before he could stand toe to toe with the most powerful Mixedbloods on the planet, Gustav could still be eliminated in the future if they saw him as a danger to earth.

"In the meantime why don't we all prepare for the upcoming ceremony to reward our saviour,"

-The MBO Camp

"Did you hear?"

"Hear what?"

"Everyone's talking about it, Gustav..."

"What about Gustav?"

Angy and Matilda sat in Angy's room as they discussed.

"I can't believe you haven't heard about it," Matilda voiced out with a tone of disbelief.

"Just tell me already," Angy sat up with a look of interest as she voiced out.

"Okay okay, so this is what happened..."

-

While both of them were discussing about the recent situation, the entire camp had heard about Gustav's recent accomplishment.

The cadets were not usually given access to communicate with anyone outside of the MBO but the ones who were related to science were not heavily restricted like the others.

They could call the outside world every once in a while and one of them heard about what happened from their family members.

From there the person told others and now it had spread all across the camp like wildfire.

Nobody knew the full details since calling the outside world had limited time but they understood that Gustav had accomplished something phenomenal once again.

E.E, Aildris and Falco who were training together at the moment had also heard about it.

They had decided they wouldn't slack off so they can catch up as soon as possible with Gustav and also let the world know their name.

In a grassy area, Endric sat crossed-legged above a slightly exalted area with a greenish crystal floating in front of him.

"The first point has been passed, are you ready to go on the retrieval mission," Husarius asked.

"Yeah I think so," Endric responded with a slightly wary tone.

"Your brother is going to need it also you need to master your jumps as well because you need to build your strength," Husaruis pointed out.

"Hmm true... I am about to break through to the Echo rank, I should get there after this," Endric said as he opened his eyes which were lit with a blue and silvery glow.

"Are you sure no one will notice I'm gone?" Endric asked.

"That's what we have the space clone for... he will mimic your activities till you get back," Husarius replied.

Endric nodded and stood to his feet as a line began to form in front of him. Endric moved forward a bit but a replica of himself stood behind him.

The line turned into a purplish tear that seemed to be ripping apart the fabric of reality. It grew in length till it was long enough to fit a person through.

Endric jumped forward at this point and went through the rift.

Zhiiiiinnnn!

It closed up in the next instant and the entire vicinity returned to tranquillity. The replica of Endric behind turned around and walked away.

-The MBO Tower

Thrrriiizzhhh!

A streak of lightning bolt, zapped across the vicinity multiple times as a rain of asteroids decimated the entire environment.

Despite the entire sky getting filled with asteroids, the streak dodged every one of them appearing far above the sky in front of a massive asteroid that was at least the size of a street.

[Miniature Black Hole Has Been Activated]

The figure in the sky's hand was stretched to the side as a black round matter began to form above his palm.

It was radiating with intense chaotic energy as reddish and purplish streaks ran amok within the matter that kept increasing in size.

In a few moments it became as large as a human head and the figure flying towards the asteroid swung his palm forward.

The instant collision was made, and a huge suction force came from the circular black matter.

Chapter 953: Erasing Some Details

The black matter ripped right through the asteroid which began to break down in a manner of seconds as parts of it got pulled into the dark matter.

In a few seconds, it was completely swallowed up and disappeared right after.

At this point, Gustav began to fall back down from the sky and activated an energy discharge.

Booom!

Reddish energy blasted across the vicinity destroying multiple smaller asteroids.

Bang!

Gustav landed on the ground as the sky began clearing up.

"So the miniature black hole is pretty similar to what Cohilia can do?" Gustav questioned.

("Yes but not quite... Cohilia can devour anything including a black hole but the miniature Black Hole doesn't have the power to do that,") The system explained.

"Interesting... it will work well with physical attacks and projectiles but it won't work against something like the singularity I dealt with underground," Gustav noted.

Besides that, Gustav knew that two black holes colliding or the miniature black hole colliding with the singularity would just make things worse.

It might end up creating something more catastrophic so he understood the situations where he could use the miniature blackhole.

Ko! Ko! Ko!

While Gustav was making his analysis he heard a knock. He proceeded to deactivate the private training room settings and moved towards the entrance.

Tssshhhzzhhh!

The door slid open and Gustav spotted Gradier Xanatus standing on the other side.

"Gradier Xanatus,"

"Gustav,"

Both of them voiced out at the same time as he walked in.

"I went looking for you in your room but you weren't there... had to trace your steps to this place," Gradier Xanatus stated.

