

Ceo's Mysterious Fiancee by Piper Dunlap

Chapter 538

Chapter 538 Provoked Her in Person

The talent contest began soon.

The first competition was for musical instruments. Patricia, as one of the influential figures of University of Chicago, came to the stage to perform the violin.

Sitting in the auditorium, the deafening applause and shouts, and the lame music, kept tormenting Paige....

Unexpectedly, Patricia played the violin even worse than the piano....

Finally, the performers on the stage changed, and the music sounded much more melodious.

Paige was working on her mobile phone while listening to the sound of the violin. After a while, she raised her eyes and was about to relax her eyes. She didn’t expect to see the person standing in the spotlight playing the violin was Kailyn!

Kailyn held the piano in one hand and the fiddlestick in the other. The way she closed her eyes and reveled in it thrilled.

the entire audience.

She was originally one of the influential figures in University of Chicago, and was often compared with Patricia. The two were not only remarkable in appearance, but also in talent.

But to Paige, she played it barely passable.

Paige went on to deal with the work on the mobile phone, and when the song was over, Kailyn on stage received a very high evaluation from the judges.

The applause from the auditorium was like thunder, one after another, and lasted for a long time.

Kailyn smiled brightly, and said through the microphone, “The contestants who participated in the competition today are from different prestigious schools, but the opponent I am most looking forward to did not participate. I don’t want to leave any regrets. It is rare for her to come to University of Chicago. So at this time, I would like to invite her to compete on stage, so that everyone and the judges at the scene can see her unique demeanor.”

After she finished speaking, she directly named Paige.

Everyone was stunned. Unexpectedly, Kailyn, the influential figure of University of Chicago, would personally challenge No. 1 scholar of University of Illinois at Chicago!

Her confident smile revealed the look of a winner, and the spotlight looked everywhere for No. 1 scholar...

The atmosphere at the scene suddenly came to a head.

“That Kailyn! How dare she...” The people from University of Illinois at Chicago became anxious, “Not to mention whether No. 1 scholar can play the violin, should at least tell us in advance. It’s too disrespectful!”

“That’s right. She suddenly calls Paige to compete on stage without telling her in advance. Doesn’t she just want to top Paige and embarrass we University of Illinois at Chicago?”

“There are not as many people who learn the violin as those who learn the piano. She definitely has bad intentions in doing this.”

“That’s too much!”

The spotlight finally found Paige, and many people’s eyes fell on her.

The short-haired girl next to Paige said, “Let me go up. Although I major in piano, I also know a little about violin...”

At least it was better than someone who knew nothing.

“Now it’s up to whether No. 1 scholar will accept it or not The host on the stage was the chairman of the University of Chicago Student Union. “Anyone who wants her to accept, applaud heavily!”

Thunderous applause broke out in the audience, and everyone’s eyes were on Paige.

The people of University of Illinois at Chicago were all anxious, “They went too far. Instead of smoothing things over as they should as the host, they heckling on purpose...”

“Paige, you didn’t participate in the competition. You can simply refuse.”

Paige just finished processing the work on the mobile phone, and stood up casually, “Okay, as her wish.”

Just as the girl next to her wanted to dissuade her, Paige took the violin from her hand and said, “Borrow for a while.”

“Don’t...” The girl next to her was so anxious that she whispered, “My violin is very cheap, and the quality is definitely not as good as Kailyn’s...”

Everybody knew that the Lusk family was rich, and that everything they used was the best!

“It’s okay.” Paige came onto the stage with her violin.

The audience booed even louder. Unexpectedly, No. 1 scholar was so courageous that she gladly accepted the challenge.

This year’s competition was too interesting.

The applause from the auditorium was like non-stop waves.

Maybe she didn’t expect Paige to dare to battle. Kailyn was surprised, and the look in her eyes was even more proud.

On such a grand occasion, guts alone were not enough. Soon, the embarrassing news would spread to the family, to University of Illinois at Chicago... Though she was No. 1 scholar, she would still be laughed at.

The host said some introductory words, and let Paige start to play.

Patricia in the audience knew that Paige was a famous piano master, Vallorie, but Kailyn didn’t.

Patricia thought to herself, “Paige is proficient in the piano, not necessarily the violin. As the well-known Valloric, if she loses to a college student in the violin, it will be a real embarrassment, right?”

She didn’t care who won or lost. Whether it was Paige or Kailyn who lost, she wanted to see it and even be happy about it.

Paige stood on the stage. She was already outstanding, and under the spotlight, she was incomparably beautiful.

Her right hand held the fiddlestick with great steadiness, and her left hand was delicately fingered. Her vibrato was even, the melody was beautiful, the timbre was excellent, and the music she deduced was as clean and delicate as her person.

Just standing on the stage, she exuded superior elegance and nobility, as well as a strong artistic temperament.

Everyone was stunned. They didn’t expect No. 1 scholar to play the violin so well....

What’s more, she had such an amazing temperament. Standing on the stage, she was like a dream out of reach of thousands of people....

Her performance was pure and thorough, noble and sharp, with an incomparable timbre. The power of her performance was extremely abundant, with an epic spirit, representing nobility and unyielding, and it was like the venting of a mountain torrent...

The great sorrows and joys of life, the rich emotions, the hotness and coldness of the fusion of ice and fire, under Paige’s remarkable interpretation, swept over all present like a tornado.

Shocking was not enough to describe the shock that this performance brought to everyone.

Kailyn, who was standing nearby, froze her smile as she was taken completely into the artistic conception of the song.

It seemed as if only the girl who played the piano on the stage was left in the world, and the music carried everyone through the great sorrows and joys of life....

At the end of the song, everyone couldn’t extricate themselves, and they were still intoxicated by the wonderful music. It took a long time for the applause to erupt.

The applause continued for a long time, and the girl on the stage bent over with an elegant and beautiful posture.

Dorian Nehemiah, a violinist and professor of music at University of Chicago, applauded repeatedly and said in admiration, “Your string-drawing skills and performance skills are not inferior to any masters of your time.”

Such a high evaluation caused the audience to burst into applause again.

Another judge picked up the microphone and said emotionally, “I want to ask. Who’s the composer of the song?”

It was so melodious!

Just listening to it once made people have endless aftertaste....

“It’s my improvisation,” Paige replied truthfully.

Everyone in the audience was shocked again. Even the judges thought she was a genius. Such a piece of beautiful music came from her improvisation!