Chapter 36 Apprentice graduation

Henry came to the gate of Gaolibao again and was quite moved. This time of experience allowed him to experience the first transformation in this world, and he determined his life philosophy, values and views on the whole world. He made a huge change in just a few days. Walking to the gate of the castle, the door opened automatically. The Great Master Tyrantir stood at the door and opened his arms and said to him: "Welcome back to my apprentice, and of course this lovely little warlock girl. Habasser has told me all about it. It seems that your mastery of alchemy is very good. Yes, he is full of praise for you." Henry bowed slightly and said, "This is all the teachings of you and Master Habasser. Amy will stay with me for a period of time. I hope you can give her a room. As for Ah. Reese and Banburk let them live next to the kitchen, I think they will like it there."

The archmage smiled and said, "Of course, I will give this little girl a room and teach her for a while. I have never taught a warlock before. This will definitely be a brand new experience. Okay, let's go in. "After that, I took everyone into the castle. After simply allocating the rooms, the little girl and the animals went back to their rooms. The old man took Henry to his room on the top of the tower alone, and asked after each seated, "Now I should ask you about your choice of magical path. It is generally known that the current magic is divided into eight schools, the protection department, and the spell system. , Prophecy, enchantment, plastic energy, illusion, necromancer, and transformation. Generally speaking, at the moment of becoming a mage, most wizards will choose one line for specialization in exchange for more spell slots. Of course, there are At a price, they can no longer learn and use the spells of the opposing faction. But I found that you did not choose any faction. Can you tell me what you think?"

Henry stood up and nodded slightly to his mentor and said: "Of course my teacher, I love magic and don't want to give up any opportunity to learn it. The ultimate goal of my magic path is to learn all the spells in this world. And I think that giving up a school means incomplete spell preparation. Inadequate preparation is the enemy of the wizard. You should know that. As for the lack of spell slots, it is not a problem. I am still a druid with natural magic to make up for it. This defect."

"Well, my dear disciple. You have chosen the path of a generalist. I would like to express my appreciation for your ambition to learn all the magic in this world. Finally, I will ask one more question about your future path in life, no matter what you choose. I will not interfere, do you choose good or evil?" the old man asked at last.

Henry stood quietly for a minute and then said: "In my opinion, good and evil are just different scales of evaluation. I chose the neutral way. Everything and everything will always adhere to their own views and will not go to any side. Compromise. There is no good, no evil, only people who look at good and evil."

When Tyrantir heard what he said, he smiled and said: "Very good, quite in line with your identity as a druid. I think you have found your own path in the future, then I wish you further and further along this path. Your graduation question and answer is over. From tomorrow on, you will follow me to do magic experiments every morning. And when you leave this castle, I allow you to choose two cards of eighth level, two cards of seventh level, four cards of sixth level and four cards of five. Grade Spell Scroll." Henry thanked the archmage for his generosity and then returned to his room to rest.

The following days are busy and fulfilling. Every morning, follow the instructor to carry out some advanced magic experiments, such as summoning demons, exploring other worlds, making golems, exploring planes and other dangerous and interesting things. In the afternoon, he hid in the room to make some potions. Now that he has decided to go to sea to find his own territory, money is an indispensable link. Making potions is his best way to make money, and his spare time is used to make transistors. Originally it was impossible to make it by hand, but fortunately it has pure silicon. After many experiments, he finally found the doping ratio, and mixed a certain proportion of pure phosphorus and pure boron into two cut small silicon wafers to form P-type and N-type semiconductors respectively. Then link the two slices together to form a diode. After simple circuit processing, two diodes form a triode, which is the basic component of a transistor computer. And these simple and delicate tasks are basically done by him instructing Pique Louise, which cannot be done with human fingers. Even so, the scrap rate is still high.

Amy has accepted the systematic teaching of the Archmage Tyrantir during this time, and the lack of patience of the sorcerer has not been reflected in her. Every afternoon, I took notes and came to the master to listen to the lecture on time, and asked some questions from time to time. In the morning, a small amount of magic experiments and low-level items were made. During this time, her missile staff was sold very well and was well received by adventurers, thieves and merchants. In just one month, she earned 1,500 gold coins. When she got the money, the little girl jumped up happily. When Henry heard the news, he gave her a dimension bag to hold his own things.

Days passed, Henry's knowledge increased day by day, along with the increase in the amount of potions he made and the number of transistors. Amy's knowledge is also growing. What grows up with her is the various notebooks. In a blink of an eye, almost a year passed, except for Morian who occasionally came to fetch potions, spell scrolls and magic items to bring his mother a few letters, Henry never returned home. The contract with the Seven Suns Trading Company was fulfilled smoothly. A large number of potions and scrolls, as well as a small number of missile staff, were sold to various places in the North through their channels. Of course, a certain amount of commission must be given to the archmage, after all, it is using the energy of the mage tower.

It's finally time for him to leave the tower. After he found the butler golem in the basement, he began to choose the scrolls his instructor had agreed to give him. Eighth-level scroll: Spell activation, Big Bai Juli Fist. Seventh-level spell: limited wish, ruby reversal ray. Sixth-level spells: protection against magic weapons, misdirection, advanced acceleration, protection against magical energy damage. Five-level spells: spell immunity, spell shield, death cloud, and mental retardation. After getting these scrolls, Henry carefully put them into the scroll box. It should be understood that it is basically impossible to buy magic scrolls of level 5 or higher outside, and almost all magic organizations will not sell these high-level magic scrolls as commodities at will. He hung the necromancer's magic arts around his waist, and on the day he got it, he tried the system and there was no way to copy the magic above. There is no way for Henry to use it as a disguise. It's a pity that the above spell is a pity. Once an enemy steals this spell book and kills him, he will be able to surprise the enemy instantly.