"Oh yeah, I just fully recovered my strength so it was about time to get into training again," Gustav replied.

"No wonder there are dents everywhere, you're really going to give this place irrecoverable damage," Gradier Xanatus laughed lightly as he voiced out.

"I even restrained myself," Gustav responded with a look of innocence.

"You know I'm a Delta ranked mixedblood but sometimes I feel like I talking with someone of equal strength when I'm around you," Gradier Xanatus said with a look of suspicion.

"Gee I wonder why when I'm just a mere step two Echo ranked Mixedblood," Gustav said with a light chuckle.

"Mere my ass," Gradier Xanatus stated before they both burst into laughter.

"Why were you looking for me anyways?" Gustav asked after a brief silence.

"Just needed to check on you and also remind you about the report. I've written most of it but there are still some things that elude me on the whole issue," Gradier Xanatus voiced out.

"Oh I'm guessing you wanna ask where I was for the last five days," Gustav said.

"That and we also found out that there was a singularity underground according to Yung Jo moles within the MBO that we caught," Gradier Xanatus said with a look of interest.

"Yeah that's why I disappeared for five days," Gustav stated and proceeded to explain to Gradier Xanatus in detail.

"So you closed the singularity all by yourself?" Gradier Xanatus asked.

"Yeah, I had to act fast or they would have found a pathway to earth and I would have been caught for nothing," Gustav responded.

Gradier Xanatus had a look of astonishment as he heard that.

He still couldn't fathom how Gustav went about it but since Gustav avoided this particular detail he knew Gustav wasn't going to reveal it to him.

"And then you were unconscious for almost a week and woke up in a place where you were restrained," Gradier Xanatus pointed all these out again to be sure he got Gustav's narration correctly.

"Yeah, they probably had no idea that I wouldn't be affected by the bloodline disruptor so they just restrained me normally," Gustav stated.

He decided to keep the whole issue about Hung Jo a secret.

Hung Jo was practically a ghost coming back and no one had an idea about his involvement so Gustav wanted it to remain that way.

"How did you find a way to counter the bloodline disruptor though?" Gradier Xanatus asked.

"I didn't... but I see now that it might be unwise for me to reveal my Immunity to the bloodline disruptor," Gustav said with a look of contemplation.

"Yeah, it would be better if we edited some info out and tell them you found a way to counter it," Gradier Xanatus agreed.

However, Gustav felt if he wanted to change the story he would have to add Hung Jo's involvement and how being in a different space was what helped him recover his bloodline at first.

The MBO was well aware that being in a different space, one would be unaffected like the MBO camp but the moment they came out it would take effect but Hung Jo had been going in and out without being affected.

So he was using the same instrument or device Yung Jo made use of. The best way to make it look like Gustav wasn't immune was by saying he stole it off Hung Jo.

To make the story believable Hung Jo would have to be included which would date back to their story from back then when Gustav turned him into a vegetable. Gustav didn't want this to happen.

"You know what, just add that I was unaffected by the bloodline disruptor," Gustav stated.

He wanted Hung Jo's involvement to remain hidden so he decided not to hide the fact that he was immune to the bloodline disruptor.

"Are you sure?" Gradier Xanatus asked.

"Yeah, it's fine. The MBO is already suspicious of my abilities anyways but make sure to add that I have no idea why I was unaffected," Gustav voiced out.

Gustav would rather have them know this than dig back to the past where it might get unveiled that he can steal bloodlines.

Gradier Xanatus proceeded to ask about a few more things and Gustav answered while he jotted down some things.

"People have been coming here every day and we've been chasing them away. Do you plan on meeting any reporters or addressing the general public?" Gradier Xanatus asked.

Chapter 954: Making Use Of Popularity

"Nah, I am not interested in anything like that," Gustav responded.

"You're the most popular person on planet earth right now, you could use that to your advantage. Lots of endorsement deals are coming in with lots of companies wishing to use you to pull in customers. Artists want to feature you in their music videos and even movie directors are willing to spend huge amounts to bring you into a scene in their movies," Gradier Xanatus stated with a tone of fascination.

"Nah I'll still turn all of them down... but I could really use this fame for something else," Gustav said with a contemplative look.

"Which is?" Gradier Xanatus asked.

A wide grin appeared on Gustav's face at this point.

"We bring to you trending articles on social media..."

"Officer Gustav Crimson has announced his business affiliates on his social media account with over two hundred million followers,"

"He seems to have created a mixedbreed hunting organisation named the Crimson Hunting Agency for about a year now,"

"They deliver the best and assorted type of Mixedbreed meat according to his recent post on social media...."

