

Destiny 461

Chapter 461 Plans

...

Later that night, the server of «Destiny's Fate» went up once again after the major update. A lot of new places were unlocked just like the newly discovered 'Sky Island' just before the major maintenance.

There were also some changes to the gameplay as the movements of every player need to be more realistic. Though, the further details about it were left to be discovered by the players themselves.

But the thing that made the leading players jump for joy was the fact that they could get a lot of experience points right now.

The experience points given by the monsters might be the same, but the drop rates of special items and rare materials was a rate higher than before.

Moreover, the Adventurer Guild was now offering some daily and weekly quests that could be done by everyone; and the experience points given by those quests were decent enough to satisfy even the high-leveled players.

At the same time, the border regions of every kingdom and empire also became opened, which meant that a lot of high-leveled monsters and top-class materials were now available. This also meant that some of the territorial spots on these places became claimable.

Shin was currently reading the new updates on the game while waiting for his gaming cabin to start its system up.

If he didn't have any plans when he got back in the game, then he was probably going to visit those places. So, going there needed to wait for a while before he had time to take a look at them.

Not long after, Shin finally heard the familiar sound that he was waiting for. And immediately after that, Shin quickly hopped inside the gaming cabin and moved his hand with great precision.

Then he closed his eyes along with the closing of the door of the gaming cabin. And when he heard that the door was locked, he immediately muttered with a soft voice. "Initiate Login."

Swoosh!

On the next moment, Shin felt that very feeling that he only hated from the game. And the moment he reopened his eyes, he found himself standing in the middle of his room at the Mayor's Residence.

He shook his head to shake off the dizziness that he was feeling before muttering to himself. "Why the heck did the developers didn't improve this system? Did they think that the players love the feeling of being in a spinner?"

After that, he walked out of his room and headed to the Mayor's office to check on the progress of his town.

When he stepped inside the office, Shin immediately saw Ribbit who was busily reading the piles of papers on the table.

Seeing that, Shin couldn't help but shook his head helplessly. He was feeling a little guilty for leaving all the works on managing the town.

Shin planned to walk out and come back after seeing all of those papers. But before he could even turn his body around, Ribbit suddenly raised his head and looked at him. "Oh! Town's Mayor! You are finally here at last! There are a lot of things that I wanted to consult you about."

After that, the two of them sat on the sofa before Ribbit started briefing Shin about the progress of the town.

There were a lot of improvements in the town. They had a stable income for running the whole town. They were even earning more than what they needed to add more improvements and modifications that could be done.

But they were also facing a great problem at the same time.

Most of the mainstream players in the Saint Heaven Kingdom were starting to catch up with the leading players due to the recent events that happened just recently. And due to that, Calderock Town was starting to lose its popularity.

The only purpose of most of the players coming to this place was to train at the Battle Arena that the town had. The mana density within the city was quite high which was why the Battle Arena became a perfect place to train.

Moreover, the fee for training here was much cheaper compared to the Divine Colosseum in the Holy City. That was also the reason why these players chose to come here instead of going to that place.

'Looks like I really needed to hasten up the relocation of the Town and also turn it into an Intermediate City as soon as possible,' thought Shin to himself before looking at his inventory.

In fact, he already completed all of the blueprints required for the promotion of his town since Arthur and Leonard helped him find those for him.

So, even without the help of the 'Eternal Hope' and 'Secret Society' to look for those blueprints, promoting the town was already good to go. What he really lacked right now, was to find a good place where he could relocate the town.

What he needed for those Adventurer Teams was them garrisoning on his City. After all, there were a lot of greedy powerful guilds that might set their eyes on his City if ever it became public.

And they might team up with each other once again when that time comes – just like what happened in the last major event that took place at the Holy City just recently.

Moreover, it was going to be a City Siege which would surely involve an even larger group. So, Shin was quite concerned that they might be unable to defend the City properly even with the help of the 'Hand of Midas Guild' and 'Assassin Union'.

He was also quite stubborn to owe a favor to the top guilds like the 'Wing's Alliance', 'Dragon Pavilion', and 'Titan Guild'. After all, he was quite greedy to share his own pie with a stranger like them who would think about the interest of their guilds first before anything else.

So, what he needed right now was to find some reliable people that he could trust and count onto. The 'Eternal Hope' and 'Secret Society' were candidates for that spot.

He already worked with the members of the former group. They had a decent strength with trustable Commander and Vice Commander. As of the latter group, the Commander of that Adventurer Team was someone he knew, so he could at least put his trust in that person.

Aside from those groups, Lawless' group would naturally have a spot for the 'garrisoning rights' in his City. He only needed to discuss the details with them personally.

What's more, there was also his plan to create an Adventurer Team together with Arthur, Leonard, Cloe. If things went smoothly, then the combined reputations of those three were more than enough to ward off the greedy guilds that might target them.

Though, they might also need to face the enemies of those three who were even more troublesome to deal with.

'Looks like I also need to make haste at looking for some good Team members,' thought Shin after organizing all of his plans inside his head.

He then looked at Ribbit and finalized all of the preparations that they needed for the promotion of Town, before leaving the office.

After that, he immediately opened his friend list. Then he immediately contacted Owen the moment he saw that he was online.

After a couple of rings, Owen immediately picked the call before saying lazily. "Hey, long time no see! But if you want to invite me for a sparring match, then let me reject that offer first. There are a lot of things that need to take care of here on my side."

Shin couldn't help but chuckle a little after hearing all of those. After that, he immediately went straight to the point so that they would not waste each other's time. "Then I will cut off the chase. You are still a solo player, right?"

Hearing that unexpected question, Owen couldn't help but knit his eyebrows for a moment before asking. "What's with the sudden question? Don't tell me you are going to invite me to join a Guild or something?"

Shin didn't reply to him directly and just formed a mysterious smile. And when Owen saw that, his eyes suddenly went wide before asking with a disbelieving tone. "What the heck? You really are going to invite me to join a group? What kind of Powers that managed to convince you to join them!?"

This time, Shin just waved his hand while saying. "Don't misunderstand it. I am just planning to create an Adventurer Team together with my friends. So, want to join us up?"

Owen suddenly calmed down the moment he heard that. If a superstar like this guy really joined a major organization in the game, then that would surely be going to become a headliner for the news networks of the game.

After all, his name was still a hot topic after all of the amazing feats that he did during the last Shadow Ranking Cup.

"So, it was a casual group. If that is what you are planning, then I don't have any problems with that," said Owen in a nonchalant manner.

He then took a brief pause and looked at Shin suspiciously before adding. "But if it happens to be a big organization that requires some long-term contracts, then let me say that 'pass' with that one."

"I'm sure that you know me. After all, we are quite the same. I don't plan to become tied with any organization. I prefer being free and moving without any restrictions."

Shin nodded his head after hearing all of those but still did not give up. "As I said, it is not what you are thinking. Though, you do need to sign a contract after joining."

"Here is the draft of that contract," he added while sending the contract that he drew earlier.

Owen wanted to reject the offer right after heard about the contract. But since they could still be considered as friends, he still took a brief look at the contract that Shin had sent as a sign of respect.

But didn't expect that he was going to get hooked the moment he saw what was written on the contract. In fact, his eyes were turning wider and wider the more he read the content of the said contract.

"Hey! Are you serious about this?" asked Owen right after reading the entire content.

He couldn't believe what he just read. It was as if the contract would never exist even if he signed it up right now.

There were very few restrictions in the contract. Aside from the phrase that was saying, 'every member needs to put the interest of the team as first priority before anything else', the other conditions written in the contract were too good to be true.

"Are you guys letting yourselves get scammed? What kind of contract is this?" asked Owen while shouting at Shin.

On the other hand, Shin just chuckled at him before answering. "This contract is only for the founding members of the Team. But if you want to sign this one, then you need to pass a specialized test we prepared first."

"But let me warn you, it is not going to be easy to pass those tests. After all, our judges are pretty troublesome to deal with."

"Moreover, this is an Adventurer Team that will only have trustable members. That is why we are going to invite some like-minded individuals like us. But most importantly, those members need to have a 'decent' strength first before being chosen."

"And if that chosen member still has a questionable loyalty, then they need to sign another contract with tighter restrictions than this one."

Hearing that, Owen finally able to have a sigh of relief before saying. "Let me see the other contract first."

Then Shin immediately complied after hearing that. And when Owen saw the new contract, he couldn't help but nod his head repeatedly.

This contract had a pretty harsh penalty after breaking it, but they were quite reasonable enough given the benefits that someone would get after joining the Team.

After that, Owen fell into deep thought. He was trying to consider whether he wanted to join or not.

He still wanted to stick to his philosophy and continued to become an unrestricted solo player. But for some unknown reason, his gut feeling was telling him to grab this opportunity no matter what.

On the other hand, Shin stayed silent as he was patiently waiting for Owen to come up with a decision.

Few more moments had passed and Owen finally had a decision after long contemplation. He looked at Shin with a determined face while asking. "You said that I need to pass a certain test to sign the first contract, right?"

He then took a brief pause before continuing. "Then let me finish off all of the things on my side before going there."

Hearing that, Shin's mouth suddenly curved into a huge grin before replying. "Thanks for choosing us. In exchange, I will make sure that this is going to be the best decision that you will have in your entire life."

Though, he was adding a few more words in his mind. 'But before that, I need you to suffer some hellish experience while taking the 'test' from those two.'

Chapter 462 Chaotic Luck

.....

Blind Abyss Empire

This place was the home turf of the Undying Guild. And as the name implied, it was obviously a dark empire where a lot of players with Undead Race stayed.

