

Card Apprentice Daily Log

Chapter 2001 Special Training

[ 1,552 words ]

Chapter 2001 Special Training

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 14:17

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City

As much as Wyatt wanted to use his soul pupils on the Field Marshal to learn more about her, he did not. Mostly because he would get caught by the Field Marshal's unique eyes. Also, he could just ask her what he wanted to know. It was a decent thing to do and basic common sense. However, this was not the time and place. "Aurelia, enough playing around," Wyatt said looking at Aurelia who was still on the floor holding the Field Marshal's legs begging her to spare her. "Playing around? Boss, I am down here bargaining for my life," Aurelia remarked not letting go of the Field Marshal's leg. The Field Marshal seemed to be enjoying Aurelia's antics. After a mind-numbing day, dealing with someone as shameless and spineless as Aurelia she was starting to feel unnerved and decompressed. "If this is what you call bargaining? My dear, then to you beggars must be salesmen peddling sympathy," the Field Marshal commented listening to Aurelia. She wanted to call Aurelia's mother and ask what she had been teaching her daughter. Since she had met Aurelia, she had seen her spend more time kneeling on the floor than standing on it. To her Aurelia's action couldn't just be explained by the term spinelessness. "Your Highness, the weak have their way of survival and the strong have their way of survival. Then, why do the weak look up to the strong when the strong look down on the weak?" Aurelia suddenly asked the Field Marshal with a serious tone and sincere gaze. Causing those present to think the Field Marshal's words had offended her. The Field Marshal was taken aback by Aurelia's sudden change in demeanor and tone, feeling that Aurelia had her pride and her comment might have been insensitive. She contemplated her question trying to think of a good answer only to hear Aurelia answer the question for her, "It is because the weak are kneeling they have to look up to the strong who are standing. Hahaha, get it?" Listening to Aurelia joke, the Field Marshal's neck vein threatened to pop as she tried to control her anger. She had thought despite her spineless and shameless ways Aurelia might have her pride but she was wrong this girl seemed to have been born without those things. "Come on, I thought that was a good one for something I came up on the spot. I guess you guys are not my kind of audience," Aurelia said shaking her head and getting comfortable on the gymnasium floor. "My dear, what kind of audience is your kind audience? I am guessing spineless snails," having controlled her anger, the Field Marshal said letting out a small chuckle. "Hey, you smiled, does that mean you forgive me, Your Highness?" Aurelia said striking the iron when it was hot. "Sure honey, only if you agree to undergo my special training just for you," the Field Marshal had a gentle smile on her face as she compromised with Aurelia. "Special training tailored just for me when do we start," Aurelia was many things but slacker and quitter were not one of them. The bandages wrapping around Aurelia's body covering her bruises and lesions were evidence of the hard training she persistently undergoes to master various body reinforcement martial arts as it was her only way to get stronger with a quirky physique lacking proper active soul control talent. So when the Field Marshal said that she had special training prepared just for her Aurelia could not help but get excited like a child seeing presents under the Christmas tree come Christmas morning. "After Wyatt fixes your physique," the Field Marshal answered but her gentle smile hid a knowing smirk. However, Aurelia who was too psyched about the special training failed to notice it. Letting go of the Field Marshal's feet, she sprung on her feet performing an acrobatic maneuver. Then, she hurried to Wyatt's side and said, "Boss, hurry I have a special training to attend to." "Are you sure you want to attend the special training, it might come in the way of your daily duties as a Bright Lions member?" Wyatt subtly tried to warn Aurelia with his eyes catching the Field Marshal's smirk.

"Boss, please can I take a few days off for the special training?" Aurelia failed to receive Wyatt's signal as she was too enthused to be offered a special training tailored just for her by the Southern Hero Field Marshal Heatsend, her childhood hero, herself. "Fine, suit yourself," Wyatt agreed with Aurelia seeing she was beyond help. He understood that despite all her antics, Aurelia was still a child. It was hard for her to resist such temptations. Then, turning to the Field Marshal Wyatt bluntly said, "After you are done having your fun with her, please, do give her the training she deserves." "...". Listening to Wyatt, Aurelia could not help but frown finding his words were peculiar but she could not put her finger on it as she was too excited about the special training to suspect anything about it. "I plan to do just that," the Field Marshal informed arriving behind Aurelia and placing her hands on her shoulders. Then, she uttered to Aurelia, "Don't worry, my dear. It's good that you applied for leave because you would be too tired from training to do your day job." Listening to the Field Marshal, Aurelia nodded in understanding. She couldn't wait to start the special training.

Recalling Anna's training, Wyatt could not help but make one last attempt to stop Aurelia, "You sure about this Aurelia? There are other easier and safer ways to get stronger you know." "Boss, for my talent easier and safer ways don't work. The hard and slow way is my way," Aurelia said with a unique confidence that caused even the Field Marshal who was planning to take pleasure in her suffering during the so-called special training couldn't help but take her seriously putting her sadistic thoughts aside. "Fine," Wyatt too was unable to persuade Aurelia anymore seeing her radiant confidence and turning to the Field Marshal, he asked, "Speaking of special training? How is Anna's training going on? When will she join us?"

"What's the matter, do you miss your girlfriend?" the Field Marshal asked, not forcing Anna's mother's narrative of Wyatt being their son-in-law on him anymore.

"Honestly, yes. I miss that crazy girl," Wyatt replied. Listening to him be honest, the Field Marshal was taken aback. It was hard to get a straight answer from Wyatt, but seeing him answer honestly now, she guessed her approach previously was wrong.

"I don't know when she will be out but she is at the crucial period of her training, if manages to pull through it, her future will be limitless," the Field Marshal answered. However, Wyatt found it funny considering how the development in the Card world was limited no matter how talented one was the Field Marshal, herself, was one such example. "What about Ann? How does she grow?" Wyatt asked trying to understand Anna's origin card better. Wondering shouldn't Ann be doing something to lessen Anna's burden by undergoing training herself? Instead, while Anna struggled to grow stronger, Ann ran around doing her mother's chores. "Ann's condition is special. She will automatically grow when Anna breaks through," the Field Marshal avoided talking about Ann's status as Anna's origin card. Ann, just like every other origin card, would grow stronger undergoing a baptism as their card apprentice advances to a higher realm.

"Um, fascinating. I always thought it was the other way around," Wyatt found it hard to imagine Anna cultivating seriously, he believed that of the two, Ann and Anna, Ann would be the one pulling the weight while Anna partied. But it seems even Anna could not escape the struggles of a card apprentice with her sentient origin card. "Believe it or not, Anna used to be diligent. At your age, she was already preparing to break through into the card lord realm. However, things changed when her mother decided to send her to the Morningstar university feeling that everyone in the Royal palace was cuddling her too much. Anna's mother was not wrong to fear that if things continued Anna might grow into a sheltered flower with no real-world experience but she miscalculated and underestimated the Morningstar University. Not that I am blaming the university for Anna's questionable qualities but had they not ignored Anna's complaints and acted on them she might have stood a better chance there. Honestly, considering how Luna turned out, I find myself wondering if Morningstar University is the right place for our descendant's education," the Field Marshal could not help but wonder. "Don't worry now that you have handed the Southern Academic city to me, I will turn it around," Wyatt said feeling that Field Marshal was confiding in him. This was the first time she did not talk about punishing Luna for hurting their honor but talked about her like a caring grandmother. "I trust you," the Field Marshal did not argue about the possibility of Wyatt's absurd claims just went with it. ...

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

[ 1,588 words ]

Chapter 2002 Unstoppable

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 14:27

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City

Wyatt found it refreshing to see the Field Marshal confide and trust him. With a knowing smile he shook his head and opened Aurelia's silver grimoire saying, "Let us continue where we stopped." Opening the grimoire's card creation page I placed Marcy's blood rule substitute card in it, preparing to introduce the pathogen that once plagued Marcy into Aurelia's body. Aurculean physique passively gives its user strength, defense, and speed beyond their realm allowing them to be physically unrevealed in their realm. When activated its user gains a golden form that allows them to absorb eighty percent of all physical or spiritual damage taken boosting their physical strength & speed along with physical and spiritual defense allowing them to become an unstoppable force on the battlefield.

Aurculean physique, in theory, was a dream physique, but practically was a quirky physique as to absorb eighty percent of the physical and spiritual damage the user has to directly withstand the remaining twenty percent of the physical and spiritual damage. Twenty percent of the damage might be small but when in a prolonged battle, facing a stronger enemy, or multiple enemies that damage would prove life-threatening. Hence one could only use this physique to gain a small burst of power and end the battle quickly before it becomes life-threatening.

This was why those who had awakened Aurculean physique had never been able to use this physique to achieve anything great enough to leave their mark on the card world's history. That was until Dan Malvin awakened this physique. Paired with his family bloodline it gave birth to the unstoppable legend, ex-Field Marshal Dan Malvin, the founder of Border City.

The reason the Aurculean physique was quirky was because of one shortcoming, it had no healing effect. If the physique were to boost the user's healing ability along with their physical powers then the user would not have to worry about the twenty percent of damage taken when absorbing the rest eight percent of all physical and spiritual damage.

Not that none of the Aurculean physique users had thought of various methods to make up for this shortcoming. All the previous users of this physique, including Aurelia, have tried to make use of the various healing and regeneration abilities to complete their quirky physique but they all failed as it was not as simple as it sounded. The Aurculean physique users had to increase their healing powers both physically and spiritually to bring out the full potential of their physique. Just boosting one's healing power was not enough, the healing power should be able to keep up with damage taken both physically and spiritually. Only when they were able to meet these two conditions could a card apprentice bring out the true prowess of the Aurculean physique. Just finding an ability with a strong physical healing effect was hard enough, let alone finding one with a strong spiritual healing effect. Therefore in history, none was able to truly display the full potential of the Aurculean physique until the Malvin family. As the Malvin family's bloodline perfectly made up for the Aurculean physique's shortcomings. It was able to boost its user's healing powers to keep up with the damage taken. This was possible because the Malvin family bloodline effect was to temporarily boost the innate healing prowess its users were born with every time they took damage. The important part to note about the Malvin family bloodline's effect was that the boost gained would be proportional to the damage taken and in case of consecutive attacks the boost gained would stack. Hence, if they were able to survive the initial few damages their healing ability could stake to a point where it could be considered godly for that duration making the users of this bloodline very dominant in prolonged battles.

Still, just by itself, the Malvin family's bloodline wasn't remarkable as its effects would not even make it a decent healing ability. Being able to heal oneself quicker every time they took damage provided no advantage on the battlefield since they could die before their bloodline took effect. Hence, until the birth of Dan Malvin who awakened Aurculean physique, the Malvin family had no highly notable merits on the battlefield. The Malvin family thought of various ways to boost and stack their healing abilities before going into a battle but that was basically self-harm and a desperate measure. Hence they used their brains over brawns to survive in that harsh period. This allowed Dan Malvin to possess the brains required to become a Field Marshal while his physique paired with his bloodline gave him the strength necessary to become a Field Marshal. After all, a Field Marshal didn't just have to be strong but they needed to have sufficient strategic prowess to efficiently lead the army on the battlefield. The Aurelia Physique allowed the possessor of the Malvin bloodline to survive long enough that their healing prowess was boosted and staked to a level that would allow them to display the full potential of the Aurelia physique, turning them into an unstoppable force on the battlefield. This combination of the Aurelia Physique and Malvin Bloodline allowed Dan Malvin and his direct descendants to become legends on the battlefield. However, this led to new a problem for them other than them being compared with the Southern Royal family itself. Many noticed that almost all the descendants of Dan Malvin were awakening the Aurculean physique, this gave birth to the rumors that the Malvin family had a method to help their descendants awaken the Aurculean physique. However, the Malvin family denied these rumors claiming that the awakening of the Aurculean physique was a total coincidence by showing that it only awakened in the Dan Malvin's direct descendants with the purest Malvin bloodline. They even speculated that the Aurculean physique was inherited by Dan's descendants through his bloodline. Because no other descendants of the Malvin family that weren't directly related to Malvin awakened the Aurculean physique. However, this led to a division in the Malvin family as many branches of the Malvin family began to believe the rumor and thought that the Main family was keeping the method to awaken the Aurculean physique to themselves. Hence, many began to leave the Border city and immigrate to various parts of the southern region. This caused the pundits of the Southern region to speculate that the rumor about the Malvin family possessing the method to help awaken Aurculean physique was started by the Malvin family enemies to divide the Malvin family that was amassing a lot of power in the Border city. Many even went far as to say that maybe the Heatsend Royal Family was behind it. However, the Main Malvin family immediately came out and said that these rumors were created not to divide the Malvin family by Malvin family enemies but to divide the Southern region by the enemies of the Southern family and Malvin family has always been loyal to Southern Royal family and will continue to do so in the future. The swift actions of the Main Malvin family were to protect themselves since even though few of their descendants were unstoppable and comparable to the unparalleled descendants, their family as a whole was not unstoppable like the Southern royal family which as a whole was truly unparalleled. Not to mention the Malvin family never planned to make enemies of the Southern Royal family let alone plan to overthrow them. Hence they strongly believed someone was targeting their family mainly because of their Unstoppable moniker. However, still today they could not figure out who was targeting them. If not for the Southern Royal family showing them mercy and differentiating truth from the rumors the conspirator's conspiracy to get rid of their family would have succeeded. Wyatt had no idea about the Malvin Family bloodline or their political importance in the Southern Region when he noticed Aurelia's quirky physique. Yet thanks to his soul pupils when he first noticed Aurelia's physique he immediately found that Aurelia's physique had a big shortcoming, it lacked a healing effect. Making the physique impractical to use. Wyatt only knew of how Aurelia's family members had similar physiques and used it to make their legends on the battlefield when he heard the Field Marshal talk about Aurelia's mother and did a deep search on Aurelia's family. That was where he learned how her family members managed to over come the shortcoming of Aurculean physique using their family's bloodline. However, Aurelia who lacked the family bloodline planned to make up for the shortcomings of her physique by practicing Body reinforcement martial arts.