When he came to the lobby on the first floor, he saw Amy, Ares, Bamberk, his teacher, Master Tailan Tier, and Merikan in the rebellious period. He smiled and said to the instructor: "Thank you again for your teaching. Without you, there would be no me today." The arch mage looked at him with satisfaction and said, "You are the best student I have taught. I hope you will keep going. On the road of magic. I am proud of you. Now I announce that you have graduated!" Mei Likan also came over and patted his shoulder and said, "Congratulations, I wish you a good journey. I made a magic belt overnight. It can help you protect you from some puncture injuries and give it to you as a gift." Henry took the belt and tied it up unexpectedly and said, "Thank you Merikan, don't make a temper with the teacher in the future, he is for your own good." Likan nodded and said, "I know that we are only a matter of attitude towards magic. But I still insist on my opinion."

Henry shook his head and thought, "I hope he won't turn himself into a little girl in a few years." Turning around, he looked at Amy and the two animals behind him and asked, "Are you ready? If we are done, we will set off." Amy nodded eagerly, Ares let out a roar, and finally Banburk shook his head and said, "Go! My sharp claws have long been horrible." After hearing the answer, he said to Tyrantir: "Then I will leave now, and see my teacher." After speaking, he took everyone and left Gaolibao. This time he didn't use the invisibility technique, but swaggered out. Under the crush of Ares, these fragile skeletons did not pose a threat at all.

The first goal after leaving the boundary of Fort Gaoli was Belgoost. Henry didn't go home, he took people directly to the Wildhammer Blacksmith's shop. When he reached the door he shouted: "Cagan, come out! I'm here to pick you up." After a while, a bare-chested dwarf ran out to Henry and said to Henry, "Hahaha! Are you coming to pick me up? Have you gone out to send an adventure?" Henry smiled and said to him: "Yes, my friend, UU reading, I only give you a quarter of an hour. You know that I came here without even returning home. Here, after you have packed up, we will set off directly." Cagan turned around and ran back into the house, and after only five minutes he stood neatly dressed and stood at the door. The dwarf said to the apprentice at the door: "After I leave, the blacksmith shop will be handed over to you. Don't let me down. If you behave well, I will teach you the real secret of dwarf ironing when you come back." The apprentice heard excitedly. "Don't worry, I will not let the Hammersmith's ashamed." Kegan nodded and turned to Henry and said, "What are you waiting for! Let's go! My blood has started to burn."

Henry looked at the dwarf with excitement, and it seemed that he had been held back these days. Adventurers rarely stop, unless they are old enough to walk or disabled. After leaving Belgost, the group went straight to the Baldur's Gate, passing by the Arm of Friendly and never stopped. It is already spring, the season of recovery. The food in the wild begins to be sufficient and camping is not so dangerous. In order to hurry up and set off at dawn, the group stopped to rest until dark. Because the living conditions in the wild are not too bad with the dimension bag, put up a tent, lay a sleeping bag, choose a camp site, and have a bonfire. A lot of food is also prepared. On the sixth day, they finally reached the entrance of the Dragon Bridge, and after paying the entrance tax of three people and a bear, they entered the Baldur's Gate again. It was too late after entering the city, everyone was going to the thieves' union tomorrow to take Robert out first after a one-night rest.

Chapter 37 Captain and chart

Baldur's Gate is named after the legendary pirate Bald'an. He often sails vertically and horizontally on the Sea of Swords. In his own name, he built a tower on the seashore as a guide for him to return home and avoid being invaded by his counterparts from the north. Later, merchants and coastal patrols built a city wall to prevent their cargo from encountering external dangers, but they deliberately excluded the port area from the wall, and collected city fees for the cargo and personnel of the ship. The captains treated them as selfish. The behavior was angry and refused to pay the entrance fee. Bodean just went out when he decided to build the city wall. When he came back, he found that the pirates were locked outside the new wall, unable to withstand the attacks from the orcs and barbarians, and had to pay a high cost for entering the city. In the early summer of that year, the Orcs launched an assault, but civil strife broke out in the city.

In anger, Bodean led the captains to kill the selfish and arrogant merchants and captains, and disbanded the council composed of these prosperous farmers. He only spared four people because they did not support the decision of the parliament. Bodean paid for it, and urgently ordered the construction of the outer wall, and built a bridge gate, which is the origin of the name of Bode's Gate. After combining strong force and solid defense, the Orcs were finally defeated. Bodean appointed the four dukes and stayed at Bode's Gate. Up to now, although the title of the duke has been retained, the specific candidates are elected by the parliament. After all this was over, Bodean went to sea to find the legendary Angkor Island. Never came back. And Angome Island is everyone's goal this time.

A group of people came to the thieves' union in the morning. The thieves of the lookout had already left Henry and greeted them directly and went directly to the office of Alatus. When the thief leader saw him, he stood up and smiled and said, "Welcome!

