Lois's scattered mental strength gathered to form a specter of herself, and then it looked at the specter of the boy encased in a diamond made of his mental strength in shock. As a semi-demigod Lois's mental strength was exceptionally strong, enough to defend and overpower the mental strength of a demigod realm card apprentice. If not for her legendary physique being too important and rare to lose, she would be recommended to the trinity immortal program.

The reason why Lois's mental strength was stronger than that of a regular semi-demigod and demigods was all thanks to her legendary physique which allowed her mental strength to navigate through the spiritual plane. The spiritual plane was not a place where one could let their mental strength wander carelessly, even a demigod would behave within the spiritual plane and not dare to go deeper into the spiritual plane. Lois, however not only wandered deeper into the spiritual plane but also dared to navigate it to find the spiritual channels of the various card apprentice in her surrounding and invade them.

Just because Lois's physique allowed her mental strength to navigate in the spiritual plane did not mean Lois could do as she pleased within the spiritual plane because her mental strength needed to be strong enough to travel long distances within the spiritual plane. Seeing the top of a mountain and climbing to the top mountain were two different things.

Only after a lot of tempering and practice did Lois's mental strength grow strong enough for her to be able to travel within the spiritual plane and invade others' spiritual channels. Lois's legendary physique only gave her mental strength and the ability to navigate the spiritual plane but it did not enhance her mental strength to a point where she could be reckless in the spiritual plane, she too like other card apprentices was restrained by the other restrictions of the spiritual realm. But with her hard work, she continued tampering with her mental strength until they had grown to the point where she could be reckless in the spiritual realm.

So when Lois's mental strength failed against the mental strength of the boy, she was beyond shocked. Even with borrowed powers boosting a card soldier's mental strength to that of a demigod, it should not be a match for her mental strength but for some weird reason that wasn't the case. Lois failed, her decades of tampered mental strength failed against the mental strength of a boy who wasn't even two decades old.

Calming herself, Lois's started to observe the boy's mental strength, and to her shock, it seemed to be an amalgamation of four different mental strengths. How could one person have four mental strengths? That was just impossible. And not to forget they seemed to be collaborating without any problem. Especially considering that they were able to create a perfect replica of a diamond. That level of control over one's mental strength was just monstrous. Lois finally began to understand why her mental strength failed when faced with the mental strength of the boy.

Though convinced of her defeat, Lois still had to throw the boy's mental strength out of her spiritual channel. As the boy chose to ignore her presence and continued to march to the mid-section of her spiritual channel concentrating his mental strength in a diamond form. Lois was not out of tricks but she had a much simple way to trough the boy out of her spiritual channel.

So Lois withdrew her mental strength to her body in the mid-section of her spiritual channel, and soon she appeared in the physical plane. With the arrival of Lois's body and ego gem, the boy's shortcut to her spiritual channel was cut off, sending his mental strength back to him.

"Caught you," After my mental strength returned to my body, I said learning that as soon as Lois's physical body appeared in the physical plane she prepared to retreat from my side but was caught by my two floating pairs of arms.

"You are not bad, I will start to take you seriously," Though restrained by my floating arms Lois showed no sign of fear. Clearly, she felt like she could get rid of them anytime she wanted.

"Bring it," I laughed, as my Hive AI was going through all the data we had collected on Lois's ability to figure out how she was doing it, its current speed it shouldn't take more than a minute, once it was done, then I would like to see if Lois continued to remain so fearless then.

"Your funeral," said Lois and unsummoned her god slayer sword and shield and yelled, "Boundless Celestial Arts."

With her yell, Lois's right eye began to glow brilliantly and her physical body began to grow, soon she freed herself from the grip of my floating arms but her body continued to grow, I had to retreat to make room. Lois did not stop until she was 22 meters high. And then Lois looked down at my small figure and added, "Tell you what, if you don't resist I will make your death a little painless."

"Aren't you getting cocky just because you grew a few meters tall? Two can play at that game," I said activating the second form of calamity soul gem transformation skill.

To be honest, I could have tried to sneak in a few attacks as Lois grew in size, I don't know if she had any counter or defenses set in place but I could have attacked her, however, I didn't because seeing that I finally meet an opponent who was using size to fight I was excited as I never actually got to use the second form of the transformation skill of calamity soul gem in battle. A part of me held myself back and let Lois grow to her current height so that I would get to use my transformation skill's second form.

"Hahaha," seeing my body grow in height, Lois suddenly began to laugh out loud like a maniac. I could only think her enthusiasm was because of the same reason as I.

