

Chapter 1561-It was then a thought occurred to Waverly as she darkly turned to look at Charmine's villa.

Was it Charmine's doing? Was it that b*tch? She was the only one who knew she was here.

Did Charmine decide to get petty just because she triggered her?

Waverly was furious as she clenched her fists tightly, her nails digging deep into her flesh.

That Charmine Jordan would not walk out unscathed!

Just as she was overtaken by fury, Waverly spotted Anthony walking toward her from across the street.

She instantly masked her anger and put on an innocently wronged look. She picked up her bag from the ground and went toward Anthony." Anthony, I was bullied! Charmine is jealous of you buying such an expensive ring for me, and she had people rob me! They even slapped me!"

Waverly made out to be a sympathetic sight as she caressed her throbbing cheeks, looking at Anthony meekly.

Anthony, however, sneered. "Good for you!" i Waverly was caught off-guard.

What... What did he say?

Good for her?

Anthony glared at her. "Remember: Even though Charmine and I are no longer together, she's not someone you can mess with. If this happens again, you'll suffer a worse fate."

With that said, Anthony ignored her and walked past her coldly, leaving Waverly rooted on the spot.

She looked at his back incredulously.

What did he mean, suffer a fate worse than this?

Was he...the one who ordered those men to rob her? Was it not Charmine after all?

Argh! How could he be so cruel?!

He hurt her just because she hurt Charmine?

Waverly's eyes were filled with hatred.

She had to take revenge. She had to make Charmine pay a thousand-fold. 3 She had to make sure Charmine not only disappeared from Anthony's world, but from this world entirely! i Charmine returned to the filming set and had the scene where she taught the mean woman a lesson. Her acting was impeccable, earning praises from the people around her.

She, however, seemed numb about these praises and admiration. She did not feel anything and contemptuously went back to her seat.

She was going through her script when her phone rang.

Charmine took her phone and unlocked it to see a notification from Tweeter that read, [SN Diamond Mine discovered a pair of 18th century' Blue Charm' diamonds. An uproar ensued.] Charmine frowned. A Blue Charm?

This pair of 29-carat blue diamonds was very popular in the 18th century.

Legend had it that a prince was in love with a woman but was forced to marry another princess. The princess who was betrothed to him, too, had a lover.

Despite having no romance between them, these two were forced into a marriage.

The king fooled the lovers of both the princess and the prince to find the Blue Charm diamonds, lying to them that if they could bring them to him, he would cancel the pre-arranged marriage.

Alas, when the two of them returned with the diamonds, the king murdered them in cold blood...all while both the prince and princess knew nothing about it.

The king gifted the Blue Charm diamonds to the prince and princess, blessing them with this pair of diamonds to stay happy together for the rest of their lives.

However, this diamond was cursed by the two who were brutally murdered. It was imbued with negative power.

Although the prince and princess lived a peaceful life, they were tied up in this love-less marriage and hated the sight of one another.

After their death, these Blue Charm diamonds were passed on.

Although everyone was intimidated by its curse, it did not diminish everyone's curiosity over these unique and beautiful diamonds.

Those who possessed it ended up in loveless marriages.

Even though they were in love before marriages, after marriages, they either treated one another like strangers or hated the sight of one another.

Charmine stared at the notification on her screen.

Did Waverly not want a unique ring? This suited her.

Warning: My Mommy Is A Savage By Seeking A Peaceful Chapter 1562-Charmine wanted both Anthony and Waverly to hate each other's guts once they got married. She wanted them miserable.

Charmine excused herself from the filming set and phoned the SN Diamond Mine, which just so happened to be one of Charmine's diamond mines.

When the staff answered the phone, he explained, "Boss Jordan, we haven't extracted it yet. We have a few problems with mining them. It's hollow below the diamond, which will likely result in a landslide, so we can't take any chances for the time being."

Charmine frowned. She had to go over in person to find out what the situation was.

She had to walk a few kilometers of rugged mountain road to get to the site.