Welcome! Isn't this our Mr. Goldmine? What good things have you brought this time? You have been called the Master of Pharmacy this year. "Henry stepped forward and shook his hand and said, "Sorry, I didn't bring anything this time. But I have a business to do with you. First, bring Robert over, and I will take him away this time. Secondly. Help me look up the last voyage record of Bodean. It's best to find the chart. The last thing is to buy me a boat, big and strong enough. I will hire the crew and captain in the dock area myself, so you don't have to worry about it."

Alatus touched his goatee lightly and said, "I will help you investigate the Bodean Chart, but you have to wait a few days. The most expensive seagoing ship to buy this season, but I think this is not a problem for you. I'll contact the ship for you first, but I'll take a 15% tap."

Henry nodded and said, "No problem, but it's better to be faster." After that, he followed Altus's hand to find Robert. It didn't take long for them to come to a mermaid bar called Blushing. According to the introduction of the lead thief, it was a bar on the surface but a club and a casino behind it. When he came to the second floor, Henry saw Robert at a glance. He was squatting in the corner and observing everyone in the casino. Robert also saw his master and hurriedly got up and walked over. Henry looked at him with a sophisticated look, and it seemed that he had matured a lot this year. Then he patted him on the shoulder and said, "Follow me, we have already greeted Alatus. Now follow me to the tavern in the port area to hire an experienced captain and some sailors."

Robert used a special gesture to communicate with the person in charge in front of the counter, and then left the blushing mermaid bar with everyone. On the way to the pier, he looked at his sister. The thin little girl was already slim and looks like a girl. It seems that my sister has had a good year, and her eyes can no longer be replaced by the previous cautiousness and intelligence and wisdom. He gently said to Amy: "My dear sister, what have you done in the past year, that has changed so much?" Amy covered her mouth and smiled and said, "Dear brother, want to know that I was taught by a great mage himself for a year. Last year I read more books than you have heard." Robert nodded and smiled.

Soon everyone went to the dock area. Henry turned and asked Robert, "You have been in the union for a year. You should know where the sailors and captains are usually going here?" The boy nodded and said, "Yes, master, the whole city. I'm basically familiar with all the buildings and sewers. After most of the boats dock here, the people on the boat will go down to the tavern in Jopalin for a few drinks and then stay for one night. If you want to recruit captains and sailors, it is the best place. Good place." Everyone followed Robert directly to the Jupalin Tavern in the north of the dock area.

As soon as he entered it, he smelled a strong smell of wine and a lot of noisy sounds. The messy sailors sang messy songs from time to time and poured the wine in one sip. Seeing that there was a brown bear bartender among Henry's group, he immediately said to him: "Sorry, we don't allow large animals to enter." Henry directly took out a dozen gold coins from his pocket and threw it to the bartender, saying, "It's me. My friend, I think I can enjoy the same treatment as a normal person here.” The bartender received the gold coin and stuffed it into his pocket and said, “Okay, but if it hurts, we won’t be responsible.” “Don’t worry, I My animal companion will not move without my order. In addition, I want to ask you if there is a captain waiting to be hired here recently? If you find it for me, I can pay you fifty gold coins.” Henry Say. The bartender stood there and thought for a while and said: “There is a man who meets your requirements. He lives here now called Hawke. He is an experienced captain. But when his boat went out to sea last time, he was caught by the goddess of bad luck Bensaba. Cursed, the ship was knocked over when it encountered the sea monster whale. Now everyone feels that he is doomed and unwilling to hire him. If you need it, I can help you contact.”

Henry nodded and said, “Take me to see this Captain Hawke now.” After speaking, he took out fifty gold coins and handed them over. The bartender happily took the money and put it in his pocket, turned and took Henry upstairs. On the second floor, the bartender walked to a door and patted vigorously and shouted: “Hawk! Old Hawk! I’m up, and an employer is willing to hire you.” Three minutes later, the door was opened, and one came out inside. Fifty-year-old man with messy hair and beard. Seeing the two people at the door, he asked, “Who! Who wants to hire me.” Henry stepped forward and said, “Hello Captain Hawke, I call Henry I plan to hire you.” The bartender saw the two of them and took his head. Said: “Well, now that you know each other, let’s talk slowly. I’ll go downstairs first.” After speaking, he left. Hawke looked at Henry carefully and said, “Well, young gentleman, please come in and talk.”

He smelled a smell of alcohol as soon as he walked into the house. Hawk found a chair and sat down and said, “Mr. Henry, would you please give me a brief introduction to the boat. In addition, the route you plan to run is the best.” Tell me too.” Henry said to the old man: “Mr. Captain, tell you the truth. I am not going to trade and my ship is still buying. I plan to go on an expedition. Please don’t worry about the salary. I will pay a lump-sum payment of one thousand gold coins as reward for this voyage.” Hawke frowned and said, “You don’t have a ship yet? That is to say, you don’t even have a sailor. What about the adventure destination? Is there a chart? After seeing the old man’s doubts, he said, “Please rest assured, Captain Hawke, I have entrusted the thieves’ guild in the city to purchase ships. Their work efficiency has always been good, and there will be news by tomorrow afternoon at the latest. As for the adventure. I’m sorry I can’t say for the time being, but I’ll give you the chart after going to sea. If you agree, we can sign a contract now and then I’ll pay half of the salary first.”

