

Card Apprentice Daily Log

Chapter 1141 Demonic Card

[1,027 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 00: 45

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Unknown

"Amazing right," exclaimed Jill, as the E-rank field dungeons and the S-rank dungeon underneath them dissipated as if they were never here in the first place.

"Indeed, it is," I nodded in response to Jill.

The dissipation of the E-rank field dungeon and the S-rank field dungeon meant that Luna had completed the dungeon relocation. This meant she was no longer feeding the dungeon relocation apparatus with refined soul energy, which meant that the artificial soul energy vein was no more, without the power from the artificial soul energy vein the field dungeons could not sustain by these so they dissipated. Clearing the normal route from Sun blossom city to Sky blossom city.

"Do you need a lift home?" Jill asked as she summoned a dark red-colored hover car, the chariot.

"No, I have my ride," I said, summoning my golden-colored NanoMorpher hoverbike.

"So, this is it. We part our ways here, huh," Jill did not immediately get on her Chariot, she lingered as if she was waiting for me to say something.

"It doesn't have to be, if you want to, I lend my warehouse to continue your research," I asked Jill, feeling that she was not ready to part with me yet.

I know with Anna and Susan around, if Jill were added to the mix, it was going to be a recipe for disaster but I too did not want to part with Jill. Though I cannot respond to her feelings for me, she and I had a lot in common, we would make great friends. And since the dungeon relocation was complete I will be leaving for the Southern Royal palace soon until then I could entertain Jill.

"I have expensive cards that can transform into a big ass research base, who wants to borrow your warehouse?" Jill yelled in a fit of rage.

Seeing that the boy knew the words that she wanted to hear but skillfully avoided them, she couldn't help but get enraged. She was not some dollar whore, whom he could just bang'em and leave'em.

"Okay, then goodbye. See you at Morningstar university," Jill's mood swings gave me the conviction to part ways with her. What was I thinking? Jill's father was right, 'A body and a girl can never be friends.'

"Take one more step further and I swear to God I will hurt you even if it costs me," Jill warned. As her menacing aura covered my body. If Jill were to act on it she would be punished accordingly by the world's will because of the oath between the two of us.

"Jill, honey, we agreed on no feelings purely physical. Remember, you said that. So, don't do something rash that we both will regret later," I said, reminding Jill what we agreed upon before getting intimate.

"Yes, I did say that but I changed my mind," Jill replied nonchalantly as she moved closer to me.

"But, I did not," I cried out, fearing that Jill was planning on kidnapping me.

"Not my problem," Jill stood next to me and sniffed me like a pervert.

"Jill, don't be unreasonable. Let's part on good terms when we can. The future is not certain, if it is meant to be it will happen you can't force it. Anything you do now will only make me disgusted towards you. Is that what you want?" I explained to Jill that she could not force a relationship.

I understand where she was coming from, this was the first time in her entire life she had a feeling for the opposite sex, and now seeing that not everything was falling into place like she imagined and wanted them to, Jill decided to take the matter into her own hands.

"I understand," Jill said as she fixed my collar and added, "You are right, the future is not constant but neither is it on my side. So what do I do?"

"Why worry about something you cannot control? This, here, right now, you can control it, how do you want me to feel about you? You decide and act accordingly," I explained to Jill to stop worrying about the variable and cherish what she already had.

"You know, for your age you're wise. Relax, I don't plan to do anything to you. I just wanted to give you a gift, here take it," Jill took out a card from her grimoire and handed it to me.

"A-rank, Rare grade, skill card, Equal Exchange?" I read the card's name out loud.

"It's a demonic card, so don't use it unless you have to. My father gave it to me for my protection. Now, I am giving it to you for your protection," Jill said.

"This is too precious for a gift, I can't take it," Politely gave the card back to Jill but she did not take it saying, "You need it more than me. I searched for info on you and found that many powerful people want you dead rather than alive. Apart from that most of your information is restricted. I don't know what you did to piss those many people off but promise me we will meet at Morningstar university."

"If that's the case then I will borrow this card for now and return it to you when we meet at the morning star university," I did not know what Jill meant when she said I pissed off many powerful people but seeing how she was not going into details I knew that was all she knew or reveal to me. Therefore, I did not bother to ask her who. But thinking about it I said, "Doesn't the world think that I died? After all, I went through a lot of trouble to pull off a perfect fake death."

"No, there is no news of you being dead in the file. I don't know why but I think they have yet to update it. If that is truly the case then I hope you take this opportunity to make some serious decisions," Jill's intention could not be more clear. She wanted me to continue to stay dead and only surface when I had the power to protect myself from those that want to harm me.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

[988 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 00: 57

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Unknown

"Okay, I will give it some thought," I said that but did not mean it.

Be it Earth or this card world there was always going to be people stronger than me, if I thought otherwise, I would be a fool. However, if I let the fear of them dictate the terms of my life then I might live but it was not going to be a life worth living.

They say as long as you are alive you can get revenge and it will be worth the wait but that means you have to get hurt first. However, I did not plan on getting hurt in the first place. I can't always be ahead of others but I can always trust in myself.

Back on earth when I started my journey to the top, there was always some big MNC or a government agency that wanted what I had or did not like what I was doing. If I had let them get what they wanted, my journey to the top would have ended even before it started. And just because I made it to the top, did not mean that there was no more threat. It was always there waiting for me to let my guard down and strike when I was most vulnerable.

This did not mean, I was not asking to stand tall even when you knew a bullet was heading your way, that would be stupid. I was saying to be prepared to make the difficult choice, not the safe choice or right choice as there was no such thing called a safe or right choice.

"Do you have to be stubborn about this?" Jill asked knowing that the boy said that to assure her and did not plan to act on it.

"Jill, I appreciate the heads up and the card. However, I don't appreciate this," I warned Jill to say no more.

"I hate this side of yours but it's so... fuck it," Jill grabbed the boy's hair at the back of his head as she leaned in for a passionate but nonconsensual kiss.

"..." I did not resist Jill, rather I grabbed one of her ass cheeks with my right hand and her long silky hair with my left, trying to dominate the kiss.

Just when I was feeling aroused Jill broke the kiss and backed out of my embrace saying, "If we continue any longer I don't think I can suppress my physique. I better get going, see you at the university."

"Sure, bye," after bidding our goodbyes Jill got into her Chariot and headed home.

...

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 2:43

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, Passion Motel

Morphing my appearance I entered the city and booked a room in an expensive motel. This decision of mine had nothing to do with Jill's warning but with myself, I was exhausted after a long day. I wanted to be by myself, so Instead of heading to the warehouse as I usually would, I decided to spend the remaining night in a motel room before easing into my regular life.

But just when I was about to enjoy my big and cozy bed I was disturbed by a sudden knock on the door.

Knock Knock Knock

I used my Soul pupils to check who it was and I had to have guessed that this would happen. The visitor knocking on the door was none other than Anna. I guess the ring she gave me for protection against the curse-type cards gave away my location.

Reverting to my original appearance, I opened the door only to hear Anna yell, "Surprise."

I looked behind Anna and asked her, "So, where is the surprise?"

"I am the surprise, silly," Said Anna and entered the room without being invited.

"You take the couch," Closing the door behind me, I ordered Anna to sleep on the couch knowing she likes to sleep nude and I, myself, leaped into the huge bed trying to return to my sleep.

"What the fuck, Wyatt? I came all the way to surprise you and this is how you treat me?" Anna complained.

"Anna, I am already being generous by giving you the couch, or would prefer to sleep outside," I provoked Anna knowing how she would react.

"Just because you fooled a bunch of semi-demigods, don't get full of yourself?" said Anna climbing into my bed but she suddenly cried out, "Aaah."

I grabbed Anna by her wrist and pulled her into my embrace and spooned her.

"Wyatt, what exactly are you planning to do?" Anna asked and a little tremor could be heard in her voice. Was it out of expectation or shyness I couldn't tell?

"You tell me what you were planning by surprising a single man at a motel and climbing into his bed," I said as I wrapped my arm around her waist and slowly kissed the back of her lily-white swan neck.

"Clearly, I wasn't expecting this," Anna uttered, feeling the boy's moist lips on the back of her neck sending a titillating feeling through her body.

Anna was caught off guard as she never expected her crush to be so enthusiastic. She walked into the room expecting him to be his usual cold and dense self but he surprised her with this rarely-shown side of his.

"I missed you, Anna," I wasn't just saying this to make Anna feel better, I genuinely missed her. I never thought there would be a day I would get to say this to a girl.

Squeak Anna let out a weird short cry, seeing me be vulnerable and hearing me tell her my genuine feelings.

"I missed you too," Anna said, turning around to make eye contact with me. I did not shy away this time, I glanced into her eyes and let myself be vulnerable like I promised myself.

Lost in each other's eyes, we both slowly leaned in, as if our lips were magnets of opposite polarity attracting each other for a passionate kiss.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1143 Anna's Feelings

[1,024 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 2:56

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, Passion Motel

"Stop, stop," Anna pushed her lover away as his hands made their way into her pants.

"Something wrong, I thought you were enjoying it," I asked not knowing if I did something wrong to be shoved away by Anna.

"No, honey, no. Nothing wrong, it's just that I want to take things slow. I hope you understand," Anna said as she got off the bed.

"What's going on?" I got out of bed and questioned Anna, trying to understand her reaction and words.

I mean, it's Anna I am talking about here, there were no such words as 'taking it slow' in her dictionary when it comes to being intimate. I must be the only guy she asked to take it slow. Was it something I did?

Seeing the confusion on the boy's face, Anna shook her head not knowing how to make the boy understand that it wasn't him but her, she did not want the magical spark of their love to die down because they rushed it, she wanted to flame it into a brilliant and passionate fire.

This relationship with the boy meant the world to her, she wanted it to last till her last breath. As for after her last breath, that was up to the boy but she hopes he moves on as she would hate to see him live the rest of his life miserably.

'It's not you.' These words in this circumstance could only lead to a bigger misunderstanding, so she had to choose her words wisely to let the boy understand what exactly was going on. Unfortunately, Anna was not good with words nor at expressing her feelings.

"What is it? Please tell me, because I am starting to feel it has something to do with what I did. Did I read the signs wrong?" This was why I hate dealing with stuff that requires emotions. Constantly being on the lookout and guessing that something I did or say would hurt the person I care about. I guess it's complicated because we care.

"No, no, it is not you, fuck! I said it. Why is it so darn hard," Anna started to mumble to herself forgetting that there was another person in the room waiting for her explanation.

"Anna, babe, calm down, it's me. You can talk to me about anything," I said, trying to bring Anna's attention back to the matter at hand.

Anna suddenly paused and glanced at the boy asking, "What did you call me?"

"A-Anna?" puzzled, I sutured while answering Anna.

"No, after that," Anna asked eagerly.

"Babe. Why? You don't like it," I was a little shy as I asked Anna.

"No, I love it. Call me babe again, babe," Anna demanded as she rushed into my embrace and pecked my lips with hers.

"Babe, talk to me," I said, staring into Anna's eyes.

"This right here, I don't want us not to miss this," Anna said, hoping these words made sense to the boy. Otherwise, she did not know how to make him understand.

"What do you mean, I have called you babe before, and I am pretty sure that we have at least been on two dates," I said understanding what Anna actually meant, she wanted the whole boyfriend and girlfriend experience before getting to the dessert.

"Those don't count, they did not feel genuine but forced," Anna uttered, and as if she had thought of something she continued to say, "Three dates, that's all I ask."

"Just three dates to bed a beauty, who can say no to that? Great, I am in, where do I sign?" I said thinking since I have decided to do it might as well do it right.

"Let's shake on it with this kiss," Anna's lips pressed against mine and before I could make my move, she retreated her lips and said, "Besides, who said we could do it after the third date?"

"What? You baited me," I complained.

"I did, but if it helps you feel any better I will think about it depending on your performance during our three dates," Anna said playfully.

"So, you better wear your good underwear on the third date, I am going to bring my A-game for all three of the dates," I boasted while wrapping my arms around Anna's waist pulling her further into my embrace.

"I was planning to go commando but since you asked..."

"No, let's just go with your idea," immediately interrupting Anna I hurriedly agreed with her plans for our third date.

"Hahaha," Anna laughed and then pecked my lips again saying, "This is for being so understanding. This is not how my previous relationships went, there is less talking and more of, you know... Sometimes I would just get to it to avoid listening to their feelings and stuff. This, what we have is different, it matters a lot to me, you can't even begin to imagine how frustrated and enraged I would feel whenever you brushed me off by saying you are not ready for a relationship. So, what changed your mind?"

Seeing Anna being so truthful about her feelings I decided to be truthful too and said, "It's a funny story, on my way from the sun blossom city I met this chick from the central region. She had rented a few E-rank dungeons that fall en route to sky blossom city. We got to talking, and one thing led to another and she asked if I wanted to bang one out, no feelings involved, totally physical..."

Even before I could get to the best part of my story Anna interrupted me asking, "You rejected her, right?"

"No, I took her up on her offer and spent a steamy day amidst the dungeons, and on my way over to the city I decided I want more of that and here we are," I spoke the truth, it took a lot of me to not flinch and avoid eye contact with Anna, thinking since she could appreciate me being so understanding of her past she would reciprocate the same.

Shocked, in utter disbelief Anna immediately grabbed me by my collar and with her emotionally-wounded eyes she glanced into mine yelling, "Tell me, you are kidding."

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1144 It's Time

[1,127 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 2:43

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, Passion Motel

"No, I am not," I stared back into Anna's eyes and stood my ground.

"No, you're just lashing out because I brought up my past, I thought you were okay with it. Who am I kidding, who will be okay with it? It's okay that you hate that part of me, I can understand that. It's not up to me to tell you how you should feel. However, you lying to me because of that, is what makes me feel like you are just making up stuff to hurt me," Anna did not believe me instead explained what she thought was actually happening and added, "If it makes you uncomfortable I will never bring that up, ever."

"..." I was without words as Anna said it all.

Was I lying? Jill and I only did it for a morning, not an entire day. I did not accept Anna's feelings because I like doing Jill and wanted more of it. I did so because I did not want my trust issue to control my second life. If I think about it I said most of those things maybe because I might not really be comfortable with Anna's past.

So I decided to confess, "Anna, you are right about me lying but not about the girl however, the other stuff I said is true. She and I tried it one time, but I didn't even get to finish, it was a horrible experience."

"What about the part where you said you wanted more of that and I was available?" Anna seems to care about this more than me doing it with another woman.

"I just said that to get under your skin but I am not the only one to blame. You were the one who started with the self-sabotage, by talking about your past relationship right when we were having such a good time," Any decent girlfriend knows better than to bring up her past relationship when with her current boyfriend.

"Now it's my fault despite you clearing cheating on me," it seems Anna wasn't that cool about me sleeping with another woman after all.

"Didn't we already agree that it does not count since it did not feel genuine and felt forced?" I argued using the same defense Anna used to get her three dates. Besides I did not agree to us being a thing or exclusive until today not to mention it was still up for debate and not set in stones. But I did not say that out loud knowing it will only put me in more trouble than I am in right now.

"What? How can you say that?" Anna overreacted as if I said something horrible.

"But you are the one who said it first," how come she gets to use that and I don't?

"I did but I did not think you felt the same way," by putting it this way Anna acted as if it wasn't the truth.

"Sorry, you feel that way," saying that I headed out of the room. Seeing me open the door and walk out, Anna immediately asked, "Where are you going?"

"I don't feel like sleeping anymore. I am heading to the warehouse," I said before closing the door behind me.

This part about the relationship I had forgotten, thanks to Anna I was reminded about it before I made some big commitments. This was not what I need in my life right now. Neither was it about physical relationships, why would I be willing to go through all that trouble just for some pussy. With my prospects I could get any slut I wanted, I was willing to work on this relationship because I thought there was more here, Anna's feelings did show that but our argument just now showed otherwise. So I chose to leave the room before it got ugly.

...

As soon as the boy left the motel room, a figure entered the room from the window, it was Ana. She followed Anna, feeling her actions suspicious. But seeing her rendezvous with the boy in a motel room, Ana held herself back from yelling at her sister for not telling her about the boy's arrival in the city and decided to wait and watch.

At first, things got a little steamy so Ana wanted to turn and leave but she did not, soon things turned for the worse. It felt as if both, Anna and the boy, were looking for a reason to get out of the commitment they wanted to make.

Reaching her sister's side Ana asked, "What happened?"

"It happened so fast, I got everything I wanted but I couldn't help it. What if I destroy it like everything else?"

"I think you already did."

...

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 00:51

Location- Central Region, Central capital, Unknown Command Base, General Baylor's office

Seated on his chair General Baylor was pensively pondering over his entire day, from Soldier Queen Colleen's taunt to his mentor's offer to Agent Lois's physique, yesterday had been an eventful and informative day.

Since he got back from his meeting with his mentor Field Marshal Henricks he had a nagging feeling of being monitored, he wanted to dismiss it as his paranoia in the wake of the new secrets he had learned but then recalling that the organization running the government had Agents with physique from the legend, such as Agent Lois, he felt maybe he was not paranoid it may be Agent Lois or someone from her organization monitoring his entire action. It seems despite his mentor vouching for him, the organization still seemed to be concerned about his reaction toward the new secrets and information he learned recently.

Baylor was ready to accept his mentor's offer regarding Ellen's child but considering how secretly and thoroughly the organization operated, he felt that there was a possibility that they had other plans for him and Ellen's child. But there was not much he could do about it, and he knew that if he acted even a little bit suspiciously the puppet government's masters would not even require to lift a finger to make sure that he would not have any funny ideas. As he had already fallen prey to their conspiracy by abusing his authority to open an investigation into the southern royal family.

That was enough for them to bury him under regulations for good, therefore Demigod Baylor decided to play along until he understood the organization. Therefore he called home and warned his wife about the possible future and decided to wait in the office until he was called upon.

Speaking of the Devil, demigod Baylor's grimoire notified him of a call, it was Agent Lois Forger. Baylor answered the phone, neither spared any time for greetings or small talk, and stayed on point, "General Baylor, It's time."

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1145 New Plans

[1,017 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 03:09

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, St. Raymond's cemetery

"Master," Old Ben rushed to greet me at the cemetery gate. Even though he was working for me now, he spent his free time cleaning the cemetery, especially the graves of his wife, fallen comrades, and young Wyatt's parents. This freedom of will was the result of his calamity daughter core's level of authority as one of my right-hand men.

"You know. I have asked Fine Gold to buy this cemetery and maintain it, right?" Since I did not plan to visit the cemetery to clean papa and mama Wyatt's graves every week as young Wyatt did, I had the Fine Gold do it for me.

"Since we will be leaving soon I thought I should spend some more time here before saying goodbye. Not to mention I don't know if there will be next time," Asides from the calamity daughter cores that will be helping Daina take over the blossom district, some of the most capable calamity daughter cores would be going to the central academic city with me and old Ben was one of them. He had already upgraded his grimoire to platinum grimoire and was waiting for my permission to break through to the Card Overlord realm. Not to forget his origin card and his comprehended blood rule meanings made him an indispensable asset.

