

Enchanted 490

Henry gripped his fingers tightly and said coldly, "Continue your confession!"

William quivered, and then he continued.

Just as he mentioned now, he had no feelings for Marie. He didn't love her. What caught his interest the most was her body. That body was just like cotton for him, so warm and comfortable.

After having sex with her, William lay beside her and touched her body. Her skin was like silk, which Kelly couldn't compare at all.

Maybe the medicine lost its effectiveness. Marie, who was unconscious, often made sensual sounds beside him.

This sound was just like an aphrodisiac for him, and William began to make mistakes several times.

He found that as he was with a young girl, he also felt young. The sexuality became easy for him, so he occupied her again, and that time it lasted longer.

Marie woke up halfway and found a man on her body. She began to scream out and struggle. William didn't let her go but kept going. He got more excited as she struggled. This experience was definitely different from the first time.

When Marie was in a coma, she was totally in his control. But when she woke up, she was livelier, and she stimulated his desire. So he just gripped her wrist and finished it with her shouting and crying.

When it was over, William gave Marie a check and said to her that she could choose to call the police or buy something she wanted.

Marie kept crying and scolding him. At that moment, William thought she would call the police, so he increased the amount on the check and said everything would be OKAY as long as she didn't call the police.

Marie was just a salesperson, and her boyfriend was not rich. She herself was not born rich, so she just turned dull since she had not seen a huge amount of money before.

When she reached her hand to take the check, William showed a satisfied smile. He knew that that woman would not do something unbeneficial to him.

After that, William was satisfied, felt young again, and felt he was more energetic. The intimate encounter with Marie recharged him, and he felt pleasure and surprise about all these changes. This feeling was totally different.

One month later, he accompanied Kelly to go shopping. When they passed by a brand store, he saw Marie by accident. She wore the uniform, smiling charmingly.

Kelly was an avid user of that brand, so she walked in and began to look for the new designs. William also went in. Marie was totally shocked to see him, but she soon recovered and came forward to assist them.

Kelly hadn't seen Marie before, so she didn't pay attention to her. She began to try on the clothes one by one while William sat on the sofa, waiting for her patiently. However, he couldn't help taking a glance at Marie. His look moved along the two legs bundled by the skirt, and her naked body beneath the clothes lingered on his mind.

Marie dared not look at William but followed Kelly to take the clothes she liked.

William figured out Marie's envious look on those clothes, and with just a short guess, he had an idea.

When Kelly entered the fitting room, William pulled Marie to one side and lowered his voice, asking her to accompany him for one night. Marie disagreed at first, but William motioned her to look at those beautiful clothes in the store. Then, he asked her whether she wanted to wear expensive clothes and luxurious jewelry.

Marie glanced at him, the hesitation was evident, yet her mind was on those expensive clothes.

William knew that she had given in, so he wrote down his number, handed it to her, and asked her to wait for him at 8 p.m. the next night at the club.

Marie took the paper in hesitation.

And she really came to the club the following night.

Marie felt sorry for Joie when she was lying on the bed where she had sex with William. But as William put a check on her crest, her regret was gone immediately.

William couldn't wait to have sex with her. He knew something about Marie, who worked in high-class shopping places and witnessed the rich's luxurious life would probably grab his offer. Actually, it was difficult for her just to stay poor forever.

And that time, William enjoyed himself. At first, Marie refused him sometimes, but later she cooperated with him. Although William was not young anymore, he could make Marie enjoy their illicit affair more than Joie.

Joie was young but often ended up giving a boring sex experience to Marie, but William was different. Although he was already in middle age, he was still fit. In addition, he was more experienced than Joie. More importantly, he could reach somewhere Joie could not as he lacked money.

Marie had only had a few sexes with Joie before, so William's strong sexual drive was out of her imagination. Although William was much stronger than Joie, she was addicted to William's bed appetite after they had sex that night. William often filled her sexual needs.

After that night, they seemed attached to each other.

William also thinks it is a pity for Marie to be with Joie, so he gives another amount of money to her. Marie was smart. She knew why he gave her so much money, but she still asked him.

William told her that it was a monthly reward for her.

And thus, their relationship was confirmed.

From that day on, as long as William had the desire for sex, he would call Marie. Of course, Marie was also pleased to receive his call. And as long as there was a call, she would dress beautifully going to the club and wear her sexy underwear to wait for him.

While at this time, Joie proposed to her and looked forward to their future. However, Marie didn't pay attention to that.

Gradually Joie found something strange. He found her cosmetics, branded bags, and luxurious clothes everywhere. When he confronted her, she explained that she had another part-time job.

She also made various excuses for her absence at night. Sometimes she said one of her friends got sick, and sometimes she said she would meet her friends at a KTV bar.

In the beginning, Joie believed her. But later, he found a half-box of used condoms, and he began to ask her what she had done behind his back.

Marie had had enough of Joie, so she just told Joie that she had a new boyfriend and intended to break up with him.

However, Joie resigned to prepare for their marriage. He scolded her out of great anger and left.

Marie thought their relationship would be over easily, so she happily called William and told him. William wasn't happy with her news.

Actually, he had only wanted her body and didn't care about anything else at all.

Without Joie as the obstacle, Marie often visited the club and was more attached to William. Sometimes when William went back home, she still called him, and their secret affair was nearly disclosed.

Time flies and the most delicious food would not be very appetizing anymore.

William began to lose his interest in Marie. Her body and style could not arouse his interest anymore, so he hardly called her. He barely even thought about her for a month.