Chapter 88 Who do you think I am (8)

Gong Lingyu looked at the woman in his arms and a trace of surprise flashed in his eyes. Then, he was filled with longing, so much so that the hand he used to hold her body was trembling slightly.

He did not expect to meet her here.

That day, she had proposed to cancel their engagement and told him that she had never loved him and that she had only agreed to his proposal for the sake of the SU Corporation. After she left, he had been in so much pain that he had drunk a lot. When he finally woke up, many days had passed.

His parents saw that he was so sad and in pain, so they booked a plane ticket for him to go abroad and relax.

After he went abroad, he thought that he could forget su Wan, but during the time he was abroad, he was unable to forget her. Instead, her figure became clearer and clearer, and he was more and more reluctant.

He was still unwilling to let go of the girl he loved. He wanted to find her and tell her that even if she didn't love him and was only using him, it didn't matter. It was enough as long as he loved her. Hence, he returned to China.

However, he had never expected that so many things would happen while he was abroad. Before he could find her, everything had changed.

Su Wanwan and PEI Munian got married.

One was the woman he loved, and the other was his respected cousin. What was even more ridiculous was that he was the one who introduced them to each other.

His parents were all condemning su Wanwan, saying that they had misjudged her. They originally thought that su Wanwan was a good girl, but in the end, she was no different from other women. She climbed up to a higher branch when she saw one. No wonder she wanted to cancel the engagement with him. It turned out that she hooked up with a better one.

Although these facts were right in front of him, he was still unwilling to believe that the woman he loved would be such a person. He believed that she might have some difficulties, and he wanted to find her and ask her.

However, his parents didn't let him go to su Wan no matter what, so as not to make this farce big and let everyone come to see a joke.

What's more, su Wanwan was already married to PEI Munian. What's done is done. She had already become his cousin-in-law. No matter what happened between them, he shouldn't pursue it. Otherwise, it wouldn't be good for anyone.

He didn't care about it, but he was afraid of hurting su Wanwan. After all, he and su Wanwan had a relationship before. If he came into contact with her again, he would only bring her trouble.

So he could only bear with it, bear with it and not look for her, bear with it and not pay attention to her.

However, he would occasionally hear news that the PEI family had invested in the SU family, and the SU family was doing well. They had even signed the Queen Ji Xinxin as their spokesperson, and their future was bright.

She had left him and lived a better life. No matter how unwilling he was, he could only face reality.

He originally thought that between him and su Wanwan, there was really no more, but she fell into his arms again.

Gong Lingyu suppressed the urge to hug su Wanwan tightly and gently patted her cheek. Wanwan? Wanwan, wake up, Wanwan?"

Su Wanwan closed her eyes as if she was drunk and didn't react at all.

Gong Lingyu could only carry her horizontally and walk out of the bar.

The sunlight passed through the floor-to-ceiling window and refracted into the room at an angle. A few rays of light fell on su Wanwan's eyelids. Her long and curly eyelashes trembled slightly and slowly opened.

Su Wanwan looked at the unfamiliar environment in front of her in a daze, her mind blank.
