

Divorcement 241

chapter 241

She sat beside Theresa silently for a while before looking at her and saying, "Go take a shower. Your hair is wet."

She picked up her towel and handed it to Theresa, motioning for her to wipe her hair.

Theresa looked at her, took the towel over, wiped her hair, and went to the bathroom.

Sitting on the sofa, Cristina listened to her taking a bath. The more she thought about the matter, the more speechless she felt. She had thought it wouldn't matter even if Sarah came back. After all, Charlie treated Theresa very well. But she had not expected them to get divorced.

Now, the children had been sent back to the Calsis family, but they were going to divorce. Cristina frowned, remembering that she had been fixing Charlie and Theresa up back then. It was also her that had let the two kids do a paternity test and sent them back to the Calsis family! Thinking of this, she felt so ashamed, thinking she had made a huge mistake!

When Theresa came out of the bathroom while wiping her hair with a towel, Cristina sat on the edge of the bed, looked at her, and said, "Don't be too sad. I'll go to scold Charlie tomorrow. He is a jerk. I will teach him a good lesson. That bastard should not have made you so sad."

Hearing her words, Theresa was startled and then said, "Don't go!"

So, she said, "I'll go change my clothes right away."

She went upstairs, picked a set of clothes, looked around the room, and found Charlie had not come back to sleep last night. However, it had nothing to do with her now.

When she went downstairs, Mrs. Calsis had arranged for people to get the car ready.

After the driver parked the car at the door, Theresa walked over to Mrs. Calsis and followed her into it. And then, they went Hearing this. Theresa realized that Jimmy wanted to laugh at her so she stopped talking.

Suddenly, Jimmy's phone rang. After he answered the phone, he said to Mrs. Calsis, "Grandma, Charlie is coming soon. I need to go to pick him up."

"Go ahead." Mrs. Calsis ignored Charlie and only cared about her grandsons now, so she quickly took Theresa to meet them. At the rehearsal area, Theresa saw the two boys. They were wearing costumes and makeup. When the dance teacher was telling them the precautions of the performance, all the kids were listening carefully. Although there were a lot of kids, Theresa still spotted her boys in the crowd at a glance. Because their faces were eye-catching after inheriting Charlie's genes.

The parents of the other children had also come. They were all looking at their kids and taking pictures of them with mobile phones.

Charlie glanced at her in the wheelchair but soon looked away indifferently as if she were a stranger. Seeing this, Theresa involuntarily tugged at her dress.

After Jimmy greeted everyone, he looked at Charlie and whispered, "Charlie, Leonard and Ben are going to perform today, so Grandma and Theresa are both here. Do you want me to call them over?"

"No" Charlie said, "I'll go meet them by myself."

Hearing this, Jimmy nodded, "OK, I'll lead you there."

"You should focus on your work." He refused Jimmy but asked Jonathan alone to accompany him.

When they came over, the kids saw Charlie, trotted up to him, and said, "Dad!"

They had not expected him to come, so they were excited.

When Mrs. Calsis saw him, she walked down from the audience to his side because she knew that his legs were Rose was having coffee when she heard Mrs. Calsis's voice, and then she exchanged glances with Jimmy. They had been talking about Theresa and Charlie just now. And Mrs. Calsis's words verified that they had guessed it correctly. As soon as Sarah had come back, everything changed!

Yesterday, Charlie had made things difficult for Jimmy for Theresa and driven Rose out of the house. But today, he would divorce her. It was interesting!

Hearing his mother's words, Charlie rubbed his brows in the wheelchair and asked, "Aren't you accompanying Leonard and Ben? Why are you here?"

Mrs. Calsis looked at him and said, "Theresa said you're going to divorce her, so I came over to ask you whether it is true."

"She told you about it?" Charlie narrowed his eyes because he had not expected her to tell his mother about it so soon. "Even if she had not said it I could see how you treated her today! I am not blind! Charlie, I really can't understand what you are thinking. Yesterday, you were not like this! You were incredibly good to her. Why do you suddenly want to get a divorce? Is it because of Sarah?"

Rose followed behind her with a smile, took out her phone, and sent Sarah a message, saying, "Sarah, do you have time? Would you like to hang out with me?"

"What's your plan?" Sarah was a little listless now.

After Charlie had left her home last night, she had tried to buy an air ticket and escape overnight but failed. And she could not buy a train ticket either. In other words, Charlie had restricted her freedom, so she could not go anywhere now. Rose replied, "My dad's company is holding a carnival, and there will be a gala in the evening. Many stars will come." "Stars!" Sarah was looking forward to the event when hearing this, and then, she asked, "Will Jefferson perform?" When she had been abroad, she could do nothing but watch TV at home. And she happened to like Jefferson who was quite popular now. But it was hard to get a ticket to the event where he would perform.

At the cafeteria, Theresa took the kids to get some food and then sat down.

As soon as Rose took a seat at the table, a waiter took the initiative to bring the food she liked over.

Then, she looked at Theresa and said, "Theresa, I heard you and Charlie are going to divorce?"

Theresa lowered her head and said, "So what?"

Rose said with schadenfreude in her voice, "Nothing. I just feel sorry for you."

When Theresa raised her head to look at her with a smile, her cell phone suddenly rang.

After she glanced at it and answered the call, Jonathan said, "Ma'am, Mr. Calsis needs to have a word with you. Would you

Jonathan looked at her and shook his head helplessly, "I don't know."

He couldn't guess what Charlie was thinking.

Seeing that Jonathan did not know, Theresa took a deep breath, plucked up her courage, and pushed the door open, thinking it was ridiculous that she had been afraid to see him. There was nothing to be afraid of because the worst result was just getting a divorce!

When she walked in and saw Charlie in his wheelchair, she stopped by the door, looked at him, and asked, "What do you want to talk about?"

Charlie turned his head and looked up at her, saying, "You told my mother that we're getting a divorce?"

He had not expected her to tell it to others so soon! He did not want a divorce at all but had been too angry last night. He did not care what Sarah thought, but Theresa should not have... He liked her so much, but she had stabbed his heart with a knife.

"No." Roderick said, "I just had a drink. What's wrong with you, you don't look happy?"

Although after seeing him, she immediately squeezed out a smile. Theresa denied: "No unhappy."

"What about the child?" Roderick asked, "Charlie doesn't know that the child is his?"

"..." Theresa's fingers tightly clenched the mineral water bottle in her hand. She looked out the window and said nothing.

Theresa and Roderick turned their heads and saw Jonathan pushing Charlie over. Charlie was sitting in a wheelchair with a blanket on his lap, looking at Theresa and Charlie with complicated expressions.

When Roderick saw Charlie, he greeted him unhurriedly," Mr. Calsis. I was going to find you."

Charlie's eyes fell on Theresa -oh, just left him, and now she's hooking up with Roderick here... No wonder she couldn't wait to divorce herself, it seems, she has already found a next family! No wonder he felt a little green on his head.

Charlie said in a strange way, "It seems that Dr. Hill is quite free."