Wyatt thought it was stupid and not the correct way in the long run as in Aurelia's current realm not many were capable of using spiritual power to attack so she was able to showcase her family's signature unstoppable momentum just by practicing her body reinforcement martial arts. However, when faced with enemies that could use spiritual attacks she would instantly lose even if the Aurculean physique were to absorb eighty percent of it. Wyatt could not help but wonder why her family members did not warn her about this, especially her mother. After all, they should be fully aware of the Aurculean physique's shortcoming. Or it was possible Aurelia took this doomed path despite their warnings. Which was short sighted on her part considering her big goals.

...

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 2003 Protean Bacteria

[ 1,048 words ]

Chapter 2003 Protean Bacteria

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 14:35

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City

After introducing some of the pathogens from Marcy's blood curse substitute card into Aurelia's soul pathways through the grimoire card creation page, Wyatt retrieved the substitute card and stored it in his grimoire. Then, he proceeded to break down the pathogens introduced in Aurelia's soul pathways in to their soul pathways using spiritual energy and the card creation page's effect.

Pathogens from Marcy's body were single-celled microorganisms that can be classified as bacteria. After Wyatt's clone in the seed world recruited Dredre's help to get him books on the pathogens in the dark realm from the infinity library, from those books Wyatt learned that the bacteria from Marcy's body were an improved version of a species of bacteria that were quite famous in the Dark Realm mostly among the demons that referred to themselves as Plaguemancers. In the dark realm, the Plaguemancers have termed these bacteria as protean. The reason protean bacteria was famous among the Plaguemancers was because of its high adaptability. These bacteria have proven to survive anywhere as long as they have a proper supply of soul energy. Well, the versatile nature of the bacteria alone was not enough to make the protean bacteria popular among the greediest and sinisteriest professions of the dark races, the Plaguemancers. They found that when inside their host, bacteria will also share their high adaptability with their host. Allowing the host to survive the toughest and harshest of the environment and attacks. But the problem was that protean bacteria were greedy and lazy, they charged their hosts more than the service they provided. Marcy and her predecessors were prime examples of how the protean bacteria were prone to abuse their host. But the Plaguemancers were no vegetarians, following their practice of plague they used a proven method to control pathogens, which was to rid the protean bacteria's reason for survival and replace it with servitude. The bacteria or any pathogens lived to reproduce and multiply. Their whole being centered around the perpetuation of their species. The same was the case with protean bacteria. The reason they took more soul energy from their host than required was to use most of it to reproduce and multiply. The remainder was used to maintain themselves and their host. However, what if the protean bacteria could no longer reproduce? They would have to use all of their energy to maintain themselves and their host as the perpetuation of their species would only be possible with their survival since they had lost their reproduction or multiplication ability. The Plaguemancers called this method the pathogen castration. They used this method to stop the pathogens they had introduced inside their body, to gain unique effects, from multiplying and becoming the cause of their death. By introducing castrated protean bacteria in themselves the Plaguemancers were able to control the quantity of protean bacteria in their body and also use them to adapt to all forms of damage, gaining resistance to those damages to a certain extent. Because of this even if the said Plaguemancer was from a weaker race with no notable traits or physique the Plaguemancers displayed a strong physique that could cause even demons from higher races turn green with envy.

However, there was a huge drawback to this method. By stealing the ability to reproduce and multiply from a pathogen, the Plaguemancers were putting an end to the growth and evolution of said pathogen. Not that the Plaguemancers did not know of this drawback they preferred it this way. They preferred the pathogen castration method despite its drawback because it not only allowed them to control the number of said pathogen in their body but also made sure that the pathogens in their body did not evolve into stronger versions of themselves this way Plaguemancers would not be danger of losing control over the pathogens in their body and dying in the process. If the number of pathogens in their system were to decrease then the Plaguemancers could always introduce more castrated pathogens into their system. If they wanted a pathogen to grow and evolve they could always use others as lab rats to conduct experiments they did not have to use themselves as the lab rat. Once they have developed a stronger version of the pathogen they can always find better methods to control it and introduce it to their body or go with the traditional method. However, still today in the dark realm no one has found the variant of the protean bacteria similar to one that mutated in Marcy's predecessors. The variant of protean bacteria in Marcy's predecessor could be considered the most valuable of all the variants of protean bacteria ever developed because Marcy's variation of the protean bacteria was capable of carrying the host's traits and physique into their direct descendants. If the dark realm were to know that there was such a variant of protean bacteria available then they would all rush to the card world ditching everything they had. After all, even if the dark realm was more advanced than the card world, they too suffered with the eternal worry of giving birth to incapable and weak descendants. No one could guarantee that their descendants would be as powerful and capable as themselves let alone grow stronger than them. Yes, the ruler-class beings gave birth to strong descendants that might become ruler-class beings but for someone who had achieved ruler class and has ruler-class enemies, that level was not good enough. Even if their descendants could not grow their wealth they wanted them to be strong enough to protect their wealth, this was true even if they were Apex ruler class. As even they could not guarantee that their descendants would be able to protect what they had built. Imagine if such beings learned that there was a way that would allow them to pass their talents, traits, and physique to their descendants. Now those beings would not stop at anything to gain their hands on such a method, which was why Wyatt believed that the variant of protean bacteria he found in Marcy was the most valuable version of protean bacteria in the myriad realms. ..

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 2004 Most Valuable Variant Of Protean Bacteria

[ 1,021 words ]

Chapter 2004 Most Valuable Variant Of Protean Bacteria

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 14:44

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City

Learning about the lifespan of viltronians and many dark races Wyatt always wondered, if the purpose of reproduction was to ensure the survival and perpetuation of their species would an immortal race bother to reproduce? Immortal refers to the state of living forever, never dying or experiencing death. If one does not die then what reason would they have to procreate? Obviously not for the continuation or preservation of their bloodline. Yet for some reason, even the Apex ruler class beings known as the strongest beings of the Myriad realms with longest lifespan had not only reproduced but built big families. That could only mean that even the Apex ruler class beings understood and had already determined that there was no eternal immortality sooner or later, they all had to die. This was why they took time out of their busy life to not only reproduce but to provide for their family. Forget the Apex ruler class beings, even the founders of the central government of the Card world had long determined that there was no eternal immortality. They all would die, some sooner and some later. All they were doing with their struggle was pushing their time of death ahead. This was why they all had built their individual families and factions that would support their families, fully aware that they could only pass the torch to their descendants and continue to live in their blood, hearts, minds, and souls.

The prime example of this was Demigod Norley, Jill's father. He had long determined that eternal immortality could only be possible with reproduction, by maintaining their bloodline. No, he did not plan to take over their descendant's bodies using the bloodline like the demigod Redfall did. He planned to create a perfect descendent who would carry the torch from where he had left without having to take a detour. That was why he was so obsessed with the kunti's womb. Demigod Norley never started his own family or faction because he understood the truth that if he could not guarantee reproducing descendants that could out do him, then his descendants would not be able to fight his friends and foes. Fearing they would only become stepping stones for them, he saved his descendants from a lot of pain and agony by not having any descendants. Until Jill who was the seed of Demigod Norley's sins. She had an incomplete physique, the carnivorous womb, which made her incapable of having feelings for the opposite sex whom her physique did not deem worthy of procreation. Now that it had found a worthy mate for Jill, it had begun to show changes. Jill could bargain with it to free her emotions toward Wyatt for their common goal. Be it incomplete research on Kunti's womb, the quirky physique carnivorous womb, the killer pathogen Marcy's variant of protean bacteria, or Marcy's innate physique Gift lineage all would cause a huge buzz in the Myriad realm. They did not offer their wielders strength but their value in the myriad realm was beyond one's imagination. One could never know what an Apex ruler class being would be willing to do to give birth to a perfect descendant carrying all of their talents, physique, traits, and more. However, currently, Wyatt wasn't after Marcy's variant of protean bacteria's 'Gift Linage' but after its versatile adaptation aptitude. Wyatt planned to fix the Aurculean physique's shortcomings using the versatile nature of the protean bacteria. Wyatt who had received a second lease on life was in no hurry to pass on his torch. Therefore his interest in the reproduction capabilities of Marcy's variant of protean bacteria was very little but he also could not help but wonder if he could fix or improve Jill's carnivorous physique using Marcy's variant of protean bacteria.

If Jill wasn't demigod Norley's daughter Wyatt would have seriously given thought to helping Jill fix her quirky physique but unfortunately, she was demigod Norley's daughter, if Wyatt were to fix or improve her physique then demigod Norley would definitely learn about it even if Jill tried to hide it. The consequence that would follow, Wyatt would not even imagine let alone control them. Therefore for now he did not entertain the idea of helping Jill with her physique, maybe he would get back to her in the foreseeable future when he had more confidence about handling the consequences that would follow. Marcy's physique 'Gifted Lineage' was going to create huge trouble thankfully Field Marshal was on it. So it should not be a problem for the time being. Wyatt did not give Marcy any of her traits or physique she had inherited them from her predecessors or the pathogen plaguing her or innately awakened them. This was beyond Wyatt's control.

Besides, Wyatt could not bring himself to strip Marcy of something she had and deserved. That poor girl had been through enough. Wyatt did not want to use the facade like 'it was to save her from future troubles' or 'for her own good' to erase the 'Gifted Lineage' from her soul pathways. That would be cruel. Marcy's two traits and one physique were the happy ending deserving of the Davis Curse that was haunting Marcy's lineage. Wyatt had no right to change it. If he really wanted to help her, he could secretly help her shoulder the burden of having something too valuable for her realm. Instead of using self-righteous reasons to strip Marcy of what was rightful Marcy's. In order to use the part of Protean bacteria that gave it versatile adaptability aptitude to fix Aurelia's Aurculean physique, Wyatt had broken down the protean bacteria he had introduce in her soul pathways to their soul pathways. Now all he had to do was separate the soul pathway that gave the bacteria its super adaptability and then add it to the soul pathway of the Aurculean physique in Aurelia's soul pathway. This way the Aurculean physique would gain the adaptability of the protean bacteria.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 2005 Unstoppable Aurculean

[ 1,017 words ]

Chapter 2005 Unstoppable Aurculean

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 14:47

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City

Countless processors of the Aurculean physique had already determined that its only shortcoming was its lack of healing abilities. However, Wyatt was not adding healing powers to the Aurculean physique's soul pathway instead adding versatile adaptability powers to it. Was it not contrary to what he claimed to do? How did he plan to make up for the Aurculean physique's lack of healing powers with adaptability? Like the other users of the Aurculean physique, Wyatt too agreed that its shortcoming was a lack of healing abilities but that was not the only shortcoming. It had another major drawback. This drawback was not just apparent to Wyatt but to Aurelia too. This was why she continued to practice body reinforcement martial arts to make up for the shortcomings of the Aurculean physique instead of solely relying on the healing cards. The shortcoming that Aurelia and Wyatt noticed but others failed to notice was that the boost gained and stacked by the Aurculean physique was temporary and be lost as long as the user was not attacked for a period of time. That was to say the best way to put an end to the unstoppable momentum of Aurculean physique paired with the Malvin family's bloodline was to avoid them by not attacking them altogether. This way after a period of time they would lose the unstoppable momentum they had gathered and start from scratch. As the bearers of the moniker Unstoppable, the Malvin family's unstoppable descendants were fully aware of this shortcoming having made up for the Aurculean physique's lack of healing abilities with their bloodline. Since the Malvin family was able to overcome the hurdle that many possessors of the Aurculean physique struggled with their entire lives, they were able to see the other shortcomings of the Aurculean physique that they kept to themselves. However, just because they acted ignorant it did not mean others would not notice the shortcomings of the unstoppable Aurculean physique. Actually, the first-generation unstoppable Aurculean Dan Malvin himself had to face enemies that had figured out a way to disrupt his unstoppable momentum by avoiding and not attacking him for a period of time. But Dan Malvin had found a solution to his foe's tactics in self-harm. Yes, he used self-harm to continue and stack the unstoppable momentum. It was unconventional, but it worked out fine. Anything goes on the battlefield as long as you and your comrades return home proud.

Aurelia as the current princess of the Border city had access to all the information on the Unstoppable Aurculean. So she understood that even if she ever managed to overcome the Aurculean physiques lacking healing ability and turn it into Unstoppable Aurculean, the physique would still be far from perfect even though it would give her the power to dominate the battlefield. Having understood this Aurelia gave up on trying to make up for the Aurculean physique's shortcomings and instead began to use the Aurculean physique as an auxiliary means to help her practice the body reinforcement martial arts. Thanks to the Aurculean physique absorbing eighty percent of all damages and strengthening Aurelia's defenses and stamina, she could not only practice the body reinforcement martial arts for a longer duration compared to others but also practice it to the extreme thanks to the boost to her defense and stamina granted by her physique. However, these extreme practices of Aurelia came at a cost, she had to cover her entire body in bandages to stabilize and protect the bruises and lesions on her body. Aurelia was at an age where one prioritized outer beauty since they did not have enough experience to see a person's inner beauty. At such a period in pursuit of power and thirst to prove herself Aurelia had sacrificed her outer beauty and body. The determination shown by Aurelia was contrary to the spineless demeanor she had toward hierarchy. It can be said that Aurelia's achievements and mastery in body reinforcement martial arts were not because she had a knack for it but because she stubbornly persisted in practicing them longer than anyone else at the risk of her body crumbling. However, her achieving grandmaster mastery in various body reinforcement martial arts showed that her path though thorny was not fruitless. But other questions continued to haunt her and her family. How long could Aurelia continue on his path? Even if her will continues to hold on will her body be able to continue to hold on? Even if her body were to hold on what would possessing extreme mastery in body reinforcement marital arts defend against spiritual attack? Because of these questions, Aurelia's family thought that Aurelia was traveling a doomed path. Even Wyatt thought so. However, unlike the thoughts of her family and boss, Aurelia's thoughts were not complex but simple. For now, she only cared about getting strong and worrying about the rest as they came. This attitude of Aurelia was what allowed her to have her current achievements of being able to fight opponents above her realm and become top dog in the Bright Lions otherwise if she were to let the myriad questions of the future get to her, she would never be able to possess the strength she has today. Instead, she would be as insignificant as the other possessors of the Aurculean physique. Aurelia's idea to use her Aurculean physique as an auxiliary support to practice and strengthen her main power body reinforcement martial arts was unlike her family members' approach of building their fighting power with Aurculean physique in the center and also what gave Wyatt the idea of using versatile adaptation aptitude of Marcy's variant of the protean bacteria to fix the Aurculean physique. Wyatt was not planning on fixing the Aurculean physique to achieve the unstoppable momentum that the Malvin family's unstoppable descendants pursued but to fix the Aurculean physique in such a way that it would allow Aurelia to walk the path she had chosen for herself.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

[ 1,029 words ]

Chapter 2006 Pseudo-Bestowal

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 14:54

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City

Wyatt believed Aurelia's tactics to use her Aurculean physique as an auxiliary support to practice body reinforcement martial arts was shortsighted. He did not just come to believe this out of the blue but because his soul pupils had shown him the damage Aurelia's approach was doing to her body.

