

Chapter 427 Regret His Choice

Disgust shined in Eddie's gaze as he surveyed Sabrina, and he couldn't help but feel pity for Tyrone.

He clearly disliked Sabrina, but he didn't act on his dislike and asked Tyrone to be with Galilea.

However, Eddie didn't expect that Sabrina, whom Tyrone had chosen over Galilea, would be comfortably soaking in the sun and enjoying herself here while Tyrone was in trouble.

He wondered if Tyrone would regret his decision once he found out about what Sabrina had done.

Sabrina was amused by Eddie's accusation. "He's in detention? How is this of any import to me? You're one of his closest friends. You have the nerve to be angry and indignant on his behalf while you are here having fun and picking up girls."

Eddie was stunned, but he rallied quickly and berated Sabrina again, "How is my actions any of your business? After everything Tyrone has done for you, you still want to get rid of him? I've always known you are a manipulative woman. It's no surprise that Tyrone was foolish enough to fall for you."

Sabrina's emotions boiled over with bitterness and anger after being deceived by Tyrone and criticized by his friend. She tightly gripped her fists in frustration.

However, she didn't want to argue with Eddie in the presence of others. She told Bella, "Wait for me over there. I'll join you shortly."

Bella and the others were aware of the tension between Sabrina and Eddie, so they advised, "Just be cautious. We'll go first."

Eddie glanced at Bella and the others and sneered, "What? You've only been in Philade for a short time and you are already fawning over the locals? Why were you in such a hurry to ask them to leave? Are you afraid that I will tell them what you have done?"

"Damn you!" Sabrina couldn't help cursing, "You are so stupid, Eddie. No wonder your parents won't allow you to manage the company. If you run the company, the Dawson family will go bankrupt in less than a year. Had it not been for your parents' support, you wouldn't have had the opportunity to stand here and yell at me."

Her relationship with Eddie had always been bad, but when she used to care about Tyrone, she tried to be civil and polite to Eddie. However, now that she didn't care about Tyrone anymore, she just scolded Eddie without remorse.

Eddie believed that Sabrina exuded an air of calmness and remained quiet in most situations. She had always been accustomed to enduring challenges with grace and strived to approach others with kindness.

As a result of his initial perception of her, he was taken aback by Sabrina's sudden reprimand. His expression turned somber as he responded, "Sabrina! Who are you scolding? How dare you!"

"I am scolding whoever shouts at me!"

"You..."

"Don't talk nonsense in front of me. If you want to defend Tyrone, don't come to me. I have nothing to do with him. But it seems that you and Tyrone are not on good terms. Don't you know that Tyrone has made up with Galilea? Haven't you always felt sorry for Galilea? Now you can feel relieved."

Again, Eddie was left floored by Sabrina's words. He couldn't help but scoff. "Sabrina, craft a better story, okay? Tyrone loves you deeply. How could he suddenly reconcile with Galilea? Before I came here, I went to see Galilea. They haven't made up

"Believe it or not, Tyrone was the one who told me that he liked Galilea and was only pretending to like me."

Eddie felt confused. He stared at Sabrina with furrowed brows, not believing a word she said. "He told you that? Then why did he chase after you for such a long time? Don't you find that weird?"

Sabrina wouldn't tell Eddie why Tyrone had pretended to like her. It was so embarrassing. It was even possible that Eddie would mock her if he found out about it.

Sabrina didn't want to talk to Eddie anymore. "I don't care whether you believe it or not."

Seeing that Eddie still wanted to say something, Sabrina interrupted him immediately, "I don't want to waste time with you."

Eddie sneered, "You've run out of excuses, haven't you?"

Sabrina snorted coldly and left. Tyrone was so smart. How could he have a friend as stupid as Eddie?

Sabrina had seen Tyrone and Galilea in an intimate demeanor. Tyrone had admitted that Galilea was the one he liked all the time. How could it be wrong? But what about Eddie's statement about Tyrone not reconciling with Galilea? What was going on? Eddie didn't seem to be lying.

When Sabrina couldn't make head or tails of it, she pushed the matter out of her mind. She shook her head and tried to concentrate on something else. Whatever happened to Tyrone was no longer any of her business.

At noon on Monday, Blayze invited Sabrina to lunch.

The last time they met, they didn't have time to talk with each other. This time, they could take their time.

Sabrina shared details about her new life here. She mentioned when she first arrived here, she felt out of place and intrigued, but now it was becoming more comfortable for her. Every now and then, she would stumble upon something new.

Blayze also shared his experience from his time here.

The two of them chatted happily.

Out of nowhere, Blayze queried, "Are you aware that Tyrone has been detained?"

The sudden change in conversation was a surprise to Sabrina. While she already knew about what happened to Tyrone, she didn't expect Blayze to bring it up. She cleared her throat and nodded. "I know."

"What do you think about it?" Blayze raised his head to look at Sabrina.

Sabrina averted her gaze and said with disinterest, "I have had no involvement with him for quite some time. Whether he is guilty or not does not concern me."

"Really?"

"Of course. Why are you asking me about it all of a sudden?"

"It's good that you really think so." Blayze took a sip of tea and said frankly, "This matter involves my uncle. My uncle and Tyrone have had disagreements and now they are in competition with each other. I will support my uncle no matter what. I'm saying this because I don't want you to feel bad when you find out about it in the future. It doesn't matter even if you want to help Tyrone. I just don't want anything to come between our friendship."

Hearing this, Sabrina replied, "I understand your perspective, and I have my own stance as well. Just know that I won't help him or blame you for this."

"Very well then."

"But I'm curious. What caused such a huge rift between Tyrone and your uncle?"

"There's no grudge. It's just about profits," Blayze said firmly.

The influential families frequently engaged in covert battles over their own interests, but this time the situation was more complex. Currently, it appeared that Tyrone held a disadvantageous position.

Sabrina made her guess. Was it possible for them to pick a fight simply because of profits? Wouldn't it be a loss for both parties? Sabrina was confused but she didn't ask more.

Even if there was more to the story, it was highly unlikely that Blayze would tell her about it.

"Blayze, can you do me a favor? If Tyrone ends up not being able to defend himself, please make sure that no innocent people get implicated in this."

(Especially Wanda and Jennie.

"As long as they don't make mistakes, they won't get involved."

"That's good."

When Sabrina returned home, she couldn't help but ponder the source of Tyrone's intense feud with the Evans family. Tyrone was a smart man. How could he allow himself to get to this point? Sabrina couldn't figure it out.

What if Tyrone was in prison for the rest of his life? She turned over. In that case, let him be. She would take good care of Wanda and Jennie.

Little did Sabrina expect, just a few days later, she would cross paths with Eddie once again.

Sabrina had completed her work for the day and was packing up when Eddie approached her. She was annoyed and unsure of what he wanted. "What's wrong with you?" she asked hesitantly.

"I had returned and finally figured out something important."

"Oh, can I leave now?" She didn't want to hear anything he had to say.

"No, you can't. Listen to me first. Tyrone hasn't made up with Galilea."

"Nonsense!"

"Take your time before denying it. From what I've gathered, they haven't reconciled yet. However, I'm aware that you have seen Tyrone and Galilea together in the Blakely Group, am I correct?"

Sabrina squinted at him and said, "Yes, and? Please don't tell me they were just acting for my sake."