"About that, the plan has changed, say your goodbyes now, you and the selected ones will be leaving for the central academic city by tomorrow morning. I have already made arrangements, my friend will reach out to you when you reach there," The friend I spoke of was Dr. Jill Norley.

The moment Jill handed me the demonic card for my protection, I realized that she knew something that she could not tell but her warning was not the reason I fast-forwarded my plans. It was my fight with Anna, walking out of the motel I finally act on something I have been thinking a lot lately, that my life and the foothold for my empire I built in the sky blossom city were very dependent on Anna and her family, without them covering me, it all could crumble and all I could do was run for my life. Therefore, I did not hesitate to pull in favors with Jill on my way to the cemetery at the cost of 10 percent of my share in the phantom sword wood. Though I did not like giving 10 percent of the phantom sword wood I respected Jill for that, though this woman was addicted to me she did not let that part of her let me take advantage of her. If she were a boy she would have made a good friend and a rival.

"Yes, master," old Ben did not show any emotion hearing that I had moved the plans forward.

"Don't worry about arranging the tiger squadron, I will have other calamity daughter cores you have recently recruited in the tiger squadron be in charge of the squadron. Help me tell the same to Van and here take this storage, you know what to do with the cores in them," I said, handing half a dozen storage cards filled with calamity cores to old Ben.

The plan of moving a part of my operation to the central academic city had been devised long ago, the only thing to change now was instead of using the southern royal family's channels to make a place in the central academic city I would be using Jill. Though Jill's services were going to cost me, it was better than totally being dependent on the southern royal family.

"Yes, Master but what about you and manager Susan? Will you two be traveling with us too?" Old Ben asked the only uncertainty of this plan. Unlike my calamity daughter cores I could not decide for Susan, would it be wise of me to take her to the southern royal palace? Or should she stay here and help Vivian and Cindy with pleasure card collection and learn management under Diana? But the calamity daughter cores heading to the central academic region would need a figurehead, was Susan ready for such responsibility? Three months from today maybe but today I didn't have the answers, "No, I will not be coming with you, as for Susan you guys make the required preparations I will tell you by tomorrow morning, anything else?"

"No, Master. I will contact you when the proper arrangements are made. I will take my leave now," Saying that old Ben headed to bid goodbye to his wife and his comrade's graves as for me I headed to papa and mama Wyatt's grave to pay my respect.

The Wyatt couple's graves were clean and well maintained, so I decided to leave after a minute of silence but I felt several high-realm auras suddenly appear in the sky blossom city air space, the city array did not seem to hinder them. The auras emitted by these people were so strong that I felt goosebumps all over my body. Why did so many high-realm people come to this unknown corner of the world?

Though I did not know the answer, I activated my soul pupils to check on the situation. And to my shock, I found that there were a total of 5 high-level auras and they all were card demigods except for one semi-demigod. And as if they could feel my gaze the five of them simultaneously turned to look at me, scaring the hell out of me.

Out of fright, I took a few steps back only to bump into a person. What? Earlier there was no one here, except for me and old Ben, who in the right mind would visit the cemetery this late at night? Where did this person come from? I turned to look, only to find that it was one of the four card demigod gods who had appeared above the sky blossom city a few minutes ago. I hurriedly step away, only to hear the card demigod say, "Your eyes are as beautiful as your mother's eyes."

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

1146 help

1,009 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 01:46

Location- Central Region, Central Capital, Warp Array Building

"Are you sure about this? When I tried the same, the southern royal family was not that welcoming and accommodating," General Baylor said to Agent Lois who was planning on using the warp array to travel to the southern place wrap array.

"Relax General, military and secret police are not the same. No matter how daring the Soldier Queen is she will have to respect this," Lois said, pointing at the badge sewn on her lapel.

"Secret police, is that what you call your organization?" General Baylor asked.

"General, we have many names but today we will be using the secret police, try and keep up," said a red-headed man dressed in a similar fashion as Agent Lois. But unlike Agent Lois, he was a card demigod.

"Agent Uri, don't worry about me, I will try not to hold you guys back but shouldn't I be restrained to make this look more believable?" General Baylor was not bothered by Agent Uri's words rather he acted suspiciously docile.

"Change of plans, the southern royal family did not take the bait, so we have no choice but to use the secret police status to legitimize your investigation against them," Agent Lois answered.

After learning that General Baylor had abused his authority to open an investigation into the southern royal family and its recent activities, Soldier Queen Colleen did not act according to the norms, instead of suing General Baylor for abusing his power to harass them, she let him be as if it did not concern them. This was unlike Soldier Queen Colleen's nature, clearly, someone else in the southern royal family acted. So, now Agent Lois could personally charge General Baylor with abuse of power but that would be within the calculation of whoever from the southern royal family intervened and stopped Soldier Queen Colleen from walking into their trap, which meant that they would be walking into whatever trap the southern royal family had in store for them.

Agent Lois was not afraid of a challenge but the thing was the southern royal family only needed to stall for time to achieve their goal, so despite knowing this Agent Lois was to charge ahead then she would definitely not be able to achieve her objective and instead be helping the southern royal family. Therefore Agent Lois decided to address this situation with a different approach even though it will ruffle the four royal families.

The approach Agent Lois decided to use was to legitimize General Baylor's investigation into the silver milk powder fraud case by saying that it was the Secret Police who asked general Baylor to investigate the southern royal family and the silver milk powder fraud case. But doing this meant that the government was directly interfering with the Southern Royal family which would cause the other three royal families to come to the southern royal family's defense. But it was worth it because Agent Lois had received news from her operative that Dr. Luna was done with her dungeon relocation experimentation. So the situation had progressed to the point where it was now or never. As for the political repercussions from the royal families for the government interference, as long as she completed her mission it was the organization behind the puppet government's problem.

"I see," Hearing Agent Lois say that they would be legitimizing the investigation he opened into the silver milk powder fraud case off the books, General Baylor was surprised because he thought the organization was going to use this dirt on him to make him their bog. Despite this, General Baylor did not stop being cautious of Agent Lois or the organization behind her.

"Consider this as a show of faith. Hope, field marshal was not wrong about you," Agent Lois decided to use this to change General Baylor's opinion towards the organization.

"I thank you for that but let me make it clear if I wasn't before I am only in this for the safety of the boy," General Baylor did not bother to assure Agent Lois about where he stood with regards to the organization behind her because he knew unless they decide to trust him nothing he said or did would change their opinion about him. So he did not waste time proving his loyalty to Agent Lois and spoke his mind.

"We want the same," said Agent Uri.

"Good, to know we are on the same page," with this General Baylor made it harder for the two Agents to read his mind and left them guessing.

"Good, the array is ready. Remember once we get there let me do the talking," Agent Lois said, eyeing Agent Uri. In response Agent Uri nodded, it seems despite being a demigod he was not offended to follow the orders of a semi-demigod. This was not because Agent Uri was being understanding and considerate but because Agent Lois was that capable.

With that, the three stepped into the warp array and arrived at the southern region. This time it wasn't just Soldier Queen Colleen who came to welcome them but another demigod had tagged along with her, it was the demigod Backster. The person who grew to fame having dated the Southern Emperor for a record time.

"What brings the secret police to my palace?" Colleen did not bother with small talk and directly questioned the presence of the secret police on her soil.

"Your majesty, it has been brought to our notice that the esteemed southern royal family is taking part in something nefarious that would affect the entire humanity. So, I request your majesty to help us prove that the allegation made against the southern royal family holds no merit and was made out of malicious intent," Agent Lois explained the visit of the secret police to the southern royal palace politely.

"Oh, and how do you want me to help you?" Soldier queen Colleen did not even bat an eye hearing Agent Lois instead she played along.

1147

"If your majesty doesn't mind, you could start by kindly providing us with your full cooperation in our investigation."

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

[1,075 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 02:09

Location- Southern Region, Southern Capital, Southern Royal Palace

"If your majesty doesn't mind, you could start by kindly providing us with your full cooperation in our investigation," Lois ditched her polite way of wording from earlier to provoke and monitor Colleen's micro-expressions to check for any subtle signs of Colleen following the arrangement of another party.

"I see," Colleen replied casually. As if secret police investigating the southern royal family was not a big deal or of her concern. Causing Agent Lois to understand that Colleen was not actually the one making decisions here.

Soldier Queen Colleen was known for her straightforwardness, blatantly speaking the first thing that came to her mind. If it was that Colleen she would be infuriated as soon as Agent Lois claimed that someone accused the southern royal family of being involved in nefarious plans that could affect the entire humanity and that she planned to investigate the southern royal family to prove the accusations against the southern royal family wrong. But that was not the case. Colleen not only welcomed the secret police into the southern royal palace but also politely listened to what they had to say even when provoked. Therefore Agent Lois concluded that Colleen was acting on behalf of someone. Who could that someone be?

There were only four known people in the entire world who would dare to puppet Colleen, the first one was obviously her husband, next came her sister-in-law, Field Marshal Heatsend, and the last two were her children, Anna's uncle, and mom. All four of them were veteran demigods, and each of them could individually take on several demigods. It was a known fact that Colleen's husband and son were on the southern front of the Way Beyond, leaving two people who could control Colleen's rage, her sister-in-law and her daughter.

These two were bad news because not only were they insanely overpowered but they were very capable strategists. If it was really either of these two people who were directing Colleen's response then there was no point in provoking Colleen or trying to be slick. Leaving Agent Lois only one option, which was to be straightforward about their purpose and stubbornly stand their ground until they got what they came for.

"So, your highness, can I count on your cooperation?" Agent Lois began to execute the plan she spontaneously came up with regard to the volatile circumstance.

"Where would you like to start?" Colleen asked with a stiff smile on her face trying hard not to let her anger ruin her act.

"..." Agent Lois was without words hearing Colleen, she did not expect that the southern royal family would show no resistance to the investigation of the secret police into their family. Their reaction was way beyond Lois's expectations, this was starting to feel just too good to be true. Agent Lois began to feel suspicious of this whole thing, and thought the only reason the Southern royal family would not object to their investigation was they were confident, what gave them this confidence?

Then Agent Lois recalled the dungeon relocation and her face immediately became unsightly. Had the southern royal family already moved the dungeon to a secure location? How could this be possible? It hasn't been more than an hour since they were notified that Dr. Luna's experimentation was nearing its compilation. Unless the information was delayed.

Coming to this conclusion, Agent Lois shook her head thinking, 'No, I cannot waste my time here, we need to get to the sky blossom city immediately.'

"Your Highness, we would like to investigate Sky Blossom city that was recently attacked by demon worshipers," Agent Lois ditched the mind games and immediately got to the point, still she did not blabber that their real target was the silver milk powder fraud case.

"The demon worshipers who attacked that city have been dealt with, I don't know what business the secret police have investigating that incident when you claimed that you are here to prove that the accusations against my family were false. Unless you plan to tell me that the southern royal family has been accused of colluding with demon worshipers," Colleen asked, maintaining a neutral expression.

"I am sorry your highness I cannot go into the details of the mission with you. Please understand as this is to maintain the integrity of this investigation," Agent Lois did not bother to argue with Colleen instead she used the integrity of their investigation as a reason to avoid answering Colleen about what they were being investigated for.

"Little Girl, if you are from the secret police as you claim, I don't think I need to teach you the law. Tell me the accusations you will be investigating the southern royal family for or you will lose my cooperation," The reason Colleen was adamant about this because once the secret police starts to investigate the southern royal family on their soil, they can only charge them for the charges they disclosed before investigating as for the other crimes discovered during the raid will not or cannot be used against the southern royal family. So, if Agent Lois were to begin her investigation without giving the accusations she will be investigating the southern royal family for, then she could just charge them with every little crime she comes across in her investigation. This law was mostly to help the royal families cover their asses in case of an investigation into them. Otherwise, none of the royal family would be willingly give the government the power to investigate them.

Agent Lois knew that her small trick would not work but she had to try and then giving it a thought she narrated, "The Southern royal family has been accused of participating in patent fraud. So we would like to question one accused named Dalton Wyatt to understand the involvement of the southern royal family in the silver milk powder fraud case."

Agent Lois directly spoke of her real motive, understanding that beating around the bush would only buy the southern royal family to complete whatever they were planning.

"I see, is that all or are there any other charges that you plan to investigate us for?" Colleen asked with a grim face, she could no longer force a smile, that was how much her anger had grown. She understands that her family members had a plan but she thought letting the secret police do as they want in the southern region would only undermine the royal family's authority.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

1148 encounter

[1,292 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 02:25

Location- Southern Region, Southern Capital, Southern Royal Palace

Colleen was really angry with how things were shaping so far, even if she could ignore the secret police and their daring rudeness, she could not ignore General Baylor, she had warned him that if he showed his face in the southern region again then she will not hesitate to kill him, if not for the voice in her head asking her to ignore other matters and act accordingly, she would really have smashed demigod Baylor's skull right after he walked out of the warp array as a warning and thrown this wounded body back into the warp array sending him home but she had to suppress that because that was going to be counterproductive to the plans of her family. Colleen could not help but mumble in her mind, what kind of plan was this to let the enemy walk all over her? Still, she could only suppress her rage and do as the voice in her head asked her to.

"Yes, your highness, there is one more person we would like to question, Dr. Luna Lorn, she has been accused of selling the secrets of the dungeon relocation apparatus to the demon worshipers," Only a handful of people knew how to operate a dungeon relocation apparatus in the entire world. And in the southern region, it was just Dr. Luna Lorn. Meaning if there was a dungeon that the southern royal family planned to move to a secure location then Dr. Luna had to have known about it.

Agent Lois's idea was simple, as long as she had secured the boy and Luna, she could get the entire timeline of what the southern royal family has been up to down in the sky blossom city. This meant if the item silver milk powder was real and it was created out of a new product, silver milk, found in a dungeon then these two were the people who would know the most about it.

"Haha...haha..haha," Colleen began to laugh like a mad person all of a sudden hearing Agent Lois causing Agent Uri, General Baylor, and Demigod Backster in her surrounding to flinch, especially General Baylor as Colleen has been giving him passive aggressive glares since he stepped out of the warping array. He had not forgotten Colleen's warning, though he was not afraid of fighting Colleen but he would rather not, because no matter the outcome he will be the one to lose the most, Colleen's background was that strong but for Ellen's son he had to risk it.

Agent Lois was caught off guard by Colleen's sudden burst of laughter, it took her quite a while to get herself together and ask, "Your highness, did I say something funny?"

Colleen abruptly stopped laughing and looked at Agent Lois and asked, "You weren't joking?"

"No, your highness," Agent Lois answered stiffly, understanding that her words had to be careful here on out because it was clear Colleen was showing signs of going rogue and disobeying whoever was instructing her so far.

"You are telling me that the heir of the family which killed more demon worshippers than anyone on this world sold the secrets to the demon worshippers? Listen, kid, I know we are dancing the waltz here but if you start to speak without thinking of the consequence then don't blame me for stepping on your foot," Colleen stopped listening to the voice in her head that was yelling at her to get hold of herself and just play along but did not forget to warn Agent Lois to be mindful of what she says.

As the malicious aura of the soldier queen covered her body Agent Lois felt as if she was thrown in a freezer. Unconsciously her right eye activated and began to swallow Colleen's murderous aura. Surprising Colleen and the voice in Colleen's head but before either could react Agent Lois immediately controlled her right eye to stop its action midway and hurriedly apologized to Colleen, "Sorry, your royal highness, it was not my intention to say that but my hands are tied, I can only tell what I have been told."

"Little Girl, your masters should attach great importance to this case and should be really certain about the outcome for them to send you here to handle this case. I thought after they kidnapped you from the empire they would keep you in hiding till the end of time but that doesn't seem to be the case," Colleen did not know who Agent Lois was but the voice in her head seems to know her. And learning the true identity of Lois, the voice in her did not seem as confident as it was before. Clearly, a variable had appeared in her calculations.

"Your Highness, I don't know about that but I was assigned this case and I plan to see it through. Daring to sound rude I request your majesty to lend us the southern region teleportation circle to travel to the sky blossom city to investigate accused Dalton Wyatt and Dr. Luna Lorn," Now that her identity was revealed Agent Lois decided not to waste any more time arguing with Colleen and get to Sky blossom city before something out of her calculation happens.

"..." Colleen did not answer Lois immediately because the voice in her had gone quiet after disclosing Lois's identity to her. Thus, Colleen looked at Lois as if she was looking at a unique specimen. Her look obviously made Lois uncomfortable but she did not voice her discomfort.

Soon turning to her aide, Colleen repeated the voice in her head word to word, "Prepare the teleportation array." then turning to demigod Backster she added, "Clear your schedule we will be escorting these three to the sky blossom city."

"Yes, your highness," Demigod Backster and Colleen's aide said in unison before leaving to make preparations.

Colleen then turned to the trio from the central capital and said, "This is going to take a while, make yourself comfortable."

Following Colleen's words the staff began to guide the trio from the central capital to the lounge.

After the trio left, Colleen mentally asked, 'Sister-in-law, are you certain that girl is the right eye of the world?'

'Yes, the girl seems to have learned to control her eye's powers splendidly. She was right there and I could not tell her physique apart. If not for you I would have missed this detail. Sometimes your hot-headedness has its perks I guess,' the voice in Colleen's head turned out to be her Sister-in-law, Field Marshal Lorn, Lorenzo Lorn's wife, Luna's grandmother, and Anna's grandaunt.

...

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 03:18

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, Air Space

Once the teleportation array was prepared, Soldier Queen Colleen and Demigod Backster led Agent Lois, Agent Uri, and General Baylor to the Sky Blossom city as promised. Arriving above the city, all of them immediately used their senses to determine their location, totally disregarding how their high-real aura would affect others.

But soon they felt a peculiar gaze on them, curious they simultaneously turned to look at the source only to find a teenager with a mysterious set of eyes, daring enough to peek at them. It did not take long for all five of them that this was the boy they have traveled all the way here for. The first to react was General Baylor as he would recognize that pair of eyes anywhere in the world, though the pupils were a little different, there were still a lot of similarities to the ones he remembered.

General Baylor did not waste time, he immediately moved behind the boy, closing his retreat, and when their eyes meet he felt nostalgic and could not help but say, "Your eyes are as beautiful as your mother's eyes."

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

- Chapter 1149 Grave Consequence Of Jill & Anna Being A Tease

Chapter 1149 Grave Consequence Of Jill & Anna Being A Tease

[1,094 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 03:21

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, St. Raymond's Cemetery

"I guess I will have to take your word for it as I don't remember my mother's eyes," It has been so long since my birth mother's death all I could remember of her was a warm feeling. I could have the Hive AI tap into my childhood memories to get any memories it could find about her but I did not want to go through that. Some things were better as they were, it's better not to try and find something that you did not want to find in the first place.

It took me a second to realize the card demigod in front of me was not talking about my birth mother but young Wyatt's birth mother I can't be blamed for misunderstanding, though I have two sets of memories, I never let young Wyatt's memories mess with my psyche. It was better that way.

