

Chapter 320 Please Help Me

Spencer shook his head helplessly. Seeing the silent woman, he felt a hint of anger. "Why didn't you tell Ryan about your pregnancy? Why did you hide it from him?"

"Even if I told him, it wouldn't change anything." Elena finally opened her mouth. Her voice was low and hoarse.

She found out that she was pregnant for more than a month. Amber had also been pregnant for more than a month. It meant that Amber had conceived more than a month ago, which only meant that Ryan and Amber were having an affair for a few months now. Or maybe even longer than that.

She should have noticed it after she saw them hugging in the office a month ago.

What if she told about her pregnancy? It only would have given that man more chances to hide his affairs.

She had done everything she could within her ability but she was still betrayed in the end.

Spencer frowned when he heard Elena's self-deprecating tone. He knew this was a huge blow to her. He sighed helplessly, "You woman! I really don't know what to say to you. You have to pull yourself together as soon as possible. You have to return those people who hurt you."

Spencer could not help but feel a little angry again. It was Ryan and Amber who had an affair and let Elena down. Why should Elena blame herself for their wrongdoings?

Elena shook her head. "No need. Those things are not important now."

Upon seeing Elena's hopeless look, Spencer could not help but worry. He held Elena's hand tightly, "You must not do anything stupid. You are still young and can have children again. Remember you are not alone. You still have two small children to take care. Don't throw yourself into the abyss because of this one accident."

Elena closed her eyes. Sparkling tears fell from the corners of her eyes, wetting the already wet pillowcase.

Don't throw yourself into the abyss. . .

But she had already fallen from the abyss into endless darkness. Or she should say, she was pushed to the abyss by the man she loved the most.

How could she possibly pull herself out again?

A mother losing her child and a woman finding out her husband's betrayal, these pains were not something that ordinary people could understand.

And she was experiencing both of these cruel torments at the same time. Who could understand her pain?

A severe pain came from her abdomen, making her whole-body tremble. Elena's brows tightly knitted together and her face turned even paler.

"Elena, what's wrong? Is your stomach hurting again?" Spencer asked nervously. "Should I call the doctor?"

As he spoke, Spencer stood up and was about to go out to call someone. Suddenly, his hand was grabbed.

Spencer turned and saw a tiny hand that had a drip on it grabbing his hand tightly.

Elena finally turned her head and looked at Spencer. Her face was pale with pain, but her eyes carried a rare seriousness that Spencer had never seen. She directly looked into Spencer's eyes. "Spencer, who am I to you?"

Her words confused Spencer. He did not know how to react for a moment. "What do you mean?"

"Other than Ryan's wife, what do you take me as?" Elena asked again.

Although Spencer was confused with her words, he still answered her honestly, "I have told you before. Ryan might be my enemy but I have always considered you as my friend. You are my friend, Elena."

Spencer was not only saying it. He really took Elena as his friend.

Seeing the seriousness on Spencer's face, Elena knew that he was not lying. Her lips twitched as she held back her tears. "Then can you help me with something?"

Spencer was stunned for two seconds before he suddenly reacted. He said seriously, "Do you want my help to take revenge on Ryan? Or you want to target Amber? I can help you to deal with both! Do you want to target the Monor Group? I can start it at this very moment."

When he heard the word "help", Spencer naturally thought Elena wanted to take revenge on Ryan and Amber.

Elena shook her head, "I don't want revenge."

"Then what do you want my help for?" Spencer frowned deeply. He didn't understand her.

Elena held back the pain in her abdomen and gathered her courage to say her next words.

"Can you help me leave?"

"Leave? Go where?" Spencer did not expect Elena to say such a thing. Now, he was really shocked.

"Anywhere. It doesn't matter where I go. I just don't want to stay in Hai City anymore."

Elena closed her eyes in pain. She had fought for a long time. She originally thought that as long as she fought, as long as she didn't give up, as long as she didn't lose hope, everything would be alright.

However, reality proved that she was still too naïve.

The strong always rules the weak. It is the reality of this world.

Whether in terms of wealth, fame or power, both Ryan and Amber were stronger than her. She simply could not fight with them.

In the past, she had the hopeless hope that her love and faith could withstand every storm that came in her and Ryan's life. Afterall, love is the most powerful, isn't it?

However, it costed her a heartbreak and her child's life to realize that not everything could be solved by love.

If someone wants to leave you, no matter how much you love or try to make things better, that person will definitely leave. Because that person was never yours.

Now that her trust was broken and love was gone, what was the point of staying here?

Since she couldn't fight, she better leave.

This place had taken away everything from her. Her parents, her husband, her child, her happiness.

She wanted to escape from this place that made her sad and disappointed again and again.