Bringing her tools with her and ignoring everyone who stopped her from entering, Charmine walked into the mountain alone.

Since she had agreed to hand a diamond ring to Anthony in a week, she had to get it done! i Furthermore, the Blue Charm began trending online, and many would come over to see it. She had to be quick.

Little did Charmine know...

When she arrived at the foot of the mountain, she heard a loud explosion as if something was falling.

The entire mountain started shaking.

Swiftly after, stones after stones rained from above, hurtling down at her!

Charmine quickly moved away and frowned.

There was a landslide even before she started mining?

More rocks might come her way and end up killing her if she was to drop her guard for a second.

Charmine could only hide below a large boulder, scanning her surroundings before deducing there was nowhere else she could go to.

It was then she spotted a figure rushing toward her from not too far away.

Maurice?

Charmine thought she was hallucinating when she saw him.

Why would Maurice be here at this time?

Just as she grew dubious, a gentle but anxious sounding voice was heard, “

Gem, watch out!”

With that said, a large stone came falling from above and nearly crushed Charmine’s head had she not nimbly moved away.

Countless stones started falling at the spot she was at.

The experience shook Charmine as she then turned to look at Maurice, who struggled to rush to her side.

“Why on earth are you here, Mo?!” Charmine looked at him in shock.

Maurice looked at her helplessly, his tone caring, “I went back to the set and heard from Sofia that you came here mining. I was worried about your safety, so I came over to check up on you...!” “But now we’re both in danger! You shouldn’t have come!” fretted Charmine.

Maurice gazed at her gently before he shifted his gaze toward the incoming rocks above them. “Gem, you can’t stay here,” he warned, alarmed. “More stones might fall anytime!”

Before Charmine could say a word, Maurice had pulled at her hand to move out.

Just as they did, however, another gigantic stone fell from above.

Maurice looked at the rugged road in front with occasional falling stones and hugged Charmine.

His large figure seemingly shielded Charmine's front as he said, "Keep walking, Gem. Don't worry about me."

Charmine saw what he was doing and knew.

He was shielding her.

Charmine pursed her lips and hesitated.

She owed him too much, and if anything happened to him because of her, she would not be able to repay him!

However, Maurice did not give her a chance to hesitate. He put her in his arms and walked ahead.

Stones were falling and landed on his broad shoulder, but Maurice made not a sound as he escorted her out, through grimacing as he did.

Suddenly...

After a few steps, the mountain road started to slide, catching both Maurice and Charmine by complete surprise as they, losing their balance, fell down.

Warning: My Mommy Is A Savage By Seeking A Peaceful Chapter 1563-Thomp! Thomp!

Both Charmine and Maurice fell into a collapsed yet huge cave.

Maurice had instinctively held Charmine tighter to him, and when they fell, his entire being ached.

Even with that, he shook it all off, not bothering to inspect himself as he made his way toward Charmine, checking up on her. "Gem, are you hurt?" he asked, sounding concerned.

"No."

Charmine looked at him worriedly. After making sure that he was not hurt, she looked around her surroundings.

Maurice straightened up, wanting to get back to the surface.

However, the mud was too soft; it would not withstand the weight of a person. A person would sink with just a leg in.

Maurice took a few steps back to find his balance.

Charmine attempted to stand up but ended up in the same state. The mud was too soft—it kept sinking.

She grew helpless.

The tall mountain not far away from them might collapse anytime and bury both of them in.

She did not want to get Maurice in danger because of her.

Charmine bit her lip and looked around to find a way out before a few shadows emerged above the cave's opening.

The shadowy figures had shovels in their hands. They made not a sound as they started filling up the hole with more mud! 1 Realizing something, Maurice pulled Charmine over to hide by the corner.

Charmine instantly looked up at the people above them.

Were they attempting to bury both of them in?

Who wanted to kill her?

She narrowed her eyes and had a deadly look in her eyes.

She swung her skinny arms upward. A needle flew up as if possessed and stabbed right into the vein of one of them!

The figure moaned before they fell into the opening and down to the ground, all while the remaining two figures exchanged glances, not knowing what happened.