Moreover, there was also another dark race staying in this Empire which was not available to the other Kingdoms and Empire. And those races were the Shadow Elves and Demon Races.

There were also some red-tagged players who chose to live in this area. Because for a lawless place where chaos was the only rule, this place would surely be going to be a heaven for dark players who want nothing but cause discord.

The Undying Guild might be the known ruler of this place since they were controlling most of the places with a lot of resources, but it didn't mean there were no other superpowers that could contend with them in this area.

It just, the other powerhouses refused a meaningless loss just to take control over the places with a decent amount of resources. After all, the Undying Guild already put quite a lot of effort to garrison in this Empire. So, they would surely pay a heavy price if they want to share a slice from a big g pie.

But it was a completely different matter when it came to the newly discovered place which was suspected as an Ancient Ruin of a Fallen God.

And since the Central Order, another top Guild inside the game was willing to take the lead of the change, the other powerhouses would surely welcome such a wonderful opportunity.

The Central Order might be at a total disadvantage since this place was not their territory. But since they managed to buy some time for their reinforcement to arrive, the battle lasted longer than what the Undying Guild had expected.

Due to that, the people of the Central Order managed to redirect some of their most promising elites in this Empire to deal with the current situation.

At the same time, such a decision resulted in an all-out war between the two Major Powerhouses of the game. And alongside this, the other guilds who were eyeing some of the places with a lot of resources, took advantage of the current situation to make their moves.

Because of that, the Undying Guild put in a difficult spot where they needed to divide their attention in different places.

In the meantime, the small groups and some of the independent players also took advantage of the chaos to get some benefits from the places that they didn't dare to invade before. And since the Undying Guild had a lot on their plates already, they didn't have time to bother themselves with these small groups.

And right now, such a group was currently in the middle of a hunting chase.

"Hey! Hurry! We need to catch that guy as soon as possible! Or else, the boss will kill all of us later," said a player who was currently leading a group of players in a run.

From their body features, anyone would think that they were ordinary players with a common race at first glance. But upon a closer inspection, they were actually pretty much different from the other players.

They had very pale skin that made them look like a dead person. They had sharp eyes with crimson pupils that would make them intimidating whenever they were making a glare.

Their sharp fangs were slightly sticking out of their mouths every time they said something. They also had pointed nails that looked so sharp which was enough to become a weapon.

But the most noticeable feature that they had was the pair of pointed horns that were sticking out on their foreheads.

With that, it was already obvious which race they belong to. It was none other than the notorious race of Demons.

Since the Demon Race was able to invade the Atlas world for a long time, it was natural for them to leave their seeds in this world even if they were banished from here during the Repelling Era.

That was also the reason why some dark organizations like Corrupted Cult and Demonic Churches existed.

Though, the races under those organizations were only excited in dark continents such as The Blind Abyss Empire. After all, they were being hated by everyone.

Regardless, races like the Demon Race were still famous to a lot of players who were residing in the dark continents. Because the Demon Race was quite an overpowered race with a very few restrictions.

Aside from being weak to elemental power with a relation of light and holy elements, the Demon Race didn't have any other recommendations.

Given that, the Demon Race had their powers weakened during the day which made their stats equivalent to the common races. But when the night fell, they were going to have a huge boost in their powers that could make their stats comparable to higher-ranking races.

Due to this reason, the players with a Demon Race loved to stay in the Blind Abyss Empire where Sun never rises.

At the same time, there was also a hidden reward for a Demon Race Player if they were able to nurture their 'bloodlines' strong enough.

After nurturing their bloodlines with enough powers, or after finding a hidden class specialized for them, then they were able to evolve into a 'Greater Demon' who has a power that could rival the powers of a player with a special race and a hidden class.

And if they were lucky enough, then they could also reach the apex of the Demon Race and became a Demon Lord – a being that could rival the powers of 'Transcendent Races'.

Going back, the group of players with Demon Races was currently chasing a fellow player with the same race as them.

He was running as fast as he could while also waving his staff from time to time so that he could increase the distance between him and his pursuers.

On his other hand, he was tightly gripping a ragged scroll that was releasing a faint dark aura. Even an idiot could tell that it was not an ordinary scroll given the black smoke that it had on its surface.

"D*mn you, Chaotic Luck! Give that scroll back to us! Or else, you can forget about playing the game peacefully since we are going to hunt you down wherever you go!" shouted by the player who was leading the group.

On the other, the player that they were chasing who seemed to have the name of 'Chaotic Luck', just smirked at those words before muttering to himself. "In your dreams! I've risked my life repeatedly just to get this stupid scroll and you guys want me to hand it over to you?"

"I rather become a wanted person than to let you benefit from my hardships," he added as he continued to run.

Unfortunately, he immediately became cornered the moment he reached a dead end. It was a deep cliff with a river that had a raging current underneath.

Seeing that, Chaotic Luck took a couple of steps backward before turning his body around and planning to look for another way where he could escape onto.

But right after he turned around, he immediately discovered that he was already surrounded by his pursuers who were getting ready to cast their spells that could be sent at him at any given moment.

Realizing his current situation, Chaotic Luck tightened his grip on the scroll that he was holding before glaring at the leader of the opposing side who was standing a few meters away from him.

"What? Got tired of running?" asked the leader while wearing a mocking look at his face.

On the other hand, Chaotic Luck just remained silent and refused to reply while glaring continuously at the man in front of him.

Seeing that look on his face, the leader suddenly smirked before saying with a mocking tone. "What's with that look? Want to fight us? Come! I want to see you try."

Hearing that, Chaotic Luck took a quick glance at his skill bar and saw that all of his skills were greyed out; meaning, he had been silenced by the 'Occultists' from the opposing side.

Being cornered like this, Chaotic Luck had no other choice but to gamble everything. So, he formed a determined look on his face before raising the scroll that he was holding before saying with a mocking tone. "You want this, right? Then try and take it if you can."

After that, he immediately turned his body around before running towards the cliff in a decisive manner.

When the leader saw his actions, he immediately shouted at his subordinates while pointing at Chaotic Luck. "Hurry! Stop that guy no matter what!"

Hearing those commands, the other Demon Players quickly released the spells that they had cast earlier.

Swoosh! Swoosh! Swoosh!

With that, a barrage of spells started raining down at Chaotic Luck as he ran desperately towards the cliff as fast as he could. And while he was running, his right was suddenly tripped by a rock on the ground.

Due to that, he suddenly lost his footing and stumbled on the ground before rolling forward. But strange enough, he managed to dodge all of the spells that were flying towards him the moment he fell on the ground.

The players from the opposing side were all dumbfounded at the sight when they saw Chaotic Luck 'perfectly dodge' all of their attacks. And since they were too stunned at what they had witnessed, they all lost the chance to stop Chaotic Luck as he was already falling off the cliff by the end of his roll.

When the leader of the group saw that, he immediately came back to his senses and quickly shouted with all his might. "CHAOTIC LUCK!!!"

Chapter 463 Solaris Lich

.....

Hwa!

Miraculously, Chaotic Luck survived even after being swept away by the raging current of the river below the cliff. Though, he was still struggling to swim towards the edge of the river since he couldn't properly cast any spell due to the strong current.

Regardless, he was quite stubborn to tightly grip the scroll that caused this disaster. He bet his gaming life for this stupid scroll, so he would make sure that he could survive this predicament no matter what so that he could prevent the scroll from dropping in this flowing river.

Time passed and Chaotic Luck already forgot how long he was being pounded by the raging water current.

Then he suddenly felt that his body collided against a huge rock that almost made him unconscious.
"Ugh!"

But he still stubbornly held at the scroll in his hand while raising his other hand which was holding his staff. And unexpected only, he felt that he was being pulled by a strong force that was fighting against the current.

Opening his eyes, he discovered that each end of his staff was caught by a pair of huge rocks in the middle of the river. And when Chaotic Luck saw that, his eyes suddenly turned bright as he could finally see the hope to escape this current predicament.

Given that, he put all of his strength on his arm so that he could pull himself towards the huge rocks. And after a few more moments, his desperate struggle finally came to fruition. He finally managed to climb on top of the rock boulder which was standing strong despite being pounded repeatedly by the raging waves of the river.

Chaotic Luck was trying to catch his breath with great difficulty as he felt really exhausted after being swept by the powerful current of water.

A moment later, he raised the scroll on his hand before squeezing it very tightly while muttering to himself. "You better be a very important inheritance to prove your worth. Or else, all of my struggles and sufferings are going to be for naught."

Then he braced himself before opening the scroll very slowly to see its contents. And right after he did that, a very strong pressure was released from that scroll that even made the raging water current of the river to calmed down.

That state lasted for a couple of minutes before everything went back to normal.

Chaotic Luck was quite surprised at what just happened before he steeled himself to take a look at the contents of the scroll.

---

[Item Name]: Inheritance of the Lich King 'Scourge'

[Item Type]: Special Inheritance Item

[Item Rank]: ???

Historical Note: A scroll where the 'Lich King: Scourge' written all of his knowledge regarding a higher degree of Necromancy.

[Item Description]: Use this scroll to have a Class Conversion of 'Demonic Lich'.

---

[Requirements]: The user needed to have a race of 'Demonic Being'.

Reading the description of the scroll, Chaotic Luck's eyes suddenly turned wide as he felt overjoyed. "Finally! I got my own Hidden Class! All of those sufferings are not wasted!"

Now that he had an overpowered class of his own, he no longer needed to endure being taken advantage of by the players like the ones who were chasing him earlier.

Then a determined look was suddenly formed on his face before muttering to himself. "Just you wait Flame Ghost. I will make sure that you are going to pay back all of the humiliation that you gave me for all of those years."

