

Chapter 7322

Having grasped the changes in Charlie, Yun Rugo and Song Ruyu's mindsets immediately shifted.

They understood that from the moment they chose to betray the Po Qing Society, they had become deeply bound to Charlie.

Their fates were intertwined.

While they weren't certain if Charlie could truly defeat the Po Qing Society and Wu Feiyan, they were certain that his character and integrity would allow him to do everything in his power to help them overcome the poison. Furthermore, once Charlie resolved the Po Qing Society's problems, he would definitely set them free.

Of course, even if Charlie set them free, they might not truly want to leave him.

But the most important thing was that they would no longer be forced into anything, and their comings and goings would be entirely their own decisions.

So, Yun Rugo looked at Charlie with a firm yet tender gaze and said earnestly, "Mr. Ye, if I am fortunate enough to live a few more years, I wish to stay by your side for life, at your service!"

Yun Rugo knew very well that even if everything settled down and Charlie ultimately defeated the Po Qing Society, she, as a lone cultivator, would still be unable to escape loneliness.

Cultivating alone is not just about having no one to guide you; most importantly, it's about having no one to accompany you.

She didn't dare to hope that one day she could become Charlie's woman, but she was still willing to follow him for life. If Charlie were to establish his own sect in the future, she would even be willing to become his disciple, or even his right-hand woman.

That way, a hundred years of cultivation wouldn't be so tedious, and Charlie would certainly allow her cultivation speed to increase exponentially.

Song Ruyu had also recovered from her reverie.

Although she and Yun Rugo hadn't discussed this matter, she felt the same way as Yun Rugo.

Without hesitation, she replied, “Mr. Ye, like Sister Ruge, I am willing to serve you for life!”

Charlie smiled and nodded.

He understood the two women’s thoughts. Everyone knows it’s good to have a powerful patron. While he wasn’t a towering tree, he was still considerably taller than them. They were willing to rely on his shade, and he naturally had no objection.

Therefore, Charlie smiled and said to them, “I understand your intentions. If everything ends smoothly in the future, I hope to unite with you two, and many other cultivators, to improve our cultivation together.”

Charlie knew very well that although cultivators seemed far stronger than ordinary people now, the world was still ultimately a world of ordinary people. In this outside world, cultivators were relatively different and weaker.

These people, vying for resources, would constantly trigger and cross the lines of ordinary society.

Therefore, after the destruction of the Qing Dynasty, cultivators in various regions will need to band together for mutual support. Otherwise, those who are isolated may become targets for plunder by other cultivators or groups.

After all, cultivators see no laws or constraints; what they truly care about is their cultivation path, and everything else is insignificant.

At this moment, the three women in the research station felt different expectations for the future.

Lin Wan’er, who had been traveling for a long time, gently touched her lower abdomen and said to Charlie with a touch of shyness, “Young Master, I’m a little hungry. Would you like some food prepared so we can all eat together?”
