

Deeply 1078

1078 Put to death (12)

How could there be such a coincidence? How could it be?

She was about to catch up with this man. As long as she stopped him, she could talk about a deal with him. How could he get into a car accident at this time?

Moreover, looking at his injuries, it was very likely that he would die immediately. Even if he didn't die, it was unknown when he would wake up.

However, she did not have the time. PEI Munian and Xi Zhiwei's engagement party was in three days.

"Go to the hospital, follow them to the hospital!" Su Wanwan quickly turned her head and said to the detective, "I want to see what's going on with him. He can't die at this time.

"Sure, miss su, take my car."

"Yes."

Su Wanwan and the detective got into the car together. The detective started the car, stepped on the gas, and followed behind the ambulance.

The man was sent to the operating room. Su Wan stood firmly outside the operating room and looked at the red light on the door of the operating room. Her heart couldn't help but hang in the air. No matter what, this man must not die now. He must be saved!

Time passed by minute by minute. Su Wanwan couldn't help but walk back and forth outside the door, there was no way to calm down.

About twenty minutes later, the detective ran over in a hurry and said, "miss su, I've found out the cause of the accident. It's indeed a problem with the car. The brakes were broken, so he couldn't brake in time and crashed into the bus.

"The brakes?"

Su Wanwan was stunned and stared. Why did this scene feel inexplicably familiar?

When the man was in a car accident, she didn't think much of it, but when she heard the word "brake," she couldn't help but freeze, and a strange light flashed through her mind.

She believed in coincidences in this world, but if there were too many coincidences, they might not be real coincidences and might even be deliberate.

This man had just gotten the money from Xi Zhiwei, and the next second, he was in a car accident? And the brakes were broken? Then, why didn't the brakes break when he drove over earlier?

As soon as su Wanwan asked this question, the detective suddenly thought of something and quickly said, "Miss su, after this man arrived at Xi Zhiwei's apartment, he did not drive his own car. Instead, he drove another car. If I'm not wrong, that should be Xi Zhiwei's car."

He was driving Xi Zhiwei's car? Was that what caused the car accident?

Su Wanwan's eyebrows suddenly furrowed. There seemed to be something in her mind that slowly connected and connected into a line. She shook her head in disbelief.

If all of this wasn't an accident, then it must be a man-made plot. But if it was man-made, then it must be intentional murder!

She, Xi Zhiwei, usually only played some sinister little tricks. Did she have the courage to kill someone?

Su Wanwan was still thinking when the light on the operating room door went out. The door slowly opened and a doctor in a white robe took off his mask while walking out.

Su Wanwan took a few steps forward and stared nervously at the doctor with her black eyes. Her voice couldn't help but tremble a little, "doctor, how's that man? Was the operation a success? Will he be able to survive?"

The doctor looked at su Wanwan and slowly opened his mouth. he's stunned.

—

Xi Zhiwei sat on the sofa, her eyes fixed on her phone. She did not even blink. Finally, his phone rang.

She immediately picked up the phone and answered, "How is it?"

As she listened to the words on the other end, Xi Zhiwei's lips curled up. are you sure that the doctor has declared him dead? "