After that, he ripped the scroll without any hesitation which made the dark aura surrounding it rush towards his body.

Chaotic Luck waited for quite a long time before that dark aura to assimilate with his body. And when he reopened his eyes right after the assimilation process, he immediately felt that he indeed became much stronger than before.

Clenching his hands, he gathered a decent amount of dark power on that hand before pointing it in the air. And immediately after that, a thin line of black light suddenly flew towards the air before exploding in the sky.

Chaotic Luck looked at that sight with an amazed expression on his face before wearing a satisfied smile. "So, this is the power of a hidden class."

Unfortunately, he still didn't have any kind of summons since there were some conditions that needed to be met before he could use them.

Regardless, he was still quite satisfied with what he currently had. So, he could finally have the time to take a look at his surroundings to know where he was.

With a wave of his hand, he was teleported to the edge of the river which was quite far from the huge rock boulder where he was standing previously.

Then he started walked forward where he saw the familiar ruins that he saw from television before. "This! Isn't this the Ancient Ruin that discovered by the Undying Guild? It is currently a hot topic in online forums."

"I wonder what they discover in this place to fore the Central Order to wage war with them," he added while looking at the ruins.

Due to his curiously, he decided to walk deeper into the ruins since he did find any members of the Undying Guild guarding the place.

Not long after, he arrived at an underground place where a huge hall that looked like a praying altar was located. And the moment he stepped into that place, he suddenly felt a heavy pressure that was pressing on his body and forcing him to fall on the ground.

Immediately after that, a sudden voice unexpectedly sounded from every direction.

[You have an insane amount of guts to step on my place, Demon.]

Chaotic Luck was knitting his eyebrows the moment he heard that voice. Because he seemed to have an idea of who was the owner of that voice. 'Don't tell me he is the fallen god that everyone was talking about?'

While he was still in the middle of his thoughts, the voice sounded once again. But this time, it seemed like the voice was slightly confused at what he saw.

[But you look so strange. You are definitely a Demon – but for some unknown reason, you don't have the evil scent unique to your kin.]

[Tell me, young Demon. Who really are you?]

Hearing that, Chaotic Luck knitted his eyebrows even further as he couldn't understand what the mysterious voice was talking about.

But before he could even give his reply, the voice sounded once again. And this time, it didn't want him to say anything else.

[Nope! That is not important anymore.]

[I am planning to wait a little longer until the destined person arrived in here. But from that looks of it, I am going to perish completely before he even manages to find me.]

[The spawns of the Demonic Gods finally noticed my existence, so my time is already running out.]

[But it seems like Heaven still hasn't abandoned me completely.]

Then Chaotic Luck suddenly felt a gaze locked at him before the voice said once again.

[Young Demon, who doesn't reek an evil scent, do you want to make a deal with a Fallen God like me?]

Chaotic Luck didn't know how to respond to that question as he was too stunned to talk due to the unexpected confirmation that he got.

But even if that was the case, he still nodded his head repeatedly as he didn't want to let such a rare opportunity slipped away from his hands. And when the owner of the voice saw that, he seemed to nod his head before saying.

[Don't worry, Young Demon. I'm sure that you will not regret this decision in your entire life.]

[All you have to do was to follow my instructions and this power that I will grant you is going to be yours forever.]

*DING!*

After that, a series of system notifications suddenly sounded at Chaotic Luck's ears right after the mysterious voice said those words.

System: You are making a deal with a Fallen God.

System: An unbreakable contract was initiated.

System: An SSS rank Quest was initiated.

System:

-The Fallen God Solus is being hunted down by a Great Demonic God and his existence is being at risk.

He is asking you to protect him from the spawns of the Demonic God until the destined person arrived to free him from his shackles so that he can be reborn as an entirely new being.

In exchange, he will grant you a portion of his power to make you even stronger.

*Ding!*

System: A special power detected!

System: The special power is coming in conflict with your inheritance.

System: The Special Powers is stronger than your Inheritance. Your class is being affected by the new foreign powers.

*Ding!*

System: Your Inheritance and the Special Powers are fusing together.

System: You have unlocked a new Class unique to you – the 'Solaris Lich'. Do you want to confirm it?

After the long series of notifications, Chaotic Luck's attention was only fixed at the final notification that he got. And without any hesitation, he hit the accept button with an excited look on his face.

Immediately after that, Chaotic Luck felt a new form of power entering his body and changing his physical features.

Not long after, he became an entirely new being that neither a demon nor a human.

He still had the physical features of a human. But he could still feel the powerful strength that was unique to demons.

At the same time, his pale skin turned a little more human-like. But his eyes still remained crimson while the pair of horns on his forehead was still present.

On the other hand, his staff turned into a blazing scepter with a glowing sphere on its tip that looked like a sun.

After his transformation, Chaotic Luck felt that it was impossible for him to lose against anyone due to the inexplicable powers hiding inside his body.

Due to the overflowing confidence that he was currently feeling, he couldn't help but smirk a little before muttering to himself. "Now, I want to see all of those bastards that dare to mock me before."

Chapter 464 Arriving At The Blind Abyss Empire

.....

,m Bang!

Shin and his gang kind another bunch of dark players who were a local of the Blind Abyss Empire.

He has been hunting both monster and dark players since he arrived in this place as he made his way towards the said Ancient Ruins which was recently discovered by the Undying Guild.

Based on the information that Shin got from the Assassin Union, the Ancient Ruins was located in the center of the Blind Abyss Empire which was also near its capital city; Death City – which was most commonly known as the City of the Dead.

Death City was known as that name because it was a lawless place where anyone could do whatever they want. Killing, robbing, and any other evil deeds were 'legal' in this City.

The crime rate in this City was quite high which even reached the point where most of the players residing in the Death City refused to use the Teleportation Hall of the City.

Because whoever wanted to use the teleportation formation was either going to get robbed by the strong players waiting in the City Plaza that place or were going to be killed by the peak experts who could kill the latter group in an instant.

Either way, the outcome of both cases was practically the same. And that was getting killed by either group of players.

At the same time, the Teleportation Hall also became a symbol of power within the City. Whoever had the guts to use such a convenient form of transportation could either be a very strong individual or a member of a powerful Guild.

But that didn't mean that those players were exempted from getting robbed. After all, there was always been a dumb group of people who were blinded by their greed in whichever part of the world. So, they would always be trying to 'test' the strengths of the players who were coming out of the Teleportation Hall.

Shin didn't have any idea about this matter. So, he just blindly teleported to the Death City right after he arrived at the bordering city of the Blind Abyss Empire.

Given that, he was quite surprised when he was suddenly being besieged by a large group of players right after he walked out of the Teleportation Hall.

At first, he thought that he unexpectedly exposed himself that he didn't come from this Empire. After all, it was the most logical reason why he suddenly got attacked by a group of players right after he arrived in this place.

But he also immediately discovered that it wasn't the case. Because when he swept his eyes in his surroundings, he discovered that whoever got out from the Teleportation Hall was also being attacked by another group of players.

So, Shin thought that it might be a local custom of the city to 'welcome' the players who were coming to visit this place.

Regardless, Shin didn't dare to underestimate his opponents and decided to not hold himself back. But at the same time, he was also not planning to attract a lot of attention since one of his mortal enemies was the current ruler of this place.

Having that in mind, Shin quickly showed one of the tricks that he mastered from the special training that he got.

'Extra Skill: Sensing Circle'

Shin expanded the range of his senses which led to one of his skills being activated. But unlike before, he now had full control of this 'territorial skill'.

Since the time he came back in the game, he immediately made some experiments with some of his skills to make himself familiar with the virtual world once again.

But to his surprise, the new update of the game made it easier for him to assimilate himself with the environment of the game. And because of that, applying the things that he learned from the Real World became much easier compared to the last time he played the game.

After learning about the 'False Territory' and 'Focal Points' from Professor Plum and also learning the trick of 'separating the mind from the body' from Grandmaster Benn, Shin was able to create a new trick of his own where those skills were combined into one.

He could create a 'False Territory' using his Martial-Arts and Battle Instincts while also using his Mental Energy and Mentalism Sense at the same time so that he could clearly read the trajectories of the attacks which were coming his way.

And due to this trick, Shin was able to perceive everything within his 'False Territory' – and so, he named it as simple as the 'Zone'.

So, since his skill inside the game called the 'Sensing Circle' was practically the same as his 'Zone' in the real world, using such in-game skill became as easy as flipping his hand.

Given that, Shin was able to sense all of the movements within the range of his 'Sensing Circle'. And after reading the trajectories of the incoming attacks, he started moving his body according to what he sensed.

He started walking forward with a calm expression while also dodging all of the attacks with a series of simple moments.

Moving from side to side, taking a slight step backward, striding forward, doing a quick spin, or tilting his head towards the most optimal direction.

He didn't bother to draw his sword from its sheath, but he still managed to avoid everything with all of those simple movements. And since he had the lesser form of 'Ultra Instincts' inside this game, dodging a simple attack such as these became a child's play for him.

But what stunned his assailants the most was the speed of how he executed all of those moments. The process was seemingly a long series of events – but in fact, it only took almost an instant for Shin to execute all of those.

For veteran 'hunters' such as themselves, ambushing a peak expert became a daily basis for them. That was why they were executing a perfectly formulated plan just to take down their targets.

But their perfectly linked attacks didn't even manage to graze the body of this particular guy. Moreover, he even leisurely walked away from the scene as if nothing had happened.

The leader of the group was even more shocked compared to the others since he also activated a 'Silencing Domain Skill' to prevent their target from using any kind of movement skill.