I would have turned and left after answering the card demigod feigning ignorance but the other for high realm visitors silently descended in the cemetery. If not for my soul pupils and soul ears, I would not have realized that all my retreats were closed by them. Not that I could escape them but it showed that these high realm card apprentices were planning to use the darkness of the night to leave a lasting impression on me with a silent and spooky entrance, in a similar fashion as the card demigod that spoke of mama Wyatt's eyes.

"That is not funny," General Baylor said with a frown, finding that Ellen's son did not seem to have that much respect for her. But then he turned to look at the tombstone engraved 'Here lies loving mother and wife Ellen Wyatt.' his brows eased, knowing that no unfilial son would visit their parent's grave this late at night. Thinking to himself that maybe this kid uses distasteful comedy to mask his sorrow he questioned the kid with a deep sorrow obvious in his voice, "Is this where she rests?"

"Who?" I knew that the card demigod in front of me was talking about mama Wyatt but me answering him would only defeat the entire purpose of the tombstones.

Listening to the boy, Baylor raised one of his eyebrows and wondered if Ellen's son was using humor for comfort or a little slow up there and uttered, "Ellen Wyatt."

"That's what the tombstone read," I said while ordering Hive AI to figure out the identities of these high-level card apprentices surrounding me using the memories of Clown Mask. But there was a problem, except for the card demigod who had revealed his face to me, I did not know what the other four visitors looked like as my soul pupils only allowed me to distinguish people based on their soul pathway and arrangements.

Baylor did not expect such an answer from the boy and then thinking that the kid was using humor to mask his feelings he decided to get through to him with humor saying, "You sure you are Ellen's son?"

"Nope, I am the cemetery guard. If you pardon me, I will get back to my rounds," Saying that I flew to the sky knowing that the other four high realm card apprentices were blocking my retreat hidden in the darkness of the night, only to be pulled back by a mysterious force toward a mature gorgeous woman, she had this wild aura about her that made me imagine myself with her in every sexual position known to mankind. And I had this nagging feeling as if I had seen her somewhere, only when Hive AI identified her as Anna's grandmother did I know why she felt so familiar.

"It has been a while since someone dared to look at me like that," As a card demigod, Colleen had heightened senses and intuition, they all screamed about the vulgar look on the boy's face.

I immediately snapped out of my fantasies about dominating Anna's beautiful grandma in the dirtiest and most erotic position I could think of and hurriedly greeted her yelling, "Long Live the Queen, your beauty is unparalleled throughout the realms known and unknown to humankind."

"Kid, aren't you daring? Was this sweet tongue of yours what captured my granddaughter's heart?" Colleen said, reminding the kid that the only reason she was tolerating him was because of her granddaughter. Even though the boy had corrected his sight, Colleen could still feel his vulgar thoughts alarming her heightened intuition. It had been ages since she had been thought molested. But what intrigued her most about this situation was that the kid knew who she was and capable of yet he continued to be daring and push his luck. So she could not help but ask, "Are you not afraid of death or consequences far worse than death?"

"If that is the cost of admiring the true beauty I am gladly willing to pay," I really meant what I said. Surrounded by demigods with unclear motives for me, I really had nothing much I could do but to give in to the most primal instinct any man would feel in my situation, with my chances of survival less than slim, to transfer my genes. Maybe I would have approached this situation differently if Jill and Anna hadn't left me hanging or if I had just rubbed one out in the motel.

"Your majesty, forgive my rudeness but let me rip his limbs and poke his eyes out to knock some sense into him," Demigod Backster offered, feeling that the majesty of his queen was being sullied by a sewer rat and he wondered why would Anna fall for some like him.

"You can try," Baylor said glaring at Demigod Backster.

Colleen signaled Backster to step back while Agent Lois let Baylor use this opportunity to show the boy who was really on his side. They all were demigods and one had a godly physique, how could the vulgar thoughts of the boy escape their perception?

Seeing the boy continuing with his antics despite the ruckus surrounding him, Colleen admired his guts but disapproved of him as the partner her granddaughter had chosen for herself and said, "You are lucky I hate to be the reason my granddaughter is sad."

"No, I am lucky because I got to see the most beautiful creation to ever set foot in this world."

With the boy's words the atmosphere surrounding the cemetery suddenly grew a lot colder and quieter, as if the Ice-age had descended. Even the four who accompanied Colleen forgot to breathe.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

[1,029 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 03:33

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, St. Raymond's Cemetery

"No, I am lucky because I got to see the most beautiful creation to ever set foot in this world," This line might be cheesy and cringe but that was what kept the demigods surrounding me from perceiving my thoughts.

The first thing I learned about the demigods was that, when called by their name, they could perceive who called them no matter where the person was in the world as long as they were not separated by planes. I would be a fool to think that such perceptive beings would not be able to perceive my thoughts when they were right by my side. Take the card demigod who compared my eyes with mama Wyatt's eyes for example. I managed to mask my real thoughts by having Hive AI recreate the sorrow that young

Wyatt went through when he learned about the demise of his parents using his memories. So despite my desperate attempt to escape, the card demigod perceived I was using humor to mask my sadness.

I was only able to do this because of my mutated soul's multiple consciousnesses covered using the dungeon calamity seed cover. Despite that, it was not hundred percent certain that the demigods would buy what I was selling. To increase the odds in my favor I had to use what I learned in sales 101 which was basically the basics of conning. Therefore, I did not mask thoughts using lies that were believable but the lies that demigods would believe in.

In the case of the demigod who seemed to care about mama Wyatt, I used young Wyatt's sorrow and longing for his mother. And in the case of Anna's grandmother, I acted like a pervert because no grandparent would believe any man would be good enough for their granddaughter. And also because I wanted her to be repulsed by the idea of being together with Anna. I was this daring because I knew due to the oath between me and Anna, the southern royal family would tolerate and protect me at all costs.

Why go through all this trouble to fake my thoughts when the dungeon calamity seed cover made it difficult for them to perceive them? The reason was simple, it was in my best interest that these people underestimated me. The more they underestimated me the easier for me to get away with things or even escape when the time was right. Though it was highly unlikely, at least I am doing everything in my power.

My plan was already showing results, and thanks to it I learned that all five of them were not one group, they seemed to be divided into two groups. Anna's grandmother and the demigod that spoke up to cut my limbs and poke my eyes out formed one group. While the remaining two demigods along with a semi-demigod were another group. I came to this conclusion because they sided with the demigod who seemed to know mama Wyatt since the start.

I also learned that not everyone knew about Anna's oath to me, because the demigod who addressed Anna's mother respectfully would not have made claims to hurt me, had he known the oath between Anna and me. All the allies of the southern royal family not knowing about the oath between me and Anna had its advantages and disadvantages. A disadvantage was already demonstrated by the demigod who was in Anna's grandmother's group. As for the advantages, I will not be hunted by enemies of the southern royal family only to make Anna the target of the world's will's punishment for not being able to hold her end of the oath.

All these discoveries were of little use to me, what I really wanted to know was the identity of the second group and why were they here. Their arrival was starting to remind me Jill's warning, therefore while faking my thoughts for the demigods to perceive I ordered old Ben to speed up the plan and leave the city as soon as possible. Then I contacted Van and ordered him to collect a few cores from old Ben, find Susan, and head to the central academic region immediately. The idea was simple, I wanted them out of the city and as far from here as possible. Since the arrival of these five people, I felt that something was not right, the southern royal family seemed to have dropped the ball somewhere down the line. The presence of a second group that was not allied to the southern royal family down here was a sign that I was right to think so.

"You asshole, what nonsense are you spotting?" A familiar voice yelled from above us. It was Anna accompanied by Ann.

"Fuck, what took you so long? Ask her to let go of me. I would love to spend eternity in her company but I am starting to feel claustrophobic," The mysterious force that stopped me from flying away was still binding me and also tightened with the passing second, I really wasn't lying about feeling claustrophobic.

"What the fuck is wrong with you?" Anna asked furiously, arriving next to me.

"I worry that I will not be able to enjoy her beauty if I pass out," I ignored Anna and continued my act.

Before Anna could erupt in rage again, Colleen looked at her granddaughter a little disappointed, and asked her, "And you gave this clown the ring I passed on to you? Are the daughters of my family destined to marry unworthy men?"

Listening to Colleen, General Baylor, Agent Lois, Agent Uri, and demigod Backster finally reacted to the ring on the boy's finger. Wasn't this the heirloom of the Hentsend Royal family? It was not a surprise that Colleen would pass it to Anna considering that she is the sole direct heir of the southern royal family. What surprised them was what this ring represents and what it signifies being worn by the boy. They could not help but take a second look at the boy and then at Anna and found that the words in the dictionary weren't enough to describe their rampant thoughts.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1151 Suicidal Fool

[1,085 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 03:42

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, St. Raymond's Cemetery

All four of them looked at the boy with great astonishment, knowing Anna's reputation they did not know whether to consider him lucky or unlucky, therefore a combination of envious and petty filled gaze landed on the boy. Especially the visitors from the central capital took this as a sign that the boy had indeed invented the silver milk powder and the southern royal family was trying to keep the patent of the item for themselves by making the boy their son-in-law, considering that the boy was an orphan this was just too simple.

Neither of the three from the central capital seem to be surprised by the notion that the royal family would use their sole heir just to gain the complete patent of the item silver milk powder because the gain outweighed the loss by miles. The boy marrying the future ruler of the south was just right for erasing any debate about the boy starting his own family one day. And even if they were to divorce one day then the southern royal family would be in the complete right to fight for the patent rights of the item silver milk powder.

Therefore instead of questioning the morality of the southern royal family for using their only heir the visitor from the central capital commended them for their decisive and thorough planning. Had they not arrived today then the southern royal family would be the through and through winner here.

Since they were here they might as well play the part and object to the future ruler of the south marrying the future richest person in the world. But they were one step too late, somebody beat them to the punch, it was none other than demigod Backster, the demigod whose only known achievement so far was to date Anna for the longest period.

"No, he can't marry her highness southern emperor," demigod Backster blurted anxiously, surprising everyone. As the ex of Anna who still had strong feelings for her, Backster could not stand the thought of Anna rolling in another person's arms let alone marrying someone else. So he blurted out his inner thoughts out of turn. Out of turn? Yes, he was a demigod serving under the southern royal family but his status or authority was not high enough to interfere in the southern region affairs let alone the southern royal family affairs. Except for dating Anna, he did not have any notable achievements to show for his current position. If not for his useful card, he would not be stationed at the southern royal palace but at the southern front of the way beyond.

Feeling Colleen's stern gaze land on him, Backster realized his mistake, bowing his head he hurriedly apologized, "Forgive my insolence, your highness."

Soldier Queen Colleen snorted in response to Backster's apology and said, "Even if he is just a vulgar card soldier, respect the ring on his finger."

"Grandma!" Anna cried in complaint hearing her grandma speak demeaningly to the boy, choosing to ignore demigod Backster, mostly because she did not want to cause any unnecessary misunderstanding as she recently learned that her crush was not completely ok with her past.

"What? Were my words wrong?" Colleen asked her granddaughter but her gaze stayed on the boy. He still dared to have indecent thoughts toward her despite her repeated warnings. So to teach him a lesson she increased the force of her grip on the boy.

"Everybody has to die one day but if I were to die in your hands I have no complaints, maybe this is the way to heaven," I said feeling my head would pop if Colleen squeezed any harder. Thanks to my physique I did not have to worry even if that were to happen.

Still, I stuck to my act mostly to spite Anna's grandmother, I really did not like the way she looked at me. Those eyes remind me of my days back on earth when I was still figuring out life. I was not sure if she hated me purely because of Anna or if she really hated me. Intentionally or unintentionally whatever the reason maybe we have started on the wrong foot, blows have been exchanged now there was no going back.

The three visitors from the central capital looked at the boy as if they were looking at a suicidal fool, not only was the boy engaged to the granddaughter but he also dared to flirt with her grandmother in front of her, if he wasn't a suicidal fool then what was he? A dead man walking. Somewhere deep down they could not help but commend the gutsy boy.

"Wyatt, do you have a death wish?" Anna erupted, grabbing the boy by his collar as she glared at him. And to her surprise, the boy looked straight into her eyes and yelled, "Go away you tease, I don't want to die in your hands, I don't want to go to hell."

"Fuck you, you limpdick, I will show you hell right here. Grandma, remove your hold on him, today, I will teach him what a dog's death is," Anna was furious, a tease, the boy called her a tease and also dared to compare her to a devil, i.e according to the devil lore the soul of the people killed by the devil forcefully taken go to the hell by the devil that killed them.

"..." Colleen looked at the boy and her granddaughter and could not help but frown. These two brats acted as if they were being wronged when it was she who was humiliated here. Not only did the boy dare to molest her by openly imagining vulgar thoughts about her but he dared to openly flirt with her in the presence of her granddaughter who was supposedly his lover. How humiliating and embarrassing should this be for her? Yet, the two brats in front of her acted as if they were the victim.

What pissed her off, even more, was that her granddaughter was seemingly not as enraged when the boy dared to flirt with her openly in her presence as when the boy called her a tease and compared her to a devil.

While the boy along with grandma and granddaughter pair was hung on settling scores with each other. Agent Lois and Agent Uri were having a heated mental discussion feeling that their original course of action of getting demigod Baylor to adopt the boy was no longer a possibility.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1152 Agent Uri Makes His Move

[1,040 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 03:54

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, St. Raymond's Cemetery

There was a good reason for Agent Lois and Uri to feel that the course of action they prepared to execute will not be successful because amidst the bickering between the boy, the southern emperor, and the soldier queen, they learned that the boy was closer to the southern royal family than they imagined, and adding the fact that he was the finance of the southern emperor, it was clear if they continued with their previous plan in mind they would be setting themselves up to fail.

Even if they were to ignore the close relationship between the boy and the southern royal family, when it came between becoming an adopted son of a general from the central capital or becoming the prince consort of the southern region, the choice was obvious and a no-brainer. No matter from which angle they saw the possibility of demigod Baylor adopting the boy was very low. But without this, they had no other plan to get the boy on their side. With one single piece of news, their entire operation had now come to a halt. Agent Lois and Uri were now at their wit's end and did not know how to proceed. If it were up to them they would not hesitate to use desperate moves to complete the mission but it wasn't. They did not know how far the higher-ups were willing to offend the southern royal family for the item 'silver milk powder,' what was the bottom line? What was the highest price they were willing to pay?

While Agent Uri and Lois were having their crises, general Baylor was happy to see that Ellen's son was doing fine on his own. Yes, Soldier Queen was constraining the boy but if she really wanted to harm him she had many other fun ways. Like Agent Uri and Lois, General Baylor also assumed that the boy was close with the southern royal family and that the royal family also treated him kindly. But he had one big problem with this arrangement, Ellen's son's engagement to the southern emperor. He has not only heard of Anna's stories but also witnessed a few of them, she was very popular. So for anyone in a high position, it was hard to have not heard about Anna. He personally strongly felt that Anna was not worthy of Ellen's son. If not for Demigod Backster beating him to the punch, he would have objected to Ellen's son's marriage with Anna. But seeing how Colleen defended the marriage between her granddaughter and the boy despite appearing not to be approving of the boy, Baylor knew without approaching this properly he could not get the result he wanted. So, thinking of something he approached Agent Uri and Lois, 'Agent Lois, tell me you have plans to stop the marriage between the boy and the southern emperor?'

'That is something we too don't want to see happening but you have seen the soldier queen's stance when her subordinate said the same. If you have any brilliant idea tell me,' Agent Lois's thoughts were exactly the same as demigod Baylor but they were out of ideas.

'I can't guarantee this will work but get me some alone time with the boy. I will talk to him, he is just a teenager. I think if I played my cards right and used the southern emperor's party-loving character against her then maybe even if he doesn't decide to become my adopted son he will not be willing to marry into the southern royal family. Besides if he is really that desperate and lonely, the central capital doesn't lack young women,' Baylor explained. He said this not only because he did not approve of the southern emperor as Ellen's daughter-in-law but also because he did not want Agent Lois and Agent Uri to use desperate means to complete their mission. Because that would put Ellen's son in possible danger.

'Speak ill of the southern emperor's character and honey trap the boy. That's your plan General, damn you would make a good addition to tv's housewife reality show,' Agent Uri mocked Baylor's plan.

'Agent Uri, if you have nothing to add to the missions please shut the fuck up,' Agent Lois disagreed with Agent Uri, she felt that what demigod Baylor made sense. Their target was a horny teenager. As long as they have enough honey, maybe just maybe they could pull this mission off without turning to desperate means. But, will the southern royal family sit by and watch as they did this? Obviously not. However, she did not come here all the way to just give up at the first sign of a hurdle.

Resolute, Agent Lois looked at the three that bickered without bothering for their surroundings and company, cleared her throat at them, and said, "Ahem* your highness, forgive my rudeness but we would like to question the accused Dalton Wyatt along with Dr. Luna Lorn."

Before Colleen could answer Agent Lois, Anna glared at her and yelled, "Who are you calling the accused you bitch?"

"Your Highness, southern emperor, please mind your tongue," Being called a bitch by Anna Agent Lois's right eye shone with radiance but it soon faded, clearly Agent Lois controlled herself from having an outburst.

"You..." Anna shouted preparing to put the unknown semi-demigod in her place but was interrupted by Ann who acted like a spectator this whole time.

As soon as Ann arrived she mentally contacted her grandmother to get up to speed about what was happening while monitoring the scene from the sidelines because she felt there was something fishy about the demigod, he did not speak once since their arrival, Agent Uri. It took her a while but she soon figured out why she felt something wrong about him, it was because he was like her, no, not entirely like her but somewhat similar to her. Then where is his original self? In hiding, why? Was this not just a simple investigation? Was there more to the story? Baffled Ann continued to monitor Agent Uri for answers but she saw him suddenly rush towards her grandma, Anna, and the boy, so interrupting Anna she yelled, "Grandma, Watch out."

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1153 Millennium-Old Virgin

[1,094 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 00:51

Location- Empire, Michel Angelo City, Church of Michel Angelo, Unknown

In a spacious luxury hot tub, a voluptuous beautiful woman was enjoying a calming and relaxing soak thinking she was all alone. Weird, she wasn't alone though, sitting a few inches next to her was a bulky man enjoying the soak and her beauty in the very same hot tub but the woman did not seem to notice his presence. Not that the woman was physically or mentally challenged rather she was a card demigod, yet she seemed to not notice the existence of the man right next to her, even when his grimoire was buzzing receiving a call. The problem was not with the woman but the man, it was as if the entire world was forgetful of his presence and everything closely related to him.

"Agent Uri, reporting sir," Demigod Uri said, answering the call of his handler. Despite his loud voice, the woman next to him in the hot tub did not seem to hear him, instead, she was so relaxed that she closed her eyes shut.

"Uri, you have two new missions. You can juggle two missions at once, right?" a husky voice spoke from the other side.

"Yes, sir," Agent Uri answered affirmatively but his gaze remained stuck to the woman's plump wet gorgeous breasts.

