

Deeply 569

569 The missing memory (1)

Su Wanwan blinked her big eyes and was puzzled for a moment. She suddenly understood and couldn't help but laugh.

The lawyer was confused by su Wanwan's sudden smile and couldn't help but say, "Miss su, is there anything funny about my question?"

Su Wanwan shook her head and quickly restrained her smile. However, she still couldn't help but laugh when she spoke, "lawyer, do you think I gave birth to this child? It's not like that, little Zeze is my little brother."

"Younger brother?"

The lawyer's eyes suddenly widened and he looked incredulously at the little person snuggling in su Wanwan's arms. This child was only a few months old and looked less than a year old. How could she be Yingluo?

"This Zhenzhen, this young master su and Madam, didn't they already have a relationship?" As far as he knew, they had passed away more than two years ago. How could they have given birth to such a young child?

Su Wanwan seemed to know what the lawyer was thinking and chuckled.

It was indeed strange. If her grandfather hadn't told her himself before he died, she wouldn't have believed that she had a younger brother. It turned out that her father had frozen his son abroad when he was still alive. After he and his mother passed away, her grandfather accidentally found out about it. He didn't want the SU family to have no successor, so his grandfather had someone extract it and find a surrogate. That was how he gave birth to this child.

However, it was inconvenient for her to tell outsiders about such family secrets.

Xiao Zeze is my younger brother anyway. The members of the SU family naturally have to be registered under our su family.

Su Wanwan didn't explain. Instead, she only emphasized that the child was from the SU family. People couldn't help but think too much. This child was so young. How could he be the child of her deceased parents? he was probably her own. She said that he was her younger brother. Perhaps she was afraid that the PEI family would find out and come to snatch the child?

The more the lawyer thought about it, the more he felt that this was the case. After all, with the SU family's current strength, they could not withstand a single blow. If the PEI family wanted a child, it would be a piece of cake.

The lawyer raised his eyebrows in understanding and looked at su Wanwan and nodded. I understand. The child is su family's, so he does have to be registered under the SU family's household register.

Su Wanwan didn't know why, but she felt that the lawyer's gaze was a little strange. Did she say something wrong?

Su Wanwan frowned. She thought about it and didn't find anything wrong. She shook her head, then took out the prepared information from her bag and handed it to the lawyer. then, lawyer, I'll leave the rest to you.

alright, miss su. I'll let you know when I'm done.

"Thank you," he said.

The lawyer sent su Wanwan out of the office. Su Wanwan motioned for him to stop. it's fine to send you here. I'll go down myself.

alright, take care, miss su. Drive safely back home. As the lawyer spoke, he said to Bao Bao in su Wanwan's arms: bye-bye, little ze ze. I'll see you next time.

After su Wanwan took the elevator downstairs, the lawyer's Secretary immediately came over and gossiped, " "Boss, boss, is the child in miss SU's arms President PEI's? But wasn't President PEI getting married to Xi Zhiwei? What did she mean by bringing the child back? Do you want to regain your position as the main Empress?"

The lawyer curled his finger and knocked the Secretary's forehead. did I ask you to come to work or to gossip? What did he mean by regaining the position of the main palace? Miss su will always be the main wife, okay?"