Chapter 52: Not a => Important Notice [Unedited]**

well after 2 days of IPL franchise Choice Voting has come to an end, and I am Very delighted to receive in total 62 votes in total, and the most was around 43.55% of total vote share, and the winning team is Royal Challengers Bangalore (Currently Bengaluru).

Well on Audience demand he would move to RCB for around 4-5 years. But he would leave team in year 2023 or 24, whenever I decide to do Mega Auction as I could do Mega Auction any time I like as this is an Alternate Universe.

And Kudos to Bouncy_Beast for the research on the dynamic of the team and all the research, but I personally don't like 2-3 team, and it include Rajasthan, with KKR.

hey author I did some research as a help for you. no matter how the poll goes it should be a realistic scenario. other wise this would be just a wish fulfillment. in 2018 auction both Nagarkotti and Shivam Mavi went for 3Cr and 3.2Cr so imagine how much Aarav would cost (better bowler and superb batsmen with future captaincy potential) I would like to have him in MI or RCB, but both those teams didn't have enough money in their purse for him and a starting position in first eleven. MI retained Krunal for 8.8Cr and bought Ishan Kishan for 6.2Cr their team was balanced Aarav don't have starting position in MI. RCB also had top order stacked and they could buy Aarav instead of Chris Woakes(7.4Cr), but I don't think they will have enough purse when uncapped players are coming to auction. hence both those teams are unlikely. Most likely and realistic team for Aarav would be KXIP. there was space in playingXI (Karun Nair was under-performing) or RR, D'arcy Short was serious flop in IPL. So, RR gets my vote they had the 2nd biggest purse he can come one-down and would be in one of the top 4 teams. also he would get a chance to play with Stokes, Steve Smith, Butler, Klaasen and Archer so sorry for this, but please show support like this in future too. It really motivates me.

And I am Going with the Audience Vote only, as I also want him to play for RCB and win at least one cup, with his major contributions.

But I want to ask you, Although I had plan for him to move to new upcoming team in 2023-24 that are LSG or GT, more especially GT, and to take the team fan following to next level due to his following same following that CSK had for MSD, MI had for Rohit Sharma and RCB had for Virat Kohli.

I want him to be same GT of Aarav Pathak, well I also want cap 1 of the team, but it is a trivial topic.

what do you suggest, vote +1 in any of the below: -

RCB forever and takeover the legacy of Virat Kohli and continue the legacy or Make his own legacy in new Team like GT.

Don't forget to Vote

Please Read this!!

Also, I want to make an announcement. I am going to do Parttime work this week and later in the end would be doing work to earn money, as I am not financially Independent, so I have to a Lot of work, so for this I would be doing continuous work from 27 December to around 5 January, so there would be no chapter, but please donate power stone on these dates too.

once I am done with my work, i would surely continue with daily updates, as I also want to earn money and I can't earn money with this, so I can't continue this during my work time.

If you have any suggestion that could help me earn from this, please tell me as I want to write more but unable to due to not being financially Independent, and I can't lock the chapters as this is a FanFic and even if it wasn't fanfic I won't lock the chapter as Locked chapters is something that made readers like me really sad.

Thanking You and wishing You a very Happy New Year and Belated Merry Christmas to all, and may you all achieve great things in future, and made your family and nation proud.
