

Chapter 370 Easy Target

Spencer felt like the sky had fallen on his head. He almost fell to the ground when he heard what Paul said, “What did you say? Elena did not come to the island? Where did she go then?”

Spencer’s mind went blank and he could not think of anything now.

He sent Elena to this place because Ryan could not get here. But he had never thought that the royal family would suddenly come on the scene.

If he knew this would happen, he would rather not help Elena escape the KING headquarters.

“Brother.” James saw Spencer’s expression and could not help but pull him back.

Paul was also taken aback. He did not expect Elena to come here all of a sudden.

Seeing Spencer’s dumbfounded expression, James turned to Paul and asked, “What exactly happened?”

“I also don’t know, Young Master. Last night, I noticed a group of people coming here. I originally thought it was Ryan Monor, so I wanted to inform you. But before I could do anything, those people started to attack. We have to leave in a hurry. Only then I noticed that those people were from Royal Family.”

Paul could not help but shudder when he remembered the situation of last night. It was a fortune that he was able to get out alive.

“I didn’t expect the royal family to be this ruthless. They clearly saw there were people inside, but they still ordered to attack. They don’t care about people’s lives at all.”

Hearing this, James turned to Spencer. He said hesitantly, “If what Paul said true, then there is only one possibility. That is . . .”

He did not finish his words, but turned to glance at the demolished island.

Spencer’s eyes shrank violently. He looked at the island and his spine turned cold.

Ryan turned the whole Western Europe upside down but he did not get any news of Elena.

It was as if the woman had vanished into thin air. There was no trace at all.

At the break of dawn, the ground of people returned to the headquarters after a whole night of unsuccessful search.

Ryan’s face was extremely dark and gloomy. He looked so cold that there was no human color in his handsome face.

Jackson looked at the man worriedly. He knew that behind the veil of coldness, Ryan was very concerned about Elena.

Western Europe was so big. Searching a person here was like finding a needle in the haystack.

Even if they had the influence and manpower, it would still take some time to find Elena.

Elena did not have any friends or acquaintances here, except Spencer. She neither had money nor any connections that could she use. They did not know if she would face any danger on the way.

Thinking about all these, even Jackson, the usually careless and cheerful guy felt a chill running down his spine, let alone Ryan, who was Elena’s husband.

Ryan directly headed towards his office in silence. Jackson, Xavier and Michelle followed behind him. No one dared to utter a word.

After returning to his office, Ryan sat behind his desk and remained silent. Unlike the last time, he did not behave madly or ordered to destroy Spencer’s family business.

His face remained as dark as midnight sky. No one knew what was going on in his mind.

The matter this time had really touched the man’s reverse scale.

The more silent Ryan was, the more anxious Jackson and the others became. Unable to withstand this overwhelming atmosphere, Jackson broke the silence first. “Ryan, what should we do next?”

Silence. More silence.

Ryan did not have any special emotions on his face. He seemed to be deep in thoughts but in the next second, he did not seem to think anything.

Jackson sighed. After thinking for a moment, he said, “I couldn’t find anything last night, but if Sister-in-law is in Western Europe, she must leave some traces of her whereabouts. How about this? I will inform my friend in traffic department to keep an eye on this, while I go out to find Sister-in-law myself.”

Jackson looked at the man but found the later did not even spare a glance at him. He was emersed in his own world. This made the three men present even more worried.

Jackson gritted his teeth and said, “I will go to every area of Western Europe personally if needed. But I’ll definitely find Sister-in-law.”

With that, Jackson did not wait for Ryan’s response. He turned around and left.

The office instantly returned to its previous quietness.

Xavier and Michelle looked at each other and found the same helplessness in each other’s faces. The series of incidents too sudden that it caught them off guard.

Who would have thought that Elena, a simple and plain woman, would deceive everyone and leave without a trace?

Ryan leaned back on the chair with his head raised. His eyes were somewhat empty and he looked very tired.

Countless thoughts appeared in his mind, making him unable to think or do anything.

‘You killed her child and she will never forgive the murderer of her child.’

Suddenly Spencer’s mocking voice appeared in his head.

‘Even a beast let go of his own blood but you didn’t.’

Each word was like a knife which tore his heart into pieces.

And the worst thing was he could not say anything in retort. Because every word was true.

Seeing Elena sad and broken, he did not feel good, neither did he want to hurt her. But some things were beyond anyone’s control.

After Elena’s kidnapping last time, Ryan became overcautious. He did not dare to act rashly anymore.

There were many people who were hungry for his blood. And Elena was their easy target. Because hurting Elena was the easiest way to bring Ryan to his knees.

Once a person had a weakness, he would become timid.

Ryan was the same.

Thinking of this, Ryan couldn't help but smile mockingly.

For the first time in his life, he felt as if he was a fool. In order to protect his family, he destroyed everything in his own hands.

While everyone was still at a loss, a sharp sound of heels hitting the ground came from outside. It was loud and crisp, revealing the person’s aggression and bellicosity.

Xavier turned around in confusion. When he saw the woman standing at the door of the room, he was instantly stunned.

What was she doing here?
