

Ex Convict 1511

Chapter 1511

This was why she had to seize the opportunity no matter what!

1/4

Irene Lynch thought determinedly. A beautiful smile bloomed on her face. She was already a pretty woman, and she had a great figure too. If she did not have a nice body, she would not have been able to attract the gaze of that rich nobleman in the past. She also would not have ended up getting herself pregnant before marriage just to have a baby which would be her ticket into a rich family.

Unfortunately, her expectations were shattered. Although she was pregnant with a child, the rich family did not give her a single chance. They did not care at all even after she gritted her teeth and gave birth to a daughter. They merely told her that the child was none of their business.

"Mr. Reed, you're back. Nana was just saying that she misses you. She just had to come here to see you, so I brought her here," Irene Lynch said.

Oriel Lynch had also walked to stand in front of Jason as if she wanted to hug the man. At last, she stood some three steps away, intimidated by the man's gaze. She said timidly, "Daddy, Nana misses you."

2/4

Jason's gaze swept over both mother and child. "It's late. You should go home."

"But... Tonight Nana wants... Nana wants to sleep with Daddy tonight. Can I?" The five-year-old Oriel Lynch opened her eyes wide, reciting the lines to her father just as her mother had told her to.

Mommy said that she had to work hard to make this adopted father like her so that he would become her real daddy. If that happened, she would finally live a comfortable life where she could wear nice clothes and eat good food. It would be a life where everyone would still treat her like a princess.

Oriel Lynch did not really understand what it meant for him to become her 'real daddy', but she wanted to become a princess. She did not want to be looked down on like she was now.

However, Jason said flatly in response, "I don't like to sleep with someone else on the same bed. I'll have someone send you home. You should call me 'Mr. Reed', not 'Daddy'" Mick was the only one who could call him 'Daddy'.

Oriel Lynch was so intimidated by Jason's coldness that she ended up not saying anything.

Irene Lynch bit her lip and said, unwilling to admit defeat, "Mr.

3/4

Reed, Nana hasn't had a father since she was young. She likes you, so she..."

Irene Lynch's voice gradually softened as she spoke. At last, under Jason's icy stare, she went quiet.

At this moment, she felt like this man had seen through all her thoughts! There were no emotions at all in this man's gaze!

It was as if this man would not fall in love with anyone.

"Uncle Hartan, send them home," Jason told the butler, who was standing nearby.

"Yes, sir," the butler said. He then turned to the two. "Miss Lynch, you should return with your daughter. Mr. Reed is going to rest for the day."

After meeting so many people, the butler obviously had a clear idea about what Irene Lynch was planning. Sometimes, when one managed to obtain all that they could not have possibly achieved before, they would become greedier. They would want to have more.

Irene Lynch, in the butler's opinion, was too greedy. She was also fortunate, however. After all, her daughter had been chosen by Mr. Reed.

No, to be precise, her daughter had become Little Young Master's substitute younger sister.

4/4

Hearing the butler's words, Irene Lynch could not bring herself to say anything more. Ashamed, she could only leave while holding her daughter's hand.

Jason walked up the stairs and came to his son's bedroom. He opened the door to see his son on his chair playing with a jigsaw puzzle. He was deep in concentration. After catching sight of Jason, the tutor quickly got up and greeted respectfully, "Mr. Reed."

Chapter 1512

"You can leave now," Jason said.

The tutor left the room, leaving only father and son in the room.

1/4

Jason looked at the jigsaw puzzle his son was playing with. There were about 1,000 pieces.

The average adult would have to spend 10 to 15 days to complete such a puzzle. However, when it came to this young boy, it was as if completing this puzzle was an effortless task. He put them together piece by piece at an extremely fast speed.

Jason looked at the puzzle his son was putting together. It depicted two boys and one girl.

Back then when he woke up in the hospital, Terrence told him that he had a wife named Grace and they had triplets together. At last, though, Grace fell into the sea and only one child survived.

When his son grew up, he heard everything about the triplets. He then stubbornly thought that he should have a younger brother and a younger sister.

