Chapter 29: Grandpa Is Gravely Ill

Seeing Noah leave, Mia began to relax slowly. She first reached out her hand to touch her stomach. After confirming that the baby was not frightened, she then began to belatedly think that Noah was so angry because she had rejected his pleas for sex.

In the years they had been married, Mia had never rejected any of Noah's requests, so this time, Noah might feel that his ego had been hurt.

Noah subconsciously felt that even if he did not like Mia, he would not allow Mia to do anything to resist him. Mia understood this point very well, but she really did not have the extra energy to coax Noah now.

Mia thought about it. Now, all she could do was hope that his grandfather would recover as soon as possible. She couldn't hide her stomach any longer, so she really needed to get a divorce as soon as possible.

Because of the unhappy parting that night, Mia was even more afraid to go home. The wound on her arm had healed a lot, and with her thick winter clothes, his grandfather couldn't tell that she was hurt, so Mia spent almost every day in the hospital with his grandfather.

During this period of time, the Old Master had been in a coma for longer and longer. Like a withered tree, he had almost given up his life, so his body was getting weaker and weaker.

When Grandpa occasionally woke up and saw Mia, he told her to take good care of herself. Life and death were up to fate, so he shouldn't be too sad.

At this moment, Mia could not help but recall that day a few years ago, when his grandfather finally found her at the orphanage. He was muscular, strong, and had a bright smile on his face when he said that he wanted to bring her home. Why was it that in the blink of an eye, the old man who walked with steady footsteps could only lie on the bed and wait for his life to pass?

Mia did not mention her unhappiness with Noah and the divorce that they had discussed. She only stayed in the ward to watch over his grandfather every day.

Although Mia appeared cheerful and happy, Grandpa could tell that something was wrong.

On this day, Grandpa had just woken up, and he saw Mia standing beside his bed, so he extended his hand to gently stroke Mia's head. Mia could feel the warmth from Grandpa's hand. Grandpa's hand wasn't as strong as before, but it was still as warm as before. In the past, Grandpa would often stroke her like this.

At the thought of this, Mia's heart ached terribly, but she didn't dare to show it.

Grandpa's old and weak voice sounded again. "Noah is a one-track minded person. He has never been in love for so many years, so he can't fathom how romance works. He feels that admitting that he likes you is lowering his head to me."

The Old Master could not say so much in one breath. Hence, he took a deep breath and said again, "Look at Noah. Every time he encounters something about you, he always acts dumb. Or is it because he likes you and he doesn't know what to do with you?"

Mia didn't say anything as she listened to Noah's grandfather. She just nodded silently. His life was about to end, but Noah's grandfather was worried about her. She thought about what Noah had just said a few days ago, "You think I wanted to marry you?" Mia really couldn't say anything to contradict Noah's grandfather. She couldn't tell Noah's grandfather that he was wrong. Noah had never liked her. It was only because of his grandfather's arrangement.

Especially in the first two years of their marriage, Noah was like a stranger to Mia. No matter how hard Mia tried to get close to Noah, she would always be rebuffed by Noah.

Of all the people she knew, none of them had slept in separate rooms after being married for two years.

Sometimes, when Mia thought about it, she felt like she was walking through a maze of late nights, always looking for a way to Noah. And Noah was the one that controlled the maze and always looking down on Mia as she fumbled and stumbled through the maze.

Then, he casually reset the maze.

So Mia had to walk through it again.

Over and over again, Mia's earnest feelings never got reciprocated.

Perhaps to Noah, Mia was probably an exquisite settee or a small pet. They were both personal possessions of Noah and were not to be encroached upon by others, but he wasn't overly affectionate about them.

However, Mia was attracted by Noah when they first met. It was love at first sight, and from then on, she stepped into the abyss.

But Grandpa didn't know any of this. Maybe he'd never get the chance to find out. The more Mia thought about it, the worse she felt.

Grandpa whispered into her ear, "Mia, if this brat does something stupid to anger you, don't hold back your anger. If you want to scold him, scold him. Just don't despise him for Grandpa's sake."

As she listened to her grandfather's parting words, she couldn't bear to see him worry about them, so she held back her tears and nodded obediently.

After Grandpa fell asleep again, Mia told Grandma that she was going out to get something before leaving the ward.

When she reached the corridor outside the ward, Mia couldn't help it anymore. Why couldn't God give this kind old man more time for her to properly show her filial piety? The more Mia thought about it, the sadder she became. Tears silently flowed down her face, but Mia didn't dare to cry out loud. After all, this place was quite close to the ward. She was afraid that if Grandma came out and saw her, she would be even sadder. She just stood alone at the corner of the ward corridor and cried silently..

