

Deeply 424

424 The happiness that was stolen (8)

Su Wanwan's body was still very weak and it was not suitable for her to move, so PEI Munian did not take her home but stayed in the hospital to recuperate. He hired a professional nurse to take care of su Wanwan and help her with some basic recovery.

When PEI Munian got off work and arrived at the hospital, he pushed open the door of the ward. The sun outside the window was just right and shone into the room. Su Wanwan leaned on the sofa, hugging her knees with both hands and tilting her head. She looked at the nurse in front of her and listened to her reading to her.

A few rays of sunlight shone on her face mischievously, making the fine hair on her face look delicate and lovely.

As PEI Munian looked at her, the corners of her lips curled up slightly, and a touch of gentleness appeared between her brows.

Su Wanwan was a little listless at first, but she seemed to have sensed PEI Munian's gaze. She suddenly straightened her body and her beautiful big eyes looked towards the door.

The man stood there, tall and straight, with an elegant temperament. The smile on his lips was extremely soft, and his eyes were filled with undisguised affection, making people's hearts tremble involuntarily.

When su Wanwan's line of sight touched that familiar figure, the light at the bottom of her eyes suddenly lit up. The listlessness just now was also swept away.

PEI Munian smiled and walked over. She bent down and gently planted a kiss on su Wanwan's forehead. Then, she sat beside her and rubbed her hair with her big palm out of habit. "How do you feel today? Does your head hurt?"

Su Wanwan still had a side effect after the operation. She still had headaches occasionally, but as long as she recuperated, these symptoms would slowly disappear.

Su Wanwan blinked her big eyes but didn't speak.

PEI Munian looked at the nurse beside her. The nurse understood what he wanted to ask and immediately replied, "Miss su still hasn't spoken today."

After a pause, she added, "but this process can't be rushed. Miss su is just a child now. She needs a process to adapt to the outside world. Besides, she's particularly insecure now and can only acknowledge you. I'm still trying to make her accept me.

PEI Munian naturally knew that this matter could not be rushed. He nodded and said, "How is she today?"

don't worry, miss su is recovering well. Her headache today has also been shortened. She's just a little unhappy that she didn't see you.

PEI Munian's Black eyes couldn't help but look at su Wanwan again. She was still staring at him blankly. The smile on his lips deepened and his voice was filled with joy. okay, I got it. You've worked hard today. You can get off work.

"Alright, Mr. PEI."

The caretaker stood up and smiled at su Wanwan. miss su, we'll see you tomorrow. Then, she nodded at PEI Munian to show her respect and picked up her bag to leave.

PEI Munian suddenly spoke again. I'll get the chauffeur to send you back.

The caretaker was stunned for a moment, then a faint smile appeared in her eyes. She nodded. thank you.

When the nurse walked out of the ward, she subconsciously looked back. PEI Munian was reaching out her hand and holding su Wan. Su Wan gently snuggled in his arms. His other hand picked up the book she was reading just now. His thin lips opened slightly and he started to read word by word.

His voice was low and magnetic. Every syllable was like a melodious note, moving on people's heartstrings and making them tremble.