Hawke looked at him with a little surprise and said, “If the thieves’ union had made the move, there would be no problem with the ship. Okay, let’s sign a contract now.” Soon the two of them drafted a contract together. It is stated that all the profits brought by this voyage belong to Henry, and Captain Hawke will receive half of the reward, which is 500 gold coins, after the contract is signed. The other half paid on the ship after sailing to the destination After signing in duplicate, Henry smiled and said to Hawke: “Okay, Mr. Captain, this is half of your reward. In addition, I think Entrust you to help me recruit experienced sailors that I can trust.” After speaking, he took out a full thousand gold coins and placed them on the table. After seeing the gold coins, the old captain beamed his eyes and said to him: "No problem, there are five hundred gold coins enough to recruit more than fifty masters. I will take care of this." "Then I will leave first, if you have anything to do with me, go to the Elf Song Hotel near the gate of the city. I have lived there these days." He turned around and went downstairs after he said it.

When Henry returned to the first floor, he saw that Cagan had become a piece with the sailors around him, pouring a large glass of wine into his mouth. Robert stood in front to protect his sister from these dirty sailors. Ares sat bored and took a nap while Banburk flew to the roof and sang a weird song of yin and yang loudly. Amy was reading a notebook quietly, unaffected by the surrounding environment. He walked up to these people and said loudly, "Okay guys, stop making trouble with the captain. It's been settled. Now let's go back to the hotel." Everyone put aside their business and followed Henry out of the noisy tavern. At the door, the dwarf hiccuped and said to him: "Henry, how many days are we going to stay on the boat this time." Henry thought about the description in the game and said: "It's probably a few days and nights, don't worry I will protect. Good for our boat." Cagan muttered, "You know, dwarves always think it's best to have your feet on the ground. The shaky environment of the sea will drive me crazy." He ignored the dwarves' complaints. Take everyone directly back to the Elf Song Hotel to stay and wait for news.

Chapter 38 The Sword set sail

At noon the next day, the bandit leader sent someone to inform Henry that the ship had been found. In the afternoon, he came to Jopalin Tavern alone to take Captain Hawk, and then followed Alatus to the dock. After finding the owner, boarded a beautiful sailboat. After reading it briefly, Hawke told Henry that this was a large merchant ship with a carrying capacity of about six hundred tons, and it should be a good ship in no more than two years. Seeing that there is no problem with the ship itself, then it is time to talk about the price. The fat ship owner looked at it and said to Henry: "You have seen it. The Sword is a good ship. It has sailed in the sea for two years without any problems. I think fifty thousand gold coins is a very reasonable one. Price." Henry didn't know the price of the ship, so he looked back at Alatus. The thief leader saw it and walked over and said: "Mr. Shipowner, I think fifty thousand gold coins are a bit expensive. This Mr. Henry pays all the gold coins at once, and will not pay in installments like other merchants. And your chamber of commerce urgently needs it. A large sum of cash to deal with debt problems."

The owner of the ship looked at Alatus and said, "If it is a one-time payment of all the gold coins, then only 45,000 gold coins will be enough. If there is no problem, we will sign the contract." Henry nodded and said, "Okay. We are now drawing up a contract, and after signing each other, I will pay all the gold coins at once. But you need to send someone to move it away.” After the two have jointly drawn up the contract and signed, the sword number will belong to Henry. He directly took out 49,450 gold coins at once from the dimensional bag, of which 43,000 belonged to the shipowner, and the rest was the intermediary fee for the thieves’ union. After the two asked each other to order them to move the gold coins, they shook hands with each other to express a happy cooperation.

After the others had left, he said to Captain Hawk who had been following him: “Okay, Mr. Captain, the Sword is now under your control. I hope to see the sailors and weapons in two days. Please supply. Don’t worry I will buy it and send someone to send it over.” The captain took off his hat and bowed and said, “Thank you for your generosity. This is the first time I have commanded such a big ship. She is really a beautiful baby, I I can’t wait to see her beautiful figure on the sea. Don’t worry about the sailor’s problem. The recruitment was completed last night under your generous salary. They are all veterans with more than five years of experience, and their background is absolutely absolute. There will be no pirates or spies in the cleanliness.” Henry nodded, he was satisfied with the work of Captain Hawke. After handing the ship to the captain, he returned to the hotel and reported the good news to others. Then he gave Robert some money to buy some food, water, spirits that the sailors liked, nails, cables, spare canvas, and return There are wooden boards for repairs and so on. He stood in front of the window of the house and thought: “Now everything is in place, except for the chart.”

Three days later, when everyone was anxious, Aratus came to the Fairy Song with a book. He walked to see Henry sitting quietly in the hall and said, “I found the chart. It is in the diary left by Bodean. He mentioned that he is going to sea to find Angkor Island, and he has probably The location is marked. I have to remind you that this is not an ordinary voyage, you are going to the deep sea.” Henry took a look at the diary, and there was a simple chart on the last page. Probably marked the location of Baldor’s Gate, with Angkor Island to the southwest of him. After reading it, he said to the thief leader: “No problem, as long as I get this, I will definitely find this legendary island. Thank you again for your help, this is the information fee of two thousand gold coins.” A bag of gold coins that had been prepared a long time ago was placed on the table.