Jason had found it strange at once. "Why a younger brother and a younger sister instead of two younger brothers or two younger sisters?"

"No reason," the kid had replied to him with a cute voice, as if it was a given that the other two should be a younger brother and a younger sister.

Jason sat down beside his son and watched quietly as the child finished his puzzle. He considered for a while before saying, "If you really want a younger brother, I can adopt one for you."

He only adopted the girl because his son suddenly wanted a younger sister after stumbling into Irene Lynch and her daughter on the streets. The two of them were being abused and bullied.

As such, he had someone look for them and told them that the Reed family would pay for all of Oriel Lynch's expenses until she was of age if she was willing to be an adopted daughter of the Reed family. The Reed family would also ensure that both mother and daughter were not bullied. The Reed family would be their protective shield as long as they did not cause trouble.

Also, Oriel Lynch would only be adopted by name. Irene Lynch would not be separated from her daughter, and they would also not need to move into Reed Residence. The Reed family later purchased a villa for them to live in, and a sum of money intended for child support was transferred into Irene Lynch's account every month.

It was a big sum of 200,000 dollars every month. It was pocket money for Irene Lynch and her daughter. There were also Oriel Lynch's preschool fees and other huge expenses such as medical fees.

To the mother and daughter, it was as if money had dropped from the sky. Irene Lynch agreed to everything without a second thought.

However, after Oriel Lynch became an adopted daughter of the Reed family, Jason noticed that his son had not really taken a liking to his adopted younger sister. He merely greeted her when they met and did not play together.

"No, thank you." Mick Reed shook his head. "I don't want a younger brother."

He had a younger sister now, anyway. He already knew what it felt like to have a younger sister. Usually, when he saw her, she was always there tagging behind him.

On some other occasions, he had happened to see his younger sister boast about various trinkets in front of other children while claiming that they were given to her by Daddy.

4/4

However, Daddy had done nothing of the sort.

It turned out that having a younger sister was just that.

"Daddy, will you get married to Auntie Lynch?" Mick Reed suddenly asked. He looked up into Jason's eyes.

He had a face that was extremely similar to Jason's. It was as if he was a mini version of Jason with his delicate features, ebony hair, and pale, smooth skin that looked so soft anyone would have the urge to bite his cheek.

Chapter 1513

His eyes were beautiful, but they exuded coldness as if they were devoid of emotions.

Jason narrowed his eyes. Even his son had heard of those rumors? It seemed that someone was really aiming for something they should not want.

"No," Jason replied, unquestionably certain in his answer.

"Okay." The kid did not say anything else after hearing his answer. With that, the conversation between father and son ended.

A servant came in and helped the child wash up, while Jason returned to his study. He walked to stop in front of a chest of drawers. After momentary consideration, he slowly pulled a drawer out.

In it was a marriage certificate. The certificate was now defunct, though, after the death of one-half of the couple.

Jason stared at the woman's photo on the certificate. She had a very clean face and was smiling. Her smile was one that was calm and gentle as if it could soothe one's annoyances.

To him, though, the only merit of this face was that it was comfortable to look at. It did not amaze him as he had seen. too many beautiful women.

However... He had fallen in love with this woman, married her, and let her give birth to children for him. Why?

Even if he were to marry, he would have done so with a woman with similar statuses, such as Jennifer. Why had he set his eyes on a woman who had been to prison?

Some images would occasionally appear in his mind, but the face of the woman in those memories was always blurred. Although Terrence had told him that the woman was Grace, Mick's birth mother, he still felt nothing.

Thanks to those short fragments and Terrence's additional words regarding his lost memories, he approximately knew what had gone on between him and Grace.

He understood, but he felt nothing about it.

Although other people had done that to him and he had loved Grace, no part of it felt real to him.

"Grace, you still abandoned me in the end. If I've forgotten about you, it means that I never loved you enough from the start. That's why I could forget about you so easily," he said softly and then casually tossed the marriage certificate into the drawer as if he was no longer attached to it at all.

