Naruto: The Wind Calamity

Chapter 471: Pitiful Hiruzen

A few moments earlier, Fujin's clone entered Hiruzen's office. Hiruzen looked at him and asked with a smile, "Welcome Fujin. Is anything the matter?"

Fujin clone nodded and answered with a smile, "Yes Grandpa, but it is nothing too serious to disturb you a lot. I am facing a couple of issues. Just send a Shadow Clone to help me out."

For a moment, Hiruzen was completely speechless. In fact, he even struggled to form proper thoughts. He was even wondering whether he heard the right thing! The speechlessness could be seen on his face. Needless to say, Fujin enjoyed the disbelief on Hiruzen's face but didn't react to it and acted as if everything he didn't notice it.

Hiruzen finally gathered his thoughts and cursed, 'This brat! Last time, he was at least respectful about it! This time... This time he didn't even ask or request it! He just said it as if it is the most natural thing to do and I have no reason to say no!'

Though Fujin's tone wasn't disrespectful nor his words extremely demanding, it wasn't servile either and it didn't sound like he was making a request. It was as if an old friend came up to you and asked you to tag along with him to do something. The old friend wouldn't request it due to your long relationship while you too would go along with it because of your relationship and the fact that the request wasn't anything ridiculous.

The only issue was that it wasn't the relationship Fujin and Hiruzen shared. One was the leader of the village and had been sitting in that position for decades while the other person was just a youngster who received guidance from time to time. The two were multiple generations apart. And though Fujin called Hiruzen Grandpa, Hiruzen was aware that Fujin just took complete advantage of the fact that Hiruzen loved to act as a Grandfather-like figure for promising kids while Fujin was aware that Hiruzen was aware of that fact!

Hiruzen was once again put in a tough spot. The last time Fujin approached him, he set a precedent. So, if Fujin had sent a clone and requested him like before, he would have agreed. Unfortunately for Hiruzen, Fujin decided to push the bar a bit, putting Hiruzen in an awkward situation once again.

Hiruzen's mind calculated rapidly, but there was only one solution. He sighed in his mind and thought, 'If it was someone else, I'd have thrown them out. But I have invested too much in this boy. I can't damage our relationship by declining him when he isn't asking for much despite his method being too straightforward.'

He looked at Fujin and thought in grief, 'Why isn't this boy as respectful as Kakashi? Even though Kakashi reads that lewd book openly and shows up late, he is at least respectful towards me and never asks me for anything. Sigh, I wonder which demon possessed me when I asked him to call me Grandpa. I need to be more careful in the future.'

Hiruzen hadn't responded for over half a minute. Fujin looked at him with a confused expression and asked, "Grandpa?"

That snapped Hiruzen out of his thoughts. He said, "Sure. I'll send one."

He was about to make his Shadow Clone when Fujin said, "Ah right, don't create the clone with too little chakra. I'll need him to have some to help me."

Hiruzen was left speechless once again. Unfortunately, he could only swallow his complaints and create a Shadow Clone with 30% of his chakra. Both the clones left the office and flickered towards the 23rd Training Ground. Meanwhile, Hiruzen complained in his heart, 'I told him to trouble Homura and Koharu. Why does he still keep giving me trouble?'

Unfortunately for Hiruzen, though Fujin agreed, he had very little relationship with the two of them. Not to mention, he was unsure whether they knew the jutsu or not. So, even though Fujin wasn't a fan of those two, he could only request Hiruzen for help. Besides, considering how much work he put in to create a good relationship with Hiruzen, he would be stupid to not take advantage of it when he should.

Hiruzen's clone arrived at the training ground and was speechless once again. He couldn't help but mutter, "Did the sky collapse? What the hell happened here?"

Fujin's clone replied, "I underestimated the power and range of my new jutsu, Grandpa. It was one of the reasons I called you here. I wanted to know if you have a better place to train Wind Vacuum jutsu. If I keep practicing here, I'm afraid that this training ground won't last for a long time."

Hiruzen's clone glanced at Fujin's clone and thought, 'He has already mastered a wide range Vacuum jutsu? It has barely been more than 2 days since Danzo showed him the technique.'

Hiruzen's clone was surprised. The Wind Vacuum Technique was extremely complicated and risky. While it was kept secret, promising ninjas would have an affinity to Wind manipulation were given an opportunity to learn it. However, even then, there were only 3 ninjas in the village who could use it. Even someone like Asuma failed to learn it when Hiruzen tried teaching him while Sunagakure didn't have even a single ninja who could master it.

Not to mention, the Wind Vacuum Technique got increasingly complicated as one tried increasing its power. To see Fujin learn the advanced technique Danzo displayed so quickly was outside his expectations. Even Hiruzen would struggle to replicate such a speed. It once again showed how ridiculously good Fujin's affinity to Wind Manipulation had become.

Fujin's clone dispelled himself as Hiruzen's clone appeared next to Fujin. Fujin received all the memories from the clone, smiled at Hiruzen's clone and asked, "Well Grandpa? Does the village have a better spot to train this jutsu?"

Hiruzen's clone shook his head and replied, "There isn't. I doubt there would be any facility that can endure continuous assault from Vacuum jutsus. The only way is if you aim it at the skies. However, I'm afraid that it might cause some panic among civilians if bloody birds start dropping from the sky."

Fujin nodded. He would have no control over where the bodies of the birds would be flung due to the winds. It was likely that the unlucky birds would be killed and pieces of their bodies would scatter all around Konoha.

Hiruzen's clone said, "Ask your Shadow Clones to create a barrier to stop the damage. You can use the Four Violet Flames Formation, but you don't need to create the four walls or the ceiling and floor. Just create one wall and shoot the jutsu in that direction."

Fujin complained, "But that would consume too much chakra!"

Hiruzen's clone shrugged and said, "The only other way would be for you to travel to the south and practice it on seas. However, training while away from the village isn't a good idea. Iwa or Kumo might make a move if they receive news of you training in the middle of nowhere. The Akatsuki organization might come after your bounty as well. If they find you when your chakra is low, you'll be in trouble."

Fujin nodded. Despite being as strong as he was, training outside the village was too risky. At his full strength, there weren't many foes that Fujin was afraid of. However, it was a different story once his chakra dropped too much.

Fujin let out a sigh and asked, "Is it fine if I change the terrain of this training ground?"

Hiruzen's clone understood what Fujin was implying. He nodded and said, "Sure. Just keep it limited to the training ground and maintain the trees on the edges of the training ground. Also, don't build something so big that it'll affect the surroundings on being destroyed."

Fujin replied, "Alright. I'll make a suitable one for this training then."

He thought, 'This might be a good opportunity to practice Earth jutsus again. I have been wanting to upgrade them and Fire jutsus for some time. Hmm, I should ask Hiruzen for suitable jutsus for them as well.'

Actually, Fire and Earth elements aren't the mainstay of my strength. Even if I strengthen them, they will be far inferior to Wind and Lightning. So it'll be better if I directly ask him for a ready-made combat system for those elements. I won't need to waste any time creating them. Anyway, that can wait for the time being.'

Hiruzen's clone asked, "What was the second thing you wanted?"

Fujin replied, "I wanted a stronger defensive jutsu. Unfortunately, the library didn't have Triple Rashomon or the Quintuple Rashomon jutsus. Can you teach them to me?"

Hiruzen's clone stared at Fujin. He thought, 'As I guessed. He wants me to teach him a jutsu that he can't find in the library. Don't tell me he'll keep finding me whenever he needs new jutsus.'

He wasn't sure, but his speculation was exactly on point. Fujin was lucky enough to find an expert old ninja who was so good that everyone called him 'The Professor'. In addition, he was very kind-hearted and magnanimous and always showed how much he favored the younger generation. There was no way Fujin wouldn't deny such a kind-hearted soul the opportunity to pass down his knowledge to a promising youngster.

Fortunately, Hiruzen was unaware of Fujin's thoughts. If Hiruzen knew what Fujin's thoughts were, who knew what expression he would show?