Alatus shook his head, he felt that the mage in front of him was a bit crazy. Carrying the purse, turned and left the fairy song. Henry said to the young man sitting on the side with his dagger sharpened: “Robert, you go and inform Captain Hawke to prepare him and the sailors to leave early tomorrow morning.” Robert nodded and put on his hood and walked out of the hotel. After going upstairs and returning to his room, he took out a piece of parchment paper and repainted the entire chart on top. After making some simple place names, I put away the chart and lay down to sleep. At the same time, Robert came to the Captain’s Room of the Sword alone and pushed the door in. He saw Captain Hawke looking out the window and drinking at the busy port. He said, “Mr. Captain, my master asked me to inform you tomorrow morning. Ready to go to sea.” Hawke was taken aback and turned around and said, “Tomorrow morning? Alright, no problem. Now that the ship is full of supplies, he can set off at any time as long as he brings the charts. I will notify the sailors. ”

The next morning, a breeze blew across a few clouds in the sky. Hawke stood on the deck instructing the sailors to tie the ropes and polish every inch of the deck. I cleaned up the rats in the cabin and checked the food in the supply warehouse, especially the apples and dried vegetables. If you don't have these things at sea, you will soon get a terrible disease. The barrels filled with clear water were stored, and everything was ready. At this time Henry and his party also arrived at the pier, and the sailors saw the huge brown bear and hurriedly avoided. The captain hurriedly stepped forward and said: "Welcome to my employer, shall we set up anchor now?" Henry nodded and said, "Yes, set off right away. I will hand the chart to you personally after leaving the port."

After everyone boarded the deck, Hawke shouted loudly: "Listen, everyone! Anchor, raise the sail! One person on the observation deck. We are off. May the goddess of luck, Taimora, bless us with the wind!" said complete The ship's water was turned up, and the huge Sword slowly sailed out of the port and headed west. Henry took out the chart and gave it to the captain until he couldn't see the port behind. Hawke took a breath when he saw it and said, "This is going to the deep sea! There are many monsters there." He nodded and said to the captain, "Yes, but the voyage is not too long. We night. It's possible to get there without stopping for ten consecutive days. Rest assured that my people and I will ensure the safety of this ship." He pointed to the dwarf, the young thieves, the warlock girl, and the giant brown bear parrot, which were ignored. . After looking at the huge Ares, the captain felt a little settled and said, "Well, you can now go back to the cabin to rest. If you are interested, you can see how the whole ship sails here." After that, he returned. The captain's room went to study the chart.

Kegan has been a little uncomfortable since he got on the boat. He has always felt that his feet are light and fluttering. Facing the rough sea, he sat on the deck and watched silently, thinking that he might be the first dwarf to enter the sea. The Sword sailed easily under the blue sky, cruising in the ocean currents of the Northland. The strong wind filled the sails, and many seabirds landed on the mast and caught the attention of the sailors. Superstitious people think this is a good sign. It is said that ships with seabirds will not encounter storms and pirates will always return full. After seeing the chart, Hawke came to the deck and watched the sailors shouting excitedly and did not stop. He knew that this was a deep-sea voyage, so he basically didn't have to worry about encountering pirates. The biggest enemy is the weird and changeable weather and the various monsters and intelligent life hidden under the sea, such as the shark murloc and the ocean murloc, of course, the ocean overlord sea magic whale. Of course, if you reach the destination safely, there will be various dangers that follow after landing.

Seeing Hawke's slightly anxious face, Henry walked over to him and said, "Don't worry about the captain, the sailors on the ship and you don't need to land after arriving at the island. Below us is a 600-ton cargo ship with Full of supplies, even if we sail at sea for a few months, there will be no problems. My partners and I will do a comprehensive exploration of the island. If it is confirmed that it is safe, I will let everyone come down and relax." His words let the captain relax a little After a while, Hawke touched the beard on his mouth and said: "If this is the case, it would be the best. Let your people go back to the cabin and rest for a while. The sea breeze will blow, but it will cause headaches. The safety of the sea and I and Da The vice committee is fully responsible, and will notify you as soon as possible if there is any unusual situation." Upon hearing the captain's words, Henry pulled the already seasick dwarf back to the room and let him have a good sleep. UU reading

Robert on the deck became obsessed with fishing, and under the guidance of experienced sailors, he quickly fell to the first one. He threw it to Ares, who was lying next to him basking in the sun, and put on bait to continue fishing. The brown bear opened his eyes and swallowed the fish, causing Banburk to yell at him. The surrounding sailors laughed and began to tease the parrots, and Banburk's way of speaking was too much to their appetite. The parrot with a dirty mouth quickly became the most popular guy on this ship. After a simple lunch, Henry sat quietly on the bow of the boat, thinking about how to deal with the werewolves on the island. It is well known that these guys infected by veterinary disease will transform, and have extremely sensitive sense of smell and low-light vision. In addition to these werewolves, they also have speeding regeneration after transformation, which means that if you don't kill them all at once, their wounds will heal and stand up and give you a bite. Veterinary virus is also a problem, but he bought some belladonna before going to sea, which can be used to cure veterinary disease after being bitten.

In addition to medicine, he also bought some silver, which is a deadly toxin to werewolves. Henry planned to plate the silver on everyone's weapons after he got to the island. His plan is to kill all the werewolves on the island, regardless of men, women, young or old, only in this way can they never suffer from future trouble. Because it will become its own territory in the future, it needs to have absolute control over the entire island. After sailing for a day, the sun gradually went down, and the ship's speed was reduced to half of its original speed and then moved on. Except for the sailors on the watchtower, everyone went back to the cabin to eat dinner and sleep.