When Wyatt announced he could use pathogens in Marcy's body to fix Aurelia's physique, he had said that not seeing the true shortcomings of the Aurculean physique but seeing the shortcomings of Aurelia's approach.

Aurelia's approach to using her physique to help her practice body reinforcement martial arts to the extreme was ingenious, however, her body was unable to keep up with her extreme practice. That was to say Aurelia's physical body was failing to adapt to Aurelia's insane workout, and as a result, it was failing. Soon or later it would crumble.

Having noticed this, Wyatt declared to help fix Aurelia's physique in such a way that she could travel the path she had chosen for herself. Hence, he planned to give Aurelia's physique the versatile adaptability of Marcy's variant of the protean bacteria.

Another important thing Wyatt noticed with his soul pupils was that, there were signs of spiritual tempering in Aurelia's spiritual body. This means that after entering the Card Master realm, Aurelia did not limit her insane workout just to her physical body but extended it to her spiritual body. This showed that Aurelia wasn't blindly traveling the path she had chosen for herself or at least someone informed and experienced was guiding her in the path she had chosen for herself. Mostly like it was her mother.

Either way, once this shortcoming of Aurelia's approach was taken care of, Wyatt felt that in the longer run, one beyond the bounds of Card World, expanding to the Myriad Realms, Aurelia's approach to Aurculean physique was the best approach.

As for the unstoppable Aurculean approach of the Malvin family, it was only good within the bounds of the card world, outside in the Myriad realm any being with the potential to become a ruler class being or little brain would easily one-shot them.

Aurelia's idea to use her Aurculean physique as an auxiliary support in her pursuit of the peak of the physical and spiritual martial arts, if her physical and spiritual body supported her, would not only allow her to become the strongest in the card world but also give her enough change to aim to become an Apex ruler class being.

Wyatt's thoughts about this were not an exaggeration but the truth and he was going to prove it with action by fixing Aurelia's physique.

Soon, Wyatt separated the soul pathways of the variant protean bacteria that represented its versatile adaptability, the 'prodigious soul' that it carried from Marcy's ancestors, and the 'Gifted lineage' that protean had developed after undergoing mutation in Marcy's ancestor's body.

Wyatt retrieved these three strands of the soul pathway from the variant protean bacteria because he did promise Aurelia to grant her one trait and one physique. Since she has been a good assist in helping him subdue the Field Marshal, Aurelia deserved the trait and the physique.

Having retrieved the three sets of soul pathways from the protean bacteria Wyatt erased the rest of its soul pathways so that it would not become a hidden danger in Aurelia's body. Then, Wyatt added the soul pathway belonging to the versatile adaptability of the protean bacteria to the soul pathway belonging to the Aurculean physique in Aurelia such that the Aurculean physique would gain the versatile adaptability of the protean bacteria.

Later Wyatt skillfully introduced the soul pathways belonging to the 'Prodigious Soul' trait and the 'Gifted Lineage' physique into the soul pathway of Aurelia.

"Eat this pill," Wyatt passed Aurelia a high-tier silver milk pill to use the soul energy boost from it to help her stabilize the modification of her innate physique and solidify the physique and the trait she would acquire.

Aurelia ate the pill without hesitation, and then Wyatt and his slave consciousnesses helped her use the soul energy boost gained from the high-tier silver milk pill to help enrich her soul using his advanced soul cultivation method such that it could adapt to the changes made to her soul pathways.

This part was important, because after awakening as a card apprentice the only other way for a card apprentice to awaken a physique or trait was by undergoing a baptism or receiving a bestowal.

Right now what Wyatt was doing to Aurelia was akin to pseudo-bestowal. He was able to perform this using what he copied from Demigod Michelangelo Godson's bestowal to his last descendant on the Card world Pax Whiteburn Godson combined with his advanced soul cultivation knowledge.

Wyatt was able to perform pseudo-bestowal efficiently also thanks to his experience and records from helping Clara and Marcy awaken and become card apprentices. While Wyatt was helping them awaken, the Hive AI was recording all the changes and benefits his advanced soul cultivation brought to their soul. Especially its miraculous effects on enriching their souls such that they would awaken innate traits and physiques that they would not have awakened by normal means.

This data was precious data Wyatt would not even find in the Infinity Library. As Clara and Marcy's souls were unique, they developed their uniqueness by grinding them in the mill of life. Such data was hard to come by because not everyone would have lived a life that would morph their soul into developing its uniqueness and individuality.

Wyatt was lucky to find two such souls in a row in a single place. Guess, he was at the right place at the right time. Especially, considering the fact that Wyatt now had a better understanding of how a soul could develop its uniqueness and individuality. In other words how to nurture one's own. This data would be very handy when he begins to properly cultivate his soul.

...

[AN: Check out Reader's Quest Board in the Author's Thoughts section for mass release.]

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 2007 Super Aurculean, Aurculean Adaptability

[ 1,549 words ]

Chapter 2007 Super Aurculean, Aurculean Adaptability

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 15:12

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City

After Aurelia's soul underwent pseudo-bestowal, a golden light showered her body as her silver grimoire began to radiate. The grimoire escaped Wyatt's grasp and floated in front of its card apprentice. Covered in a blinding light, Aurelia uttered, "Boss, what's happening? I feel an unknown power coursing through my body." "Aurelia, this is it. I have done everything in my power next is up to your luck," Wyatt answered as the light radiating from the card apprentice and grimoire began to diminish. "That's bad boss, I have had little luck my entire life," Aurelia responded in a panic claiming that luck has never been her forte. "Why did you not tell me sooner?" Wyatt asked in urgency with a mischievous smile, only to hear Aurelia cry in concern, "Boss, I did not know luck was required for these things. What do we do now?" "Sigh, it is not meant to be," Wyatt said shaking his head. Seeing him give up Aurelia's face turned pale and her eyes widened in disbelief but she was not prepared to throw in the towel yet and pleaded, "Boss, there has to be some other way."

"Aurelia, dear, just shut up and show me your status page," recovering from the shock of seeing Wyatt induce a phenomenon similar to bestowal in Aurelia, Field Marshal ignored the conversation between the sadistic boss and his dimwit minion asking Aurelia to show her status page. Reminded by Field Marshal, Aurelia too decided to check her status page, "One second, Your Highness." "Aah!" Aurelia screamed at the top of her lungs going through her status page. Then, she dashed toward Wyatt, midway she dropped on her knees, and slid onto the gymnastic floor. Arriving in front of Wyatt she hugged his waist tightly. Pressing her head against Wyatt's rock-hard abs she chanted in gratitude, "Thank you, thank you. Boss, you are my savior, angel, and messiah. I don't know how to thank you enough." "That is what you have earned and deserve. But, if you strongly feel about repaying me. You can start by letting go of me and drinking this elixir," Wyatt said, taking out one of Van's A-rank blood elixirs created by extracting numerous A-rank monster blood using the blood rule meaning blood elixir. "Sure, boss," letting go of Wyatt's waist, Aurelia took the blood elixir from him and emptied it in a single gulp. And, slamming the elixir tube on the floor she asked, "Done, boss. What next?" "Clean up the glass pieces on the floor, kids play here," Wyatt instructed trying to be understanding of Aurelia's enthusiasm. "My bad, boss. I will clean it up right away," Aurelia replied as began to hand-pick the glass shards off the floor, while on her knees. Seeing this, Wyatt too was beginning to think Aurelia was more comfortable kneeling than standing. Feeling, she might not have a cleaning card, Wyatt turned to Diana and signaled, "Help her." Before Diana could act, Field Marshal used her cleaning card to clean the glass pieces off the floor and cleared her throat at Aurelia, *Ahem* hinting, 'Aren't you forgetting something?' "Thank you, Field Marshal," Aurelia thanked and scratched the back of her head as she passed the Field Marshal her grimoire, revealing her status page.

While the Field Marshal went through Aurelia's status page, Aurelia however began to scratch herself feeling an itching sensation all over her body, when the itching got uncontrollable, she asked Wyatt, "Boss, what did you feed me? My skin is itching like crazy." "It was a healing potion. It is not as miraculous as the one Field Marshal used on Marcy but that should be enough to deal with your wounds. Remove your bandages, so that the scabs can fall off," Wyatt informed while looking at the myriad changes in Field Marshal's facial expression with great interest. "Oh, thank you, boss," Aurelia said feeling that her boss was good to her. "Also, when you are free go meet Van, the guild master of TSR guild, he should be able to give you enough blood elixir to help you with your special training," Wyatt instructed Aurelia, before she could answer he turned to leave saying, "Continue as you were but don't spend too much time in the card master realm, you have a surprise waiting for you during your next baptism." "Yes, Boss!" Aurelia yelled, bowing to Wyatt's back, resolving never to let him down.

Diana and Cindy followed Wyatt outside quietly, leaving Field Marshal and Aurelia in the gymnasium. However, soon Field Marshal's figure flashed before Wyatt stopping him in his tracks.

"You said you had nothing to do with Marcy getting her 'Prodigious soul' trait and 'Gifted lineage' physique. Then, what is this?" the Field Marshal asked shoving Aurelia's grimoire in front of Wyatt's eyes. [Trait Name: Prodigious Soul

Trait Type: Acquired (Passive) Trait Effect: The user's soul has an extraordinary talent for soul cultivation.] [Physique Name: Super Aurculean Physique Type: Innate (Active/Passive) Physique Effect: i) Aruclean (passive): The user has an extraordinary physique and spirit beyond others in the same realm.

ii) Aurculean Adaptability (passive): If the user's physical and spiritual body survives an intense situation, their body and spirit will adapt and grow stronger as a result.

iii) Unstoppable Aurculean (active): i) The user takes a golden form and is able to absorb eighty percent of both spiritual and physical damage to convert it and boost the user's physical strength and speed along with physical and spiritual defense. ii) The boost will stack with continuous damage.

iii) Twenty percent of the remaining damage will be directly inflicted on the user and stack with continuous damage.

iv) If the user can maintain the golden form long enough, their spiritual and physical body will slowly adapt to the damage sustained.] [Physique Name: Gifted Lineage Physique Type: Acquired (Passive) Physique Effect: The user's descendant will inherit the user's acquired trait 'Prodigious Soul.']. "I stand by what I said," Wyatt said pushing the grimoire aside. Seeing the frown on his face, the Field Marshal hurriedly took a step back and explained, "Wyatt, please don't get me wrong. I don't mean to pry I was just too excited. Also I am asking this for your safety." "It is okay, I understand. That trait and physique are indeed too attractive. I wasn't lying when I said I had nothing to do with Marcy awakening them. However, by helping her become a card apprentice, I have come to understand how she gained them and helped Aurelia achieve the same," Wyatt answered not taking offense to the Field Marshal's sudden outburst. It was understandable as the Gifted lineage physique would have such an effect on anyone be it the Field Marshal or an Apex ruler class being. Locking eyes with her, Wyatt continued to say exerting a strong confidence, "As for my safety, with you here, I don't think I need to worry about it." "Wyatt, I appreciate your trust and confidence in me but this is even beyond me. I do not think I can handle something like this. You should not be so casual about something like this. I think you should not have given her the trait and physique. This is too risky. Especially, if she babbles this to her mother," The Field Marshal shook her head understanding that if the card world were to know Wyatt had a method to give people the trait 'prodigious soul' and the physique 'gifted lineage' he would become the most wanted man in the world. No one he knew would be safe including the Field Marshal and the Southern Royal family.

"I would never snitch on the boss," Aurelia who had just rushed out of the gymnasium and caught up with the group yelled listening to the Field Marshal's words. Then, she rushed to Wyatt's side and locking eyes with him she swore, "In the presence of the World's Will, I swear—" Wyatt moved and forced Aurelia's jaw shut. Interrupting her, he said, "Don't do something stupid that you cannot take back." "B-but bo-boss—" Aurelia forcefully moved her tongue only to be interrupted by Wyatt once again, "Aurelia, I trust you."

Then, Wyatt turned to glance at Cindy, Diana, and the Field Marshal before proceeded to say, "I trust all of you. Do you think I would do something without thinking it through?" Then once again looking back into Aurelia's eyes, Wyatt let go of her jaw and added, "Besides, I want you to tell your mother about this." "Wyatt!" the Field Marshal shouted in disapproval. Before he could interrupt her the Field Marshal hurriedly spoke her mind, "Wyatt, I trust you but I cannot sit by and watch you do something so risky." "Field Marshal, if Aurelia's mother is as smart as you make her be, then she will know the best course of action for her, her family, her city, and the Southern Region," Wyatt remarked.

Taking her cue, Aurelia spoke up, "Boss, don't worry, I will help her make the right decision." Aurelia understood what Wyatt meant without him having to explain it to her and she did not hesitate to follow it through. ..