Meaning, what he just witnessed was a series of pure physical movements!

On the other hand, Shin just left the place, not caring about the state of their minds.

But after that incident, Shin still didn't expect that the local customs on this place were quite 'convenient'. All sorts of criminal deeds seemed to be all legal in this Empire.

He was repeatedly being ambushed no matter where he was in, and all of those attacks were done with no apparent reason aside from planning to rob him.

He planned to ignore them since they didn't pose any kind of threat to him. But after realizing that it was impossible to ignore the seemingly never-ending attacks, he decided to rob all of his assailants instead. So, whoever tried to rob him would always be going home naked in return.

Due to that, no one dared to attack him within the vicinity of the Death City anymore. And that gave Shin a peaceful time to look for the Ancient Ruins in the controlled territory of the Undying Guild.

But since he was enemies with the said Guild in the first place, he decided to start hunting their members along with the Demonic and Corrupted Monsters along the way.

And since the Undying Guild was currently in an all-out war with the Central Order, every Undying Guild member that he attacked thought that he was from the latter group. So, everything became favorable for him without paying any kind of heavy consequence in return.

"Master, can we stay in this place for as long as we can? I really like staying here," said Grimrace as he absorbed the dark aura from the Demonic Monster that he just killed.

He was currently acting respectful to Shin because of the abundance of dark energy in this area. At the same time, he was also afraid that he was going to be sent into the pet's dimensional space if he ever provoked Shin accidentally.

On the other hand, Shin didn't care much about it. As long as Grimrace was doing his job right, then he was going to let him do whatever he wanted.

Meanwhile, Vladimir was still stuck with his narcissistic attitude. He was calling the whole region a filthy place, so he was refusing to set foot on the ground even for a moment.

But after learning that there were a lot of Demonic Beings in this place, he immediately volunteered to kill every last one of them no matter if they were a player or a monster.

In the meantime, Hanzo was shaking his head helplessly after seeing the 'over energetic' pair when doing their respective jobs.

Then he turned his head at Shin who was currently immersed in the virtual map right in front of him. "How was it? Are we still far from our target location?"

Shin didn't reply to him immediately since he was still busy finding the exact location of the Ancient Ruins. He got the information about the major region where the Ruins were probably located.

But since the Undying Guild and Central Order pulled the strings behind the scene, they were able to hide the exact location of the Ancient Ruins from the public.

So, all Shin could do was to follow the tracks left from the battles of the Undying Guild and Central Order. And using all of the information that he got so far, he now had the major idea where the exact location of the Ancient Ruins was located.

Given that, he tapped a certain place on the virtual map and marked it before muttering to himself. "I finally found you."

He then raised his head and turned it towards the direction that he marked on the virtual map before giving out an order. "Alright, boys! Wrap everything up. We finally found our target."

Right after said those words, his Elemental Spirits immediately cleaned the battlefield before positioning themselves right behind Shin.

And when Shin waved his hand after mounting on Whitie's back, all of them simultaneously transformed into different streaks of light which immediately rushed towards the direction that Shin was pointing at.

Chapter 465 The Chaos That Leads To A Series Of Misunderstandings

.....

The things in Blind Abyss Empire were still as 'lively' as ever.

The ongoing war between the two hegemons, the Undying Guild and Central Order were still at its peak.

The state of the battle was still in a total stalemate where neither side was refusing to back down nor to hand the Ancient Ruins to the other.

The Undying Guild might have the upper hand on this war but since they were also dealing with the other guilds that were eyeing their other territories, the armies were forced to be divided on every part of the Blind Abyss Empire where their most important territories were located.

But this was not the only thing that was being discussed in the online forums of the game.

Because there was still a pair of news that was attracting the attention of every playing of the Blind Abyss Empire.

The first one was a rumor regarding a 'special NPC' inside the Ancient Ruins where the Undying Guild and Central Order were currently fighting. And this 'NPC' was so strong that even some of the elite forces of the two Super Guilds couldn't do anything about it.

The first group who managed to discover this 'NPC' was completely wiped out and no one managed to properly gauge its strength.

Given that, both the Undying Guild and Central Order respectively sent a group of experts in their arsenal to confirm the report that they got. And what they discovered after that shook both of the parties.

The said 'NPC' was really strong – not only it could summon a group of powerful undead monsters but it could also turn the corpses of its victims into demonic monsters who had a battle capability that was on par with the strong experts of the guild.

That ability was pretty much the same as the legacies received by every member of the Undying Guild. But there was something that made each of its summons special. Some of the undead and demonic summons of the said 'NPC' seemed to have a little bit of sanity – meaning, each of the summons was rumored to have a mind of their own.

But that was not the most problematic thing being dealt with by the Undying Guild and Central Order. Because this particular 'NPC' also had another ability which made it a scary being.

Aside from having insanely strong monster summons, this 'NPC' also had the ability to wield the holy powers of the Sun – which was supposedly the bane of all undead and demonic beings.

The said 'NPC' had a bunch of powerful spells that could even wipe a whole group of elite players in an instant.

But what made it even worse, the summoned undead and demonic monsters became immune to almost all kinds of holy powers due to that particular power of the said 'NPC'.

If the Undying Guild and Central Order were only going to deal with the monster summons, then they could still think of a way to defeat this problematic 'NPC'.

After all, the Undying Guild specialized in summoning Undead and Demonic Monsters, so they would obviously have a way to counter power monsters with the same nature. Especially that there were no other types of monsters that could be hunted in the Blind Abyss Empire aside from the Undead and Demonic Monsters.

Given that, they obviously had a way to counter such monsters as it was their daily routine.

On the other hand, the Central Order would naturally have a way to counter such monsters. After all, they were currently dealing with the Undying Guild who was a master of undead summoning itself.

So, they would surely have a special card on their sleeves to fight against the summons of their rivals.

But unfortunately for these two groups, they actually find their current nemesis in the form of this particular 'NPC'.

Since the summons of the 'NPC' were immune to most of the Holy Powers, all of them practically had no weakness which made the Central Order pretty much helpless.

And since the 'NPC' itself was wielding a specialized Power of the Sun, the members of the Undying Guild had no choice to back down and not dare to bother this 'NPC' anymore.

Given those, both the Undying Guild and Central Order gave up on defeating this particular 'NPC' for the time being. Or at least let it live until the current Army Commander of the respective Guilds freed themselves from keeping their rivals in check.

After all, those two were both Godlike Players who were only two steps behind the Peak Gods of the game.

If that news was already shocking, then the other hot topic in the online forums was even more crazy than it.

After all, it was an 'NPC' so it was natural for it to be that powerful where both the Super Guilds gave up on taking it down.

But the news after that was much crazier than what every player could expect.

There was a rumor saying that there was a 'group' of strong players who dared to hunt down each member of the Undying Guild while the war was still going on.

Hunting down the members of a powerful guild was not big news to every veteran player since it was a usual strategy used by some strong experts to seek revenge on their enemies. But hunting those members in their own turf was a completely different matter.

It was a complete disrespect which was no different than peeing them on their face. So, the Undying Guild would naturally not willing to suffer this kind of total humiliation.

They mobilized one of their standby armies and sent it to the location where the said 'group of players' was last seen.

But not long after they sent that army, a report was immediately sent back at their headquarters and was asking for immediate reinforcement.

Hearing that, the Headquarters would naturally doubt such a ridiculous report at first. And due to that doubt, a second report was immediately delivered. And what was written on it shook the command center to its core.

– "The entire army was completely wiped out." –

That particular report made the command center of the Undying Guild to panic a little and immediately reported it to their higher-ups.

Such a report even alerted the 'Apostles' of their Guild Master – because such a feat could only be done by a particular type of a player.

An 'elite group' of Godlike Players appeared at the Blind Abyss Empire! And they were currently hunting the members of the Undying Guild!

This news was somehow leaked in the public – or more precisely, purposely leaked by the spies planted within the inner circle of the Undying Guild.

And due to that, chaos immediately followed that particular news.

Since such a powerful 'group' of players made themselves known, the Undying Guild would naturally be going to send some of their top experts to deal with them. And because of that, the other powerful guilds would naturally have time to start mobilizing their armies to proceed to the next plan of their plans.

Naturally, the Central Order would also get the wind of such big news. And that was why they immediately hastened their assaults to put more pressure on the opposing side.

After all, an opportunity like this was pretty hard to come by, so they were going to make sure that the Undying Guild would not have time to properly recover.

In an instant, the Undying Guild was suddenly besieged on all sides by different enemies. And that news made the higher-ups of the guild become furious. Even the Apostles of Immortal volunteered themselves to be sent into different battlefields so that they could humor these 'opportunists' why they were the rulers of this land.

Such a rippling effect would naturally be going to make the Central Order the major suspect who secretly pulled a string behind the scene. After all, they were currently at war with the Undying Guild – so doing such a move was definitely going to be reasonable as it was a perfect misdirection move in the art of war.

Moreover, they were currently the only ones who were most likely going to spend such manpower just to redirect the attention of the Undying Guild.

But the Central Order refused to admit those accusations. Even though no one believed their excuses.

But not long after, they were able to 'prove' their innocence when a particular battle video was released in the public. It was the entire battle between the 'mysterious group' and the army sent by the Undying Guild.

And that particular video shocked every player of the Blind Abyss Empire even more. Because the group was totally outnumbered when they were facing the hundreds of players from the Undying Guild.

The mysterious group only had four members in total... no... it actually five including the powerful white tiger pet of a 'member' of the group.

But the strange thing, the other three members of the group were seemingly not a player at all. They looked more of a summon than a player.