Chapter 472: New Jutsus (1)

'Summoning jutsu: Quintuple Rashomon'

Fujin weaved the snake seal, bit his thumb and slammed his hands on the ground.

In an instant, 5 Rashomon Gates appeared one after another in a straight line in front of Fujin. Standing next to him, Hiruzen's clone nodded. He said, "That's good. You can use the jutsu perfectly."

Fujin's eyes were focused on the gates. The Triple and Quintuple variants of Rashomon weren't difficult to learn as Fujin already knew the Rashomon jutsu. Even without Hiruzen's help, Fujin would have figured them out in a couple of weeks. However, thanks to Hiruzen's clone, Fujin was able to learn and master both the jutsus in merely half an hour. Since it was just basic summoning, there wasn't much for Fujin to improve upon the jutsu once he could summon them in an instant.

Fujin turned his gaze away from the gates and looked at Hiruzen's clone. With a smile on his face, he said, "Thank You, Grandpa."

The clone nodded and said, "I forgot to mention this earlier, but Kakashi's squad returned earlier today after recording the entire formation. We are making copies currently. Since you were the one who discovered it, you can get the first copy."

Fujin thought for a few seconds and said, "I will be busy with training in Ninjutsu and Taijutsu. Though I want to study it, I won't be able to focus on it anytime soon. So, it is fine if you give it to me last. You can give it to the Grandmasters who have the time and are interested in studying it."

Fujin already had recorded the entire formation even before Hiruzen had learnt about it. It made no difference to him whether Hiruzen gave it to him first, last or never gave it to him at all. As a result, he wasn't concerned about it and took the chance to earn some brownie points.

Hiruzen's clone felt better. He thought, 'Though he is very greedy when it comes to jutsus and money, he knows when to step back and let the village benefit. Though it doesn't seem very significant, it shows that his nature is good.'

The clone nodded and said, "Alright. I'll focus on the ones who have time to study it right now. Is there anything else you want to know?"

Fujin shook his head and replied, "No, Grandpa. If I need anything, I'll come visit you."

The clone's eyes twitched. The good feeling he had evaporated in an instant. Fujin's words were extremely casual. It was as if he saw Hiruzen helping him to be a completely natural thing. In the decades he had served as the Hokage of Konoha, this was the first time Hiruzen was experiencing something like this.

He muttered to himself, 'I made a mistake last time. I shouldn't have agreed. But...'

Hiruzen knew that even last time, he had no way of declining Fujin's request. After all, Fujin was merely asking for a clone to help him out. Though the request was quite brazen, it didn't require much effort on Hiruzen's part. So, Hiruzen didn't have the option of declining.

If he did, he knew that Fujin would be forced to reevaluate Hiruzen or think that there was an issue in their relationship. After all, which Hokage would decline to help a promising young ninja who would be a pillar of the village in the future unless they have an issue with that ninja?

With no other option, the clone could only smile and say, "Alright. Feel free to come whenever you want."

Hiruzen's clone dispelled himself. A smirk appeared on Fujin's face. He thought, 'Well, that was fun.'

He turned his attention to the training ground and thought, 'Now, time to modify this training ground. Though I don't haven't learnt that jutsu yet. Oh well, it shouldn't take much time.'

Fujin created a Shadow Clone and sent it to the library.

A couple of days later, Fujin was in the training ground. He was at the part of the training ground which was on the opposite side of his house. He weaved hand signs while supercharging the jutsu. After half a minute, he slammed his hands on the ground.

'Earth Release: Rampart of Flowing Soil'

A gigantic rampart began rising up from under Fujin's feet. It continued rising until it was 50 meters in height. Its width was around 200 meters. Fujin flickered and appeared in front of the rampart and used the same jutsu. Another rampart rose around 50 meters in front of the first rampart. Fujin repeated the jutsu twice more, sealing off a 50m by 50m land between four ramparts.

Creating four gigantic ramparts caused Fujin's breathing to become a bit rougher. It consumed quite a bit of his chakra. Fortunately, he didn't need to keep creating them on a daily basis. He stood atop one of them and thought, 'Alright, this should be good enough.'

He gathered chakra and began creating a vacuum core.

'Wind Release: Vacuum Serial Waves jutsu'

Without holding back, he shot the strongest Vacuum Serial Waves jutsu he created towards the ground. The jutsu hit the ground, the Vacuum Waves piercing deep into the ground for several meters, making the entire surface uneven. A large amount of dust and soil were launched towards the skies due to the impact and the strong winds.

However, Fujin released his chakra into the air, transforming it into wind. It quickly began transforming into his Wind Domain. Within a few seconds, the entire airspace between the four ramparts was covered under Fujin's Wind Domain.

The winds in the domain prevented the soil and dust from being launched into the sky and attracting unwanted attention. Within a few seconds, the soil fell back to the ground.

A smile appeared on Fujin's face. This was the perfect place to not only train the wide range Vacuum jutsus but also to improve his control over the Wind Domain.

For the next week, Fujin continued training here daily until he ran out of chakra. He even consumed a special soldier pill to allow him to train more. The ground couldn't sustain such a bombardment and had collapsed more than once. Fortunately, there wasn't anywhere it could escape or fall. Fujin had to use Earth jutsus to stabilize the ground and make it firm once again. A couple of the ramparts collapsed as well at some point during the week but were rebuilt by Fujin.

In a week's time. Fujin had more or less mastered the jutsus. Standing on top of one of the ramparts, Fujin thought, 'This much should be sufficient. Though I can improve it further, it'll take some time as I'll need a lot more practice.'

Anyway, though the jutsus are quite similar, they are still quite different from their previous versions. Calling them advanced variants will not necessarily be true, but I should name the new jutsus in order to differentiate them. Fortunately, I have thought of a few good ones.'

Fujin gathered chakra and began forming a vacuum core in his mouth. The vacuum core contained 144 smaller vacuum cores inside it.

'Wind Release: Vacuum Serial Waves jutsu'

Fujin unleashed a massive attack towards the ground. The jutsu bombarded the ground, causing a mini-earthquake between the four ramparts. In some places, the jutsu pierced more than a couple of dozen meters into the ground. The entire ground, which was fixed by Fujin not long ago, was covered in scars once again.

He thought, 'I don't need to rename this jutsu. After all, I have no reason to use the previous variant of this jutsu. Anyways, in terms of area covered, this is my best Vacuum jutsu. I managed to increase the number of cores to 144. And, I can even control how much this jutsu should spread, allowing me to switch between hitting a larger area or concentrating on a smaller area to overwhelm defenses.'

Fujin gathered chakra once again and began making vacuum cores. This time, he created 36 vacuum cores.

'Wind Release: Vacuum Cluster Bullets jutsu'

Fujin shot the larger vacuum core which contained 36 Vacuum Bullets in it. The bullets exited the larger vacuum core and moved towards the ground. Some bullets travelled next to each other, and the others were behind or in front of other bullets, maintaining a distance of 1 foot from each other. In addition, extremely sharp winds flew between the bullets. It caused the attack to look like a beam.

The beam hit the ground and drilled into it with little resistance. It created an 80-meter-deep hole in the ground! Not to mention, the hole was quite wide as well due to the high number of Vacuum Bullets and the sharp winds flowing in between them.

Fujin thought, 'I'll call this jutsu the Vacuum Cluster Bullets jutsu. This jutsu is most destructive when travelling as a beam. That said, against a nimble opponent, I'll be better off spreading the bullets slightly farther from each other. Though it won't be that destructive in that case, there aren't many ninjas who can defend a normal Vacuum Bullet. So it shouldn't matter.'

Naruto: The Wind Calamity

Chapter 473: New Jutsus (2)

For the third time, Fujin gathered chakra and created a large vacuum core in his mouth. This time, there were only 9 smaller cores inside the larger core. However, each of these 9 cores was double the size of the vacuum bullet cores.

'Wind Release: Vacuum Cannon Barrage'

Fujin shot out the jutsu. It split into 9 Vacuum Cannons, travelling in a straight line! Each Vacuum Cannon drilled 20 meters into the ground, before being slowed down enough for the Vacuum Cannon behind it to catch up and continue the destruction. In less than a second, a 187-meter-deep hole formed in the ground!