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 2008 New Allies

[ 1,545 words ]

Chapter 2008 New Allies

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 15:18

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City

"Good, I will leave this matter to you," Wyatt nodded at Aurelia who agreed to help him ally her mother. He trusted her to do a good job and come through on this one, having seen her excellent performance in the gymnasium earlier. Then, he prepared to head out but the Field Marshal did not make way. "Wyatt, I like your idea to ally with the Malvin family and the Border City but I can't go along with the means you have chosen. I thought you were more cautious than this," The Field Marshal felt that even a slight risk of a leak in the case of trait 'prodigious soul' and physique 'gifted lineage' should not be tolerated as the consequences were devastating. She felt Wyatt should know this so she did not understand why Wyatt continued to go on this path.

"Field Marshal you are right, the old me would have thought of a better method to box Aurelia's mother and the Border city in, leaving them no choice but to ally with me, but now that I have capable people like yourself and Aurelia by my side, I will leave it to you guys. I trust your judgment to do what you feel is necessary," Wyatt informed, instructing the Field Marshal and Aurelia to turn the neutral Border City into their allies. "Boss, does this mean I will be working with the Field Marshal on this one?" Aurelia asked Wyatt. "Yes. You heard her, this matter is too sensitive. We have to lessen the odds as much as possible. I trust you two will come up with a better plan. I will chip in about 100,000 free VR-slime cards for the Border city, which should give you enough incentive over them," Wyatt proposed, having long decided not to do everything by himself and share some of it with his people. Besides, there was a reason Wyatt was so casual about this. He believed that Border City was an easy target. If only they had received a properly worded apology that their Ancestor Dan Malvin deserved from the Southern royal court they would have long chosen to ally with Anna's mother with her excellent courting skills. Because Border City was financially struggling. For a city governed by a military family, a financial crisis was expected. The Malvin family members were extraordinary tacticians on the battlefield and excellent scholars of warfare but when it came to city management and business, the same rule as the army and battlefield did not apply. Their princess, Aurelia, was an example of how impoverished the Border city was. Aurelia came from a proper demigod family with strong demigods whose military achievements were compared with the likes of the Heatsend Royal family. Yet, Aurelia, the only daughter of the Main Mavin family matriarch and Border City's city lord did not have proper resources and cards when compared to Aba Windsor who only had one parent who was a demigod. Aurelia did not have a proper supply of Healing potions to help her with her training so she covered her injured body with bandages to help her heal them. A basic cleansing card was a must for any rich family daughter, but Aurelia did not have one and did her chores by hand. If this was the condition of a direct descendant of the Unstoppable Legend Dan Malvin then one can only imagine what the regular citizens of the Border City must be going through. Thankfully, with their military prowess, they were able to constantly raid high-ranking dungeons and keep their City's economy from a total collapse. Right now the Border City needed help, but the Malvin Family and their followers were too proud to ask for help from the Southern Royal family because of their past. Even if the descendants of Dan Malvin were willing to let go of the past for the good of their city and the citizens, their followers would not allow them to. The Malvin family had no choice but to value their followers' decision because their ancestors were the ones who helped

Dan Malvin establish Border City and its current reputation of being the iron wall between the Southern region and the Empire. They followed their ancestors from the battlefield and turned the Border City into their home. These guys stayed and helped during the city's darkest hour, especially considering that most of their branch Malvin family immigrated to other places believing a baseless rumor. They had equal rights as the Malvin family to be angry with how Dan Malvin was treated by royal court. Without them knowing the main Malvin family was stuck between doing everything to provide for their citizens and to please their loyal followers. Both Anna's mother and Aurelia's mother were aware of this but none of them took the necessary steps to rectify this. Aurelia's mother did not take decisive steps because she was worried that if they were to join the Southern Royal family without getting a proper apology from the royal court and finding the perpetrator that drove them out of the Southern capital in the first place, they would once again be targeted like in the past. Anna's mother offered Aurelia's mother everything but what the Border city wanted because she might control the Southern Region from the shadows but to get the entire royal court to apologize to the Border city and Malvin family was not possible even for her because ministers serving in the royal court had accumulated lots of merit and also some of them were older than her and her father. The political power they held though did not threaten her but was enough to help them oppose her. With such circumstances surrounding them, the Border City allying with the hope of the Southern region would be in the best interest of its citizens and the Malvin family. Wyatt did not need to box them because they were already drowning in their problems, all the Field Marshal and Aurelia had to do was throw them a lifeboat and they would climb on it the first opportunity they got. This was entirely possible especially when would Aurelia's mother learned about Aurelia's new status and the 100,000 free VR-slime card Wyatt planned to donate to the Border City. Considering their circumstances and the offer made by Wyatt, it would be impossible for Aurelia's mother to reject the alliance with Wyatt. "A 100,000 free VR-slime cards!" Aurelia exclaimed listening to her boss. She only managed to get her hands on the VR slime cards recently, that too, because she was part of one of the vast enterprises under Wyatt's command. So she could not imagine the trouble other people would have to go through to get their hands on the VR-slime cards. Let alone the Border City. "Those VR-slime cards should be enough to get your mother to leave the Border city and head over here," The Field Marshal said to Aurelia, and then with a threatening tone she added, "Until then hide your status from her. Got it?" "Field Marshal, can't I just talk this over a call?" Aurelia understood that the Field Marshal wanted to use the free VR-slime cards to seduce her mother to the Sky Blossom City where the Field Marshal would have total control over how she revealed her status to her mother and talk to her about allying Border City with Wyatt. This way if Aurelia's mother were to reject their alliance, then the Field Marshal could take swift action to ensure that Aurelia's mother would not be able to leak any information on Aurelia's status or how she got her new physique and trait. This was an excellent plan but Aurelia was worried. Even though she was sure her mother would choose to ally with Wyatt, a part of her could not help but worry that on an off chance, if her mother were to disagree then she would be putting her mother in a tough position. Especially with Field Marshal here, her mother would stand little chance. "Don't worry dear, I do not plan on harming your mother. If things don't work out I will just get her to take an oath to keep our secret safe and let her go without any harm," the Field Marshal assured having felt Aurelia's worries. "That is assuring," Aurelia said so but her eyes expressed complex thoughts. She knew her mother, even if she was facing the Field Marshal, her mother would only do what she thought was right. Knowing her mother's stubborn side, Aurelia was worried, a fight might break out between her mother and the Field Marshal. She always wanted to find out who would win between her mother and the Field Marshal but now that there was the possibility of her finding it out Aurelia was not happy as she did not want to find an answer to that question this way. "Good to see you guys working together, continue the good work," Wyatt said as he walked past the Field Marshal adding, "Let me go greet the guests that arrived before they disturb the city's peace." ..

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

[ 1,571 words ]

Chapter 2009 Fleas

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 15:26

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City

As Wyatt headed out of the orphanage to greet the people who were creating a ruckus in the Sky Blossom city air space, the Field Marshal followed him saying, "I can send them on their way if you don't want to meet them." "No, let us give the people what they came for, the Hope of the Southern region," Wyatt said as he exited the lobby. Walking into the orphanage garden he added, "It seems your video is a hit among young people, to thinking they would all rush over here leaving everything else." before shooting into the sky at max speed. "No no, it was your speech 'You are the hope of South,' it struck a chord with them," the Field Marshal said as she followed behind Wyatt with ease. Aurelia summoned a hoverboard and followed the Field Marshal and Wyatt, unable to keep up to their speed in her hoverboard she lost sight of them in a mere second. Yet, thanks to her new trait 'prodigious soul' she could feel the numerous strong presences wildly emitting their soul signature in the air space and head toward them thinking they must be the people Wyatt was talking about. "Need a lift?" Diana asked as she and Cindy quickly overtook Aurelia's hoverboard in the flagship of her phantom fleet origin card. "Awesome!" Aurelia exclaimed, she didn't hesitate to jump on Diana's phantom ship thanking her for the lift and adding, "Hurry, I don't want to miss the show." "It seems they are by the edge of the void, will the phantom ship be able to fly at that height?" Cindy asked Diana with a frow learning the location their boss was headed. "The phantom ship will consume a lot of soul energy to fly at that height but don't worry I have stocked up on enough mid-grade and high-grade soul jades just for occasions such as these," Diana informed, as her flagship suddenly picked up speed and gained altitude. "By the edge of the void, that means they are not here to simply meet the 'Hope of the South' as the boss made it sound," Aurelia added, staring into the sky. Even though it was clear sky, Aurelia could not spot a single figure, she could see nothing but occasional white clouds in the blue sky. If not for her soul warning her that there were powerful presences in the sky she would doubt that there were numerous figures in the Sky Blossom City's air space. "Let us head there first before jumping to any conclusion," Diana said as the phantom ship continued to gain altitude at an incredible speed for an origin card of a Card Lord. This was because Diana was burning a lot of mid-grade soul jades to get to their destination as fast as possible. "Oh my goodness, Jaya!" Cindy suddenly yelled as she stared at her grimoire in sheer shock. "What happened?" Diana asked as she peeped into Cindy's grimoire to find a video of bloody Jaya engaging in aerial combat. Noticing that the video was being streamed live, she could not help but exclaim, "What is she doing up there? Shouldn't she be behind closed doors forging her ego gem?" "She can't even react to the opponent's attacks. Sigh, I had warned her on multiple occasions that her extraordinary might was useless if she did not have the proper training and skills to use it. Still, she did not correct her ways. Sigh, losing to me was not enough now she is losing to some spoiled brat from the Southern capital— This is so embarrassing. Fuck! Look at those stupid comments," Aurelia kept sighing and criticizing Jaya. But it was worth noticing that Aurelia who gained extraordinary strength from her physique felt Jaya's physical prowess was extraordinary.

Then, ignoring Diana and Cindy's stare, Aurelia began to retort the online comments on the live stream with gusto: "Hey, buddy, she is the weakling and misfit of our organization winning against her means nothing." "Your parents must be proud to know you can use these vulgar words." "If they are struggling this much to defeat our weakling then, they are overestimating themselves to say they will defeat Bright Lions." "Come to the Sky Blossom City and try saying that to my face."

"You are crazy and your family is crazy." "Even in your dreams, you can't defeat us with that level of strength."

"You are a virgin." "Up yours, buddy"

"Your mom..." Aurelia tried to hold her ground in the comment section, but by the time she posted one comment, thousands of comments targeting her would be posted. Finding herself outnumbered, she proceeded to call on the members of Bright Lions to help her deal with netizens writing infuriating comments about Fine Gold and all other related organizations. These people were so hateful and vulgar that after a few comments, even she started to swear at them and their families. Seeing them call her attention whore was her tipping point.

None of the netizens dared to comment on Wyatt, the Southern Hope. Even if they envied him and had opinions about him, they did not dare to voice them as no matter what he was the 'Hope of the South' agreed by the Southern Royal family and the Southerners. Insulting him would be the same as insulting the Southern Royal family and the Southerners who had elected him for that title. Therefore, they targeted and focused on the people around Wyatt instead. Anna's mother might have conferred the title 'Hope of the Southern Region' to Wyatt using his achievements at such a young age to prove his worthiness to carry the title, but she was only able to convince the average public not the rich and the powerful. The average public was simple-minded and easy to sway but the rich and powerful had complex thoughts and they all had their own opinions. However, none dared to voice their opinion as they did not want to be targeted by Anna's mother. After all, going against her in the Southern region was equal to attempting suicide. Still, there were always calves in the mountain that were not afraid of the tiger. "Can this thing go any faster?" Aurelia asked Diana in impatience. Losing to the hateful netizens on the grimoire network, Aurelia could not wait to go to the edge of the void and beat the shit out of those stuck-up snobs. "Hey, I am going as fast as I can here," Diana snapped back at Aurelia. This must be the tenth time Aurelia rushed her in the past minute. She was a human and her patients also had limits. "Aurelia answer me this, how do you plan to fight them in at the edge of the void if you can't even fly?" Cindy reminded Aurelia. "I have my hoverboard," Aurelia answered immediately

"Sure, if you want to plunge to your death your hoverboard is a good choice," Cindy said sarcastically hinting to Aurelia that there was a limit to the height at which her hoverboard could fly.

"No, if Jaya can do it I too can," Aurelia said feeling if Jaya could fly by the edge of the void it would not be hard for her hoverboard to fly at that height. Not to mention, Aurelia did not want to be outdone by Jaya. Even though Jaya was losing devastatingly, she was in the game and Aurelia wasn't.

"Your teachers must adore your genius-level intellect," Cindy mocked Aurelia listening to her dumb argument. "Sigh, Cindy leave her alone. She still has a long way to go," Diana sighed defending Aurelia against Cindy. It was not a secret though Aurelia was a quick learner she was not that bright. So, Diana was in awe of Aurelia's mother who had done a good job teaching her about judging people and politics. Seeing Aurelia in action against the Field Marshal in the gymnasium Diana and Cindy were in awe, but listening to her say she planned to fight at the edge of the void on her hoverboard they could not shake their head in dismay wondering how she could not know something so basic. "Well, not every teenager can be like the boss. Otherwise, our existence would become obsolete," Cindy gave up teasing Aurelia, recalling that Aurelia had been a little dumb since she met her. She believed it was one of Aurelia's charms that made people not feel threatened by her by taking their minds off her other outstanding qualities. "Are you guys calling me dumb?" Aurelia asked Diana and Cindy with a frown. "We would never, honey. You are smart and quick on your feet compared to many we know but we feel that you need to focus on your studies a little bit more," Diana did not just say this to console Aurelia, she honestly felt that way about Aurelia.

After all, not just any teenager could stand tall under the Field Marshal's intent pressure. Diana, herself, had almost been manipulated by the Field Marshal into going against her boss's orders. But Aurelia held her own and assisted Wyatt against the Field Marshal. Aurelia had her strengths and weaknesses. She was still young, with her age and experiences her weakness would only decrease and her strengths would increase. ..