One of the members was a strange man in green butler's clothes. There was a ruffle collar around his neck which gave the impression that he was a clown.

His eyes were crimson red as a cloud of black smoke was being released from his body. There were a bunch of floating daggers around him that were flying towards his enemies with a single thought.

And what made him even more strange was his habit of dancing with every victim of his daggers who died after being stabbed multiple times. Taking a closer look at him, he seemed to be sucking particular energy from their corpses before throwing them on the ground like some sort of trash.

Meanwhile, the next member of the group was also quite strange compared to normal people. His skin was too pale to be considered as someone from the Human Race and quite lively compared to the players with Undead Race.

Regardless, he was also quite handsome which made him look like a noble figure. Especially with his long silver hair along with the western-style outfit that he was wearing.

There was also a pair of huge crimson wings on his back while there was a rapier sword on his hand which was seemingly made from blood.

He was hovering in the air aloof expression on his face as if he was a sovereign who was coldly looking down on his subjects. And with every swing of his sword, a crescent wave with crimson color was going to be sent towards the members of the Undying Guild right below him.

On the other hand, the third member was also a strange humanoid creature due to his purple skin. He seemed to be an old man due to his long mustache with white color. His head was also pulled of white hair as they were tied into a long ponytail like an ancient person.

His outfit was also quite unusual as it looked like the outfits of the ninjas of ancient times. The weapon on his hand was also a little strange as it was a double-headed halberd with each blade facing in a different direction.

This particular old man was much scarier compared to the previous two. Because despite holding a weapon in his hand, he was actually not moving for an inch.

He just stood on his body with closed eyes and crossed arms behind his back with his weapon in hand. But despite doing nothing, every player around him was dying due to being sliced by something that couldn't be seen.

And due to that sight, no one dared to get near that old man no matter how loud their superiors shouted at them.

And last but not the least, the last and final member of this group who was the 'closest' one to be a real player.

No one could clearly see his real features due to the strange cloak that he was wearing. But most of the players who were watching the battle video all had a slight guess on who it was.

It was because of his cloak which was very unique to a certain guy who also shook the virtual gaming world just recently. Especially with the black feathers attached to that very cloak that he was wearing.

"The Nameless Swordsman!"

No... he should be known now as...

"The Angel of Death!"

The players of the Blind Abyss Empire were all shocked right after realizing the identity of the man who was currently slaughtering his enemies in the field. But at the same time, they were also quite confused as to why he was provoking a Powerhouse Guild such as the Undying Guild.

But that was really important right now. Because the thing that shocked them the most was the current battle prowess that he was showing in this current battle.

Pretty much the same as the old man earlier, not everyone could clearly see how he was attacking.

From the perspective of most of the players watching the battle video, what they saw was Shin walking casually in the middle of the battle brushing past every enemy who dared to attack him at the same time.

Not a single skill or spell managed to touch his body, but every person that he passed through died by being cut by something that they didn't see.

Such sight made the viewers have an intense shiver that ran through their backs as they could clearly see how much of a monster this guy had become in such a short period of time.

Then not long after, another shocking news spread across the viewers who saw the battle video. The other three people who were fighting alongside Shin were all actually his summons!

Meaning, he practically wiped out the entire army sent by the Undying Guild 'all by himself'!

And such news led everyone towards a single conclusion. – "The 'Angel of Death' is here to use his Godly Challenge Right!" –

And the target of that challenge was pretty much obvious!

Provoking the entire Undying Guild was the same as provoking its Guild Leader, which meant that the 'Angel of Death' was currently challenging the 'Lich God, Immortal'!

Chapter 466 The Grim Reaper And The Solaris Lich

...

Shin was currently in a very good mood since the time he logged back in the game. He even started to like the new update of the game. Because not only he could properly move his virtual body, but he could also perceive his surroundings more clearly.

He was not sure if it was due to the new things and tricks that he learned from the real world or if it really was because of the hidden update that game had, but Shin was sure that he could easily manipulate the Mana inside his body as well as the Elemental Mana from his surroundings.

Due to all of these, Shin was able to execute his skills more properly. His skill execution percentage was also quite high right now – which meant, his skills could deal an even more devastating damage than before.

At the same time, he also felt that he could create a lot of skills right now. Unfortunately, Shin was aware that he could only create ten skills at most. So, he couldn't blindly create a skill whenever he wanted.

Regardless, he still created a single skill based on the Awakening Skill that he currently had.

---

Skill Name: Eclipse Stance (Passive)

Skill Rank: Special (Awakening Skill)

Details: After you put your sword back to its sheath, you will gain a Super Armor that will reduce all of that damage dealt with you by 50% and also give you immunity protection against any type of CC-skills (Grappling Skills excluded).

Duration: 2 seconds after sheathing the sword

Cooldown: 5 seconds after sheathing the sword

---

This skill was one hell of an overpowered skill if used properly. The only problem with this skill was he didn't have the right time to showcase its defensive capabilities.

Using this skill as an inspiration, Shin created a skill that was practically the counterpart of this skill. Before heading here in the Blind Abyss Empire.

---

Self-Create Skill

Skill Name: Twin Dragon Dance (Passive)

Skill Rank: Special

Details: Whenever you put your sword back on its sheath, you will gain an additional boost on your attack speed – Twice as our current attack speed.

Duration: 2 seconds after sheathing the sword

Cooldown: 5 seconds after sheathing the sword

Note: This skill doesn't overlap with your other offensive sword-drawing skills.

---

Shin spent quite a lot of time creating this skill. And the fruits of his hard work were shown when he was dealing with his opponents earlier.

Whenever he was brushing past an opponent during his previous battles, he would always be throwing a sword-drawing attack alongside his moments.

Even if the first strike was only a basic attack, the next few moves following it were either a strong offensive skill or a sure kill skill such as 'Flash of Life' which reset its cooldown every time he successfully executed someone with that skill.

...

Currently, Shin was unaware of the misunderstandings that he created online. But he was sure that he really provoked a hornet's nest since a lot of Undying Guild members were hunting him down. Some of the groups that he encountered were even composed of strong elites which gave him quite a number of troubles.

But thanks to the repeated appearance of the Undying Guild members, Shin was able to pinpoint the exact location of the Ancient Ruins.

At this point in time, Shin was currently standing on top of a mountain where he could clearly see the ongoing war between the Undying Guild and Central Order.

"So, this is how a war between Powerhouses looks like. It really is a lively place," muttered Shin to himself after seeing the chaotic battlefield.

Shin could clearly see the flames of war from the place that he was in. The two sides were clearly not showing any intention of backing down. The members of the Central Order were repeatedly attacking the wall of defense that the Undying Guild had created while the latter group was holding their ground for as long as they could.

Shin stayed on that mountain to observe the progress of the war, before deciding to leave after learning that both sides were practically still on equal grounds.

This time Shin decided to unsummon his Elemental Spirits and pet since it was easier to sneak inside alone. And that was why he was all by himself right now.

At first, he thought that it was better to use Hanzo's dimensional ability to teleport inside the ruins since it was more convenient and much easier to sneak inside that way.

Unfortunately, Hanzo discovered that there was a powerful formation protecting the Ancient Ruins so he couldn't just invade it using his dimensional powers. At least, not with his current strength.

Due to that, Shin had no choice but to sneak in there alone.

Fortunately, getting inside was much easier than he was expecting. Maybe it was because the people who were supposedly guarding the place were mobilized to join the ongoing battle right in front of the Ancient Ruins.

But unknown to him, the real reason why there were no people guarding this place was because of the so-called 'NPC' who was guarding the entrance towards the deeper part of the Ruins.

Because of this, Shin was able to go deeper inside the Ancient Ruins without encountering any kind of hindrances.

Though, it was only until he reached a certain part of the ruins where he could feel a powerful presence waiting inside.

"I don't have time to deal with you right now. So, I suggest you turn around right now and go back to where you come from. That way, both of us can avoid wasting each other's time."

Those words were the first thing that Shin heard right after he stepped inside a certain hall.

He knitted his eyebrows as he felt that those words came from an 'NPC'. But at the same time, he was also feeling that it was not the case given the choice of words and the tone of voice of the speaker.

And his suspicion was proven further the moment he saw who was the person who talked to him.

Anyone would think that it was an 'NPC' at first glance, especially with the unique features that this person had. It was the same for the strong aura that was coming from his body.

But for Shin who already saw quite a lot of NPC figures, such a façade was ineffective to him. Moreover, he could also sense that this guy's presence was much weaker compared to a real NPC.

To make sure that he was not wrong, Shin channeled a part of his mana on both of his eyes to activate his ocular skill.

'Extra Skill: True Sight'

Right after he activated that skill, Shin was able to see what the ordinary players couldn't.

---

Player's Name: Chaotic Luck

Level: 125

Race: ??? (Strange Hybrid)

Class:

-Main: Solaris Lich

-Sub: None:

Affiliation:

-Guild: None

-Adventurer Team: None

---

Shin couldn't help but raise his eyebrows a little after seeing the basic details of the man standing not far from him. 'An unknown race and a class with a strange name? It looks like this guy is not that simple either.'

At the same time, Chaotic Luck was also seizing up Shin with his own ocular skill that he recently got right after his class conversion.

But when he learned that he couldn't see even the basic details about Shin, his body suddenly became tense as he could easily tell that this man in front of him was on a completely different level compared to the other players that he faced so far.

After a brief moment of silence, Shin finally opened his mouth to say something. "I'm sorry, but I need to go in that place behind you since I have some business there."

Hearing that, Chaotic Luck finally came back to his senses before replying at Shin. "Then let me apologize too. I can't let you go beyond this place since my current job is to prevent anyone from going further."

