Chapter 29: Announcement

Ishan Kishan

Sarfaraz Khan

Rishabh Pant

Mahipal Lomror

Washington Sundar

Khaleel Ahmed

Avesh Khan

Mayank Dagar

Shubham Mavi and many others.

Aarav Would be selected for the U19 team for sure, but I want him to play with 2017 squad as the captain, as this team include even more future star of Indian team like,

Prithvi Shaw

Shubman Gill

Riyam Parag

Abhishek Sharma (Aarav's Best Friend)

Anukul Roy

Arshdeep Singh

Shivam Mavi and many more,

although I would also add some players in this team from the next generation of U19 team like,

Yashasvi Jaiswal

Dhruv Jurel

Tilak Verma

Kartik Tyagi

Ravi Bishnoi and many more.

What I envision is this: Although he was selected for the U19 team, he wouldn't play in the World Cup—only some bilateral series—and he wouldn't participate in the IPL, as this is an Alternate Universe (AU), (a world shaped by the author's imagination). After being selected for the U19 team and gaining valuable experience through a few matches, he would later play in the Ranji Trophy. By 2018, he would return with an exceptional squad, featuring players from both the 2017 and 2019 U19 teams. Together, they would form a formidable lineup, competing in bilateral series, the Asia Cup, and even the World Cup, setting the stage for greater success in international cricket.

So, what are your suggestion on this topic, tell me please. and if you like the above suggestion, write yes and if not write no and give what could be best according to you.

The reason I wanted him to be dropped from the 2015 squad was that, aside from Rishabh Pant and Washington Sundar, none of the other players could aid Aarav in advancing to a higher position within the international team. However, had he played in the U19 squad of 2017, he would have been surrounded by teammates who would eventually play at the international level alongside him, providing the support necessary for him to reach greater heights in the future.

As for the template of KL Rahul or any other player, it would be gradually phased out at 80 to 90%. If it reaches 100%, it could result in a scenario where there are essentially two KL Rahul's in the same team. When Aarav reaches the threshold of the template, he would inherit specific attributes from other renowned players. For example, he might gain Sachin Tendulkar's straight drive, Ricky Ponting's pull shot, and various other signature shots from top cricketers. Additionally, physical attributes, such as having a less injury-prone physique in the beginning, could also be incorporated.