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 2010 Void Step Boots

[ 1,219 words ]

Chapter 2010 Void Step Boots

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 15:38

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City, Air Space

Listening to Diana say that she should focus on her studies more, Aurelia exclaimed, "You guys are calling me dumb." "For you to get so defensive about this, it must be a sensitive topic for you. Let us just drop it at here," Diana took a step back finding Aurelia gets defensive whenever they bring up studies or school.

Listening to Diana, Aurelia frowned brows eased. However, Cindy did not let the matter rest instead tried to persuade Aurelia to give the school a second try saying, "Aurelia, honey, you have the trait 'prodigious soul.' It has the word prodigy in it. I think, if not for anything just for the sake of exploring the extent of your trait you should give the school a second try. Who knows, maybe your trait might have made you an academic genius." "Is that even possible?" Aurelia asked Cindy in longing, it seems she did not hate the idea of studying but had a hard experience with it. "I think so. How about I arrange a secret private tutor for you to test the effect of your trait in the academic field? Let us just think of this as a trial round. If your trait has made you a prodigy then you can start attending the school and show off your brilliance," Cindy proposed. Her boss had made her responsible for Aurelia's education. She planned to get it done even if it meant tricking Aurelia. "Yes, let us do that," Aurelia nodded agreeing to follow Cindy's arrangement. Diana had a knowing smile seeing Cindy trick Aurelia, but she did not blame Aurelia for being gullible because many would find Cindy's words enticing. Heck anyone would jump at the first opportunity to rectify their past regret.

"But I have a special training session with Field Marshal after this," Aurelia suddenly recalled her arrangement with the Field Marshal. "Don't worry, we can experiment on your trait after your training is concluded," Cindy assured. As long as Aurelia was willing to give studies a try half of Cindy's work was done. Another half was to make studies fun for Aurelia such that she would not give up midway disappointed that her trait doesn't help her with her academics. Cindy never believed that Aurelia's 'prodigious soul' would make her an academic prodigy otherwise their boss would not be one of a kind and so quick to rise to fame.

"If nothing, this girl can take a beating," Diana suddenly said looking at the live stream of Jaya's fight by the edge of the void. Cindy and Aurelia walked next to her to see a bloody Jaya looking around the sky in alert as multiple shadows flashed around her. Her opponent seemed to be an assassin-type card apprentice well-versed in illusion and agility. The card apprentice was just too fast for Jaya, was using tricks to confuse her mind, and seemed to have a extraordinary weapon that could break Jaya's skin, muscles, and bone that were near invulnerable in same realm.

"How are they able to fly at that height? If my hoverboard cannot fly at that height," Aurelia asked looking at the occasional spectators shown in the live stream. They all appeared to be kids of her age but they all were capable of hovering by the edge of the void. In the live stream she could not tell their realm but considering that they were all of her age, they must be in the same realm as her or at most in the Card Lord realm. "Aurelia, honey, your hoverboard is an E-rank basic model item but they are all equipped with a minimum of C to A rank items. Those kids who appeared in the livestream just a few seconds ago were all equipped with the latest Void-Step boots. Even the C-rank Void-Step boots item card would allow one to easily walk in the air at any height while automatically rearranging the center of gravity of the user according to their movement. Those cards are not only expensive but hard to find in the regular market. Fine Gold wanted to stock a few of those considering their demand in the market but we could not get our hands on a single one of them," Diana informed Aurelia based on her observation. "When I get my first salary I will buy one of those," Aurelia uttered with resolve. Listening to her Diana felt as if her words fell to the deaf ear. "I know that Bright Lions pay is generous but with your current salary scale you will have to save up about a decade to get one of those cards unless you raid the dungeon on the side," Cindy informed pouring cold water on Aurelia's dream. It was because Aurelia acted like this, none of the employees of the Fine Gold or Bright Lions thought Aurelia had a huge background. She did not have a single princess bone in her body despite being the princess of the Border City.

Cindy and Diana felt that Aurelia had a tough childhood in the Border City for her to grow up spineless and shameless despite her honest tongue. Otherwise no descendent of a Demigod would be as comfortable groveling on the floor as standing on the floor. Knowing that everyone had their story they did not try to pry in on her past instead tried to be part of her present to hope for a better future together. "Okay, from now on I will start raiding dungeons in my free time," Aurelia announced having resolved to buy Void Step boots. "Or we can just hand boss a list of cards that are in demand in the market and he will mass produce better versions of those cards for us to sell and use," Diana proposed the alternative that she had been thinking for quite a while. "Boss's hand is full with VR-slime cards do you think he will have time to take on new card projects, especially with the Slime Fairy card project still under development," Cindy asked in doubt. After all, their boss was a busy man. "It won't hurt to try. Besides we will need those cards to help us and other employees to keep up with the boss's astonishing growth rate. I am starting to worry that the Blossom district branch of operation will soon become obsolete in the boss's grand plans at his current pace of development if we do not get creative and hesitate to take risks," Diana has long realized that if they wanted to be in Wyatt's grace for a long period with the addition of new and capable members they would need to be of use to him and that was only possible by quickly conquering the blossom district and expand to a nearby district. "Um, guys. With the boss's flight speed shouldn't he have already reached the edge of the void? Jaya will die at this rate," Aurelia said in concern, noticing that blood-covered Jaya was wobbling and was barely able to maintain her flight at that height. It was already a miracle that she was able to last so long sustaining such severe injuries.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 2011 Upgrading Grimoire

[ 1,093 words ]

Chapter 2011 Upgrading Grimoire

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 15:41

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City, Air Space

"Oh, this is nothing, she has recovered from worse and that was before she got her origin card," Diana responded nonchalantly to Aurelia's shock. She did not appear to be anguished over Jaya's current state. She was rather apathetic about Jaya's fight. Seeing Diana's lackluster reaction to Jaya's fight would make it hard for a stranger to guess they were sisters. "Jaya lacks the creativity to fight but is good at taking a beating. When it comes to stamina no one is her match unless they have a special physique or skill like you," Cindy shook her head and informed Aurelia adding to Diana's response. "I agree with you, she makes a good punching bag. I have fought her, I should know. But I feel like her opponent is toying with her," Aurelia felt that Jaya's opponent was using her to keep the live stream lively, instead of finishing her off in one go. "Well, underestimating Jaya will cost them dearly. You will see," Cindy said having been part of Jaya's daily training.

"Whatever, I don't like this. How much longer? Can't this thing go any faster?" Aurelia asked Diana impatiently. Even though Jaya was part of Fine Gold she moonlighted as a member of Bright Lions. So Aurelia could not help but feel responsible for her. "My Phantom fleet isn't meant to climb to such high altitude, the flagship and the phantom crew are doing their best. We still have 50 miles to go," Diana replied in annoyance. Her phantom fleet's maximum operational height was six to eight miles from the ground. Right now she was burning mid-grade soul jades as fuel for it to climb to the edge of the void nearly 100 miles from the ground. Her phantom fleet's maximum speed was the best among any A-rank vehicle cards out there, but when climbing beyond the specified maximum height, its speed was reduced by a significant margin. Therefore, Diana was satisfied that her origin card was able to take her to the edge of the void so that she wouldn't miss out on the action. "Aaah!" Aurelia screamed in frustration. Her body might be here but her mind was at the Jaya's fight. If only her hoverboard was capable of climbing to the edge of the void.

Having played their share of school gang fights at Aurelia's age, Diana and Cindy clearly understood Aurelia's frustration but there was nothing they could do about it. Just then, a thought crossed Cindy's mind, building on it, Cindy took out a golden grimoire and passed it to Aurelia, "I have a means to help you get to the edge of the void faster. First, take it and upgrade your grimoire. It should be possible with your new traits." "A golden grimoire, that's too much. I can't," Aurelia was aware that a golden grimoire was a precious resource even for a big company from a third-rate city so she immediately rejected Cindy's offer. Besides, her family would provide her with a golden grimoire if she needed one. "Don't feel burdened. Boss has given us a bunch of gold and silver grade grimoires to sponsor talented card apprentices such as yourself," Cindy pushed the golden grimoire into Aurelia's hands. "Talented card apprentices," An unconscious smile graced Aurelia's lips as she uttered these words. Then taking the golden grimoire from Cindy, she summoned her silver grimoire to begin the upgrading process. After a couple of minutes, Aurelia's grimoire's silver brilliance slowly morphed into golden and vanished revealing a golden grimoire. Witnessing that Aurelia's grimoire was upgraded, Cindy unequipped two cards from her grimoire, and before passing them to Aurelia she reminded, "I am only lending you these cards temporarily. You have to return them to me later." "Yes, I will," Aurelia enthusiastically took the cards from Cindy and equipped them in her upgraded grimoire. Upon learning that Cindy's cards were a wind rule rune spirit summon card and a summon possession card, she exclaimed, "Woah! these cards are too strong. How can I get one?" "Boss gave me the summon card when we uprooted the sun blossom city branch of the circle. If you are lucky, he might give you one later," Cindy's wind rule rune spirit summon card was none other than the elemental rune spirit summon card Wyatt had created using broken runes. Later, she bought the summon possession card with her savings. These cards were too precious and stronger together, it was hard for her to part with them even if it was only her temporarily lending them to Aurelia.

"Stop wasting your time and get to the battlefield. Corey has made her appearance, don't let her steal all the spotlight," Diana said noticing Corey's appearance in the livestream of Jaya's fight.

Diana was well aware of her little sister's strengths and weaknesses. Jaya was strong with a powerful origin card but not skilled enough to become the center of attention on the battlefield, like Aurelia or Corey. Jaya seriously lacked in terms of combat skills. She was too reliant on her Origin card. Diana specifically had a card lord of Cindy's caliber to beat some combat skills into her but Jaya had yet to pick a descent combat sense. But she had made some progress, far better than the idiotic display she had put on during the city's tournament. "How did Corey get there faster than us? I have to get there immediately," the only people to suppress Aurelia in the Bright Lions were all the descendants of the Bright Family, the Bright Brothers, and Corey. These people displayed strong physical strength, had awesome origin cards, and were highly skilled in combat. No matter how hard she tried she could not last more than ten minutes against them. This was especially true against Corey.

"Summon- Wind rule elemental rune spirit," Aurelia uttered in urgency, soon the wind in front of her gathered to form a voluptuous humanoid female figure. The spirit's curves and lines were well defined along with its facial features, it appeared to look like an apparition of a benevolent middle-aged woman. "Summon possession!" With Aurelia's commoned the wind apparition turned into a tornado and entered Aurelia's body. Soon Aurelia's body and hair began to float wrapped by a delicate layer of wind. "This is awesome, see you guys later," bidding her goodbye Aurelia rushed to the edge of the void with her new found cards. ..

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 2012 Trait: Rule Invulnerability

[ 1,330 words ]

Chapter 2012 Trait: Rule Invulnerability

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 15:02

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City, Fine Gold New Tower

'Hahaha, I forged my ego before that bitch Cindy,' Jaya laughed in joy as she walked out of her close door practice. Cindy among the Fine Gold trio had shown the fastest progress in forging her ego gem. Therefore, Jaya was always worried that Cindy would forge her ego gem first among the three of them and get rewarded by Wyatt. Fearing the worst, these past few days Jaya has been seriously refining her soul energy to compress them and forge her ego gem. However, when she refined a minimum amount of soul energy to forge her ego gem her blue stone suddenly mutated. 'I was lucky that the blue stone that my birth parents left with me had automatically morphed into a mutated ego gem meeting the right requirements, otherwise, it would have been hard for me to forge my ego gem before Cindy. However, Wyatt did say he wanted to see my ego gem after I forged it. Was he already aware that the blue stone would mutate into my ego gem when I met all the requirements? Well, he did create my origin card so I cannot put it past him,' Jaya contemplated as she walked to the elevator to head to her sister's office and give her the good news in person to see the joy on her sister's face. 'I wonder if Wyatt will give me an extra reward for forging a mutated ego gem. Especially since my mutated ego gem has an overpowered special trait, Rule Invulnerability,' Jaya skipped and hopped toward the elevator joyously wondering about Wyatt's reaction to her mutated ego gem and its special trait. [Trait Name: Rule Invulnerability Trait Type: Innate (passive) Trait Effect: Whenever the user comprehends and masters a rule they will gain invulnerability to the rule proportional to their comprehension and mastery of the rule and its meanings.]

