

Enchanted 641

Cassie felt very thirsty, and her heart almost jumped out of her chest. She exerted effort to sober herself, pushing him away but stumbled. She was like a drunken person and was unable to stand steadily but could only see his blurred face.

"Roy, what have you added to my water?" She felt it was hard to talk clearly since her tongue was numb.

Half asleep, she saw him walk to her step by step, but she still had consciousness and was alert. Trying her best, she stumbled to the door, but the moment when she touched the door handle, she fell down on the ground and was unable to stand up again.

She felt weak, as if she had lost her spine. The coldness of the ground spread all over her body, but she could do nothing but see Roy walk to her step by step.

It was not until he finally stopped in front of her and looked down at her.

She was too weak to look up. Though she was furious, she could say nothing, and her tongue was numb.

He bowed down, holding her effortlessly, and stepped into the bedroom.

Cassie felt dizzy with her hands hanging weakly, and she couldn't see his eyes but had to allow him to hold her into the bedroom. Roy put her on the bed upon entering the bedroom.

She could tell from her eyes what he was going to do next, so she tried to struggle out and found that she couldn't move at all.

Roy pressed over her body, took off her clothes, and stared at her with his beast-like eyes. "You must have forgotten the words I told you before that you will belong to me sooner or later."

Cassie wanted to stop him and scold him or even plead for his mercy, but she was unable to make any sound at all. She couldn't do anything to stop him from taking off her clothes. And soon, he also unbuttoned his shirt and took off his trousers.

She was so weak that it was even hard for her to move her eyes. In other words, she was forced to see his sturdy and strong body.

When Roy pressed down, she could feel his erect penis easily.

Cassie yelled in her heart and scolded him harshly, but it didn't work at all.

"The reason for keeping you conscious is...." He stopped while his hand slipped on her naked body. Her soft breasts stimulated his lust, so even his eyes were stained by strong lust.

"I want you to feel the difference between Fredrick and me."

He raised her waist and her soft legs.

Cassie's eyes were filled with tears, and when he pressed down, a drop of tear shed down along her cheeks, falling down to the sheet as he entered her body violently.

The great pain led her to breathe quickly, but she could make a faint voice. She felt her body was filled by him maximally.

Her soft body brought him great joy. He lowered his head and stared at her tearful eyes, which gave him a sense of satisfaction.

"Your pussy is so tight. You are awesome!" He squinted at her and then added while showing an evil smile. "It seems that Fredrick can't satisfy you."

Cassie tried her best to close her eyes, but soon he began to move in her body. She felt that she was slammed into the fire and was destroyed by it completely.

It was sunny when Lenard sent Lilith to the airport. Compared to the cold New York, it was a place with fine weather.

Lilith extended her appreciation to him again and again, but she sighed after she got her boarding check.

"What's wrong?" Lenard asked her.

"I am really eager to meet him." She replied while staring outside.

Lenard replied with a smile, "I can understand you. But you can't act like this next time because it will cause a lot of pressure on us."

She was confused by his words, so Lenard had to explain to her patiently.

It turned out that Jay required that his family should be protected every time when he was carrying out a task outside, and this time he added a name to the list, and that was Lilith.

It was not until then Lilith figured out the reason why she would be found easily as soon as she went to Florida. It turned out that she had been protected by them.

"Jay will be fine, so don't worry," Lenard said firmly.

Though Lilith knew that he was comforting her, she was full of strength and nodded with a big smile, "I know. I will wait for him to come back."

Lenard also smiled and said, "Jay is lucky since he could have such a nice girlfriend."

Lilith was shy, and it was not until she arrived in Florida she then realized how dangerous here. She could perceive their tiredness easily since many of the policemen hadn't had a good rest for several days while others even didn't have time to shave. They were forced to leave home and come here for their work and to fight with those drug traffickers.

They all faced the same danger, just as Lenard said to her on the first day that he knew that his life was out of his control from the day he became anti-drug police.

It was the same occasion as Jay, so Lilith admired them very much but also worried about them.

"Does Jay know I am here?" She couldn't help asking him.

"No, he won't know it," Lenard replied frankly.

Lilith was a little upset after hearing this, but she still replied calmly, "Oh, it doesn't matter."

"Do you want to divert his attention?" Lenard was also soft-hearted.

Lilith then realized what he meant, so she hastily shook her head. Absolutely, she didn't want him to divert his attention. In fact, if he knew that she was here, it may cause trouble for him. How can she be so selfish? She always forgot how dangerous his work was.

Lenard stared at her and said softly, "What you should do at this crucial moment is trust him and support him."

Lilith nodded and was determined to do that.

They walked forward, and Lilith suddenly hit a person violently since she was absorbed in her thoughts. Her bag fell down to the ground immediately.

She hastily lowered her head and apologized to him, but the man quickly picked up her bag.

"Thank you. You..." Lilith stopped out of great astonishment and took a sharp breath.

The man who picked up the bag for her was Jay, who she had missed so much for a long time.