A smile formed on Fujin's face. He thought, 'In terms of penetrative power, this is indeed my strongest jutsu. Unfortunately, it isn't very practical in combat. No top-level ninja will be stupid enough to stay in the path of this jutsu. It'll only work on someone who is extremely overconfident in his defense and dodge as soon as I shoot the jutsu.'

Another usage of this jutsu will be killing those who stay hidden deep underground to be safe from my Vacuum jutsus. Though it is possible to travel deeper than 200 meters underground, it is not something that is commonly done and not something most ninjas would have tried before. Going more than 25 meters underground itself is extremely rare. As long as I kill everyone who tries to hide underground from my attacks and don't let the knowledge spread, this will be a sure shot method to kill my enemies who think that underground is safe.'

Fujin extended his hands and fingers towards the ground. A vacuum core began forming in front of each of his fingers. 15 smaller vacuum cores were created inside each of the 10 bigger vacuum cores. The cores were soon covered with wind chakra.

'Wind Release: Vacuum Infinite Gatling jutsu'

Unlike the previous three jutsus, Fujin didn't shoot out the jutsu. Instead, the smaller vacuum bullets inside the 10 cores were launched. In a second, 15 rounds of Vacuum Gatling were launched. In all, 150 bullets hit the ground, creating 150 new holes in the ground.

Fujin thought, 'This jutsu was a surprise. I was initially not very interested in applying this technique to Vacuum Gatling. After all, it sacrifices the most important aspect of the jutsu for which I had created the Vacuum Gatling jutsu.'

The Vacuum Infinite Gatling takes quite a long to create as compared to the Vacuum Gatling. I can't catch even a normal Jounin by surprise with this. However, it instead allows me to shoot a ridiculous amount of Vacuum Bullets, justifying its name.

So, even though the enemy will see it coming, dodging it won't be an easy task. If I had this jutsu when Kitsuchi ambushed me with those Iwa Jounins, I would have slaughtered all of them in a few breaths.'

Vacuum Infinite Gatling was a jutsu that surprised Fujin. He didn't have such great expectations from it. He was very pleased. Fujin extended his right hand and stretched his palm. He was about to try the fifth and the last Vacuum jutsu he had created and mastered in the last week.

Though Fujin had created several types of Vacuum cores, the overall volume of each core would be quite low. However, the next jutsu was an exception. The vacuum core that formed in front of his palm was as big as a Rasengan.

Since its size was the largest by a huge distance, the amount of vacuum cores it could contain was also the highest by a huge margin. A total of 729 vacuum cores formed inside the large vacuum core. Of course, creating so many vacuum cores took a long time as well and consumed a lot of Fujin's chakra.

Fujin's wind chakra engulfed the vacuum core and began spinning around it rapidly, increasing its size further.

'Wind Release: Vacuum Trap Ball'

Fujin released the ball while gathering chakra on his feet. It travelled to the center of the ground trapped between the four ramparts. The ball suddenly crumbled and Vacuum Blades were launched in every direction at a blinding speed!

A staggering 729 Vacuum Blades were launched from the Vacuum Trap Ball! More importantly, Fujin had no control over any of the Vacuum Blades. Some Vacuum Blades hit the ground creating more scars on the ground, some hit the four ramparts surrounding the ground causing all of them to collapse, some flew into the sky and killed a couple of unlucky birds and dispersed after travelling a long distance.

One Vacuum Blade also flew to exactly where Fujin was standing. Fortunately, he was prepared ever since he almost lost his life when he tried the jutsu the first time! He immediately moved to his left as the Vacuum Blade flew past his previous location. However, soon after, he had to jump because the rampart he was standing on collapsed.

As he landed on the ground and was engulfed in dust, Fujin thought, 'I didn't think applying this technique to the Vacuum Blade jutsu in this manner would result in such a ridiculous result. I'd have named it the Vacuum Big Bang jutsu if I could control the Vacuum Blades inside it.'

Anyway, for the time being, this name suits it perfectly. Who'd expect that small ball to create such devastation? The core of Vacuum Blade is quite similar to the core of Vacuum Wave. It is flexible in shape.

As a result, I could create elongated cores which kept coiling around the center in the larger Vacuum Core. Since the core is outside my body, I don't need to be considerate about its size. Due to these two factors, I could fit in a ridiculous amount of vacuum cores inside it.

That said, though the jutsu is very strong, it does have a few limitations. The speed of the jutsu before it explodes and unleashes the Vacuum Blades isn't fast enough. If someone is alarmed and moves a long distance away, then they can dodge it just like I did.

Another issue is the amount of time needed to create it. My enemy will have a chance to attack me multiple times while I am creating it. Fortunately, I can move around freely while creating it. Another issue is that I can be hit by the jutsu as well, meaning that I can't let it explode very close to me.

Of course, in a battle, using this level of jutsu isn't practical. If I fail to hit, then the amount of chakra wastage would be unjustified as well. The only way I can use it is by reducing the number of vacuum cores inside it significantly.

The real usage of this jutsu is using it as a suicide attack or a trap. If my clones use this jutsu like a Rasengan and try to slam it into my enemy, he will be dead even if he defends or barely dodges the ball.

Another possible usage is using it like a trap. Though I can't control the Vacuum Blades after the ball explodes, the ball itself is very stable. If I can seal the ball and store it stably, then it can become a deadly trap.'

A mischievous grin appeared on Fujin's face as he thought, 'Imagine if someone broke into my house. They'll first have to worry about the ridiculous amount of seals there. And if they somehow make it inside, they'll be welcomed by a few hundred or a few thousand Vacuum Blades.'

The thought made Fujin chuckle. He thought, 'Unfortunately, it would also destroy my house. So it is better to avoid it. That said, bases outside the village are a fair game. After all, I can build as many as I want. It only takes a little bit of time. If I can succeed in sealing this jutsu, then it'll be a good trap against any invaders.'

Fujin took a deep breath and took a look at the collapsed ramparts. The training ground was a mess once again. Fujin thought, 'It's time to switch my attention back to Flying Thunder God. I also need to analyze those two curse seals that Danzo uses on Root ninjas and need to create my own curse seal.'

Fujin sighed and thought, 'It's been a long time since I have been working on Flying Thunder God jutsu. It's time to completely master it. Until I'm done, I won't be taking any missions or doing any task that will require a lot of time!'

Fujin resolved himself. He fixed the training ground, creating the four large ramparts once again for future training. Once he was done, he focused entirely on his training, detaching himself from the other happenings in the ninja world!

Naruto: The Wind Calamity

Chapter 475: Three Months Later...

"Huff huff huff"

Deep breathing sounds were heard in the basement. A 15-year-old youngster was on his knees, his hand resting against a pillar. His body was covered in sweat. His chakra was exhausted. It looked like he was barely hanging on. However, contrary to his physical state, a wide smile could be seen on his face despite the fact that he was breathing heavily. Suddenly, the smile grew wider and the youngster began laughing in an unbridled manner!

"Hahahaha hahahaha!"

The sound of deep breathing was replaced by continuous laughter. Fortunately, the basement was sealed. If he was outside, people would wonder if he had some issues.

Finally, the youngster took his hand off the pillar and sat with his back resting against the pillar. He constantly switched between laughter and breathing heavily. The spot from where the youngster removed his hand had a small mark.

Fujin took a few minutes to catch his breath. However, the smile was plastered on his face. He thought, 'I did it! I'm the 3rd person in Konoha and perhaps in the history of this world to master the Flying Thunder God jutsu!'

He continued taking deep breaths while thinking, 'This damn jutsu! For so long I felt like I was close to learning it. It still took me 3 months to finally master it! Also, how insane was that pressure? It sapped all my chakra when I tried resisting it! Though my clones also experienced that pressure, it was far more intense for me! Why is it so?'