The special trait Rule Invulnerability will automatically give Jaya invulnerability and resistance to rules and their meanings propositional to her mastery and comprehension of the said rule and its meanings. This means that if Jaya had uncommon-tier comprehension and mastery of fire rule, she would be invulnerable to uncommon-tier fire rule power attacks or display strong resistance to fire rule power in case the attack was of a higher tier. This elevated the invulnerability of Jaya's viltronian origin to a whole new level. 'Not to forget the blue stones mutation also helped me break through to the mid-rank of the Card Grandmaster realm and upgrade my origin card adding the 'Viltronian Legacy' to its additional effects,' Jaya recalled her gains after successfully forging her ego gem. This caused Jaya to wonder, 'Maybe I should make some time to explore the Viltronian Legacy, I might find out about my birth parents in it and learn why they abandoned me.' However, Jaya soon put that thought in the back of her mind as she did not have that much attachment to her birth parents. Just the thought of trying to learn about her birth parents made her feel guilty. She felt like she was betraying her sister, Diana. Especially since the topic of her origin and birth parents has been a sensitive topic for them. Then, Jaya began to fantasize about her informing Wyatt about forging her ego gem and how he would choose to reward her. Just thinking about it got her excited and flushed. As she reached her sister's penthouse, she found it to be empty. She instinctively wanted to call her sister but did not. Because if Diana learns that Jaya was out of close door practice she will ask if Jaya had forged her ego gem. Not wanting to ruin the surprise Jaya reached out to the regular employees to learn that her sister was at the orphanage to arrange a meeting between Wyatt and the employees with notable contributions to the company. Learning that she could inform about her successfully forging her ego gem to both Wyatt and Diana at the same time Jaya grew ecstatic. She hurriedly activated her origin card, planning to make a dazzling entry at the orphanage by donning her glittering grey viltronian bodysuit. 'This is different,' Jaya found that her metallic gray viltronian bodysuit had turned into a silver viltronian bodysuit. The golden eight-pointing star on the bodysuit's chest section had become more defined and had a golden electric glow to it while her cape was no longer white but silver with golden trim. The cape fluttered with the light movement of the wind showing that it had capabilities to help with her flight. The golden armguard and boots had subtle changes making them more majestic in appearance. Jaya's new bodysuit had a surprising new addition, a golden tiara. It's a golden-colored circlet donned on her forehead, featuring a neon gold eight-pointing star in the center. She had a vague feeling that this tiara was more than just a fashion statement and had a deep and profound meaning to it. Jaya could sense an incredible power gathered at the center of the neon gold eight-pointing star at the center of the golden tiara that scared even her. Jaya thought her current silver bodysuit was sturdier and stylish than the previous one. In her current form, she felt like an incarnation of a saint. As such she was obviously happy about the unexpected gain and was looking forward to seeing Wyatt and Diana's reaction to her new bodysuit. Excited Jaya took to the sky, and found that the cape of her body suit allowed her to break wind resistance and increase her flight speed to set a new record. During her flight, Jaya also found that the cape allowed her to make sharp turns and make a quick halt. Most importantly whenever she flew along with the wind current Jaya found that thanks to her cape her flight speed increased by almost three times. Exploring the capabilities of her new bodysuit's cape Jaya learned that there was so much more to flying and it was a lot more fun than she previously thought. Flying at record-breaking speed Jaya was enjoying herself so much that she forgot about her initial goal to meet up with her sister and boss at the orphanage. Experimenting with her newfound flight capabilities Jaya soon climbed to the edge of the void to see how high she could fly. However, as she neared the edge of the void she felt numerous powerful presence. Despite being surprised to sense several strong presences here of all places Jaya decided to greet them hoping to run into the Southern Emperor and Royal Queen once again, just like the time when high school gangs from the surrounding cities planned to retaliate against Bright Lions for helping Wyatt destroy the Sun Blossom branch of the Circle. However, arriving at the edge of the void, Jaya was surprised to find that the powerful presence she felt were children of her age. Most of them were walking effortlessly at the edge of the void. Observing that they were all having some sort of gathering and waiting for their peers Jaya was astonished. After all, this was the edge of the void, not some picnic spot. "I did not think there would be a local card apprentice capable of climbing to the edge of the void." "About time they noticed us, I was starting to think this trip was just a waste of time." "Do we begin? Others aren't here yet." "Gloria, you and the local are in the same realm, with your cards it shouldn't be hard for you to take her hostage."

"Do I have to take her hostage? Can't I just kill her?" "No, capture her alive. After all, we cannot meet the 'Hope of the South' empty-handed." "In that case won't her corpse make a better present?"

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 2013 Gloria And Cervos

[ 1,069 words ]

Chapter 2013 Gloria And Cervos

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 15:18

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City, Air Space

Listening to the mysterious teenagers, Jaya gathered that they were here to meet Wyatt. Seeing them show hostility toward Wyatt and her, Jaya became alert ready to fight them if necessary. She eyed the teenage boy and girl who were debating about taking her hostage or killing her. The girl named Gloria was a tall blonde in a white halter top. She was in the card grandmaster realm the same as Jaya but the boy who ordered her was surprisingly in the card master realm. He was gray-haired with a tall and slim build. Jaya felt the boy either had incredible status or power beyond his realm to command the girl in a realm higher than him. "Gloria, just go and capture her. We are not here to make enemies of the Southern Hope but wish him luck in his pursuit," the boy snapped at the blonde girl asking her to do what she was told. Shaking her head Gloria came forward heading toward Jaya, asking, "What kind of vulgar attire is that? Is that how you locals dress down here in the Deep South? And what's with the tiara? Are you supposed to be the princess of the local tribe or something?"

"Vulgar?" Jaya took a look at her bodysuit, it was tightly wrapped around her well-endowed physique. It highlighted her ample curves, slim waist, flat belly with defined lines, and long legs. Then she looked at Gloria's body, especially her chest and ass, she had none. Jaya unconsciously grinned having made this observation. "You bitch," Gloria yelled seeing the wide grin on Jaya's face when she glanced at her chest and ass right after glancing at her own. Jaya's action could not have been more obvious and proactive in Gloria's eyes. "Shadow Fang," Gloria summoned a dragger with a pitch-black blade, gray hilt, and red handle as she dashed at Jaya in rage. However, as she neared Jaya she suddenly retreated jumping back while performing a double flip to dodge a crimson energy slash that was aimed at her. Then, she frantically scanned her surroundings, yelling, "Who dares to attack me?" The crowd of noisy teenagers who were cheering for Gloria suddenly turned silent seeing the crimson energy slash that appeared out of nowhere. Soon, all their gazes moved and converged on a group of fellow peers dressed in the Southern Watch armor. Seeing them their expression turned dignified. Seeing the Southern Watch armor, even Gloria turned silent and intently glanced at the girl leading the group. But receiving a signal from the boy who ordered her to capture Jaya, she raged at the girl leading the group of teenagers dressed in Southern Watch armor, "Aria, what is the meaning of this?" "I should be the one asking you that," Aria Art asked Gloria emitting an overbearing aura. Gloria glared at Aria but seeing the intimidating Southern Watch armor Aria was donning Gloria chose to swallow her words and remain quiet. Seeing this the boy ordering Gloria shook his and spoke up, "Captain Art, are you here on official Southern Watch duty?" Following the voice, Aria looked at the boy. Learning his identity her brows frowned, and she reluctantly replied, "No, young master Cervos. We are off duty right now."

Listening to Aria's reply the silent crowd sighed in relief and once again grew rowdy while Cervos and Gloria had a knowing smile. Gloria who was hesitant earlier, stepped toward Aria and asked, "Captain Art, mind explaining why you attacked me? I showed no sign of aggression toward you."

"You know why I attacked you," Aria responded with disdain and ordered one of her subordinates, "Escort the civilian out of here and back to the city."

"Yes, Captain," As a soldier prepared to escort Jaya back to the city safely. Two teenagers blocked his path and young master Cervos said, "I am afraid that is not possible Captain Art." "Young master Cervos, what is that supposed to mean? I can overlook your unlawful gathering over the air space of a third-rate city but I cannot overlook you intentionally harming an innocent citizen" This was why Aria was hesitant about revealing that they were off duty. The teenagers gathered here were all from prominent families and had little regard for authority, especially for the off-duty Southern Watch squad. "Captain Art, you are going to do just that, unless you want to go against me," Cervos said as a baleful aura emitted from his body covering the Aria and her squad. 'Shit, what kind of mess did I get myself into?' Jaya thought glancing at Cervos who despite being a mere Card Master dared to threaten Captain Art a peak card lord. Not to mention, her squad of teenage soldiers seemed to have the minimum realm of card lord. Witnessing this Jaya wondered what gave Cervos the confidence to go against them together. However, observing how the rowdy crowd was cheering for Cervos, Jaya felt he was not bluffing and might be the real deal, especially considering that even a captain of the Southern Watch addressed him respectfully despite their disagreement. Noticing that the atmosphere was getting heated, Jaya suddenly spoke up, "Captain Art, no need for an escort I can head back to the city myself." Having said that Jaya prepared to rush to the city and report what she saw and heard to her sister and Wyatt. However, before she could retreat the teenagers surrounded her blocking all the exits. Thinking she would have to fight her way out of her, Jaya balled her fist ready to knock a few teeth out. "Where do you think you are going? I am not done with you yet you cow," Gloria said grudgingly. She seemed to have taken serious offense to Jaya's action previously and planned to make Jaya suffer. Seeing Gloria and other kids corner Jaya, Aria stared at Cervos and warned, "Young Master Cervos, you are strong but Wyatt defeated a devil. Please, think twice before you poke the hornet's nest." Having read the Southern Royal family's dossier on Wyatt while serving as his bodyguard, Aria was aware of Jaya's identity as Wyatt's subordinate.

"I have heard about it too but let me remind you he isn't the only one who can borrow powers."

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 2014 Armine And JJ

[ 1,541 words ]

Chapter 2014 Armine And JJ

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 15:24

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City, Air Space

After serving as Wyatt's bodyguard, Aria Art applied for transfer from the Southern Royal Palace to the Way Beyond. She was done serving the willful people and guests in the Royal palace and would rather risk her life on the battlefield. Her experience with Wyatt was very disappointing and it was the turning point in her career. Still today Aria wasn't clear on why she was assigned as Wyatt's bodyguard as he outclassed her in every way. Sometimes, she pondered whether Lorenzo intended to use her as a honey trap for Wyatt. However, looking at her underdeveloped curves she shook her head and reluctantly concluded she was a spy planted by Wyatt's side. To earn his trust and report his every move to the Royal family. She was hesitant to conclude this because if she was assigned by Wyatt's side to do so then, she failed her mission. This did not sit right with her. In the Southern Watch, it was said it's easier to transfer to the Way Beyond but Aria found it false in her case. She applied for a transfer five times and was rejected all five times. During her fifth application, Ann came in person to deny Aria's transfer request. But seeing Aria was death set on transferring from the Royal Palace base, Ann transferred her to the Southern Capital garrison. The Southern Royal family was never shy of sending their cubs to the Way Beyond especially the ones with potential but ever since they learned about the three mischiefs and the Matron targeting them. They have made protecting their talents a priority over nurturing their talents. This was why regardless of how many times Aria applied to transfer to the Way Beyond she was denied and finally moved to the Southern Capital garrison where she would have to patrol the city streets and help citizens and tourists. Though it was a routine job it was better than facing the mood swings and whims of the royal family and their guests. So, Aria was enjoying a slow life in the Southern Watch's Southern Capital garrison until this late morning when Wyatt's speech and miraculous use of silver milk powder were aired on the grimoire network. It was supposed to be an ad for silver milk powder that the Royal family plans to distribute in the market this month. However, the fame that came with it made Wyatt a source of envy and jealousy, especially among the wealthy kids of the southern region. Not that he wasn't already a source of envy for these kids with all his achievements. This time it was different, Wyatt's speech 'You are the hope of the South' stuck with them. The poor orphans who were uncertain about their future outside of the orphanage could not afford hope let alone become someone else's hope so they were not moved by Wyatt's speech however it was different for the rich kids. Wyatt's speech ignited an untold passion in them all. Especially seeing how Wyatt was being revered by the general populace. So why were they targeting Wyatt? What better way to show their friends and family that they can be the Southern Hope than defeating the existing Southern Hope? After all, the Card World despite its magical advancement at its core still was the world where the strong ruled and were respected while the weak followed and worshipped the strong. Aria and her squad were supposed to be on the night shift but as a child from a prominent family and carrying the royal unparalleled bloodline, Aria was an integral part of many social groups. Where she picked up the chatter that the high school gangs from the Southern Capital were gathering other high school gangs from other prominent cities at the Sky Blossom City planning to dethrone the current hope of the southern region. At first, Aria scoffed at the idea of these rich kids thinking that they could dethrone Wyatt but then fearing the consequences of these kids being killed by Wyatt, she reported the matter to Ann her immediate superior, and called her squad. Then, they rushed to the Sky Blossom City using the city's teleportation array. Aria planned to disperse the gathering crowd using her identity as the captain in Southern Watch, but noticing that Cervos was leading the gangs she was no longer confident that she could stop them from making the stupidest mistake of their life that could cost their life. "Cervos, I see you still like to bully the weak. I wonder what your parents did to you for you to grow up like this," A voice sounded from all directions, listening to it the rowdy crowd of teenagers surrounding Jaya immediately became alert of their immediate surroundings. Cervos's smug face instantly turned ugly listening to this voice and he responded grudgingly, "Armine, one of these days I will capture you and torture you to my fill. Then gift you to my pet as a toy to satisfy its urges." "Cervos, when you make statements like that I can't help but wonder if you were sexually abused by your father for you to cultivate such a deviant fetish. After all, your father's notorious reputation precedes him," Armine remarked. His physical body was nowhere in sight however his voice was audible to everyone and sounded from all directions making it harder to pinpoint his location. "You son of bitch I dare you to come out of hiding and say that to my face," Cervos lost it listening to Armine bring up his father and his notorious reputation. He frantically scanned the edge of the void but he could not find any clue as to where Armine was hiding. "Hahaha, I dare you to find me if you can," Armine laughed aloud in satisfaction. Listening to the conversation between Armine and Cervos, Aria frowned her brows and requested aloud, "Sir Armine, please do not provoke the crowd any more. If possible please help me disperse them." "Sorry, Captain Aria. I cannot be of any help to you today. I also want to see what Southern Hope is capable of," Armine rejected Aria's request. "Haha, it seems I wasn't alone to think as such," A loud immature voice sounded as a group of about two hundred teenagers appeared behind the crowd of teenagers surrounding Jaya. This caused the tension in the air to soar by several notches. "JJ, not you too? Didn't Her Highness Southern emperor warn you not to mess with Wyatt? Besides, shouldn't you be the most aware of what Wyatt is capable of," Aria frowned looking at her younger cousin who appeared by her side. She wondered if he dared to show himself here because Anna was in closed-door training. "Don't worry cousin, I have created a new card just for this occasion. Today, I will show the world who is better, me or Wyatt. I am sick of constantly being compared to him," JJ uttered under his breath just for his cousin to listen. He was hailed as a genius in the royal palace but ever since the appearance of Wyatt, his nightmare began. Today, he will put an end to that nightmare or die trying. "JJ, Grandma is here to guard him. So, if you provoke him she will watch you get killed by him but not save you even if you have the royal bloodline," Aria whispered to her cousin, warning him. She was aware that Field Marshal Heatsend was guarding Wyatt, she wasn't sure if most of the kids gathered here knew that. Mostly like they didn't otherwise they would not dare to show up here, but she was clear JJ knew about it therefore she reminded her cousin not to expect Field Marshal Heatsend to save his ass if things turned ugly. "I would not want it otherwise," JJ replied with resolute eyes. "It seems we are late to the party." Pretty soon other gangs began to appear in the edge of the void. Some seemed to be harmonious with Cervos's group while others joined JJ but most stayed independent. The people leading these groups each oozed an intimidating and authoritative aura. Looking at them Jaya frowned brows grew narrower almost joining in to a single brow. Unconsciously she moved closer to Aria as the rest of the people here were eyeing her as if she were their prey. Usually, Jaya would not be intimidated by such gazes but the size of the crowd kept growing with the passing second and the odds of her leaving here alive grew smaller and smaller. Jaya no longer cared about surprising her sister and tried to call her but for some reason, her grimoire call would not connect. After repeated failed attempts, Jaya gave up trying to contact her sister believing that someone among the crowd had equipped a grimoire network jamming card. Seeing the smug face of Gloria, Jaya guessed, 'It must be this bitch who is jamming my grimoire's network.'