Charmine quickly threw up two more needles that stabbed right into their veins.

The two figures jolted and exchanged looks before falling on the ground.

Waverly was inside a car not far away, anticipating the news that Charmine was buried alive.

She had to see Charmine dead with her own eyes!

However, within a few minutes, she saw a few men plummeting into the opening.

Her expression faltered. She suddenly recalled that Charmine had needles with her wherever she went.

"Trash!"

She growled angrily and pursed her red lips. This was such a good opportunity, and she must not let this go to waste!

She looked at her assistant darkly by her side. "Go, bring the rosemary balm and induce them in the cave. Increase the dosage! I want a video of her with Maurice!"

This way, Charmine would be downright humiliated even if she survived in that cave, and Anthony would not miss her at all!

"Yes, Madam."

The assistant nodded politely and brought what was tasked of her to the side of the cave, silently setting the balm.

Charmine and Maurice were completely unaware of these as they staked out in case of another attack.

However, a moment later...

The two of them felt uneasy and restless.

Maurice even started to feel dizzy. As though realizing something, he backed away from Charmine.

“Gem, knock me out if I do anything to you. Don’t hold back!”

Charmine was speechless.

It was then she, too, realized something was wrong, and that she might not have had the energy to knock him out...

She did not expect Waverly to be so evil.

Her head spun as she frantically tried to come up with something before spotting a few strings not far away from her.

Charmine’s eyes lit up.

Warning: My Mommy Is A Savage By Seeking A Peaceful Chapter 1564-Since she was still conscious, Charmine turned around to take one string for Maurice. “Mo, you tie up my hands, and I’ll tie up yours.”

This was the only way to prevent anything unsavory from happening.

“Okay.”

Maurice took the string from Charmine quickly, trying her wrists together, and Charmine did her best for Maurice, too.

Following that, the two of them sat at two ends of the cave. A short while later, their body temperature rose. Not wanting this to escalate, Charmine piped up, “Mo, why don’t we talk to distract ourselves.” “Okay.” Maurice’s voice was gentle as always. “What would you like to talk about? I’m listening.”

Charmine fell silent for a while before asking, “Mo, how did you suffer from anorexia?”

Maurice’s expression changed. He did not want to talk about this as this reminded him of his hurtful past.

However, this was not a bad time to talk about it.

He took a deep breath and cleared up his mind before saying, “Growing up as a child, my family was poor. My mother thought my father was useless, so she left us behind. Ever since then, my father became addicted to gambling, not caring about my livelihood. Since I was seven or eight, I’ve learned to take care of myself and did everything on my own. Nobody taught me how to cook, so the meals I cooked were terrible. Eventually, I stopped eating and hated eating. This turned into anorexia.” His body grew tense as he spoke, memories of his past haunting him again, could not help recalling his past.

About how his parents argued and fought.

None of them cared about him. They often locked him inside a dark room.

He spent his childhood with these traumatic events.

In the end, when Maurice’s mother left, even though he cried and begged her not to leave, she heartlessly pushed him away without even turning back...

These memories still made him tremble in fear even after all these years.

Charmine heard him and sympathized with him.

So this was how Maurice grew up...yet he still grew up to be a gentle man.

Despite being neglected at a young age, Maurice managed to move others with his gentleness.

Maurice always had a gentle look in his eyes, but his gaze darkened as he retold his story. "Looking at my parents' relationship that crumbled, I feared marriages and families. This is why I'd never get married in my life." i Listening to Maurice's story, Charmine sensed that she must have grazed an old wound of his sad past. She comforted him, "Don't be too sad, Mo. Many people still love you in this world. They're caring about you in places that you can't see.

You grew up in a broken place, but it made you who you are today." "Yeah,"

Maurice agreed, "I know."

Despite that, his eyes glinted with an unnoticeable thirst. Even though he felt hopeless, he still wished that one day, he could feel what it was like to have a family.