No one had heard from Gustav since the whole incident and Plankton City which was initially evacuated had been filled with people again.

Now that Gustav was just coming out with his first statement on social media, his post was trending worldwide.

Gustav opened this social media account about two years back and barely made use of it. Now that he was checking it after a long time, he noticed tons of new followers.

He had over two hundred million followers at the moment which made his social media account one of the most followed in the world.

He decided to use this to promote his business affiliates and hunting agency and his post was currently trending worldwide with multiple media channels reporting about it.

Gustav couldn't help but feel gratified as he received calls from his subordinates about how tons of deals were coming in left and right.

- "Gustav that was a brilliant choice, now the agency can expand to other cities,"

"That's the plan, sorry for troubling you with more workload," Gustav apologised.

- "No need for apologies, I'm always gonna be here to help out. My only request is you take care of my daughter very well,"

"No worries sir... Angy will always be safe with me," Gustav replied with a smile.

After a few more seconds he ended the call with Angy's father and went back to training.

It had only been a few hours since he posted that on social media and he was already getting gains.

Being popular really had its merits if one made use of it properly.

Another day went by and only one day was left till the reward ceremony that would be broadcasted worldwide.

At this point in every part of the world, Jo technologies were being brought down. Some angry mobs had already set fire to their buildings in a few cities.

The public was well aware that Yung Jo was the culprit of the past situation so they were no longer tolerating any building that Jo technologies owned in their cities.

Jo technologies stocks had fallen to a point of no return and what once used to be the most powerful technological-based industry in the world was no longer among the greats.

Now the technology industries that were behind were climbing their way up and trying to take the spot as number one since Jo technologies had fallen.

Mr Jo just stayed out of public sight and never did a press conference or anything like that to try and clear his name.

He was making plans of rebuilding and was barely disturbed because he was still stinking rich regardless of everything that was happening.

Gustav was currently in the training room doing more training but this time with Gradier Xanatus.

Gradier Xanatus had taken Miss Aimee's place for now. Gustav was sparring with him but he was barely able to handle Gustav as Miss Aimee could.

Miss Aimee would not remove her limiters which would place her at the Kilo rank yet she would still be able to handle him with ease. The same couldn't be said for Gradier Xanatus who was at the Delta rank.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

The sounds of collision rang out as they exchanged attacks repeatedly.

They were both not using their full strengths but the intensity of their attacks was causing the entire space to tremble despite how much it had been fortified.

Bam!

One of Gustav's attacks hit Gradier Xanatus in his gut causing both of them to separate again.

"That's 5 to 4," Gradier Xanatus voiced out as he landed a few feet away and slid backwards.

"Yeah I win," Gustav said with a smile while his palm was stretched forward.

"Young miss really trained you well... I can't be anything other than a sparring partner to you," Gradier Xanatus voiced out with a praiseful tone.

Gustav really did deserve the praise as he had only been training for less than three years yet he was already this good in combat.

"And maybe I can teach you a few more things about the MBO as well," Gradier Xanatus added.

"That's interesting, sounds like you have something to tell me," Gustav voiced out with a look of interest.

"Nothing relating to a conspiracy but I'm pretty sure you don't know how to properly use the power of your current rank," Gradier Xanatus responded.

"The captain rank?" Gustav asked.

"Yes... Do you know you're entitled to a squad of thirty MBO officers underneath you," Gradier Xanatus began explaining.

"Usually you would have been placed under a squad after getting out of training within the MBO camp. The squad leader which would be a captain would handle your missions within the squad as well as training and so many other things.

You would literally be answering to whoever the captain was but you're a special case. You practically jumped rank a few times after completing those missions so you're already beyond that stage," Gradier Xanatus paused at this point.

Chapter 955: Learning About The Captain Rank

Gustav understood what he was talking about and voiced out, "Since I am already at this rank that means I can have an entire squad of thirty MBO officers who would answer to me alone,"

"Yes but you would still have to answer to higher ranked officers and whatever they do, their flops and wins will all be on you. If they misbehave you take the fall with them," Gradier Xanatus responded.

"Interesting... And I can pick any officer so long as they are below me in terms of rank?" Gustav asked.

"Yes, except they are in other squads in that case the officer in question would have to write an application to get transferred to your squad. There are special situations when officers from different squads are brought together to go on a mission. In that case, after they undergo the mission they return to their squad," Gradier Xanatus explained in length.