"Then no hard feelings, alright? Both of us are just doing our respective jobs," said Shin before starting to walk forward.

On the other hand, Chaotic Luck immediately tapped the bottom of his scepter on the ground while channeling his mana on it.

Boom!

Immediately after that, a group of strange undead monsters started crawling out from the ground before assuming their respective battle positions right after being summoned.

Shin slightly halted his steps the moment he saw those monsters. Especially when he saw their basic details through his 'True Sight' skill. "Undead Monsters who are immune to holy powers? Interesting!"

Then he raised his head a little before saying to Chaotic Luck. "Want to compete with numbers? I might lose quantity but I can't say about quality."

The moment he said those words, he immediately waved his hand in the air summoning all of his summons.

Hanzo, Vladimir, and Grimrace appeared beside Shin before releasing their powerful auras. And alongside them, both Whitie and Blackie stood behind the group while releasing an aggressive growl.

But that was not all.

Because Shin also used the 'Spirit Release Equipment Skill' attached to his mask at the same time, summoning the Sun and Moon Clones. And together with it, he also activated the 'Phantom Apparition Skill' to summon his 'Phantom Clone'.

And when his gang was finally complete, Shin formed a huge grin behind his mask before saying with a calm yet excited tone. "Let's see which group is going to emerge victoriously."

Chapter 467 The Grim Reaper And The Solaris Lich (Part 2)

...

Chaotic Luck was currently wearing a solemn look on his face because he could feel the unbearable pressure coming from the bodies of the opposing group across him.

He might have a powerful class that could suppress the majority of the players of the game. But he knew for himself that he was not as strong as the real experts of the game. His battle capabilities were at most above the average rank players.

If not for his overpowered skills and unrivaled summons, then he was sure that he could stand a chance against the enemies that he faced so far.

But now that he was facing a real expert, he started to doubt his own battle capabilities if he really could stand against someone on this level.

But at the same time, he was also feeling quite excited since he could now see how large the gap between him and a strong expert just like this guy in front of him.

Having that in mind, he didn't wait any longer and quickly waved his hand to command his summons. And right after his orders left his mouth, his undead summons immediately responded with his words and started rushing towards Shin and his gang.

There was a group of gigantic monsters among the ranks of Chaotic Luck's summons. There was a leading pair of such monsters at the forefront of the charging undead monsters. And those monsters suddenly leaped forward right after they reached a certain distance away from Shin and the others.

Given their sizes alongside the powerful force behind their charge, anyone would surely be going to get crushed the moment they collided with them.

Unfortunately, an invisible power suddenly passed through their bodies while they were still flying in the air. Then their charging speed suddenly decreased drastically, all the way until they fell on the ground right after their bodies were vertically cleaved into two equal parts.

Hanzo was hovering in the air, right above those two undead monsters with huge sizes. The twin rings made of runes were rotating behind him, signifying that he was currently in his 'Dimensional Traveler' form.

Then he drew a horizontal line in the air with a wave of his hand which led for a spatial tear to appear right in front of him. And whenever an undead monster came in contact with it, they were either going to get torn apart or die due to the unbearable shock.

Since Shin got back in the game, Hanzo and the other two Elemental Spirits also regain a partial part of their original strengths.

Maybe it was because of Shin being able to sense the different energies in his surroundings after all of the training that he did in the real world. And due to that, he was also able to sense the surrounding Elemental Mana right after he went back in the game.

Because of that, he was able to easily control the Elemental Mana which also led for his Elemental Spirits to have more access to the surrounding mana that they needed.

And now that Hanzo was able to wield more Elemental Mana, he was quite eager to give it a try right now since they finally found a good matchup after Shin came back in the game.

Given that, Hanzo disappeared and reappeared repeatedly on the battlefield, killing all of the strange undead monsters that he encountered.

Meanwhile, Vladimir and Grimrake were pretty much doing the same thing as him. They were also using their 'Blood Sovereign' and 'Yaksha Transformation' respectively to slaughter all of the undead monsters who dared to charge at them.

On the other hand, Whitie and Blackie were working with Shin's clones to also take down as many undead monsters as they could.

At the same time, our main characters in this battle were not caring about much about the ongoing chaos on the battlefield.

Chaotic Luck fixed his eyes at Shin and Shin only, not daring to take his sight of him. He was afraid that he would lose his life the moment he lost sight of Shin for even a second.

In the meantime, Shin was currently in a very calm state while walking in the middle of the battlefield leisurely. It was as if he couldn't see the chaotic battles happening around him as he walked straight towards Chaotic Luck.

From time to time, there was an undead monster who would notice his presence before pouncing at him in a very aggressive manner.

But they would always miss their target no matter how hard they tried. Shin was always turning into a blur before they could even hit him which also led them to hit nothing but air.

And when Chaotic Luck saw all of that, the current pressure that he currently feeling became even more intense as he started to realized that he couldn't see the gap between their strengths.

In the very next, Chaotic Luck just took a split-second moment to blink his eyes yet he suddenly discovered that Shin was already standing right in front of him the moment he reopened his eyes.

The signature mask that Shin was wearing even gave him the creeps right after it greeted him when he reopened his eyes. And due to that, he unconsciously took a slight step backward, planning to move away from Shin.

But Shin had no plan of letting him go, he immediately put his hand on the hilt of his sword and was planning to execute the 'Quick Draw' skill to end this battle as soon as possible.

Shing!

But too much of his surprise, Chaotic Luck was seemingly able to see through his movements and successfully dodged his sword-drawing skill which killed a lot of experts already.

But unknown to him, that moment was only a coincidence.

When Chaotic Luck was trying to move away from Shin, he suddenly stepped upon a rock which led him to lose his balance. And because of that, he was unable to stand properly and started falling backward.

Due to that accident, Chaotic Luck was able to avoid getting hit by Shin's sword with a very small margin.

Shin just overlooked what happened and quickly twisted his wrist to change the trajectory of his sword. With a very slight movement, Shin was able to change the upward motion of his sword into a powerful swing downwards.

'Extra Skill: Destructive Slash'

At the same time, Chaotic Luck was also doing his best to regain his balance since he knew that he was going to get screwed if ever he got hit by that incoming strike.

But no matter how hard he tried to think, the most optimal solution that he could come up with was to throw a counterattack of his own.

So, he immediately channeled the power of the Sun on his staff, planning to send a fireball at a point-blank range.

But Shin was still a lot faster than him. What's more, he also made his move much earlier than Chaotic Luck which meant that the latter was already too late to make his move.

Chaotic Luck was already aware of that when he saw that the edge of Shin's sword was already reaching him before his spell could even get completed.

Seeing that, Chaotic Luck panicked a little which made a mess of his concentration. And due to that, the balance of mana on his spell was suddenly broken and led into chaos.

Bang!

At the same time, a combustion was suddenly occurred because of the broken balance. And that explosion of the failed spell sent Chaotic Luck crashing on the ground while Shin was forced to move away after getting hit by such an explosion in a point-blank range.

Fortunately, Shin's battle physique gave him a very high resistance against fire-related elements. And due to that, Shin suffered very little damage from the previous explosion.

Regardless, Shin was still confused at what happened. He didn't know if what happened was intentional or an accident which was why he started to re-evaluate his current opponent.

His previous moves were perfectly linked with each other, so he misunderstood that Chaotic Luck did his previous moves to counter his attacks.

But he was still not sure yet. Because he could still spot some awkward movements from his previous moves. So, he was planning to test the waters a little before making his final conclusion.

But before he could make a move, something attracted his attention.

On the other hand, Chaotic Luck was slightly struggling to get back on his feet. Not because he suffered any kind of harm from the previous explosion. After all, every player of this game was immune to their own skills or spell.

He was having a hard time getting back on his feet because of the shock that his body received after being slammed on the ground.

After getting regaining his footing, he immediately raised his head and looked at Shin cautiously before casting a couple of consecutive blinks to get away from Shin. And when he was doing that, he was expecting that his opponent was going to attack him since he was currently in his most vulnerable state.

But contrary to what he was expecting, Shin didn't chase after him. He just stood in his spot while looking in a certain direction.

Being confused with the current situation, Chaotic Luck also turned his head in the direction where Shin was looking at. And that was when he heard the familiar voice coming from that very direction.

[You finally arrived, Destined One.]

[I've waited long enough. So, will you please come inside.]

Chapter 468 Ancient God Solus (Part 1)

...

[I've waited for a long time already. So, please enter, Descendant of Zheptus]

Shin was confused at first after hearing that voice. But when he heard the latter part of what the strange voice had said, he became sure that those words were directed to him. Especially when he heard the name 'Zheptus' at the end of the phase.

Regardless, he still didn't let his guard down. After all, he was still facing a quite strange and troublesome fellow.

But too much of his surprise, Chaotic Luck immediately ordered all of his summonses to cease their attacks.

Shin knitted his eyebrows for a moment before realizing what was currently happening. 'So, this guy was actually given a quest to protect whatever is inside?'

Given that, Shin immediately waved his hand in the air, unsummoning his entire group. Well, aside from Hanzo. After all, that old dude was someone from Ancient times, so he might have an idea of what kind of being was the owner of the strange voice.

Meanwhile, Chaotic Luck was currently having a sigh of relief. 'Good Gods! So, I don't have to fight this monstrous guy anymore! I should thank that strange god later for saving my *ss.'

After that, he gestured at Shin to come inside while giving Chaotic Luck a deep bow.

On the other hand, Shin nodded his head and returned the bow before entering the deeper part of the ruins and leaving Chaotic Luck to guard the entrance.