In a high-speed train heading to Emerald City, an extremely cute young girl who looked to be about five years old was rifling through the stack of photos she was holding. She said to the woman beside her who was clad in a long white dress, "Mommy, Daddy is so handsome. Are you sure he's really my daddy? You didn't just download a photo from somewhere on the internet, did you?"

Mommy often tended to misidentify people as someone else.

"It's true this time! He really is your daddy!" Grace said, exasperated. The girl could not be blamed, though. She had a bad track record.

She was not to be blamed for that, however. She had fallen into the sea and lost all her memories. When she woke up again, she was already in a hospital in L City.

Someone had paid for all her expenses and set an identity card beside her. The name on the card was still 'Grace', but the other information was not right.

Chapter 1514

However, the information was all real. There was really someone with the name Grace in L City, but the woman was an orphan. The photos in the documents depicting her life from a child to an adult all belonged to Grace, though.

The house she was supposedly renting came with clothes in her size and some photos of herself.

Due to this, she did not question anything at all then. She simply assumed that she lost her memories due to an accident. It was just that she did not know who the unborn child in her belly belonged to.

However, she inexplicably had a feeling that she must have loved the father of her child a lot.

Also... she always had a feeling that she had been carrying more than one child.

She continued living with the identity of this other Grace. In the past two years, though, she would dream about her life with another man. Her sixth sense told her that the man was the one she loved deeply and also Jaylee's father.

In the beginning, the man's face had always been blurry in her dreams. That caused her to make a fool of herself quite often. Whenever she came across men who had a similar stature and face structure to the man in her dreams, she would go up and ask about them, only to be disappointed every time.

She had also encountered men who tried to lie to her, but they would always reveal themselves after she asked some more questions about the happenings in her dreams.

Since last week, the man's face gradually became clearer and she eventually remembered the man's identity.

He was Jason! The richest man in tMason Swansonty!

Jason was the man in her dreams, the man she was married to and who loved her!

Although she had been plagued with amnesia for the past few years while living in L City, she had heard of Jason and knew of Reed group. Jason rarely showed his face in the media, though. There were only a few photos of him that showed his face.

She had bought those photos her daughter was looking through right now online at a high price.

Thanks to Jason's good looks, there were people on the internet who appreciated his looks greatly. They would acquire photos of him, which were obviously taken without permission, and sell them at a high price online. Only people who appreciated Jason's looks as much as them would buy the photos!

Although Grace remembered Jason and some events in the past, she failed to remember the rest of them.

Maybe she would finally remember everything when she saw Jason for real.

"Mommy, did you really get married to Daddy? You didn't give birth to me before marriage, did you?" the young girl asked suddenly.

Pfft!

Grace spewed all the water she had not managed to swallow and accidentally got some on her daughter too.

The child's face scrunched up.

"Sorry! I didn't do that on purpose," Grace apologized. She hurriedly wiped the water off her daughter before saying, "Mommy and Daddy were really married. We gave birth to you after we got married! I promise."

The girl muttered, "But I don't look like Daddy at all. Will he want me?"

"Who said you don't look like him? You see... Uh..." Grace tried hard to look for similarities between her daughter and Jason, but to be honest, their daughter looked more like her. "Uh, your eyebrows are similar." She finally picked a feature of her daughter's that was similar to Jason's.

The girl was not satisfied. She wrinkled her pretty brows and suddenly said, "If Daddy doesn't want me, then I don't want him too. Can we go home if that happens?"

"Why do you think that he won't want you?" Grace asked as she found it odd.

"Because he hasn't tried to find us even after so long. He only likes my older brother, doesn't he?"

Chapter 1515

"No. There must be a reason why he hasn't come," Grace said, "He'll definitely like you when he sees you."

As for the reason why Jay had not come looking for her... He probably thought she was dead.

She had searched for related news on the internet. Her identity on the internet was Jason's 'deceased wife'

When the train arrived in Emerald City, Grace held her daughter's hand as they exited the carriage. When they reached the exit, she saw the silhouette of someone she used to be familiar with in the past. The person was waiting anxiously at the exit.