This made Gustav recall his past missions with Darkly and the others. Turned out they were probably in other squads before they were sent on a mission with him.

The new officers were not deployed into squads the instant they finished from the MBO instead they were sent on solo or group missions first with others. Then after some time, they would be placed in squads.

The squad leader who is at the captain or Major rank would decide the entire squad missions or people to send on solo missions.

Squad members could still go on solo missions if they wanted to but that was as far as the Captain didn't have any mission for them during that time.

"It is not necessary I have up to thirty officers in my squad is it?" Gustav asked.

"No you can take your time in scouting for members but there are certain missions you won't be able to undergo if you don't have up to the necessary numbers needed," Gradier Xanatus responded.

Gustav could more or less understand that in a war-like mission they most likely wouldn't let him participate if he didn't have enough numbers underneath him.

The numbers were a bit of a problem since he didn't like people who he didn't trust to be in his squad but on the bright side this brought about a feeling of anticipation.

He knew exactly the people he wanted on his squad even though there were not many of them.

After a few more minutes of talking about the MBO both of them moved out of the training room to go and grab lunch.

Tomorrow was the day of the ceremony and they were both headed there together with Gradier Xanatus's subordinates who joined him in infiltrating Jo technologies.

"I'll have to stop calling you Gradier Xanatus soon," Gustav voiced out as they ate.

Gradier Xanatus chuckled before responding, "I probably won't be promoted much so Gradier is definitely still what you will refer to me as,"

"Looks to me like you might be promoted to the commander rank," Gustav added.

"Probably not, I am not the star of tomorrow's event, you are," Gradier Xanatus said with a reminding tone.

"Meh, I just want it to end quickly so I can go back to my quiet and normal life..." Gustav wanted to go back to dealing with his issues as soon as possible.

"It will all die down after some time, my popularity too. I'm just what is trending at the moment," Gustav didn't sound excited about the whole thing even though he was supposed to.

"Still, it's your moment of glory... Try to enjoy it," Gradier Xanatus stated.

The day went by quickly and the next day arrived. Gustav was awake through the night channelling his bloodline despite knowing today was the D day.

He went on to perform his daily task within the training room and came back to his room to prepare himself.

Gustav took his bath and moved towards the wardrobe area where a wine-colored suit with sparking designs could be seen on it.

Gustav had initially wanted to go dressed in his MBO outfit since he didn't really know what to wear but this outfit was sent by one of the grand generals.

Just staring at it, Gustav could tell it was very expensive.

"I just hope he doesn't want me to marry his daughter or something," Gustav muttered as he took a look at the suit again.

The recent days had been funny with people proposing to him here and there.

Females wanted his hand in marriage and males wanted to give their daughters' hand in marriage to him on social media.

Gustav had gotten millions of DMs already and went through some of them. Some felt heartwarming and some made his belly churn in disgust.

Gustav put on the clothes and looked himself in the mirror. He had cut his hair a little so he was looking well kept and extremely charming.

His figure in the suit was just so exquisite, there was no doubt he would attract a lot of attention to himself even if people did not know he was Gustav Crimson.

Kom! Kom! Kom!

While he was still checking himself out, Gustav heard a knock at the door.

Without even checking he already knew who was there. Gustav turned around and moved to open the door.

"Ready?" Gradier Xanatus asked on the other side of the door.

"I think so," Gustav responded.

"Just look at you... You must be the brother of the devil you divine looking mixedblood," Gradier Xanatus said as he scrutinized Gustav from head to toe.

"You're looking like a fine chipmunk yourself... I mean chap," Gustav voiced out in response.

"Just don't steal my woman," Gradier Xanatus stated sarcastically while moving to the side for Gustav to come out.

"You mean Yumi?" Gustav asked.

He seemed to have taken Gradier Xanatus's words seriously.

"Hmm well we're not a thing," Gradier Xanatus said in response.

"Not yet... but I saw the spark between you two on that day. You should really take the shot Gradier Xanatus," Gustav advised before patting him on the shoulder twice.

Chapter 956: Watching Gustav's Moment Of Glory From The Sidelines

This was usually the way Gradier Xanatus would pat Gustav on the shoulder and now Gustav was doing the same to him.

"Someone who has no experience should not give out advice on the female gender," Gradier Xanatus chuckled as he voiced out.

"Who says I don't have experience?" Gustav asked rhetorically before throwing a knowing smirk at Gradier Xanatus as he walked forward.

"Hey hey hey, what do you mean by that?" Gradier Xanatus asked as he tried to catch up.