After entering, Shin walked along a long corridor which led him to a spacious hall. That hall was quite empty. Aside from the huge columns which were supporting the concrete ceiling that was full of cracks, nothing could be found in there.

Shin observed the spacious hall all the way he arrived in front of the wall right across the corridor where he came from.

There was a huge familiar symbol engraved on that wall which further proved Shin's current theory. "So, it is true. This place is indeed related to the Sun God."

[You are right about that, descendant of Zheptus.]

The strange voice sounded once again while he was still in the middle of his thoughts. And since those words were too sudden, both Shin and Hanzo couldn't help but assume their battle positions.

Seeing their actions, the owner of the mysterious words chuckled a little before saying at the two. [At ease, descendant of Zheptus and Ancient Void Spirit. I am not your enemy.]

Even if Shin couldn't feel any hostility from those words, he still didn't dare to lower his guard. "How about you show yourself first so that we can have a proper introduction, Senior?"

Despite having disrespected by those words, the owner of the mysterious voice didn't take any offense. Instead, it complied with Shin and showed its appearance.

A blinding light suddenly appeared in front of Shin and Hanzo which made them simultaneously jump away from it while also covering their eyes.

After a few moments, the blinding light finally subdued which revealed a very beautiful and attractive woman.

She had a stunning figure and was currently wearing a graceful evening gown which highlighted her figure even more.

Her shoulders were revealed due to her dress being sleeveless. But she was wearing a pair of night gloves on each of her hands which were extending all the way to her elbows.

Both of her dress and gloves had scarlet color which also had a touch of golden embroideries on their surface.

Her eyes seemed to be blind since it had nothing aside from its white part. At the same time, her hair was blazing with golden flames which were dancing gracefully whenever she moved.

At first, Shin thought that the owner of the mysterious voice was Fallen Sun God himself or at least a remnant of his soul. But after seeing that it was actually a woman, he immediately knew that it wasn't the case.

p After revealing her appearance, the mysterious woman immediately introduces herself. "I'm Solus, one of the trusted aides of the fallen God of the Sun."

Then she curtsied at Shin while saying with a respectful bow. "Please to me you, descendant of Zheptus; the son of the Great God of the Sun."

Shin was stunned at first and didn't know how to properly respond. But immediately regained his senses when Hanzo tugged his shoulder. "Please stand, I don't deserve such curtsy from an Ancient God."

Hearing those words, Solus couldn't help but wear a bitter smile before replying with a bitter tone. "I should be the one who is ashamed because we failed to protect the Sun God and his family."

Shin could already picture where this conversation was heading, but he was quite unfond at the direction. What made him continue on this topic was the fact that it might lead him into another quest.

Unfortunately, his luck betrayed him this time. It was because Solus immediately changed the topic right after she stood straight once again.

"I would like to tell you about the last words that the Sun God told us before he died. After all, you are still one of his descendants. Unfortunately, we don't have the leisure time for that."

"The spawns of the Demon Lords are already making their moves to hunt us down. So, we better start making our own moves before it was already too late."

Shin was quite regretful that he didn't get a quest. And at the same time, he was also confused about the pace of the conversation.

Regardless, he still nodded his head and let Solus continue.

Seeing that, Solus also nodded her head before continuing. "My existence was currently at risk of being erased. First, it is because my remaining lifeforce is already reaching its end. Second, it is because of the fact that the spawns of the Demon Lords became aware of our existence."

Shin was not surprised with the first part of Solus' words, but he couldn't help but knit his eyebrows because he kept hearing the words 'spawns of the Demon Lords'.

He actually had the idea who those guys were but there was a strange feeling that made him quite uneasy. He was not sure what it was, but since his instincts were telling him that there was something wrong with it, he couldn't just put it at the back of his head.

Regardless, he still nodded his head before asking. "So, what can I do to help you?"

Solus hesitated for a moment before replying. "There is only one way for me to survive my current predicament..."

She trailed her words a little and took a quick look at Hanzo before continuing. "And the only way to save my remaining lifeforce is if I become someone like him."

Now, Shin started to get the whole picture of what was happening. But he still couldn't understand how they were going to do it.

Solus seemed to understand what Shin was currently thinking, so she started explaining. "Don't worry, the process is not that complex. In fact, I already completed the entire process and I am just lacking a single thing before it can be completed."

"And that is?" asked Shin curiously. Though, he was actually quite happy that this quest was going to be an easy one based on the details that he currently had.

Or so he thought.

Because the one who answered his question was Hanzo. "A Core. What she needs is a suitable core that can become the center of her new container."

Hearing that, Shin couldn't help but turn his head at Hanzo before asking. "You sound like you are quite familiar with what she is talking about."

On the other hand, Hanzo nodded his head repeatedly before replying. "Of course! After all, such things are pretty common during my time."

He turned his head at Shin before continuing. "Do you remember what I said to you before about the Ancient Gods?"

Hearing that, Shin nodded his head to indicate that he indeed remembered about that. After all, that topic triggered one of his current quests.

On the other hand, Hanzo slightly nodded his head before continuing. "Just like what I said, there are a lot of Gods who have fallen during those times. And those who died had their powers became a source of a powerful artifact such as the 'Ancient God Book' of yours."

"At the same time, some of them are just like what this Fallen God wants to become. They mimicked our existence and became Elemental Spirits."

He then paused for a moment to turn his head at Solus before continuing. "The problem is finding a suitable core for them."

Reaching that point, Hanzo suddenly turned quiet and waited for Solus to continue. And when Shin saw that, he also turned his head at Solus waiting for what she was going to say.

Solus remained calmed even in this situation. She also stayed silent for a couple of moments before flashing a sweet smile before saying something that shocked both Shin and Hanzo.

Chapter 469 A New Trouble (Quest)

...

Shin and Hanzo were staring blankly at Solus the moment they heard what she just said. Though, it was because of completely different reasons.

Hanzo was stunned because he couldn't believe what he just heard while Shin was shocked because of the problem that was about to come due to what she just said.

Solus stared at the two for a moment and waited for them to respond. But when she saw that they remained silent for a couple of minutes, she misunderstood their silence as them not understanding what she meant.

So, she repeated what she said earlier. And this time, she made it a little simpler to make sure that the two would understand what she said. "As I said, I already prepared everything that is needed for my rebirth."

"Given the time that I've spent since I discovered such a method, I already created a perfect core for my new vessel. And this Ancient Ruins is going to be the Altar that will help me in the process."

"Unfortunately, one of the Demon Lord's spawns discovered this place earlier than I expected. Even if I managed to send him away, he is still able to steal the core that I created. And because of that, I can't have my rebirthing process."

Shin and Hanzo became even more stunned because of those words since they became even more sure of what they were thinking. The former for being able to see what happened next while the latter was now sure that this Fallen God was more capable than what he thought.

"And that incident led to what was currently happening now," said Shin to complete the phrase for Solus.

Shin could already see why the Undying Guild was so eager to have this place. And since Solus kept on saying that one of the Demon Lord's spawns took her core, Shin was able to figure out the identity of that person. After all, there was only a single person in that Guild who was capable enough to battle a spirit of a Fallen God and was able to survive to tell the tale.

Narrowing the details, Shin was also able to figure out where this special quest was heading. 'D*mn! I don't know whether to become happy since I already know who is my current target, or became dejected because I know that this thing is going to be even more troublesome than what I originally thought.'

The only thing that might help him in this current situation was the involvement of the Central Order. Though, he was also quite suspicious of how they got involved in this incident.

After coming up with his own conclusion, the system notification that Shin was expecting finally sounded on his ears.

*Ding!*

System: Quest has been initiated!

---

Quest Name: Helping a Fallen God

Quest Type: Special Hidden Quest

Quest Rank: Hell (SSS+)

Quest Details:

-After being defeated a powerful Ancient God, Solus; the Goddess of the Endless Flame. And due to that, she escaped to the Mortal World to heal her wounds which made her a Fallen God.

But her wounds were much severe than she had expected which made it impossible to be healed. At the same time, she also discovered that her remaining lifeforce was leaking out from her body due to a curse cast on her by the Ancient God who defeated him.

After a long time of research, she discovered a method that could save herself from dying completely. So, she spent all of her time in the mortal world to collect everything she needed for her rebirth.

Unfortunately, the perfect core that she prepared was stolen by a spawn of a Demon Lord before she could even complete the ceremony.

Quest Condition:

-Find and retrieve the stolen core before taking it back to Solus.

-Protect Solus until her rebirthing ceremony is complete.

Quest Reward/s:

+5 Levels

+200 Fame Points

+20,000 Reputation Points

+15 LP (Legacy Points)

-Taking Solus as your Fifth Reaper's Retainer.

-Some clues about the real Powers of the Ancient God Book.

Quest Penalty/ies:

- -10 Levels
  - -4000 Fame Points
  - -40,000 Reputation Points
  - Solus Death
-

Sweeping his gaze at the details of his new quest, Shin couldn't help but frown his eyebrows quite deeply. Because based on his experience, the simpler the quest looked like, the more complicated it actually was.

Moreover, the two phases of the quest were a fancy way of spelling trouble for Shin.

No-...

Not only trouble but a total disaster.

Provoking the Undying Guild to fight him was one thing, but the condition of this quest was a completely different matter.

If what he was thinking was right, the first part of the quest required him to fight Immortal and take the Core from him.

Shin still had a vivid memory of how hard to defeat a clone created by Immortal. He didn't know how he managed to survive that fight, but he was sure that he just got lucky during that time.

And right now, his current quest was demanding him to fight Immortal head-on. That thought alone was already giving Shin a lot of headaches.

But that was not the end of it.