It was... Lina!

Grace's eyes reddened instantly. She had forgotten about Lina in the past few years. It was after she recovered her memories when she finally re-established contact with Lina.

Grace still remembered how Lina had been completely in disbelief when she called her. The two of them had a video call afterward, and only after that did Lina believe that she was still alive.

2/4

"Lina!" At this moment, Grace shouted. When Lina heard her, she turned toward Grace and her eyes immediately reddened.

When Grace and her daughter walked over and stood in front of Lina, she was already in tears.

"You really... You really are still alive! I knew that you wouldn't have died so easily! I knew it!" Lina hugged Grace tightly and shouted in between sobs.

Grace hugged her good friend back. Her eyes were also red. "Sorry, I've made you worry these past few years."

"Oh, this is Jaylee, isn't she?" Lina sobbed. She looked at the young girl beside Grace. She resembled Grace, but there was a little of Jason in her as well.

Lina had seen this kid before during previous video calls, but this was the first time they were meeting face to face.

"Godmother!" Jaylee said cutely, her soft voice softening Lina's heart.

Lina squatted on the floor, raising her hand to pinch the kid's soft cheek. How nice. It turned out that... more than one of Grace's children had survived.

"This is not a good place to talk. Let's leave first," Grace said.

3/4

Only then did Lina come back to her senses. She said quickly, "Yes, yes, let's continue this somewhere else." God knew she had too many words she wanted to say. There were so many things that they had not managed to say during their video calls!

The three of them left the train station. Lina drove. She took Grace and her daughter to a children's restaurant. They ordered food.

"Right, what's Jaylee's full name?" Lina asked. She knew that Grace's daughter was named Jaylee after their video call.

She had paused for a while the first time she heard that name. She did not expect Grace to use 'Jay' in her daughter's name.

Jason. Jay. Jaylee.

Even though Grace had lost her memories, she was still naturally attuned to the man's name.

"Jaylee Cummins."

"Jasper Reed."

Both mother and daughter said at the same time. After that, Grace looked at her daughter. "Didn't Mommy tell you that you have to change your name? It should be Jasper now."

Chapter 1516

"But I like Jaylee Cummins more. Mommy, can't we go with Jaylee Cummins?" the kid begged, her face scrunching up.

"Your elder brother's name is Mick Reed, and so you'll be Jasper Reed. Isn't this nice? Other people will know that you're siblings after hearing your names. Haven't you always wanted an elder brother?" Grace asked.

"Can't we have my elder brother rename himself as Mick Cummins instead?" the girl asked, tilting her head.

"Maybe you can ask him when you meet him," Grace said.

"Okay!" Jaylee raised her chin, looking determined.

Lina laughed at her goddaughter's antics. "Do you like the name Jaylee Cummins that much?"

"Yes, I do!" The kid nodded.

"Why? Because you're used to it? Or do you not want to change your name?" Lina guessed.

Before the kid could reply, Grace said, "She thinks that 'Jasper Reed' is much more difficult to write compared to 'Jaylee Cummins'. She'd agree to change her name to 'Jay Reed' immediately if we offered the option to her!"

". " Lina wanted to laugh. Her goddaughter was reluctant to change her name simply because it was more difficult to write?

The characters that made up 'Jasper Reed' were truly quite difficult to write for a child, though.

Their food arrived. The girl went to the playground area inside the restaurant as soon as she was done with her food. This was a children's restaurant, so quite a lot of playing areas had been set up for children.

Jasper was near their table where the adults could see her, so Grace and Lina continued eating, though their gazes would often wander to where she was.

"Are you taking Jasper to meet Jason later?" Lina asked.

"Yes. I'm going to Reed Residence," Grace said. She had called Jason a few times after she regained her memories. For the first number she called, the phone was turned off, and the second number was completely useless. Maybe strangers could never reach Jason through phone calls, Grace guessed.

This was why she decided to take her daughter to Reed Residence directly.

"But Jason.... He's different from before. After the Reed family told him that you died, I saw him twice and I got the feeling that he's a little different from before. He's unusually cold. I thought that it's because of your death."