Chapter 30: Noah's Embrace

A pair of large hands suddenly reached out and hugged Mia. Mia could smell the familiar scent on Noah's body. It was Noah's favorite Dior perfume. Mia felt at ease every time she smelled it, so she knew it was Noah the moment Mia was hugged. Hence, Mia did not struggle anymore. At this moment, Mia really needed a hug to comfort herself.

Noah stood outside for a long time. He saw Mia as soon as he arrived outside the ward. He didn't want to go up and disturb Mia. After all, Mia's action that day really made Noah sad for a long time, so he, afraid that he would scare Mia again, didn't dare to go up rashly. However, he didn't expect Mia to cry so sadly. In the end, Noah couldn't help but go up and comfort Mia.

Mia, who was being hugged by Noah, could not control herself. Sadness surged up as tears flowed down her face. Soon, they wet Noah's tailored suit. Noah was not afraid that Mia would ruin his clothes, but Mia crying was really bad for her body.

He wanted to persuade Mia, but this woman, who was immersed in her grief, couldn't sense Noah's concern at all.

In the end, Noah really did not dare to let Mia continue crying. He was afraid that she would alarm the two elders, and he was also afraid that Mia would hurt her body if she continued crying.

Hence, he forcefully reached out to support Mia's shoulders while forcing her to stand up straight. Then, he took out a handkerchief from his pocket and wiped the tears on Mia's face. He softly teased, "Mia, did the river break?"

Mia smiled awkwardly when she heard Noah's teasing words.

The two of them had not seen each other for a few days after they parted unhappily a few days ago. Hence, after Mia calmed down, she felt a little embarrassed. Especially when she saw the wet marks on Noah's clothes from her tears, she felt even more embarrassed. She wanted to thank Noah but was too embarrassed to say it out loud.

Mia had just cried. Her nose was red, and her eyes were red. She looked very pitiful. Noah could not help but want to laugh when he saw Mia like this. He first reached out and touched Mia's nose before saying, "Alright, crybaby."

After being teased, the sorrow in Mia's heart dissipated a little, and a smile slowly appeared on her face.

Just as they were about to say something else, the door to the ward opened.

Grandma pushed open the door and wanted to go to the doctor to ask about the situation. Just as she reached the corner of the corridor, she saw Mia and Noah standing there. From Mia's red eyes, it was obvious that she had just cried.

Grandma knew exactly why Mia was crying, so she didn't bring it up again. She just instructed Noah, "Why don't you go see Grandpa? I have something to say to Mia."

Noah nodded and turned to walk towards the ward.

Seeing Noah leave, Grandma pulled Mia's hand and said, "You've worked hard for the past few days. Go back with Noah to rest and come back tomorrow."

Just as Mia was about to shake her head, Grandma patted Mia's hand again and said, "Child, Grandma knows how you feel. Living well with Noah is the greatest comfort for Grandpa and me."

Mia knew the old woman's intentions, but she could not tell them about her and Noah's current situation, so she could only nod with her eyes still teary.

After visiting his grandfather, Noah asked the attending doctor. The doctor said that his grandfather's condition was stable at the moment, so Noah was relieved.

When everything was done, the two of them took the car home together.

On the way, Noah looked at Mia's back and wanted to speak a few times. However, he tried several times but failed to say anything. For a moment, he felt that he was really quite bad at speaking.

The two of them returned home in silence.

After returning home, Mia changed and went upstairs.

Looking at Mia's back, Noah began to realize that none of his unmarried friends who had given him advice before were reliable.

They were a bunch of idiots had been bragging to him everyday about how good they were at coaxing others and how impressive they were in the field of romance. In the end, they gave him a few suggestions but did not make Mia change her attitude towards him. Noah only realized now that those idiots were coaxing lovers, but Mia was his wife!

This difference was huge. It would be fine as long as they gave their lovers something valuable, but his wife was someone who lived with him. She was not someone that could easily be coaxed.

Just as he was feeling troubled, the doorbell at home rang.

Mia was upstairs, so Noah stood and went to open the door.

When he opened the door, he saw the smiling Jenny standing at the door. Noah, thinking that he was lucky it wasn't Mia who came to open the door, felt a little flustered all of a sudden. Otherwise, he wouldn't be able to explain himself.

Jenny's eyes lit up when she saw Noah opening the door. "My mom went on a holiday recently and brought back some gifts. Thank you very much for the endorsement. My mom specially instructed me to send some to you. I happened to be at the studio today, so I sent it over."

Noah wasn't happy to see Jenny.

Afraid that Mia would see them when she went downstairs, she said, "Oh, you don't have to thank me for the endorsement. We have a mutually beneficial relationship." After saying that, he accepted the gift and prepared to close the door.

Jenny was speechless..