He was a man over thirty years of age and yet this kid was claiming to have more experience than him in the women's department.

-

Minutes later they were in a vehicle together headed to Plankton City hall while convoys followed them from behind.

The MBO tower was located in the middle of Plankton City but Plankton City Hall was located in the southwest area.

It only took a few minutes of driving before they arrived on the premises. The entire place was swarming with reporters and people with expensive clothing.

Luxurious cars of different types were parked across the vicinity and the massive Hall could be seen a few feet ahead.

It was circular like a football stadium but was designed with a lustrous green and red colour in this slightly exalted area of Plankton City.

The instant they got down from the vehicle they were in, a crowd of reporters had already gathered around them.

The MBO officers in the convoys got out of their vehicles and shielded Gustav and the others from the reporters crowding them.

Cheers! Cheers!

Loud cheers were coming from outside the premises where people who hadn't been invited were positioned. They had spotted Gustav amid the officers guarding him.

Gustav moved with Gradier Xanatus and his subordinates into the massive Hall.

Chatter! Chatter! Chatter!

Their presence caused the entire hall to be noisy as the important guests from far and wide all discussed Gustav.

Despite a lot of them being quite prestigious all across the world, Gustav's presence still caused them to stare in his direction with gazes of admiration.

They moved towards the front and took their seat right in front of the east side of the hall. That particular area was meant for MBO officers and behind, one could see a full curtain of people in MBO uniforms seated.

The ceremony was going to begin in the next five minutes so Gustav had arrived just in time. In the front seat, a few grand generals sat beside him while other MBO officers based on rank sat behind.

Every MBO officer present in the city was allowed to be in the ceremony so this particular line and the next were all occupied by MBO officers.

The hall was large enough to contain no less than fifty thousand people but since only a few people were invited there would still be lots of spaces around.

Besides the MBO officers only around a hundred people present here were invited.

Two out of the four grand commanders and two out of the seven world leaders had arrived way earlier than Gustav and were seated in an exalted position in the east area.

Gustav already recognised one of the grand commanders to be Great commander Shion who he had met at the first base while the second grand Commander was someone he hadn't seen before.

The two world leaders were both dressed up in white robes that had a symbol behind them. Just one of these four people showing up to an event could cause the entire place to turn upside down, talk more of four of them being present.

The two world leaders were referred to as Leader Seven and Leader Five.

According to some talks within the background, world leader one might still show up.

The ceremony began after a few minutes with one of the world leaders speaking on the podium.

"The world was in a state of emergency and nearly suffered a catastrophic situation due to the ploy of one of our own..."

Multiple floating cameras circulated across the place as the event was broadcasted live to the world.

People who were watching from different places could see the screens occasionally change areas being displayed and when it showed Gustav sitting amongst the MBO members there would cheer not just across the city but the world too.

At the same time footage of the city where Yung Jo had spread terror from was being displayed. This made the whole event look even more iconic as people witnessed the gravity of the situation with multiple MBO officers dying and how Gustav saved the day.

Within a mental asylum with multiple people in white uniforms positioned in different spots, a middle-aged woman with short brown hair could be seen seated in front.

She stared at the holographic screen with immense interest.

"That's my son! That's my son!" She yelled out whenever the screen displayed Gustav.

"Shut up wrench, let us watch," A man sitting beside her voiced out.

"You useless old man I will tell my son to get rid of you," She voiced out in response.

- "You worthless piece of shit if he was your son what are you doing stuck in a dump like this?"

- "That's the earth's saviour he can't be associated with scum like you,"

- "Aisshh this woman must be more delusional than I am,"

The others in the vicinity all bashed the middle-aged-looking woman with short brown hair who happened to be Gustav's mother.

Tears began to roll down her face as she argued, "I birthed him! He is an ingrate!"

"Shut it... if we had treated him right we wouldn't be here. We both failed him so we do not deserve to call him our son," Another middle-aged man with dirty blonde hair voiced out from the side.

Both of Gustav's parents had been placed in this asylum for around a year.

They were placed here for suspicions of having mental issues since they treated Gustav wrong and despite their improvements, they still hadn't been released.

Chapter 958: Interesting Offer From The World Leaders

Gustav's father was a whole lot soberer than his wife and realised his wrongdoing but even though doctors have seen he was better they still couldn't release him.

They were going to spend all of eternity within this mental asylum because a higher authority had stated that those two were never to be released.

It was like a prison for them and they would spend all their time watching Gustav thrive without being able to bask in his glory.

"Let's just watch," Gustav's father voiced out as he kept staring forward.