"Good, you will be shadowing Agent Forger for a mission while covertly performing another mission. Lay rest to your current mission and read the files I have sent to you briefing about your two new missions before meeting me here, understood?" the husky voice asked.

"Do I really have to complete my current mission so soon? You know I can juggle three missions at once, right?" Agent Uri said while his eyes longingly looked at the naked female demigod next to him. Except for avoiding physical touch, Agent Uri did nothing to hide his presence from the female demigod but she did not seem to even realize his presence let alone his perverted gaze scrutinizing every nook and corner of her supple body.

"No, your new missions are of a very sensitive nature with an insanely high risk factor. They will require your hundred percent, nothing less. Got it?" the voice replied very sternly to help Agent Uri understand the seriousness of the missions assigned to him.

"Well, it's just that I was always curious whether a thousand-year-old virgin pussy will age fine like a wine or rot," Agent Uri licked his lips with his tongue looking at the lily-white naked alluring beauty beside him, totally defenseless and unaware of the predator eyeing her.

"With your ability you should have already gotten a glimpse of it, right?" Hearing Agent Uri mention his dilemma, his handler tried reasoning with him. He did not seem to be bothered by Agent Uri's action. Working as Uri's handler for decades he was used to Uri's voyeur capabilities.

"The packaging seems alright but I cannot vouch for the goods inside. I will send you some pics, you tell me," Agent Uri submerged his head into the hot tub and stared at the female demigod's nether region. Thankfully, under the calm and relaxing effect of the warm water, the female demigod had spread her legs to get comfortable in the hot tub, making it easier for Agent Uri to get clear shots of her forbidden garden.

"You know, for a nun's pussy it is very clean. If she shaved down there, then she might have had frequent visitors down there too. Why mow the lawn when nobody is going to see it? If you catch my drift," The handler grew skeptically about the demigod nun's virginity status seeing her mowed lawn.

"No, I can smell it on her. She is a genuine millennium-old virgin. Maybe she doesn't like the fuzz down there. It is not a crime to be hygienic, you know," Agent Uri trusted his instincts.

"Well, you are the expert on these things, so I will take your word for it," The handler took Uri's word for it and then broke the difficult news to him, "I hate to say this but you will have to end your mission now. Your new missions are a go in less than an hour."

"Come on, sir! It's the rarely seen millennium-old pussy, it will be a sin to just ruin it without tasting it," Agent Uri quibbled.

"Uri, if you are going to be difficult about this I will forward this call to our master, you talk it with him. We are pressed on time as it is," the handler did not bother to reason with Agent Uri this time rather he threatened him using their master.

"Don't involve our master in this, I will end it here and meet you at the base in fifteen minutes," Agent Uri no longer argued and agreed to his handler's arrangements.

"Uri, I know what you're thinking but the nun is not an easy target to subdue, there is a reason why our master wants her dead. Five minutes, if I don't see you, all of you, here by then I will be forced to take the necessary actions, that is how sensitive your new missions are. If it was some other time, not to mention fifteen minutes I would have given you an entire day but my hands are tied, do you understand?" The handler knew Agent Uri's capabilities and that it wouldn't require him more than a minute to complete his current mission. So when Uri asked for fifteen minutes the handler knew exactly what Uri was planning to do with the extra minutes. Therefore, he immediately warned Agent Uri to not mess around and meet him in the next five minutes.

"Five minutes, got it," saying that Uri ended the call with his handler. Then he looked at the naked beauty relaxing totally defenseless and pondered on ways to not sin by killing a millennium-old virgin before tasting it. Soon a mischievous grin formed on Uri's lips.

Soon Uri's naked body started to float. Then it hovered near the female demigod, slowly, making sure there was no physical contact between the two of them and it stopped when Uri's erect meat rod was a hairs length away from the nun's pink cave entrance.

"Here goes nothing," uttering that Uri deactivated his ability and immediately shoved his meat rod into the demigod nun's pink cave. Feeling Uri's presence on and in her, the nun opened her eyes to find glowing Uri yelling, "Congrats on losing your virginity, Baby!"

KaBoom With that a humongous mushroom cloud raised to the sky. As for the hot tub, it had pulverized.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1154 Cost Of Willfullness

[1,120 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 00:53

Location- Empire, Michel Angelo City, Church of Michel Angelo, Unknown

A demigod detonating oneself was a rare but deadly sight as the cocktail of various energy stored in the body of a demigod was no joke. The frightening thing was that the energy in this explosion wasn't just the result of soul energy as fuel but the mixture of soul energy, rule energy, and divinity. An explosion with soul energy and rule energy as fuel was deadly by itself but by adding divine power to the mix, the resulting explosion was enough to pulverize everything within the area of effect. Such was the case with the Church of Michel Angelo and every card apprentice present in it, they were wiped out from the face of this world.

Uri's abilities made him a perfect human bomb, he would get close to his target hiding his presence, and self-detonate, killing the target without leaving behind much evidence. Like Agent Forger, he too was the puppet government's master's hidden talents unknown to the rest of the world. His abilities were perfect for a spy and were made for espionage and assassination.

Uri's mission was to kill the demigod nun of the Michel Angelo church but he was unwilling to sin by killing a millennium-old virgin without taking it for a ride first. So he hatched a plan to complete the mission while getting what he wanted. So as soon as he shoved his erect meat rod into the demigod nun's pink cave, he immediately self-detonated while congratulating the nun for finally losing her virginity after a millennium.

At first, Uri wanted to subdue and force himself on the nun but he was reminded by his handler that there must be a reason why their master personally wanted this nun dead. A millennium was a long time, someone of this age must have survived a lot of things. Therefore Uri did not dare to underestimate this demigod nun and immediately detonated himself when he thought he achieved what he wanted.

Unfortunately for Agent Uri, his willfulness had become the saving grace for the demigod nun of the Church of Michel Angelo. As soon as Uri deactivated the ability to hide his presence, the demigod nun reacted immediately and activated the broken time rune in her divinity, slowing down the time, turning the last few milliseconds of her life into the last second of her life, giving her enough time to close her thighs clamping Uri's meat rod between them preventing it from defiling her while activating the last resort that she had prepared for in case of desperate times like this. Agent Uri's one willful act not only became the life-saving grace for the demigod nun but it also allowed her to protect her innocence until the very end. Because of the warm water, the nun's soft thighs, and the rush, Uri never realized that his willfulness not only cost him the mission but he failed to achieve what risked everything for.

The Michel Angelo city had two parts to it, the church of Michel Angelo at the center and the city surrounding it. Thanks to the Church's vanity and Uri compressing the blast radius to focus it on the demigod nun, the city and its citizens were not the victims of Agent Uri's self-detonation. How did the Church's vanity save the city and its citizens?

Not only was the church constructed in the middle of the city but it also surrounded itself with 30 square miles of gardens filled with monuments of Michel Angelo and his brave followers. And surrounding the 30 square mile gardens was a wide and deep moat separating the gardens from the actual city. Because demigod Uri compressed his self-detonation blast radius to ensure that the demigod nun would die for sure, the blast pulverized up to 7 square miles. That only included the church and the innermost part of its garden. As for the smoke and dust mushroom cloud, it was the result of the aftershock that spread as far as 60 square miles taking down large and old buildings in the area. Throwing the entire city into chaos. This was the result of Agent Uri focusing his self-detonation blast solely on the demigod nun, imagine if he didn't.

...

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 00:53

Location- Central Region, Central Capital, Unknown, Restricted Command Base

Agent Uri dressed in his uniform was reading the files shared to his grimoire by his handler in confusion, then he received a notification from his grimoire informing him that one of him had self-detonated and he could revive them by sacrificing appropriate amounts of soul energy, rule energy, and divinity. Considering that he was able to kill a millennium-old demigod without leaving a trace behind it was worth the price.

Ignoring that notification, Agent Uri read the notification that followed, asking him to prepare himself for a load of memory transfer. Agent Uri prepared himself as he closed his eyes and soon the dreaded memory transfer occurred, after a few seconds he opened his eyes finally understanding what the files share to his grimoire by his handler were for, and sighed, "Pity I didn't get to take that antique but rare virgin pussy for it's first and last ride."

Then he began to write his mission report, after writing a lousy report in under a minute he submitted it to his handler's grimoire and walked out of his office to head to meet his handler at his office.

...

"On time, and the mission report has been submitted to your grimoire," Said Agent Uri as sat across from his handler.

"I read the report, many details were missing, let's leave it for another day. Now, did you read the files I shared with your grimoire?" The handler ignored the discrepancies in Uri's mission report in light of discussing other serious business.

"Yes, I did but if I have to carry on the second mission, doesn't that put Agent Lois in danger? Not to mention do we have to expose her if everything is going to end like that?"

The handler who had the most knowledge of the two new missions understood what Agent Uri was trying to say. Since Agent Uri's covert second mission was to kill the boy in case the item silver milk powder happened to exist, then why go through all the drama of getting General Baylor to adopt the boy, exposing Agent Lois? Could he not just use his ability to infiltrate the south and kill the boy regardless of whether the item, silver milk powder, was a fraud or not? Wouldn't this way be simpler and much cleaner?

"That is because at present even someone with your capabilities will not be able to infiltrate the city where the boy is being held."

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1155 Henrick's Interest

[1,204 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 00:59

Location- Central Region, Central Capital, Unknown, Restricted Command Base

"That is because at present even someone of your capability will not be able to infiltrate the city where the boy is being held."

Listening to his handler, Uri could not help but lift his eyebrows. Except for a few people with exceptional physiques such as Agent Lois and her godly 'Right Eye of the World' physique, many have fallen prey to his capabilities. The list of his preys was long and filled with notable big names, just take the millennium-old nun from a few minutes ago, she was supposedly the holy maiden of the church of Michel Angelo and the current guardian of the runes of Michel Angelo himself. If the church was willing to let her guard the runes of Michel Angelo himself, one has to understand how powerful and influential the millennium-old demigod nun he killed a few moments ago was.

Uri's list of achievements goes on about many feats thought to be impossible before. And his handler was the living witness of his feats, for him to claim that even he could not infiltrate the south and kill the boy meant the mission had more to it. So, instead of disagreeing with his handler, Uri patiently waited for his handler to explain to him why and what he meant by his words. For a card apprentice that doesn't exist on any legal document, his capabilities were what he had going for him. When they were challenged he could not help but slightly get offended.

"It's because of Field Marshal Heatsend, she suddenly rushed back from her covert job a few days ago and now is personally guarding the southern region, especially the city the boy is in," the Handler spoke grimly, showing how dreaded Field Marshal Heatsend was even in the secret organization that ran the government. What was more dreadful was the organization could track Field Marshal Heatsend's activity.

"Wait, with her watching how do I use my abilities without getting caught?" It was a common practice among all predators to know what can kill them and choose to stay far away from them. The same was the case with Uri, along with his list of achievements he had another list that contained the names of people whom he cannot mess with, interestingly it wasn't the list wasn't short, and among the top ten names on the list, Field Marshal Heatsend's name was one of them.

"That is the reason for the drama about General Baylor adopting the kid and why Agent Lois will be going along with you. Remember even if it is all bullshit stick to the part," though the mission read that Agent Lois would be leading the team, the way the handler said it, it sounded otherwise.

"Wait, her masters are okay with our master using her like that?" Uri asked his handler in concern because their masters were very protective of Agent Lois since the day she was brought into the organization as a toddler, the amount of attention she got was so insane that everyone felt like she was the lead and they were all part of her story. They could not even dare to be jealous of her, as the level of affection she was showered with was insanely high to the point where others did not even bother to compare themselves to her and just went along with it.

"Well, our Master agreed to let Agent Lois be the Field Marshal post that is going to be empty soon. Not to mention Master was going to favor Agent Lois for the Field Marshal seat over other candidates eventually but he saw an opportunity here," Handler revealed. There wasn't even the slightest hint of envy in his voice as said this nor did he feel that he was more qualified and had more merits than Agent Lois for the job.

"Hold that thought for a second, what do you mean our master would have favored Agent Lois eventually? Didn't he say otherwise regarding the same to Field Marshal Henricks?" Uri was confused because their master promised Henricks to favor one of Henricks's disciples to take the soon-to-be empty field marshal seat to get Henricks on his side.

Henricks was one of the top players that all the masters of their organization were trying to recruit on their side. But Henricks was too cunning, he exchanged his support only if they helped him to amass a bit of power in the organization, and with one of his disciples filling in one of the limited seats as field marshal, his status and authority would increase considerably, maybe even enough for him to stand on equal footing to their master.

Uri was so concerned about his master's word to Henricks because Henricks was the only success story about a recruited talent from a humble background making it in the organization, the only one who was about to climb high enough to stand beside their masters, the real rulers of this world. If Henricks were to make it so far, then it meant that one day he too had a possibility of reaching that height. Amidst his dream Uri forgot to ask one important question, how did Henricks make it so far with no proper support within the organization? Simple, Henricks was just too strong. So much so that the strings that controlled him when he was first introduced to the organization snapped and vanished, setting him free and no one in the organization held him accountable for it to date.

"It's for Agent Lois, so the field Marshal Henricks will have to understand. If her name was not thrown out for that position our master would have favored Field Marshal Henricks's disciples for the position. You know how things work around here," Handler spoke as if the name Agent Lois was an undebatable and valid reason.

Listening to his handler's reasoning Uri did not dare to say that their master never planned to keep his word with Henricks but he did think about it and understood that though their organization claimed to operate on a merit-based system in reality it was more corrupt and biased than four royal families and the empire. There was no hope for talents with a humble background in the organization, they could only be running dogs of their masters and unless they were favored like Agent Lois they can forget about ever losing the leashes around their necks, the leash would only tighten if they were to show any sign of rebellion or deserting regardless of the merits they accumulated working for the organization so far. Though Uri felt for Henricks, he had a more pressing issue right now, his life. If he were to infiltrate the city with Field Marshal Heatsend standing guard he can only start engraving his headstone, knowing that his masters would rather have him lay in an unmarked tomb than pitch in for a decent tombstone out of respect for his service to them. So he asked his handler, "Enough about that, how the heck does Agent Lois tagging along with me help my mission? With Field Marshal's capabilities, I will be dead even before I get close to her granddaughter, forget kidnapping her."

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

[1,301 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 01:03

Location- Central Region, Central Capital, Unknown, Restricted Command Base

Agent Uri's two new missions were as follows,

First, infiltrate the Southern region's Sky Blossom city under the guise of helping Agent Lois in her investigation into the southern royal family under the authority of the Secret Police.

Second, locate Dr. Luna Lorn and Dalton Wyatt. Then Kidnap Dr. Luna Lorn, Assassinate Dalton Wyatt, and rendezvous at the mentioned classified hideout.

At first glance, these two missions look like a simple mission of infiltration, kidnapping, and assassination but once the identity of the targets was considered, this mission risk level would turn into the highest possible level. Uri who had read the files on the new missions shared with his grimoire by his handler wasn't concerned at first and felt a little offended because frankly, he thought that these missions were unnecessarily being turned complicated and a bit beneath his level. Until the name Field Marshal Heatsend was brought up. If he had to face her, a part of him wanted to take his chances trying to run away from his organization, because facing Field Marshal Heatsend meant instant death even for someone of his capabilities.

Therefore, when Uri heard that the organization's solution for this problem was revealing Agent Lois to the southern royal family and the fucking bullshit cover of general Baylor adopting the assassination target, he started to worry for his life and even thought that the organization was trying to get rid of him without getting their hands dirty and asked, "How the heck does Agent Lois tagging along with me help my mission? With Field Marshal's capabilities, I will be dead even before I get close to her granddaughter, forget kidnapping her."

As an elite handler, Uri's handler immediately saw through his thoughts and calmly consoled Uri saying, "Relax, you know better than me that the organization will not try to get rid of you, though they don't care for you as an individual, you know how much they value your abilities. Frankly, I am surprised you would think that despite your history with the organization."

"That doesn't answer how Agent Lois is going to help with my mission, Sir," Uri did not bother with what his handler said because his handler was one of the nepo-babies, this alone made the handler very loyal to the organization, and right for the handler job, not to mention he did not have to worry about being ditched by the organization at its convenience. Someone like him would never understand what he was going through.

"I am getting to that," the handler fixed his posture and then continued saying, "The reason why Agent Lois's presence will help you in your mission is that one of the additional effects of Agent Lois's physique is a bane of Field Marshal Heatsend's specialty that allows Field Marshal Heatsend to counter your origin card.

Agent Lois's godly physique has many miraculous functions and one of them is to mask her past, present, and future at her will. Not just her alone but also her surroundings too. During the mission as long as one of you sticks close to Agent Lois, you can mask your presence along with your past, present, and future under the influence of her physique while the remaining of you can perform your mission without worrying about Field Marshal Heatsend, as she will not be able to learn what you are really up to."

"You and I, both know that Field Marshal Heatsend's specialty is not what she is known for or what makes her deadly. Agent Lois's presence will only delay the inevitable, once Field Marshal Heatsend catches on to my mission, it will be too late for me to cry," Though Uri did not have the pleasure of facing Field Marshal Heatsend but he has heard about her abilities, heck every operative in the organization was warned to avoid Field Marshal Heatsend as much as possible. Falling on her radar as an enemy was equal to game-over. She was just leagues above their level.

"Yes, even with Agent Lois's physique covering your tracks it will be hard but you will have to be smart about this and complete your mission as fast as possible. In case your cover is blown, 15 mins, is how long Henrick has promised to keep Field Marshal Heatsend busy. Within that 15 minutes, you will have to complete your mission and escape. As for General Baylor and Agent Lois, they can take care of themselves," the Handler revealed the contingency the organization had prepared for the smooth completion of the mission even if it were to meet hiccups midway.

"15 minutes, huh," Uri hesitated and did not give his handler an answer, not because he felt the time was short but because he wondered whether Henricks was strong enough to hold off Field Marshal Heatsend for 15 minutes. Not that Uri underestimated Field Marshal Henricks but considering his opponent was Field Marshal Heatsend he couldn't help but do so. After all, his life was on the line and the bloody history of the Unparalleled bloodline was not something to gloss over.

Hesitation on Uri's face was obvious, it was impossible for his handler to miss it but he did not blame Uri for being reluctant to take on the mission, not that it was a choice but he understood where Uri was coming from, those with Unparalleled bloodline were just monsters, their strength was on another level. But unlike Uri, his handler knew Henricks, this field marshal was as cunning as he was strong if he said he can hold off field marshal Heatsend for fifteen minutes then he would otherwise he would not have said so.

"Sir, you know what, now that I think about it, I feel that the government stands to gain more if they let demigod Baylor adopt that kid," Uri knew he cannot reject the missions even if they were suicide missions but there was still time for the missions to start if he was wise about this he can change his master's mind about the objective of the mission.

"Shut up, Uri. The government stands to gain more with the boy's death. With him out of the picture, we can regulate the item 'silver milk powder' at our convenience and price, i.e if it exists. If it really does exist then it could be the arrow that our query is missing to get rid of the four royal families and the empire for good. Before you spout some other bullshit, Just take a look inside this storage card," Saying that Uri's handler handed him an SSS-rank Storage card.