Fujin couldn't be sure. He could only guess, 'Is it because my chakra is far greater than my clones? Hmm, I doubt it. Even when my chakra decreased, the pressure didn't decrease. Besides, the clones that tried entering the Void Dimension didn't necessarily have the same chakra.'

If not chakra level, could it be because I'm a being made of flesh and blood instead of a chakra construct?'

Fujin felt that this was the case. Unfortunately, the scroll Hiruzen provided didn't have any information regarding this matter to verify his speculations.

Fujin thought, 'After I enter the Void Dimension, I have to resist the pressure while locating the mark I want and creating a connection with that mark. Both of them take a lot of chakra. Moving through the dimension takes some chakra as well, though it isn't much.'

From what Tobirama wrote, the amount of chakra I consume will reduce once I get used to the pressure. If I can locate the mark and teleport in an instant, then I won't have to resist any pressure. Only at that stage, this jutsu can be freely used in battle with very little chakra expenditure.

Fortunately, it isn't very difficult. I'll just need to practice it a few tens of thousands of times to reach that stage. Once I do, I'll need to start working on increasing the range I can teleport. For now, I have been only practicing in the basement. My Shadow Clones can freely teleport to any marker in my house.

This distance isn't enough to escape but it is good enough to be a menace on the battlefield. That said, how do I practice teleporting a longer range? I can't practice it in the open. Hiruzen will notice me without the seals.

I can't place seals all around the village to create hiding spots either. Even if I come up with a bullshit excuse, Hiruzen and Danzo will be suspicious and investigate further. Should I openly claim that I have mastered this jutsu?'

Fujin thought for a bit and shook his head. He decided, 'No, I am planning some crazy things to do in the future. I might need the Flying Thunder God then if I need to escape. If it is common knowledge that I know this jutsu, then it'll become very easy to link it to me.'

Though I'm not scared, it'll be a huge headache if Akatsuki and enemy Kage begin targeting me openly. If that happens, I'm not sure if Hiruzen or Tsunade would support me if those things come to light. Regardless, such obstructions will slow down my plans considerably. It's best to keep it a secret. If I have to use it, everyone who sees me using it has to die.

But, if I keep it hidden, how do I train it?'

Fujin was in a dilemma. He placed his chin on his hands and thought while he was staring at the ground. Suddenly, he realized, 'Wait a minute! I just need space to teleport. Why does it have to be on land? I have to think in terms of altitude, or rather, depth. I'll just practice underground.'

To start with, I'll dig a hole and cover it in seals to prevent anyone from detecting it. I can go as deep as the temperature allows me to. It'll allow me to increase my range considerably.

Once I increase the range to beyond a few hundred meters, I can just go to the wall around the village and teleport my Shadow Clones outside. They can move some distance away from the village and practice longer range teleportations. Hmm, that should do. If I still face any issues, then I can only go to Mount Muteki and practice there.'

Fujin was satisfied with his training plan. However, there was one thing still on his mind that he couldn't get rid of. He thought, 'Why was the pressure on me in the Void Dimension so high? Also, what happens if I can't resist it?'

My clones get dispelled once they can't resist it. But they are chakra constructs while I'm a living being. Will I be killed by the pressure? But if there is such a huge risk, why didn't Tobirama or Minato mention it? Also, why didn't they use it to kill their opponents? Can't I just teleport an enemy here and wait for them to die due to the pressure?'

If that is the case, there should have been no one who could resist Minato and Tobirama. Even Hashirama and Madara wouldn't survive that. Perhaps only Obito and Kaguya could due to them having access to their own dimensions. However, they couldn't do that. So, what is that I am missing?'

Fujin thought for a long time and thought of several possible answers, but he couldn't be sure of any of them. He decided, 'I'll need to experiment. This is too big of a danger to ignore. Unfortunately, my clones can't help me. I'll need to take a risk to find out the truth! I need to wait until my chakra recovers.'

Fujin had become impatient. He wanted to uncover the truth as soon as he could. He grabbed a small bottle and consumed a pill from it. Sitting with his back against the pillar, Fujin closed his eyes and began meditating.

A couple of hours later, Fujin's chakra had completely recovered. He opened his eyes and thought, 'This might be the most risky act I have done in this world. Probably even more risky than when Roshi fired that Tailed Beast Bomb at me. I hope everything goes well.'

Fujin focused on one of the Flying Thunder God marks in the basement. A moment later, his body disappeared and entered into the Void Dimension. An immense pressure was applied on him and he instinctively used his chakra to defend himself. He muttered, "Here goes nothing."

Suddenly, Fujin stopped using his chakra to defend against the pressure. His chakra reserves were still quite full. His mind was at the highest alert. He was prepared to use the chakra to defend himself once again if his body couldn't bear the pressure.

To Fujin's surprise, as soon as he stopped resisting, his body was expelled out of the Void Dimension and he appeared at the same spot in his basement.

A wry smile appeared on Fujin's face as he thought, 'No wonder they didn't say anything. We just get pushed out if we run out of chakra to resist the pressure. That's quite convenient. Now I see why this method can't be used to kill other nin...'

Suddenly, Fujin had another idea. He analyzed, 'Wait, even if I can't send other ninjas to this dimension to kill them, can't I send them here just to exhaust their chakra? After all, any rank S ninja will instinctively resist the pressure. And, in a dimension where they can't see, smell, hear, feel or sense anything, they'll exert themselves to the fullest just to survive.'

Fujin thought for a bit before concluding, 'Yes, this seems practical. The only issue is that this method was never used before either and isn't mentioned in the scroll. Neither Tobirama nor Minato should be stupid enough to overlook such a simple thing. I guess I'll need to find a test subject to experiment on...'

Naruto: The Wind Calamity

Chapter 476: Twisted Personality

Fujin's first thought was to use his summons to experiment. However, he quickly shook his head and decided, 'No, I'm still new at using this jutsu. Even though it is unlikely, if an accident happens and one of them dies, then that will be a great loss. I'll leave the village once again and find some rogue ninjas to experiment on.'

That said, I need to practice this jutsu a bit before going out to experiment. I'm also very close to completing that seal. I'll go out once I'm done with that task. I also need to meet up with Shigeki and actually start working on the organization. Sigh, it's been a long time since I met Shigeki...'

Thinking of Shigeki, a weird expression appeared on Fujin's face. Kasai Shigeki was the Jounin from Tanigakure whom Fujin had rescued while he was returning from the Land of Wind after completing his Anbu Promotion mission. Fujin made Shigeki the first member of his non-existent organization after making some promises and lying about the organization. However, it had been a long time since he had met him.

Fujin wondered, 'Would he still be even there? It's been over two and a half years, I won't be surprised if he left by now. Even though I promised to help him take the revenge, it won't be a surprise if he lost his patience after such a long time and left to get it himself.'

Fujin let out a sigh and thought, 'Oh well, nothing I can do. It was too early to start an organization in any case. If he has left, I will just have to start over. Besides, I didn't make much effort to recruit Shigeki or spend any resources or time. So I won't be losing anything.'

There was nothing Fujin could do about it. The situation just didn't allow him to do much about it. Even though he could have met Shigeki after he left the Anbu, there wasn't anything for Fujin to say to him.

Fujin stopped thinking about him and continued his training. The soldier pill he consumed would stay active for 5 days. And Fujin would require another couple of days of rest after that. Fujin decided that he would completely master the Flying Thunder God jutsu for low range within these 5 days.

Fujin made rapid improvements. His clones had already practiced the jutsu for sufficient time in order to ensure that he wouldn't face any danger. As a result, his main body was getting used to it rapidly as well. Every day, he became more accustomed to teleporting using the Void Dimension as a medium.

Three days later, Fujin's bell rang, marking the first time he was disturbed in recent days. Fujin was planning to ignore it and focus on his training, however, the bell kept ringing continuously.

An annoyed expression appeared on Fujin's face. He cursed, "Which bastard is it?"

He activated his chakra field and sighed while muttering, "I should have known."

A Shadow Clone popped next to him and left the basement. He opened the door and saw an over-enthusiastic blonde boy. Naruto excitedly said, "Fujin, I managed to stick the leaf to my forehead for 2 hours straight!"