Lina laughed self-deprecatingly. "And then I never saw him again. Mick Reed as well. I learned of the kindergarten

he attends after much trouble and I saw him a few times from afar. There are men from the Reed family in charge of escorting him to and from school, so I can't really approach him."

What she did not tell Grace was that she had approached Mick Reed once, but when she tried to say something to him, she was blocked by the Reed family's bodyguards as though they were worried that she would say something she should not.

Hearing that, Grace knew that her friend was worried that she would be put in an embarrassing situation when she visited Reed Residence. She said, "Sorry."

"What are you talking about? What are you sorry for? It's so great that you're back now, but... Between the two children with Jason now, only Mick Reed is yours. There's another girl named Oriel Lynch, she's an adopted daughter. Her mother's name is Irene Lynch. Rumor says that she's close with Jason. You'll have to stand up against that woman."

4/4 Lina had to tell her friend everything she could. She knew that the rumors were just rumors, but they were so vividly spoken about that she could not help but worry.

Chapter 1517

"I know, I saw it on the news," Grace said. She bit her lip. "If Jay has really given away all his love to that person and has no more feelings for me, I won't pester him any longer. But... if the person Jay loves is still me, I won't leave him!"

Everyone had thought that she was dead. It was perfectly reasonable for Jay to fall in love with someone else or remarry.

However, she inexplicably had this feeling that her Jay would be like her. His heart would never beat for someone else other than her.

During the past few years when she lost all her memories, she had encountered a few outstanding men who were attracted to her, but she had never felt anything for them.

It was only after her memories gradually came back that she realized her heart had been completely given away to a man named Jason. With that, she no longer had anything she could give.

"Right, how about you? Do you have a partner now?" Grace changed the topic.

"Me? Not yet! I'm still single in old age. My mother's pestering me about this all the time." Lina shrugged with a smile that was tinged with bitterness.

2/4

In the past few years, she would try not to think about Hadwin Stephenson, but the man would always appear in her head briefly. Maybe it was because she had been too happy during her relationship with the man. Now, she did not have the urge to fall in love no matter what kind of men she met. She had gone on blind dates, but they always fizzled out.

“Have you still not let go of him?” Grace looked at her good friend, feeling sorry for her.

“I’m trying hard.” Lina smiled. “If I really can’t, I’ll just be single my whole life. It’s not that scary. I have your two children to send me off when I die, anyway.”

Lina paused abruptly after saying that. She turned to Grace with an apologetic look.

Grace looked dejected for a while.

Two children... She had given birth to triplets, but at last...

Jason had one child with him, and she had one with her as well. Then... where was the remaining one?

Where was the remaining child? Was the Reed family secretly hiding them? Perhaps...

3/4

At this moment, Jasper let out a shout of alarm. Grace became alert. She looked in her daughter’s direction, only to see her fighting with another girl.

“Jasper!” Grace surged forward hurriedly, wanting to pull her daughter away. However, before she could approach them, another woman had gone over and shoved Jasper away roughly.

The girl failed to reorient herself and ended up falling down. Luckily, there were cushions beneath her and nothing big happened.

Grace ran to her daughter and helped her up.

Lina followed suit. She said, looking full of worry, “Are you okay?”

Jasper shook her head, and her almond-shaped eyes were watery. “Mommy, Daddy’s photos are torn. She tried to take them from me.”

It was only then when Grace discovered that her daughter was holding half of the candid photo of Jason that she had bought at a high price!

As for the one who tried to take it away... She looked up, and what a coincidence! They were the Lynch mother-and-daughter duo Lina had told her about just now!

Chapter 1518

The person who pushed her daughter away was Irene Lynch, and the little girl holding the other half of the photo was Oriel Lynch, the adopted daughter of the Reed family. Grace had seen photos of this pair of mother and daughter on the internet.