"What's the matter cow can't call for help?" Gloria said wanting to enjoy the look of despair on Jaya's face.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 2015 Adriane, Girl Fight!

[ 1,138 words ]

Chapter 2015 Adriane, Girl Fight!

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 15:28

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City, Air Space

One after the other, those who were moved by Wyatt's speech 'You are the hope of the South' began to gather at the edge of the void at the Sky Blossom City's air space to answer the question Wyatt ended his speech with, 'Who is the Hope of the South?' They all had interpreted Wyatt's speech in their way and now they were here to give their answer to his question. It did not take long for these groups to form factions based on their interpretation of the speech and their answer to it. With the difference of opinion, the tension in the atmosphere soared. And amidst these factions, one person stood alone, Jaya Keith.

Jaya ignored Gloria and instead focused on the people with threatening auras among crowd that managed to awaken her innate viltronian fighting instinct that she did not know existed within her until today. She felt a sense of excitement. She wanted to just rush into the crowd and conquer them all. Her mind said, 'That's suicide' but her heart said, 'Bring it on.' The crowd also noticed the change in Jaya. Especially those that were eyed by her. They felt a sense of trepidation from her. They could not help but lift their brow as the person they considered prey turned out to be a cornered predator. Seeing Jaya ignore her, Gloria was pissed. She could not believe that some random country hick dared to ignore her in front of her clique. This was the highest level of disrespect anyone had ever shown her. Gloria could not stomach it, she had to teach the country girl a lesson, regardless of the crowd's opinion.

"How dare you?" yelled Gloria as she threw her 'Shadow Fang' aiming at Jaya's ample chest. Even in rage, she did not forget the source of her initial shame. However, to her surprise, the knife that cut through the air and reached its target at insane speed bounced off Jaya's body suit causing her bountiful fun bags to giggle a little. Similar to the ripples on the surface of a lake when a pebble's thrown into it.

Seeing this scene, Gloria's eyes widened while the onlookers could not help but swallow their saliva. Following this some unknown hero in the crowd yelled, "Girl Fight!" with the hero's reminder and lead, the crowd began to chant, "Girl Fight!" " Girl Fight!" "Girl Fight!" " Girl Fight!" "Cheap shot," Jaya wasn't fazed by this in the slightest. Rather she stood tall with her chest puffed out. The first lesson she learned in her training was to stop being conscious of her body in the middle of a fight as it would cost her life. She had to be alive to worry about her purity. "Deviants!" Aria uttered seeing the crowd's reaction. She almost lost it when she heard someone ask if they had recorded the scene. Not everyone was lucky enough to witness the majesty of Jaya's twin peak. Influenced by the exaggerated reaction of their fellows they could not help but blame themselves for missing it. "JJ, I don't care what you do but help me escort the civilian back to safety," Aria asked her cousin to help her rescue Jaya. Listening to Aria's words, the crowd cheering for a girl fight paused and focused their attention on JJ waiting for his answer. As the leader of the biggest faction present his word held a lot of weight compared to Aria who was an outcast because of the Southern Watch armor she donned. Even though JJ was a royal, he was here as one of them, unlike Aria. "Captain Aria is right. I don't think there is a need for us to harm a civilian in our quest," It wasn't JJ who spoke up but a gingerhead female. She led a faction of descent size most importantly all of her faction members were girls, beautiful girls. "Adriane, stay out of this. That cow is mine," Gloria warned the red-headed girl only to be ignored by her. Gloria was pissed but she did not dare to attack Adriane. Adriane walked toward Jaya, planning to take her under her faction protection but Cervos walked out of the crowd and blocked her path saying, "You heard her, stay out of this." Adriane was not afraid of Cervos but noticing that his faction was almost three times hers, she hesitated worrying for the safety of her followers. But as the leader of her faction, she chose to stick to their creed otherwise there would be no point for them to gather under a common belief. Therefore, she fearlessly locked eyes with Corvos and warned, "Step aside, or I will make you." Listening to their leader, Adriane's followers prepared for a full-on battle. Meanwhile, Corvos stared into her eyes, and with a creepy smile he said, "Oh, I would like to see how you will make me." Seeing that the crowd was about to rip themselves apart even before they gave Wyatt a chance, Aria shook her head and nudged JJ to speak up and put an end to it. Forced by his cousin, JJ had no choice but to speak up.

*Ahem* JJ cleared his throat aloud and immediately became the center of everyone's attention. With everyone's attention on him, he said, "Cervos, chill." Then turning to look at Adriane he said, "You too, Ms Adriane." "I am not stepping back until I make sure the civilian is safe," Adriane declared to which Cervos announced, "I would like you to try."

"Shut the fuck up, you two," JJ suddenly snapped at Adriane and Cervos only to instantly become the target of their rage. Ignoring their stares, JJ announced, "The crowd has spoken: Girl Fight!" With his words, the crowd regardless of their faction cheered chanting, "Girl Fight!" "Girl Fight!" "Girl Fight!" "Girl Fight!" "Standard street rules applied, now fight!" JJ announced staring at Gloria and Jaya. Listening to him the Crowd moved forming a ring with Gloria and Jaya in the center. It was because JJ was such a prodigal royal, he had such a die-hard following among his age group despite his age. Aria was shocked by her cousin's action, forgetting their surroundings she instinctively twisted his ear asking, "Have you gone insane?" However, it was too late. The ring was set, the players were ready, and the crowd was beyond control.

Just then, a scarlet butterfly monster appeared in the makeshift ring created by the crowd from nowhere, no one seemed to notice its presence until it landed on Jaya's shoulder. Jaya did not attack the butterfly monster instead she smiled ear to ear and looked at it endearingly. ....

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 2016 The Hidden Conspiracy

[ 1,039 words ]

Chapter 2016 The Hidden Conspiracy

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 15:30

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City, Air Space

"Don't worry boss, I can handle these fleas," Jaya uttered as her eyes glanced over the crowd and finally landed on Gloria. As the scarlet butterfly monster landed on Jaya's shoulder she felt an unknown power influence her blood and she saw vivid images of Wyatt asking her if she was alright on her own or needed his help. Knowing that Wyatt could morph his appearance to his will, Jaya immediately deduced that the butterfly was none other than her dear boss. So she assured him that she got it covered. Letting Jaya know she wasn't alone, Wyatt left her side and hovered over to his ex-bodyguard's side. The kids in the crowd who tried to kill the scarlet butterfly monster momentarily had hallucinations and before they knew it the butterfly monster had moved from Jaya's shoulder to Aria's shoulder. This caused many to become suspicious of the butterfly monster but seeing Aria arguing with the butterfly they felt it was her pet or summons and chose to ignore it as long as she did not plan to use it to disrupt the girl fight.

Seeing the butterfly monster head her way Aria wanted to squat it away, but soon she saw vivid images of Wyatt in her mind saying, 'It's me. Just pretend as if I am your summons.'

"Get off me, I do not want to be part of your schemes," Aria immediately rejected Wyatt in a hushed voice. Having served as Wyatt's bodyguard Aria was painfully aware of how deep his schemes ran and she did not want to be part of them. The only reason Aria rushed over here was to try and stop the turmoil that would follow when all of the kids present were brutally massacred by Wyatt. 'You have no choice in this matter Captain Aria,' Wyatt imposed on Aria using the hallucination ability of the Scarlett butterfly monster to communicate with her. "No—" Aria was about to argue and shove Wyatt off her shoulder but after receiving a mental order from Field Marshal, 'Captain Aria, Assist Dalton Wyatt.' She became docile resolving to her fate, "Fine." JJ frowned looking at the scarlet butterfly monster on his cousin's shoulder he knew Aria had no such pet or summons so he did not misunderstand like the rest of the crowd. Earlier just when he showed intent to kill it his body froze as his mind experienced hallucinations. It seemed to have a passive ability to put anyone with ill intent toward it under hallucinations. JJ found this monster's ability fascinating especially considering that the passive ability was strong enough to put him under hallucinations. He had not read or heard of such a butterfly monster with such ability. This caused him to grow curious about it. As a card creationist hailed as a genius, JJ was aware of all the monsters in the card world and this butterfly monster wasn't among them. He felt it was not from the card world or belonged to a new dungeon that had yet to be listed. Lost in curiosity about the butterfly monster itself, he forgot the important question if the butterfly monster did not belong to his cousin then whom did it belong to? Sitting on Aria's shoulder, Wyatt glanced over the crowd, his Hive AI and Super Brain card worked in sync to scan and identify each individual in the crowd. Among the crowd, Wyatt did not find anyone to be implanted with hypnotic suggestion which was both a sign of relief and foreboding for Wyatt. He could not help but worry about what Handsome Fox was planning. Though Wyatt did not find any hypnotized puppets of Handsome Fox in the crowd he found other variables such as people affiliated to Circle and Yin-yang harmony sect. The two guys leading the people from the Circle and Yin-yang harmony sect were both incarnations of the Supreme leader. Wyatt had thought that his small ploy using the array master Ji Feng from the Yin-yang harmony sect to sow discord among the Circle and Yin-yang harmony sect would stop the unification of the Yin-yang harmony sect into the Circle but it hastened the process. From the look of things, when things did not go according to his plan the Supreme leader had resorted to extreme means so that his Incarnation could take over the Yin-yang harmony sect. Finding the Supreme Leader's cronies in the crowd wasn't surprising to Wyatt. He even believed that these people might be the ones who instigated the crowd to make this display. Wyatt felt that Matron's brainwashed and blackmailed slaves also helped them in this matter. However, it was not as easy to spot Matron's paw clan in the crowd as it was to find the Supreme Leader's incarnations and the Circle. After the incident in the Southern Capital, both the Matron and Supreme leader must be clear about Wyatt's strength. Yet, why would they resort to instigating these kids what would they stand to gain from this? Their plan could not be more obvious and simpler, it was to get Wyatt to kill these kids just like how his subordinates massacred all the gangs that threatened to invade the Sky Blossom City and slaughter the Bright Lion gang. All the kids present here came from rich and prestigious families. Their parents, grandparents, or relatives were somebody with power or someone with authority in the Southern Region. Just imagine all of these powerful people turning against Wyatt because he killed their kids. Even Anna's mother would have a hard time quelling the anger, rage, and sadness. They all would not hesitate to start a mutiny just to get revenge on Wyatt. Regardless of whether they succeed or not the entire Southern Region will be left in shambles in the aftermath of this incident. No matter how it ended, the real winners here would be the Matron and Supreme Leader. This was why they did not hesitate to sacrifice a few of their pawns by sending them to the field to ensure that this incident ended with Wyatt killing everyone.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

[ 1,028 words ]

Chapter 2017 Fight!

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 15:26

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City, Air Space

When Wyatt was busy sorting the identity of each individual in the crowd Jaya prepared to fight Gloria as the crowd cheered on. Jaya was confident she could defeat Gloria as long as the Southern Capital City's street fight rules were the same as in Sky Blossom City's streets. "Cow, you'll regret crossing me," Gloria threatened Jaya however her eyes shortly glanced over at Adriene while smiling smugly. Provoked, Adriene took a step forward to put an end to this sick game, but her vice-captain stopped her. Though they could not escort the girl to safety as intended, they managed to give the girl a fair fight. With JJ siding with Cervos on this matter, there wasn't much they could do. At least they managed to give the girl a fair fight. Though with Gloria as her opponent, the chances of her survival were basically nil. But this was the best they could do. Continuing to resist wouldn't just put the girl in danger but their faction members too. If the girl dies in the process of their resistance the sacrifices of their faction members would be a waste. In their current state, they had to pick their battles. If the girl manages to survive Gloria, they will have enough basis to speak for her. Seeing Adriene's reaction, Gloria's mood instantly improved and her smug smile morphed into a wide grin. She was enjoying this. Her face flushed with red imagining the look on Adriene's face as she killed the country cow. After all, there was no way the country hick could hold a candle against her. Tightening her grip around the handle of Shadow Fang Gloria swiftly closed the distance between herself and Jaya. Seeing Gloria rush toward her, Jaya grinned in her mind knowing that Gloria was underestimating her and it would cost her a life. Gathering all her strength in her fists with a determined look in her eyes Jaya waited for the perfect moment.

When Gloria appeared before Jaya with her arm poised to strike, in that fraction of a second, Jaya brandished her fist striking at the center of Gloria's chest with all her might summoning her highest attack speed. *Boom*

Jaya's fist instantly pierced through Gloria's chest and the force from the impact spread through Gloria's body causing it to balloon up and burst showering Jaya with blood and gore. The shockwaves from Jaya's punch caused the surrounding wind to rile up forming a small-scale tornado that reached the onlookers causing them to instinctively close their eyes and take a defensive stance. A sinister grin formed on Jaya's face covered in blood and gore but before she could celebrate her victory, she realized that she could not smell blood from the blood that showered on her as Gloria's body burst. Having raided dungeons and fought in her share of life and dead battles Jaya's superhuman senses were aware of how blood smelled and the blood and gore covering her did not have that smell. Learning this Jaya instantly grew alert and suddenly felt her cape flutter even though there was no wind in the air. Before Jaya could deduce what it signified, it was too late, a cold blade pierced her back breaking the defense of her body suit and her superhuman viltronian defense that was near-invulnerable to attack of the same realm and below. Being attacked Jaya intuitively punched in the direction of the assailant but her reaction was late, having stabbed her twice in a row her assailant escaped reading the subtle changes in Jaya's body movements. Blood spurt uncontrollably from Jaya's wounds, dying Jaya's silver body suit red. Noticing that the blood would not stop flowing out, Jaya felt that the assailant's weapon had a bleeding effect.