At this point on the screen, people could be seen going on the podium one after the other.

These were Gradier Xanatus's subordinates who had assisted in infiltrating Jo technologies.

"Yumi Xiotih,"

A lady in a beautiful red gown stood up from Gradier Xanatus's side after hearing her name.

She moved towards the podium and the world leader stretched out his hand to shake her before handing her a badge of honour.

She received the badge of honour and took a picture with the world leader before moving to the side to stand with her other colleagues.

"The man who led the team himself, Gradier Xanatus," World leader five voiced out.

Gradier Xanatus stood to his feet and moved towards the podium as well while applause could be heard from the spectators.

He shook the world leader's hand and received his honorary badge before moving to stand with the others.

The honorary badges they were all receiving were a world-standing token that meant they would no longer have to pay if they made use of business placed belonging to the government.

It also meant they would no longer need to pay taxes and were world-class citizens now. It was a world-standing recognition.

At this point, only Gustav was the only one left while the others had received their honorary badges.

"Finally our man of honour here, the one known as the saviour who had brought down the evil mastermind behind the whole incident, Officer Crimson," The world leader voiced out with a tone of enthusiasm.

Cheers! Cheers! Cheers!

Loud cheers rocked the entire city and the world as a whole as people who were also viewing live stood to their feet and applauded as they watched Gustav walk towards the podium.

Gustav felt the entire world was watching him as he elegantly walked toward the podium.

He wasn't in any way nervous instead he was glad this whole thing was one step closer to coming to an end.

The world leader shook his hand and passed him the honorary badge that had three golden stars on it, unlike the others.

The world leader began explaining that not only does Gustav get the same benefits as the others but he also gets a fully furnished house in any city he desires and a hover car with a couple of millions in a new bank account.

His material rewards were way higher than the others and it seemed like it hadn't finished there.

"Officer Crimson also gets to visit the oasis to do a one-week channelling session within,"

The entire spectating crowd were astonished as they heard this. The oasis was well known but it was like a myth since it hadn't been mentioned in over a hundred years.

People knew it existed but it had been said that no one was allowed to go near it again but it looked like Gustav would be given that chance.

"Not only this but on behalf of the seven leaders, we are inviting officer Crimson to take the spot of a chancellor and become a part of the world government," The world leader voiced out.

Gasp~

Despite this being a large and unbelievable offer the people understood why Gustav was given such an opportunity. However, they wondered if he would take it.

The two grand commanders had a slight look of surprise on their faces and stared at World leader seven for confirmation.

"So it's true? Gustav belongs on the field not in some office wearing a suit," Great commander Shion voiced out.

World leader seven slightly shrugged and voiced out, "The kid should say no if he doesn't want it,"

It seemed like both of them were surprised the world leader seven would allow such a thing to happen.

They could only hope Gustav would turn down the offer but they knew how tempting it looked.

Gustav didn't need to answer right away according to the world leader so he could think about it.

That decision looked like it was taken so the world government wouldn't lose face before the world if Gustav decided to reject them. They knew he didn't care about anyone's position and would always do whatever was on his mind.

After the world leader said a few more things, Grand commander Shion who was well known than even the world leaders walked onto the podium.

Grand Commander Shion was known for his multiple accomplishments in the past as he had so saved the earth on many occasions before reaching the very top.

Everyone clapped as he arrived on stage and also said a few things.

"All of the officers here are receiving a promotion today and we hope that as you watch their stories unfold you can take motivation from them and become a saviour of earth too one day..." Commander Shion voiced out with a strong tone.

The MBO was also rewarding them as this wasn't just a reward ceremony hosted by the world government.

-

The ceremony went on for an hour more with a few well-known musical artists gracing the podium before it came to an end.

They had told Gustav he was going to make a speech initially but he told them to keep all that bullshit to themselves since he wasn't the type of person to come up and motivate others.

During the other times when the ceremony was seeming a bit boring to Gustav, he checked his DMs on social media and noticed something interesting and decided he would act on that later.

Chapter 959: Meeting An Old Friend

During the other times when the ceremony was seeming a bit boring to Gustav, he checked his DMs on social media and noticed something interesting and decided he would act on that later.

At this point, prestigious people from all over were flocking around him and making small talk as they held up cups of wine. Although the ceremony had ended, this was the part everyone liked the most except Gustav.

- "Officer Crimson I assure you, if you take my daughter's hand in marriage you can have seventy percent of my wealth to yourself,"

- "Officer Crimson do give me a call later okay?"