Chapter 39 storm

The voyage of the Sword was as smooth as ever. There were no pirates, sea monsters, storms, or even a little bit of weather along the way. By the eighth day, the sailors were still a little bit anxious. They had never left the land so far. Both Henry and the captain found out about this situation. Hawke thought about it and found Henry and said to him: "Mr. Employer, if we can't reach the destination within a few days, sailors may have riots. I think you'd better Pay attention." He thought for a while: "Mr. Captain, I have noticed this situation. Don't worry, if the sailors have a riot, I will suppress or even kill them all within a few minutes. But considering their panic recently Three times the supply of drinks these days, it should make the sailors feel better.” Hawke nodded and said, “Well, I will tell the kitchen to open the supply of drinks.”

Henry stood on the deck and let the warm sea breeze blow his hair. He had been sailing for so many days. The ship has already entered the warm waters, and the sea breeze is obviously damp and hot. There were obviously more fishes following the boats, and the sea changed from the deep blue in the north to the tropical green. It should be coming soon, he told himself in his heart. Turning his head, he just saw the dwarf fishing on the bow, but the fish he was fishing was not an ordinary shark. After a while, the sailors who were standing around yelled: “Quick! Quick! Drag it up.” Kegan yelled, “Look at me!” The dwarf’s arms began to be bloodshot and grabbed hard. With the rope. The tenacity and strength that belonged to the dwarf came into play, and a huge shark was lifted up by a hook. “See you! This guy is five meters long.” Kegan shouted excitedly. It seems that he has adapted to life on board and is no longer seasick. The surrounding sailors yelled so as to vent their emotions. The sailor on the boat took a harpoon and stabbed the shark to death, which was still struggling violently.

Captain Hawk came out and said loudly, “Good job! What a big guy. Okay guys, I now announce a good news! I just discussed with the employer, and he agreed to start the drinks on the boat from today. Triple the supply.” “Long live! Long live the captain! Long live Mr. Henry! Long live the spirits!” the sailors yelled happily, and the tremendous pressure was vented. Henry saw that everyone’s mood improved significantly and then turned his head and nodded to Captain Hawke, then climbed up the mast to find Robert. He said to the young thief: “Robert, be careful when you watch the night tonight. When you find something wrong, come to me immediately. I have a hunch that something big will happen.” “I understand the master, and the thief’s instinct also tells me. Something bad is about to happen. In fact, everyone feels it, but they are not as sensitive as we are. Today I will be up to the point.” Robert said.

Henry came to the kitchen during dinner and found that the sailors’ emotions were obviously higher. Many people drank wine and ate chunks of fish and bread. This kind of dinner was already a sumptuous meal for ordinary sailors. He ordered a piece of fish, two apples and a piece of bread, and the cook on board also gave a piece of marinated steak separately. The sailors around just looked enviously and didn’t feel any dissatisfaction. He exists widely in this world and he is quite generous to the crew as an employer. Back in his cabin, he began to slowly feed the food. Suddenly the door was opened, and Robert walked in and said to him: “Master, your premonition has been verified. I found that the nearby seabirds are getting restless, and there are some abnormalities in the distant clouds.” Hearing this, he immediately stood up and said : “Go, let’s find the captain right away.”

Hawke’s dinner was very happy, and the anxiety on the boat was calmed down. There is neither danger of riots nor * pirates. It would be perfect if it kept going on like this. He poured himself a glass of fine wine gently, took a sip of the glass and tasted it. The captain’s door was suddenly opened and he was startled. When he saw that it was his employer, he put down the cup and said, “Oh, Mr. Henry, you scared me to death. What can I do if you are so anxious to find me?" Henry looked on. Seriously said to him: "Captain Hawke, I think we are in big trouble. The seabirds on the mast panicked abnormally, and according to Robert's observation, the clouds in the distance are also obviously abnormal. I expect a storm to come, and The scale will not be too small." The captain turned pale when he heard the news and said angrily: "Damn, I knew it wouldn't be so smooth sailing. Okay! Don't worry too much about the employer, at least you did one thing right. The thing is to buy this big ship. At least ordinary storms won't do anything to her.

Hawke brought his employer and Robert to the restaurant. Most of the sailors were still drinking and chatting. He walked to the center and clapped his hands and said, "Be quiet! I have a bad thing to announce. According to observations, the storm is coming. Everyone is moving! First mate, you take someone to the cargo hold to tie up our supplies and Tools. Captain sailor, you take the crew to the deck to roll up the sails. In addition, fix the things on the upper side. Everyone prepares a rope to tie up their waist and find a strong place when the storm comes. Tie yourself firmly." The captain methodically directed everyone to prepare to fight the storm.

As the storm came as planned near midnight, the originally mild sea changed in an instant. The huge waves make the boat roll up and down, feeling like it will be overturned at any time. The dwarf and the brown bear trapped themselves on the pillars of the cabin, while Amy and Robert tied themselves to the hammock on the hull. Henry cast himself a flying technique on the deck to help those who fell into the water without being tied up. Captain Hawke was at the helm alone, using his rich experience to steer the entire ship along the waves of the waves. In this way, the hull rupture caused by the rollover of the ship can be prevented to the greatest extent.