"Woah! That was close. Good thing I did not underestimate you," Gloria's figure appeared 200 meters from Jaya and commented. Seeing that Gloria was fine, Jaya understood that the Gloria she saw die was a clone or illusion of sorts. Gauging that her opponent possessed an item that could not only break her defense but had a bleeding effect and possessed a clone or illusion skill, Jaya no longer dared to be defensive. Mobilizing her fast speed she rushed at Gloria and punched with all her might. This time on impact, Gloria dispersed and Jaya groaned in pain as a cold blade pierced her back. Jaya tried to attack in the direction from where the attack came but once again Gloria was long gone having read the subtle cues of Jaya's body movements. "Fuck!" Jaya screamed at the top of her lungs in frustration. However, in her mind, she noted that every time Gloria attacked, her cape would flutter in the direction the attack came from by reading even the small changes in the air warning her of Gloria's attack. Realizing this maintaining an irritated and annoyed appearance on the outside Jaya calmed her mind and stood in one place waiting for Gloria to make her next move. This time instead of trusting her sight she planned to follow the signals of her bodysuit's cape as it seemed to be able to read the movement of air and warn her of incoming attacks that were not visible to her eyes. However, Jaya's plan was easier said than done. She has been relying on her five senses from birth yet it took her lots of training to use them in real combat, so for her to adapt the warning signals of her cape to her combat style would not be easy considering that she would have to read the movement of her cape to deduce the direction of the incoming attack. Just as Jaya was dwelling on how to use her cape's warning signals to her advantage, her cape warned her of an incoming attack. Being warned, instead of trying to defend or confront Gloria, Jaya retreated to safety as she still had to figure out how to deduce the movements of her cape to read the direction of the incoming attacks.

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 2018 Kaleidoscope Field Card

[ 1,227 words ]

Chapter 2018 Kaleidoscope Field Card

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 15:35

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City, Air Space

"Did you see that punch?" "See it, I felt it." "The turbulent wind current from the shock wave of her punch scratched my skin." "How can a little girl pack such a devastating punch?" "If it had landed on real Gloria she would be dead for sure." "Sssh, watch what you say unless you want to be next." "Woah, the country chick is not easy."

"You are recording this right." "Not only am I recording it I am live streaming it for our friends back home." "Unfortunately, I could not record the elasticity of the country chick's chest."

The crowd was in awe of the strength displayed by Jaya. They felt that in terms of sheer strength, Gloria was no match for Jaya. But not many dared to say it out loud fearing Gloria, Cervos, and their followers.

Gloria frowned upon seeing Jaya retreat and narrowly escape her attack in the nick of time. She doubted if Jaya saw through her illusion but soon she rejected that thought believing if Jaya had seen through her illusion she would have attacked her instead of retreating. She wondered if Jaya had cards related to or similar to Danger Sense.

To confirm her suspicions, Gloria attacked Jaya again while concealing her presence with her illusion skill card. This time, too, Jaya remained unresponsive until the very moment she neared, ready to attack. As Gloria made her move, Jaya instantly retreated to safety escaping the impact. Seeing this Gloria confirmed her speculations and also learned that Jaya's danger sense ability was advanced as it didn't just alert Jaya of incoming attack but also vaguely informed her of the direction of attack, otherwise Jaya would not be able to retreat to safety. Gloria contemplated the odds of encountering an enemy with advanced danger sense ability to counter her illusion skill card, especially in an unknown third-rate city. Shaking her head she blamed her bad luck and thought, 'Now this is going to be troublesome.' "A-rank Field Card: Kaleidoscope Array Formation," Gloria chanted, summoning array formation with Jaya in the center. Soon multiple mirror clones of Gloria began to appear in mandalic patterns. With every second this mandalic pattern would change into a new pattern, changing the location of Gloria's mirror clones. Though these mirror clones had zero attack power this array formation didn't just allow Gloria to create multiple mirror clones of herself but also allowed her to move between these mirror clones instantly. This way Gloria can have the numerous mirror clones attack Jaya simultaneously and she would keep switching places with the mirror clones so that Jaya's advanced danger sense would go haywire trying to guess which direction the attack was coming from. When Jaya's danger sense was muddled she would land the finishing blow. This was the combo move Gloria had thought of to deal with a card apprentice with advanced danger sense ability. As expected of a second-generation rich card apprentice she did not spare any expenses to fill the hole in her card deck. Having set her combo move Gloria deployed her attack, the numerous mirror clones dashed at Jaya meanwhile Gloria kept transferring between the numerous mirror clones. As for Jaya, she stood tall with all her senses focused on her cape. As such she did not flinch as many of Gloria's mirror clones lunged at her. On contact these mirror images shattered into millions of tiny pieces and dispersed. Seeing this Gloria reconfirmed her speculations and without any further deal, she launched her attack. Transferring her place with a mirror clone that was about to lunge at Jaya, Gloria noticed Jaya retreating backward. With a grin, Gloria then instantly transferred her place with a mirror clone that was about to come in contact with Jaya. 'Splurt,' and successfully managed to land an attack on Jaya. Finding an opportunity in Jaya's confusion, Gloria instantly transferred between multiple mirror clones and stabbed Jaya in various vital spots. But to her shock, despite taking life-threatening damage to her vital organs' Jaya continued to stand tall and launched a strong punch that blew all her mirror clones away with a strong wind current gaining a gasp from the onlookers. With no more mirror clones to hide among Gloria had no choice but to retreat till the array formation replaced the mirror clones. Jaya's condition had gotten worse, the blood level in her body was low. Because of the bleeding effect Jaya's blood had completely dyed her bodysuit red. Now nobody could tell that her bodysuit used to be silver in color. The lack of blood in her body was dulling her senses which could be considered a promising situation for her condition. Jaya's current blood level and damage to her body would have rendered any ordinary card apprentice unconscious. Fortunately, she was a Viltronian. This much was not life-threatening to her. After all, Vitronian's evolution had made them cockroaches of humanoid species. She would be fine even with a couple of holes in her brain as long as they missed the critical sections of the brain. Though being viltronian gave one a sturdy body, without a tenacious will it was nothing. Jaya could barely manage to continue her fly properly and wobbled like a drunk fly despite her injuries mostly because of her strong willpower. Jaya recalled how her cape warned her that the attack was coming from the front but then suddenly it changed its prediction hinting to her that the attack was coming from her side. Mid retreat Jaya was taken aback and before she could change the direction of her retreat Gloria landed multiple decisive blows catching her off guard. Meanwhile, Jaya's cape fluttered vigorously along with Gloria's instant transfer skill. Gloria's instant movement was too fast, though Jaya's cape predicted the attacks she could not keep up. Forced into a corner Jaya burst forth a punch filled with her superhuman might destroying all the mirror clones and buying herself room for a quick breather to salvage the situation. 'You dumb cow. You are not smart so stop trying to apply your brain and start using your devastating muscles,' A rude voice echoed in Jaya's mind, she was familiar with this arrogant and condescending tone, it belonged to Corey Bright. Jaya did not have the luxury to take offense to Corey's words nor the time to retort to it. Instead, she did what she was told. Once the kaleidoscope array formation replenished her mirror clones, Gloria repeated her combo move following her previously proven tactics. However, this time when she landed her first stab on Jaya's left upper arm, her Shadow fang remained stuck in between Jaya's muscles. No matter how much force she applied to her pull Gloria could not retrieve her jammed shadow fang knife. Being held up Gloria could not transfer to a mirror clone. If she wanted to do so then, she would have to leave behind her shadow fang. However, that was the only weapon in her arsenal capable of breaking the country hick's dense defense. Caught in a dilemma Gloria could not make a quick decision allowing Jaya's right hand to grab her left wrist. Catching Gloria, Jaya's face donned a fiendish grin uttering, "Got you bitch!"

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 2019 Jane Jr Austen

[ 1,106 words ]

Chapter 2019 Jane Jr Austen

Date- 18 April 2321

Time- 15:44

Location- Card World, Southern Region, Blossom District, Sky Blossom City, Air Space

Jaya grabbing Gloria's left wrist was a spontaneous act, that surprised Jaya herself. With her shadow fang stuck between Jaya's muscles Gloria was unable to make a decisive decision to ditch her weapon but she did use her illusion card to hide her presence. So the chances of Jaya grabbing invisible Gloria's wrist with her free hand was like one in a thousand. This can only explained as a coincidence. However, Jaya's action was not a coincidence but an intuitive response unconscious to herself. In a fraction of a second in which Jaya saw and felt Gloria's figure stabbed her, her mind registered and reacted to it. Jaya herself was surprised by the outcome. She did not know how her body responded so precisely. She would understand if she had punched Gloria but to grab her wrist now this was beyond her and her training. Jaya did not overthink about it and just went with it. With her opponent in her grasp, she would hate to lose because of indecisiveness. Viltronians were a race born to fight. They had strong fighting instincts. It was an innate, natural impulse that guided their behavior and decision-making. Hence they were one of the most violent races in the Myriad realms. These instincts of the Viltronian race were subconscious and evolved responses to stimuli, shaped by genetics and past experiences. Jaya in the heat of the battle, when she stopped thinking and began using her body, unknowingly awakened her dormant innate fighting instincts. As soon as Jaya came in contact with Gloria, her illusion was undone. Locking eyes with Gloria, Jaya had a fiendish grin on her face as she uttered, "Got you bitch." "Let go of me, you cow," Gloria struggled to free her hand and shadow fang, she regretted not decisively ditching her shadow fang. She could have retrieved it once Jaya unwittingly dislodged it from her body and discarded it, just like how she recalled it after it bounced off Jaya's breasts previously. Though shadow fang was the only weapon in her arsenal that could deal with Jaya's dense defense it was not a throwing knife so it did not manage to penetrate Jaya's defense when thrown at her instead it bounced off her.

Seeing Gloria struggle to free herself, Jaya's grin grew wider. Then, she ruthlessly utilized her superhuman strength to tighten her grip on Gloria's left wrist and crush it. Jaya was decisive and unforgiving in her actions. "Aaaah!" Getting her left wrist crushed Gloria screamed at the top of her lungs in pain. This was the first cry of pain since the battle started. Gloria had stabbed Jaya numerous times targeting her vital points but not one scream or cry escaped from Jaya's mouth except for occasional grunts and groans. Only when Gloria cried in pain did the onlookers notice this. Even now Gloria's shadow fang was lodged in Jaya's upper left arm, in her struggle to free it Gloria twisted it but Jaya never screamed in pain but endured. This small detail gave birth to a newfound respect for Jaya in the eyes of onlookers. Many did not believe they would be capable of enduring pain as Jaya did. As Gloria's scream echoed on the edge of the void, two separate commotions unfolded in the crowd: one was caused by the abrupt appearance of Corey in front of the crowd out of thin air and the other was caused by Cervos and his followers.

While a part of the crowd tried to confirm Corey's identity, Cervos and his followers prepared to help Gloria however before they could rush to her rescue one guy blocked all their paths, Jane Jr Austen aka JJ. His presence alone was enough to cause Cervos and his followers to think twice before taking a step forward. However, JJ was not alone Adriene stood beside him exerting an intimidating aura targeting Cervos and his followers as she announced, "Standard street rules, no one, I mean no one is allowed to interpret a street fight, especially a girl fight." Though Adriene hated this filthy logic she wasn't above using it to her advantage. Cervos was about to retort to Adriene and force his way to rescue Gloria but was interrupted by JJ's words backing Adriene, "You heard her. Everyone is equal on the streets." "I don't care, move!" Cervos yelled in urgency. Listening to the commotion that had unfolded in the crowd behind her, Jaya who wanted to enjoy Gloria's cries and wailing a little more decisively decided to end it saying, "It was fun while it lasted." With a knife lodged deep in her left arm and right arm grabbing Gloria's left wrist, Jaya found that she did not have enough limbs to land the finishing blow, so she raised her head high and bashed it into Gloria's face. The impact broke Gloria's nose, loosed Gloria's molars, dislocated Gloria's jaw, and dyed Jaya's tiara with Gloria's blood. Gloria's brain was too disoriented from the blow so she had yet to feel the pain. Finding that the force in her head butt was not strong enough, Gloria slowly elevated her height with her viltronian flight and then gathering all her might in her head she prepared for a second round of head butt, however, as she thought to bash Gloria's face with her head summoning all her might, a bright golden energy beam shot out from the neon gold eight pointing star in the center of her tiara and vapourised Gloria's entire head and everything in its path. "Holy shit!" the onlookers whom the energy beam grazed by screamed in panic as they all not only witnessed but almost experienced the terror of the energy beam. "Gloria's dead!" "The country chick killed Gloria!" With Gloria's death, the crowd no longer had the time to bother with Corey's identity, they all exclaimed the obvious in astonishment as they witnessed blood-covered Jaya finally let go of the wrist in her grasp causing the headless corpse of Gloria to fall to free fall to the ground below. However, she did not forget to collect Gloria's golden grimoire.

With Gloria's death, the shadow fang jammed in Jaya's arm was recalled into its card. As a result, Jaya's wounds were now free of their bleeding effect and began to close at a speed visible to the naked eye. With Viltronian's super recovery and stamina working hand in hand, Jaya glanced over the crowd and challenged, "Which one of you bitches is next?"

Share to your friends

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