Before Grace could speak, Irene Lynch harrumphed coldly. "Daddy? How are you educating your child that she's calling someone else's father that? Can your child even measure up to him? Quickly, have your daughter say sorry to my daughter! She hurt my daughter! Do you know who my daughter is?" Irene Lynch said arrogantly. She would not have come to a restaurant like this if her daughter had not wanted to visit it after having seen it on TV.

To her, a restaurant for the commoners such as this one was beneath her and her daughter.

Unexpectedly, her daughter had a conflict with someone else and the reason for it was the photo of Jason that had fallen out from the other girl's pocket. The girl also repeatedly claimed that it was a photo of her daddy.

Daddy? Irene Lynch looked at the mother and daughter who were dressed commonly with a look of disdain.

Jason had only one daughter, which was Oriel Lynch. He would only become Oriel Lynch's daddy in the future.

Hearing that, Grace glared at Irene Lynch coldly. "I know who your daughter is, of course. The adopted daughter of the Reed family, right? I don't need you to tell me if my daughter can measure up to Jason."

There were children present, after all. Grace did not want to say overly acerbic words.

However, Irene Lynch was triggered by what she said about Oriel Lynch's status as an 'adopted daughter. She hated it when other people said that her daughter was only adopted. Those people who sucked up to her tended to mince their words, calling her daughter the little young lady of the Reed family instead.

"You don't need me to tell you? I think you're delusional! You just want to marry into a rich family! You're so shameless! You found this photo somewhere and got your daughter to call him 'Daddy' What, do you want to be the mistress of the Reed family? Just look at you!"

The Reed family had destroyed all photos of Grace, so naturally, the photos of Grace had also been taken down from the internet.

Irene Lynch knew that Jason had a deceased wife named Grace, but she had not seen photos of her before. It was only normal that she did not know the woman in front of her was Jason's wife.

"Look at you! Who's the shameless one?" Lina said to Irene Lynch. Jasper was Jason's biological daughter and her good friend was Jason's wife as stated in his marriage certificate.

However, they were subjected to Irene Lynch's ridicule now.

This made Lina very angry.

Irene Lynch was incensed. She rushed forward, wanting to give Lina a slap on the face, but Grace reached out and stopped her hand mid-air. "What happened before was only an argument between two children. What are you doing, butting in even though you're an adult? Are you planning to make everything worse?"

Ever since Oriel Lynch became Jason's adopted daughter, Irene Lynch had gotten used to everyone's flattery. How could she withstand this? She brandished her other hand, about to hit Grace.

Lina was not one to watch her good friend get hit, so the three women ended up brawling.

The children, who had started the fight in the first place, watched the adults with their eyes open wide. They each held half of the photo.

4/4

The employees in the restaurant rushed forward and pulled the three women apart. Despite their efforts, all three women ended up suffering injuries somewhere. Irene Lynch had been roughed up the most. Her immaculately combed hair was now as messy as a bird's nest. One of her fake eyelashes had fallen, and her lipstick stained the corner of her lips.

The manager of the restaurant was shocked when he recognized Irene Lynch.

Chapter 1519

This... This woman was in a relationship with Mr. Reed! It was mentioned online all over the news. Not only had this woman recently opened a chain of beauty salons but she was also close with a group of noblewomen in tMason Swansonty. Nothing could ever happen to someone like her in his restaurant!

Otherwise, they would have to close the restaurant within a few days!

The manager rushed forward and said, "Miss Lynch, are you okay?"

Irene Lynch said angrily, "How could you let such a person into the restaurant? If something happens to my daughter in your restaurant, let's see how Mr. Reed will take care of you!"

The manager kept apologizing.

At this moment, Jasper raised her eyes to look at her mother and godmother. She said cutely, "Mommy, you and Godmother fought. You said not to fight with anyone else, Mommy, didn't you?" She thought that Mommy would scold her because she had fought, but then Mommy and Godmother threw themselves into the battlefield after her.

Did that mean that Mommy would not reprimand her?

Grace stroked her daughter's little head. "So you still remember Mommy saying that, huh... I said that we shouldn't fight unprovoked, but I didn't say we can't fight. If it's after you're bullied and abused, then do it! We call this... justified defense."