Henry rescued all the people who fell into the water and got trapped under the main mast. The sailors shouted thankful words to him. After saving people, he went to the bottom of the cabin and performed several ironwood techniques on the fragile parts of the bottom of the ship. This spell can make ordinary wood as hard as steel, so that it will not sink due to a leaking ship. I have done everything I can do now, depending on when the storm has passed. He came to the cockpit and saw that the captain was manipulating the rudder with his steady hands. The violent shaking of the ship did not affect him at all. Henry flew over and smiled and said to him: "Hi! Captain Hawk, it seems that I hired you is a very correct choice." The captain smiled bitterly and said, "I don't think my choice is right at all. Look at this terrible storm. The bottom of our ship will definitely leak." "Don't worry, Captain, I just went to the cabin underground to see that there is no water leaking and I also used iron wood technique on weak places. In 24 hours. The bottom of the ship will be as strong as steel." After hearing the news, Captain Hawke also laughed and said, "Haha, this is the best news I have ever heard in my life. Since there is no worries, let us enjoy it. A rare storm!"

After talking with the captain, he came to the deck alone to look at this great power. This is the distant sea, so the power of Talos, the * of storms, and the goddess of the sea, Ambo, can't affect this sea area. This is the pure force of nature, which he can clearly feel as a druid. The storm lasted all night, and finally passed when the sky was shining slightly. After putting it on, everyone breathed a sigh of relief, and the captain ordered to check the entire ship and found that there were no problems, and opened up the drinks and food to celebrate. After walking through the storm area, Henry found that the area just now was a place where a tropical cyclone was rising violently. It is no wonder that Chanem also encountered a similar encounter in the game. This kind of place will form a storm almost every few days and it is inevitable. It seems that there is a safe buffer time after getting the island. It is almost impossible for ordinary people to pass this section of water safely. Just as he was thinking about it, the watchman rang the alarm and shouted: "Land! There is land ahead!"

Put on everyone and ran out until twenty minutes later everyone saw the scene in front, a lush tropical island. Henry found Hawke and said, "Mr. Captain, I suggest stopping the ship for a rest. The storm last night made the sailors very tired. I will first go up and scout." The captain agreed to his request and announced to the crew of the ship. Everyone understood the captain's kindness and found a place to sleep. After the ship was anchored, Henry blessed himself with an invisibility technique and a flying technique and came to high altitude. After he reached an altitude of 500 meters, he did a scouting and discovered that there was more than one island here, and Angome was an archipelago. There are two huge islands, the largest of which is about 30,000 square kilometers, and the smaller one is about 21,000 kilometers. There are about thirty small islands scattered around, not far away. This is really a huge territory, although it has not yet been actually occupied, it already belongs to him in Henry's heart.

He first scouted the big island. In his mind, the werewolf would live in a larger place first. As a result, except for some beasts and a large lake, there was no more attention. Then he came to a small island, where he found a werewolf village and large farmland. Seeing this large village of nearly 6,000 people, he began to feel that he was trapped by the game. He thought that a village with only a dozen people in the game would have at most a few hundred people in reality, but considering that the original werewolves have reproduced here for five hundred years, it is not outrageous that there are so many. He needs to adjust his plan.

After confirming the goal, Henry returned to the boat. After a few hours of rest, everyone regained their energy. He asked the captain to dock the ship in a natural harbour on the big island because it could avoid the sight of the opposite island. After landing, the sailors happily hunted down some nearby beasts and started barbecues on the beach. Henry also paid the other half of the salary and bonuses to the sailors, and everyone's morale was very high.

Chapter 40 Midnight hunt

After the barbecue party, Henry called Robert, Kagan, and Amy together. He said to the three of them: "Since we have landed, it's time to talk about the purpose of this trip. According to my reconnaissance just now, there is an island slightly smaller than here, on which at least six thousand werewolves live. Mine. The goal is to kill them all." The dwarf said dumbfounded: "Six thousand werewolves! My god, so many lycanthropes are enough to capture Baldur's Gate. We will be torn to pieces when we attack from the front." Henry nodded. Said: "Yes, I'm not going to attack frontally. When it's night, Robert, you will go with me and we will take advantage of the night to carry out an assassination. There is some silver here, burn it and smear it on the blade. The others are first. Stand by here." The young thief said, "Good master, but what are you going to use to cover our odor?" Henry took out the silver from the dimensional bag and then took out a small bottle and pulled out the cork. Emit a fragrance. He shook the bottle and said: "The fragrance of flowers, I specially refined a small bottle. I have experimented with dogs and they can't smell it at all. These are enough for us to use."

The sky was getting dark, and the captain was afraid that there would be beasts in the woods and ordered all the crew to return to the ship to rest. Henry took Robert to the west side of Werewolf Island quietly with a small boat. There was a small pier and several small fishing boats docked nearby. After finding that there was no one around, the two men sneaked gently and began to approach the village. Henry used an invisibility technique for himself, and Robert used a thief's unique technique to hide himself in the dark. After approaching the village, I found that the werewolves in the whole village had almost gone back to sleep. Today is not the full moon, so no one has transformed. Robert approached a house gently, took out a wire from his waist and fiddled with it a few times before knocking on the door lock. He gestured to Henry and then got in. Henry hurriedly followed and entered the house. There lived a young couple of werewolves. When Robert and Henry came in, they found two lycanthropes doing something shameless. The young thief drew out the silver-plated magic dagger and the three-sided thorn, and pierced the couple's throat all at once. The two werewolves died without making a sound, and their eyes were still blurred with passion.