"Fuck," Uri cursed looking into the storage card wondering, 'How many semi-demigods and demigods do I have to kill to gather this much divinity?'

"That is your pay for the two missions in advance. So, now, do you still have any problem with the two missions assigned to you?" The storage card contained the largest amount of refined divinity both Uri and his handler had seen in one place.

"Sir, no, sir!" Uri knew that the reason the organization gave him this much divinity as advance payment was that they wanted to help him use his origin card to the full of its potential and not be limited by lack of divinity during the mission. Considering the threat level of the mission, by the end of the mission, Uri would be lucky to have even a tenth of the refined divinity in the storage card remaining. Yet, Uri accepted his mission because he did not have a choice even if his handler made it sound like he had one. And with this amount of divinity, even if things grow out of control he can guarantee his life. As for the rest, as long as he was alive he can always think of something.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1157 Disaster Strikes

[1,092 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 04:08

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, St. Raymond's Cemetery

All of us have been in the company of atleast one annoying couple who would say, 'He/she didn't say it but I heard him/her.' You feel like running them over with your car rather than agreeing that you want what they have. Until today, the day I would be a part of something like that, I thought they were just making that stuff up. Honestly, with my trust issues, I am surprised that today I too would get to experience something like that.

Having a mutated soul with multiple consciousnesses has made it easier for me to process multiple thoughts at a time which meant I could engage in multiple activities at a time. So while facing Anna and her grandmother I was busy with other things too. Such as monitoring my surroundings using my soul pupils. The presence of the second group of power that did not belong to the southern royal family had me very concerned. Especially with Jill's timely warning.

Now I feel I should have pressed Jill for information regarding her warning and not left it at that in order not to make things difficult for her. Not that knowing who this second group of demigods belonged to would help my situation but it would have been good to know who I am up against.

Sometimes information by itself was stronger than a fist. Quite frankly the old me would not have hesitated to manipulate Jill's feelings for me and try to monetize them. I don't know if this was a bad thing but since I had no plans of reciprocating Jill's feelings for me, for now, I think it was for the best. However, the old me would be disgusted with my current self for not using everything available. Since the priorities of my second life were different I don't think I should care what the old me would have done.

The demigod who accompanied the demigod who enquired about mama Wyatt, and the female semi-demigod, was very suspicious. Because I could see that his soul pathway and arrangements were very active compared to others as if he was using a card. At first, I just made a note of it and did not think much of it because I was not sure what kind of card he was using and believed that Anna's grandma and the demigod that followed her should be aware of it. As demigods, even if they are not array masters or card masters their heightened senses should be aware of what's happening in their surroundings.

Since they did not seem to mind him using a card I decided to leave it at that and concentrate on the female semi-demigod next to him, she seemed to have a physique that directly connected her to the World, her right eye in particular. I prioritized exploring the girl's physique over the suspicious activities of the demigod accompanying her and it proved to be a huge mistake on my part a few minutes later when his active soul pathways and arrangement suddenly bloat up with a refined and pure form of energy that I had seen the semi-demigods use, divinity, as he suddenly vanished from my sight.

It was at this moment I thanked Demigod Michel Angelo Godson for his Insight foresight skill and not just for unintentionally giving me an opportunity to learn the secret behind blessings. Thanks to this skill combined with my soul pupils and Hive AI, I could tell that he did not disappear but was rushing toward me. Seconds could not be used as a standard unit to measure his speed, even milliseconds seemed to be barely passable. My current cultivation barely allows my mind to keep up with such speed despite using all the skills in my arsenal let alone letting my body react in response to such speed.

I thought this was the end. But Anna, who was right next to me, suddenly jumped right in front of me. She seemed to have somehow heard the peril I was feeling. After the fight in the motel, I am dumbfounded to find Anna to be the one to share an emotional connection with me that transcended words.

But hearing Ann yell, "Grandma, watch out." I wondered whether it was Ann, Anna's origin card, that warned her of the threat. And the imminent danger to my life was making me see things that weren't there in the first place.

In the end, it all came down to whether I trusted Anna enough to fool myself into thinking the connection between us transcends words. Because, according to me, that was what love was, fooling ourselves into believing something that has no way of proving its fickle existence. At the same time an image of old me appeared in my mind, puffing a cigar and saying, 'Kiddo, it is good to know you are not beyond saving.'

'Who am I kidding, I am still the same,' I thought to myself as my bloodshot eyes watched Anna disappear with the hostile demigod, yelling, "Unparalleled Arena."

"What is the meaning of this?" Colleen shouted while her baleful aura bombarded confused Agent Lois and General Baylor as she prepared to rip their divinity out.

Before Agent Lois and General Baylor could answer, they heard Agent Uri's voice from behind them, "One down three to go."

Agent Lois and General Baylor wanted to question Agent Uri but they paused seeing that there were two Agent Uri. Using this opportunity Uri said, "Priority Code Alpha, I am leading this mission now. Agent Lois, take care of the southern emperor's twin. General Baylor, kidnap the boy, while I hold off Soldier queen and Southern Emperor's ex, we only have 10 minutes before field marshal Heatsend intervenes. So now or never people."

Without waiting for Agent Lois and General Baylor to answer, the two Agent Uris rushed towards Soldier Queen and demigod Backster. The reason he asked general Baylor to kidnap the boy instead of killing him was that he was warned that if general Baylor knew the true goal of their mission, he would not hesitate to turn against them. Besides, once they bring the boy to the rendezvous point it would not be too late for him to kill him. Right now his only priority was to make it to the hideout within the 15-minute time limit.

Taking the margin of error and time required for them to make it to the hideout into account, 10 minutes was what they could use out of the 15 minutes.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1158 Transcending Words, Bad Luck In Her Life

[1,042 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 04:08

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, St. Raymond's Cemetery

"Grandma, how do you know grandpa loves you when he doesn't say it enough and is too busy to show it?"

"Silly girl, what kind of question is that? Your grandpa does not need to say he loves me or show it because I know he loves me."

"Cringe. But wouldn't it be nice to have him say or express it once in a while?"

"For insecure women maybe but not me. If you are fortunate, I hope you will experience it in your life."

Grabbing hold of the boy's collar, Anna wanted to question him about how she can be a tease for wanting their relationship to be more meaningful and savoury but right at that moment she saw a look in his eyes that shouted he saw death rushing toward him.

What do you do when you see death heading toward you? Try to get out of its way. But this boy, from his eyes, she heard them scream,

'Whatever may happen next, know this, I, Dalton Wyatt, love you.'

So Anna could not help but jump in front of him to face death in his place as if she would ever watch as harm befall him, "Unparalleled Arena."

This moment, this action of Anna, was pure instinct. Ann's mental warning may have played a part in it but Anna would beg to differ. Because for her, her connection with the boy had transcended the realm of words.

"Southern emperor, activate."

"Unparalleled Glory."

"I am dumb! Mother, help your silly daughter."

"Activate, S-Rank, Bestowal Card, Starry Array Sky Slate."

"Pre-recorded array formation,

Summon! Southern Crown constellation array formation, one of 88 constellations array formation.

Activate, pledge of 'stars of south', the south protects those that protect them."

KaBoom

...

Uri had rushed towards the boy preparing to take him out by detonating himself regardless of the friendly in the vicinity because he was told they could take care of themselves. But things did not go Uri's way, even before he could self-detonate, the southern emperor had transported them into one of her famous field cards. Still, he proceeded with self-detonation with a simple aim, one less hostile.

In the meantime, Anna activated the pledge of 'stars of south' of the southern crown array formation knowing that she would be taking on the full concentrated blast of a demigod self-detonating.

Even before Anna and Uri appeared in the arena they had played their first move. Now the only question that remained was whether Anna would be able to survive Uri's suicide bombing.

Even before Uri's explosion could reach him an array of stars conjured and covered Anna, shielding her from the blast. But the force of the explosion was too large, it managed to shatter the shield of stars and make its way to Anna.

Cough Cough

Anna coughed blood as her incomplete and blood-covered body lay on the arena floor. Her limbs were missing and underneath the blood stains was her charred skin. What was left of her body did not have a single hair, they were all burnt with the explosion. She was barely able to grip her consciousness from passing to the afterlife.

Despite her severe condition, Anna had achieved the impossible, she survived the suicide bombing of a demigod. But considering that a lot of her unparalleled bloodline had been consumed this result was given. After all, the Unparalleled Bloodline was the strongest and most resilient bloodline of all.

Right then another set of stars conjured and covered her body, helping it with its recovery. This was the work of the Southern crown constellation array formation's pledge of 'Stars of South', to protect those that protect them. This array formation was not only known as a very strong protection array but was also known for its safety and recovery additional effects.

Now that her enemy was dead Anna was being forced out by the arena but the consciousness of her ancestors stopped it from doing so and upheld the pledge of 'Stars of South' fulfilling their pledge to protect those that protect their values. Anna was having a hard time staying conscious let alone maintaining the Unparalleled Arena and Starry Array Sky Slate, if not for her ancestors coming together to help her from their afterlife, her incomplete body would be thrown outside in between the heated battle, becoming a nuisance for her allies.

Anna could use her origin card to transfer some of the damage she incurred to Ann but she did not, knowing that Ann and the boy were facing a life-and-death situation.

"Damn, a demigod realm suicide bomber? Did the war between the royal families and the government ultimately break out?" One of the statues of unparalleled bloodline ancestry in the viewing area of the arena spoke.

"I knew taking those oaths would come back to bite us one day," another statue added to what the statue before him said.

"Ancestor, don't you think we should not be jumping to conclusions? There may be other enemies," a statue from the younger generation argued.

"With demon cult uprooted, except the spies from the government who else is crazy enough to suicide bomb the heir of my family?" The statue from earlier defended his quick conclusion.

Groan Anna groaned hearing the statues buzz and hum as if they were in a heated argument. She wanted to tell them to shut up but the muscles of her cheek that help with the movement of her jaw had yet to recover. She was so irritated by the constant sounds made by the statues that she wondered why her ears were spared during the explosion.

After her last visit to the Unparalleled Arena, Anna discussed her experience in the arena with Ann, she learned that she was right about the statues trying to communicate with her. And it turned out that the noise made by statues was called soul whisper since the statues did not have a physical mouth to talk.

Wanting to communicate with her ancestors Anna agreed to Ann's advice for her to learn soul whisper but she did not know that her second visit to the Unparalleled arena would be so soon. Ever since she met the boy, she has been fighting one powerful enemy after another. Begging the question of whether he was the love of her life or bad luck in her life.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1159 Trinity Immortal Physique, False Relic Mobius Presence

[1,436 words]

Date- --/--/----

Time- --:--

Location- Restricted, Classified, The Unavowed Project

During wartime, a group of card apprentices, the researchers, who could not contribute to the war at the frontlines, took it upon themselves to train a new generation of card apprentices who would replace the current generation at the frontlines, in case, god forbid, the war was the only thing left their future generation could inherit from them.

While training the future generation of card apprentices these researchers came to learn the unavoidable truth, that the future generation may not be as talented and resourceful as the current one. Worried for the fate of humanity, a part of these researchers walked a path so heinous that those who know of it swore to never speak of it, the Unavowed Project.

This project was conducted when times were tough and crimes against humanity were labeled as necessary sacrifices. It had two sides to it,

1. Serving beyond the grave: the bodies of fallen soldiers with special physiques or traits were dug up to serve humankind once more, in a series of ungodly experiments to uncover the secret of their special physiques or traits.

2. Willing sacrifice: A special unit was created in the allied forces which recruited desperate people who wanted to be of service to the cause in any way possible to willing become the living subject of the series of ungodly experiments to replicate the determined physique or traits.

Yes, the card apprentices had decided to play god, at times they failed horribly but like a needle in a haystack once in a while, they achieved what they set out to at a price that some thought was not worth it.

One such case was the three-body one mind physique aka the Trinity Immortal Physique. A special physique that allowed a person to possess three identical bodies controlled by a single mind. When one hears about this physique a question arises in their mind, how can one mind control three bodies, was there some side effect? Now, my friend, that's the beauty of this physique. It allowed a person to have three fully functional bodies without any side effects or shortcomings. The user of this physique showed great prowess in the war achieving remarkable achievements and earning himself the title Trinity Immortal because the user of this physique would not die unless all three bodies were killed within the same time frame otherwise, the living body could instantly revive the deceased body by paying appropriate sacrifice to the physique.

The researchers saw a myriad of possibilities when it came to the trinity immortal physique so despite the initial failure and lack of funding they kept this one experiment alive until one day they finally found a method to turn this natural physique into an acquired one. Though they were successful in achieving their goal, they were faced with a universal truth, only one in millions meet the requirement of acquiring the physique and it was not guaranteed that every one of these select few would be able to make it to the end of the experiment and acquire the true Trinity Immortal physique.

There were two methods created to acquire trinity immortal physique,

1. Identical Triplets: This method involved the most dominant of the identical triplet using the bodies of their two identical brothers as the fated ingredient and refining them into their origin card. But there was one requirement the identical triplets attempting this method should satisfy, all three of them should share a strong mental bond, and the result would be more promising if the bond was so strong that one could feel the other two were their fated ingredient. Basically the stronger the bond, the more chances of them acquiring the true Trinity Immortal Physique.

2. Cloning Oneself: This method involves the card apprentice creating two perfectly identical fully functional clone bodies of themselves, then using these clone bodies as their fate ingredient to refine them into their origin card. Like the previous method, this method also had a requirement, the card apprentice attempting this method should have insanely high mental strength as the stronger their mental strength the more chance of them successfully acquiring the true trinity immortal physique.

Agent Uri was born with strong mental strength, but due to his circumstances he never had the chance to put it to use as a card creationist or an array master but it did help him rise in ranks when he joined the central government militia at the way beyond gaining the attention of his current master who introduced him to the organization running the puppet government saying that he could be part of the organization if he were to use the cloning method to acquire the true Trinity Immortal physique or die trying else he would be silenced to maintain the secrecy of the organization. Left with no choice, Uri agreed and followed his master's arrangements.

Though Uri's inborn mental strength was strong it was not strong enough to acquire the true Trinity immortal physique but he was able to acquire a partial trinity immortal physique which still held most of the advantages of the trinity immortal physique, especially the ability that made it near immortal. Uri's partial trinity immortal physique fell shy of the true trinity immortal physique but it was complete enough to uphold the legend of the trinity immortal physique. Therefore he joined the organization without any hiccup and was also awarded a false relic, Mobius Presence, as a joining bonus, which made him the perfect agent for Infiltration, Assassination, and Espionage.

[False Relic: Mobius Presence

Effect: This ability allows the user to perfectly hide the presence of an identical self behind the other identical self infinitely.

Note: the false relics ability can only be used on the user and not any other live or inanimate entities only when they were not in contact with other alive entities]

The ability of false relic Mobius presence was based on the principle of the Mobius loop, where a rectangle can hide its symmetric half behind its other symmetrical half by constructing a one-side surface by holding its one end fixed and rotating the opposite end through 180 degrees, and joining it to the first end.

The ability of the false relic allowed its user to perfectly hide their presence and their other clones' presence as long as they had one identical clone replacing the presence of all their other combined presence. Meaning, Uri and his clones could hide their presence as alone as one clone was there to fill their absence. That was, Uri and his infinite clones could hide their presence as long as a single clone made its presence known.

But there was a catch to how perfectly this ability could hide the presence of the user and his identical clone in exchange for one clone making its presence known, it depended on how perfectly identical the clone making its presence known was to the Original body. Meaning, for this ability to work flawlessly the clone replacing the presence of the original should be perfectly identical to the original, otherwise, the small differences will become the flaw and tell signs of the presence hidden using this ability.

Because of this shortcoming, this false relic could not be used to its full potential as all clones created by the user may be identical but they did not possess the same strength as the original, this difference in strength of the original and the clone became the main reason nobody bothered to use this false relic until Uri. Because Uri's trinity immortal physique allowed him to have three perfectly identical bodies even in terms of realm and strength.

Since Uri had three identical bodies, he could use the false relic 'Mobius presence' to perfectly hide the presence of his two bodies while one body was out in the open.

Usually, the body that was not hiding its presence would stay back at the base while the other two with their presence perfectly hidden would go out to perform missions. This was the case when Uri went to assassinate the demigod nun of the church of Michel Angelo. After assassinating the nun with suicide bombing, the body which did not hide its presence but was hiding in the secret base, received the notification of the death of one of their body and after reading its memory it went to report the success of the mission to their handler.

Unlike the true trinity immortal physique, Uri's partial trinity immortal physique did not allow the three bodies to share the sense when apart for long distances but thankfully their origin card filled in the shortcoming but it still was not as good as the real deal.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1160 Behind The Scenes

[1,262 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 03:18

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, Air Space

After being teleported to the city, Uri used the opportunity when General Baylor approached the boy in the cemetery to use his, Mobius presence, second origin card to stealthily summon his other two bodies of his, Trinity Immortal physique, first origin card. While making sure that one of his bodies that did not hide its presence stuck close to Agent Lois to hide his past, present, and future. As for his other two bodies who had hidden their presence using Mobius Presence, they scoured the city in search of Dr. Luna Lorn.

Apart from killing the boy, Uri's other mission was to kidnap Dr. Luna Lorn. With Field Marshal Heatsend monitoring the city, it would be the stupidest thing to do, and that was what made this mission very risky. If not for Field Marshal Henricks promising to keep her at bay for 15 minutes, Uri would not be sure this was something even he could pull off.

Uri had already been briefed that he would be able to find Dr. Luna Lorn in the temporary base of the southern watch on the outskirts of the city. But there was a problem, though there wasn't a demigod in the base, the base was covered by an SSS-grade array formation. With help of his second origin card, Mobius Presence, Uri's two bodies could easily bypass the array formation but the problem was how would they make it out of the array formation after kidnapping Dr. Luna Lorn. As his second origin card, Mobius Presence, would not work when in contact with another person.

Uri wasn't an array master nor that well versed in terms of array formation so his two bodies could not figure out what type of SSS-grade array formation was covering the southern watch temporary base and what were its features. Kidnapping was not Uri's forte, he was the best at espionage and assassination, in either of his cases he never had to come in contact with a living person, even if he were to be caught he would suicide bomb and escape. But today that would not work because Kidnapping the royal family's descendants would already put him in hot water, if he were to kill her then there would be no place left in this world to make him feel safe. Even the organization would not hesitate to abandon him if it meant they could decrease the strain on their already strained relationship with the royal family, let's not forget the current Patriarch of the Heatsend family.

If Uri's two bodies were to foolishly enter the array formation just because they were two demigods against one SSS-rank array formation then they may have to pay with their dear life for underestimating the power of an SSS-rank array master. For someone with the Trinity Immortality physique, the death of two of his bodies was not that big of a deal but here it risked blowing off their mission by alerting the enemy of what they were really up to.

So, the two bodies of Uri decided to approach this matter smartly. They both entered the SSS-grade Array formation without being detected under the effect of Uri's second origin card, Mobius Presence, first they found the array core and then split up with two different agendas. As demigods, they did not require much time to find the core of the array. But they were surprised to find out who the array master was, it was the infamous Raining Alchemist, the husband of Field Marshal Heatsend and their kidnapping target's Grandpa.

