

Chapter 319 There Is Karma For Everything

Spencer did not continue to talk nonsense with them. He walked straight into the ward.

Mrs Baker closed the door behind and did not follow him in. Because before she came out, Elena said that she wanted to talk to Spencer alone.

Although she did not know who this Spencer was, judging from Elena’s tone, she must know the man.

Ryan glanced at the tightly shut door and lowered his head. He leaned against the wall and stood outside in silence. No one knew what he was thinking. Amber also stood there awkwardly, not knowing what to do or say.

Mrs Baker only glared at the two of them and stood to the side, ignoring them.

"Mrs Baker. . . " After pondering for a while, Amber slowly opened her mouth and said, "Is Elena alright?"

Mrs Baker turned to Amber and looked at her in silence. She then scoffed, “Madam was hit by a car and hit her abdomen. She lost her child. If Miss Amber is so curious whether Madam is alright, she can go out and let a car hit her. She can also experience the feeling of losing her child firsthand.”

Mrs Baker’s tone was not good, so was her expression. It might be the first time when she lost her composure like this and scold the people who she should not scold.

However, she could not help it. When she saw Elena’s sad and lifeless face, she left like her heart had been cut into two pieces.

Looking at Amber, Mrs Baker felt like her teeth itch. In the past, she thought that Amber and Ryan were childhood friends and had a good relationship, so she specially treated Amber well. However, she did not expect that this woman would turn around and break Ryan’s home one day.

Mrs. Baker’s words left her choked. Amber turned around to look at Ryan, hoping that Ryan could help her say something. “Ryan. . .”

Before Amber could finish, Mrs Baker spoke again. "You don't need to look at Ryan. He is not a good person at all. When his wife was pregnant, he was fooling around with others. Such a man should be stuck by lightening when he went out! He doesn’t deserve to be a husband or father at all!”

For Mrs Baker, Ryan was just like her own son. Ryan was even more than her own son. She would not even think to use such words to Ryan before.

However, at this moment, Mrs Baker was really angry that she could not help but curse him.

Because all these things were the result of Ryan’s incompiancy. If he did not bring Amber into his and Elena’s life, none of these would have happened on the first place.

Amber took a step forward and waved her hands repeatedly. Her eyes were filled with tears. "Mrs Baker, you can say whatever you want about me, but don't say like this about Ryan. We all have our difficulties in this matter."

Amber wiped her tears and tried her best to speak for Ryan. But unfortunately, the man remained silent, as if he was not affected by the outside world.

"I can say whatever I want. My mouth is on my body. I don’t need anyone's permission to speak.” Mrs Baker scolded fiercely. If it was not for the hospital, she would have slapped this woman by this time.

Amber lowered her head and her eyes were filled with ruthlessness. She did not expect that an old woman who served Ryan would actually dare to speak to her like this.

Sooner or later, she would make this old woman regret what she said today.

Amber glanced at Ryan. The man still stood at the same position with his head lowered, just like a statue. Amber still wanted to defend him. However, before she could say anything, Mrs Baker opened her mouth. This time she was not angry, but rather calm and cold.

“Miss Amber, you know exactly what you have done. The consequence of this matter is also in front of you. But remember one thing that you have killed an innocent child. You have taken a child from his mother. And this is something you can never get away with. There is Karma for everything. You are also a mother of a child. I do not wish the same to happen to you that you have done with our Madam.”

Hearing this, Amber’s expression changed violently. From the moment, she came here, this might be the first time when she had lost her composure. She did not expect Mrs Baker to say these words.

Ryan’s body stiffened when he heard Mrs Baker’s words. Away from everyone’s gaze, his legs were trembling. If not for the fact that he was leaning against the wall, he would have fallen onto the ground long ago.

Whenever his dead child was mentioned, Ryan felt like someone had dug out his heart and cutting it into pieces. The pain was excruciating.

Inside the ward.

Spencer was welcomed by the strong smell of disinfectant, as soon as he pushed open the door. Spencer stood at the door and glanced at the woman on the sickbed.

The woman was looking outside the window blankly. She did not turn to look hearing the door opening. It was unknown whether she hadn’t heard it, or just ignored it.

Although Spencer was already prepared on the way here, seeing the situation here, he was still somewhat shocked.

Spencer took a deep breath to calm down his conflicting emotions. He walked to Elena’s bedside and sat down.

The woman’s face was so pale that she did not even look like a living person. If not for the fact that he had seen her many times, he wouldn’t have been able to recognize her.

Spencer sighed with heartache. “You fool. Look at yourself. What have you done to yourself?”

Elena looked outside the window and remained silent. No words could be used to describe her pain.