Charmine noticed the look in his eyes. She fell silent for a moment before saying, "Actually, I was framed by a douchebag and my sister a few years back.

My family sent me away to a foreign country all by myself. I had depression and tried to kill myself in many instances. When I finally picked myself up, I met Anthony. We fell in love, and we've been through a lot. Now Charmine had a mocking look in her eyes. "I spent so long trying to open myself up for love again, and I ended up getting hurt terribly. He's just like Julian:

someone who's after my assets and my looks. Nobody truly loves me for who I am, who loves my soul."

Maurice gazed at her sympathetically.

He had heard about her past but did not know how true it was. With her saying this herself, it was true after all.

He could not believe how these cruel things could happen to her and how she lived through them.

Warning: My Mommy Is A Savage By Seeking A Peaceful Chapter 1565-Charmine learned that her fiance was in cahoots with her sister in framing her.

When she was on the verge of breaking down, she met Anthony. He gave her reasons to live on. He treated her well, loved her, cared for her, and showed her that there was love in the world. When she was finally opening herself upto him and started believing in this man, he cheated on her.

Maurice thought of how strong she stood tall these days. He felt his heart shrinking.

How did she get weather through all that storm on her own?

Maurice gazed at Charmine with his clement eyes. He was worried about this young lady. His throat was burning, and his voice was hoarse as he spoke, "Gem, don't think too much. As you said, your environment made you who you are today. We don't need romantic love in this world: We've got friendship, family, and our career. You'll have a better future!" "Yeah." Charmine thought of the disgusting things Anthony did, and determination flashed across her eyes as she declared, "I only want to focus on my career for now." "Good." Maurice looked at her with a new sense of admiration.

"If there's anything in the future, Gem, you can speak to me about it. Don't hold it all to yourself."

Charmine nodded.

Both of them then chatted away to distract themselves.

That night.

Anthony drove home after he was done with work, but he somehow ended up driving in the other direction.

When he finally snapped out of his trance, the car had pulled over in front of Charmine's villa.

He looked up to see that both villas were dark.

Charmine and Maurice were not home yet?

Did they not finish filming early? Did they go on a date?

His thin lips curled into a mocking smile. He glared at the two villas next to one another.

They even bought houses together, and they were even going on dates?

The thought of Charmine spending time with Maurice made Anthony's heart sink.

Even though Anthony knew he should wish her the best and be happy that she had found a good man that even he trusted, seeing that they were so happy together still made his heart ache.

Although this was inevitable, could this not have happened slower, a little later?

Anthony rolled down his window, thoughts running rampant as he lit up his cigarette and narrowed his eyes at the two villas. He wanted to see how late they would come home.

He was worried about Charmine not being able to fall asleep again tonight...

Thus began Anthony's wait, and somehow, it was already three in the morning.

Both of them had yet to return, too.

Unless, Charmine and Maurice went to a hotel to...

Anthony could not help to overthink. Finally snapping, he phoned Luke and ordered, "Find out where Charmine is and tell me within three minutes." "Yes, Sir!" answered Luke.

Within three minutes, he called Anthony once more. "Boss, Mrs. Baileypardon.

Ms. Jordan is at the SN Diamond Mine, but..." "What?" Anthony barked.

"Speak!" "At about seven in the evening, there seemed to be a landslide-"

Beep.

Anthony hung before Luke even finished his report.

Anthony's heart sank, and he quickly drove toward SN after hanging up.

D*mn it! How could he be so stupid!

Why did he not realize earlier that Charmine was in trouble since she did not come home earlier!?

Please be safe, Charmine Jordan.

Otherwise, Anthony would never forgive himself for the rest of his life!

Warning: My Mommy Is A Savage By Seeking A Peaceful Chapter 1566-Anthony went crazy.

He stomped on the gas pedal, and the car zipped away so quickly that it almost vanished.

What was supposed to be a two-hour car journey finished in an hour!

Anthony arrived before the mine. It was pitch dark and hard to see inside.

Heart tightening, he used his phone to light up his way so he could walk forward.