Lois's maniac laughter came to an abrupt halt when the boy's eye level went higher than hers. To her surprise, the boy had not only grown taller than her but he looked more monstrous than before. It wasn't just the floating heads and hands behind him, he looked as if a giant monster barely fitting in its human skin suit, he was intimidatingly hideous. But there was an unidentified charm to his appearance, it was not a physical charm but an instinctive charm of the wild, like that of an alpha. The cruelty and strength conveyed by his hideous appearance somehow made him more appealing and attractive.

Unleashing my second transformation I felt unbound, especially with the devil's power coursing through my body. I got a sense of being invincible and a craving for a fierce fight grew in my heart. It was as if every fiber in my body down to its cells was yelling, 'Fight! Fight! Fight!'

I always considered myself a man of curiosity but today something in me or the Gigamite part of me was craving war and destruction. Now I see the point of Viltronians slaying every mutant Viltronian Gigamite right at their birth. For me to be influenced to crave destruction and war despite my painful past, was this the cost of gaining strength?

*Boom!* I don't know, I just swung my left fist and punched Lois's face. Gigamite's physical prowess was unmatched, combined with the devil's power my punch should have knocked Lois into the air but it did not. She received my attack with her face while her right eye shone brightly and I felt the force behind my fist drain but I did not just have one left fist but three. Though Lois blocked one of my fists the other two landed on her left ribcage throwing her into the air, after her body made one complete spin and fell to the ground, sending tremors in the surrounding. Fortunately, we were far away from the city but still... hopefully the city would not be dragged into this fight.

Lois quickly got up as if she hadn't taken any damage but her eyes told a different story. However, she did not spare any thought to the injury and dashed at the boy ready to throw a fist at him but to her dismay, before she could even get close to the boy the four arms floating behind the boy floated in front of him and began to charge at her like four missiles, left with no choice Lois had to retreat knowing that with the boy's prediction-type ability maybe she should forget about melee combat and stick to power ranged attacks. Lois was not wrong to think that, as her opponent had three heads and six arms adding to that a prediction-type ability, her chance in the melee battle were not good but Lois was not ready to give up yet.

Lois once again charged at the boy but this time she activated the effects of her card, chanting, "Boundless fist."

So when the four floating fists came to interrupt her charge she threw a punch aiming at all four of the fist. The four fists of the boy greeted Lois's boundless fist with a barrage of punches, eventually bringing Lois's punch to a halt but then she threw another boundless fist with her other arm, in response the four arms could only join together to form a shield. And to Lois's surprise, the four arms together were able to stop her boundless fist. But she wasn't done yet, she threw another boundless fist with her other arm and turned her attack into a barrage of boundless fists. However, after throwing numerous punches at the makeshift shield created by the joining of four floating arms Lois was astonished to see that they were able to persist under her attack making her wonder how thick was the boy's skin to withstand her boundless attacks effortlessly.

But just as her barrage of punches stopped the four arms separated revealing the boy, who pounced upon her throwing a punch aimed right at the center of her chest. Lois immediately crossed her arms in front of her chest as a defense as she did not have the time to move her face to greet the incoming fist. When the boy's fist landed on her hands, Lois's pupils widened under the sheer amount of pain that was transmitted to her brain as her body was blown back a few miles under the impact of the punch.

Lois's body made a few rolls on the ground before she was able to forcefully bring her body to halt by digging her fists into the ground like an anchor. While getting up Lois dug up a huge boulder from the ground and threw it at the boy and she followed right behind it.

The incoming boulder was blown to smithereens by the floating arms of the boy giving an opening to Lois who closely followed behind the boulder to close in on the boy and land her boundless fist on his left shoulder but to Lois's surprise the boy took her boundless fist head on yet remained undaunted, so she turned her attacking into a barrage of boundless fists yet her continuous punches despite landing on their target made no damage to it, no, the defense of the target was so strong that the damage of her boundless fists was negligible to it.

With such a shocking revelation, Lois's paused her attack only to hear the boy say, "You done? Now, my turn." Soon Lois felt six different locations on her body being attacked at the same time.

Once again her body was thrown back with the impact of the boy's attack but this time the boy did not stand around to let her get up rather he followed her free-falling body and landed a brutal kick in her gut causing fluids to spray out of Lois's mouth involuntarily. With this kick, Lois's body descend to the ground like a meteorite, and shock waves from the impact of her giant body on the ground caused huge landslides that buried a few low-rank field dungeons in the nearby area.