Because even if he indeed managed to create a miracle and defeated Immortal in a battle to take the so-called core, there was still the second part of the quest.

A single look at it was more than enough for Shin to clearly see the future. He could already see himself dealing with a large number of Undead and Demonic Monsters who were residing in the vicinity of the Ancient Ruins.

Moreover, there were also the members of the Undying Guild and the other players of the Blind Abyss Empire who were most probably going to siege the Ancient Ruins due to the commotion created by those monsters.

'Looks like I need to call the best reinforcement that I can pull out this time,' thought Shin to himself before opening his friend list and sweeping his gaze at every name registered on it.

*****

While Shin was currently doing his own thing, a meeting was currently held in the headquarters of the Undying Guild.

Due to the recent events, their guild was starting to lose a lot of face recently. Not only their territories were being invaded, but their members were also being hunted by an overconfident Ranker who got his Title just recently.

Inside the conference hall, all of the twenty-four seats around a huge roundtable were fully occupied.

Every member of the inner circle of the Undying Guild was present. Even if they were the Immortal's Apostles who were always busy at dealing their own things or the Elders of the Inner Court who were managing the guild on the surface, all of them freed their schedules just to attend this particular meeting.

After all, this kind of gathering was quite rare for them.

Because of their presence, the temperature inside the room was becoming colder and colder every passing second. Not only were their 'killing intents' were sipping out from their body, but it was also because of the person sitting on the head seat.

No one dared to open their mouths as they knew that something terrible was going to happen on whoever tried to talk.

But at the same time, enduring such strong pressure was pretty hard to bear. That was why they were also releasing a strong pressure of their own to prevent themselves from being crushed by it.

And because of that, the entire room was seemingly about to explode due to the chaotic atmosphere within the room because of the clashing pressure released by each player inside the room.

Regardless, everyone chose to stay silent since this situation was much better than being the target of their Guild Leader's wrath.

That situation continued for a couple of minutes, before Immortal finally decided to talk. "Let's cut off the chase and directly discuss the main issues that we currently have."

He then took a brief pause to sweep his gaze at every person inside the room. And when he saw that no one wanted to talk, he slightly nodded his head before continuing. "We are currently pressed in time, so I will divide all of the jobs personally. That way, we can move with accuracy."

He trailed his words for a moment to release an overwhelming pressure that made everyone present inside the room have a hard time breathing. "But make sure to do your respective jobs properly and avoid any failures."

"I don't need to tell you the outcome of those who failed the tasks given to them, right?" he added while putting a little more killing intent alongside his words.

After that, he immediately retrieved the killing intent that he was releasing before resuming. "Let's make this a little simple. The Apostles are going to form a team of three before moving to different parts of the Blind Abyss Empire to deal with the troublemakers who are messing with us."

"As for the rest, you guys are tasked to focus on fending off the members of the Central Order who are trying to get a slice of our pie. Just make sure to hold them at bay until all the pieces fall in the right place."

He took another pause to form a huge grin with his lips before continuing. "As for the rat who is running around in our home turf, I will deal with him personally."

Chapter 470 Formulating A Plan

...

Shin was about to contact Arthur and Leonard to ask for some assistance. But he immediately rejected the idea almost immediately when a sudden thought entered his mind.

"D*mn! If I asked them to help me with my current identity, then my dual-identity is most likely going to get exposed to Big Sis," muttered Shin to himself before falling into deep thought.

"Should I ask for some help from Brother Lawless and Brother Faker then?" he added while slightly shaking his head to the side.

But that thought only lasted for a moment before rejecting that idea as well.

"Those two said that they are going to be busy preparing for the School Transfer Documents. After all, they were said that they were a part of the 'Student Exchange Program' from their continent," he added before feeling dejected.

"So, that means that I'm all by myself in this situation," Shin shook his head helplessly the moment he realized his current situation.

But while he was in the middle of thinking, Solus suddenly interrupted his thoughts. "Don't worry. My retainer can help you on this task."

The moment she said those words, Chaotic Luck who finally had a peaceful time, suddenly got an unexpected system notification. And when he saw that, the expression on his face suddenly turned weird as he could already see the future ahead of him.

...

After a long time of contemplation, Shin could only think of a single solution for his current predicament. And that was to pull the Central Order towards his side.

That way, he could at least close the gap between him and the powerful force of the Undying Guild.

The only problem was how he was going to do it.

This situation made Shin caught in another difficult situation. After a long time of thinking, Shin finally came up with a single solution. And that was to find the reason why the Central Order wanted to take this place from the hands of the Undying.

At first, he thought that it was because of the same reason as the Undying Guild. But after learning from Solus that aside from him, Chaotic Luck and the person who took her Core, there was no other player who managed to uncover her existence.

Meaning, the Central Order discovered something else in this place.

Thinking for a long time, Shin decided to ask Solus if there was something else that was noteworthy in this place aside from her.

Solus was also not sure about that. Because aside from being a sacred place that would serve as a platform for her rebirth as an Elemental Spirit, this place didn't have any other purpose.

There might be a strong formation protecting this place, but it was going to be useless after her rebirthing process.

Getting nothing, Shin was forced to explore the whole Ancient Ruins to see if he could find whatever attracted the interest of the Central Order in this place. But he just wasted his time running around since he didn't find anything even after flipping the whole Ruins upside-down.

"D*mn! This is going to be quite tricky," cursed Shin as he took a seat on a stone platform that he found.

"If only I have some connections to dig up the truth behind this ongoing war," he started complaining as he started to find the disadvantages of a solo player.

A players' battle capability might be important, but having good connections was also critical when playing this game. After all, there were still some limits on what a single player could do; especially when it came to a situation like this.

He tried to look for a good information dealer from the connections that he currently had. Unfortunately, nothing was helpful to him.

He also braced himself to ask for some information from Shiella, but he also didn't get anything from her since she was currently offline – probably, she was still too busy with the problems of their family business in the real world.

As for the Assassin Union, Shin didn't dare to ask for some help from them. They might be one of the most reliable information dealers of the game. But hiring them was quite expensive.

And that expensiveness was not in a form of money, but something that had an equivalent value. Moreover, Shin was not familiar with dealing with them which was why he was not willing to hire them for their service yet.

After all, he couldn't risk leaking the information that he needed to other people who might also be interested in it.

During his rest, Hanzo suddenly appeared beside him and said. "Hey, Kiddo! Looks like your luck finally arrived."

Shin just looked at him lazily because he was too tired running around the whole Ancient Ruins.

Earlier, he actually re-summoned his Reaper's Retainer to help him look around. But every time they came back to him for their report, all he got were disappointing findings.

Understanding that look from Shin, Hanzo couldn't help but smirk a little before saying with a mystifying tone. "Kiddo, what if I tell you that this place that I found is something that has a temptation that even you will have a hard time resisting."

Hearing that tone, Shin couldn't help but feel a little interested. He raised one of his eyebrows and looked at Hanzo before asking. "Really? What is it then?"

Hanzo suddenly wore a mysterious grin before replying. "I guess it is better if you see it for yourself."

After that, Hanzo made a snap with his fingers which created a void gate behind. And when Shin was that void gate, he immediately stood up from his seat before entering it without any hint of hesitation.

...

"What the F*ck!" Shin couldn't believe what was in front of him after walking out the void gate that Hanzo had created.

It was a huge crystalized 'rock' with blue color.

Shin was not sure how big it was. But from what he could size, it was definitely a gigantic one since it was extending from deep from the ground and up the ceiling of the cage that he was in.

He tried to close his eyes and expand his senses to feel how sure this thing was. But no matter how hard he tried he couldn't see the end of its height as well as its width.

"D*mn! This is definitely a Superior Mana Vein!" said Shin as he opened his virtual map to see his current location. And that was when he discovered that this place was not that far from the Ancient Ruins.

"Now, everything is starting to make sense," muttered Shin as he started to see all of the details in the table.

"Immortal discovered the existence of Solus and immediately mobilized his group to take care of her. But while they were clearing the area, they suddenly discovered this huge gold mine!"

"And when they were trying to seize it for themselves, the Central Order somehow smelled this money-printing machine and decided to interfere so that they could take it instead."

After that, he paused for a moment before looking at the spot of the virtual map where the Ancient Ruins was located and continued. "Because of that, this place became the center of the war since it is going to be a good place that can act as their base."

Then he started smiling bitterly before muttering to himself. "Such crafty guys, using the Ancient Ruins as a front to hide the fact about this place. These guys sure know how to use the public and online platforms to their advantage."

Now that Shin knew the root of this war, he was finally able to form a good plan around it. But he also needed to be careful at playing his cards.

After all, his current quest was also at risk in this. And if he messed up even for a little, then he would surely do a lot of things in the process.

During this time, Grimrace and Vladimir also arrived in this place using their own means.

"How about you leak this information in the public? That way, those guys are going to be in chaos and that will give us the freedom to do whatever we want," said Grimrace right after arriving and while looking greedily at the huge Mana Vein in front of him.

Hearing that, Hanzo couldn't help but smirk mockingly before saying. "Idiot! What freedom are you talking about? If he did that, then the attention of those guys is going to be directed to us because of the commotion caused by the rebirthing ceremony of the Fallen Goddess."

On the other hand, Vladimir flicked his long silver hair to the side before sneering at the two. "Whatever happens, I'll make sure that I will be the center attraction when that time comes."

Meanwhile, Shin ignored the three Elemental Spirits while formulating a good plan inside his mind. And after a long time of contemplating, he was finally able to wear a huge grin with his lips before muttering with an evil tone.

"Looks like this party is going to be more interesting than I originally thought."