Naruto was extremely excited. Though Fujin taught him a few Wind jutsus which he had to work hard to learn, it was this exercise that was the most difficult for him to complete.

Fujin's clone thought, 'He finally managed to do it. His speed fell considerably in this exercise. I expected him to reach this stage a month and a half ago. By comparison, he has progressed rapidly in Wind jutsus. I suppose he just got bored and lost his drive. Well, not surprising considering how boring it is.'

Naruto said, "You promised me that you'll teach me something cool after I manage to do it."

Fujin's clone nodded and said, "Sure, but show it to me first."

Naruto's expression became awkward. He asked, "Can't we directly begin learning it?"

Fujin's clone shook his head and said, "It is important to have your basics right. Otherwise, major issues can happen when you try to learn what I am about to teach you. In the worst-case scenario, you will be injured and might not be able to leave the hospital for weeks."

Fujin's clone's expression was extremely strict and serious. It was so serious that Naruto gulped in nervousness. He said, "Alright, I'll do it."

The clone thought, 'Who told you to keep ringing the bell and disturb me? Now sit in one place for another couple of hours.'

What the clone said was obviously bullshit. Though Naruto could get injured due to falling, it wouldn't be serious enough to even visit the hospital, let alone be admitted for several weeks.

Naruto and Fujin's clone walked over to the training ground. Naruto grabbed a leaf and obediently sat down to meditate. He placed the leaf on his forehead and closed his eyes. Fujin's clone set a timer on a stopwatch and sat in front of him.

1 hour and 53 minutes later, Naruto couldn't maintain control anymore. Naruto opened his eyes and looked at the stopwatch. His eyes widened as he realized that he was 7 minutes short! He looked at Fujin's clone, only to see Fujin looking back at him with a deadpan expression.

Naruto became nervous and said, "I really held it for 2 hours earlier. I don't know how I fell short right now."

Fujin's clone sighed and said, "It's fine. I guess it was a one-time thing. You'll still need some time to be able to do it every time."

Naruto became dejected on hearing that. He would still have to wait for some time. Fujin's clone watched the range of emotions and panic on Naruto's face until he was satisfied. With a smile, he said, "But, this is good enough. I'll train you now."

Immediately, Naruto became very happy and cheered loudly. The clone sighed internally and thought, 'Dealing with Hiruzen and Shikaku frequently has made me weird. Since when did I begin taking pleasure out of making others feel an emotional turmoil?'

Fujin did take pleasure in making experienced folks like Hiruzen and Shikaku feel such turmoil. But that was different. Both were extremely experienced and shrewd. Fujin initially enjoyed it because of the challenge of achieving that and due to how stuck up those two were. However, it was different with Naruto. Naruto was the complete opposite of those two. He was naive, inexperienced and listened to Fujin obediently. So Fujin didn't expect that he'd get the same pleasure from making him experience that.

Fujin's clone muttered to himself, 'Those two geezers twisted my personality. Either that or perhaps because I know that Naruto will become very strong in the future as well. Sigh, whatever.'

Naruto broke Fujin's train of thought by asking, "What will we be learning?"

Fujin's clone said, "I'll teach you how to climb trees."

Now, it was Naruto's turn to watch Fujin's clone with a deadpan expression. A smirk appeared on the clone's face. Naruto complained, "I already know how to do that, believe it! Teach me something cool!"

Fujin's clone chuckled and asked, "Are you sure you can do it?"

The clone got up and walked to a tree. To Naruto's shock, he began walking up the tree with just his feet while his hands were in his pockets. He soon stood upside down on a branch and asked, "Is this cool enough?"

Naruto immediately nodded repeatedly and said, "Super cool! How did you do it?"

Fujin's clone answered, "To do this, you have to release chakra from the bottom of your feet. Use that chakra to stick to the tree. Then you can climb on trees like I did. Try it."

Naruto immediately released chakra from his feet and tried climbing on the tree. Needless to say, his feet slipped and he fell to the ground.

Fujin's clone chuckled and said, "It's not that easy. The chakra you release from your feet has to be an exact amount. If it is too little, your feet will slip and you'll fall down. If it is too much, you'll damage the trunk and won't be able to continue walking up."

So, it requires very good chakra control. That is why I had to do the leaf concentration exercise until you could reach 2 hours."

Naruto nodded and said, "Alright, I'll try it."

Fujin's clone stopped sticking to the branch and dropped to the ground. He made a hand seal and slammed his hands to the ground. Immediately, some changes happened on the surface, but nothing much happened. Naruto looked at Fujin's clone with confusion.

Fujin's clone said, "I have softened the ground. So, even if you fall, you won't be hurt much. Keep training under this tree for the next half an hour. I'll teach you something else as well today."

Naruto immediately became excited and continued trying to climb up the tree.

Naruto: The Wind Calamity

Chapter 477: A New Path for Naruto

For the next half an hour, Naruto kept trying to climb the tree and consistently kept falling to the ground. Thanks to Fujin's clone, the ground was quite soft. So Naruto was barely hurt, if at all.

Fujin's clone looked at Naruto and thought, 'I had initially planned to teach Naruto the four basic Wind jutsus to get some inspiration from him for the Wind Domain. After all, he is very unconventional and usually comes up with crazy ideas.

That said, my Wind Domain is more or less ready now. Jounins won't have any chance of survival if they enter my Wind Domain. Elite Jounins will struggle as well and are very unlikely to survive. Only if they have excellent defense and are able to move instinctively, they will be able to survive. Only rank S ninjas are difficult to kill. But once I manage to integrate Vacuum Blade jutsu into my Wind Domain, they won't be able to rest easy either.

As such, there is no longer much need to push Naruto in this direction. That said, there is no harm in doing so either. Maybe he'll give me a surprise. Even if that isn't the case, it'll be interesting to see how Naruto does with this technique at his disposal.'

Fujin had been very careful while teaching Naruto. Unlike others, he knew how scary Naruto's potential was. If he trained Naruto seriously, the majority of the plot would have changed completely. However, within limits, Fujin was curious to see how Naruto would grow when he had a few more options.

After all, until Naruto met Jiraiya, his jutsu repertoire was extremely pathetic. He only knew the Transformation jutsu, Substitution jutsu and the Shadow Clone jutsu. The only thing he could do was leverage his vast chakra reserves, spam the Shadow Clone jutsu and use ordinary Taijutsu along with shurikens and kunai. Only after he learnt the summoning jutsu and the Rasengan, did he gain more variety. However, even that was extremely limited.

By comparison, Fujin knew close to a hundred jutsus. And, he was still far inferior in this aspect when compared to the likes of Orochimaru, Hiruzen or Kakashi. While knowing more jutsus didn't mean that they used all the jutsus or that all jutsus would be strong, it allowed them to choose the jutsus that suited them the most.

In addition, there could be circumstances where a particular jutsu or a particular element was extremely effective. In such instances, having a range of jutsus was extremely effective. Naruto, despite his insane chakra reserves, didn't have this advantage until the very end.

After Naruto fell for the umpteenth time, Fujin's clone said, "That's enough for today. You can keep practising this later on. Come here."

Naruto immediately got up and rushed towards Fujin's clone. While he was interested in climbing on the tree, he was more interested in knowing what new technique Fujin wanted to teach him again.

Fujin's clone said, "Naruto, display the four jutsus I taught you so far."

Naruto was confused, but he did so without any questions. He weaved a few hand signs and pushed his right palm forward. A gentle breeze was released from his palm.

He grabbed a few wooden shurikens and threw them into the air and quickly made a few hand seals. He was able to change their direction 40 degrees to the right and once again changed it 20 degrees to the left before the shurikens collided with a tree.

He then displayed Wind Levitation jutsu by making a few leaves and small stones levitate and then used Wind Retrieving jutsu to pull some leaves towards himself and catch a couple of them.

He looked at Fujin's clone with a proud expression and said, "I told you I'll master them, believe it!"