"What the...," Carrying a block of ice encasing a human-sized egg made of molten flesh and blood Colleen rushed to the outskirts of the city to find two giants fighting. She immediately identified the two giants as Agent Lois and her granddaughter's useless fiancé. She had only gone for a few minutes but the battle outside had progressed to the point where she found it beyond her comprehension. Where had demigod Backster and Ann gone? And why was a card soldier oozing the power of a demigod?

"I smell a devil," Colleen muttered and turn to look in the direction where she smelled the presence of a devil only to find badly wounded fusion Anna/Ann lying in the embrace of the boy on whose left shoulder stood a jet-black monster worm, devil in disguise.

It did not take long for Colleen to figure out that the boy was oozing the power of a demigod because he had made some kind of deal with the devil to borrow its power to save Anna. Coming to this realization Colleen's first reaction was the joy that her granddaughter had found someone willing to sacrifice themselves for her but soon it was replaced with rage and she vanished to appear behind the boy freezing the jet-black monster worm on his shoulder into a block of ice. Then she shattered it into ice shavings.

"Grandma," Anna/Ann uttered in surprise at Colleen's arrival.

"Well aren't you enjoying your time," Colleen mocked her granddaughter for not knowing the place and time for romance and asked, "Where is Backster? I need his ability for interrogation."

"About that..." Anna/Ann did not know how to answer her grandma that they not only failed but also required the target of their protection to protect them. If it was someone else, Anna/Ann would not bother with such a silly dilemma but it was their grandma, the only person that Anna cared to prove to.

"Girl, don't waste my time. They have your cousin Luna," Colleen asked Anna to not waste time informing her that the attackers had also kidnapped Luna.

"Aaarh," Anna/Ann screamed in pain as they separated back into two separate individuals. This process was a gruesome scene, unlike their fusion process. Because the damage they suffered would be inflicted on both their bodies. Had it been a complete fusion, wounds of this range wouldn't have been a problem for them and healed within seconds. They did not want to show such sight to their lover so they did not separate before and chose to powerlessly lay in his embrace. But now that they heard that the culprits had kidnapped Luna they had reached a decisive decision.

Being separated from Anna, Ann immediately said, "Grandma, that semi-demigod with legendary physique teleported Demigod Backster and Baylor to some place, I haven't seen or heard from him since then."

"Useless buffon, how could he be trapped by a semi-demigod? I blame my luck," Colleen did not hesitate to call demigod Backster buffon for being trapped by a semi-demigod.

"I have an idea where Lois might have teleported them," the boy suddenly spoke surprising Ann, Anna, and Colleen but they held back their surprise as the boy continued to say, "Send a text to them informing them that their body has been compressed and transferred into the mid-section of their spiritual channel. To get out all they have to do is command their spiritual channel to send them out. That should do."

Finding that the boy not only knew where Lois had teleported the two demigods to but also knew how to get out of there Anna immediately hugged him and prepared to kiss him but she was stopped by him saying, "Original body gets jealous easily."

Hearing the clone of the boy Anna was dumbfounded but immediately said, "Fine, I will save this kiss for him."

"Girl, stop flirting and heal yourself," Colleen threw a high-grade potion at her granddaughter asking her to have some restraint and heal her body.

"I have sent the text to demigod Backster," Ann informed and took the potion her grandma passed to her and began to heal herself.

Soon Backster appeared next to Colleen and bowing his head he apologized for his incompetence saying, "Forgive me, your highness, this will not happen again."

"I do not have time to deal with you. Come let's find a quiet place to interrogate the perp I caught," saying that Colleen prepared to leave but she paused and turned to look at the boy's clone and said, "I trust that you know what you are doing."

In response to Colleen's words, the boy's clone nodded. Finding the boy's nod genuine Colleen nodded before vanishing with Backster following behind her.

"Well, my grandma seems to like you. This is the first time she has so openly shown her approval to one of my lovers," Anna said to her lover's clone who turned to look at her and said, "Demigod Baylor is missing."

"I did not share the information with him, we can deal with him later," Ann informed that she had only sent the text to demigod Backster and not demigod Baylor.

"No, I mean Demigod Baylor has already left," the boy's clone said unable to find Demigod Baylor's spiritual channel's end in the physical plane.

If Demigod Baylor was still trapped in his spiritual channel then the clone should be able to find Baylor's spiritual channel's end in the physical plane in the surrounding vicinity where Demigod Backster appeared but he did not. This could only mean that Demigod Baylor had freed himself long ago and had escaped or was in hiding somewhere.

Ann and Anna did not bother to ask why the boy was so sure that demigod Baylor had escaped Lois's trap instead they believed in him and Ann shared the information with her grandma's grimoire.

But then a Jet-black monster worm appeared on the Clone's shoulder and said, "I thought she would never leave."
