914 Do you want me?(4)

His slender fingers moved slightly as PEI Munian untied the necklace around her neck. He took out the ring and looked at it for a while. He smiled, retracted his fingers, and held the ring in his palm.

Su Wanwan didn't know how long she had slept. In her daze, she heard a gentle voice calling her, "Wanwan, the sun is setting. Get up quickly.

Su Wanwan was really too tired and sleepy. Her beautiful eyebrows furrowed and she mumbled a few times, but she was unwilling to open her eyes.

There were still noises in her ears. She waved her hand impatiently, as if she had hit something, and the surroundings immediately quieted down. She curved her lips in satisfaction and continued to sleep.

PEI Munian's hand touched her cheek that had been slapped by her, and for a moment, she did not know whether to be angry or laugh.

This woman, ah, ran ran, was so arrogant, but it was all because he spoiled her, and she was even willing to endure it.

He hugged su Wanwan and laughed for a while, then held her up and gently stretched his arm out from under her head. He rubbed the sore place and then got up.

Bending down, he carefully carried PEI Munian into the bedroom and placed her on the soft bed.

As soon as su Wanwan's body fell asleep on the bed, her head tilted and she fell into a deeper sleep.

PEI Munian sat by the bed and caressed her forehead with his large palm. Then, he lowered his head and kissed her forehead. After covering her with the blanket, he got up and walked to the desk. He tore a note from it, picked up a pen, and wrote a few words. He then returned to the bed and stuck the note on the bedside table.

He stood there and stared at her sleeping face for a while, then he left the room quietly.

When su Wanwan woke up again, the sky outside had already darkened. She opened her eyes and looked at the darkness in front of her in a daze. The room was very quiet, only the occasional sound of the waves coming from the terrace.

She was stunned for a second before she suddenly sat up from the bed and quickly turned on the light on the bedside table.

Didn't you say you were going to watch the sunset? Why is it already dark? Where's PEI Munian? Didn't he say he was going to wake her up?

Su Wanwan's eyes scanned the room but did not see PEI Munian's figure. She furrowed her eyebrows and was about to pick up her phone to call him when she saw the note on the bedside table.

She reached out to take the note and looked at the words on it.

It was PEI Munian's handwriting, bold and vigorous, each word strong. [when you wake up, come to the beach outside.]

The beach? What was he doing at the beach?

Su Wanwan smiled, lifted the quilt and got up. She comfortably stretched her lazy waist. She stepped on the soft carpet barefooted and walked into the bathroom.

After washing up, su Wanwan's head regained clarity and she walked out. She casually put on a coat, picked up her bag, and was about to go out. However, when she walked to the door of the room, her footsteps suddenly stopped. In a flash of light, something flashed in her mind.

Niannian was acting so mysterious, was she preparing a surprise for her?

Su Wanwan hurriedly walked back to the room, took out the note and carefully looked at it again. The more she looked at it, the more she felt that it was similar.

The corners of her lips lifted, and a smile appeared in her eyes. She looked down at her casual dress and quickly turned to her suitcase. She found a light blue dress from it, took off her clothes, and changed into it.