- "Officer Crimson I would like to propose a partnership with your Crimson Hunting Agency,"

- "Officer Crimson would you tutor my son? He has an A grade bloodline and is a big fan of yours,"

- "Your accomplishments are truly outstanding and I would like to offer you shares in my company,"

All sorts of invitations and proposals were thrown around as these people tried to get in Gustav's good graces.

Some were worldwide known business tycoons and some were mayors or into politics. The staggering amount of socially influential people trying to make acquaintances with Gustav was on another level.

Gustav had managed to escape from their midst after all the incessant babbling had nearly driven him insane.

"We meet again, Gustav Crimson," A smooth feminine voice was heard from behind him.

Gustav paused his foot and turned around to stare at the owner of this familiar voice.

It was a young and beautiful looking petite lady with purple-coloured hair packed in a bang.

Her skin looked absolutely dazzling and she was clad in a red and golden coloured short gown that portrayed her attractive curves.

"Goddess Yusha," Gustav voiced out with a smile.

"I thought you were already gone," He added.

"How can I leave without saying hi to our handsome hero and saviour," Yusha responded as she closed the gap between them and wrapped her hands around Gustav.

She laid her head on his chest for a few seconds as they hugged before disengaging.

"You sang amazingly today," Gustav stated.

"Haha thanks, you always look dashing... too bad I can't see you as much as I'd like to," She said with a slightly disheartened expression.

This was the lady known as goddess Yusha who was a superstar singer known worldwide. She had been singing from a very young age and met Gustav at a party about two years back where they danced together.

That was the first time Gustav was ever dancing with any girl so it was a special moment for him especially when she initiated the whole thing and even proclaimed to like him.

They had since exchanged contact and they would chat once in a while.

Gustav was never really a social media person so he wasn't always keeping in touch with her while she mostly messaged him despite not having a lot of time because of her busy schedule.

This was the second time they were meeting in person since Yusha had been called to perform here.

"I take it everything is going well since I still see you on billboards with new albums here and there," Gustav voiced out.

"Yeah yeah remember the song I created because I got inspired by your story?" Yusha asked.

"Yeah I do, what about it?" Gustav asked.

"It went on to win a couple of awards for me and was also top one trending on the worldwide music billboards for a long time," Yusha said with a look of adoration.

Gustav didn't really understand how this whole music thing worked but he knew that was a good thing so he congratulated her and they spoke for a few more minutes about other things.

Occasional giggles could be heard from their direction and one could tell that both of them had great chemistry.

"Young miss Yusha, we have to go," A man in a black suit voiced out from behind as he approached them.

"I guess I'll see you again... one day, Gustav," She said with a smile.

Gustav nodded as she turned around to leave with the man.

After moving a few steps forward she paused and turned around. Gustav thought she forgot something but then he spotted a rectangular-shaped paper in her hand.

"My concert is in three months," She said while passing the paper to Gustav.

"You're inviting me?" Gustav asked as he received the paper which happened to be a ticket.

"Yes, the details are all there and this is a ticket you can use to bring others in with you if you're not coming alone," Yusha explained.

"Yusha... I'm not sure..." Gustav was cut short before he completed his sentence.

"Please Gustav, I want you to come. I will be very happy if I see you at the frontlines cheering for me," She said with a pleading tone while holding his hands.

"Also, don't you need to take a break from all these missions you undergo in the MBO? Please say yes you'll come," Yusha added while making cute pleading puppy eyes.

"Uh... okay I'll come," Gustav finally gave in and she jumped into his embrace from excitement.

"It's in three months right?" He asked for confirmation.

"Yes three months," She said while disengaging.

At this point, she was smiling sheepishly and turned around while waving.

"I'll see you then," She voiced out before storming out of the hall with the man who came for her earlier.

Gustav stared at the ticket for a few more seconds before putting it away.

"This youngster sure has it easy attracting the opposite sex," A slightly raspy voice was heard from behind, causing Gustav to turn around.

"Grand general Shion," Gustav voiced out as he spotted the person who had just spoken.

This man had white and grey hair with a rhombus-shaped green crystal in the middle of his forehead.

His entire existence was oozing with a powerful and mythical aura.

"Take a walk with me," Grand general Shion proposed.

Gustav nodded and followed right beside him as they discussed.

Chapter 960: Red Shadow's Frustration

"You didn't inform anyone because you didn't trust that the information couldn't be compromised since Yung Jo has pawns everywhere," Grand commander Shion voiced out with a tone of understanding.