Learning the identity of the Array master they were up against they gave up the idea of killing the Array master for making things difficult for them and instead decided to just destroy the array formation core and escape. Then one of them stayed behind while the other headed towards Dr. Luna Lorn. When the two of them were in position, all three of them immediately signaled each other that they were in position. One was in position to destroy the array formation core, the second was in position to kidnap Dr. Luna Lorn, and the third was in position to suicide bomb the assassination target.

Now that all three were in position, they did not immediately act to complete their mission but the one next to Agent Lois, mentally contacted his handler, asking him to ask Field Marshal Henricks to make contact with Field Marshal Heatsend. Only when Uri's Handler replied that Henricks had already made contact with Field Marshal Heatsend, Uri finally decided to act. When it comes to the fight between demigods a second was more than enough to end the battle in their favour for powerful demigods like Field Marshal Heatsend. Therefore, Uri acted so cautiously.

Now that Henricks had acted, Uri was pressed by time, not planning to waste any more seconds of the precious time bought by Henricks, all three of his bodies immediately acted to fulfill their individual tasks.

After the continuous attack of the Yin Widow and the demon worshipers, Lorenzo decided to increase the safety of the southern watch base by covering it with an SSS-rank array formation. Earlier he did not do so because it would raise the question of why a simple dungeon relocation experiment would require an SSS-rank Array formation as protection but now with the attack of a Devil, he had a valid reason to set up an SSS-rank array even if it cost the royal family a fortune. But never in his dream would he have imagined that somebody would not only be able to infiltrate his array formation but also destroy its core with him operating it. After Uri's body destroyed the array core with a massive force then it headed to meet up with other bodies while Lorenzo fainted from the backlash of the array core being destroyed even before he could react.

As for Luna, she was staring at her grimoire, admiring the one-time-use Field Card D-rank Gate Dungeon Silver beach that she created using the dungeon relocation apparatus, she did not even realize something was up as she was knocked out cold by Uri's second body then it carried her to meet up other body and together they headed to the cemetery, as Uri's third body had failed in its task.

Unfortunately for Uri despite him being so cautious, careful, and calculative of his every action his third body failed to complete its task to assassinate a card soldier. He blamed this failure on himself for underestimating the Southern Emperor, yet even though he did not manage to kill the boy he managed to if not kill incapacitate one of the boy's protectors.

Sacrificing required divinity, rule power, and soul power, the two bodies of Uri revived his third body. Then Uri's body which happened to be carrying Dr. Luna Lorn rushed to the rendezvous point while the other two bodies made it to the cemetery and arrived behind clueless Agent Lois and General Baylor as Soldier Queen Colleen's baleful aura bombarded them and said, "One down three to go."

Agent Lois and General Baylor wanted to question him but they paused seeing that there were two of him. Using this opportunity he updated them on the updated mission agenda without going into details, "Priority Code Alpha, I am leading this mission now. Agent Lois, take care of the southern emperor's twin. General Baylor, kidnap the boy, while I hold off Soldier queen and Southern Emperor's ex, we only have 10 minutes before field marshal Heatsend intervenes. So now or never people."

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1161 For Honour

[1,019 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 04:05

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Unknown

"What brings you here Henricks?" Field Marshal Heatsend, who was meditating seated on top of a cloud, asked a figure hiding among clouds a few miles away using the soul whisper technique without opening her eyes.

"You promised not to use your ability on me ever," Henricks walked out of the cloud and enquired Field Marshal Henricks but he did not dare to step any further.

"I didn't use my ability," Field Marshal replied while waiting for Henricks to state his purpose.

"It seems your power has grown again, it's great to be born with a powerful bloodline," Henricks commented, he was in no hurry to speak his purpose as he was here to stall time after all.

"..." Field Marshal Heatsend did not bother with Henricks, instead she concentrated on the city, understanding that if the group of old people in the central capital had sent out Henricks then they were up to something. But because of the presence of the 'Right Eye of the World' not only was her special ability suppressed but her other precipitation ability would dampen nearing the sky blossom city.

The wielder of the 'Right Eye of the World' had yet to become a demigod yet her physique was already so capable, giving Agent Lois the honor of being remembered by Field Marshal Heatsend.

Though her innate demigod perception was dampened the overall scan came back positive yet Field Marshal Heatsend remained cautious ready to act any moment.

"An old comrade has come so far to greet you, are you not going to offer some rum?" Henricks questioned field marshal Heatsend's hospitality.

"Be grateful that my sword is not soaked with your blood for entering my domain without permission," Field Marshal Heatsend's words confirmed that she was indeed acquainted with Henricks.

"Speaking of your domain, I heard his majesty Heatsend has made his granddaughter the Heir of the south, is it true?" Henricks asked, trying to make small talk.

"You heard right his majesty has decided," Field Marshal Heatsend replied, she still did not bother to open her eyes.

"Are you not worried she will party everything you worked hard for into ruins," Henricks taunted his old comrade.

"She is capable and will have a loyal council supporting her. And if you dare to speak one more ill word of the Heiress of the south, I will forget that once we used to fight side by side. Don't force me," Field Marshal Heatsend knew Henricks had approached her with an agenda but out of courtesy for him as a comrade she did not directly attack him. But if he asked for it she would not hesitate to cut him down.

"Alright. Don't worry I am not here to fight but to cash in on your second promise to me," Henricks finally got to point after receiving a text notification to his grimoire from Agent Uri's handler, signaling him that Uri was in position it was time for him to keep his word.

Listening to Henricks's bring up the past promise Field Marshal Heatsend finally opened her eyes, revealing her radiating violet pupils. And glaring at Henricks, she said, "If you remember my promises to you, then you should know I will not do anything that will harm my family and my people."

"I remember, that is why I am here to ask you for a 30 minutes head start, I, myself, will not participate, let your people and my people fight it out, if they still have not reached a conclusion after 30 mins, I will ask my people to retreat and if they were to die under your people's hands I will blame them for being inadequate. I hope you will do the same," Henricks explained, trying to make his demand sound reasonable to Field Marshal Heatsend. And then added, "Come on, don't tell me you cannot trust the people you are proud of to last for 30 minutes?"

"There is no use of these taunts, Henricks. I cannot agree to this promise knowing that there is a conspiracy afoot," Field Marshal Heatsend rejected Henricks flatly.

"Is this what the Heatsend word is reduced to these days? 15 minutes, you have to agree to this at least," Henricks used the honor of the Heatsend family to cave field marshal Heatsend to his demands.

As Henricks hoped field marshal Heatsend was conflicted about whether to prioritize Heatsend Family honor knowing that a conspiracy against her family was afoot. In the past many have used this strategy against the Heatsend family, all of her ancestors choose to prioritize the honor of the family despite knowing that there was a conspiracy afoot because honor is not something you uphold at your convenience. Most of her ancestors had managed to prevail despite the odds but some failed horribly. Even though some failed they managed to uphold family honor, which in return protected the family and kept it prosperous to date.

Taking a lesson from the pages of the history books, field marshal Heatsend decided to uphold the honor of the family even if it meant that she was walking right into the enemy's trap. Therefore she agreed to Henricks's demand as her second promise to him saying, "You have your 15 minutes. Afterward, I will personally hunt you for putting me in this position. For using my good intentions against me and my family."

"I would not have if I wasn't desperate," Henricks said, while mentally using his grimoire to notify Uri's handler that the 15 minutes countdown begins now.

"Shut up, you don't get to play the victim here."

Field Marshal Heatsend's eyes turned bloodshot as she watched Uri's body suddenly appear next to her husband and destroy the array core, sending her husband into a coma. Then she could not hold her calm as she watched her beloved granddaughter being knocked out and kidnapped while her sister-in-law and niece were under attack but she still managed to suppress her rampant emotions and keep them in check not letting them violate the word she had given to Henricks.

"No harm will befall your granddaughter and I will personally bring her safely to you, I give you my word."

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1162 Verglas Speculum

[1,025 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 04:09

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom District, St. Raymond's cemetery

The two bodies of Uri rushed toward Colleen and Backster planning a double suicide bombing. This time he used a card to exchange most of the power from his detonation for explosive speed, this way the bodies of Uri would be able to latch on to Colleen and Backster, leaving very little room for them to dodge them, but as a result, the power behind his bodies suicide bombing would be reduced by an exceptional amount however just enough to buy demigod Baylor time to kidnap the boy and escape to the hideout. This was in line with Uri's intention because he did not dare to kill Patriarch Heatsend's lady.

Uri was right to not have thoughts about killing Colleen but he was wrong to underestimate her. Her title was Soldier queen, if he had taken the hint from it then he would have saved himself the following embarrassment.

"Verglas Speculum," Colleen mumbled, and the moisture in the air surrounding her and her allies froze and turned into a thin sheet of one-way mirror separating them from the enemies. The allies could see through the thin sheet of ice mirror but the enemies could only see their reflection which then morphed to look like Colleen and attacked them.

The two bodies of Uri which were rushing at Colleen and Backster were caught off guard by the sudden development but due to the card that they had used to exchange their bodies's power for their sudden explosive speed, they could not stop on their tracks, and only met their reflection that had morphed into Colleens head on.

As soon as Uri's two bodies neared Colleens, they were grabbed and dragged into the thin sheet of the Ice mirror by them but before any further development, they explode along with them the ice mirrors protecting Colleen and Backster explode. The plan was a huge failure, the two bodies of Uri died even before they could reach their target.

As for Agent Lois and General Baylor, as they neared their targets Ann and the boy, they and their targets too were also separated by a thin reflective layer of frozen air, that reflected their reflection which morphed into Colleen and attacked them. Unlike Uri, Agent Lois and General Baylor did not act brazenly, so they were not caught off guard by the sudden revolution instead they easily escaped the entanglement of Colleen's attack.

"Backster, protect the boy. Ann, check on Anna," giving orders to her allies, Colleen looks at Agent Lois and Baylor adding, "I will handle these two clowns."

Colleen was not worried about her granddaughter because she knew that if Ann was still here then it means Anna was fine. Then cracking her joints she slowly stepped forward saying, "It has been a while since I have been on the frontlines, but to forget me so soon, I guess previous achievements were overshadowed by my family's. Let me make some new ones."

Colleen had just recently become a demigod, in a family filled with powerful demigods it was not a big deal, not to mention her old achievement fell short when compared to her family's, neither did they make it to the front page but it did not mean that they were to be glossed over and her humble yet overwhelming title, Soldier Queen, was the evidence of that. But to be fair, most of the people who watched her on the battlefield had retired, not to mention she went on a long retreat to break through into the demigod realm, so it was not a surprise that people had forgotten about her.

But before attacking General Baylor and Agent Lois she said, "I advise you two to surrender, otherwise it is going to be painful."

Agent Lois was about to yell 'go to hell old hag' while launching an attack at Colleen but before she could do so General Baylor stepped forward and politely said, "Your Highness, I am not here to fight. As Wyatt's mother's friend, I am here to see if the boy is safe and not being coerced by the southern royal family."

"He is fine," After General Baylor visited the southern royal warp array with his wife, Colleen had looked into General Baylor and his relationship with the boy. Her daughter had already computed everything there was to know about the boy and General Baylor long ago, so accessing those files she felt that Baylor may really care for the boy and did not have any other agenda, so when he demanded answers instead of a fight, she answered him.

"That's not enough. I want to hear those words from him," General Baylor did not know what the organization was planning for the boy but seeing how the southern emperor and her family seemed to not just protect the boy but also care for him, he thought maybe it would be for the best if he left the boy here instead of taking him to the central capital where waters were deep and more turbulent than ever. But before that, he had to make sure that what he saw was not all just a show by personally speaking with the boy.

"General, stop talking nonsense with that old hag and focus on the mission, we only have 8 minutes left. I will hold her back, you go get the boy," Listening to the discussion between Colleen and Baylor, Agent Lois suddenly had a bad feeling about the mission. If Baylor were to turn on her now, with Uri gone, the mission would definitely fail. Because even though she was confident to face and defeat a demigod as a semi-demigod, her confidence dwindled in the face of three demigods. Therefore, she called Colleen an Old hag hoping to anger her and break any chance of Baylor and Colleen talking their differences out. Until now what she had read about Colleen's personality in her profile had been proven wrong because of Field Marshal Heatsend limiting Colleen's actions but now that things had changed she hoped her little trick worked and foiled any kind of understanding between Colleen and Baylor from forming.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1163 Uri's Return

[1,158 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 04:09

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Unknown

"Fuck," Uri who was carrying unconscious Luna cursed out loud learning that his two other bodies died without being able to achieve their agenda. Then he remembered how his handler warned him that all three of him would be required to complete this mission, so he decided to head back but the problem was Luna. If they were to fight while carrying her around then he could not be able to use his most useful ability, Mobius Presence.

With no time to waste, Uri acted on the first thought that came to his mind. Using his earth elemental rune he buried Luna alive in an underground tomb. This way he could pick her up midway through his return.

Then he revived one of his bodies, climbed on it, and asked it to use the card to exchange its life force for explosive speed so that he could reach the cemetery without wasting much time. Upon reaching the cemetery, the body that used the forbidden card dissipated as it had exchanged its life force for speed, allowing Uri to return to the cemetery within seconds. Only to hear Agent Lois, "General, stop talking nonsense with that old hag and focus on the mission, we only have 8 minutes left. I will hold her back, you go get the boy."

So, Uri decided to not reveal his presence and use this opportunity to kill the boy using his other two bodies under the effect of Mobius Presence. But unfortunately for him, in the rush to arrive here while not wasting time, he had already revealed his arrival, "Found you, handover my grandniece, or forget about leaving her alive."

Colleen did not learn of the kidnapping of Luna until later. With Lorenzo in a coma, Luna missing, and commander Anna unreachable, the temporary southern watch base took its time to establish a new chain of command and immediately inform their General of the bad news.

Learning about what happened in the temporary base, Colleen was super mad but then a thought struck her, why did her sister-in-law not act to protect her husband and granddaughter? Thinking this far, hot-headed Colleen immediately calmed down. And instead of immediately attacking Agent Lois and General Baylor, she decided to have them surrender and get the news on the demigod that kidnapped her grandniece. This was one of the main reasons why she decided to talk reason with General Baylor when he offered to. After all, torturing the answers she wanted from them would take time. Which she did not have.

But to her surprise, the missing demigod returned, saving her time. So ignoring Agent Lois's needless taunt she looked toward his location and said, "Found you, hand over my grandniece or forget about leaving her alive."

Then turning to demigod Baylor she said, "General Baylor if the words you just spoke were true then stand aside. I will let you talk to the boy when I am done with them."

"Your highness, what I said was indeed true. Though I will not fight you, I will be talking with the boy on my own terms and decide on what to do next," With Uri's return, the battleground was evened again. Baylor wanted to use this moment to have a heart-to-heart with the boy. He did not care that in a few minutes, Field Marshal Heatsend would arrive, or the organization he was forced to join would label him as a traitor, right now all he cared about was the boy. That was reckless but he was confident in his strength.

"Backster, guard the boy with your life. Ann, honey, try and hold that girl till I return. I will be quick," Colleen did not spare Baylor a glance and headed toward Uri who had captured Luna trusting her allies would be able to hold their ground.

Uri hurriedly revived his other two bodies seeing the approaching Colleen. Colleen timed her arrival next to Uri such that she could capture all there of Uri's body in her ability, "Verglas Speculum"

As soon as Uri's other bodies were revived, the moisture in the air surrounding them froze to form a thin sheet of Ice Mirror reflecting their image that morphed into Colleen. Then these Colleens grabbed them and dragged all three of them into the Ice Mirror. All three of Uri's bodies resisted but to their surprise, their strength was being used against them. The harder they struggled the stronger the pull on them became, similar to a quicksand before they could figure out the principle behind these mirror images of theirs that morphed into Colleen, they were dragged into a new world, a cold replica of the one they were used to living in.

"Now that you are here, you can forget about leaving," Original Colleen's voice sounded while the three bodies of Uri were being entangled by their reflection that had morphed into Colleen.

"Give up, those reflections are equally strong as you, the more you struggle the more you are tiring yourselves out. What the heck were you thinking by gathering all three bodies of yours in one place," Colleen did not understand why someone with Uri's physique would gather all his bodies in one place. Did he not know the consequence of that?

"Because we are stronger together. Arghhh," all three of Uri's bodies said in unison as their strength suddenly increased by three times and they shattered the mirror images of Colleen with their new strength. Then they added, "It is you who should be worried about being locked with us in a closed space."

"Interesting, what kind of buff are you using? My mirror images were not able to mirror them," Colleen asked as she was surprised to see that her ability was not able to mirror the strength buff that Uri's three bodies suddenly gained.

"It's the innate buff of our physique, for it to work all three of us should be within a melee range of each other. Your mirror image may be able to mirror our strength but they are not us so they do not meet the requirement to use our buff, even if they were able to mirror the buff," Uri explained and added, "the flow of time seems to slow here."

"No, time is not slow but your body is slowing as the vibration of the soul pathway in your body is slowing down under the effect of the cold here. The longer you are here the slower you will get until the vibration of the soul pathways of your body gets decreased to the point where they will not be able to maintain your current shape and your body will shatter like a block of ice," Colleen explained the additional effect of her ability.

"Was this why I felt like being in a quicksand when in contact with those mirror images?" Uri said figuring out why he could not struggle free from being dragged into this cold world of Colleen's ability.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

[1,532 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 04:10

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, St. Raymond Cemetery

"Not exactly, but when in contact with mirror images, the rate at which the victim's soul pathways vibrate decreases starts to hasten depending upon the resistance put up by the victim. Therefore, you felt like your strength was being used against you. The only way out of it is to overpower the mirror images like you just did," Colleen briefly explained her power to Uri because she did not have to fight to win in her 'Verglas

Speculum.' Once the three bodies of Uri were rendered immobilized she could begin her torture interrogation.

"Um, I see. Is that also why I am having difficulty mobilizing my soul energy through my soul pathways?" Uri asked, looking at his demigod body made of divinity starting to turn pale blue under the cold of this fake world.

"Yes, but that would be a simple and inaccurate answer. You see when the vibrations of your soul pathway keep decreasing it also means that the width of your soul pathways is growing narrow. With narrow soul pathways, you cannot access the regular amount of soul energy you used to. The cold in your body has not yet grown to the point where your bodily functions are affected but once they do, that is when things start to get fun. Especially when your brain starts to process information slower than it used to. Then for you, every second can be as long as a minute or even an hour depending on how much you have succumbed to the cold here," This was why Colleen did not rush, because it was going to be over soon anyway. And also because she felt that Uri had lost his only advantage of suicide bombing by gathering all three of his bodies in one place.

"Interesting ability you have here. I guess I should not have underestimated the first lady of the south. Good thing I learned my lesson and was smart enough to have gathered all of my bodies in one place," as Uri said these words his bodies which had turned pale blue under the cold of Colleen's ability slowly started to turn red like a red hot iron and he uttered, "Rule of Fire, Meaning of Immolation, Rune:- Self-Immolation by Fire, Rune card:- Live Furnace."