Not long after, the sky slowly grew brighter, but he still had not made it to the top.

Anthony had not slept for a few days; he even drank bottles and bottles of alcohol. As he walked, his head suddenly buzzed.

It was followed by sharp pain, and it felt as if thousands of needles pricked at his nerves. It was so painful that it felt numbing...

His face was very pale. His entire body hurt so badly that he could not even continue his walk, only able to prop himself against a tree to massage his head.

1 Afraid of forgetting something, Anthony mustered whatever remaining strength he had to fish out his phone shakily, trying to jot it all down as a memo.

However, just as his phone lit up...heavy footsteps were heard coming from behind.

He turned back, only to be met by bright light that burned his eyes, and he went numb.

Anthony narrowed his eyes and squinted painfully. It was then he realized that the person approaching him was...

Guy Granger?

Guy had a torch at hand and was dressed in his green navy costume. His built body could be akin to a tree.

When he saw it was Anthony, Guy reacted in shock. "Mr. Bailey, why are you here?"

It was only after he blurted that did he realize that it was nonsense.

If even he found out that Charmine was stuck in the mine, why would Anthony, who cared about Charmine so dearly, not know?

Anthony looked at him and, deciding on something, said, "Go on and save Charmine. They're stuck at the neck of the mountain, ninety degrees!"

Guy heard how feeble Anthony sounded, and he then noticed how pale Anthony was and how weakly his body quivered.

He frowned. "Mr. Bailey, what's wrong? How are you feeling?" "Forget me, just go and save Charmine," insisted Anthony. "Also..."

He looked away and continued, albeit audibly pained, "Don't tell her that I came."

Guy pursed his lips. Just as he was about to say something, Anthony walked past him and made his way down, staggering.

Guy assumed he wanted to treat himself, and since he was in a hurry to save Charmine, Guy said nothing else as he picked up the pace.

Anthony withstood the torturous agony he was plagued with as he returned to his car.

Even though his head was hurting, he did not leave. He leaned on the seat tiredly, his eyes darkening as he glared at the mountain.

He could only be rest assured after seeing Charmine leave in one piece.

Without him realizing it, the sun had risen and brightened the sky entirely.

Anthony was still staring in that direction, waiting for Charmine to come down.

However, as he waited, the headache disappeared, and he looked around in confusion.

Why was he here? What was he doing here?

Anthony instinctively took out his phone, wanting to find out what he had forgotten.

However, when he pulled out his memo, he noted that it was empty and nothing was in it.

He frowned suspiciously.

He happened to be here at this time, so something must have happened. What was it?

Being clueless, a sports car drove toward him, and Waverly got down in her heels. She was dressed in her purple lace dress and wearing her sunglasses.

Her hair was let down as she walked toward his car. "Anthony, aren't we meeting at the wedding venue? Why are you here? Everyone's waiting for us.

Hurry!" 1 Anthony frowned and looked around. Not a single recollection occurred to him.

With that, he left with Waverly.

Inside the cave, Charmine and Maurice continued to talk to distract themselves.

As they chatted away, they lost track of time and where they were. Without them noticing it, the sky slowly brightened.

Warning: My Mommy Is A Savage By Seeking A Peaceful Chapter 1567-Looking at the brightening sky, Charmine reassured Maurice, "The sun's coming out, so let's just hold on a little longer. Someone will come for us!"

Maurice pursed his lips.

He knew for a fact that a landslide might happen anytime. Nobody would risk their lives coming up here.

However, he did not show his concern in front of Charmine, gently answering, "Good."

Just as Maurice was about to say something else, a worried yet familiar sound was heard from outside of the cave, "Ms. Jordan, are you here? Ms. Jordan?"

Charmine was shocked.

Was that...Guy? 1 "I'm here!" she instantly shouted back.

When Guy heard her response, he recalled the location Anthony had told him and rushed toward it. 1 When he got closer, he realized that this was a collapsed pit.

He called out to the inside, "Ms. Jordan, are you in there?" "Yes!" Charmine looked up at him and said in surprise, "Mr. Granger, how did you end up here?"

