When PEI Munian was walking towards the hospital gate, the taxi su Wanwan was in happened to drive out. Su Wanwan lowered her head and sorted out her information. She passed by PEI Munian, who was walking past the window.

One walked in, the other went out, and the two people gradually went further away.

Su Zhenhua's funeral was a little low-key, and not many people came to offer their condolences. The tea became cold after the person left. Moreover, old master su had already lost power long ago, and it was drizzling today, so it ended very quickly.

After nanny li and Secretary su sent the guests off, the two of them bowed to Su Zhenhua's tombstone and turned to leave. On their way, nanny li inadvertently looked up and saw a tall figure not far away holding a black umbrella and slowly walking into the cemetery.

Nanny li was old and her eyesight wasn't that good. Through the rain, she could only vaguely feel that the figure was a little familiar. It looked like PEI Munian.

The moment this thought flashed through her mind, she couldn't help but shake her head.

His young miss had run away from the marriage, causing the PEI family to lose face and PEI Munian to be abandoned. These two months, the news had been overwhelming. Young master PEI probably hated his young miss to death. How could he still come to see old master?

Nanny li sighed and looked away.

The figure slowly walked to Su Zhenhua's tombstone. He stood there and mourned for a few minutes before he put down the flower in his hand.

The man squatted down, reached out, and gently wiped away the raindrops on Su Zhenhua's photo with his fingertips. Then, he laughed at himself.

Cutting ties with him was indeed what she wanted. She didn't even want to come back to send him off at her grandfather's funeral, nor did she want to see him in a daze again.

The man laughed and laughed, but there were tears in the corner of his eyes. The umbrella in his hand fell, and the man squatted there, letting the rain wet him. It was hard to tell whether the moisture in the corner of his eyes was rain or tears.

Su Wanwan originally wanted to settle things as soon as possible and come back to attend her grandfather's funeral as soon as possible so that she could send him off properly. However, things were not as easy to resolve as she imagined.

Fortunately, when she was on the phone with nanny li, nanny li told her that her grandfather's funeral was held smoothly and that her grandfather was buried in peace. She told her to be at ease and to deal with the matters over there.

Su Wanwan hummed and her red lips wriggled. The word "PEI" was on the tip of her tongue but she swallowed it back.

Now that things had come to this, she no longer had the right to care about PEI Munian. She had chosen to run away from the marriage in front of everyone, which was a great humiliation to PEI Munian. If she were to hypocritically ask about PEI Munian's current situation now, she would feel that she was a hypocrite.

Nanny li reminded her to take care of her health and to come back as soon as possible after the matter was settled.

Su Wanwan responded to each and every one of them and then hung up the phone.

Time passed quietly. The storm caused by the Grand wedding and Su Zhenhua's death could not stand the passage of time, and they were gradually forgotten by everyone.

Su Wanwan didn't know if she had forgotten, or if she was too busy to think about these things, or if she forced herself not to think about these things and put all her thoughts into The Last Wish her grandfather had given her. She actually didn't feel so sad and in the blink of an eye, so much time had passed.

When su Wanwan returned to L city, it was already a year later. L city seemed to have changed.

As soon as su Wanwan got off the plane, she saw Xi Zhiwei's advertisement on the airport's big screen. Half a year ago, she experienced a car accident but it didn't make her depressed. Instead, after she recovered from her injury, in just a few months, she became popular again and even more popular than before.