"Shit," Colleen cursed, learning that Uri had a self-immolation rune. She should have seen this coming when he used a card to exchange his life force for explosive speed.

"As you can see, I don't plan on enjoying the effect of your ability," Uri's rune card, Life Furnace, literally turned his body into a furnace that uses life force as fuel for an explosive increase in its user's overall physical attributes or just one attribute depending on the user's will. Normally no one would be able to master this kind of meaning to completion because practicing it would require sacrificing their life force which they could not afford, unlike Uri who had the Trinity Immortal physique. Not only had he mastered the meaning but also crafted an ultimate rune card fitting his fighting style.

This card did not negate Colleen's ability's effect on his soul pathways but instead showed that he could kill himself without resorting to suicide-bombing, that meant every time Colleen's abilities affect started to grow on one of his bodies to the point of getting frozen alive, Uri would just kill his body, and replace it by reviving a new one. As long as all three of his bodies were not killed at once he was good to go.

From the looks of it, it was starting to seem like a brawl between Uri's three bodies and Colleen was going to break out but Uri never planned to fight Colleen and he had two good reasons for that. First, he felt that if he started to fight Colleen he would not be able to figure out how to get out of this cold world of Colleen's ability. Yes, he could just kill Colleen and walk out of here but was killing Colleen the answer? Because she could just seal him here with her dying breath. Not to mention he did not plan to resort to killing her unless it was necessary. So he decided to prioritize finding a way out of here.

Second, He felt he did not need to fight her to achieve his agenda, he just needed to stall Colleen in this space and buy Agent Lois enough time to kill the boy or help General Baylor kidnap the boy.

Yes, he had sent separate orders to Agent Lois through the organization's secret communication channel. And right now using that he was using that channel to get live updates from Agent Lois on the progress of their mission, and the tide of battle outside was in their favor. Right now Uri's priority was to figure a way out of Colleen's ability before Agent Lois completes the mission.

If that were the case, why did Uri reveal his Rune Card? It was because once he used it Colleen would figure it out anyway. Call it the pride of the rat. The rats sneak around but once confronted they will fight back with their life on the line. Not to mention he wanted Colleen to continue revealing more about her ability so that he could find a hint to how to leave this frozen world without killing Colleen.

"Um, you are indeed a troublesome opponent. It seems I have no choice but to resort to violence and get the answers from the girl that tagged along with you. If that doesn't work out, I would like to see how much the wielder of the 'Right Eye of the World' would fetch in the market. And for the sake of your masters it better be my grand niece," Colleen said, preparing to kill three of Uri's bodies and go capture Agent Lois and General Baylor. An opponent with Trinity Immortal physique was already troubling but seeing how he had the persistence and the will to cultivate the immolation meaning of the Fire Rule, she knew she would not get anything out of this guy through torture.

"Haha, you still don't get it, do you? I thought you would have figured it out when they dared to send the 'Right Eye of the World' as a prop for this mission," Seeing Colleen no longer planning to keep him alive, Uri squabbled as he did not want to fight her knowing that he stood to gain nothing from that.

"What do you mean?" Colleen asked because she thought she was missing something seeing how confident her opponent was with his words. If there was something she had overlooked then she would like to know that before it was too late.

"They feel that this mission, as in kidnapping your grand niece and the death of the boy, was worth more than the 'Right Eye of the World.' The item, silver milk powder, something as miraculous as it was worth more than the lives of the card apprentices titled 'The Miracle,' the 'Trinity Immortal,' and the 'Youngest Demigod Known' combined with the field marshal Henricks. They are ready to sacrifice all that just to get their hands on that item, the moment I kidnapped the girl you guys lost. And once the boy dies you will lose completely. Right now you are just wasting your time talking to a soon-to-be-dead man," Uri's last words were not to throw off Colleen but rather his genuine thoughts of what was waiting for him, Agent Lois, and General Baylor in the hideout. Once the masters seated in the central capital get the field card in Luna's grimoire their next course of action was clear, they would clean everything connecting them to this incident. That meant he, Agent Lois, General Baylor, and Field Marshal Baylor were going to die and so was Dr. Luna Lorn, it was an obvious way to retrieve the field card from her grimoire.

"Is that it, phew. I thought I missed something grave. And thank you for telling me that Field Marshal Henricks was also involved in this, now I understand why my sister-in-law did not act earlier. It seems I was right, her goodwill has finally come back to bite her," Colleen never got to tell 'I told you so' to her sister-in-law but the other party got to on numerous occasions, so Colleen could not help but bring it up when given the opportunity even though the circumstances surrounding it were not right but she had no choice, as it was extremely rare for her to get such opportunities. She would only take what she got when she got it, she did not have the luxury to stand on the moral high ground as her sister-in-law had very few faults.

"That's it?" Uri was shocked seeing Colleen's reaction. He thought, once he revealed his distrust to the organization, Colleen would use it to try and recruit him, convincing him to give Luna in return for the southern royal family's protection. But to his surprise, Colleen did not, rather she was more determined to kill him. Did she not hear what he just said?

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1165 CyroSynthesis, Glacier Punch, Glacier Touch

[1,013 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 04:10

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, St. Raymond Cemetery

"Do you know how many times your masters have attempted something like this? Kid, you have a lot of potential but your masters just wanted you to be a good rat for them, nothing more. So they hindered and limited you into what you are today. If you have next life remember to choose your masters wisely," Colleen said as she instantly perfected her stance and threw a punch aiming at all three of Uri's bodies, "Glacier Punch"

"Shit," caught off guard two of Uri's bodies managed to escape the line of Colleen's punch in time but one failed to do so and was instantly frozen alive enclosed in a huge glacier. Everything within the line of Colleen's punch instantly had the vibrations of their soul pathway drop to the point of being frozen alive becoming a part of a huge glacier that formed.

Slowing vibrations of the soul pathways required a lot of energy, and using it in a large area required even more energy. If Colleen were to fight against a demigod like this then sometimes it meant she would be exhausted even before the results were in, making it clear that she would lose in an extended battle. Fortunately, she had a filial granddaughter.

After defeating the devil Feastus, Anna sent its core to her grandmother as a congratulatory gift for breaking through to the Demigod Realm. When Colleen explored the devil Feastus's core, she came to make an interesting discovery about its ability. The interesting point was that the devil Feastus's ability closely resembled her ability even though they were of totally opposite elements and the devil's ability was much more sophisticated than hers. Learning the devil's ability as an example Colleen modified her ability such that she would not be exhausted even after extended use of her ability. With this, her strength grew tremendously, so much so that despite being a new demigod she was able to hold the confidence to kill a demigod with Trinity Immortal physique and Immolation rune.

Devil Feastus's ability produced molten lava that would consume everything in its path, devour their power and transfer it to the Devil, using which the devil could grow infinitely strong despite being suppressed by this world's will.

How was the Devil's ability similar to Colleen's ability?

Both Devil Feastus and Colleen's abilities were built on one single principle, the vibrations of the victim's Soul pathways. But the difference was that Colleen's ability depended on decreasing the vibration of the victim's soul pathways while the Devil's ability depended on increasing the vibration of the victim's soul pathways. Giving birth to different effects, Ice and Lava.

However there was more to Devil Feastus's ability, his ability not only increased the victim's soul pathway to maximum but also absorbed the energy released when the victim's soul pathway collapsed by burning into ash, unable to withstand faster vibration. In layman's terms, the devil's ability looked like the molten lava produced by the devil would burn the victims, devour their energy and give it to the devil, hence giving the devil infinite energy supply and a boost in strength.

Learning from this, Colleen decided to modify her ability similarly so that she too would decrease the victim's soul pathways to the minimum and absorb the energy released when the victim's soul pathway collapsed getting frozen.

But there was a problem, with her ability, she could decrease the victim's soul pathway's vibrations to the minimum but then her ability did not help her with absorbing the energy released when the victim's soul pathway collapsed getting frozen.

Nonetheless, having figured out where her ability was lacking it was not impossible for Colleen to figure out a solution for that. She could use the devil Feastus's core to create an absorption card or something but she did not have to as she was blessed with an epiphany. Due to which a meaning of her rule opened up for her, allowing her to create a rune, Cryo-synthesis, something super special she derived from the devil Feastus's ability.

Cryo-synthesis is the ability to synthesize energy by decreasing the vibration of the soul pathways. Colleen still had to explore the full extent of this new rune of hers because she had never once used it in combat as it hasn't been very long since she created it.

Colleen didn't know what would happen if she had used the same glacier punch outside in the city and not in her ability, Verglas Speculum. Maybe she would end up freezing half of the city and its citizens into icicles. Her ability Verglas Speculum not only helped her contain her enemy but also allowed her to use her powers without holding back because of any worries or at least that's what she believed.

With one punch, not only Colleen managed to freeze one of Uri's three bodies alive, but also regained almost all of the energy she had expended so far. But she also came to realize that her Verglas Speculum could collapse if she were to use the glacier punch for the second time and miss. The energy she gained had to come from somewhere.

This time Colleen was very lucky that she managed to trap one of Uri's three bodies in her punch, if not for that her ability Verglas Speculum would have collapsed with her first punch. Most of the energy that Colleen gained was from Uri's frozen body. If not for that the fake world of her ability would collapse being sucked dry by her own attack.

With this realization, Colleen felt suffocated and claustrophobic in her own domain, but thinking of the alternative, Colleen had no choice but to curb her power. Because if she were to use glacier punch outside, the entire Sky blossom city might end up getting frozen and absorbed by her. Compared to this outcome Colleen felt that it would be best if she were to suppress her power and fight Uri in her Varglas Speculum. Then she charged towards the closest body of Uri at an incredible speed, yelling, "Glacier Touch."

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

[1,112 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 04:15

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, St. Raymond Cemetery

[Rune Name: Verglas Speculum

Rune Type: Rule- Water, Meaning- Freeze & Reflection

Rune Rank: Ultimate Grade

Rune Effect: Verglas Speculum allows the user to freeze any state of water into a mirror domain using their rule domain.

Additional Effect: Cold Debuff, Freaky Mirror Image, Freezing Mirrorverse

Note: Energy consumption is high use at discretion.]

Cold Debuff- When activated the soul pathways of all enemy units within the user's range will grow narrower as a direct result of their soul pathway vibration slowing down.

Note: The debuff will grow stronger the longer the enemy is within the user's range.

Freaky Mirror Image: When the enemy unit's reflection gets reflected on the Verglas Speculum, a mirror image of the target gets generated and takes the appearance of the user. But the strength of the mirror image remains proportional to the target.

Additional Effect: Relative Cold Debuff

Note: The Freaky mirror image can exist in both the real world and the Freeing mirrorverse.

Relative Cold Debuff: The Freaky mirror image can cast cold debuffs when in contact with the target and the debuff can grow exponentially stronger based on the target's struggle.

Note: This debuff's effect also increases with longer periods of contact. And when used in the mirrorverse the effect stacks with the debuff of the mirrorverse.

Freezing Mirrorverse: the user can use the rune to freeze any state of water into a mirror and use the rule domain to create a domain known as Freezing Mirrorverse, an exact cold replica of the world but in a separate space. Here anyone without the Verglas Speculum rune will be severely affected by the cold debuff.

Note: The size of the Freezing Mirrorverse is a minimum of 50 miles but can increase depending on the energy provided by the user.

[Rune Name: Cyrosynthesis

Rune Type: Rule- Water, Meaning- Freezing & Synthesis

Rune Rank: Ultimate Grade

Rune Effect: This rune allows the user to absorb the energy released after the soul pathway collapses due to its vibration being slowed to the extreme and synthesizing energy for the user.

Additional Effect: Cyro-Adaptation

Note: The energy produced can be used by the user to recover lost energy or for their other capabilities or power boost.]

Cyro-Adaptation: The User's soul pathway can easily adapt to slow soul pathway vibrations.

Note: This effect can stack with any resistance or immunity gained from the Freeze Meaning of the Water Rule.

[Card Name: Glacier Martial Arts

Card Type: Rune Card

Card Rank: SSS-Rank, Legend Grade

Card Rate: 11-Stars

Card Durability: [94/100]

Card Effect: Glacier Martial Arts are an array of martial moves created by the user using their Rune Cyro-Synthesis and years of combat experience with one principle in mind, cause maximum damage to the target to recover the energy expended at the fastest speed while the remaining energy will be used at the user's discretion.

Additional Effect: Cyro-Synthesis, Glacier Punch, Glacier Palm, Glacier Fingers, Glacier Touch, Glacier Steps, Glacier Stomp, Glacier Dance, Glacier Drop, Glacier Buff.

Note: All the damage caused by these martial moves will contribute to slowing the target's soul pathway vibrations to the extreme.]

...

Colleen and the mirror images kept chasing the three bodies of Uri all around the Freezing Mirrorverse, it has been five minutes of this, but Colleen was never near to catching any of Uri's bodies that were burning their life forces to increase their physical speed to the extreme. Uri's three bodies were simply too fast for Colleen to catch up to him with her curbed prowess. But these last five minutes were not wasted, Colleen had used them to understand the shortcomings of her ability and rectify them.

Uri was in no picnic either, pressed by the time he was panicking to find a way out of Colleen's domain. There were still a few minutes to spare to meet the promised time limit but Uri had suddenly lost contact with the outside world therefore he could not help but freak out. The most alarming thing was he could reach Agent Lois but she was not responding to him, with this only two possibilities came to his mind. Either she abandoned him or she got captured. He desperately wanted to contact General Baylor for updates but Baylor was still to be vetted and did not receive an official handle for the organization's secret communication channel.

Without any idea of what was happening outside, Uri could no longer stay calm, he grew desperate, so much so that was considering killing Colleen to leave her domain but in that desperation, he noticed that Colleen seemed to not resort to large area effect attacks as she used earlier, that one time. And only one thought came to Uri's mind that Colleen was not using big attacks to use her energy sparingly. Which meant Colleen was running out of energy maintaining her domain.

With this conclusion, Uri decided to stop defending and take the offensive route and help Colleen expend her energy. This way Colleen will not have enough energy to maintain the domain and he will be freed without having to kill Colleen. Keeping two of his bodies at bay, Uri had the third body of his to attack Colleen with everything it has got in its forsaking defense.

Seeing Uri no longer run away but rather had one of his bodies attack her, Colleen was surprised and a little delighted because she needed more energy to rectify the fault of her Freezing Mirrorverse and Uri was delivering that energy to her. Yes, she had top-grade soul jades, refined divinity, and other energy sources in her grimoire but she did not want to waste the food sent to her doorsteps.

The only shortcoming Colleen was facing was that if she were to use Cyro-Synthesis within Verglas Speculum's mirrorverse then she would be absorbing the energy she was using to maintain the Verglas Speculum, which was counterproductive as without the energy to maintain itself Verglas Speculum would collapse. Then Colleen thought that she could just feed more energy to her domain to heal and strengthen it, turning it into a closed loop of energy transfer.

Colleen would use energy to maintain the domain- Colleen would use energy to attack Uri as a result absorb energy from the domain- Colleen would feed the energy synthesized back to the domain to heal and strengthen it and keep repeating the process.

At first, Colleen thought this was a good idea but then she realized that a certain amount of energy was lost in this process. If she wanted to maintain this cycle then she would have to make up for the energy being lost in this process. Colleen wanted to use external help like soul jades, rule stones, refined divinity, etc but Uri taking an offensive route saved her the trouble of using external help.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1167 Glacier Domain

[1,149 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 04:17

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, St. Raymond Cemetery

"What the fuck is going on, why are you not exhausted yet?" Agent Uri yelled as he revived two of his other bodies that had died trying to attack Colleen. Agent Uri was not bothered by his two bodies's death, rather he was bothered seeing their deaths did not achieve their purpose, draining Colleen of every last bit of her energy.

"Hahaha, you dumb ass, if you can use refined divinity to keep reviving your bodies then why can't I do the same to recover my energy," Colleen laughed aloud at Uri. Yet, she did not reveal the truth to Uri. That was her hidden ace, why would she? Yes, she had already set the stage to kill Uri but why reveal her newest and strongest ace to him? What if he delivers the information to his masters with his dying breath? The organization had enough information on her to send someone like Uri as her opponent, but unfortunately for them, that information was outdated and did not mention Cyro-synthesis and she did not plan to reveal it any time soon. With this new ability, she was finally one step closer to catching up to her family members. Yes, she should not be competing with her family but she was a prideful woman and did not like to be at the bottom of her family's power ranking list.

"Shit, don't blame me, you forced me. I hope you survive for my sake," Saying that Uri immediately ordered one of his bodies to suicide bomb hugging Colleen.

Learning that everything he did till now was for nothing, Uri's mind, which was stressed by the ticking time, went crazy. He had used up all the time, what he had was enough for his escape and none to spare to care if his colleagues had killed the boy. He just wanted to escape. As long as he had Dr. Luna Lorn in his grasp he had completed a part of his mission which should be enough for him to be spared from any form of punishment.

While one of Uri's bodies dashed toward Colleen to suicide bomb her, another one of his bodies rushed toward his last body, yelling, "Rule of Fire, Meaning of Sacrifice & Immolation, Rune- Sealing by Self-Sacrifice, Rune Card- Egg of Fire."

With that Uri's second body melted into a puddle of molten magma and encased his third body then solidified into an egg. This way Uri's third body will be able to survive the explosion of Colleen being suicide bombed by his first body. This was Uri's countermeasure against his ace, he knew that someday he will be in a situation where all three of his bodies will be in one place and trapped by his enemy, leaving no room to use his ace, Suicide Bombing. Therefore he learned a new meaning of fire, Sacrifice, after achieving completion in immolation meaning of the fire rule and forged a new rune then crafted it into a rune card capable enough to protect him from himself.

Since Uri had a sealing method powerful enough to withstand the self-detonation of a demigod, why did he not use it to seal Colleen and instead resort to suicide bombing which had a high chance of killing her? Because there was a catch to this sealing method of Uri's, as much as it was strong outside it was weaker inside. This solidified molten magma egg, which his third body was sealed in, was similar to an egg. Allowing the third body of the Uri to break out of the seal anytime he felt safe, like the chick breaking out of its egg. This ability was more to protect himself than to trap others. Within this seal, Uri's body could hibernate for centuries and millennia altogether and not die. There were many dangerous places in this world and out of this world, and this ability made sure that Uri had higher and good chances to survive all of them.

"About time," Colleen yelled seeing Uri finally use his ace because she wanted to use the new way to use her runes that she had thought of just now. Though a suicide bombing demigod was a lot for the first trial. However, Colleen had other countermeasures in place, as she could just leave the mirrorverse. Though that would mean that the explosion from the suicide bombing destroyed mirrorverse and Uri gained his freedom. So Colleen soldiered on thinking, 'Let's hope it doesn't come to that.'

As Uri's second body neared her, Colleen suddenly emitted a frightening amount of energy yelling, "Glacier Domain."