Guy sent in a ladder and, not wanting to upset her and tell her that Anthony had come, explained, "It was Ms. Eck...Yvonne saw the news on the Blue Charm.

She likes this diamond, too, so we've kept an eye on the SN Mine. We then found out about the landslide. They said you're at the top and I was worried about you, so I came."

Charmine nodded and watched as the ladder was sent in. Sighing in relief, she turned around to reassure Maurice, "Mo, we're saved!" She had been anxious the whole time, fearing he would be in danger because of her.

"Yeah." Maurice was very surprised.

He thought he would die here with Charmine.

Charmine efficiently untied the strings around her. She stood up and felt her hands and feet going numb.

She did not care about herself. She quickly walked to Maurice and helped unbound him.

The ladder reached the bottom. Charmine wanted Maurice to go first, but he stood behind her to support the ladder for her.

"You go first, Gem."

Charmine felt warmth spreading within her as she gazed at him. She did not insist and went up the ladder first.

After seeing her scaling the ladder, Maurice was relieved and followed behind her.

However, with the mud being soft, the spot where Maurice stood had a large dent on it, what with Maurice's heavy figure.

The entire ladder trembled.

Moreover, Maurice was mentally unsteady and physically feeble after inhaling too much of the rosemary scent. He lost his balance and fell back onto the mud.

"Argh!" he yelled in pain, face contorting into a grimace.

His back was hurt by a crushed stone, and it jolted him awake. 1 "Mo!"

Charmine heard his yelp and looked back, seeing Maurice falling down.

Frowning, she asked worriedly, "Are you hurt? Do you want me to come down for you?" "No, I'm fine..."

Maurice struggled to get back up. He shook his head, fought back the sharp pain, and held onto the ladder shakily before he finally climbed up the ladder, getting out.

His face was pale, and he could not even stand up straight.

Charmine looked at how hurt he was, and she then noticed the patch of blood on his back.

Her heart sank.

She remembered right then and there that when they slid down here yesterday, Maurice shielded her with his own body.

Warning: My Mommy Is A Savage By Seeking A Peaceful Chapter 1568-"Hurry!" Charmine supported Maurice and said to Guy, "Send him to the hospital." "Okay."

Guy helped Maurice get inside the car and drove quickly.

Within a few minutes, Maurice had fainted.

Charmine looked at Maurice's pale face and his bloody back. Growing frantic, she phoned William, asking him to be ready.

Before they even got to the hospital, William had prepared the gurney to wheel Maurice in. William waited at the entrance.

When he saw them coming, he quickly took Maurice in and wheeled him into the emergency room.

Only then did Charmine sigh in relief. Since she had sniffed the rosemary scent, she still felt restless even though she tried to restrain herself, thus she went ahead and got a reliever from a doctor.

Maurice was severely wounded; his back was full of bruises and wounds. It was a shocking sight.

Luckily, the wounds were only skin-deep, nowhere damaging his internal organs.

William cleaned his wounds quickly and wheeled him out of the room.

Charmine stood at Maurice's bedside as she studied him, how pale he was lying in bed, all pale. Her heart tightened, and there was noticeable worry in her eyes.

Maurice made no sound when he tried to help her get out of the mountain, and all that while, she thought he was fine. Looking at how bruised he was, however, Charmine realized just how severely hurt he was.

All that, and he made no sound. In the cave, he pretended as if nothing had happened just so she would not be worried. He even comforted her.

Charmine's feelings gnawed at her. A good man like Maurice should not have suffered like this, 1 William set him up with the intravenous machine and said, "Ms. Jordan, don't worry. It's nothing fatal."

How could she not worry? He was in this shape all because of her!

Charmine looked at the two of them and said, "It's fine for now. You all may leave us here."

Guy and William exchanged glances.

Both of them wanted to stay on to accompany her, but seeing the look on Charmine's face, the one that palpably seemed that she was serious, they did not argue and turned around to leave. 1 Charmine brought a stool to sit by the bed, and she continued to watch over Maurice with her clear eyes.