"Oh!" The little girl nodded her head, but it was unknown how much of it she understood.

"Justified defense?" Irene Lynch was furious. At this moment, there were still many people around. She was totally humiliated! Now, she was desperate to regain some of her dignity. "Don't think that whatever happened today will be resolved so easily. I'll hire a lawyer to sue you until you lose all your money!"

Oriel Lynch, who was standing next to Irene Lynch, raised her chin and proudly rushed over Jasper Reed. "My mommy is going to find a lawyer uncle, and the lawyer uncle will punish you!"

However, Jasper was even more arrogant than Oriel Lynch, almost raising her chin to the sky. "Your mommy needs the help of a lawyer uncle but my mommy is a lawyer herself, so she's not afraid!"

"My mommy has a lot of money and can find a lot of great lawyer uncles!" Oriel Lynch said.

"My mommy doesn't even need to spend money to have all the great lawyer uncles come!" Jasper proudly retorted.

The two children attacked each other with their childish voices.

3/4

Grace looked at Irene Lynch coldly. "Fine, call the police! Leave a statement so that we have everything ready for when you prosecute me!"

The restaurant manager hurriedly said to Grace, "Do you know who she is? Her daughter is the little young lady of the Reed family. You'd better hurry up and apologize to Miss Lynch now, or you won't be able to live in Emerald City peacefully in the future."

"I won't do that. If she really wants to sue me, then so be it.." Grace said. She was not surprised at how the manager was asking her to apologize without knowing what had happened. Many people in this world tended to gravitate toward profits and avoid harm.

Irene Lynch wanted so badly to tear this woman in front of her into shreds. Call the police; she said? Great! When that time came, she would have this woman understand how unfortunate it was that she had offended her in Emerald City!

Chapter 1520

The restaurant still had to operate, so when the police came, they escorted the five of them involved into their police cars.

In the police car, Irene Lynch could not help but freeze when she heard the name Grace told the police.

Grace? This woman's name was also Grace!

Was that not the name of Young master Reed's deceased wife?

At this moment, however, Irene Lynch did not associate Grace with Jason's wife. Jason's wife had passed away five years ago, after all. That was common knowledge in tMason Swansonty.

Irene Lynch only thought that the Grace in front of her was utterly ridiculous for thinking that she could suck up to Young master Reed just because her name was also Grace. How dare she shamelessly let a child mistake Young master Reed as her father?!

In this world, not everyone was qualified to call Young master Reed their father!

In the future, except for the youngest master of the Reed family, Mick Reed, only her daughter, Wanna, would have the right to!

At this moment, Jasper was still hung up on the torn half of the photo. That was a photo of her daddy!

"C'mon, don't be sad. Mommy will take you to see Daddy today. When we do... Uh, you can take your own camera and take pictures of Daddy," Grace said.

Jasper thought about it, and suddenly, her previous gloom was cleared away.

"That's my daddy, not your daddy! And Daddy doesn't like being photographed the most!" Oriel Lynch said unhappily.

"Hmph, Mommy said that Daddy will like me a lot because I look like Mommy! Daddy likes Mommy the most!" Jasper said defiantly.

Lina came up to her friend's ear and said, "Did you really say that to Jasper?"

"Mm." Grace's face could not help but blush a little. Well, she had indeed said such cheeky words to her daughter as she had been obsessing over whether her dad would like her or not.

"It's been five years since I last met you and you've grown up, huh?" Lina snickered.

Irene Lynch coldly snorted. "Shamelessness can really be hereditary. Like mother, like daughter. I would eat a shoe if Young master Reed ends up liking a woman like you!"

"I'll wait for you to eat your shoe, then!" Lina egged her on.

"You..." Irene Lynch felt like she would explode from anger thanks to Lina.

3/4

The car drove to the police station in a short time. The group of people got out of the car. Irene Lynch's lawyer was already waiting at the entrance of the police station. As soon as he saw Irene Lynch, he hurried over. "Miss Lynch, you can rest assured that there'll be no problem with this lawsuit. We can definitely--"