Henry walked over and said in a low voice, "Good job. According to my observation, there are two groups of werewolves on this island that are hostile to each other. Tonight we attacked the village first, and then went to the other side of the island to do some damage. Guess them. Will there be a fight?" After speaking, put the bodies of the two werewolves into the dimension bag. Robert smiled sinisterly and said: "Of course it will. There is no one else on this island. When they find that there is only blood and no corpses here, they must think that the other party has attacked him." After he finished speaking, he rubbed his boots under the ground. The blood stained the weapon back into the sleeve. The two men carried out two hours of assassination on the periphery of the village, killing at least three hundred werewolves who were sleeping and not transforming. Further inside, the density of houses was higher and there was a danger of exposure, Henry took Robert and began to retreat. After returning to the boat, they rowed to the other side of the island. According to his reconnaissance, there are also a group of werewolves in the forest here. They live in the forest more wildly and hunt any animals that enter their territory.

When the boat approached the land, they found a huge ship wreck ahead. Henry said to Robert: "Look, it should be the ship that the legendary pirate Bodean sailed here. Let's get a little farther away from this ship and then dock." He knew in his heart that there was a giant werewolf ruler named Karrog on the ship. All the werewolves in this forest, he would not approach here when the two groups of werewolves weren't defeated and wounded. The two men landed a little further away from the wreckage. The level of civilization of the werewolves in the wild was obviously much lower than that of the village. Most of them just lit a campfire in the wild and slept around, and only a few built a few shabby huts. Henry frowned when he saw this. It was hard to handle. No house means no shelter, and a large number of werewolves gathered together will be fully exposed as long as there is a slight difference.

Robert gently approached the wolf crowd. The fragrance of flowers on his body did not arouse the alertness of the sleeping werewolf. A cold light flashed across the werewolf and died in a deep sleep. Soon he killed all the werewolves in the outer fire, leaving only the place where a dozen of them gathered. Henry knew that he had to act, he stood up and began to chant the spell softly. The werewolves in the middle heard the sound and suddenly opened their eyes. They stood up and howled when they found that their surrounding companions were dead. The "holding technique" instantly fixed most of the werewolves in place, but Henry exposed from the invisibility technique, and a guy who looked like a leader resisted the spell and quickly rushed towards this side. The thief who had been hiding on the side for a long time inserted a sword into his heart from behind, and the werewolf fell down with an incredible expression on his face. Robert took the opportunity to come to the campfire and sealed all the other werewolves with swords in one minute. Henry walked over and quickly began to collect the corpses, and threw the hair of the werewolf killed in the village on the ground. After putting everything into the dimension bag, he said to Robert: "We must evacuate immediately. The howl just now is probably to inform the surrounding communities. These guys living in the wild are too alert." The young thief nodded in agreement.

Henry gave himself a new invisibility technique, and Robert also inspired the advanced invisibility on the magic leather armor. Before they walked out of the camp a few steps, they found that a large number of werewolves were rushing over in the distance, and the two quickly hid in the tree and began to observe the surrounding situation. The number of werewolves around was increasing rapidly, and soon a guy who was especially tall and covered with long black hair came over. The surrounding werewolves lowered their heads slightly. After he walked over, he checked the blood stains on the ground and smelled the hair again. Then he stood up and said loudly, "Kaishas Gan, this * and Sheila, you want to kill us! Look at the fifty family members here who were despicably assassinated tonight. If we don't take the initiative to attack sooner or later One day they will be cleared!" The surrounding werewolves shouted: "Karog! Tell us what we should do! You are the leader of the race and we all listen to you." The giant werewolf called Karrog howled loudly. After a sound, he roared: "Blood debts! Now gather all the tribesmen to prepare their weapons. After dawn, we will attack their villages and kill their tribes."

Then the werewolves quickly dispersed, and their cries came one after another in the forest. After Henry and Robert got down from the tree, they looked at each other and laughed. After a busy night, they finally achieved their goal. They came to the place where the boat stopped and quickly rowed back to the Sword. Kegan and Amy were waiting anxiously on the deck, and when they saw the two came back, they hurried forward to ask questions. Henry explained the night's things briefly and then went back to the room. He needed to prepare some spells and magic arts. Today, the two groups of werewolves must have a large-scale rally during the day. He only needs to wait for these guys to take everyone to the door to kill the roots when these guys have suffered heavy losses. He lay down and turned on the system to check the harvest this evening.

After the upgrade, Henry transcribed all the four five-level scrolls given by the great master of Tyran Tyr as part of his parting into the system, and he lay down and began to rest after he was ready for the spells and gods. As a spellcaster, he needs at least eight hours of adequate sleep. Robert was eating at this time, and he suddenly felt a change in his body. Someone stood up blankly, and walked a few steps gently in the corner of the room, and found that this was not an illusion. His hiding ability has been greatly improved, and his walking pace is also lighter. Maybe this is the result of the killing tonight? After thinking about it for a while, I found that I couldn't find any other explanation besides this, so don't think about it if you can't figure it out. He quickly gave up his wild guesses and continued to eat. After breakfast, he lay down in the cabin and started to fall asleep.

Since learning that the two waves of werewolves were unfolding, Kagan's nerves became excited. He sat on the deck and sharpened his axe vigorously with a whetstone. The armor on his body had long been oiled, and the brand-new steel-clad wooden shield was shining brightly. After Henry returned, he told the dwarf that it would only take a day, and he would lead his friends to slay all over the islands. Amy is also working hard to prepare spells and magic items, occasionally opening the note and flipping through it, wondering if she has seen it. Bamberk was still talking nonsense about the talk show on the boat, while Ares began to close his eyes and recharge.