A thought occurred to her as she gazed at him. She called for the nurse and left the ward.

Maurice would be hungry should he wake up. She wanted to cook him something at home.

When she returned home, she took a shower and got changed before she made her way into her kitchen.

Charmine considered that since he was wounded, he had to have less salty food. She thus thought of searching online for suitable recipes.

However, when she turned on her phone, her feed was filled with news of Anthony and Waverly visiting their wedding venue.

Her hand stiffened as she stared at her phone screen.

She did not want to click on it. She did not want to know anything more about him.

However, her fingers betrayed her as they clicked on the news.

On her screen, Anthony seemed visibly gentle as he accompanied Waverly to visit their classy, extravagant venue.

Charmine's eyes went dull. She felt a chill coming from within her, and it spread throughout her body.

She was in danger and almost lost her life to the landslide while he...

He happily took his fiancée to visit their wedding venue!

Charmine's heart sank, and she began to struggle just breathing.

A moment later, she suddenly felt that Anthony's matters did not concern her.

He was cruelly cold-blooded. Was she not aware of this already?

What else was she expecting?

Ha!

Whatever. Anthony could do whatever he wanted. Whatever he chose to do had nothing to do with her.

Charmine put down her phone and began to cook. It took her the entire evening, and she returned to the hospital afterward.

Maurice woke up as she sat down.

Charmine put down the container at hand and looked at him. "Have you woken up? Are you hurt?" "No, don't worry." Maurice's voice was hoarse. He looked at her gently and guiltily muttered, "Gem, I'm sorry to have troubled you again."

Warning: My Mommy Is A Savage By Seeking A Peaceful Chapter 1569-"No need to be so polite, Mo," replied Charmine. "I went home to cook you something. Here, have some." "Okay." Maurice's lips curved into a demure smile as he gazed at Charmine. He still had that loving look on his face, like a father looking at his daughter.

Charmine set him up in a comfortable position before handing him the food she made.

Maurice could smell the fragrance right away. Even though he was not hungry, he wanted to eat.

She frowned.

Was any food she made appetizing to him?

If this was true, he no longer needed glucose to sustain his worn-out body.

Charmine did not spot the small table on the ward. She considered how he could not sit up straight, so she placed the dishes on the side. "Mo, I'll feed you."

"It's okay," Maurice refused, "I'm fine."

With that said, he propped himself to sit up and started eating.

Charmine wanted to insist before Kay called. 1 She thought of the mission she assigned to him earlier. Her gaze grew cold as she answered, "Have you done the investigation?" "Yes, Boss Jordan." Kay said politely, "The landslide was intentionally caused. Someone planned for this to happen." "I see."

Charmine's eyes were colder than before.

It was intentional, huh?

The mountain exploded when she got to the mine. Someone even tried to bury her alive!

It was quite apparent that this person wanted her dead. Who else would wish this upon her...other than Waverly?

That woman sure had the audacity.

She challenged her, time and time again.

Charmine's red lips curled up coldly, and she instructed Kay, "Publish the clip."

"Copy that!"

Within ten minutes, a clip made it to the trending page.

[To get her wedding ring, Waverly D'Cruz killed many miners, detonated a diamond mine, and caused 35 deaths!] 1 This shocking video was a stark contrast to the video of her happy wedding video with Anthony taken in the afternoon.

The netizens watched with shock, and everyone admonished Waverly.

[She caused so much harm for a ring? She didn't even care about others' lives!?] [This is such a big disaster, and she caused everything!] [So many miners died innocently because of this selfish and evil woman! They died so unfairly!] [She's building her happiness upon stacks of dead bodies.] [I knew she's not a good person. As expected...sigh...] [So many families were ruined, all because of your wedding ring!] [She killed so many people, yet she could go to her wedding venue as if nothing had happened. How cruel is this woman?!] [President Bailey, please wipe your eyes clean! The woman you're marrying is a cruel woman!] With that, everyone's fiery words were spat on Anthony's Tweeter feed.