"Yes, at the time I decided it was better no one else knew except me," Gustav responded.

"That was indeed a good decision," Commander Shion knew at the time he would have felt differently or reacted differently to an MBO officer making such a decision but since it happened to work out and Gustav was able to save them all, he couldn't doubt Gustav's call of judgement.

"Are you going to accept the world leaders offer?" He proceeded to ask.

"Hehe you seem quite worried about that old man," Gustav could already tell that this was the main reason Grand commander Shion wanted to discuss with him.

"Indeed I am. The world government is trying to rope you in using the benefits this offers to rope you in so you stay in the office which would, in turn, hinder your potential to become more powerful and they would be able to keep you under control," Great commander Shion stated.

"And the MBO also wants me on their side so I can fight all their battles for them and become the next champion of the earth... all in all, everyone wishes to keep me under control, y'all are just using different means," Gustav said with an unbothered expression.

Great commander Shion was speechless for a while but then a smile appeared on his face.

"Looks like you're quite self-aware... I keep forgetting that you have outwitted several smart enemies in the past so you're not stupid in the slightest," He said with a slight look of admiration.

"Um okay, old man,"

"So what will you do?"

Gustav paused for a bit as they arrived at one of the entry points of the hall.

"I'll pick the best possible option that favours me. I only care about myself,"

In a flash, a few weeks had gone by since the reward ceremony and the whole hype had begun to slowly die down. Although Gustav was still a worldwide known phenomenon regardless.

Gustav was currently within the MBO tower sitting in his room as he went through some plans.

"Now everything is set, I just need to head there tomorrow," Gustav voiced out as he stared at the holographic projection of a particular place.

This place was surrounded by a body of water, erected within a massive hole in the ocean that never got filled up with water.

The structure was a circular shaped one with lots of floors since it extended from the bottom of the ocean to the top.

There were security protocols put in place that surrounded the entire vicinity where this structure was situated and even Mixedbloods flying around.

The security was just as tight as the location where the world leaders were based if not even tighter.

This place was called the Bureau Of Cities Research Center.

It was a place containing every single research-related file that had been conducted on earth. If it didn't have the original it would have a copy unless such research was conducted privately and never registered with the government.

It held knowledge dating back multiple centuries and even those that were hidden from the general public. Some research was also being conducted here as some of the best inventions had come from the bureau.

They had the power to confiscate any research they found dangerous just like how they did with Scientist Zil.

Gustav was now ready to infiltrate the place in search of the rest of Scientist Zil's research to retrieve it and he wasn't doing this the legal way.

Scientist Zil had mentioned to him that he should never include him in this as it might bring danger to him and his family.

The research was supposed to be dead and buried and he had been warned not to tell anybody about it so if Gustav decided to make use of his current prestige to get the research back legally he felt he might be endangering Sir Zil.

Gustav wasn't the kind of person to repay good with evil recalling everything Scientist Zil had done for him so he decided the best possible way would be infiltration.

Besides the system also gave him that quest so he didn't really have a choice. He just needed to make sure nobody ever found out.

With the place being extremely tight in security things would be difficult but Gustav had already made plans on how to get in.

"Two hours more," Gustav muttered after checking the time.

Prrrggg! Prrrggg!

He heard a ringing sound in his head and proceeded to bring out his phone from the storage device.

Trroooinnn!

After picking up the call, the holographic projection of a person in a mask appeared above the phone.

"Red Shadow," Gustav voiced out while raising his eyebrows.

"Look, I didn't want to disturb you again but those idiots won't listen to me," Red Shadow voiced out from the other end.

"Did you tell them in detail about your discovery and show proof?" Gustav asked.

"I did... and those guys just sent a team over to gather the ones I found before taking them back. They don't see the larger picture despite me telling them over and over again.

They say there is no conspiracy and working together with my organisation on a mission was only a one-time thing," Red Shadow voiced out with a tone of frustration.

"They're not jumping on the case?" Gustav asked.

"No, they're not. They don't share in my delusion apparently. No offence Gustav but the MBO is quite dumb to me. You guys need to purge the chain of command," Red Shadow responded with a stare of pity.

"Well... I can't say you're wrong but you gotta try to convince them or work it on your own," Gustav stated.

"Can't you come help out? You're not as stupid as them, I'm sure you see the irregularities too," Red Shadow proposed.

"I told you before, I have something important to attend to. As much as I would like to help, I can't right now," Gustav said while shaking his head.

"But..."

"But?"

"I can connect you to someone who might be able to assist,"