Seeing that he could not reach Colleen to hug her, Uri chose to detonate himself right then and there. As the two frightening energies collided with each other, it seemed as if the world within the mirrorverse had paused. That was because both of the energies were trying to overpower one another. But the results were instantly clear, the explosive energy from Uri's suicide bombing had dominated Colleen's Glacier Domain.

Despite seeing that her Glacier Domain was being pushed back by the explosion Colleen did not choose to leave the mirrorverse but rather she immediately began to consume external energy sources like soul jades, rule stones, etc to boost her domain. Gaining a boost the glacier energy began to clash with the explosion bringing it to a standstill but soon the explosion was getting pushed back rather it seemed to be consumed by the glacier domain, once this happened, in an instant the whole mirrorverse turned into a glacier.

Witnessing this Uri who was hiding in the solidified magma egg lost all hope of escaping and started to despair knowing this was his end because he never had seen a demigod overpower his suicide bombing. There were a lot of powerful demigods who had survived his self-detonation like his master but never did he witness a demigod overpower and dominate the versatile explosion. He finally understood the reason for his defeat, the organization had seriously underestimated Colleen, she was no less of a threat than her demigod family members.

At first, when Glacier energy collided with the explosion its momentum fell short of that of the explosion, unable to absorb the energy from the explosion using Cyro-synthesis at a rate at which the explosion was expanding. Knowing this Colleen immediately supplemented her skill with external energy, once the rate of absorption of glacier energy matched the rate of expansion of explosion, the tides had changed and it was only a matter of milliseconds for the Glacier domain to absorb the entire explosion.

Had it been outside Colleen can not guarantee the same result but she exploited the advantage of creating a domain within a domain. This way she could tackle the explosion from all sides rather than just one side. Hence she ended up freezing the entire Mirrorverse into a glacier.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1168 Devil Belpgor?

[1,042 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 04:18

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, St. Raymond Cemetery

"Where is everyone?" Colleen walked out of the Mirrorverse carrying a block of ice encasing a human-size egg, only to find that the St. Raymond Cemetery was empty of any living like a graveyard was supposed to be. But then she felt two familiar but unfamiliar presences approaching.

When she turned to look, she found two teenage girls cautiously looking at her. And it did not take long for her to recognize them through their presence. One seemed to be closely related to the Bright couple, their daughter perhaps, as Ann reported this girl reeked of demonic energy and the other must be the Clown Mask's daughter, the wielder of the fabled physique 'Tongue of Tao.' Though she was curious as to what these two were doing here early in the morning however before she could ask them she felt fluctuations of strong energies colliding from the outskirts of the city and rushed toward it after warning the girls, "Go home, it is not safe outside."

"Holyshit, I thought I was going to die," Corey said while taking in deep breaths trying to forget the intimidating presence of the Demigod that just left. Then she complained to the incarnation of Corey Park in her core aloud, "Didn't you say all the Demigods had left?"

'I warned you not to come here. Thankfully, she is someone from the southern royal family. This means the demigods that took Wyatt should be related to her or something like that,' Corey Park felt Colleen's presence familiar to that of Anna's, hence she regarded Colleen as a part of the southern royal family. Like how humans can distinguish other humans by their appearance similarly veteran Card apprentices can distinguish other Card apprentices based on the presence of their soul pathway, soul pathway signature.

"Excuse me, Corey, right? Are you here for Wyatt too?" Cortney approached Corey who was talking to herself like a mad person knowing that Corey and Dalton Wyatt were friends.

Corey glanced at Cortney suspiciously before answering her, "Yes. But, you and Wyatt, did you two agree to meet here, at this hour?"

'Really, Corey? Why would you ask her that? If Wyatt was cheating on mother with her, why would they meet here out of all the romantic spots and hotels in the city?' Corey Park comments knowing the reason behind Corey's question to Cortney. They can not stop their mother from falling for him but they sure as hell could help her keep him in line and not derail.

"No, we didn't. I rushed over here to investigate why his presence disappeared with the demigods," Cortney explained to Corey.

"No need to worry, Wyatt's presence did disappear with the demigods, but the one just left belongs to the southern royal family. They should have things under control. But it is impressive as to how you can so accurately differentiate presence afar with your realm," Corey Park walked out of Corey's body in her fire incarnation form to commend Cortney for being able to distinguish the presence of a card soldier from the various demigod presences despite the limitation of her realm.

Feeling the intimidating presence of four demigods and a semi-demigod suddenly appearing in the airspace of the city. Alerted, Corey and Park walked out of their card creation retreat to check on Susan and the rest of their family. Though the arrival of demigods did spread a little panic around, it did not disturb daily life. As they caught up to what happened during their retreat, a drama broke out, shit hit the fan, and despite Park's repeated warnings, Corey rushed over here to check on her friend.

Park asked Corey not to run around to check on her friend not because she did not care for the boy but in light of these events she suddenly felt a presence of an old enemy, Demon Belphegor, what was concerning was that he seemed to be stronger than she remembered. It seems what she dreaded the most happened, after killing her, Belphegor had advanced to become a Devil.

"No, I did not, Bloodette did," Cortney said as a head of a girl made from blood extended out of Cortney's neck looking in the direction of where Colleen flew to, then the head spoke, "But you sure Wyatt will be fine? They seem to be fighting over there."

"With our realm, we can not participate in that fight, so we can only assume that the southern royal family can protect him," Park answered Bloodette with a partial but practical answer. And neither of those present here could refute her answer. Even though they knew their friend was in danger they could only pray that he was okay. The realm difference was just too huge.

"..." Bloodette and Cortney's faces turned grim and they remained silent as they felt regret for not being able to help their friend. Because what Park said was true, neither of them had the power to help the boy. They could only promise to avenge him in the future in case things go badly.

When the demigods arrived in the airspace of the city, Cortney and Bloodette, who was asleep in the new building of the orphanage, woke up on high alert. The demigod's blatant display of their presence had them worried that a fight would break out between the demigods and the whole city would become the fight's collateral damage. So Cortney was out of wits regarding how to protect the orphanage. However, with the help of Bloodette, she teleported everyone in the orphanage into Bloodette's dungeon. And by the time she returned to check on Wyatt, his presence vanished with the presence of the demigods. If not for being delayed in bringing the orphanage to safety first, Cortney planned to rush to Wyatt and bring him into Bloodette's dungeon too. But things did not go according to her plan.

'If only they had come to Wyatt's rescue first.'

Now that their orphanage family was safe and their friend was not, these words kept repeating in Cortney and Bloodette's minds again and again, nonstop, fueling their regret. Never once did they stop to consider how could they get to their friend if he was the target of the demigods.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1169 Girl Who Gets The Boy

[1,704 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 03:18

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, Guild Association Mall, Warehouse No.234

Aba and Sansa were peacefully asleep sharing the only bedroom in the warehouse. Both had cried themselves to the bed as hearing Sansa's cries expressing her pain Aba who tried to console her ended up tearing up too.

With Anna and Ann gone, the warehouse was under the constant watch of Agatha Lavender. With the boy's death, she had become extra strict with her work.

Though Agatha did not spend a lot of time with the boy, the times they shared were all memorable as she hasn't been so open to anyone since Demigod Windsor. No matter what others say Agatha considered that boy her friend. And the failure to save his life had hit her hard.

Agatha has been repaying the entire battle over and over in her mind thinking of things she could have done differently that would bring a different result. Yes, she blamed herself for the boy's death.

As someone who has seen her share of fights and war, Agatha knew better than to indulge in such fantasies but for some reason, she could not bring herself to stop thinking about those thoughts. As she was riddled with guilt.

This unresolved guilt of not being able to protect the boy had made Agatha focus more intently on protecting Aba. This was not about redeeming her failure to protect the boy by protecting Aba, rather she was worried she wasn't capable of protecting Aba.

Carrying all this guilt Agatha failed to see that Anna and Ann were awfully quiet about the boy's death. Not only did they compromise on their word about killing Aba if something were to happen to the boy but did not even bother her about the details of the mission and what went wrong. It was as if they did not blame her for the boy's death. If only Agatha were to look past her guilt then she would find that Anna and Ann were acting very suspiciously.

Wallowing in guilt, Agatha suddenly felt the presence of four demigods and a semi-demigod in the airspace. Agatha's first instinct was to hide her and the warehouse's presence using item cards given to her by the demigod Windsor. With this card, unless one physically spots them they will not be able to tell them apart from the rest of the city.

When she probed to check what the demigods were up to she made a shocking discovery, she felt the presence of the boy. Yes, the boy they all thought was dead. He was alive.

Impossible, Agatha instantly denied any possibility of the boy being alive as she had seen the slime drop his grimoire after its death. But then once she entertained the question of how the boy was still alive, she began to notice little things that she had never noticed before, from the suspicious circumstances surrounding the boy's death to the suspicious behavior of the southern emperor, it immediately became clear to Agatha that the boy had faked his death.

'That son of a gun,' Agatha thought as she forced every fiber of her being from rushing toward the boy, grabbing him by his collar, and asking him, 'How could you do this to me?'

While Agatha was cautiously spying in the direction of the demigods and the boy, she found some activity in the warehouse. So she immediately checked it out only to find the teenage Card apprentice from the adjacent warehouse making her way into their warehouse.

Suspicious, Agatha immediately arrived behind the teenager and asked, "What business do you have here?"

Spooked Corey turned to look at the voice behind her but was immediately frightened by Agatha's intimidating eyes and semi-demigod realm. But she still managed to speak, which did not help her case, "Who are you?"

"Answer me or I will kill you for trespassing on this property," Agatha warned Corey to not waste her breath and answer her or the consequence will be dire.

"I work here. Who are you and what are you doing in my big sister's warehouse?" Corey had her methods to track Susan and they were telling her that Susan was in the warehouse bedroom.

"I have been here for days now and never once seen you come to work here. Either you are a bad employee or you are lying," Agatha focused her intent on Corey not knowing how to handle her. If not for her having felt the presence of this girl I'm the adjacent warehouse since she came here, would not be so tolerant toward her.

"Um, Corey, what are you doing here?" Sansa who was sound asleep woke up hearing the commotion and came to check it. A drowsy-eyed Aba also tagged along.

"Big sis, who is that little kid?" Seeing Susan come out of the bedroom with a little kid in pajamas, Corey forgot the demigod in front of her and I enquired about the kid. But then she noticed dried tear stains on Susan's face and immediately asked, "Were you crying? Who made you cry? Was it that asshole, Wyatt?"

Aba's dropping eyes opened wide being called little kid by Corey but hearing her call Wyatt an asshole she immediately looked at Sansa only to find her rush into Corey's embrace crying, "Corey, he died, Wyatt's dead."

"Big sis, are you trying to trick us? It's not gonna work because I can feel his presence near his parent's grave. But I wonder what the demigods are doing next to him?" Park's fire incarnation walked out of Corey's body and said. Surprising Susan, Aba, and Agatha.

Surprise of seeing a sentient fire incarnation apart, Agatha was shocked to hear that she could feel the presence of the boy from her in the warehouse. As for Aba, she looked at Corey and Park unkindly for having been called a little kid and said, "Girl, have you gone Crazy?"

"..." Susan also looked at Park in confusion, thankfully Agatha finally stepped in to explain, "She is speaking the truth, the boy is alive and in this city. It seems Wyatt faked his death in the sun blossom city and the Southern Emperor was somehow a part of it."

Coming out of initial shock, Susan immediately said, "I am going to see him."

"No, manager Susan, you can't. Boss has ordered me to take you to the central region asap. He said will be contacting you soon," ordering his subordinates to make the arrangements as per his master's orders Old Ben then visited Susan's house and then the warehouse to pick her up.

Agatha knew Old Ben was Wyatt's subordinate so she did not bother him as he entered the warehouse. But Corey and Park were not that happy about his arrival, "Who the fuck is your boss to make plans for big sis? Besides, did we not decide to go to the southern royal palace first?"

"Corey, honey, shut up. Captain Ben, is Wyatt alright?" Susan asked as she was still worried that her young boss might still be wounded.

"Boss is fine, please don't worry about him. But manager Susan, we have to leave the city and head to the central region immediately," Old Ben declared seriously.

"Fine, let's go," Sansa did not hesitate to follow Old Ben because, after last night's false scare, she had vowed to be the girl who gets the boy.

"What?" Susan's answer shocked Corey, Park, and Aba. As for Agatha, she wasn't close to Susan, and besides, she was more concerned about why the Boy asked his subordinates to leave the city immediately and head to the central. Did he have a falling out with the southern royal family? That doesn't seem to be the case. The boy did show a cautious approach toward the southern royal family, what was the boy up to?

"No way. You can't go to the central region just because a boy asked you to," Park yelled. Unlike Corey, she had a 'let's wait and watch' attitude towards Susan and the boy's relationship progression but Susan moving to another region on the whim of the boy was too big too soon.

"Park," Susan shouted and then shyly said, "This is my job, if it needs me to move to the central region then I will."

"I think you should go," Aba said. As someone who lent her shoulder to Susan to cry, Aba knew how much Susan cared for the boy.

"Who asked you, shorty," Corey and Park, both instantly snapped at Aba for supporting Susan's idea.

"That is it, I am going to kill you two," Aba pounced on Corey only to be stopped by Agatha and began to yell, "Let go of me Agatha I will kill these two today."

"Princess, calm down. Remember what you resolved," Agatha tried to calm Aba.

"Corey and Park, apologize to Aba. She is my friend. I will not stand by watching two friends insult my other friend," Susan ordered Corey and Park to behave and apologize to Aba for their comments about her body build.

"Tsk" Corey and Park reluctantly apologized to Aba and then returned to convincing Susan not to leave for the central region.

"Park, stop it, nothing you say will change my mind," saying that Susan left with old Ben.

...

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 04:08

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, St. Raymond Cemetery

After Colleen and Uri vanished in Colleen's domain, the atmosphere in the graveyard became tense.

Agent Lois glanced at Ann and provoked her saying, "Give up, you are not my match."

"I don't have to win, all I have to do is hold you back," Ann did not fall for Lois's obvious provocation because a defensive stance was a better fit for her task.

"So, I take it you are the smart southern emperor," Agent Lois said, seeing Ann not take the bait.

"Ladies," General Baylor addressed the two, and then turning to Backster he added, "and gentleman, how about we take this fight somewhere else? I would hate to disturb the dead in the cemetery and living in the city."

Agent Lois frowned but Ann and Backster readily agreed with General Baylor's suggestion because Sky blossom city and its citizens were their responsibility.

Being outvoted and also knowing that General Baylor would flip if anything were to happen to his friend Ellen's grave Lois had no choice but to follow the majority.

...

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 1170 Shameless Lois

[1,017 words]

Date- 5 April 2321

Time- 04:08

Location- Southern Region, Blossom district, Sky Blossom City, St. Raymond Cemetery

"Since you guys are open to discussion, I would like to say something before you begin to kill each other," The boy was at the crux of this fight but no one seems to care for his opinion. Nonetheless, he saw an opportunity and demanded his voice to be heard.

Aside from Ann, the other three card apprentices who had just agreed to take the fight outside of the city turned to look at the boy in surprise, listening to him trying to make demands. They were astonished that the boy would speak up despite all that transpired so far instead of cowering for his life, however, General Baylor was the first to react and entertained the boy's notion regardless of being stressed by time, "What is it, son?"

"First, the only people that had the right to call me son are buried here. Second, Ann, how is Anna? And third, are you guys here to kill me or talk to me? If you really are here just to talk to me as you claimed, then why did the demigod on your side try to assassinate me as a suicide bomber regardless of the obvious casualties?" These were the things on my mind right now knowing that Susan had left the city. It took longer than I thought but old Ben was not to blame, Corey and Park happened. Besides, why weren't Corey and Park creating the cards as they promised? I have the laziest employees.

"Don't worry about Anna, though she barely made it, she will live," Ann answered the boy and was quite pleased that the boy bothered to show concern about Anna amidst the fight for his life.

General Baylor was about to answer the boy but was interrupted by Lois, "General, don't tell me you plan to waste the limited time reasoning with the boy. Just grab him, you can tell him as many bedtime stories as you want in the safe house."

"Yes, I do plan to do that. Isn't that the real reason why we are here?" General Baylor would have lived for nothing if he were not able to tell by now that Agent Uri and Lois planned to kill. Uri's suicide bombing had made it apparent. But he still did not turn on them only because he knew if it were just him the southern royal family would never allow him to talk to the boy as he hoped to, Colleen's attitude yesterday morning was a testament to that. He was stuck in rather tricky circumstances but he wanted to make use of them to get what he wanted.

Demigod Backster was befuddled by how things were shaping out to be, he couldn't help but look at the boy with admiration for subtly stalling for time by making use of the differences between the enemies. With this admiration Demigod Backster began to see him in a new light, after all this little card soldier had managed to hook the fish that he couldn't, Anna Heatsend. What surprised him, even more, was he was feeling jealous and a sense of rivalry toward the little card soldier. He thought that it was the funniest thing he felt so far. He was comparing himself, a card demigod, with a card soldier, how funny and degrading was that?

While demigod Backster was sorting his mixed emotions for the boy, Agent Lois from the secret police complained, "I told Henricks you could not be trusted poof"

Lois suddenly vanished and instantly appeared behind the boy with her right arm piercing through his heart, then turning to look at General Baylor she said, "I can't believe why it took me so long to do this. Had I done this as soon as we arrived I would be back home in time for the morning show."

Thinking that she won, Lois failed to notice what the other three noticed, that there wasn't a single drop of blood. Then the head of the boy who was hanging by Lois's arm that was piercing through his chest made a full 180-degree turn, and looking into Lois's eyes he said, "To think a semi-demigod would stoop so low to backstab a card soldier, speaks a lot about your character."

Having said that to Lois's dismay, the boy's impaled body burst into a swarm of insects that dispersed trying to escape by burrowing into the ground or fly or just crawl away, there were just too many of them to keep count of. Seeing this Lois immediately reacted and yelled, "Inferno."

"No," General Baylor, Demigod Backster, and Ann tried to stop Lois and protect the escaping insects but they suddenly felt that the entire world was against them the soul energy, rule power, and divinity, that they have spent their entire life refining suddenly did not obey them rather even rebelled against their control. They could only watch as the wind suddenly turned into a blazing fire burning every last one of the insects to ashes before they could escape, without damaging the surrounding cemetery. That was the degree of control Lois had on her soul power, rule power, and divinity thanks to her right eye.

"It's just a trick, close the path connecting your ego gem or divinity to the world, she is disturbing the harmony between the energies in our bodies through there," Ann yelled revealing Lois's trick that made it look like she could control the energies in their body. Anna had a field card that did the same, the Damned Arena.

There were different energies in a card apprentice's body, these energies need to be in harmony or at the least an equilibrium, for the card apprentice to make use of them however if these energies are in disharmony they would run rampant, card apprentice will have a hard time getting these energies in control and get them to do what they want them to. In the worst-case scenario, the imbalance in the energies can be so large that the card apprentice's ego gem or divinity might end up exploding resulting in their death.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.