They even asked him to cancel his wedding and compensate for the loss of those workers...

Both Waverly and Anthony became the two most discussed figures. 2 Inside Anthony's study room.

Anthony received hundreds of thousands of direct messages. He did not seem to care.

In fact, he leaned on his chair coldly with his eyes darkened as he glared at the anonymous email.

The email consisted of photos of Charmine and Maurice inside the ward.

In the photos. Charmine looked at Maurice worriedly. She made his bed, went home to cook for him, went back to his ward, and even fed him!

Livid, Anthony clenched his phone tightly, his hands tense, and he was that close to crushing his phone into pieces.

Warning: My Mommy Is A Savage By Seeking A Peaceful Chapter 1570-Did Charmine care about Maurice so much, so much so that she could not bear to see him hurt?

He was only a little hurt, and she spent a large sum to attack Waverly just to exact revenge for Maurice?

Heh. He underestimated her.

Charmine would do all that for Maurice.

He, on the other hand, nearly lost his life for her, and that did not even faze her!

3 It seemed that Charmine truly loved Maurice after all.

Anthony clenched his fists tightly, but he just could not reason with the rage within him. Snapping, he pushed everything on his table—from his laptop, to his documents, mug, and cigarette—to the floor, scattering things everywhere, causing a mess.

Anthony ignored it all, however, as he merely took up his alcohol and drank it down.

At that moment, Waverly angrily pushed the door open with a resounding slam and barged in.

Anthony smashed the bottle on his table. He glared at the figure coming in and frostily growled, “Don’t you know how to knock?”

Waverly was triggered by the netizens, and she was about to lose her mind. She did not bother to put on that gentle look and said, “Anthony, didn’t you see how they witch-hunt me online? It’s all Charmine’s fault!”

With that said, she could feel the cold, laser-sharp gaze from Anthony fixed on her.

Her heart quivered as she continued, albeit toned down and pitifully, “I only wanted to collect that diamond ring. That’s why I asked people to detonate the mountain. I didn’t know anyone was inside! Charmine knew Maurice was in there, and she still went over, risking her life to save him! Maurice was mildly wounded, and she’s already so angry! She wants me dead!” i Anthony’s eyes were chilly as they fixed on her. “Are you done?”

Waverly grew taut.

She knew Anthony*s memory was bad, and she already twisted the whole thing around. How was he not angry?

Ugh! Did he still miss Charmine?

Seeing that she did not speak, Anthony picked up the bottle and continued to drink. He scoffed, “If you’re done, then get lost!”

Waverly was furious.

However, thinking of how her wedding was coming up, Waverly did not want to take a single risk. Biting her lip, she defeatedly left the room.

Anthony leaned on the chair and took larger gulps of his alcohol.

He could not help repeating what Waverly said to him in his head.

“Charmine knew Maurice was in there, and she still went over, risking her life to save him!” 2 Charmine knew how dangerous it was, yet she still went over to save him?

She cared about this man so much.

A self-deprecating smile made its way to Anthony’s face. He could not help picking up his phone to log on his Tweeter. He posted a status.

[I was the one arranging this, and Waverly has nothing to do with it. If you have a problem, come to me. Do not come for her.] i Within five minutes after posting, Tweeter crashed!

The netizens finally understood.

So, it was not Waverly looking for the ring, but it was Anthony who wanted to give it to her?

Anthony went through such lengths, just to give his fiancée a unique ring?

Even though everyone was still angry, they were touched.

[What a husband. He's unreal!] [Oh my god! How nice of him! He's spoiling his wife!] [When will I get a husband like him?] [Since President Bailey is making a statement, we believe this was nothing but an accident. We all know his reputation; he'll give everyone an acceptable explanation.] [Let's just call it a day.] Inside the hospital.

Charmine constantly followed up with the matter after she instructed Kay to post the video.

When she saw everyone scolding Waverly angrily, her lips curled up coldly.

However...

Within a few minutes, Anthony's status rushed up the trending list as well.
