After leaving the PEI residence that day, su Wanwan fell into a deep predicament. Because PEI Munian was determined to acquire SU group, the only thing she could do was to resist with all her might. However, with SU group's current strength, it could not withstand a single blow.

The SU family's stock price had fallen to rock bottom in just a few days after the news of the acquisition. The PEI family had taken the opportunity to acquire many private investors and gradually gained more shares. Although they were not a threat to the PEI family yet, the Board of Directors would lose confidence in them after three days and start to sell their shares in large quantities. By then, their position would be shaken.

Su Wanwan thought about it. The best way was to convince some shareholders to support them and stabilize the shares in their hands. In addition, she and her grandfather held a total of 25% shares. As long as they exceeded the support rate of more than 50%, the PEI family would have no way to seize the right to speak in the SU family and the SU family would be preserved.

Time was tight. Su Wanwan analyzed and sorted out the shares and personality characteristics of each director. There were a total of ten directors in the company. If she could make half of the directors support her, then she could basically keep the SU family's highest controlling position in SU group.

Su Wanwan stayed up all night and took the lead in selecting five relatively easy-to-persuade directors. She planned to visit them one by one and have a good talk with them.

After all, they had been supporting her and her grandfather for so many years, so they still had some feelings for each other. If she could be moved by their feelings and reason with them, they might be willing to continue supporting her.

However, things didn't go very well. She called five directors, but only two of them picked up, and their attitudes weren't very good. After she expressed her intentions, one of the directors even hung up the phone directly and couldn't get through again. The other director wasn't so direct, but he tactfully expressed his refusal.

Even if they had feelings for the SU family, their opponent was the PEI family, and no one was willing to go against the PEI family.

Although this result wasn't unexpected for su Wanwan, it really hit her hard. Because if she couldn't convince those directors, she would lose without a doubt, so no matter how difficult it was, she still had to continue.

The phone couldn't get through, so su Wanwan asked Xiaomei to find out where the directors were and she went directly to find them.

One of the directors, director su, had the second highest share. He was su Wan's uncle. That year, after her father passed away, the company fought for it. He was the most powerful competitor, but he still lost in the end, so the relationship with them was a bit stiff. But no matter how they fought back then, that was the SU family's matter. Now that they were facing the possibility of the SU family's complete decline, she thought that maybe he would put down the grievances from that year and support them to protect the SU family.

The first time Su Wanwan went to find Director Su, she went straight to his house. However, the servant politely welcomed her in. She waited for a full five hours but didn't see him. The second time, Xiaomei found out that Director Su was at the golf course. She went to look for him but was stopped by the bodyguards. She couldn't talk to him at all.

For the third and fourth time, he tried many different ways to persuade her, but she didn't even have the chance to speak to Director Su. The three-day deadline was about to end!

Su Wanwan stood guard at Director Su's door all night. After Director Su's car drove out, she rushed out without a care.