Fujin's clone nodded and said, "You did well. However, these are only the basics. You should continue practicing them, but practice them in these ways."

Naruto was confused. Fujin's clone instructed, "Place a few wooden shurikens around 5 meters away."

Naruto followed his instruction and returned to his side. Fujin's clone said, "Now use the Wind Levitation jutsu and make them float."

Naruto weaved hand signs and shouted, "Wind Levitation jutsu"

Immediately, the 6 wooden shurikens began levitating a couple of feet above the ground. Fujin's clone instructed, "Now use the Gale jutsu exactly on the shurikens. Force them to move forward like you have thrown them."

Naruto began weaving the hand signs for the Gale jutsu. However, by the time he had completed them, the shurikens dropped to the ground. Naruto complained, "That is very difficult. How can I keep them floating if I have to weave hand signs for Gale jutsu?"

Fujin's clone replied, "With the training of course. Watch."

For the sake of showing it to Naruto, Fujin's clone weaved hand signs while saying, "From here onwards, you should practice these jutsus until you can do this. First, use the Wind Levitation jutsu to make the shurikens float in the air."

The shurikens on the ground began levitating once again. Fujin's clone quickly used the Gale jutsu and blew the shurikens away and said, "Then use the Gale jutsu to make the shurikens fly away at a fast speed and control them with the Projectile Control jutsu."

He quickly changed the hand seals and then began using the Projectile Control jutsu to control the path of the wooden shurikens. Finally, he changed hand seals one last time and caused the wooden shurikens to fly back towards him. He grabbed the shurikens and added, "And lastly, use the Wind Retrieving jutsu to grab the shurikens."

Naruto watched with astonishment as Fujin flawlessly switched between the four jutsus. However, remembering what he had seen Fujin do with the wind previously, Naruto wasn't that surprised anymore. He still exclaimed, "That was so cool!"

Fujin's clone said, "From here onwards, you'll do three things. The first is to try and climb the tree without using your hands. That'll improve your chakra control and allow you to move more freely during a fight. As for the Wind jutsus I just showed you, you'll divide them into two parts.

The first part is using Wind Levitation and Gale jutsus one after another. And the second is using Projectile Control jutsu and Wind Retrieving jutsu one after another. Once you are able to do those jutsus in pairs, you can try doing all four together at the same time like I did. You can even change the order in which you use them if you feel that it would make the combination stronger."

Training just one thing would be boring and monotonous. Hence, Fujin's clone decided to give three training routines to Naruto. Naruto immediately nodded. He couldn't wait to try using all 4 jutsus at the same time! Fujin's clone added, "In order to progress faster, you have to follow another rule from now on. While pranking others, you are not allowed to use just one of these four jutsus. Instead, you have to use at least two of them one after the other."

Naruto nodded and said, "Alright. I'll prank everyone with two jutsus, believe it!"

Fujin's clone chuckled and said, "Go easy while pranking civilians. If you are pranking your teachers, then it's fine to go all out. If they aren't a challenge, you can even try using your pranks on Lord Hokage. If you can prank him successfully, then you would have made a huge progress towards your goal."

The clone had a gentle smile on his face. Naruto's eyes sparkled and said, "Alright, I'll do that!"

The clone laughed in his mind while thinking, 'I haven't messed with Hiruzen much in the last three months. I am not sure if I'll get many opportunities in the future. It's time I pass the baton to Naruto. Can't let the poor old man feel lonely.'

The clone added, "You can leave and train by yourself, Naruto. I'll be a bit busy and will be heading out of the village soon. Master walking up the tree by the time I return. I'll teach you another cool trick when I return."

Naruto was even more excited. He thanked Fujin and left. As Naruto left, the clone analyzed, 'Though these four basic jutsus won't increase his strength considerably, if he manages to use these four jutsus simultaneously at will, then his control over the Wind will go far beyond what a Genin, or perhaps even a Chunin can have. It forms the perfect base to learn the more complicated Wind jutsus easily in the future. It'll be interesting to see how h...'

The clone suddenly received a set of memories. A grin appeared on his face as he thought, 'It's about damn time!'

The clone disappeared in a cloud of smoke. Inside his basement, Fujin received the same memories as well. For the first time in 3 days, he stopped training the Flying Thunder God jutsu for a reason other than running out of chakra!

Naruto: The Wind Calamity

Chapter 478: Phantom Seal

Fujin stared at a seal in front of him. It was created by the Shadow Clone who dispelled himself and sent everyone the memories. A smile appeared on his face as he thought, 'The curse seal is finally complete!'

The curse seal was shaped like a windmill, with several symbols in it. Fujin thought, 'Though I hadn't seen either of the seals before, studying it wasn't difficult as they were made of familiar symbols. The difficult part was learning how Danzo could create an imprint to ensure that others couldn't remove his seals. Fortunately, I managed to get a hang of it a week ago. I guess that's another reason to be thankful to Danzo, hehe.'

Danzo's help allowed Fujin to raise his Wind Vacuum Technique to a whole new level. And now, he had also helped Fujin improve his Juinjutsu.

Fujin's smile faded as he thought, 'Unfortunately, while I can apply the curse seal at will, I can't apply my imprint at will. I can only do so if the one I'm planting the curse seal on doesn't resist. If there wasn't this flaw, then Juinjutsu Grandmasters would have been the strongest ninjas in the elemental nations. It'd be stronger than any Kekkei Genkai. In fact, I doubt even the Mangekyou would be comparable to this ability.

Fortunately, I don't need to inform the target about the abilities of this seal. As long as I have his or her consent and they don't resist, I can apply it to them. So it shouldn't be an issue for me to apply it to my subordinates. Not to mention, I can also add it to seals I place in any bases I create in the future. It'll increase their defenses considerably.

Anyway, coming back to the seal, it has all the functions of Danzo's two seals in addition to a few more functions that I added. I also changed the structure and used a different method to construct them so that no one would be able to connect those two seals to each other. Of course, without anyone constraining me, my seal is far more powerful than what Danzo uses on the Root ninjas!

Unlike Danzo, Fujin didn't intend to use two different seals. Instead, he had merged the two seals into one, but the seal was still made of two different parts.

The first part was similar to the Cursed Tongue Eradication Seal. It would detect whether the ninja had any thoughts of divulging secrets of the organization. If the ninja ever tried to put those thoughts into action, the seal would activate and paralyze him.

The only difference was that, unlike Danzo, it would alert Fujin that the seal was activated. In addition, it would also allow him to locate the position where the seal was. Of course, it wasn't a godly ability and was instead an application of the Flying Thunder God mark. As such, Fujin could only locate the position if it was within the range Fujin could detect it.

During the 3 months of training, Fujin's range of detection had increased from 15 kilometers to 80 kilometers. His Space-Time Sensing Technique's range had also increased from 4.5 kilometers to 12 kilometers. As such, it was far superior to Fujin's chakra field. Regardless, for the time being, Fujin wouldn't be able to detect the location of the seal if it went off in the Land of Rivers while he was in Konoha.

Once the seal was activated, the paralyzed person would stay paralyzed until Fujin decided to stop it or if another Grandmaster or someone who knew how to stop it helped him out. Of course, even if the Grandmaster helped him, the seal would reform, not allowing any information to be leaked.

The second part was even more strengthened. Unlike Danzo's seal, which was activated only when it detected foreign Yin chakra, Fujin added another feature. Not only would it activate when a foreign Yin Chakra tries to infiltrate the brain, but it would also activate if a Grandmaster tried to remove the first part of the seal.

While the seal couldn't be removed thanks to Fujin's imprint, Fujin had left a small portion of the seal unprotected by his imprint. It was still extremely complicated, implying that only a Fuinjutsu Grandmaster could successfully remove it. As soon as that portion of the seal was destroyed, the second part of the seal would attack the Grandmaster in a similar way Fujin was attacked when he tried reading the memories of the Root ninja he killed. In addition, it would also transfer a Flying Thunder God mark onto that person, allowing me to hunt down that person later on.

