867 A sweet outing (7)

PEI Munian turned around and strode across the road.

Su Wanwan sat on a stone by the roadside and stared at PEI Munian's tall and straight figure in confusion as it gradually drifted away. She didn't know what he would think of.

After waiting for more than a minute, PEI Munian walked back. At the same time, a bicycle appeared beside him. He was pushing the bicycle as he slowly walked towards her.

Su Wanwan looked at him in surprise. She stood up and took two steps towards him. Her gaze fell on the bicycle. niannian, why is there a bicycle? "

"I saw a little girl riding it just now, so I bought it from her."

PEI Munian got on the bicycle in a carefree manner and turned to look at her. Under the setting sun's residual light, her handsome face looked even more profound, making one's heart tremble.

PEI Munian tilted her head at her and said, " "Get in the car."

Su Wanwan had seen PEI Munian driving a luxury car and a sports car many times. However, this was the first time she saw him riding a bicycle. He was as handsome as ever.

"You know how to ride a bicycle?"

Su Wanwan raised her eyebrows. Because she had been in contact with cars since she was a child, she also learned how to drive directly when she grew up. She had never sat on a bicycle before.

"Of course, what can't I do?"

That confident and proud tone made su Wanwan's eyes curve into a smile. She sat sideways in the back seat, put her arms around PEI Munian's waist, and shouted, " "Let's go!"

The corners of PEI Munian's lips lifted slightly. She stepped on the ground and the car flew out.

The evening wind blew gently and lifted su Wanwan's long hair and skirt. Su Wanwan cheered and opened her arms, " it's so comfortable here.

The surrounding scenery was so beautiful that it dazzled one's eyes and made it almost impossible to see everything.

Listening to the woman's happy voice behind her, PEI Munian's eyebrows were filled with endless gentleness. When he turned the corner in front, he deliberately tilted the car. Su Wanwan was so shocked that she quickly reached out to hold him tightly so that she wouldn't fall out of the car.

After she reacted, su Wanwan gritted her teeth and glared at the back of the man in front of her. She clenched her fist and punched him on the back a few times, saying angrily: "You did it on purpose!"

"Yes, I did it on purpose."

The man didn't hide it at all. His voice was deep and pleasant, like the ending tone of a cello, slowly sliding into su Wan's ears, as if teasing her heart. She should be angry, but the corners of her lips uncontrollably rose.

PEI Munian freed one hand and placed it on su Wanwan's arm that was around his waist, slowly interlocking their fingers.

The warmth of his palm seemed to spread from the back of her hand to her heart. The strength of his grip on her fingers also seemed to be holding her heart.

This man had captured her heart so easily, and she didn't want to struggle at all. She only wanted to indulge in it.

The car drove along the edge of the sea and gradually reached the city. There were all kinds of small shops on the left and right sides of the road. Because it was the tourist season, people came and went, and it was very lively.

PEI Munian rode her bike through the crowd. Su Wanwan looked around curiously. Most of the people in the crowd were couples, either holding hands or hugging each other. They strolled along the streets, their faces brimming with dazzling happiness.

Su Wanwan's gaze swept over them one by one. Her mind flashed and she squinted her eyes, looking at the surrounding shops. Then, she patted PEI Munian's back and quickly said, " niannian, stop for a moment.

"What's wrong?" PEI Munian stopped in time and turned to look at her.