On the other hand, if someone tried reading his memories, the effect would be very similar. The enemy will be attacked while the seal will destroy the brain of the one who bears this seal, killing him or her in the process.

However, there were two big differences. The first one was that the second seal also contained Fujin's Flying Thunder God mark! As such, he would be able to teleport to every ninja who had this seal once his range increased.

And secondly, enemy Yin chakra wasn't the only condition to activate the seal, killing the ninja in the process. Fujin could activate the seal at will! The life of every person in his organization would be in Fujin's hands!

If Danzo could have his way, he would have added this ability to the seals as well. Unfortunately for him, even though he had full control over the Root, he still had to adhere to certain limits. Hiruzen watched over his actions. Creating such a seal was something Hiruzen would never allow. Even if Hiruzen allowed it, as long as others learnt of it, every clan in Konoha would have been in an open rebellion. Either the two of them would have been overthrown or the village would have collapsed.

Luckily for Fujin, he didn't have any such constraints. Unless one of his subordinates became a Grandmaster in Fuinjutsu, they wouldn't even be aware of the fact that Fujin could kill them with a thought.

Of course, Fujin had no intention of being a tyrant like Danzo or Orochimaru. He had only added that ability to take out any spies or traitors. He didn't intend to force the members to do something that went completely against their will.

There was another major difference between Fujin's and Danzo's seals. Danzo's Cursed Tongue Eradication Seal was visible on the tongues of Root ninjas while his other seal was hidden. In the case of Fujin's seal, both parts of his seal were hidden.

As such, an enemy was extremely unlikely to discover the seal before the first part was activated. The second part was even more difficult to detect as it was further hidden by the first part of the seal. Unless someone managed to remove a part of the seal, it wasn't possible to understand what was hidden.

However, if someone managed to do so, they would activate the second part of the seal, making it impossible to study it. Not to mention, the seal had Fujin's imprint. So only the part of the seal that Fujin had purposefully not protected by the imprint could be removed and it wouldn't be sufficient for anyone to study the second part of the seal.

In all, it was quite an effective and disgusting seal. It was an extremely effective seal for ensuring discipline and maintaining control in an organization. And, it was disgusting for anyone trying to undo the seal. It was filled with several traps. Once Fujin's Flying Thunder God's range improved, he could directly send Shadow Clones who had prepared rank S jutsus to the location of the seal and destroy anyone who had captured his subordinates and was trying to undo the seal.

Fujin was extremely pleased with the seal. He had worked quite hard to cover all aspects he wanted to. He spent a couple of hours making an imprint of the new seal. He looked at his left palm where the new seal imprint was created and thought, 'This seal... I'll call it the Phantom Seal. It will be the sign of every member of my organization. It will also go well with the name I have thought of.'

Fujin smiled and muttered, "The name of my alliance will be..."

Naruto: The Wind Calamity

Chapter 479: Phantom Haven Society

Fujin smiled and muttered, "The name of my alliance will be Phantom Haven Society."

During the last three months, whenever Fujin wasn't training, he had spent a lot of time thinking about what to do with the organization. His reasons for creating the organization were extremely selfish.

Fujin desperately needed a better way of getting information. Konoha was obviously very good at it, however, Fujin had no control over it. Jiraiya's information network was the most famous, but all his findings would only be reported to Hiruzen. Hiruzen would only share the information with Fujin if saw any need to. Otherwise, Fujin wouldn't be able to access any information at all.

Danzo had his spy network as well, but he didn't even share his findings with Hiruzen unless he had something to gain from it. Fujin had no chance of getting access to it.

The only information network Fujin had access to was Anbu's information network. Even though he wasn't a part of the Anbu anymore, Fujin could still access it and did so every once in a while. However, once again, the information was filtered by the Anbu Commander. Information could still be hidden from Fujin.

Not to mention, there were limitations. If Fujin discovered some important information and decided to do something about it, it would be child's play for Hiruzen to link the related events to Fujin. If Fujin did something that harmed Konoha's interests, it would strain his relationship with Hiruzen and Hiruzen could restrict his access to intelligence.

As a result, having his own organization that gathered information would be very helpful to Fujin.

Another aspect was gaining some capable subordinates. While Fujin wasn't very interested in this aspect initially as he preferred to rely on his own strength, he realized the importance of having capable subordinates when he was trying to study Zankoku's dead body. If he had a subordinate like Kabuto, he could leave the task to him.

Even without someone as capable as Kabuto, having a few ninjas who specialized in Medical Ninjutsu could have helped Fujin a lot. As a result, if Fujin could raise some capable subordinates in each field through such an organization, it could make his life quite easier.

Though it was unlikely that Fujin could raise rank S ninjas before the start of the Fourth Great War, especially considering the fact that Fujin would be spending most of his time in Konoha, the organization had the potential to flourish once a power vacuum was created after Akatsuki's destruction and death of the majority of the ninjas in the next Great Ninja War.

Though Fujin hadn't completely planned out what he would do after the war, having this option would give him a lot of options and flexibility.

Unfortunately, all these reasons were extremely selfish. Who would like to be a part of an organization if these reasons were listed? So, Fujin needed a noble purpose and a dream. A purpose that people would be passionate to follow. A dream that people would be willing to give their lives up to achieve.

Thankfully, in the current world, it wasn't difficult to come up with a good reason. After all, the world was a complete mess. Only the major and the minor villages enjoyed long periods of peace in between wars. The people who didn't live there had an extremely difficult life. It would only take one unfortunate event for them to die or lose their family members and fall into misery.

In addition, Fujin knew the reason behind Akatsuki's formation. He knew what Orochimaru did. He knew how Konoha depended on the Will of Fire to rile everyone. He knew how Danzo trained the Root ninjas. So, he wasn't lacking in knowledge. The only question was whether Fujin could utilize the knowledge properly and implement the right plans.

Fujin muttered, "I finalized almost every detail I could think of. I hope I didn't forget anything and what I thought of is sufficient to start it."

Though Fujin planned a lot, he was still not sure about whether he would succeed. After all, he had never tried anything like that. He decided to stop being worried about it and focused on his training once again. Four days later, Fujin accepted a bunch of elimination missions and began heading towards the Land of Grass.

Unlike the last time, Fujin didn't intend to use the bandits as test subjects for practicing memory reading. As a result, he moved very quickly while eliminating every bandit camp in his path. He continued the slaughter until he ran into a trio of rogue ninjas who were on his hit list as well.

In the middle of the forest, three middle-aged rogue ninjas were facing Fujin. All three looked quite similar to each other in terms of facial features. Their headbands showed that they were formerly from the Land of Rain.

One of them said, "Big brother. It looks like Konoha is now sending kids against us."

Another added, "Konoha has been trying to hunt us for 3 years. It's about time that we make them regret, hahaha!"

Fujin looked at the three of them like they were retards and thought, 'They are from Hidden Rain... I wonder whether Nagato has already killed Hanzo. Oh well, time to see how it goes.'

The three grabbed their kunais. The oldest one among them walked forward towards Fujin and asked, "Are you scared br..."

Before he could complete his question, Fujin disappeared in front of his eyes. At the same time, the rogue ninja's arms also disappeared! It happened so quickly that he didn't even feel pain and just saw a red line. When he looked at his arms, he was horrified to see both of them sliced clean.

A horrifying scream escaped his throat! It scared away some of the animals and birds around that place. The remaining two rogue ninjas were just as shocked. Before they could react, both were in the same state. In fact, Fujin went a step further and cut off their legs as well to prevent them from trying to run away. They began screaming in horror as well.

Neither of them expected such a result. They looked up to see Fujin standing next to the first guy he attacked. This time, Fujin no longer seemed like a youngster in their eyes. Instead, he seemed like a terrifying and bloodthirsty demon! Their screams began desperate as they apologized and begged for mercy.

However, Fujin ignored them. He had already sensed the area and there was no ninja in the vicinity. He didn't care how loudly they shouted. Fujin thought, 'It's not bad to be ignorant, but people should at least stay aware of the reality. Don't go around threatening someone if you don't know who that person is. Though they would have still died, perhaps it would have been a little less dreadful.'

The first rogue ninja looked at Fujin and asked in terror, "Who are you? What do you want?"

Fujin didn't say anything and instead placed his palm on his chest. In an instant, the rogue ninja disappeared from the Land of Fire and appeared in the Void Dimension! However, a moment later, he was ejected and appeared in front of Fujin once again.

A frown formed on Fujin's face as he analyzed, 'His chakra didn't decrease at all. On second thought, he barely stayed in that dimension for even a moment. I didn't seal his chakra because I wanted to experiment with this idea.

But why did nothing happen? Though he is barely at the Chunin level, his chakra is still higher than some of my Shadow Clones when they tried entering the Void Dimension. So, it shouldn't be a matter of strength. Is he so terrified that he can't resist, or is he incapable of resisting for some reason?'

Fujin couldn't be sure. He sent the rogue ninja into the Void Dimension several times, but the result was still the same. Finally, he applied the Self-Cursing Seal on the rogue ninja and began reading his memories.

He realized, 'I see. It's not that he didn't try to resist. Rather, he did it and was still expelled from that Dimension. Even with his chakra, he couldn't resist the pressure at all. That said, it isn't the issue with the amount of chakra. I guess only the ones who have some level of mastery of the Space-Time technique can resist the pressure. I guess using this to drain chakra of enemies isn't possible either. A shame.'

Fujin read his remaining memories before knocking him out. He tried sending the second rogue ninja to the Void Dimension as well, but the result was the same. He knocked him out as well after reading his memories. The third one was ejected as well. However, Fujin wanted to do one more experiment.

Fujin held the ninja and entered the Void Dimension along with him. Once again, he felt the pressure. He used his chakra to resist it. At the same time, he also used his chakra to help the rogue ninja resist it. The rogue ninja was finally able to stay in the Void Dimension. He was confused as he couldn't sense anything at all for a second. It was as if all his senses had been shut down.

After verifying, Fujin stopped resisting and immediately returned back to the Land of Fire. He didn't want to exhaust a major chunk of his chakra for no reason. He analyzed, 'The scroll was right. I need to help whoever I bring into the Void Dimension resist the pressure there.

Of course, once my speed of teleporting increases, I won't need to resist pressure as I can complete the process in an instant. That said, bringing others with me will increase chakra consumption. The additional chakra I'll need will depend on the number of people I'm teleporting, their chakra levels and whether they are resisting or not. Teleporting a Tailed Beast that doesn't want to be teleported will likely be impossible for the time being. Sigh, how much chakra did Minato have to teleport a complete Kurama?'

Fujin stopped thinking about it. There was no point in comparing himself with Minato. After all, Minato was already dead while he was still alive and kicking. He looked at the three rogue ninjas in front of him. Though he was done experimenting with the Flying Thunder God jutsu, there was still another experiment he wanted to carry out.

Fujin applied the Phantom Seal on the three of them and tested it out to confirm that there was no issue with the seal. After some time, Fujin thought, 'Alright, it looks like there are no issues with the seal. Now, time to test the kill switch.'

Fujin made the confrontation hand seal and activated the three seals. In an instant, the brains of the three rogue ninjas were destroyed! Fujin nodded in satisfaction and followed up with his usual ritual of destroying and cremating the dead bodies and burying the ashes deep in the ground so that even Edo Tensei wouldn't be able to revive them.

He continued the journey. He completed the missions he had accepted within a couple of days while also testing out the Phantom Seal on the rogue ninjas he was supposed to eliminate. Needless to say, he had also left hundreds of Flying Thunder God marks between Konoha and the Land of Grass. Instead of returning to the village, he moved south and headed past the border between the Land of Fire and the Land of Rain to move towards the Land of Rivers.

En route, Fujin changed his appearance to that of Shiden, the identity that he had used when he met Shigeki. He thought, 'I overlooked one aspect earlier. I was initially planning on using this Shiden identity to fight under disguise. However, Shiden will be the leader of the Phantom Haven Society.'

If my targets link Shiden to the Phantom Haven Society, then it will be destroyed in no time wasting all the time and effort I'd be spending on it. It means that I can't use this identity for those purposes. I'll need a third identity as well. That identity will mostly fight with the Lightning element. In that case, what should I use to fight while I'm Shiden?'

Fujin fell into deep thought. While he had learnt a range of jutsus, there was only so much he could hide while still maintaining his strength.

Fujin thought for a while before sighing and deciding, 'There are very few options. I can't use my Vacuum jutsu. That is a dead giveaway. Even with Lightning, I'll have to avoid overlaps and I can't use the same fighting style. It means that I can't use my strongest jutsus and my most effective tricks.

Flying Thunder God is also out of the question. Hiruzen will link it to me. Even if he dies, I'm not sure if he told anyone about giving me this jutsu. If Shikaku knows, he can link it as well. However, once my range increases, I can pretend to be using Reverse Summoning to get away and I can do so with all 3 identities.

Without Wind and Lightning release, my swords won't be very effective either. However, using chakra flow should be fine. That said, I'll need new swords for Shiden and the third identity, especially for the third identity.

I wonder if that Noble in the Land of Frost still has that chakra metal sword. His family's book on the incomplete research about merging Wind and Water to create Ice Kekkei Genkai has been useless to me so far. Oh well, guess I'll steal it later. If he doesn't have it, then I'll have to pay a visit to the Land of Iron, either to make new swords or steal old ones.

If I had created a Kekkei Genkai, then I could have given it to this identity. After all, it is unlikely that an Elemental Kekkei Genkai will add much to my strength. If I had the Swift or Scorch Kekkei Genkai, then I could have used them to enhance Shigen's power. Unfortunately, I don't have either of them.

Anyway, without all these options, I guess the only thing that is left is Fuinjutsu. After all, my Fire and Earth elements kinda suck. Though I am known to be a Grandmaster in Fuinjutsu, not many know what my skills are.

As long as I don't use the Explosion Seals I used against Juzo and Kakuzu, it'll be hard to link it to me. I can use the Self-Cursing Seal and the Chakra Suppression Seal liberally in my fight to restrict my opponents. Those will be the main skills of Shiden.

Of course, that will be backed by my speed and strength. I'll use the Body Flicker jutsu for movement. For defense, I'll use barriers along with Iron Skin jutsu and Earth Wall jutsu. I'll use the Samurai Saber Techniques with my swords once I get new ones. Perhaps I should add a Fire jutsu for an AoE attack. I suppose Searing Migraine jutsu should be sufficient. Using some Genjutsu is fine as long as I avoid the Bringer of Darkness and Wind Style Genjutsu.

This should allow me to deal with Elite Jounins with some ease. As for stronger rank S ninjas, I can only hope to fend them off with Fuinjutsu and make the fight a stalemate. Without Assassin's Rush jutsu, I won't be able to get an advantage in speed. However, unless I'm facing the Raikage, I doubt anyone could use speed to defeat me either.

That said, with so many restrictions, it's best if I don't fight with Shiden identity. Especially against the ones I have already or will fight in the future. I'll only fight if the base is at risk. Even then, I'll hide behind a large number of seals and use them in the fight.

The only reason for me to display my strength should be if an unruly rank S was raised through the Phantom Haven Society. Though I can use the Phantom Seal to suppress such a person, I don't want to follow the Hyuga model. Though effective in maintaining control, it is terrible in terms of morale and mentality. No matter how loyal, no one would want to place their lives in the hands of others.'

Fujin understood clearly that the real effects of the Phantom Seal should never be exposed to anyone. As for suppressing a rank S that might arise in the future, Fujin wasn't concerned. After all, he was still growing as well. The Phantom Haven Society wouldn't be able to raise a rank S ninja out of thin air. By the time such a ninja appeared, Fujin believed that his own strength would be at an entirely different level.

Engrossed in his thoughts, Fujin, using Shiden's disguise, entered the Land of Rivers and moved towards the cave where he had left Shigeki. He couldn't help but wonder if Shigeki was still waiting or had already left.
